Vitalize Your HAIR!
Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!
NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR
that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.
SWISS HAIR VITALIZER
gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which
THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.
Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.
Agents Wanted
FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.
We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,
SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

BROWN.

Vera Brown, daughter of Bro. D. A. Brown, died at the home of her parents in Hannibal, Mo., Feb. 24, 1904, aged 14 years and one month. She was an active Christian and a faithful member of the Sunday-school. She was womanly beyond her years and her pleasant, winning manner was admired by all who enjoyed her acquaintance. Her own mother preceded her five years ago. Her life was filled with good deeds and kind words. She has left the stamp of her influence especially on the Sunday-school in which her memory is dear.

Levi Marshall.

EIKER.

Warren Eiker, aged five months and 27 days. The mother having died when the babe was about one month old, Sister Eleanor Eiker, a great aunt, took a mother's care. But death came suddenly with only a few minutes' illness. W. L. Neal.

GERMAN.

Little Price Stanley German died Feb. 7, 1905, of pneumonia at Monticello, Mo. Little Price was the youngest grandson of Judge Thos. B. Hanly, of Lewis county, in whose home the daughter, Mrs. German, was visiting at the time of his death. The funeral was conducted by Bro. Chas. L. Harbord.

HAYNES.

Funeral services were held in the Christian church over the remains of little Clifton, son of Brother and Sister J. W. Haynes of this city. Clifton was a member of our infant class of 40 little boys and girls in our Bible-school. The floral tribute by his class was very beautiful.

Eldon, Mo. S. J. Vance, pastor.

HUNT.

Elder Wesley Thomas Hunt was born March 25, 1860, in Cass county, Mo. When he was nine years old his parents moved to Neosho county, Kan., near Galesburg. While teaching school in Chanute, Kan., he was baptized, Oct., 1886. He was ordained in December, 1887, at Iola, Kan. He was married June 7, 1893, to Miss Sallie Bridgens at Girard, Kan. He preached for several churches in Kansas and Colorado. His last pastorate was Fortuna, Cal. On account of his fast failing health he left California and spent a short time with friends in Illinois, then went to his brother, John Hunt, near Parsons, Kan. Patiently he battled with death for six months and on March 9, 1905, he fell asleep. He leaves a monument to his memory at Loveland, his last pastorate in Colorado. It was through his suggestion that Brother and Sister Warren gave their splendid farm at that place to the National Benevolent Association for an orphanage. Children yet unborn will bless his memory. His pure and unselfish life has strengthened the church wherever he has lived. He leaves a devoted wife and little son, Errett, one brother and two sisters to mourn his loss.

Longmont, Col. E. F. Harris.

WOOD.

Jesse R. Wood, elder in the church at Maxwell, Ia., departed this life for his rich reward March 6, 1905. With his ripe experience of 73 years his counsel was ever sought both by the church and those without. His life was well rounded, for he touched every worthy interest of humanity. From the organization of the Bible-school he was regular in attendance and proved himself a student of the word. As a brotherhood we will sympathize with the family who feel most his loss. But we will ever thank God for that faith which in this instance overcame the world. He was called in an instant by apoplexy into the presence of his glorified Redeemer.

G. E. Roberts, pastor.

WYLDER.

Wilmoth Jones Wylder was born Nov. 9, 1824. When she was two years old her parents came from Missouri to Morgan county, Ill., where with the exception of two years in Green county, Ill., she resided until her death, March 3, 1905. She was one of a family of 11 children. Mrs. Mary E. Claypool, Niantic, Ill., and Miss Nancy J. Jones, Markham, Ill., are now the only surviving members. Jan. 29, 1852, she was married to W. J. Wylder, who mourns her departure. To them one child was born—Mrs. Annie Paschal, Chapin, Ill. Mrs. Wylder united with the Christian church in 1843 and was devoted to the King's business all her remaining days. At the age of 80 she was young in spirit and full of enthusiasm for every good cause. The grace of hospitality never became a lost art in her home. She more than met Solomon's description of a virtuous woman. She was an everyday Christian. Shadows did not dim her faith. She said to one of her nephews, "I am not afraid to die, for I know in whom I have believed." He said of her, "Oh, I tell you, she was good." The world is better because she lived in it and heaven is richer since she went home. W. H. Cannon.

Lincoln, Ill.

Man Preparing for Other Worlds

By WM. T. MOORE, M. A., LL. D.

Or the Spiritual Man's Conflict and Final Victory : :

A Story of Man in the Light of the Bible, Science and Experience : : : :

Cloth, 500 Pages, $2.00.

VERDICTS OF THOSE WHO HAVE READ THIS GREAT BOOK

His best book . . . It is the book of the gospel—the gospel for the man in the street.—Dr. Jas. Hastings, Editor of Dictionary of the Bible.

All who read the book will be benefited thereby. It breathes a sweet, pure spirit and will certainly do much good.—D. R. Dungan.

It is a book for the age, by one who is alive to the needs of the age and the great problems that confront the leaders of the church.—J. J. Morgan.

It is the ripest thought and matured conviction of a veteran whose ministry as a preacher and writer among the churches of Christ has been conspicuous. It bears the unmistakable marks of wide reading, earnest thinking and catholic sympathies.—Christian Standard.

It has been quite a help to me. It abounds in good suggestions and new applications.—Wm. Ross Lloyd.

It is a book of wide compass, depicting the spiritual history of man from his origin to his final destiny.—J. W. McGarvey.

It is the greatest book ever published by our brotherhood. At every reading it has had fresh charm for me. . . Send for it now! Now!! Not by and by, and you will thank me for ten years to come.—Jas. Small.

Dr. Moore is the most picturesque figure of this present religious reformation, one of its profoundest theologians and most charming writers. Of all his numerous and valuable contributions to church literature this is his masterpiece.—Geo. L. Snively.

Published by

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

REUBEN:

HIS BOOK

297 Pages of Humor and Philosophy
In attractive and substantial cloth binding
BY
Morton H. Pemberton

"Reub reminds one a little bit of the late lamented Ben King, who was indeed a lovely soul; but Reub's is rather a broader kind of laugh-making product. . . . .

"His book is already heading the list of 'best sellers' and deserves to go. 'It is good.'" —St. Louis Republic.

A new book but one that is springing rapidly into popularity, because of its telling wit and humor and its freedom from coarseness.

Everybody Will Enjoy It
All Will Be Benefited By It

PRICE $1.00, POSTPAID.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Sunday-School

CLASS BOOKS,
ENVELOPES
RECORDS,
BLACK BOARDS,
MAPS, CARDS
AND OTHER

Up-To-Date Supplies

Order what you need from

Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo

BEST THING ON WHEELS.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS ON THE

Henderson Route

(ALL TRAINS) BETWEEN
ST. LOUIS
LOUISVILLE
AND KENTUCKY POINTS.

SPECIAL RATES.

One-Way Colonist
AND
Round-Trip Homeseekers

When you travel, why not be comfortable? The up-to-date equipment, the safe and convenient train schedules offered by the HENDERSON ROUTE and the direct connections made in St. Louis Union Station with all trains from the West and Southwest solves the problem.

If you contemplate a trip, take the time to write us.

Insist on your ticket reading via St. Louis and the Henderson Route. This will insure you comfort in travel.

ASK US FOR RATES.

F. G. CUNNINGHAM, - - T. P. Agt.
W. C. LINDSAY, - - - G. Agent.
206 N. Broadway, ST. LOUIS.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St Louis, Mo.

A Complete Line of

BAPTISMAL SUITS

Guaranteed Best Quality.

Write to us for Prices.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Family Circle

YESTERDAY.

By H. T. Baird.

O, God, I pray that for this day,
I may not stray from Thee away;
And on the morrow have cause for sorrow
For any deed of yesterday.

O, Spirit sweet, guide Thou my feet,
Keep Thou my heart from sin apart;
That on the morrow I'll have no sorrow
For any deed of yesterday.

O, Christ, my king, speed the inbring
Of Thy glad day of righteous sway;
Where each bright morrow is free from sorrow
For any deed of yesterday.

Father, Spirit, Son, wondrous Three in One;
All earth acclaim Thy glorious name
For pledge of morrow, bereft of sorrow
For any deed of yesterday.

To God, my stay, through Christ, the way,
In faith I'll pray each blessed day;
Till comes that morrow—"surcease of sorrow"
For deeds of all the yesterdays.

Denver, Colorado.

❖ ❖

ZELPHA.

By Grace Mabel Ford.

Mrs. Johnson, seated in her comfortable home in ——— street, was regarding her two children with a far-away gaze. Her advanced ideas in regard to child-training, together with her ardent love of children, compelled her to devote almost her entire time to them. Yet sometimes she felt that, while planning their education, she might also extend her influence outside of her home. She would not have exchanged places, she emphatically declared, with any other woman in the world, yet she was not satisfied with her life. Not that there was any domestic unhappiness to cloud the horizon, for during her honeymoon she had written in her diary, Browning's incomparable words:

"All the breath and the bloom of the year in the bag of one bee;
All the wonder and wealth of the mine in the heart of one gem;
In the core of one pearl, all the shade and shine of the sea—
Breath and bloom, shade and shine, wonder, wealth, and how far above them—
Truth, that's brighter than gem,
Trust, that's purer than pearl—
Brightest truth, purest trust in the universe
All were for me in the heart of my love."

And these exquisite lines still told her love for her husband. Yet a vague unrest of ambition unrealized excited her at times, not an ambition to be somebody, but to do something—something for the elevation of humanity.

This afternoon an attack of lumbago possibly tinged her thoughts a darker hue, and sighing she crossed the room to a lounge, where, notwithstanding the children's prattle, she presently fell asleep. A neighbor who had died two weeks before stood before her. She had been a strong church-woman, liberal, sympathetic and helpful.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

No Dealer Can Duplicate Our Factory Price
SAVE 1/3
Our high grade carriages are made in our own factory, and sold exclusively by mail order at a saving of from $15 to $30 to the buyer. We warrant every vehicle to be just as represented or refund money and pay freight both ways. Send for free catalogue. It tells the advantage of buying from factory.
THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE AND HARNESS CO., Columbus, Ohio.

"Sympathy is the key-note of the other world, the basis of reward and punishment. Those whose characters have been trained by sympathy, reap as they have sown; the selfish and unsympathetic also reap as they have sown, and" (here she was most emphatic) "for them there is no possibility of enjoyment. They are alone, alone, alone."

At this she awoke to find the vision only a dream. But the message remained burned into her very soul. Why had she not thought of this before? Sympathy, the current coin of the other world! Happiness, eternal happiness, depended upon the store of sympathy accumulated here. She took up a Bible from the table and commenced to read one of the Gospels. Fascinating indeed was the Christ-life with this idea supreme. Jesus, the Great Sympathizer! Every page told of words to cheer, and miracles to help.

Although the church had always been spiritually helpful, yet she realized that the machinery of the organization (so to speak) had in a measure distracted her thoughts from the helpfulness of Christ. The memory of bitter though small rivalries in the choir or congregation, had spoiled many a prayer, and had almost embittered the command, "Take, eat, this is my body broken for you." Hereafter, with Christ's sympathy the key-note of all services, she recognized that worship would mean more to her. Then, too, she realized for the first time that membership in Christ's body meant enlargement, and though tied at home by her duties, a mysterious though real power connected her with all the good in the universe, and that she had her place in the great Father's heart.

How this thought broadened her life can best be told from her diary:

Dec. 25. The gift of the Christ-child! How I would like to give myself and all of my possessions to benefit humanity! I do not see clearly how, but give something, I will. Life is really worth living when one gives. Ah, the orphans' home! Why have I not thought of it before? I might give them a dinner, or send each one a present. Poor children! My eyes fill with tears as I look at my two boys, and think they, too, may some time be orphans. I wish I could do more.

New Year's. I took Roland to see the orphans yesterday. How nice the children looked! "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." There was one little girl that Roland admired so much. She had light curly hair and blue eyes. "Mamma, I wish I had a little sister like her," he said. "Then I'd never be lonely."

Feb. 14. Ronald's papa bought him two dozen valentines to-day, and what did the boy do but send every one to the orphans! I am glad that he is growing more useful than formerly.

John's salary was raised last month and he has finally agreed to my plan to surprise Ronald on his birthday, March 1. Dear diary, I wonder if you can guess the surprise!

March 1. Ronald is a very happy boy. He keeps dancing up and down, crying, "Oh, mamma, mamma, Zelpha's come to stay. She's my birthday present. Isn't she lovely?"

I sometimes wonder how a childless woman ever attains to the height of perfect sympathy and usefulness. My children teach and train me as much as I do them. It has occurred to me many times lately, that the giving of myself to them is a means of development I could not afford to be without. It is a step, or rather progress in losing self and gaining (what shall I call it?) personality. "He that loseth his life shall find it."

I have seen lonely old people bewail the fact that they had never had children, and my neighbor, Mrs. W., said with tears in her eyes only the other day, "If only I had had a daughter." Somehow the blue eyes of that orphan child have haunted me for two months, and that this night's gift to Roland may be a blessing on our home is my prayer.

June 1. Zelpha has been with us three months, and we all love her dearly. She has such a sunny disposition. The home authorities said she had been brought up by her grandmother, as her mother died when she was a year old. The whereabouts of the father, if indeed he be alive, are unknown. How we should miss her if relatives claimed her! I can hear her sweet voice singing,

"Trust and obey, for there's no other way
To be happy in Jesus, but to trust and obey."

She seems too, to know just how to manage Roland. How her gentleness is taming his rough nature!

CHAPTER II.

A little more than five years before, in a city of Missouri a young man was slowly wending his way homeward after a harassing day of office work. His employer had been unusually exacting, and though glad to be out of the disagreeable office he wondered anxiously about his homecoming. Two years before when he married he thought his wife the one woman in

A PRODUCT OF A GREAT REVIVAL A
THE GREATEST OF ALL
REVIVAL HYMN BOOKS
Church Hymns and Gospel Songs
BY SANKEY, McGRANAHAN & STEBBINS.
NEARLY 700,000 SOLD!
Used and Endorsed by the
CLERGY OF ALL DENOMINATIONS.
NEW EDITION!—JUST ISSUED!
With SUPPLEMENT of NEWEST SACRED SONGS added regularly to all Editions and Bindings
Music & Words, all Large Type, 30c. by mail. $25 a 100.
Words Only, with New Supp., 12c. by mail. $10 a 100.
Returnable Samples mailed to "earnest inquirers."
Published by the publishers of the famous "Gospel Hymns."
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Fistula, Fissure, Bleeding, Itching, Ulceration, Constipation and all Rectal Diseases a Specialty.
Cures Guaranteed. Send for Booklet. DR. M. NEY SMITH, Specialist,
800 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo. Established in St. Louis in 1888.

The Editor of the Christian-Evangelist knows of his personal knowledge a number of persons who were severely afflicted with rectal troubles whom Dr. Smith has cured. He is personally acquainted with the Doctor, and has no hesitation in commending any sufferer thus afflicted to him.

the world, and even now he devotedly loved her. But lately she had seemed so changed. Sometimes for a whole evening she sat looking intently into the grate fire in the little cottage home, not even answering his questions, but arousing only when the baby cried. At other times she was unnaturally gay. Was her mind wrong? Did she have any secret trouble? Had he not done his utmost to make home happy? These were some of the questions he was attempting to answer. He had chosen to walk the three miles to his home in order to form some plan as to his future course of action. But he had reached home and no feasible plan had presented itself to his tired, discouraged mind. Opening the door of the living-room, what was his surprise to see, by the lighted match in his hand, an entirely empty room. For a moment, he stopped as if stunned. Then thought began again. Could he have made a mistake? Was not this his home? Where was his wife and child? Where the furniture? He found the front rooms empty. Then he reached the kitchen. Was this, too, empty, he wondered. No; in a corner on a heap of straw law a little child. "Oh, God," he cried aloud in his agony. Then he bent over it, and the child awoke crying.

It was but the work of a moment to carry it to a neighbor's. She could give him no explanation of the desolated home except that a van had taken furniture from the house, and she had afterwards seen his wife, a valise in hand, leave by the front door. At that time she had wondered where the baby was, but not dreaming of the truth, she did not investigate. With tear-bedimmed eyes she pressed the child to her bosom, and promised to care for it that night. Too sick to eat the supper she placed before him, he started on a tour of investigation. The furniture dealer whose van the neighbor had noticed stated that a woman had sold him the goods, while the morning papers in large headlines, "Run Off With Another Man," spread broadcast the story of his disgrace. Charles St. John did not know positively that this was true, but having a proud, reserved disposition, the feeling of dishonor almost turned his mind. The memory of his wife grew hateful to him, and even the sight of the child distasteful. He finally decided to take her to his wife's parents, where, laying down one hundred dollars, all the money he possessed, he said, "I never wish to see her again."

He would have liked to go west, but having no money he decided to keep his position for a short time at least. Six months went by when one day a minister of the —— street Christian church asked him to call at the city hospital. He arrived in time to see his dying wife, and to hear her tremblingly say, "Forgive."

Then he went to the far west, where Providence (or luck as he termed it) accompanied him. He secured a good position and in six months' time married a school-teacher. As he looked extremely young, it had been taken for granted in the town that he had never been married, and he had not contradicted the impression. After his engagement to Miss Brown, he tried once or twice to tell her the disagreeable facts in his life, but the feeling of disgrace that overwhelmed him at such times conquered his sense of duty; and he let the opportunity slip, thinking "When we're married, I'll tell her." But it was no easier after marriage. "If I tell her now, she'll think I'm capable of any deception," he reasoned, and his happiness seemed so nearly complete that he put off the disclosure, in fear of another domestic catastrophe. He had suffered so much he could not run any further risk, he thought.

So the years passed, bringing financial success and domestic happiness, although no little ones had come to bless their home.

During the St. Louis exposition of 1904, Mrs. St. John planned a trip east. At her urgent request, Charles decided to accompany her, although he knew the trip in some respects would be distasteful to him. He had resolutely banished from his mind all thoughts of his child long ago, but he knew he must think of her while on the trip. But an invitation from his wife's relatives in St. Louis had finally determined matters, especially as he could offer no valid objections.

In the meantime, how fared the child? Her grandparents lavished the wealth of their affection upon her for four years, until one February the grandfather died of pneumonia after a week's illness. Three weeks after the child found her "mother," as she called her, dead in her arm-chair. The old lady could not live without her husband, and had joined him in the other world. "Heart disease," the coroner's jury said. After the funeral expenses and a dissolute uncle's share were subtracted, the little girl had almost nothing. It was then decided that the little child be supplied with clothes and sent to an orphans' home.

* * * * * *

On the morning after their arrival in St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. St. John with their hostess were lingering at the breakfast table, when Zelpha entered on an errand.

"What a beautiful child!" said Mrs. St. John after Zelpha had left the room. "Did you notice how much she resembled Charles? She couldn't have looked more like him had she been his own child." The hostess had also noticed the marked resemblance to her guest, and at Mrs. St. John's request, gave the child's history as she knew it.

"Well, she certainly is the sweetest child I ever saw," emphatically declared Mrs. St John.

Thoughts came rapidly to Charles St. John. His own child would be about the age of this one; there was the noticeable resemblance to himself. But could it be possible his child had been in a charitable institution? He had never imagined that. What should he do? If this beautiful child were his, he had a claim upon her, as well as duty in regard to her. The fatherhood in him had at last asserted itself and know the truth he would.

July 1. What suspense I am in! Mr. St. John, a visitor at the next house, claims Zelpha for his child. A triangular mark behind her left ear is a birth-mark, he says, and he positively identifies her. I cannot bear to write the whole story as he told it. How can any father have neglected his child thus? He is to tell his wife the whole story, and because we have not legally adopted the child, I fear he may take her. It would be like losing my own child. I cannot let her go.

July 2. Mrs. St. John has readily forgiven her husband's silence and wishes to adopt Zelpha. I argued with her a long time, urging upon her our claims, but she was obdurate. Finally I asked Mr. St. John if it were not just to let the child decide. He reluctantly consented. I called Zelpha into the room. Both Mr. and Mrs. St. John tried to picture the enchanting life the child would lead, should she go with them; but the dear girl only said, "I cannot leave mamma and Ronald."

❁ ❁

PREJUDICE.

It is a common failing for humanity, when it discovers a fault in a few persons, to suspect the multitude. Because there are rogues in public life we are apt to doubt the existence of any honest men.

If we happen to know a quack doctor we may hesitate to trust the really capable physician in the next block. A shyster lawyer may be taken by us as representative of the entire profession; and the transgressions of a preacher may lead us to doubt the sincerity of many. This is wrong.

In every avenue of life there are the good and the bad; the genuine and the spurious. Each ought to be held answerable for his own sins only and be praised for his own merits.

Because there are many worthless remedies for bodily ills is no proof whatever that there are no worthy ones. We ought to be fair even in this matter. Our back cover page contains the advertisement of the Theo. Noel Co.'s Vitæ-Ore. It is not a chemical compound, but a mineral water; that is, it is a mineral taken in its natural state from the ground, pulverized, sold in packages and when dissolved in water makes a mineral water such as people often travel hundreds of miles to test. It is endorsed by very many who know of it and who have used it.

While it will not cure all "the ills that flesh is heir" to it is worth trying by those who are suffering in the ways mentioned in the advertisement.

I have suffered from none of these ills, but if I should, I would certainly "risk" trying their free offer. W. D. Cree,
Advertising Manager.

Dr. Woolley's PAINLESS OPIUM AND Whiskey Cure

SENT FREE to all users of morphine, opium, laudanum, elixir of opium, cocaine or whiskey, a large book of particulars on home or sanatorium treatment. Address, Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, 106 N. Pryor St. Atlanta, Georgia.

The Telephone in the Corn Belt.

To Quiet the Baby, Spread Fire Alarms, Announce Trains and Catch Thieves.

Some very amusing stories of the new uses to which the telephone is put in Iowa are told in the April World's Work. A few of them follow:

Nearly every day someone invents or discovers a new use for it. One day the girl at "Central" received this message: "Hello! Say, Central, I have put the receiver of the 'phone in baby's cradle, and if she wakes up and cries, call me up at number seventy-one."

It must have been an unusually absent-minded woman who sent in the message: "Oh, Central! Ring me up in fifteen minutes, so that I won't forget to take the bread out of the oven."

If some one finds it necessary to take a night train, the operator at the exchange will receive some such message as this: "Central, ring me up a half an hour before the 2:17 train in the morning. See if it's late before you call me, please."

Go into the exchange during a "rush period"—say, at nine o'clock in the morning—and you will see the telephone girl stand up, push her chair into a corner, and "throw" the plugs with which connections are made as fast as her arms can fly, for an hour at a stretch. All she will have time to say to you will be, "Every woman in town is ordering things for dinner."

There are about thirty subscribers who are called regularly every morning by the telephone instead of by an alarm clock. The "Central" girl is supposed to know the time of all railway trains, and if a train happens to be late, how many minutes behind time. She is often asked the time of day, because some one has let the clock run down. When there is an alarm of fire, "Central" is supposed to know where it is. The exchange is just across the street from the fire house, and fire alarms are often telephoned in—to the saving of valuable time.

Toward the end of a long, cold drive on a raw autumn day I was met at the gate by a farmer friend, with the words, "Come right in. The wife has some hot coffee ready for you. We knew you were coming. Miss Rankin saw you go by, and she just telephoned to us."

Sometimes the rural telephone has been used to stop travelers less willing to be stopped. There are sections where chicken stealing has become a lost art, because the rural telephones make it possible to block every avenue of escape as soon as the crime is discovered. Many industrious chicken thieves, and some bold offenders have been caught "red-handed" through telephone messages which have prompted farmers to meet the malefactors with shotguns on the highway.

A farmer's wife, on a rural telephone which had been in operation only a few months, was asked how she liked the telephone. She naively answered, "Well, we liked it a lot at first, and do yet, only spring work is coming on so heavily now that we don't hardly have time to listen now."

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

Mexico's Holy City.

In America's oldest republic you need take but few steps to be amid associations centuries indeed in age. So it is in the Holy City of the New World, although but recently did the traveler know that another besides Jerusalem existed. To the Mexican and mestizo, Amecameca is the holiest of cities. Its people recognize the passing of time by the saints' days; for Amecameca observes more fetes and fasts than ever did the inhabitants of any European city under papal rule, and a strange commingling of the Aztec and Catholic are some of these rites. Here the religions of Old Mexico and the Spanish conquest have merged into ceremonies and customs picturesque in their weirdness. In the shadow of the Sacre Monte has the tragedy of the crucifixion been repeated with human victims. Zealots crawl along the stony way that leads to its summit on their knees, leaving a trail of blood spots to mark their pathway. Beside the church walls men and women join in "sacred" dances with which their ancestors paid homage to the Aztec idols.

But there is one thing of to-day about Amecameca—the interoceanic railroad, along which the traveler journeys from Vera Cruz into the heart of the republic, passes through it. But when the visitor alights from the train, he is set back four centuries; for looming up before him is the venerable Dominican church built about 1500. Its appearance verifies its age, although the earthquakes which have now and then lifted up the country, and put it down again, have played sad havoc with the walls and what were once beautiful decorations. But suppose the sunlight does gleam through its cracks and crevices, and the statue of good St. Sebastian over its portal has crumbled away from head to waist, what of that? Perhaps "Our Senor of Amecameca will some day restore it. We can wait." Such is the priest's reply. Then you remember that this is the land of manana.

Yes, this Holy City has a guardian to whom more homage is paid than to any saint in the calendar. To the people hereabouts he is as sacred as any deity whom they ever worshiped. Far above them in a cave in the crest of Sacre Monte he reposes, his cave a shrine to which Indian and mestizo make pilgrimages from plain and valley even a hundred miles away, while every month a throng from the city beneath toils up the Way of Sacre Monte. The padres have it that this cave has been such a shrine for three hundred years, and even before that, it was a Mecca for the afflicted and suffering. Here dwelt Fray Martin the Good—he who healed the sick, and comforted those in sorrow, spending the better part of his life in this hermitage. His converts before the crucifix numbered some of the most powerful chiefs of the tribes who in this region held sway. Such is the tale the padres tell. Somewhere hereabouts his bones repose in peace, but after his death such was the sorrow among his Indian "children" that "Our Senor" miraculously appeared in the little cave as his successor, and has watched over Amecameca since, protecting it from grim, hoary-headed Popocatepetl and the White Lady, his bride. For many years the volcano has ceased to belch forth its lava and flame—thanks to the good offices of the Senor—and has now degenerated into a huge sulphur mine, which has recently been bought by some enterprising Yankees.—Day Allen Willey, in The Pilgrim for April.

WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

MICHIGAN
SUMMER RESORTS

There is no more entrancing summer country in the world than the Great Lake
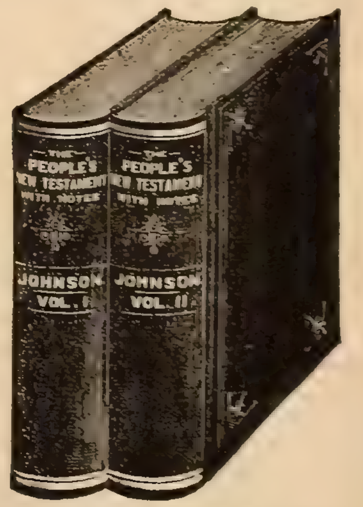
Country
It is mountains and seashore in one.
Write for booklets of information to
H. F. Moeller, G.P.A.
Pere Marquette
Railroad,
500 Union Station,
Detroit, Mich.

The People's New Testament With Notes
: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :
A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.
The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.



THE PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
JOHNSON VOL. I
THE PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
JOHNSON VOL. II

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD DAY—CONTINUED.

Mace and Miss Lizzie walked past the Tumbleton yard. "This next place belongs to Mr. Worth Acre," said Miss Lizzie. The yard was such a contrast to the ill-kept expanse which surrounded the Tumbleton home that Mace exclaimed with pleasure, "What a delightful place! It is so quaint—it reminds me of a playhouse, doesn't it you?"

The grass was cut close and even, and a lawn-mower standing under a lilac bush showed what had done it. A brick walk, about eighteen inches wide, of a bright red, and showing no hint of green through any crack, ran up to the front of the house, then opened its two arms and embraced it. "I never saw anything like that house," Mace said. "I noticed it when we first drove into the village. The more I see it, the better I like it. It is shaped exactly like a horseshoe."

"Yes," said Miss Lizzie, apparently with pride, "this is Horseshoe House." There were two fronts to the house, separated by an open space, which looked into a circular court. The house was built in a circle about the court, so that every room was an outside room. The ends of the horseshoe faced the road, and in each was a door without a porch. A gravel path led between them into the court where flower-beds showed bright colors. In the very centre of the court was a tall silver poplar, the branches trimmed away to the very top. "How can you tell which is the front door?" Mace inquired.

"It doesn't matter," said Miss Lizzie. "Whichever you go in, you can pass through all the house, and come out the other door, almost exactly where you began. So you see each front door is also a back door."

"I wish we could bend our house around," remarked Mace. At that moment a very old man, of a very wrinkled and dried-out condition, entered the yard from between the two ends of the horseshoe house. He had an exceedingly bright eye, and though he carried a cane, his thin legs showed agility. "Ha!" he exclaimed, "the mob comes again."

"How are you this evening, Mr. Acre?" asked Miss Lizzie kindly.

"I am still firm," said the other, drawing himself erect. "In three days I die. Bring me my wife and children."

Mace felt a cool wave pass down her back. The old man fixed her with his eagle glance and said abruptly, "Where is Lafayette?"

Mace, alarmed by his peremptory manner, answered quickly, "He is dead, sir."

"Dead?" cried the old man. "Then the last hope of the Empire has fled. Farewell!" He turned his back upon them and with stately tread re-entered the court.

"He is a remarkably preserved old gentleman," commented Miss Lizzie. "Did you note how youthful his step is, and how clear and distinct his voice? Mace, that gentleman is ninety-eight. Think of it! I wonder if you and I will be so vigorous at that age?"

As they walked on, "Is his mind—" asked Mace.

"His mind is in a perfect condition, in its domain," rejoined the other gravely. "You know every one's mind dwells in a sphere of its own, and moves only within the limits of its own consciousness. Mr. Acre imagines himself to be Louis XVI. of France, just on the eve of execution, and, for my part, I think him splendid in that character. He is always firm, he is always asking for his wife and children."

"Does he ever go out to hunt for them?"

"Oh, no, indeed, he is afraid of the mob. He thinks himself in a prison and that the mob is in the street, waiting to drag him to the guillotine before his time. He shows remarkable fortitude. He is Mr. Worth Acre's grandfather, and there is no one to take care of him but Mr. Worth."

"Is Mr. Worth Acre married?"

"Oh, no!" said Miss Lizzie, and she could not prevent a blush from stealing to her cheeks. "He is an old bachelor. That is to say, he is forty. You think that an old age, no doubt?"

"My mother is forty," said Mace. "It does seem pretty high up, Miss Lizzie."

"I suppose it does to you, my dear. But do you know, to me Mr. Worth Acre seems—" She paused and added, "and this next house is ours, you know."

"It was here," said Mace, "that three good ladies invited us to our first breakfast in the village."

Miss Lizzie gave her a squeeze, and Mace, looking up into the gentle face, wondered about Mr. Worth Acre. They passed on. "And this is our house," said Mace, "all in green, to make up, I suppose, for the lack of greenness of the yard." Mace's mother, who happened to be at the front door, saw them, and waved, then went in to tell her husband that they were passing. Mr. Woodney came to the door and waved; and old Mrs. Woodney, coming around the house at that moment, holding a hen by the legs, waved it triumphantly. She started toward the fence that divided the yard from the Enderthorpe estate.

"Oh, grandmother," cried Mace, "don't throw it over there! I've just learned that they do not keep chickens. That is Mr. Tumbleton's hen." Old Mrs. Woodney dropped the hen in amazement, and it fled screaming from the yard. "What have we done!" she exclaimed.

"I will make it all right," Mace assured her; "I'll apologize to them." She and Miss Lizzie passed on before the Enderthorpe yard. It was set in apple trees. "They live in their orchard," remarked Mace in a disparaging tone. "Are they not very plain people?"

"I like the Enderthorpes," said Miss Lizzie Day. "They are hard-working people and very poor. But Mr. and Mrs. Enderthorpe are respected by everybody because they are so reliable and kind. Their four boys are all ambitious and I believe will one day prove successful men. The girl they have adopted—she is about your age—is lame, and walks with one crutch. Mrs. Enderthorpe has not been well for a week or more, and the girl has proved herself very helpful."

"If they are so very poor," said Mace, "who do they adopt anyone?"

"Charity," said Miss Lizzie, "does not depend upon what you have in your purse, but what you have in your heart."

"If that is true," Mace objected, "I'd think you'd have a whole orphans' home at your place."

Miss Lizzie laughed. "It's not my fault if I haven't!" she declared. "Well, there are only two more houses on this side of the street, and this one is Mr. and Mrs. Winterfield's; they have three daughters, and that one standing at the gate is the youngest—just your age, I should think. Good-evening, Marcia," she added, addressing a slim, well-dressed blonde whose hair was done up in a roll, and whose dress came almost to the ground. "This is our new neighbor, Mace Woodney."

Marcia bowed graciously and said, "We have been wondering if your family is in any way related to Mr. G. C. D. Woodney?"

"He is papa's first cousin," said Mace.

Dr Price's Cream Baking Powder

Superlative in Strength and Purity.

Improves the flavor and adds to the healthfulness of the food.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
CHICAGO.

NOTE.—There are imitation baking powders sold cheap by many grocers. They are made from alum, a poisonous drug, which renders the food injurious to health.

"Oh, is he!" cried Marcia Winterfield with the utmost cordiality. "How very nice! Jennie Woodney is my most intimate friend." They shook hands. "Do come in! We are coming to see you just as soon as you are ready for company."

"I can't give Mace up this evening," said Miss Lizzie. "We are seeing the sights."

"Miserable old dead town," remarked Marcia. "Really, if school didn't begin soon, I should just die! But there are some awfully nice country people who come to school here. There's nobody here for Jennie and me to associate with except our own families. How perfectly splendid to have you!" She beamed so radiantly upon Mace that the other felt as if she had been given a present. She observed with pleasure that the house was well built and painted with taste. When they had moved on, she said "I am sure I shall like Marcia very much. I was afraid I'd be lonesome here, after leaving all my old friends. But Marcia is so friendly!"

Miss Lizzie only said, "Now we come to your cousin's place." Thus far, the Winterfield house had been the most pretentious in the village; but the home of G. C. D. Woodney was the climax. Not only was it of two stories from front to back, but it was built of brick, with a great stone porch in front, and a brick turret topped by a circular slate roof. It was indeed "a city house," and seemed as much out of place in the village as Mrs. G. C. D. Woodney had seemed out of place standing beside her cousin Benjamin's pump. The house was set far back from the road, and a beautiful drive swept up to the side through large flowerbeds. On the porch appeared a gay company, talking and laughing, while the tinkle of a mandolin mingled with the voices. "What a bright picture they make!" said Mace with an unconscious sigh. She felt that she would have been at home on that porch and in such company. Her cousin Jennie saw her, and waved a little hand from the distance, but did not call. Having reached the end of the row of houses, Miss Lizzie and Mace crossed the road and came to the ruins of the church which was just opposite G. C. D. Woodney's extensive premises. "Let us go in," said Mace, They passed through the gate and approached the ruins. The brick walls had fallen in picturesque heaps, and had been left for the vines to clamber over, just as they had fallen. Mace found a part of a wall still standing; the window-coping was intact, and a heap of bricks, just beneath the blackened sill, formed rude steps. "Let's sit in the window," cried Mace, climbing up the brick heap. She perched herself upon the ledge and Miss Lizzie followed cautiously. Their backs were now toward G. C. D. Woodney's, and they faced the next lot, which was the village cemetery. In spite of the high spirits Mace had shown in climbing up, a pensive thoughtfulness saddened her face. She was thinking of the gay company on her cousins' handsome porch, and that it would have cost them no trouble to have added her to the number. "Mace," said Miss Lizzie suddenly, "what do you think of blacksmithing?"

Mace considered a moment, then said, "I have thought very little about it, Miss Lizzie."

"Mr. Worth Acre is a blacksmith, you know," said Miss Lizzie timidly. "When you hear that anybody is a blacksmith, what do you think?"

"I should think," said Mace reflectively, "that my thoughts would depend on whether or not I needed any blacksmithing done. "For instance, when I think of Mr. Worth Acre, I remember our parlor-door, which is only fastened by a stone. At least—that is all I used to think of, in connection with him. But now, of course, I think of his grandfather and—" Mace looked at Miss Lizzie and Miss Lizzie turned pink with embarrassment. "Oh, Miss Lizzie!" cried Mace, "is that the way you are going to be my chum?"

"I have been thinking," said the other, blusing still deeper, "that it was foolish for me to offer to be a chum with one who must feel that I am quite an old lady. Indeed, Mace, all my life I have been thrown with people who were much older than myself. The sister nearest my age is ten years older than I. And do you know, though I am now thirty-eight, I have never known what it is to have a chum. I have many friends, of course, but nobody in the world who has been to me what that word seems to mean. Of course, I know that it is almost impossible for a girl to be chums with two people at the same time, and you naturally expect to find an intimate friend here. But I do not think you will do so, and that made me the bolder to propose our intimacy. But, after all, such relationships must spring from spontaneous affection, and not from deliberate will. And you must forget what I said about it."

Miss Lizzie, by the time she ceased speaking, was blushing like a schoolgirl and so nervous she actually swung her feet back and forth—a thing she would never have done when composed. Mace gave her a vigorous hug, crying, "I will be your chum and you can't apologize yourself out of it! I always had the best time being with people older than myself, and as for spontaneous affection, I have enough for you at this minute to set you on fire! Don't you feel yourself catching?" And she kissed her heartily.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping feeling in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neighborhood, who know and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the [illegible] system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made [illegible]

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 183, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

The Popular

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient
Trade Mark Registered

Effervescent Relief for Constipation

Biliousness, Disordered Stomach

Promptly effective. No griping or unpleasantness. Of such unusual excellence that it has been sold on merit more than 60 years.

At Druggists, 50c and $1, or by mail from
THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

AN ADDRESS
By
Frederick D. Power

In Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds, on Disciples of Christ Day

ENTITLED

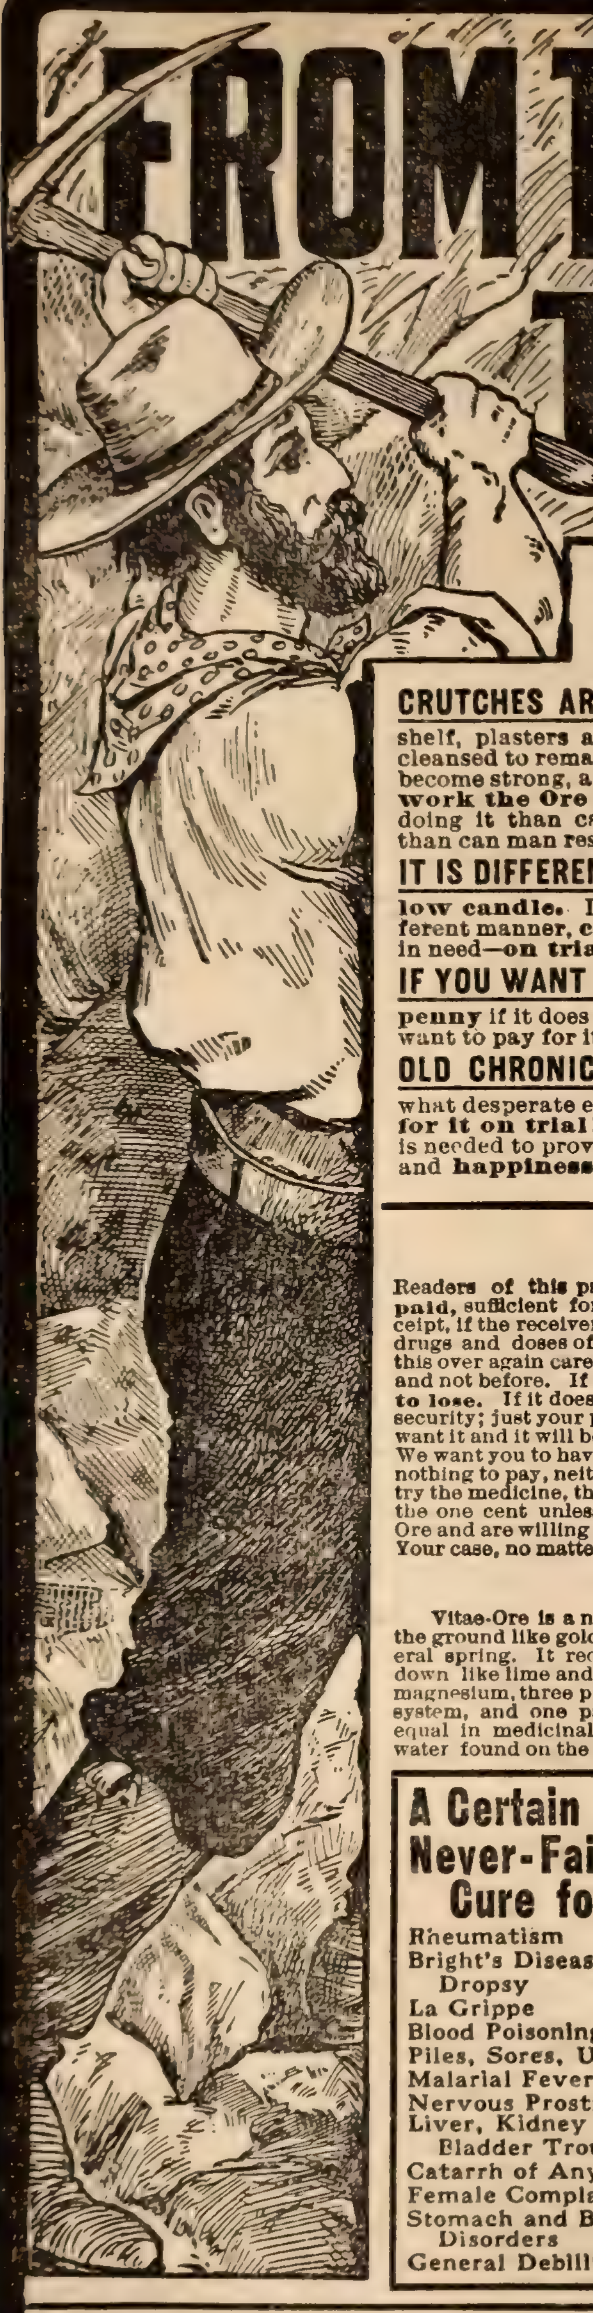
History and Doctrines of the Disciples of Christ

A clear and concise statement of the purpose and progress of the restoration.

Published in tract form, 3 cents per copy; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

A few dollars' worth of these tracts distributed in your community will give the cause a wonderful impetus. Try it.

Christian Publishing Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.



FROM THE EARTH'S VEINS TO YOUR VEINS.

WE DON'T CARE if you are skeptical, we care not if you have no confidence, it makes no difference if you give no credence or belief, it matters not even if you lack hope. It takes only a trial—all we ask. It will do the work—it cannot help doing it. It comes from out the ground, from the earth's veins, the dust out of which man was first made, and flows like fire through the veins of the sufferer, the sick and the needy, curing whether the user believes in it or does not believe.

CRUTCHES ARE THROWN AWAY but not through hope, bandages are taken off, but not through confidence, purges are poured into the sink, hot water bottles are laid away on the shelf, plasters are destroyed, but not through faith. New flesh appears on ulcerous sores, rheumatic blood is cleansed to remain cleansed, new sinews come on emaciated limbs, diseased kidneys grow healthy, weak stomachs become strong, and all because of this wonderful and mysterious influence from the Earth's veins. It is the work the Ore was made for, the duty for which it was put into the earth's veins and it can no more help doing it than can man help following his natural destiny—the sufferer can no more resist its action, its power, than can man resist the power of the sun or the tides of the earth itself.

IT IS DIFFERENT from anything that has ever before been offered, from those other treatments you have used, as is pure milk from chalk and water or the brilliant sunlight from a tallow candle. It flows like life through your veins, pure as it came from the veins of the earth and acts in a different manner, cures in a different way. It is different from all others and can be differently offered to those in need—on trial, the user to be the judge—a way sellers of medicine dare not duplicate or copy.

IF YOU WANT IT if you need it, if you are suffering for it, wasting away day by day, for lack of that help and health which it alone can bring to you—send for it! It will not cost you one single penny if it does not help. Nothing to begin with, nothing at any time if you are not satisfied, if you don't want to pay for it. You are to be the judge!

OLD CHRONIC CASES are those we seek especially. It matters not what you think, what you have thought, what the doctors think or what they would make you think. It counts not a whit what desperate efforts you have already made, what disappointing failures you have already been through—send for it on trial! It is different—a trial will prove it, the only thing that can prove it, the only thing that is needed to prove it. A trial will tell its own plain story, a story that will mean comfort, peace, health and happiness for you. You must only first open the book, by sending for it, by beginning its use.

WE WILL SEND TO ALL

Readers of this paper a full-sized $1.00 package of VITÆ-ORE, by mail, postpaid, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within thirty days' time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. If not, no money is wanted! We take all the risk, you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. We ask no references, we want no security; just your promise to use it and pay if it helps you. Just say that you need it, that you want it and it will be sent to you, as it has been sent to hundreds of other readers of this paper. We want you to have it, and gladly send it, taking your word for the results obtained. There is nothing to pay, neither now nor later, if it does not help you. We give you thirty days' time to try the medicine, thirty days to see the results before you pay us one cent, and you do not pay the one cent unless you do see the results. You are to be the judge! We know Vitae-Ore and are willing to take the risk. We have done so in thousands of cases and are not sorry. Your case, no matter how hard or obstinate it may be, will be no exception.

WHAT VITÆ-ORE IS:

Vitae-Ore is a natural, hard, adamantine, rock-like substance—mineral—ORE—mined from the ground like gold and silver in the neighborhood of a once powerful, but now extinct mineral spring. It requires twenty years for oxidization by exposure to the air, when it slacks down like lime and is then of medicinal value. It contains free iron, free sulphur and free magnesium, three properties which are most essential for the retention of health in the human system, and one package (one ounce) of the ORE, when mixed with a quart of water, will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful mineral water found on the globe, drank fresh at the springs. The mineral properties which give to the waters of the world's noted healing and mineral springs their curative virtue come from the rock or MINERAL ORE through which the water is filtered on its way to its outlet, only a very small proportion of the medicinal power in the ORE being thus assimilated with or absorbed by the liquid stream. The rock contains the much desired medicine, the water serves as the conveyance to carry but a small part of its properties to the outer world. Vitae-Ore is a discovery of this medicine-bearing rock, a geological discovery, to which nothing is added and from which nothing is taken. It is the marvel of the century for curing disease, as thousands testify, and as no one will deny after using. Vitae-Ore has cured more chronic, obstinate, pronounced incurable cases than any other known medicine and will reach such cases with a more rapid and powerful curative action than any medicine, combination of medicines, or doctor's prescription which it is possible to procure. If yours is such a case, do not doubt, do not fear, do not hesitate, but send for it to-day!

A Certain and Never-Failing Cure for

- Rheumatism
- Bright's Disease and Dropsy
- La Grippe
- Blood Poisoning
- Piles, Sores, Ulcers
- Malarial Fever
- Nervous Prostration
- Liver, Kidney and Bladder Troubles
- Catarrh of Any Part
- Female Complaints
- Stomach and Bowel Disorders
- General Debility

YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE!

STOMACH AND KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Appetite Good—Can Eat Anything.

I have had Stomach Trouble for twenty-five years and Kidney Trouble for ten years. I suffered with Cramps at night so bad that I would have to rub my legs and walk the floor to get them straightened as many as four or five times a night. Since using Vitae-Ore my stomach is all right, my appetite is good and I can eat anything. My Kidney Trouble is cured and the Cramps are a thing of the past. Every suffering mortal should give it a trial.

J. M. CARR, Kenton, O.

Vitae-Ore will do the same for you as it has done for hundreds of readers of this paper if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1.00 package at our risk. You have nothing to lose but the stamp to answer this announcement. We want no one's money whom Vitae-Ore cannot benefit. You are to be the judge! Can anything be more fair! What sensible person, no matter how prejudiced he or she may be, who desires a cure and is willing to pay for it, would hesitate to try Vitae-Ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two or three for chronic, obstinate cases. We mean just what we say in this announcement, and will do just as we agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense, giving age and ailments, and mention this paper.

Not a Penny Unless Benefited!

This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health or who suffers pain, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your immediate personal investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package on trial. ADDRESS

THEO. NOEL CO. Evangelist Dept. Vitæ-Ore Bldg. Chicago

he CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

EASTER AND HOME MISSIONS

DO NOT BUY YOUR CHURCH HYMNALS
UNTIL YOU SEE OUR NEW BOOK

GLORIA IN EXCELSIS

Edited and Prepared by the 20th Century Committee which is composed of more than TWENTY of OUR LEADING BRETHREN.

MORE than 600 PAGES of MUSIC and RESPONSIVE READINGS.
HANDSOME BINDINGS. FIRST-CLASS
IN EVERY PARTICULAR

Now on the Press. Write us for Prices and Specimen Pages.

PUBLISHED BY
THE CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.
2712 Pine Street - - - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

AN ADDRESS
By
Frederick D. Power

In Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds, on Disciples of Christ Day

ENTITLED

History and Doctrines of the Disciples of Christ

A clear and concise statement of the purpose and progress of the restoration.

Published in tract form, 3 cents per copy; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

A few dollars' worth of these tracts distributed in your community will give the cause a wonderful impetus. Try it.

Christian Publishing Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.

The People's New Testament With Notes
: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :

A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.

The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.

THE PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
JOHNSON VOL. I
THE PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
JOHNSON VOL. II

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

For the Spiritual and Financial Improvement of the Church.

A New Tract of 24 Pages

The Christian Use
of the Tithe System

By G. L. WHARTON

Fresh From Our Press.

3 cents each. 25 cents per dozen.
$1.50 per hundred.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
CHRISTIAN WORKERS' NEW TESTAMENT,

With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter.

Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices, = = = = = 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars.
Christian Publishing Co., = St. Louis, Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. April 20, 1905 No. 16

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER, } Staff Correspondents.
W. DURBAN,

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter.

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. GARRISON.

CONTENTS.

CURRENT EVENTS.................................. 495
EDITORIAL:
Easter and Home Missions.................. 497
Why This Excitement?....................... 497
What Is Remission of Sin?.................. 497
Notes and Comments......................... 498
Editor's Easy Chair.......................... 499
CONTRIBUTED ARTICLES:
The Value of Religious Anniversaries. W. H. Bagby.............................. 500
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 501
Home Missions. E. L. Powell.......... 502
Mormon Facts. T. W. Pinkerton...... 503
An Argument for Our Gospel Missions. Chas. Louis Loos........................... 504
Words From the Field Men............... 506
The Great Northwest. Rosetta B. Hastings...................................... 508
An Appeal From the American Christian Missionary Society................. 509
OUR BUDGET.................................. 510
NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS.................... 514
EVANGELISTIC.................................. 517
OBITUARIES.................................... 519
MIDWEEK PRAYER-MEETING................. 520
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR........................ 520
FAMILY CIRCLE................................ 522
WITH THE CHILDREN.......................... 525

Current Events.

Sunday Closing in St. Louis.

In pursuance of instructions from Governor Folk, the saloons of St. Louis were closed from midnight on Saturday last to midnight on Sunday. This is the first "dry" Sunday St. Louis has enjoyed for many years. From all accounts, the closing order issued by the excise commissioner and backed up by the board of police commissioners was almost universally observed. This shows that the talk about inability to enforce the law is without truth. All that is needed is a determination to enforce the law on the part of those who have sworn to do so. Governor Folk bases his action requiring Sunday closing in St. Louis and in other cities in the state purely on the ground that the law so requires, and that he has no discretion in the matter but must see that the law is enforced until it is repealed. The daily papers reported unwonted activity on the part of the breweries on Saturday last in filling orders for beer and other liquid refreshments to last over Sunday. They also report quite an exodus of citizens from the city during Sunday to East St. Louis, and to the saloons in the county of St. Louis, to procure their customary drinks. In spite of these facts, however, they are compelled to report also a much smaller number of arrests, and less disorder than heretofore. There is an evident purpose on the part of the opponents of Sunday closing to work up an objection to the law and to secure its repeal. We are told how many people are "thrown out of employment," and how many thousand dollars in wages were "lost" by the Sunday closing. They do not tell us that so many thousand people were allowed a day of rest, who did not enjoy that blessing before, and that a far greater amount, doubtless, was saved in wages to the workingmen by the closing of the saloons than was lost by the nonpayment of wages. It will be necessary for the friends of law and order throughout the state to give their hearty co-operation to the officers who are doing their duty in enforcing the law, and in expressing their sentiments in regard to the beneficent result thereof, in order to counteract the opposition that is certain to be brought to bear against the law.

A Partial Remedy.

The enemies of the saloon by no means regard the Sunday closing act as meeting the demands of good government. The saloon is an enemy both to the state and to the church, to social order and morality. Nothing short of the abolition of the whole saloon business can meet the demands of an enlightened and an awakened public sentiment on this question. One of the best ways, however, to secure needed legislation on this subject is by the enforcement of existing laws. If the closing of the saloons for twenty-four hours in the week—from midnight on Saturday to midnight on Sunday—tends to greatly lessen crime and to promote good order, to cut down the number of arrests to one-fourth of what they were before, thus lessening the work of the courts, and the expenses of government, the argument is irresistible in favor of closing them all the time. Temperance reformers must not overlook partial remedies because they cannot get the ideal remedy. We must give more attention to the enforcement of existing laws, before we can urge, with convincing logic, the enactment of stricter laws. The St. Louis Christian ministers are heartily endorsing the action of the excise commissioner and the board of police commissioners in this city, and have pledged their hearty moral support to them in their good work. The barber shops have been closed, too, but the barbers are wise enough to see that this is to their advantage and have expressed their approval of the law.

Education and Temperance.

After all, the way to solve the temperance problem is to begin with the children in our schools and teach them the real nature of alcohol and its injurious effects. Through the agitation of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, instruction is now being given in the public schools of this country on this subject. Concerning this legislation and its effects Professor Justus Gaule, of Zurich, Switzerland, in a recently published article entitled "Muscles or Nerves," says: "It is characteristic of the American workman that he has become a nerve-man.....America pays her workmen more because, as nerve-men, they give back more. In a rivalry between the old and the new world on the basis of present ability to produce, the old world would have to go under. How shall this danger be averted? First of all by combating that which makes the nervous system incapable of further development, alcoholism. The alcohol-free atmosphere of America is a result of the instruction in the public schools concerning the influence of alcohol. The Americans by this instruction concerning alcohol have done their country a greater service than they think. Such instruction can not be imparted without a foundation in physiology, giving the idea that human life is based on definite laws. The transition from muscle-man to nerve-man begins with this instruction in earliest years. In order to accomplish this transition, we in Europe must broaden the instruction in our common schools by intelligent study concerning the powers of the human organism and the dangers which threaten it from alcohol." A royal committee on physical deterioration in England, reporting July, 1904, to the British Parliament, said: "The committee believe that more may be done to check the degeneration resulting from drink by bringing home to men and women the fatal effects of alcohol on physical efficiency, than by expatiating on the moral wickedness of drinking."

⁂

As With the Flowers?

"Is it with this church as it is with with flowers?" was asked by a writer in the most influential of western newspapers. The article in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is of special interest just now when the church to which it refers is about to take its offering for the cause of home missions. It says:

> One of the speakers of a contemplative turn of mind at the Christian church rally Wednesday approached his subject in the same spirit as the botanist studies the habitat of a flower. He discussed the pervasiveness of the Christian denomination in various states of the Union. Missouri and Kentucky and other middle states are rich fields for the simple doctrines of the Disciples, and these doctrines are taking firm root in the west and northwest, he declared. "They fit the people," it was said, "like the hat on their heads." But there are states in which the Christian church has made no inroads. In New Jersey only one congregation of the Disciples exists. In New Hampshire there is not one. Now comes the interesting question: Is it with this church as it is with the flowers? Does the habitat vary because the people of certain latitudes and longitudes are not drawn by the teachings of this church, or is it because the church was never planted there, just as potatoes never grew in Europe until the explorers took them home from America?

There is no doubt that the later explanation is the true one, though of course the question of environment has some weight as a determining factor in the situation in New England, where we have but 21 churches in a territory occupied by six millions of people. New England conservatism, without question, would have something to do in preventing any rapid spread of the ideas of the Disciples of Christ, for denominations that have long been settled in that country do not make any rapid advance; which would seem to indicate that there is nothing in the plea of the Disciples of Christ that would militate against its advancement. The need is standard-bearers enough to carry it into every township in New England. The Episcopalians seem to have a belief that they are going to dominate this part of the United States sooner or later, yet in New Hampshire, where we have no church at all, they show a decline, and in western Massachusetts, where only they have any perceptible gain, this is but 6 per cent. Taking general statistics, Episcopalians are in the same relative place that they were in 1900; Congregationalists, who in that year ranked as tenth in the number of communicants, have fallen one place in the order, while the Disciples of Christ, who in 1900 were eighth, are now sixth in order. From these general figures we are strongly persuaded that it is not because New England soil is antagonistic to the plea of the Disciples of Christ, but because that plea has never been adequately presented. Alexander Campbell visited New England in 1863, and prior to that time a few churches contending for the things he stood for had been organized; but no real effort has ever been made in New England by our brethren. All who know the field believe that the time is now ripe for this, and that many laymen and ministers of different denominations would welcome what we believe and teach if our plea were properly presented to them.

⁂

The Fleets.

A week has elapsed since the two great fleets in the east came almost into conflict. The western world has every day awaited the news of a great naval fight, and with the delay there has come a change of public opinion. Gradually there grows the conviction that Russia has a fighting chance. Her admiral has brought his ships through numerous perils and now sails the seas without any effort at concealing his squadron. On the other hand the Japanese have been lost sight of several times and they appear to have been puzzled at Rojestvensky's tactics. The Russian fleet, too, is the heavier in armament.

These facts have raised a feeling that Japan must look out or her success on land will be jeopardized by an altogether possible sea defeat, which would mean the cutting off of her base. Were the two fleets manned by sailors of like skill and discipline, on paper the balance would favor Russia. But judging by the conditions that afford a basis for judgment the Japanese fleet seems to be a better organized fighting machine than the Russian. Of course the Baltic fleet may be the superior in every way of the men and ships that have been worsted by the Japs. And, where two fleets are so nearly matched, an accident may count for much one way or the other. Barring this, we look for Admiral Togo to add another victory to the long list the little brown warriors have won.

⁂

Salvationists and Disciples.

What could not the Disciples of Christ accomplish if they were all imbued with the enthusiasm of the members of the Salvation Army? General Booth, the veteran leader, at an age when most men think themselves entitled to rest, has set out on another of his missionary tours, this time to inspect the army work in Palestine, Australia and New Zealand. Sixty years ago he began his work among the poor of his native land; now his mission is to the poor of the world. In forty-nine countries his soldiers preach the gospel in thirty-one languages. And further, 20,000 homeless wanderers are housed every night, and 300,000 people fed weekly. Are the Disciples of Christ doing their duty to their own countrymen? What will be the answer of Easter Sunday to the appeal of benevolence and missions, and the first Lord's day in May to the requirements of the home work?

⁂

Catholic Colonies.

Colonization has always been a valuable method of propagandism and by none has it been more used than by Catholics and Mormons. Though it has somewhat fallen into desuetude there are signs of a renewed activity in colonization for propoganda purposes. The latest plan we hear of is the intention of the Catholic church to interest its adherents to come to Missouri. Two months ago a Colonization Realty company was formed with Archbishop Glennon as patron. Letters have been prepared and sent to different parts of the country, to cities and to Europe. Farmers who cannot stand the severe climate of the north, will be asked to come to Missouri; persons in crowded cities who want a home in the country will be given an opportunity to establish one; emigrants from Europe will be encouraged to come to Missouri, where they are promised churches in which their native tongue will be used in the sermons. Everything points to a determined effort to catholicize Missouri. Already there are about 170,000 Roman Catholics in the state, but the great bulk of them are in the large cities. Probably half the counties have not a single Catholic church. Is there no message in this for Missouri Disciples?

Easter and Home Missions.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen." This was the momentous question, and startling announcement made by the angels to the sorrowing women who had come to the sepulcher to find the body of their Lord. There was a gentle reprimand in the question of the angels. It is as if they had said, "Do you not know your Master better than to be seeking him here among the dead? Have ye not learned that he is the author of life, and that he came into the world that men might have life, and that more abundantly? Can death hold in captivity one who had the power to call Lazarus from his sepulcher? Did he not tell you that he had power to lay down his life, and power to take it up again? He has taken it up. He is not here; he is risen."

This is the message which Easter brings to us, year by year. Jesus Christ is not among the dead. He is risen. He lives forevermore. It was not possible that he should be holden of death. Never did angels announce a gladder message to the world than that. Even his birth would have lost its meaning and value without his resurrection from the dead. It was this momentous fact that gave birth to the church, and made Christianity possible. If Jesus Christ be the Supreme Person of history, his resurrection from the dead is the supreme fact of history. Even his death finds its crowning significance and vindication in his triumph over death. The cross receives its halo of glory from the light shining out of the open sepulcher.

In the light of Christ's resurrection, the whole world is transformed. Life takes on new meaning and value since Jesus rose from the dead. That sublime fact demonstrates the reality and nearness of the spiritual universe, vindicates the character and divine mission of Jesus Christ, brings the earth in direct relation to heaven, and opens up for humanity amazing and bewildering possibilities of life and progress.

It is a happy circumstance, this year, that Easter day and our day for Home Missions come so close together. It was the risen Christ who said, "Go, preach the gospel." There was no great, glorious, completed gospel to preach until Christ had conquered death, and brought life and immortality to light. The mightiest inspiration in preaching the gospel is the fact that it is the gospel of the living Christ, who has not only himself conquered death, but who offers life to all who believe on him. It does not seem easy to think of the risen Christ, without also thinking of his great command to preach his gospel to every creature.

There is no land in all the earth whose soil promises such rich harvests from the sowing of the seed of the gospel as our own fair land—America. We owe the gospel to all lands, but our own home land has a peculiar claim upon us, because of its exalted place among the nations of the earth, and its relation to world-wide evangelization. Here is being carried forward the most successful experiment of popular government in all the world. To this land are turned the eyes of the oppressed and downtrodden of all nations. Into this land a mighty stream of foreign population is pouring continually. The gospel of Christ is the mightiest agency for the assimilation of these foreign elements, the conservation of the moral forces of the nation, and the preservation of all that is highest and best in our western civilization.

No day, therefore, in all the year, ought to attract wider attention, or excite deeper interest and enthusiasm, than Home Mission Day—the first Lord's day in May. If, indeed, we be risen with Christ, let us gird ourselves with his power in order to grapple with the great evils that threaten both church and state. It is only in the strength of the risen Christ that we can overcome the giants of evil which imperil the life of our Republic.

Given a risen Christ there ought to be and must be a Christianized America, and an evangelized world. Easter and Home Missions! The resurrection and the living Christ made regnant in our American civilization! This is the meaning and significance of Easter and Home Missions. Day—May 7.

Why This Excitement?

"Is there not a cause?" This was David's response to his brothers' taunts when he left his sheepfold to join his brothers in the army which was being confronted and defied by the haughty Goliath. "Is there not a cause?" it might be pertinently asked now, why we should rally as a united brotherhood to the support of Home Missions. Are not our country, our Christianity, our civilization, confronted and defied by the giants of sin, such as intemperance, avarice, selfish greed, corruption in public and private life, dishonesty, worldliness, monopoly and vice in its myriad forms? What power is sufficient to cope successfully with these giant evils which threaten all that is purest and best in our Christian civilization? Only the gospel of Christ can save our country, and its civil and religious liberty. Only Christ can save America and the men of America.

Therefore, whatever organization is devoted to the proclamation of the gospel of the Son of God, throughout the length and breadth of the country, is a philanthropic, humanitarian, and patriotic agency, as well as a religious force. The American Christian Missionary Society is dedicated to this supreme work, and the results accomplished by it, with the means placed at its disposal, warrant us in greatly increasing our annual offerings to that organization. It is safe to say that no missionary organization in existence can show more splendid results in proportion to the expense involved in carrying on its work.

We appeal to the churches, therefore, throughout the brotherhood to heed the call which the society is now making for a large and generous offering for Home Missions on the first Lord's day in May.

"Is there not a cause?" The eyes of the religious world are upon us. The army of our home missionaries in the field are praying for greater liberality on the part of the churches. The needs of our country appeal to us as patriots and philanthropists, as Christians, to respond to this appeal. The eyes of the Lord are upon us, and he is calling us to much greater things than we have yet accomplished. Shall we not hear his voice, and respond to his word of command?

What is Remission of Sins?

A correspondent asks this very timely question. He gives his own understanding of the matter as follows:

> "I understand that the law was given to teach men what is sin and to let them know when they are sinners. Then, if a man knows he is a sinner, he certainly knows when he ceases to be such; when he ceases to be such he knows his sins have been remitted, or taken away."

The problem of what sin is, and its remission, is not quite so simple as our correspondent seems to think. Paul tells us that the law was given that sin might appear sinful, but the moral law was written in man's nature long before it was written on the tables of stone. Men are sinners, according to their own consciences, whether they have ever seen or heard the law which was given through Moses; but that law certainly does tend to heighten man's conception of sin, as does every revelation of God's truth and holiness.

But what is remission of sins? Three things, it seems to us, are essential to bring men to a knowledge of the remission of sins. First of all, there must be conviction of sin. The sinner must be brought to see his own sins and their heinous nature and awful consequences. In the second place, he must be brought to a change of mind and heart and purpose, as respects sin, by which he resolves to turn away from it, and, in consequence, does actually turn away from it. This is all our correspondent sees in remission of sins. This is, indeed, a very important part of man's reconciliation with God. When God, by the revelation of his love and of his holiness, and of the nature and consequences of sin, through Christ, sends away from our hearts the love of sin, and from our lives the practice of sin, very much has been done toward our complete reconciliation with God.

But is this remission of sins? It is certainly not all of it. Does not the believing penitent need the assurance that God has accepted his repentance and his faith, and has granted him forgiveness of sins? All that we have mentioned heretofore has taken place in the mind and heart of the sinner. Faith and repentance, followed by actual turning away from sin, are all man's acts, under the quickening influence of the divine Spirit. But who forgives? Clearly He who has been sinned against. God must forgive. His forgiveness is contingent upon man's repentance and surrender to him. Repentance has its outward proofs in cessation from sin, or in the turning about of the moral life. It has pleased God to give the institution of baptism as the overt act by which the soul manifests its purpose to surrender to Christ, and follow his leadership, and on these conditions he has pledged the remission of sins, in the sense of not holding them against the sinner any more, nor accounting him guilty. Hence Peter says, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, unto the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Here remission of sins is undoubtedly conceived as something following, not only faith and repentance, but baptism also. To the same effect is the passage in Acts 3:14: "Repent ye therefore, and turn again, that your sins may be blotted out," etc. The blotting out of sins is here put as the result of repentance and turning again. Forgiveness, then, involves something beyond both repentance and reformation.

Is it not, then, in the sense of conveying to the sinner the knowledge of forgiveness of sins, that baptism precedes remission? All that our correspondent means by remission of sins, and all that many others put into that phrase, viz., a change of heart and of life, precedes baptism. Thus baptism is seen to be a gracious condescension to man's needs, by fixing a definite point at which he may claim the divine assurance of forgiveness. To call this view "baptismal regeneration," is the height of absurdity. It is clearly the New Testament view, no matter by what name men may call it. The practical question is, how does God convey to the believing penitent the assurance of his forgiveness? That the ordinance of baptism is intended to help man in this respect, we have no doubt, and the need of such an institution to answer this specific purpose has been recognized by everyone who has had much experience in bringing men to God, and to a knowledge of sins forgiven.

Notes and Comments.

We are glad to devote a large amount of our space this week to the interests of Home Missions. We are sure there is no cause nearer to our hearts than the evangelization and Christianization of our own land. If the cause we plead can win anywhere in the world, it can do so in the land of its birth. As a reformation our movement is indigenous to American soil. Here it must come to its largest proportions and its ripest results. The rapidity with which it spreads in this country when it has a fair chance, is an indication of our duty to give it the best possible chance. Home Mission day, the first Lord's day in May, is the time set apart for the churches to express their interest in this great work. We trust no church where the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST goes will be found wanting when the records are made up of the results of this day.

◆

There is no duty that the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST regards as more sacred, and none in which it feels more surely that it is discharging one of the highest functions of a religious journal, than in presenting the claims of our great missionary organizations to the churches and the brethren. This we seek to do impartially. No organization among us appeals more strongly to our entire brotherhood than the American Christian Missionary Society. Read carefully all that is said in this number about its work and needs.

◆

A clipping from the Springfield Sun announces a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of that city in which they discussed the subject of "Confessing Christ." They requested the congregation to write out any reason that prevented the people from confessing Christ. One of the hearers in an open letter in the paper, answers by saying that the people do not confess Christ because they are not repentant. He says: "Repentance is seldom preached any more; it is all believe! believe! believe! What we lack in Springfield is not belief so much as repentance, for there are thousands here who are not repentant—that is, they are not willing to give up various kinds of sin." We wouldn't wonder if that did not apply to other places than Springfield, Ohio. There is not sufficient emphasis laid upon the actual giving up of all known sin as an essential condition of salvation.

◆

It is not strange, perhaps, that more than one of our religious interests should avail themselves of the Eastertide to secure additional support for the work they represent. First in the field, in the order of time, perhaps, was the Benevolent Association calling for an Easter offering from the Sunday-schools for the benefit of the orphans and the homeless. Later, the C. W. B. M., through its national convention, called for an offering from the Junior societies and the young people's mission bands for its work. We have learned of a little friction here and there because of these two calls coming for the same day. Some attempt has been made to arrange different days for the two great interests mentioned, but as yet no satisfactory solution has been reached. No doubt some plan will be agreed upon later to prevent any clashing of interests in two organizations seeking to serve the same general cause. Meanwhile it seems to us that friction might be avoided in one of three ways: (1) Let the two offerings be made for the two interests mentioned; (2) Let there be one service and one large generous offering, and a division of the funds between the two societies on some equitable basis; (3) Let the Sunday-schools alternate between the offering one year for one of these causes, and the next year for the other. Any one of these three ways, and others that might be mentioned, of amicably disposing of the matter, is better than having friction. On no account, we trust, will our Sunday schools allow this double call upon them to prevent them from making an offering to the splendid and most deserving interests which appeal to them for aid. As a matter of fact, we believe the contributions to each of these organizations by the young people are increasing year by year, and ought to do so.

◆

Apropos of what we have recently said concerning union evangelistic services and the advisability of our ministers participating in same, we have just seen a printed testimonial given by the ministers of the Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, and United Presbyterian churches of Kansas City, concerning the work of Bro. J. M. Rudy, of Sedalia, as evangelist during the recent evangelistic campaign in that city. They say: "We found in him a strong, biblical, evangelistic preacher, whose forceful and eloquent presentation of the vital truths of the gospel held the closest attention of his congregations, and made a deep and lasting impression on all his hearers. We believe him to be truly a minister of Jesus Christ, whose only mission is the saving of the lost; and we rejoice that so many have been led by the Holy Spirit, through his ministry among us at this important time, to accept the Lord Jesus as their personal Saviour." Other complimentary things are said of our brother, but this suffices to show that the time has come when our ablest preachers may become leaders in union evangelistic services. The wisdom of the serpent and the harmlessness of the dove, which Jesus commended to his first preachers, are still in demand in order to accomplish the largest results.

Editor's Easy Chair.

There is no land like the home land. There is no flag so beautiful as our own starry banner. There are no institutions so dear to our heart as those of our own beloved country. To our patriotic eyes there is no land beneath the sun so fair as that which we call "our country." The Easy Chair has seen some of the lands of story and of song, but nowhere on God's footstool have we found any spot of earth for which we would exchange our native land.

> "I love thy rocks and rills,
> Thy woods and templed hills,
> My heart with rapture thrills," at the very mention of thy name, O America! But more we love its freedom and its free institutions; its recognition of the rights of man as against the oppression of political or religious tyranny. It is the land of opportunity. It is the home of a conquering race. Its star is in the ascendancy. It moves forward to a majestic destiny. It needs only the purifying and transforming power of the religion of Christ to enable it to fulfill the high mission for which God has created it. Without Christ the blight and mildew of materialism will destroy its noble ideals, divert its mighty energies into base and unworthy channels, breed vice and effeminacy, undermine its stable foundations, and drag it down to that place where all nations go that forget God. The agencies that make for the dissemination of the simple gospel of Christ among all the people of this nation are doing most to insure the perpetuity of our republic, with all its cherished deeds of the past, and all its high hopes of the future, and to transmit them unimpaired to those who are to come after us.

⁂

There is no church like the home church, that is, the church to which we belong, and which represents to us most nearly what the New Testament church should be today. Using the term, church, in that accommodated sense, every loyal-hearted man labors for the church which seems to him to best express, on this earth, the divine will. This is the church of which we say there is none like it. It is to us, in spite of all its faults and shortcomings, the very church of the living God. Concerning it we sing:

> "I love thy church, O God,
> Her walls before thee stand,
> Dear as the apple of thine eye,
> And graven on thy hand.
>
> "For her my tears shall fall,
> For her my prayers ascend,
> For her my toils and cares be given
> Till toils and cares shall end."

In no other land can this church—this divine cause we plead—have so fair an opportunity to accomplish its mission, as in our own home land. It needs America, as America needs it. It needs the free atmosphere and the undaunted spirit of America to enable it to achieve its highest results. If, then, America needs the simple gospel in order to save it, and if the New Testament ideal of the church needs America as the base of its world-wide operations, let patriotism and primitive Christianity be joined together in bonds which no man can part asunder. The American Christian Missionary Society is our agency for promoting the evangelization of America, and the higher order of patriotism. Let us remember its high claims upon us in the May offering.

⁂

We were reading, last night, in the closing chapters of John's gospel, and ran across that phrase, "the disciple whom Jesus loved," and paused to ponder its significance, as we had never done before. No doubt Jesus loved all his disciples, but he seems to have had a peculiar love for John, who is the disciple thus designated. Was this partiality? No; it was inevitable. We all love some people a little better than others. This is largely because some people are more lovable than others. During our National Convention in St. Louis, a well-known minister approached one of his fellow-preachers, and, putting an arm about him, said: "I shake hands with all preachers, but some I hug!" Doubtless there was something in the character of the minister thus embraced that drew out of his brother minister this special admiration. Sam Jones says, "The Lord loves a great many people whom he doesn't admire!" We hope he allows his disciples the same liberty! But there must have been something very genuine and very winsome about John's character to have excited this special love and admiration of Jesus. We all like to be loved, and especially do we all like to be loved by one so pure in heart, so noble in character, and so wise in judgment, as Jesus. If we cultivate in ourselves those qualities which we admire in Jesus, we shall best succeed in forming a character which will win his love and approbation. "The disciple whom Jesus loved"—who of us can aspire to a higher honor than that?

⁂

There is a process going on quietly with all of us which many fail to recognize. It is the process of our classification. What manner of character are we? In a classification of the human species where do we belong? In a classification of Christians, which we constantly and inevitably make in our own thought, where do we belong? We may not determine this question for ourselves, but we may be sure that others are deciding it for us. Character is an unseen force, but it is constantly manifesting itself. By the words which we speak; by the articles which we write for the religious journals; by the sermons we preach; by the company we keep; by the books we read; by the things for which we spend our money most freely; by the manner in which we bear criticism and adversity; by the manner in which we treat our fellowmen; by the manner in which we spend our time;—in all these ways we are furnishing data for observers to classify us, and put us where we belong. Are we miserly or spendthrifts; or narrow and uncharitable; or broadminded; or pure-minded; have we high or low ideals; do we think clearly and honestly, and do we speak and act conscientiously? The world decides these questions from the data which we furnish, and classifies us accordingly. As Peter's dialect betrayed him as a Galilean, so do our words and deeds betray our character, and show to all who know us just what manner of persons we be. We may succeed, partially, in wearing a mask for a time, but we may be sure that sooner or later every man's character will be known, "for we must all be made manifest before the judgment seat of Christ. Christ is judging and sifting men now. His fan is still in his hand, and he is separating the wheat from the chaff.

⁂

Easter day! What a morning that was in the gray dawn of which the women came to the garden and found an empty sepulcher, and saw the shining messengers who announced his resurrection! What a day that was in which the word passed from one to another among the disciples, "He is risen"! How that fact, when it became understood, transformed and revolutionized the life-plans, hopes and aspirations of his followers! How different this old earth seems since Jesus used it as a stepping-block to mount to his throne! How close heaven seems to earth since that day the angels rolled the stone away, and Christ came forth alive for ever more! How well life seems worth living, and how little account should we take of its "light afflictions, which are but for a moment," since the grave is the gateway to immortality, and the present life is but the prelude to the life that lies beyond! Christ is risen. Go tell it to the disciples again. Tell them its meaning. Many are living as if Christ had not risen and the glory of the world beyond was not shining through its open portals. Point them to the living Christ, and exhort them to rise with him and share in the "power of his resurrection"—the power of a quickened faith, a living hope, an intensified love, an indwelling and transforming spirit. Let us enter into something of the joy that marked that first Easter. Christ still lives. Did he not say, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world"?

> "Warm, sweet, tender yet,
> A present help is He,
> And faith still has its Olivet
> And love its Galilee."

The Value of Religious Anniversaries

By W. H. Bagby

In regard to church festivals there are two dispositions among Christians. Some attach too much importance to them, and others too little. Some would multiply them more and more, while others would eliminate them altogether. Between these two extremes there is little choice. Either too much or too little foliage is fatal to fruitfulness.

Only those festivals that are commemorative of events of universal interest can possess any great value. Anniversaries that are local or denominational in their character can possess only a local or denominational value. The Mormons who live in Utah celebrate July 24 as the anniversary of their arrival in the valley of the Great Salt Lake. It is of interest to them only. The colored people of the south celebrate June 19 as the anniversary of their emancipation from slavery. It is a matter of interest to them only. In the year 1909 we will celebrate the centennial anniversary of the inauguration of this restoration movement. It will be chiefly interesting to us as a religious body. The uplift that will come from it will come to us. In the calendars of the ritualistic churches there are days celebrated in honor of saints whose names and fame are unknown to the rest of the world. If any good comes out of the celebration of these anniversaries it is confined to these churches.

But there are religious festivals that are celebrated in honor of events of universal interest and importance. They keep alive in the memory of mankind events of mightiest moment. Of these there are only two as yet: Christmas and Easter. And only one of these has as yet taken possession of the universal heart of Christendom. I speak of the festival of Christmas. The other is gradually winning its way into universal favor as the asperities of the past are being smoothed out by the hand of time, and men are beginning more and more to measure things by what they are rather than by where they came from. The heathen origin of the name of the festival we are about to celebrate and the fact that it has been regarded as being a Roman Catholic festival have been the two things that have most tended to delay its adoption by Protestant churches. But happily we are learning that the origin of a name has nothing to do with the character of the thing it has been used to designate, and that the mere fact that the Roman Catholics do a thing affords no sane reason why others should not do it if it is a good thing. Some of the names by which deity is revealed to us in the Bible are of pagan origin, but they are not less sacred on that account. Some of our best words are of very low origin. That now most respectable word, "symposium," used to describe a drunken feast. But who thinks of digging up its past, now that it has been purged from its former low use? Why, then, find fault with the word Easter as a name for a Christian festival? If a heathen man can be redeemed from his heathenism, can not a heathen term be rescued from a bad use to be put to a better one? In its application to this festival this term came to be used in the most natural way. The suggestion of the festival and its name were both borrowed. There were two sources from which the suggestion came, viz., Jerusalem and Rome. At this season the Jews celebrated their paschal feast and the Romans their festival to the goddess of light or spring, Eastre. It was also the anniversary of the resurrection of Jesus, which was naturally a joyful time among the Christians. The common form of greeting among them was, "Christ is risen," and the response was, "He is risen indeed." As the population was gradually absorbed by the Christian church, the festivals which were deep rooted in the habits and affections of the peoples were gradually Christianized. Along with the festival came the name that was most familiar to the largest number. In time the name acquired from its new application a new significance, a significance as Christian as the festival it names, and there remains no reasonable objection to its use.

Another objection to the observance of Easter is based on the fact that it is not commanded. It is assumed by those who make this objection, that there is no liberty for love; that it is right to do only what we are commanded to do. In the very nature of things this cannot be true. When God has spoken we dare not disobey; but surely a voluntary act of love cannot be displeasing to the Father. Surely he who gives all God asks and then adds more out of the fullness of a loving heart, is more pleasing to God than the one who adheres to the letter of the law. The Jews added other feasts to those commanded of God, and Jesus gave to them the countenance of his presence. There is far more danger that we will offend God by doing less than he has commanded than that we shall incur his displeasure by letting our love abound in the doing of more than he has asked at our hands.

After all, the rightfulness of a thing must be determined in the light of its usefulness. By this test must everything in the church and out of it stand or fall. In determining the rightfulness of the observance of religious festivals we have only to ask, "Do they result in good?" Now let us apply this test to the only two anniversaries in which all Christendom is interested. What of the value of that beautiful festival that leads us once each year to the cradle side of the little Christ child? How could the world get along without Christmas? What a loss to the sum total of human happiness if the joy inspired by the Babe of Bethlehem were subtracted from it? Who would be willing to rob childhood of the happiness that comes with that glad season? I need press the question no farther as to the value of Christmas. But Easter is not held in such high favor. And yet it rests on the same authority and celebrates as important an event. The time will come when Eastertide will inspire as much holy joy as Christmastide. The festival that leads us in thought to the empty tomb of Jesus cannot be fraught with less of power for good than the one that leads us to his manger-cradle. No man can stand by that empty tomb and hear the angel say, "He is not here, but is risen," and not be made a better man. Therefore, once each year, let us go up and see where the Lord lay, that we may go out with renewed hope to tell the world of a risen Redeemer.

The Rising.

By Aaron Prince Aten.

As rolled the stone from the tomb away
That resurrection morn—
As burst the light of that happy day
On hearts of men forlorn—
As came the balm of his accent sweet
That morn upon the air
To her who clung to his blessed feet
With earnest word of prayer—
So let the stone from my heart of gloom
Away in might be rolled,
And let the light on my living tomb
Burst in with its glint of gold.
My spirit freed from the blight of death
Shall rise to new glad birth
Inspired to life by the living breath
That quickens hearts of earth.

As Seen from the Dome

By F. D. Power

Before us again is the empty tomb, Christ is risen, and standing by the open grave of Jesus we are filled with the radiant hope of immortality. Who is there that cannot think of some who have fallen asleep and whose precious dust has been put away in the glorious promise of the resurrection? As Easter bells ring out over hill and dale, field and forest, how many thoughts fly to the graveyard on the old farm, to the country churchyard, or city cemetery! How many wandering in far-off foreign lands, will turn in memory to some familiar spot, some peaceful "God's Acre"! They see the dear old church. They hear the sweet pealing of its Easter bells. They feel the stillness of the quiet Lord's day stealing over them. They behold forms and faces of friends long since passed away. They look once more upon turfed mounds where years ago some loved form was laid—father, mother, wife, husband, brother, sister, child. Oh, yes! The graves of them that sleep in Jesus, how they rise before us to-day! How these resting places of the dead move us! Over a cemetery gate is the inscription: "Until the day break and the shadows flee away." Over another, the words of Bunyan: "They laid the pilgrim in a chamber, whose window opened toward the sunrising, and the name of the chamber was Peace, where he slept till break of day, and then he awoke and sang." Over the tomb of Joseph of Arimathæa we look upon the broken seal and the assured victory.

Mary stood by the grave of him she loved on the first Easter morning. He was her dearest treasure, he who had lifted her feet from earth's hard pavement, hot with the fires of sin that scorched and burned; he who had lifted her into a better life, sweeter hopes, holy friendship and forgiveness; and while she gazed and peered and poured her scalding tears upon that grave, her living Savior was not there; he had risen and she mourned over an empty tomb. So of graves we think of to-day—green mounds in cemeteries and graveyards that touch our hearts to tears—they are empty, empty of the spirit that has winged its way to other worlds. From all the shadows of earth, from all crucifixions, deaths and tombs, from all decay and corruption, they have passed into the light, entered through the gates of life immortal. The empty grave of Jesus means resurrection, immortality, life eternal. Lift up your hearts.

Before us again is the happy recognition. To the woman as she grieves the risen Lord speaks the single word, "Mary!" Christ reveals himself. We have no reason to go for wisdom to any other source. We are to listen to Christ only, not Moses, Elijah, Augustine, Luther, Wesley, but to Christ. One word Jesus speaks—"Mary!" Instantly, startled by the well-remembered voice, she turns, "Rabboni!" "My Master!" A true-hearted and prompt acknowledgment. "Go," he said. In the fullness of her joy, she must think and act for others. She is the first evangelist, an apostle to the apostles. She came to seek the dead Christ and finds a living one.

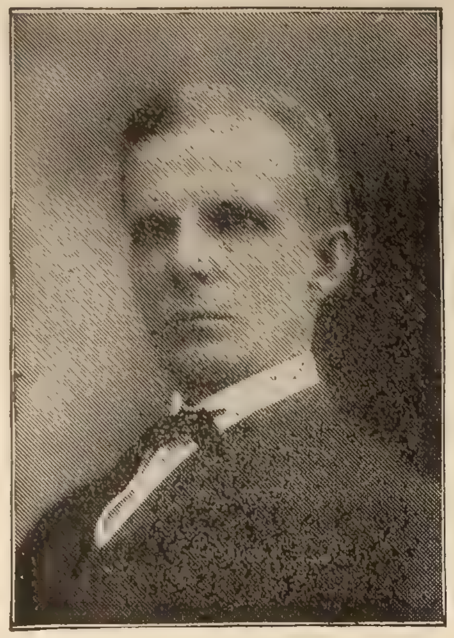
What power in a word! Only a word from the lips of Jesus and what effect it produced! Words express ideas. Words are solvent of problems. One word may blacken the fairest name forever. A tongue may be a faggot of hell in the mouth of a man. Fraternity has been the watchword of a race. Mother, home, heaven have been the watchwords of a world. "Mary!" that is all, but its meaning heaven and earth could not exhaust. Amid all the suffering, the solitude and sorrow, the gloom of death which this world knows, that is a voice and the only voice that can bring the assurance of heaven into the soul. "Mary!" Infidelity might as well undertake to blot out the sun as that single word. He has not changed then. In the spirit he is the same loving Lord he was in the body. He speaks as he used to speak to her. Tears wove a veil which concealed him. Seeking after the dead often prevents us from seeing the living. The spirit dies not. That we loved is eternal. Faith sees immutable, deathless spirits where only frail and painful bodies dwelt among us. He is the same. Our eyes shall behold him as he walked in Galilee. Our ears catch the welcome notes of the same voice. "I know that my Redeemer liveth—whom I shall see for myself and mine eyes shall behold, and not a stranger." And if I know him; if I know Abraham and Isaac and Jacob whom I have not seen, shall I not recognize my friends whom I have seen? Shall I not know at least as much in the full development of my intellectual and spiritual powers as I know here under the shadows and in the uncertainty? Shall I not see, no longer through a glass darkly, but face to face? "Mary!" This displays his love. Before he had said "Woman," now it is "Mary." It is the address of affection. This world without that voice would be like a mother without a smile, a spring without blossoms, a sky without a star. Will it not be enough for the meanest, hardest lot on earth to have one's name called in heaven by such lips? "Mary!" Oh, what music! That's all that is worth living for. Present pleasures are of small moment—gone to-morrow. Splendors of wealth are poor comfort—darkness of night falls on them. Glory of name won through flame and blood only for to-day—Cæsar, Alexander, Napoleon—is forever buried in oblivion. Here is the only thing. "Mary!" It is the call of love, of sympathy for her sorrow, of watchful care—he has been looking on and feels for her. It is a voice for every seeking spirit, for every sorrowing heart, for every dark life, which is as a rift through the cloud whence the sunlight comes. It is a call to every woman to find her Lord and rejoice. It is a check to every thoughtless, frivolous, sinning life; a summons to consider spiritual, immortal things. It reveals Jesus, the divine, risen, conquering Savior. And shall the response come as from many of old: "Rabboni!" "Oh, my Master!" Shall the soul recognize its Sovereign?

Before us again is the glorious evangelism—"Go." For all men this story is to be told. "Write," said the angel, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Easter is observed as an annual festival in commemoration of the resurrection. It would prove better every way if every first day were made more a day of rejoicing because of this great memory and great hope; and if throughout all lands and in all Christian assemblies on every first day the Lord's table were spread and the Lord's death and the Lord's resurrection remembered thus with equal frequency and equal solemnity. The blessing would be as great once every week, fifty-two times in the year, as to some who only feel moved to receive it annually; and men need its constant comfort and constant sanctification. This is as Christ intended and men by blindness and ignorance lose inestimable benefits by not carrying out his intentions. The church has lost immeasurably by attempts to add to the teaching and practice of the apostles. It will be a glad day for the church and the world when men shall listen to Christ only.

And as the Easter lesson is for every first day so the Easter message is for every man. There are none so low, so sinful, so comfortless, that this joy may not reach them. You need only get high enough on the mountain to be above the storm. Below men hear the thunder, and you see them hurrying to get away from the fury of the elements, but standing well up on the mountain side and above the cloud you escape the wind and rain and paltry thunder. Storms hug the ground and you are higher than they are. Oh, how men suffer the world over without this gospel! Millions, hundreds of millions, weep to-day over hopeless graves. Peace—peace in sorrow, in calamity, in death—is for all men. God speed the time when men in heathenism shall all hear the story; when men in ignorance, in unbelief, in agnosticism, shall learn the tidings; when souls in sorrow and in want and weariness shall yield to him whose sweet word is "Come unto me, all you who are toiling and burdened, and I will give you rest."

HOME MISSIONS

A MOTTO FROM THE PRESIDENT



E. L. POWELL,
President American Christian Missionary Society.

Have we become so used to the call for home missions that it is to us no more than a familiar strain? Has familiarity minimized interest? I feel sure that the more we know about this great work, the mightier becomes the appeal it makes. When we consider the vast territory covered and the pressing immediate needs of a hundred fields; when we think of the simple gospel which can meet the requirements of all these destitute regions; when we call to mind the splendid history of the American Christian Missionary Society and the great importance that its high standard of work should be maintained; when we recognize the tendency to subordinate this work to the enterprise of foreign missions, which makes, perhaps, a more picturesque appeal because the field is remote and the actual conditions concern a foreign people; and when we further recognize the necessity that this work should not be permitted to go back or lose any prestige which it has already gained; it would seem in view of all these conditions that no call other than that involved in the facts should need to be made. Let us have a continued revival of the interest in our home missionary work. Let us see to it that the report to be made to the next convention shall kindle the enthusiasm of the entire host, and send us away rejoicing in the spread of the gospel of Jesus Christ in our own America. No artificial enthusiasm will meet the requirements of the situation. Our preachers and our churches must get a grip on this work like unto that of David when his hand clave unto the sword he loved. While pride is altogether legitimate—the pride to make a great work greater—there must be an aroused and quickened conscience if we wish to accomplish that which we so earnestly desire. Let us have a strong pull and a pull all together for home missions. May no church in our great brotherhood forget its duty to help evangelize America. If we turn aside from the claim of this great work upon us, we show ourselves to be wanting in that largeness of vision which is indispensable to any sort of appreciation of the spirit of the Redeemer. What better motto than this, "No Church Among Us Without a Contribution"?

As Goes America

By Cephas Shelburne

"In Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth"—this is the divine program, and the supreme business of the church is to carry out this program. Paul and his companions, Silas and Luke, were on their missionary tour. They are carrying out the program outlined in the commission. Three times the Holy Spirit interferes with Paul's plans and deflects his course. He would go to Asia, but he was forbidden of the Holy Spirit. The turning from Bithynia, the passing by Mysia, the landing at Troas, the night vision, the Macedonian call, the straight course to Samothracia and the next day to Neopolis and from thence to Philippi, the going out of the city by the river side, the little company of women in prayer—all these were leadings of divine providence for the carrying out of God's plans and for the opening up of the gospel unto the uttermost parts of the earth. The voyage from Troas across the Ægean sea to Macedonia was the passage of the gospel from Asia into Europe; the gospel bursts its Asiatic limits and entered the great continent of Europe, and on from east to west in the making of western civilization and on to its ultimate reversal and conquest of the world.

Paul's face is set toward the Occident; westward the course of empire is now destined to take its flight. It is a critical moment, a day of destiny for the world. The gospel of salvation is on its way to us. The Lord is bending his steps westward, by special guidance causing the channel of his grace, which is ultimately to bless all the earth, to cut through Europe first instead of through Asia. Had the apostle to the Gentiles been ordered the other way, then these United States of ours would be the India and the Asia and the Africa of to-day, and missionaries would be bending their steps this way and India, Asia and Africa would be taking offerings for foreign missions to evangelize the barbarians of Europe and America.

Beginning at Jerusalem, the gospel has made its way to Judea, Samaria and Galilee; thence westward to Rome, the Crimea and Russias, the British Isles, and across the seas to Canada and North America. And from this western civilization, the blessings of grace having reached their limits, the stream has turned its course backward, and through the same channels, is on its way to Africa, India, China, Japan, Turkey, Egypt, and Palestine. "As goes America so goes the world." What a debt does America owe to the East! How important it is that this stream, now beginning to flow the other way, should be purified, cleansed! And "as goes America," how important that America should be evangelized, that on May 7 we give liberally to discharge this debt upon us.

The cry of the man of Macedonia to come over into Europe is the pathetic cry from these kindreds and tongues and nations to America, "Come over and help us." Beyond Macedonia was Rome; beyond Rome, Germany; beyond Germany, Britain; beyond Britain, America; and still beyond America is the great east with its untold millions—hundreds of thousands of them are pouring into our own great country; millions are steeped in ignorance, sin and vice; hundreds of great cities must be saved through the gospel.

Let us, I say, purify this great stream of humanity before we turn it back upon its original source. America, above all other peoples, needs to be an example to the world. The design of God in turning Paul back from Asia and leading him to Europe was to give us the gospel. Strike from the world's history that little prayer-meeting on the banks of the Gangites 1800 years ago; erase the deeds, achievements and conquests, the tremendous forces and consequences, that lie wrapped up in this humble beginning, and you blot out Great Britain and Germany, America and western civilization; and to us what a desert waste the past eighteen centuries might present!

The ancient Goths of Germany might still be roaming her vast plains; the Vikings of France might gaze down from Mont Blanc upon the lakes of Switzerland and bonny France embossed in native growths; the Normans of England might still see from the heights above Edinburg only primeval forests; the North American Indian might still look down from the White Mountains of New England upon a wilderness waste. But God has willed it otherwise. He was directing and opening up the nations to the glorious gospel and its mighty conquests. We who have been the object of his plans, the recipients of his grace, shall we receive this gospel in vain? "This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes."

MORMON FACTS

BY T. W. PINKERTON

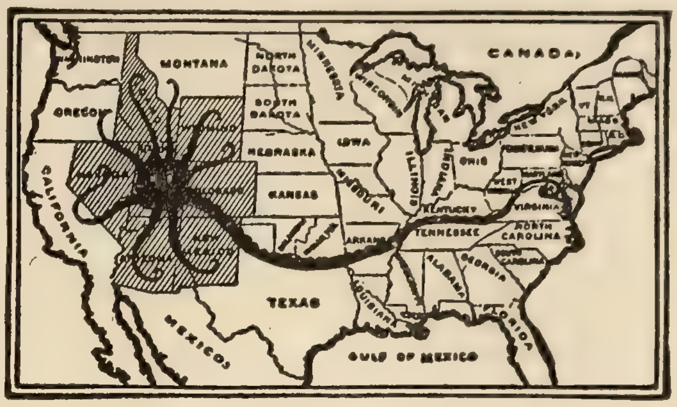
It is a most difficult thing to give those who are not familiar with the condition of things in Utah anything like a just conception of the real situation here. No man, in fact, can understand Mormonism until he has lived for years in its environment.

What are some of the facts? The present president of the church, Joseph F. Smith, is living in polygamous relations with four women. What are some of the facts about this man? He is president, prophet, seer and revelator. He is the father of forty-two children, president of the church of Latter Day Saints of Jesus Christ, trustee in trust of all the church property, which amounts to millions, president of the Salt Lake dramatic association, editor of the Juvenile Instructor, trustee in trust for Saltair bathing resort, president Utah light and railway company, president of Zion's co-operative mercantile institution, which has a credit of one million dollars, president of Zion's saving bank, president of the state bank of Utah, and president of the Utah sugar company. These are not all, but it will suffice to show that Mr. Smith is a man of affairs. Not only is Jos. F. Smith living in open violation of the law of God and man, but so are three or more of the apostles of the church.

What, may be asked, is the attitude of the Mormon leaders towards the ministry of the evangelical churches? I can best answer this by giving an extract from an address of President Smith, published in the Salt Lake Tribune of April 7, 1903. Mr. Smith says:

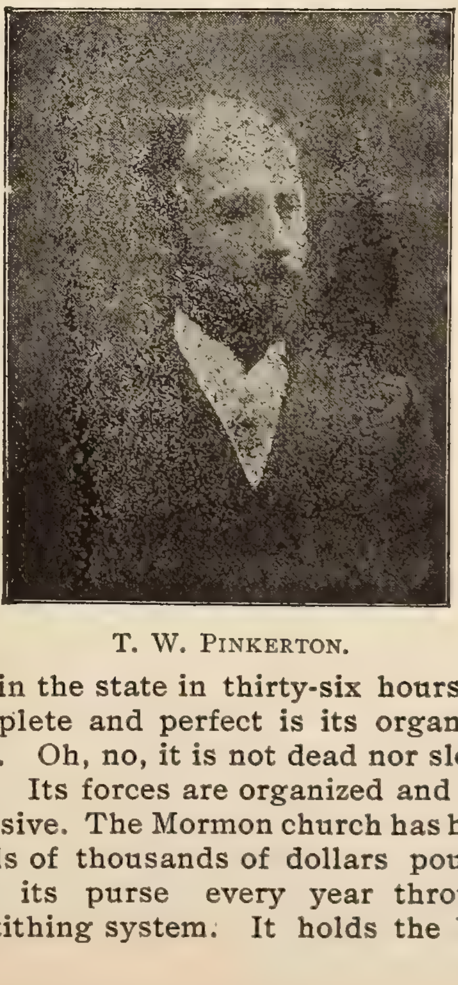
"The government has been friendly to us in giving us freedom and latitude that we could not have had under foreign kings and despots. But this persecution of our people is not the persecution of the United States, but is caused by those who hate us. It is caused by those liars, hypocrites, scoundrels, infernal hounds, and goats in sheep's clothing. It is they who have stirred up the government to this persecution, and it is they who have been the source of the constant lies and calumnies that have been circulated against us. I am reminded of the statement of the late President Woodruff, who said some people were born liars and they were always true to their mission. These instigators of calumnies against us are born liars, and they would tell the truth under no circumstances. They would tell a lie when the truth would serve them better. But let us keep the laws of God, and all these plotters and villifiers will amount to nothing. These slanderers will be swept away by the avenging wrath of a just God. I pity some of these poor devils we have among us. I pray God we may be as true to our mission as these poor devils are to theirs as liars. * * * But the lying riff-raff which infest our land—but we will not hurt them."

The Mormon church controls all the important industries of the state excepting mining and railroading. Here in Salt Lake City they have control of the city government, the public schools and the state university. At least half of the city's population is Mormon, and many of the so-called Gentiles are under Mormon dominion, as witness the Gentile witnesses in the Smoot case.



THE MORMON OCTOPUS.

There are two erroneous views of the Mormons. First, that they are ignorant and uncultivated people. I grant that this is true of a large percentage, but it is far from being general, as some seem to think. Many of them are highly educated and adorn many high positions. Second, that Mormonism is dying out. Not by any means. It is growing and becoming stronger each day. They own in this city thirty-two buildings that are devoted to church purposes. They have abroad in this country and foreign lands between 1,500 and 2,000 missionaries. The whole state of Utah is under the control of the Mormon church, and I believe that it is possible for the president of the church to touch every member in the state in thirty-six hours, so complete and perfect is its organization. Oh, no, it is not dead nor sleeping! Its forces are organized and aggressive. The Mormon church has hundreds of thousands of dollars poured into its purse every year through the tithing system. It holds the balance of political power in at least three states outside of Utah.



T. W. PINKERTON.

It is in the midst of these conditions that we are attempting to plant and sustain the primitive cause of Christianity. A returned missionary told me that it is infinitely harder to do Christian work in Utah than in Corea. I am the only preacher in Utah pleading for Christian union and apostolic Christianity. The odds are great and the task almost too heavy to be borne. I make no complaint. We cannot hope for a signal success unless we are reinforced. The home board must have more money. All of our denominational friends seem to be alive to the necessity and opportunity here, and are sending scores of men and expending thousands of dollars in the state, while each year our home board is forced to cut down its appropriation. Brothers, I appeal to you in the name of our common cause. Smile if you will but I tell you that there is a problem here in Utah that is destined to affect the whole nation through its law-making body.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

❖ ❖

Here's the Evidence.

Twenty-eight months ago the courage of C. J. Tannar, the progressiveness of the Portland avenue church and the substantial aid of the American Christian Missionary Society planted this church. It now has 150 active members, maintains a Sunday-school averaging over 200 in attendance, three flourishing Endeavor societies, a "Little Giant" Christian Woman's Board of Missions auxiliary, and a vigorous pastor's aid society. There is besides a Sunday-school home department of twenty additional members. At present writing we are in a protracted meeting with home forces and the thermometer twenty below zero. Fourteen added to date. We are also remodeling our basement and have the cost ($330) subscribed in advance. The church is solvent and meets all liabilities by direct contribution. We take the offerings regularly and as regularly surpass our apportionments. Best of all, the church is united, happy, full of faith and solidly back of its pastor. Our force of workers is unexcelled. Last year we furnished the state president M. C. M. S., this year we supply two officers, state organizer C. W. B. M. and superintendent of Junior Endeavor. Our immediate field is said to be the best of those in Minnesota. We will do our best to possess it.

Now the point of this paragraph is that it was the American Christian Missionary Society "whose gentle whisper bade us live." Dear reader, you are the jury, and the evidence is all in. Your verdict will be due May 7.

Fred Kline, pastor.

Minneapolis, Minn.

An Argument for Our Gospel Missions

By Chas. Louis Loos.

"Let us reason together," saith the Lord.

We call ourselves, and I trust we are, Christians. What means this? This holy name signifies disciples, followers, imitators of Christ. We should thank God fervently that we have chosen these exalted New Testament appellations, Christian, Disciple, as our only characteristic, distinctive religious names among men. They mean the same thing; they are true names, and imply everything we ought to be. What does it mean to be a disciple, a follower, of Christ? It means to make the thoughts, the aims, in one word, the life, of Christ our own.

Jesus says, "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Let us very briefly study the life of Jesus. Let us ask, What were the great principles, the ruling motives, of his life? In plainest terms he has himself declared these.

1. The first and chief is this: "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." This reveals the one supreme purpose that brought Jesus into this world. "To seek and to save the lost" was the sublime mystery of all our Savior's life on the earth. His thoughts, his teachings, his mighty miracles, his acts of mercy, his sufferings, his death, and his resurrection—all had this one object.

He, therefore, that is truly a Christian, a Disciple of Christ, will make this purpose too the sovereign motive of his life. His thoughts, his desires and acts will also have this end; or else he is not in full truth a Christian.

2. Another law of our Savior's life he declared in these words: "My food is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." To do his Father's will and to finish his work was the very sustenance of Jesus' life. Not to do the Father's will; not to "finish his work"—not to do it perfectly—as our Lord reasoned, meant death. A mere partial, lean, scanty execution of the Father's work was never in our Savior's thoughts, was altogether contrary to his mind and heart.

In tenderest and strongest words Jesus again reveals the same blessed law of his life: "I do always those things that please the Father." No all-controlling principle of life can exceed what is here uttered with such deep pathos of soul.

3. Finally, another most important rule of Christ's life he makes known in these words: "I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work." It is so common, so human, to form and cherish good motives, noble resolutions, but to defer to execute them, to make them real. Delay, delay—what a fatal exhibition of human weakness, of human perverseness, is this! And note the word must. What a forceful expression of the sense of duty—that great quality of noble souls—is in this word! That was the mind, the spirit, of Christ.

Christian, disciple of Jesus, let these lofty, these divine, principles that were the laws and power of Jesus' life, become also the supreme, all-controlling rules of your life. Then, and then alone, will you be in deed and in truth a Christian, a disciple of the Son of God.

Make "to seek and to save the lost" the first, the supreme, motive of your life. Let it be your meat and drink to do the will of our Father in heaven, and to "finish his work." And the will of our heavenly Father is "that the world might be saved." To "finish his work" is to carry it out to completeness; not simply to "play at the great gospel mission," but to push it forward to glorious victories. And wherein can we please the Father better than to strive for the triumphs of his kingdom over all the earth. And the true Christian will brook no delay in the execution of the work of God in his hands.

What stronger argument for our blessed missionary work in America, can I offer than what I have striven thus to set forth in the example of our Lord Jesus Christ? What ought to be more potent with Christian hearts than the life of the Blessed One, the Lord of Glory, the King of saints, the Victor over death and hell?

A Call From the West.

By J. M. Morris.

From valleys broad, where ever flow
The Mississippi grand,
The Missouri, the Ohio,
And rolling Cumberland,
Came to this rich and glowing West
Sons of a stalwart race,
To make themselves a happy home,
To "hew them out a place."

* * *

The forest yielded to their ax,
The Earth her increase gives,
Cities are planned and "built in a day,"
The spirit of Commerce lives;
The school house crowns the verdant hill,
And church of many a shade,
But they long to hear the sacred plea
Their loyal Fathers made;

* * *

The plea that stirred Jerusalem,
Till men forsook the wrong;
The plea that gave men liberty,
And filled their hearts with song;
The Gospel that their Fathers preach'd
In efforts to restore
The church that Jesus built on truth,
They long to hear once more.

* * *

Their hearts go out in prayer for those Whose ears have never heard
The way of life made straight and plain,
The pure and simple "Word";
Their children need the good old church
We loved so well in youth;
They need the best God has for man,
The liberty of truth.

* * *

Churches of Christ, we call to you
Who hold in trust God's truth,
For the fast unfolding West
With its strong and hopeful youth,
To send the message that our Lord
Would have the people know,
Before the Enemy of souls
More tares and death shall sow.

❁ ❁

Paying for Lost Opportunities.

By Clinton Lockhart.

This is our day of opportunities in planting churches in the growing cities of our land. The people have not yet settled into hereditary ideas, are free to accept a free gospel, and less likely after receiving the truth to shackle it with unwritten restrictions. The people of America are more ready to listen to the gospel than in any other land, because in founding new homes they have parted with old ecclesiasticisms that elsewhere impede the progress of truth. The large number of immigrants coming into our cities furnish a collection of materials that have been loosened from old church connections, and under new conditions are ready to lay aside past errors and embrace a pure gospel.

While cities are being formed or enlarged, and whole districts are being filled with new and permanent residences, the opportunities of selecting sites for church property are very precious; and even more important at such a time is the opportunity to reach a new population before it makes other religious engagements that will render a consideration of an untrammeled gospel very difficult. The time is not distant when in most of our cities the situation will be changed. Lots suitable for churches will be taken and covered with other buildings, and will cost many times the amount at which they can now be secured. The people will become settled in religious convictions, attached to human forms and authorities and hard to impress with the simple teaching of Christ. Then success in our missionary operations will be purchased at tremendous cost, and we shall long for the opportunities that we have neglected.

A Word to Preachers.

Very few, if any of us, appreciate as we should the value of the American Christian Missionary Society. It is certainly a most potent factor in evangelism and also in aiding weak churches to attain self support.

The triumphs of the truth, even in difficult fields, should awaken a holy enthusiasm, and impel us all to do our very best. The test of discipleship is to take an active interest in the promotion of Christ's kingdom. As preachers, we ought to give ourselves more and more to the ministry of intercession for this glorious result.

I am more than ever impressed with the fact that the success of the offering is almost entirely in the hands of the preachers. As ambassadors for Christ, my brethren, may we do our full duty in this most important service. R. Lin Cave.

"Beginning at Jerusalem."

The magnificence of Pardoning Love is in this word. As though the Savior had said: "Here, where I came unto my own and they received me not; here, where my friend betrayed me and my foes beset me; here, where they crowned me with thorns and nailed me to the cross; here, where they rejected the counsel of God and steeped their hands in my blood, and called down a curse upon Israel; here, let the gospel of my salvation first be proclaimed, assuring them that 'while they were yet enemies, I died for them.'"

The magnificence of Conscious Power is here. "Here, where the forces of ignorance and unbelief seemed to overcome me, as they mocked my dying groan; here, where I laid down my life according to the Father's will and where I was laid lifeless in the grave, to taste death for every man; here will I make the first offers of life, everlasting life, assuring it to all who shall believe on my name—the name which once they so dishonored."

Is not this an incentive to home missions? Divine love did not originate with us, but that love may yet constrain us. Divine power is not ours by inherent right, but it reposes in the gospel which we preach—"the power of God unto salvation to every-one that believeth." Here, in our own land, where our friends and kindred dwell; here, where countless hosts of our brothers of other tongues and climes are pouring upon our shores; here, where legions of habits and customs and false maxims of the world set themselves against the Christ of God; here is surely the urgent, imperious, appealing cry and here the appalling need, to "preach the unsearchable riches of Christ." The A. C. M. S. is doing heroic work for God and our country; the Christian-Evangelist is second to none in its devout, ardent, unflinching advocacy of the home mission work. Will not every reader of the Christian-Evangelist, without an exception, be a subscriber to home missions, this year, on or before the first Lord's day in May?

St. Louis, Mo. G. E. Ireland.

Thrusting Out the Strong.

The dispersion of the early church was a great aid to the cause of missions and the same is true of our cause to-day. The dispersion of the Disciples of Christ into the cities and towns where we have no church is a blessing though it has been a great tax upon progress, for removals are often a loss to the cause. But now there are 18 people in a town who anxiously await the coming of a missionary, 22 in another; 19 in another and 12, 6, 13, 7, 12, 20, respectively, in as many other places and this list can be duplicated in most of the states of the union. Two families in one town hold services in the homes alternately. Five families in rotation in another city. Some godly women are praying for a church in another city. A mother during 26 years of dispersion and exile from her church, trains her daughter in the gospel and takes her 200 miles to the old home church for baptism and they together pray daily for the planting of a church where they live; a brother and sister are praying for the cause to be established in their city—a county seat; a husband and wife unite in petitions for some one to preach the gospel and plant a church where they live; strong men are crowding for strong churches; and strong churches are searching for strong men. But the Holy Spirit thrust the strong men, "Paul and Barnabas," out of the strong church Antioch and when they went forth in their path they left "Antioch of Pisidia," Lystra and Derbe, Philippi, Thessalonica, Berea, Corinth. The Holy Spirit's call is for strong men to preach the gospel in other cities also. If the strong churches can be reached by a direct appeal for a special field the smaller churches will join in a firmer fellowship to help them. The great problem is to get the churches to know and see the great opportunity before them.

J. A. Joyce.

Pittsburg, Pa.

Open Up New Places.

A study of the Chicago field suggests to me the need for opening up new places, and a reasonable support in aid of such, rather than to make stronger (as we call it) the work already established before doing so. The latter plan would seem very much like having boys become men ere we had need for other boys. It is wonderful, too, what can be accomplished even in Chicago, with just a little money. Its expenditure may not always show immediate visible results, but there is no better use to be made of money than that of giving to the cause of Him who giveth all things for us. A. Larrabee.

Surely We Are Asleep.

Less than a hundred thousand dollars a year for home missions! Surely God will not hold us guiltless.

Less than a hundred thousand dollars a year for home missions! Surely our boasted love for our great plea is a mistake.

Less than a hundred thousand dollars a year for home missions! Surely our zeal for the evangelization of the world is a sad delusion.

"Awake! awake! put on thy strength O Zion!" "Awake, thou that sleepest." E. V. Zollars.

N. Waco, Texas.

Shall We Falter Now?

"Jerusalem, Judea and the uttermost parts of the earth" was never more the divine program than to-day. Our cities, like Jerusalem, are first because they are centers of mighty power. Right here where we are the weakest is where Christian union will come first. The denominations are up against this "appalling indifference," so are ready to rally around Jesus, as at Denver and other cities, to gain the victory. For this crisis our fathers toiled, prayed and wept with hopeful joy, as they saw it coming. Are we ready to meet it?

Erie, Pa. F. A. Wight.

The Important Day of the Year.

We believe that if we would double our contributions for home missions, and thus strengthen many of our weak churches, and then go in at many of the open doors, east, west, north and south, and establish churches on the divine foundation, we could in a few years double our collections for all of our other missionary enterprises.

Churches organized by our missionary society are always missionary churches. Anti-ism never gains a foothold in a church that is the child of our organized missionary work. So that as a friend of all our church enterprises I could not be consistent and not plead for our home work. Every friend of the work ought to be greatly encouraged by the report of last year's work. With a falling off in the receipts the society reported more work with greater results than in any preceding year.

Who is not proud of the great work that during the last half century has been accomplished by the American Christian Missionary Society?

Nearly all the fathers in this great restoration movement have gone to their reward. They died not only in the sweet hope of the gospel, but confidently expecting that we their children in the gospel would be willing to carry on the work that they inaugurated. Brethren, let not the May offering for home missions disappoint them. L. L. Carpenter.

Wabash, Ind.

Words From the Field Men

Results in a New Country.

The possibility of the results is limited only by the amount of money the brotherhood will place in the hands of the Home Board, with which they can place men in the field to prosecute the work.

No field is as ripe as Oklahoma, and none will yield greater results for the amount of money expended.

To illustrate: We have since April 1, 1902, traveled with team 7,553 miles, by railroad 1,516, making a total of 9,065 miles. I have preached 512 times, baptized 47, have added to the church 304 members, organized 20 congregations and built 21 churches and received therefor from the Home Board $570. This assistance, small as it is for two years and ten months of work, alone made it possible for us to do what we have done.

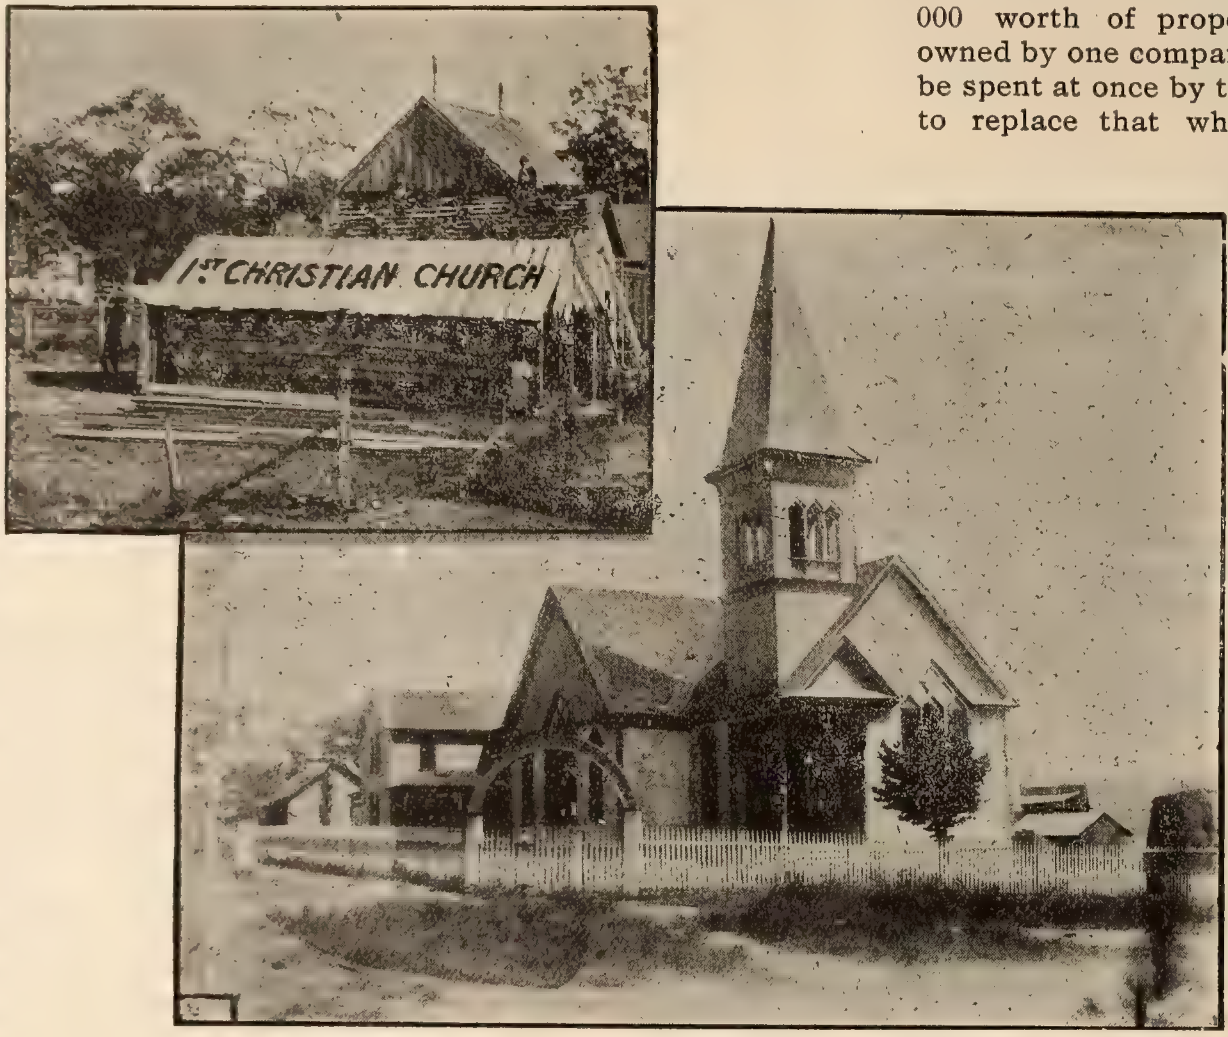
In November of 1904 we built two churches with the assistance of $25 from the Home Board. In December we built two churches, 32x48, with assistance from the Home Board of $25, and without this small amount of help we could not have remained in the field and have done this needed work.

Oklahoma is dotted with railroad towns, in which we are not represented by organization or house. Woods county alone has twelve towns in this condition, with thickly populated rural districts between these towns.

Hundreds of people in Oklahoma are yet to hear our plea. The Home Board cannot send workers without funds. The cry reaches us, "Come and help us," "Send some one at once."

Will the needs of the Master touch your heart and open your pocket-book that the cry that wells up to heaven may be answered on earth—in Oklahoma? R. S. Smedley.

Geary, Okla.



Old and New Churches, South McAlester, I. T.

Strengthen the Outposts.

Our government spends millions of dollars in coast defences. And all admit that it is a wise policy. Keep the enemy out or subdue them before they get into the interior.

This is also wise tactics for the church of Christ. Our great cities are our outposts. They also are our coast defences. New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle and Chicago—draw a line through them and you almost have the boundary lines of our country.

Every one of these cities is cosmopolitan. Not one of them is adequately fortified against the attacks of error and iniquity. What is the million and a quarter of our brotherhood doing to fortify these great cities for Christ? Through their gates is pouring into the interior of our nation a multitude of untried men and women—men and women who know not the gospel of Jesus Christ in its simplicity and purity. They should be met at our doors with the bread of life before they have become satisfied with the dry husks of Roman Catholicism, rationalism, infidelity, agnosticism or mammon-worship. Just as they have landed on our shores is the opportune time to capture them for Christ. We should have men and women in all these cities ready to speak to them in their own language. There should be houses of worship to which they could be invited at once. The salvation of our country, the salvation of these strangers, our own salvation, depends upon timely, efficient action.

A million dollars should be spent by our home society every year in New York alone. The other great cities should receive proportionate amounts. New York with its 3,000,000 people has but a handful of workers. Boston with its 500,000 souls has but a single Christian church within the limits of the city proper. Twelve years ago I spent half a day trying to find the one which used to be in the south end, and it has recently been moved farther out of the city. Our dozen churches in Chicago are doing fine work, "but what are they among so many?" Seattle has two or three churches for its 80,000 people. New Orleans with its 350,000 people, largely Roman Catholic, has two small churches. And New Orleans is destined to be one of the greatest cities on the western hemisphere. It is already one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the United States. It is also one of the most wicked cities in the United States. It is growing rapidly. The recent fire destroyed $4,000,000 worth of property, most of it owned by one company. Millions will be spent at once by the same company to replace that which was burned. The American Christian Missionary Society is putting a few hundred dollars into this field, while we should make it possible to put in tens of thousands.

It is time for the Christian churches in the United States to show their faith by their works instead of by their play. Let the preachers get down to business in preaching and teaching missions. Let us all realize that our own salvation depends upon our efforts to save others. And let the outposts be strengthened. Marcellus R. Ely.

New Orleans.

The Missionary's Standpoint.

In former years the missionary looked forward to the May offering hoping, somewhat dubiously, that it would furnish him the means to pay grocers' and butchers' bills and look his tailor in the face.

If of a sanguine temperament he might allow himself to dream of the luxury of a new book and a new coat. How often, alas, was he doomed to disappointment! The churches would fail to respond, bills would be unpaid, and his grip on his work weakened.

It is a matter for congratulation that a better day has dawned and that the missionary's salary is paid as promptly as that of any other man.

Relieved now from absolute personal want he anticipates the first Lord's day in May from the standpoint of the needs of the field.

The Old Church, Charleston, S. C.

Let us think of some things that confront him. In the first place that prejudice that impels men to speak of him as that "Campbellite who calls himself a Christian" is a very live quantity.

Second there is the tendency on the part of the careless to class his work with that of the Christian Scientist, because of the emphasis each puts on the name Christian. In the third place he is a frontier man, and the peculiar conditions of the frontier confront him.

But what of these and the May offering? Why, a great May offering means money in the treasury; means the opening of new fields and the strengthening of old; means the inauguration of so vigorous a campaign that prejudice and carelessness must give way before it; means recognition, and if we have the truth, recognition is all we need.

Give me the means to open a mission in the Cuban district of my city, and another in "Little Italy," and at once this station leaps into its place as a recognized force for righteousness.

The plain duty of the churches, then, from the missionary standpoint, is to make the offering this coming first Lord's day in May by far the greatest in our history. J. P. Rowlison.

Tampa, Fla.

◆

A Hungry Million.

200,000,000 people will lie down to-night hungry. Not long ago one of our western states burned corn for fuel, because they could not get ten cents a bushel for it. It is an awful thing to be hungry in the midst of plenty. "Give ye them to eat," said the Master.

But 1,000,000,000 people will lie down to-night without Christ. It is an infinitely worse thing to be hungry for the Bread of Life in the midst of those who are able to give it to lost men and women. I have seen an estimate in the Literary Digest of the greatness of the work to be done. Each letter in the Bible is made to represent a soul without Christ, and it is found that seventy four Bibles will be required to record them all, while in the same way all Christians can be recorded in the book of Isaiah in a single copy of the Bible. In the United States and Canada there is a Christian to every forty-eight people; in Mexico, South America and southern provinces, 1 to 32,000; in the Levant, whence our Savior came, 1 to 100,000. And yet Christianity is making most rapid gains now. If only the church were together in all of its factions, the conquest of this world for Christ would be a small work.

The New Church, Charleston, S. C.

While I know many noble souls who are Catholics, and others who are denominationalists, and many good people, in a worldly sense, who are not church people at all, yet if we have not heathen here in our own land, we do have millions of idolatrous Catholics, sinful sectarians, indifferent church members, and lost men without hope.

If any man thinks the days of bitter hatred, sectarian prejudice, idolatry and superstition are things of the past let him take a journey with me through South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Lousiana, and I will show him worlds of it. And yet, are these states sinners above all? What shall be done? We should give the greatest amount for home missions in May that has ever been given by the churches of Christ to redeem them from sin. Especially should every church and every Disciple in these southern states give and give liberally.

O. P. Spiegel.

Birmingham, Ala.

◆ ◆

The Story of Joe.

When the Sunday-school of the Twenty-fifth street mission, Baltimore, Md., was being organized, a crowd of boys were playing ball on a lot near by. The pitcher of the "Boone Streeters" said to his crowd when the singing began, "Boys let's go in an hear the singen." Several came and continued to come, some even yet.

But I want to tell you of Joe, the pitcher. He had on enough clothes to cover him, pants and shirt, and a little flat cap that covered part of his head. If you looked at him he ducked down under the seat. Joe was the first boy in the school. He got attached and he is back there now in the young men's class. That cleanly dressed, straight young fellow is Joe. He is a Christian now. He takes part in Christian Endeavor because he belongs. Recently he would not take a certain position because it would keep him from Sunday-school. He is working now for a wholesale paper house. Ask any Disciple in Baltimore and he will know something about Joe. We are all proud of him and consider the money of the society well spent if he alone were saved. But besides him, of our few members we have five boys who are the only Disciples in their homes. This is to be a great church if the American Christian Missionary Society is enabled to continue their support until the work becomes self-supporting. Orilas G. White.

Baltimore, Md.

* * *

Cannot See Afar Off.

There are people who cannot see afar off in time; cannot look into the future and see the glorious consummation toward which God is working through his church. There are also those who cannot see afar off in distance. This second class I have in mind now. They may be good people, claiming to be moved by the spirit of the gospel, yet so engrossed with the immediate affairs of their own local needs, that they cannot see the needs of others. They lack the overland vision. They are unable to look across the country to another city, state or section of their country. They cannot see afar off. If they could, our great brotherhood, instead of giving the paltry average of seven cents per capita to home missions last year, would have given fifty cents, and placed $600,000 in the hands of our home board instead of $85,755.96.

G. K. Berry said in my pulpit recently, "Portland could wisely spend $10,000 a year in the spread of the gospel over our city." If I could get, say, the 180,000 Disciples of Missouri to come to Portland this summer and stand in one vast army on Portland Heights and look over our rapidly growing city of nearly 150,000 people, while I would point out our four struggling churches and see the vast opportunities for our people here if they had the money with which to enlarge, their eyes would begin to sparkle with victory and they would say, "Brother Muckley, we will give you $10,000 a year for ten years to plant the cause of primitive Christianity in Portland." Brethren of our strong states, lift up your eyes and behold your opportunities across the Rockies in the empire of the Northwest and you will make the home board abundantly able to answer all our needs. What the home society did for Portland gave us a mighty impulse. But Portland is still a mission field. E. S. Muckley.

Portland, Oregon.

* * *

The Missionary's Trial.

When every man and woman you meet has hoisted the white flag, the missionary has to shut his eyes, and stop his ears, and clinch his fist, and literally wrench the whole constituency into his way of thinking. He has to draw his sabre and head off a retreating host and again wheel the whole thing around, and put them again into battle. John A. Stevens.

The Great Northwest

By Rosetta B. Hastings

The area of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Wyoming and Montana is larger than the combined area of New England, the middle states, and all of the southern states east of the Mississippi, except Florida, Kentucky and Tennessee. Perhaps you can better realize the magnitude of this region when you know that you could set down inside of it, side by side, France, England and the German Empire.

Western Oregon was settled almost as early as California, but the great mountain region for six or seven hundred miles east was for years unknown, or famed only for mineral resources. But it is full of immense forests, rich sheltered valleys, and large tracts of farm land. Oregon, Washington and Idaho are becoming almost as noted for grain and fine fruits as California.

In 1903 fourteen million bushels of wheat were exported from that region, and from Portland alone the shipments of grain and flour brought over eight million dollars. The sales of timber and lumber brought fifty million dollars, stock and dairy products twenty million, fish eleven million, fruit three million, and wool three million dollars that year.

It is only the last twenty years that have witnessed the rapid settlement and development of this region. Mines, farms and irrigating ditches are creating towns faster than railroads can reach them, and several cities are fast climbing into the hundred thousands. More than ten thousand new settlers enter Montana every year, and the population of Idaho is increasing still more rapidly. The fair at Portland this summer will captivate thousands, and there will be a still greater immigration.

How does this concern us? While these states are new, and the people broken loose from their old religious moorings, we should have preachers scattered everywhere, ready to give them the simple gospel, and gather them into our churches, to grow up with the country.

Western Oregon was so fortunate as to have some of our best pioneer preachers settle there fifty years ago, and our churches are quite numerous in that part of the state, but in the eastern part, and in the newer states we are yet feeble.

This region has a population of one and a third million, about the same as Kansas. But we have 50,000 members in Kansas, and only 19,000 in all those northwestern states; and, leaving out Oregon and Washington, only 5,000 in the other three states. The churches there are doing what they can to help themselves and each other, but the task is too great. Shall we not all put our shoulders to the wheel? Hardly since the days of the apostles have there been such openings for preaching the gospel.

In all that region we have only 231 preachers, including pastors, aged veterans, and those who work part of the time at other callings for support, as well as evangelists, and only 57 outside of Washington and Oregon. Last year the Congregationalists employed 50 missionaries in North Dakota, 88 in South Dakota, 27 in Wyoming, 79 in Washington, 97 in Nebraska, and 105 in Minnesota. This shows on what a large scale they plan and give. Yet the Congregationalists have only half as many members in this country as the church of Christ.

These new communities will become populous and wealthy. Let us wake up and seize these opportunities before they become set and hardened in their grooves, and inaccessible to our preachers. Let us not forget these needy fields the first Sunday in May.

Effingham, Kan.

* * *

HONEST CONFESSION

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly confession of the fact.

A case in point is that of an eminent practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads.' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons. I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does. I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

An Appeal From the American Christian Missionary Society

The American Christian Missionary Society comes before the churches with its annual appeal for help in advancing the cause of apostolic Christianity throughout the United States and Canada.

Last year was the greatest year in our history; there were more missionaries employed than in any previous year. The number reached 353. These missionaries organized 165 new churches and received over 16,000 persons into membership in mission churches. We are asking our brethren to support us in this advance movement by an enlarged offering the first Lord's day in May.

Our offerings since the national convention, held at St. Louis last October, show a handsome gain. There is an increase of $1,311.07 in the offerings of the churches as compared with the same period of last year. There is a gain of $330.10 in the offerings of the Christian Endeavor societies, a gain of $91.15 in offerings of the ladies' aid societies, a gain of $440.37 in personal offerings, a gain of $1,230.90 in miscellaneous receipts, and a total gain of $1,533.68 in the period from Oct. 1, 1904, to April 1, 1905, as compared with the same period of a year ago.

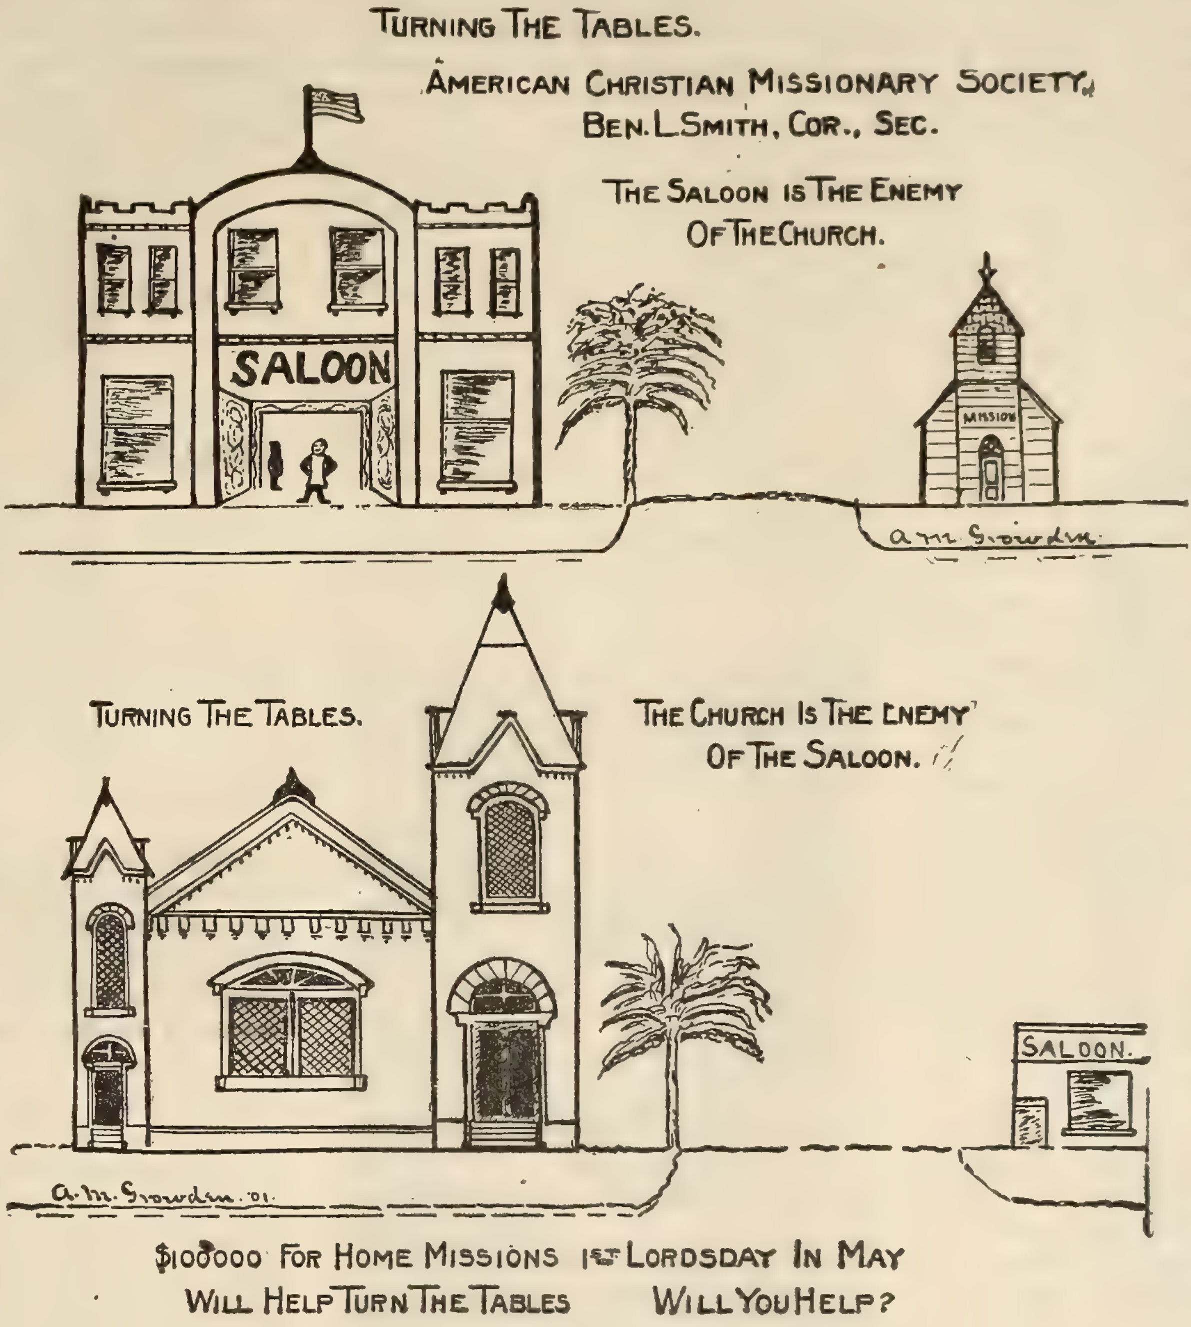
All indications point to the largest May offering we have ever had. The supplies ordered, the literature sent out, the letters received, indicate an increasing interest in the great work of winning America to Christ. The success attained justifies larger effort, and we will never correct our neglect of this work of home missions until we realize that home missions and foreign missions are the two wings of our growth and make them equal in our love, our prayers and our offerings. In the name of the acting board of managers, in the name of the scattered Disciples who are holding out their hands to us for help, in the name of the thousands of souls that are ready for us if we would only go to them, in the name of the love of Jesus Christ, who wants the souls of men for his own, we are appealing for a generous offering the first Lord's day in May.

Our people do not need to pray to God for open doors. He has opened more doors than we are entering. We do not need to pray to God to give us souls. He is offering us more souls than we are willing to accept in the great missionary field.

May the Lord bless the churches as they make their offering to this cause the first Lord's day in May.

American Christian Missionary Society,

Benj. L. Smith, Cor. Sec.,
Geo. B. Ranshaw, Field Sec.,
W. J. Wright, Supt. of Evangelism.



TURNING THE TABLES.
AMERICAN CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY,
BEN. L. SMITH, COR., SEC.
THE SALOON IS THE ENEMY OF THE CHURCH.
SALOON MISSION
a.m. Growden
TURNING THE TABLES.
THE CHURCH IS THE ENEMY OF THE SALOON.
SALOON.
A.M. Growden. 01.
$100000 FOR HOME MISSIONS 1ST LORDSDAY IN MAY
WILL HELP TURN THE TABLES WILL YOU HELP?

The Value of Christianity By J. W. Caldwell

An Illustrative Experience From Real Life.

One evening a group of us were talking on the front porch. There were theosophists, agnostics, atheists, socialists and Christians. In the group was a young woman, Mary, about twenty. She was strong physically and mentally. She had a noble heart. In early childhood she came under the influence of Christianity, attended Sunday-school and church, read the Bible and was regular in her devotions.

We were discussing the merits of religion. Most of the group condemned Christianity. I demurred at the criticisms as being hasty and unjust. One young man said that prayer is a superstition. When asked to prove it he said he was unable to do so. When told that prayer is an expression of an inner hunger and aspiration, the reaching out of the lower to and for the higher, he had nothing to say. Mary then told us her experience. She said: "My parents rather made light of my devotions and I was gradually discouraged and fell away from church. I became skeptical and materialistic, and my life less happy. I seem now to have no anchorage. I meet many unbelievers; they are mostly superficial, imprudent and ignorant. They have not the finer graces and beauties that we expect to find in people who make claim to intellectual culture.

"When I was religious and nightly said my prayers, I would not lie; now, I can lie easily and without a protest of conscience."

The crowd was silent. I asked, "What do you think of that? Answer me a year hence." I went out into the night and thought of the immensity and goodness of God, the luminous love of Jesus, and the smallness of some men's minds

Our Budget

—"Home Missions to the front!"

—Easter and Home Missions this week! They seem to go well together.

—The flag and the cross—patriotism and primitive Christianity—both appeal to us for a generous offering for Home Missions on May 7.

Nailed to the Mast

—The American Christian Missionary Society is asking the churches this year for $200,000 only, to carry on its work in the needy states and territories, and among the unevangelized masses of our great cities. If we are not to be a fifth-rate power, but aspire to be ranked among the great religious forces for giving religious tone and character to this Republic, we cannot refuse this appeal.

—Neither riches, nor poverty, nor past achievements, nor future plans, nor anti-missionaries, nor omissionaries, "nor any other creature" should be permitted to separate the churches from this great opportunity. Read carefully the contents of this number of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, and you will be sure to fall into line with our great advancing army.

—All the signs point to the greatest offering in the history of the American Christian Missionary Society. Its needs are greater; its fields are larger; its forces are better organized and led; its friends are more numerous; and its high claims upon the brotherhood as the organization that stands for the extension of our movement throughout this country, are more clearly recognized to-day than ever before. We confidently expect, therefore, a larger number of contributing churches this year than ever before, and the offerings should be more generous.

—The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is delighted to lend its columns and even its whole pages, to the furtherance of this great cause of Home Missions. It is the root and stock of all our other missionary, educational and benevolent interests. Let us all join hands to give it a push to the front, on May 7.

—J. G. Cansler has received a unanimous call to the pastorate at Payson, Okla.

—The receipts of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions for March were $23,279.87.

—B. F. Goslin, Columbia, Mo., has just organized a Bible-school with 50 pupils at New Hope, Myers, Howard county, Mo.

—The report of the church at Belton, Texas, indicates great progress. Geo. W. Lee has just celebrated his second anniversary as pastor.

—Born to Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Layton, of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, at Nankin, China, a daughter, Mildred Glenrose, on March 5, 1905.

—J. M. Monroe, of Oklahoma City, O. T., will dedicate churches at Arapaho, Ingalls, and Sayre on successive Sundays. The church building crusade is in full swing in Oklahoma.

—The native schools of Bina, India, which are under the care of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, will this year be supported by a friend who does not desire her name known.

—Bro. J. K. Ballou reports that the remaining indebtedness to clear the church lot of the First Christian church at Sioux City, Ia., has been raised, and it is hoped to begin the erection of the new building at once.

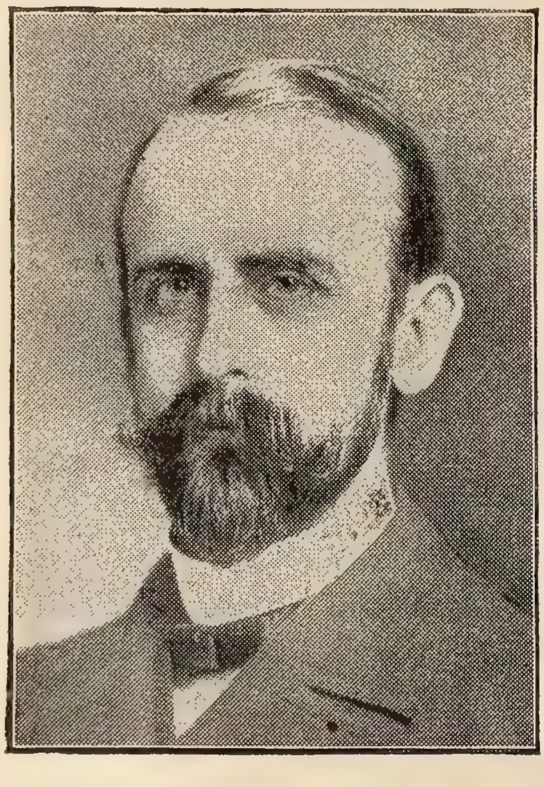
—A. C. Gray, of Mount Healthy, O., delivered three lectures on Bible Versions to the Hiram college students on the evenings of April 5, 6, 7. The lectures, which were illustrated by the stereopticon; aimed to give a history of the English Bible—its translation and transmission.

—The church at Paris, Tex., has just purchased property for a parsonage. A new baptistry is being put into the church building, and from the constant additions which J. T. Ogle reports we imagine it will be kept in good use.

—Corresponding Secretary B. S. Denny, of Iowa, has secured $6,000 for Iowa missions since February 1, and strenuous efforts are being made to win the 10,000 souls for Christ and raise $10,000 for Iowa missions before June 15.

—Geo. B. Evans has resigned his work at Fairview, W. Va., to take effect July 1. He is a graduate and a post graduate of Bethany college, and his present pastorate has extended over three years. He is open to an engagement elsewhere.

—J. J. Handsaker reports 26 additions to the church in Manning's Hill, Jamaica. He also reports 17 additions in Kingston, his field of labor. Mr. Handsaker went to Jamaica in January, under the Christian Woman's Board of Missions.



BENJ. L. SMITH,
COR. SEC. AMERICAN CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

—Lewis P. Fisher, of Eureka, Ill., has accepted a half-time call to the Mt. Olivet church near Clarence, Ill., and began his work April 9, with fine audiences. A Sunday-school will be organized at once. Everything points to a very successful year's work.

—We had a brief but pleasant call from Bro. H. G. Wilkinson, who was compelled, by reason of his health, to give up the work in Porto Rico, for a time at least. Brother Wilkinson may locate in Nebraska for a while, though his plans are not yet matured.

—The brethren at Mexico, Mo., will lay the corner stone of their new house of worship on April 27. A. W. Kokendoffer, the pastor, is doing a great work for this congregation. Building the Fifteenth street church in Kansas City prepared him for this new enterprise.

—At one time we had a church at Hazelton, Kan. M. B. Ingalls has just been preaching in that neighborhood, and has collected 13 scattered Disciples, and one "baptized Methodist," who will unite, and the prospect is that there will be a building in the near future.

—It is announced by Brother Hill, pastor of the church at Mobile, Ala., that he will have as his guest this month, W. J. Bryan, who goes there for the purpose of delivering a lecture on behalf of the church building fund. Brother Miller and Mr. Bryan are intimate friends.

—Paul H. Castle took charge of the Central Park church at Montana, March 31, the church holding a reception for him that evening also for H. E. Rossell and family, who reside at

Nailed to the Mast

WHY $200,000 FOR HOME MISSIONS?

BECAUSE—We should correct our neglect of this great work.

BECAUSE—It is the ripest field in the world.

BECAUSE—It is our base of supplies. The Missions receiving assistance from our Home Treasury sent $2,340.66 to our Foreign Society in 1904.

BECAUSE—Our own brethren—our own flesh and blood are asking help to establish churches—we should certainly hear and heed their cry.

BECAUSE—The Home Board did more work last year than any previous year in our history—165 churches organized and 16,861 additions by our Home Missionaries. This work is a success.

BECAUSE—It is the work of the Lord Jesus Christ—to win souls in America. We should be about the Lord's business.

Ask your minister about the Offering the first Lord's Day in May. Full supplies of envelopes; literature, papers, etc., sent on application to the Secretary.

American Christian Missionary Society
Benjamin L. Smith
Cor. Sec'y
Y.M.C.A. Bld'g.
Cincinnati, O.

A New Book on the Holy Spirit.

The work by J. H. Garrison, editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, entitled "The Holy Spirit: His Personality, Mission and Modes of Activity," is now in type and will soon be ready for the press and bindery. It embraces twelve chapters as follows:

1. The Tri-Personality of God.
2. Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.
3. Function of the Spirit in Conversion.
4. Relation of the Holy Spirit to Christians.
5. Blessings from the Holy Spirit.
6. Jesus and the Holy Spirit.
7. Significance of Pentecost.
8. Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit.
9. Spiritual Gifts.
10. Perfecting Holiness.
11. Christian Union and the Holy Spirit.
12. Perpetuity of the Spirit's Guidance.

The book will be about the same size as the author's "Helps to Faith," will be handsomely printed and bound in cloth, and will sell for $1. Orders began to come in for this book as soon as it was announced. We will be prepared to fill all orders in a very short time. Address Christian Pub. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of The Christian-Evangelist May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Didn't Know I Had Kidney Trouble

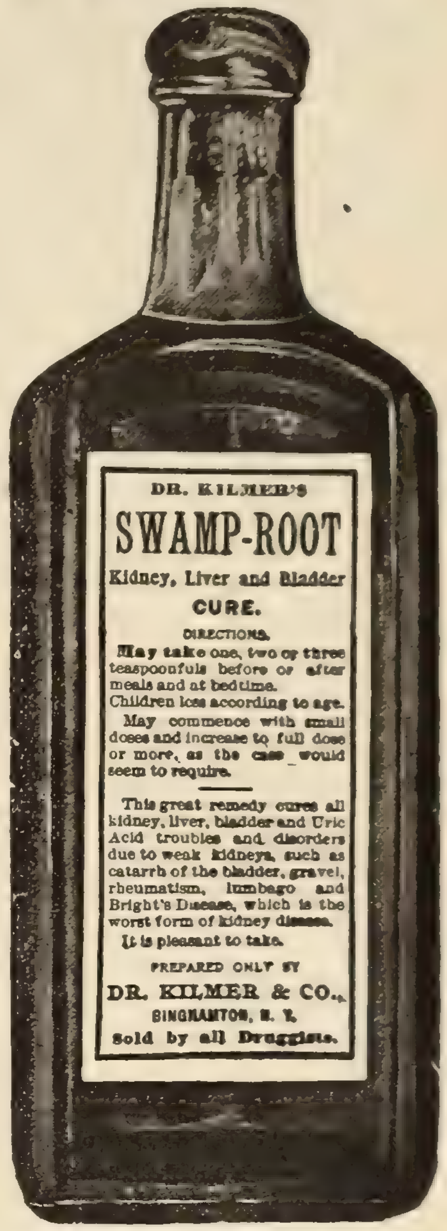
I had tried so many remedies without their having benefited me that I was about discouraged, but in a few days after taking your wonderful Swamp-Root I began to feel better.

I was out of health and run down generally, had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root, as above stated. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers.

Gratefully yours,
Mrs. A. L. Walker, 331 East Linden St., Atlanta, Ga.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering and fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; make your head ache and back ache, cause indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.



DR. KILMER'S
SWAMP-ROOT
Kidney, Liver and Bladder
CURE.
DIRECTIONS.
May take one, two or three teaspoonfuls before or after meals and at bedtime.
Children less according to age.
May commence with small doses and increase to full dose or more, as the case would seem to require.
This great remedy cures all kidney, liver, bladder and Uric Acid troubles and disorders due to weak kidneys, such as catarrh of the bladder, gravel, rheumatism, lumbago and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney disease.
It is pleasant to take.
PREPARED ONLY BY
DR. KILMER & CO.,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists.

(Swamp-Root is pleasant to take.)

How to Find Out

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases, that to Prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle.

In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis Christian-Evangelist.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Central Park. Brother Rossell is the state secretary. He was with the Central Park church Sunday, April 9, and arranged a strong auxiliary of the C. W. B. M.

—The first Sunday in May has been set aside in Kansas as Prohibition Sunday in honor of the going into effect of the prohibitory law in that state 24 years ago. The day is home missionary Sunday among our brotherhood, and as temperance is a great aid to home missions we think this aspect of the question might receive some notice in Kansas.

—Over 70 responses were received in reply to a notice that the Second church, Terre Haute, Ind., wanted a preacher for full time. Bro. J. F. Ashler made an effort to answer every applicant. S. H. Givler, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., was asked to visit the church, and gave such satisfaction that it was not deemed advisable to call for visits from any other preacher. He has accepted the call, and begun work. He has never worked in Indiana before. He is a graduate of Drake university of the class of '94.

—Samuel Gregg, former state evangelist for Nebraska, will re-enter the evangelistic field with a first-class singer, and is ready to make engagements. His purpose is to raise the salary of himself and helper, churches being required only to guarantee expenses, and follow the plans suggested by the evangelist. Brother Gregg may be addressed at Farlin, Ia.

—Geo. H. Miller has entered upon his 12th year as pastor of the First Christian church, Covington, Ky. During his 11 years in that city 722 persons have united with his church. There was a debt of $18,000 at the beginning; this has now been reduced to about $2,000 and it is expected that it will be entirely removed this year. The church has exceeded each missionary apportionment so far.

—The H street Christian church, Washington, is now taking upwards of 100 Christian-Evangelists every week. This is a remarkable showing for a new church. We are not surprised that with a good, hustling pastor, and a Christian paper in so many of the homes, the regular audiences are increasing, the building fund is growing larger, the debt smaller, and the hopes of the brethren brighter every day.

—W. H. Kindred reports that E. J. Witte, a Baptist minister at Morenci, Mich., with his wife, has united with our church at Adrian. Brother Kindred and Brother Witte have been canvassing the ground of a New Testament church, and he finally decided to stand with those known as Christians. He is a good preacher, loves the Bible, and proclaims it loyally and fearlessly. He will locate with one of our Ohio churches.

—Frank E. Jones, who has lately taken up the work at Corvallis, desires to invite our brethren going to the Lewis and Clark exposition and the west coast to see his part of the great state of Oregon. He will be glad to correspond with anyone desiring information. Brother Jones regards Corvallis as a most important field because of the fact that the State agricultural school, with a large number of students, is located there.

—Henry A. Blake reports that the little church at Manton is the only one of the New Testament pattern in Rhode Island. There are about 50 members, and as there are quite a number of scattered Disciples in Providence the brethren have decided to go to the city and organize them into a church. The Manton church is well organized, with Brother Bruningham, a graduate of Hiram, as pastor; he is taking a course at Brown university.

—The National Christian Bible-school Association has just published as a little leaflet the very admirable address which Pres. Burris A. Jenkins delivered at the national convention, which is entitled "The Child and the Church." Chas. M. Fillmore, Station P., Cincinnati, O., secretary of the association, informs us that copies will be sent free to preachers and teachers, while they last, upon application. Those who heard the address need not be reminded how admirable it was, and with what an important subject it dealt.

—Mrs. Princess Long was in a wreck the other day while en route from Aurora to Humboldt, Neb. She received some slight injuries but was able to go on with her work. Bro. C. S. Payne was in the same wreck and came out with only a few bruises. Sister Long's visit to the churches in Nebraska has been a delight to them. From all places come glowing reports. Brother Baldwin writes: "May she come again to Nebraska!" Chancellor Aylsworth says: "Added to high artistic excellence, her high ideals of character and her womanly bearing greatly increase her power before a cultured Christian audience."

—Miss Elma Irelan, of Topeka, Kan., has been appointed a mission teacher in Monterey, Mexico, by the Christian Woman's Board of Missions. Miss Irelan is thoroughly well fitted for her work. She is a graduate of Washburn college, Topeka, Kan., and is the daughter of Wm. Irelan, long known and honored as a minister in the church of Christ. Her mother was an earnest worker in the ranks of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and reared her daughter to know and love its fields and forces. Miss Irelan will go to her field this autumn. Her father will accompany her, and will, we are sure, prove a blessing to the little church in Monterey.

—As we are printing an extra large edition of the Christian-Evangelist this week, some of the copies will be certain to fall into the hands of those who are not regular readers of the paper. To all such we would say, "If you like us, come thou with us and we will do thee good." This is a fair sample of the paper, except that we don't have quite the variety we usually do on account of the extra space given to Easter and home missions. Our Christian-Evangelist family is a growing one, and we have mighty good times among ourselves discussing vital issues and helping one another. As to the "Easy Chair" circle, it is made up of the choicest spirits in the world, and all who are members of the Christian-Evangelist family have free admission to the Easy Chair circle. Now, as always, is the time to subscribe. One dollar pays you to the end of the year.

—Five of our St. Louis churches reporting at ministers' meeting last Monday, reported 120 baptisms for March. No reports from the others.

—As we go to press comes a cheering telegram announcing that in the great meeting held by Evangelists Scoville and De Loss Smith at Finis Idleman's church at Paris, Ill., 692 additions have been recorded in 49 days.

—If you have received a copy of The American Home Missionary for April, be sure to read it, as the old preacher said about the Bible, "from kiver to kiver." If you have not received it, send to Benj. L. Smith, Y. M. C. A. building, Cincinnati, for a copy. It contains facts for kindling faith and fire.

—"Don't all speak at once." We are receiving a great number of replies and criticisms on our recent editorial entitled, "Is There Not Common Ground?" We knew the article would provoke criticism and that is why we wrote it. We are glad to hear from the brethren, but they mustn't all come at once. This week we are occupied with the cause of home missions, and that has the right of way over all theological discussions. Be patient, brethren, and we will give you all a hearing.

—One of the most prosperous enterprises of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions is its Chinese mission in Portland, Oregon, which is cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Louie Hugh. The night school has 53 pupils. Street preaching and house to house work are done. The members of the mission support one of their own number in China. This worker has organized a native congregation and ministers to it. The Portland mission sends regular offerings to all our missionary boards, and never fails to send a monthly offering to the Christian Woman's Board of Missions as an expression of gratitude for benefits received. Four young Chinamen have recently become Christians through the teachings of Brother Hugh.

—J. L. Garvin, pastor of the First Christian church at Youngstown, O., has tendered his resignation to take effect after June 1. He takes this step, being under obligations to return to complete his course at Union theological seminary and Columbia university, New York. He has made many friends at Youngstown, where there is a splendid congregation. President Hall, of Union seminary, has been anxious for him to return there. Brother Garvin is a son of a preacher, J. H. Garvin, and in the course of his academic career he had a year at Butler college, where his uncle was for a long time a professor. He was for a time pastor of the church at Swampscott, Mass., which Bro. W. H. Rogers has been so heroically striving to put on a sound financial basis.

—Bro. M. E. Harlan, pastor of the Sterling Place church of Christ, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes that the Rev. Chas. J. Keevil who quoted our poem, "What We Stand For," as expressive of what his church stands for, as mentioned in last week's paper, is a brother of Joseph Keevil, pastor of our church at Greenpoint, Brooklyn. "Both of his brothers, Joe and John, are staunch Disciples." This, as Brother Harlan suggests, accounts for his having access to such good literature!

—Just as we had closed the paper last week we received a note from Bro. W. H. Rogers, of Swampscott, saying that he was busy on his last $1,000 to complete the payment on the Swampscott church, and saying that "if fifty churches or individuals average $10.00 apiece between now and the 18th of April, it will enable me to end seven months' strenuous campaign with victory." On account of this delay you may not be able to get in the money by the anniversary, which is April 19, but if you can reach him a few days after, it will not be too late. No more heroic struggle has been made to save, not only a church, but our cause, in a given locality, than Brother Rogers has made, and we are delighted to know that his labors are likely to be crowned with success.

—J. A. Holton, who is pastor of the Christian church at Hattiesburg, Miss., writes us that a building of modern style is necessary for that place, the church having come to a point in its history when the situation, which is a strategic point in the evangelization of southeast Mississippi, demands it. While the members are for the present assuming the entire burden of building, any financial aid from those who are disposed to help will be appreciated, and may be paid to A. F. Thomasson, cashier of the First national bank of Hattiesburg. Some of the best people of the town are members, though the church is not very strong numerically; but it is growing, and, already owning their lot, they have decided to proceed with the work of construction of a church home at once.

—The lawsuit instituted by a few members of the Christian church in Tennessee, who are generally known as "antis," has been decided in favor of those who believe in missionary methods. The suit involved the right to property of the Christian church at Newbern, Tenn. The grounds of the complainants were that the use of an organ to aid the song in worship, and co-operation in missionary work through missionary societies are departures from the faith, and the congregation using the same forfeits its right to the church property. A large body of evidence was introduced, and the trial lasted over a week. The anti-progressive brethren were defeated on the issue they raised, but they will doubtless carry the case to the Supreme Court. We shall give fuller particulars of this celebrated suit in our next issue.

—P. C. McFarlane has entered upon his fourth year as pastor at Alameda, Cal. The spiritual tone of the community has been perceptibly raised during that period, and 130 members have been added to the church. During the first three months of this year there have been 25 additions. The church has been repainted inside and out, and other improvements made. So badly hampered is it by small quarters that a new church building must be erected in the near future, when the present chapel will be used for the Sunday-school. During this month the brethren expect to receive from the Church Extension Board the deed to the property, it having been freed from an $1,800 debt during the pastorate of Brother McFarlane, who has added to his laurels by just graduating from Berkeley Bible seminary. Brother McFarlane is the chairman of the local publicity committee of the San Francisco convention.

Children's Day

FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:

1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. II. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.
2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.
3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.

Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

—The following lines from Bro. W. F. Richardson, written from San Diego, Cal., April 10, will interest all our readers. "According to your request, I send you a brief line to let you know that, through the blessing of our Heavenly Father, I am improving in this delightful climate, so that I am very hopeful of returning home at the end of my vacation with my voice in fairly good condition at least. The sunshine and balmy air of San Diego are at this writing all they have been represented, and it is little wonder that southern California has become the Mecca of a host of seekers after health and physical comfort. The crowd of winter tourists has thinned out considerably, and it is yet too early for the host of summer visitors, so that the seaside resorts of the Pacific coast are remarkably quiet at present, making it all the better for those who are here. Bro. W. E. Crabtree, who has been pastor of the church here for ten years, is beloved and honored by his church, and by the whole city. He has borne an active and prominent part in the recent temperance campaign, by means of which the saloons are to be closed on Sunday, and the screens removed from their fronts. I have been rejoiced to read in the papers of the action of Gov. Folk's police commissioners in Kansas City, closing the saloons on Sunday; and of the orders given the officials in your own city that the laws must be enforced. It begins to look as if there were one man in politics who could not be turned aside from his course of honest enforcement of the laws. May his tribe increase. We shall stay here a week longer, and then, after a few days in Los Angeles and vicinity, go to Roswell, N. Mex., to stay a while with our son Clement."

* *

Right to the Point—Cancer of the Nose Cured.

Hobart, Clinton Co., Ky., May 31, 1904.
Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
Dear Sirs—I am glad I can tell that the cancer on my nose is healed up sound and left but little scar. Yours truly, MARY FARMER.

The Dr. D. M. Bye Co., of Indianapolis, have perfected a combination of oils which act specifically on malignant growths. All forms of cancers and tumors (internal and external), also piles, fistula, skin diseases, etc., successfully treated. Don't trifle with life; write at once for free books giving particulars and indisputable evidence. Address the Home Office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

Changes.

D. B. Warren, Osceola to Rainey, Mo.
M. L. Streator, Cleveland to Box 2118, East Side station, Bridgeport, Conn.
C. E. Hunt, Kidder to Braymer, Mo.
Lewis P. Kopp, Danville, Ill., to 3410 Michigan Ave., Kansas City, Mo.
A. Lyle DeJarnette, Des Moines to Colfax, Ia.
M. B. Ingle, Cherokee, Okla., to Harper, Kan.
J. W. Walker, Miller to Elm Creek, Neb.
W. F. Rothenburger, Ashtabula, O., to 140 S. Divinity Hall, Chicago university, Chicago, Ill.
Roy H. Polly, Cromwell to Henderson, Ia.
W. B. Harter, Prescott, Ia., to Greenwood, Neb.
G. B. Van Arsdall, Peoria, Ill., to 1207 Fifth Ave., Cedar Rapids, Ia.
H. L. Ford, Jennings, La., to Moscow, Ida.
W. H. Waggoner, Allerton, Ia., to Bethany, Neb.
J. A. Joyce, McKeesport to Box 1688, Pittsburg, Pa.
G. W. Rogers, Henry, Okla., to Toronto, Kan.
Lew D. Hill, Eureka to Ludlow, Ill.
Wm. Sumpter, Bethany, Neb., to Petoskey, Mich.
E. G. Manley, Columbus to McCune, Kan., R. R. No. 6.
A. K. Wright, Boise, Idaho, to Monrovia, California.
L. C. Howe, Elwood, to 403 N. 16th St., New Castle, Ind.
W. L. Hayden, Edinburg, Pa., to Lowellville, O.
J. E. Dinger, Cedar Rapids, Ia., to Chandler, Okla.
B. Frank Lynn, Mulkeytown, Ill., to 610 Market St., Portsmouth, Ohio.
J. T. Alsup, New Hampton to McFall, Mo.
G. Lolin Eaton, Dewitt, Ia., to Sturgis, S. D.
J. M. Morris, Seattle, to Sumner, Wash.
J. H. Deming, Londonville, to 61 W. Seminary St., Norwalk, O.
T. W. Hancock, Blackburn to Whitesville, Mo.
W. Henry Jones, Palmyra, Mo., to Salida, Col.
J. Wilbern Rose, Brentwood to 205 Monroe St., East San Jose, Cal.

* *

Ministerial Exchange.

E. W. Bowers, of Jefferson, Ia., will have some time for evangelistic work.

Randolph Cook, pastor at Vinita, I. T., can hold two or three meetings this spring if desired.

V. E. Ridenour has an open date for May. His permanent address is 1513 W. 6th avenue, Topeka, Kan.

D. D. Boyle may be addressed by those desiring his evangelistic services after July 1 at Liverpool, Texas.

A young minister desires to preach for two or more churches within fifty miles of St. Louis. Address Box 42, Estherville, Iowa.

Owing to a change of dates Miss Mayme Eisenberger, of Bethany, Mo., is open for engagements as soloist and chorus leader.

W. E. Dorsa, singing evangelist, Corning, Iowa, is at liberty for meetings. Will give recital to help defray expenses of the meetings.

Charles M. Fillmore reports there is a good opening for a homeopathic physician, who is a member of the Christian church, at Carthage, Ohio.

I. N. Grisso, of Plainfield, Indiana, will be at liberty to supply for some church over Sunday, April 30. Phone, wire or write him at once.

The church at Manor, Texas, wants a pastor to locate with them. Would want a man to take up the work at once. Anyone who may wish to correspond with the view of taking the work may address C. M. Bell, Manor, Texas.

A first class paper hanger and painter who is a good Christian church worker can obtain a good job if he will apply to Elder V. R. Rather, Monett, Mo.

R. B. Helser, Fayette, Mo., will have time during the summer or fall to hold one or two short meetings. Churches desiring his services should address him at once.

Married minister, six years' successful experience city and country, 28 years old, well educated, would change to any section. Present salary, $900. Write Christian Minister, 623 East Ave., York, Neb.

Wanted—A man to take the evangelistic work in Woods county, Okla., under the direction of the county board. Salary about $600. Address with references and stamp, L. Z. Lasley, Cor. Sec., Ingersoll, Okla.

Singing Evangelist H. H. Saunders, of Noblesville, Ind., is ready to make dates for summer and fall meetings with pastors or evangelists. He could be had for a few song recitals between now and August on reasonable terms.

There are two good congregations within six miles of each other in Cass county, Ia., that want a minister; good fields. Address J. A. McKenzie, district evangelist, Tabor, Ia., and he will help direct the men to the places.

W. E. Reeves, who has been in the south for some time, engaged temporarily in secular work, is desirous of re-entering the ministry, and would like to correspond with churches in need of a minister. He would accept work with one church or a group of churches co-operating. Correspondents may address him at Eufaula, Ala.

* *

C. W. B. M. in Missouri.

Dear Sisters of the C. W. B. M. in Missouri.—We are rejoiced to see unmistakable signs of steady, vigorous growth and decided advancement in the work all over the state.

Encouraging reports and personal letters are making our hearts glad. Your officers had been praying for and expecting this, believing that if the work were done in earnest faith God would give the increase. Our Lord hath never failed his children who patiently toil in his service.

June and our convention at Marshall will soon be here. We are looking forward with much pleasure to the time. Let each auxiliary try to help the secretary by sending in full reports and, if possible, its apportionment for special work in time to be included in her annual report. We hope for a great convention. Will you see that your society is well represented? Do not fail to send a certified delegate. So much of enthusiasm and helpfulness is gained at these meetings—come and let us enjoy a blessed season of fellowship together.

Lovingly yours,
Mrs. M. M. Goode, Pres.
St. Joseph.

* *

Warning—Brethren, Look Out!

Churches all over the country should be on guard against an impostor, A. H. or C. H. Towns. He is rather tall, straight, weight about 160, black mustache, quite hard of hearing. He claims to be establishing homes for the reform of released prisoners, speaks in all churches in which he can get an opportunity, and makes private solicitations for funds aside from taking a free will offering at close of his talk. Often speaks from the account of Christ dealing with the woman taken in adultery, and tells a touching story of the reform of a desperate prisoner named "Billy." Claims to have a daughter in mission work in St. Louis. Knows many prominent men of various denominations, and has recommendations sufficient to deceive the elect; among these some from our own men such as B. S. Ferrall, Buffalo; E. P. Arthur, Michigan.

He swindled almost all of our Protestant churches here in March. Was arrested, proven a liar in police court, pleaded guilty to public intoxication Feb. 28. The judge, mercifully inclined, gave him 24 hours to get out of the city. He does not claim to be of us, but takes us in with the rest. His work is not confined to this state.

J. A. Wharton,
Pastor Church of Christ.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.

* *

The Gains Continue.

During the first thirteen days of April the Foreign Society received $15,958.39 from the churches, as churches, or a gain over the corresponding time last year of $3,437.56, or about 27 per cent. This is an even better gain than during March. There has been a gain thus far from the churches, as churches, of $9,676.61. It now seems certain that the churches will give more than $100,000 this year. Last year they gave about $90,000.

The total gains on the year, that is from October 1, 1904, to April 13, 1905, amount to over $24,000. If we can gain about $14,000 between this and September 30, we will reach the $250,000.

A. McLean,
F. M. Rains.

Every Large City in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory is Located on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.

This is a reason why you should travel and ship your freight via "The Katy" to Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Waco, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Shawnee, South McAlester and Muskogee.

THE MKT AND Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway

Particulars about rates, time of trains, business chances in the Southwest or any other information you want will be cheerfully furnished on request.

GEORGE MORTON, General Passenger and Ticket Agent.
W. B. GROSECLOSE, General Freight Agent.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

West Virginia.

The great meeting held by Pierce and Brister at Cameron closed with 86 additions. The meeting at Shinnston by W. M. Long and the writer resulted in an organization of 49. The meeting did great good. Brother Long preached two Sundays and the writer two. The whole town was stirred.

The pastors and churches are engaged in a campaign of education for general home missions. We look for the largest offering ever taken in this state for home missions, on May 7. This cause ought to receive the favorable consideration of all lovers of missions. The A. C. M. S. has done so much for West Virginia. Nine years ago when B. L. Smith was elected corresponding secretary, the whole state was paying $84.75; last year the churches gave $1,082.35. This year we are expecting $1,500. This shows the progress. Let every pastor in West Virginia watch May 7 and see that his congregation is in line for the May offering.

Chester Sprague has accepted a call to Morgantown and entered upon his work.

Prof. Bruce L. Kirtchner has located with the church at Martinsburg. He can do a great work there. The pastoral system is helping our churches; we are getting some very strong men to locate in West Virginia and this is building up the work very rapidly.

A. Linkletter.

* * *

Indian Territory.

During the past month I have visited three points in the Creek nation, one in the Choctaw, and thirteen in the Chickasaw. Have organized one church and one Sunday-school, raised in cash and pledges for Indian Territory missions, $284. Arranged to hold several meetings and to have others held, besides keeping up a large correspondence in the interest of the work. S. R. Hawkins, Cor. Sec.

* * *

Southern Illinois.

The ministerial association of the seventh and eighth missionary districts of southern Illinois met in annual convention at Browns, Edwards county, with 33 delegates present; of these 21 are resident pastors. Others in attendance were Knox P. Taylor (Bible institute work), Bloomington; J. A. Clemens (benevolent association), Decatur; G. W. Bince, principal Southern collegiate institute, Albion; D. R. Bebout, president Austin college, Effingham; Miss Bessie Kempshall, singing evangelist, Clay City; T. G. Roberts, evangelist of the eighth district, Carbondale; Mrs. Minnie Dailey, district president C. W. B M., Olney, and Bert McTaggart, president Edwards county Y. P. S. C. E., Bone Gap.

The addresses were strong and the discussions were spirited. The entertainment was royal and the fellowship delightful. The officers for the ensuing year are L. H. Stine, Lawrenceville, president; T. G. Roberts, Carbondale, vice-president; C. C. Garrigues, Albion, secretary and treasurer.

This ministerial association originated in a call "to the preachers, elders and deacons of the church of Christ of Jasper, Effingham, Clay, Richland and Crawford counties" to assemble at Wheeler, July 13 and 14, 1887" for the purpose of an investigation of 'The Word' bearing upon our labors in the vineyard of our Master, better acquaintance and closer fellowship towards each other." G. W. Tate was chosen chairman and F. M. Lollar secretary of the organization formed at this first meeting.

The next annual meering will be held in May, 1906, at Albion, Edwards county. The Albion church desires to have the pleasure of providing entertainment for every minister of our churches in these two districts at this convention. Brethren, remember the month, and plan to come without fail. Let us make this the greatest gathering in the history of this association.

Caspar C. Garrigues, secretary.

Albion, Ill.

* * *

South Dakota News Letter.

R. M. Ainsworth, who lately took the work at Alexandria, reports a hopeful outlook. Evangelist B. B. Burton is in a meeting there at this writing. Miss Park is leading the music. R. D. McCance is in a meeting at Oacoma.

The church at Lead expects soon with the aid of the state secretary to locate a preacher at that place. Lead is an important field and should have a good man.

C. W. Worden, who ministers for the church at Platte, had four added recently. He expects soon to hold a meeting at Castalia.

M. B. Ainsworth and the Aberdeen church have a mind to keep things moving in that goodly city. For several weeks past they have been using the opera house on Sunday nights, and many people who are not in the habit of attending the church have heard the gospel. We understand that H. H. Harmon will assist in a meeting.

The work moves fairly well at Armour. I am preaching to the largest audiences of any time during the present pastorate.

It is reported that the church at Miller has extended an invitation to A. O. Swartwood to continue as pastor. We are glad to hear this. On general principles long pastorates are best.

O. E. Palmer, Cor. Sec.

Armour, S. D.

* * *

Nebraska.

T. A. Lindenmeyer and R. A. Givens began a meeting at Burchard on March 15.——C. F. Martin reports the work at Waco prosperous.

W. B. Harter, of Prescott, Iowa, has accepted a call at Greenwood and will begin about April 23. We are glad to have Brother Harter in the state again.

Two added at Alma by letter. Oscar Sweeney is the pastor.

The meeting at Minden under state evangelists R. F. Whiston and wife brought a number of valuable additions. The outlook is good, Norman will be given a short meeting at the close of Minden meeting in order to get them both ready to support a man.

Burton H. Whiston, brother to our state evangelist, expects to take up work at Cotner university next year. He will locate with one of our nearby churches and do student preaching.——H. L. Denton, of Rising City and Summit, expects to take Bible work at Drake next year.

At the state board meeting in Lincoln much business of importance was transacted. The reports showed that it would take about $97 more money than we had in general fund to pay all obligations to April 1. This is due to failure to remit on the part of some churches that have taken the offering, and on the part of some others that have neglected the matter entirely. Can we afford to let this go on? Remember we are now at the beginning of the last three months of the missionary year, and the work is taking more money at this time than at any time during the year. Are you coming into line soon?

The board also heard reports of the committee on tabernacle, and approved the design submitted as made by Architect R. W. Grant, of Beatrice. The building will be a handsome structure and well adapted to the purposes of the convention. Immediate steps will be taken to collect the pledges made and get others for its construction. It would save money to the board if all those who made pledges by standing at the convention last year, would send in the amount to the secretary, W. A. Baldwin, 1529 S. 18th street, Lincoln, Neb.——The dining hall committee was empowered to construct dining hall on the general plan as reported by them.

The chairman of the program committee reported a most exceptionally strong program. Among the speakers are: Clinton Lockhart, S. D. Dutcher, J. H. O. Smith, Miss Mattie Pounds, Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant, G. W. Muckley, R. H. Waggoner, Geo L. Snively, and others of our own well known state men. It is to be a great convention and the date is August 1-6, 1905.

H. S. Gilliam and wife were at Nelson on March 26. The secretary presented the state work at Hastings on the same date. Over $48 was pledged.——E. M. Johnson reports six additions at Geneva last quarter, four by baptism. Electric lights have been put into the church building, and the work is thriving. Let those good people who directly helped this little band to get on their feet again take notice and rejoice.

N. S. Haynes was to visit old friends and preach at Trumbull, April 9, J. A. Beattie supplying the Lincoln First pulpit that day.——Howard Johnson preached at Trumbull on March 26. W. A. Baldwin.

* * *

Home Missionary Tour.

The writer left Waynesboro, Pa., Saturday, Mar. 25, for a tour of churches in Virginia under the direction of the A. C. M. S., in the interests of the May offering for home missions. Arrived Saturday evening at Oranda and spoke to a good audience Lord's day morning at the Walnut Springs church. W. L. Dudley is the minister and he and his good wife conduct a private school. "Plain living and high thinking" is the idea. In a very plain frame building on a commanding hill for seven years they have conducted this school. Some good brethren think we have too many little schools. I don't yet agree with them. There have been only 32 students enrolled this year, but from this school have gone out four young men who got a start there who are now in the ministry. Two of them, Joseph and George Watson, were reared in the community, and their father, a patriarchial looking man, is a teacher in the Sunday-school. Two brothers are still at home. One says he will stay at home and raise chickens to feed the preachers upon.

Twelve school teachers were also trained at this school, who are succeeding in their line, and a number of young persons were started here who no doubt would never have received an education.

In the afternoon I drove to Strasburg and at night addressed the brethren on home missions. The beloved J. D. Hamaker has fed the flock there for 17 years, and has trained them in missionary work. I was entertained by Bro. A. C.

Stickley, a graduate of Bethany college, and we had pleasant converse about college days and friends. He is an attorney.

My next appointment was at Zion, a country church. S. J. Spiker took good care of me. He is interested in all good works. D. H. Rhodes ministers here. Brother Spiker's horse, named "Clip," is a missionary horse. When Brother Combs, the national secretary, made a visit and rain hindered the people from coming to church, "Clip" took him to hunt up the people and secure pledges.

Tuesday found me at Woodstock, where I was hospitably entertained at the home of Col. E. E. Stickley. He and some of his children were educated at Bethany. The wife of the deceased veteran, L. A. Cutler, has her home there with her daughter, Mrs. Stickley. Addressing the brethren, who were mostly sisters, who assembled here, on Tuesday evening, on Wednesday I journeyed by a longer stage to Charlottesville. Bro. C. R. Sine, a Hiram graduate, has been preaching here about six months. He came here from far Duluth, Minn., and from there brought a wife. The way she is having the church building renovated, I feel that northwestern push, united with Virginia devotion, ought to make things move. Brother Sine showed me the classic university buildings, which are stamped with the genius of Thomas Jefferson. The work is rather difficult in this old university town. We had no appointment, as the churches were joining in a union meeting and Evangelist L. W. Munhall was holding his first service in the armory. I was entertained at the same house with the distinguished evangelist and his wife and daughter, and went to hear him preach. He speaks in a positive, forcible way. He told me of preaching in different churches of Disciples of Christ in Indiana, and of his acquaintance with Chase and Carpenter and Braden and others.

Thursday night I spoke at Gordonsville to a goodly audience, and D. E. Hanna, the minister, says they will take the May offering for home missions. In company with Brother Hanna I visited Gordonsville assembly grounds.

J. A. Hopkins.

Kansas Ministerial Institute.

This institute was held in the church in Le Roy and was fairly well attended by the leading ministers of the state. The town of Le Roy is a little to one side and is not as accessible as some of the larger towns, and it is possible that the attendance might have been larger if the institute had met with some church like the one at Emporia, where it is to meet next year. The program was well rendered by those taking part. In addition to the leading men of the state on the program President Burris A. Jenkins of Kentucky university delivered several very strong and helpful addresses, in fact more than two-thirds of the program was rendered by President Jenkins and Professor Wallace C. Payne, of the Bible chair, Lawrence, Kansas. The program as a whole was quite practical and the subjects discussed very helpful to those present.

One of the most notable features in the Kansas ministry is the fact that the preachers of the state are becoming more permanent. They are becoming identified thoroughly in every respect with the general work of the brotherhood of that state and the cause of Christ is feeling this advantage in the way of more permanent pastorates and larger and better buildings as houses of worship. Kansas as much as any other state needs a ministry which peculiarly belongs to Kansas and which means to live in and go to heaven through this most vigorous and aggressive state in the heart of our nation.

The discussions at the institute indicated some of the vigor of Kansas, especially so when Brother L. H. Koepsel delivered his address on "Freedom's Battle for Christian Liberty." Brother Koepsel had been a Methodist and he seemed to enjoy greatly his present liberty in the ministry, and of course, did not "mince matters" in vigorously expressing the pleasure that he now has as a free man among the churches of Christ.

Brethren Frank Jewett and Sherman Hill both delivered able addresses. L. M. Wiles also read an excellent paper on "Christian Union." There were about 45 ministers present, and all seemed to be delighted and pleased with the instruction that the institute afforded them.

G. A. Hoffmann.

Southwest Missouri Institute.

The church at Monett extends a hearty welcome to the ministerial institute to be held here May 2, 3, 4. No one interested in the plea for the restoration of primitive Christianity can afford to be absent.

Will you not please drop a card to the pastor of this church stating how many will be in your party and when you will arrive here, that we may make the proper arrangements for your entertainment, meet and welcome you, and conduct you to the place assigned? To all who will accommodate us by doing this, we will send a card previous to the meeting making the proper assignment, thus avoiding confusion at the convention.

Robt. Simons, pastor.

Central Illinois Ministerial Institute.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the institute was held at Eureka on April 10 and 11. Through the graciousness of the Arcola church the sessions were held in Eureka in order that the students might have opportunity to hear Pres. Henry Churchill King, who gave four superb addresses. Dr. King is making a real contribution to the religious teaching of our time. His interpretations of the problems of life deal with the fundamentals of the latest in psychology and theology and are so applied to the practical problems of the common experience as to make Christianity in no wise an academic thing, but one of the most vital of principles. His modest bearing, approachability, and good fellowship are most helpful to a body of preachers.

The program was largely practical, dealing with the small church and the Sunday-school problems and was well discussed. One session was given to the topic of revelation more from the theoretical standpoint. The visiting members were royally entertained by the ministerial association of the college and the Eureka church. Officers for next year are: president, J. H. Smart, of Danville; vice-president, C. A. Burton, of Jacksonville; secretary, H. H. Peters, of Rossville. Mr. Peters read a most excellent paper at the institute on "The Social Work of Christian Missions."

A Good Word from Liberty, Mo.

I feel sure that many friends of the Liberty church will rejoice in knowing the good news from this historic church. One year ago, the pastor and his family were looking in vain for a house in which to live. Now they are enjoying one of the most beautiful and complete parsonages in the state. About three years ago J. H. Hardin, then pastor of this church, began agitating the question of a new church home. The ladies' aid society was organized, and began getting money together for furnishing the proposed new church. This society now has $1,600 in its treasury. Six months ago the matter of trying to raise at least $15,000 for the new church was proposed. Yesterday it was reported that $16,400 had been subscribed, and that more was forthcoming. A committe has been appointed to have the old building torn down and removed. Another committee has already engaged Mr. G. W. Kramer, of New York city, to design the new church. Work will be begun as soon as the plans can be completed.

We all feel that the Liberty church is entering upon a new era of usefulness. Brother A. B. Jones, who has for half a century been identified with this church, is really growing young over the success that has attended our effort. The entire congregation is greatly rejoiced.

Robert Graham Frank.

Missouri Lectureship.

It is to-day, April 17, 350 days until the next Missouri state lectureship at Canton. The president is R. G. Frank, of Liberty; the vice-president, M. A. Hart, of Fulton; the executive and program committee, Dr. D. R. Dungan, Canton, J. H. Wright, Paris, and Levi Marshall, Hannibal. The program committee requests brethren to send to the undersigned secretary subjects which might be profitably considered, and to send them at once, so that the program may be prepared at once. Now, fellow preachers, do this, and do it right away. It will be greatly to the interest of the lectureship. Many urged at Columbia that we try to bring the next lectureship up to the old time

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

REUBEN:
HIS BOOK

297 Pages of Humor and Philosophy
In attractive and substantial cloth binding
BY
Morton H. Pemberton

"Reub reminds one a little bit of the late lamented Ben King, who was indeed a lovely soul; but Reub's is rather a broader kind of laugh-making product. . . . .

"His book is already heading the list of 'best sellers' and deserves to go. 'It is good.' "
—St. Louis Republic.

A new book but one that is springing rapidly into popularity, because of its telling wit and humor and its freedom from coarseness.

Everybody Will Enjoy It
All Will Be Benefited By It

PRICE $1.00, POSTPAID.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

standard in attendance and value. This can only be done through the efforts of the preachers over the state. If sufficient interest is manifested in the Canton lectureship, an effort will be made to publish the lectures in book form as in previous years. Why not make the Canton 1906 meeting the largest and best we have ever had? Please let all who are interested send any suggestions and subjects to the secretary immediately, so that he may forward a copy to each member of the committee.

Monroe City, Mo. J. C. Todd, Sec.

* * *

Dedication at Fairfield, Ill.

The dedication of the Christian church at Fairfield, Ill., Lord's day, April 9, 1905, was a most happy and successful affair. This was the 638th church building which L. L. Carpenter has dedicated.

Our congregation erected a neat brick chapel 36x56 feet in size, in 1883, which cost about $3,500. For some years past this building has been too small, and during the past seven months it has been remodeled, enlarged and modernized at an expense of about $3,500. When the work was completed there was an indebtedness of about $1,200, which was provided for with ease on the day of dedication.

The congregation comprises about 325 members, who are zealous of good works. The minister, Ransom DeLoss Brown, has been with the church a little more then two years and deserves much credit for the improvements lately made in the church building. A.

* * *

A Red-Hot Home Missionary Rally.

Our St. Louis churches have just held one of the most enthusiastic and profitable missionary rallies ever held in this city. On Wednesday of last week, the home secretary, B. L. Smith came over bringing with him E. L. Powell, of Louisville, who has been assisting him in holding these rallies in a few of the cities, and John A. Stevens, from the firing-line. In addition to these Bro. J. T. McGarvey came from Carthage, and Bro. L. W. McCreary from East St. Louis; and these, with our local talent, spread before us a magnificent spiritual feast. In the forenoon, Bro. B. L. Smith, presiding, told "The Meaning of this Gathering"; A. J. Marshall, of Maplewood, spoke on "Our Day of Visitation." Other speakers of the forenoon were E. T. McFarland on "What We Have Done;" F. A. Mayhall, on "What We Are Doing"; S. B. Moore, on "What We Should Do"; J. M. Philputt on "The White Harvest"; Jno. A. Stevens on the "Plea adapted to the Field." These were all stirring addresses, and made a helpful forenoon session.

The ladies served luncheon in the church for all who were present, and the services were resumed at two o'clock. F. N. Calvin conducted a most profitable conference on "Some Ways of Creating Home Missionary Enthusiasm in the Churches." There were a dozen speakers, perhaps, and all the speeches were short and pointed. The two leading addresses of the afternoon which stirred all our hearts and lifted us to a high plane of enthusiasm were by L. W. McCreary, of East St. Louis, on "Behold, I set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it," and J. T. McGarvey, of Carthage, on "Why Home Missions?" These young men exhibited both the true missionary spirit, and a high order of ability. An army of such young men among us means much for the cause of home missions.

After a bountiful supper at the church there was a business men's conference on home missions, led by J. H. Allen, president of the Business Men's Association, and participated in by W. H. McClain, W. D. Pittman, J. Q. McCanne and others. The substance of it was that even business men, men of wealth and affairs, must "seek first the kingdom of God, and its righteousness."

The evening addresses were by John A. Stevens, who has been in the employ of the home board for 14 years, and who spoke out of the abundance of his experience. He is a man who "does things" as Brother Powell said, and whose words are entitled to greater attention on that account. The address of Brother Powell was a most eloquent and stirring appeal for the evangelization of America, based on the adaptation of our work as religious reformers to the genius and spirit of American institutions. He addressed a fine audience in the splendid auditorium of the Union avenue Christian church, where all the services were held.

It was a great day for home missions in St. Louis, and we shall be disappointed if our churches do not reach high-water mark in their May offerings. The meeting showed that we have all the elements of heroism, and self-denial, and daring, in home missions that are necessary for the greatest enthusiasm. The addresses also brought out the fact that now is the time for the Disciples of Christ to strike in order to entrench themselves and their plea of New Testament Christianity more firmly in our own great country. Let this fact be borne in mind in preparing for the May offering for home missions.

* * *

The Christian-Evangelist Special to the San Francisco Convention.

It will be a great delight to go on the Christian-Evangelist Special to the San Francisco convention on Aug. 17-24. This trip has been organized with a view to the comfort, enjoyment and restfulness of all who go with us. Every detail will have special care; your meals, sleeping arrangements, your baggage, etc., will have special attention.

The outward trip will be by the way of the Burlington Route to Denver, and the Midland to Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, and much of the grandest mountain scenery in the world.

Then on to Salt Lake City, and from there southwest over the new railroad to Los Angeles, where we will spend two days among the Orange Groves, the most beautiful country in the world. We shall then go northward to San Francisco for the convention, from the convention on to Portland, where the Lewis & Clark Exposition can be visited. Then the itinerary will be through Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, by way of the National Park, then through Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, and home. Of course it is not necessary to take the northern route unless you desire it, but the expense will be only $6 more than to return direct from San Francisco.

There will be stop-overs at all important points, such as Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, Salt Lake City, etc., where the most wonderful scenery of the American continent will delight all. In addition, the National Convention at San Francisco is sufficient of itself and will be worth a trip across the mountains to the Pacific Coast. This trip will be the opportunity of a lifetime to view the most remarkable scenery in the world. The railroad fare for this round trip will be from Kansas City and return, $56; from St. Louis and return, $63.50; from Chicago and return, $67.50. Double berth in tourist sleepers for the round trip will cost about $6 per person from Kansa City, $6.50 from St. Louis, and just twice this amount for Pullman sleepers. A large number of persons have already indicated their desire to take this opportunity to see the great West.

All the above tickets are good for ninety days, and you can stop over as long as you please west of Denver, Cheyenne and Billings at any place you desire, providing you get back within ninety days.

The trip will be as follows: We leave St. Louis on Aug. 10 at 9 P. M.; Kansas City, Aug. 11, 8:30 A. M.; Denver, Aug. 12, 5 A. M. Arrive at Colorado Springs 7:30 A. M., leave 11:30 A. M.; Glenwood Springs 8 P. M., leave 9:30 P. M. Arrive at Salt Lake, Aug. 13, 9 A. M., leave 3 P. M. Arrive at Los Angeles, Aug. 15, 8 A. M., leave Aug. 17, 6 A. M. Arrive at San Francisco, Aug. 17, 8 P. M. This is the way to go to see all that is grand and beautiful in a single trip. After the convention you can come home direct in a little more than three days. Or you can go north by way of Portland and stop a day or as long as you wish at the Lewis & Clark Exposition, then return home as indicated above. If, however, you would rather take the Oregon short line, you can do so, or if you wish to come home over a route still further north by the way of St. Paul, you can do so without additional cost. Do not forget that your tickets will be good for ninety days, and you can stop over at any point you wish. For further particulars write at once

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST SPECIAL,
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

* * *

Dedication at Belmont, Kansas.

On April 2 I assisted the brethren in dedicating their splendid new church building, which, all complete and nicely furnished, cost about $1,650. There remained about $600 unprovided for, but the whole amount was easily raised and the building duly set apart to the praise of God. C. G. Blakeslee, of Clearwater, Kan., is the beloved minister.

C. W. Van Dolah.

Hutchinson, Kan.

* * *

Three Years at Maplewood.

The undersigned has preached three years for the Maplewood congregation in St. Louis, Mo. There were 67 names on the roll when I began, there are 140 now. The average attendance in the Bible-school was 40 then, it is 87 now. In this time we built our new house of worship and the congregation is full of hope and promise. There were nine added on the last Lord's day of my work. The church has called Brother A. J. Marshall and he has preached three Lord's days with six additions. Brother Marshall already has his work well in hand and there is every indication of a rapid growth in the future. G. A. Hoffmann.

For the Busy Minister
A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE
Minister's Pastoral Record and Memorandum.
FITS THE VEST-POCKET.
Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, April 14.—Under the direction of J. N. Jessup, pastor of the First church, the writer held a meeting of 12 days in the northwest part of the city in a hall where members of the First church have been conducting a Sunday-school several years. Immediate result of the meeting, 10 additions: three by confession, three from the Baptists and four by statement. The Second Christian church is now being organized and will continue meeting in the same hall for the present.—D. T. STANLEY.

De Queen, April 12.—One confession at regular services from Sunday-school. More to follow.—W. O. BREEDEN.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington, April 14.—Three additions Lord's day at H street Christian church—one by confession, one from another communion and one by letter. Baptized another at prayer-meeting last evening. All goes well, with increasing interest in all services.—J. MURRAY TAYLOR.

CALIFORNIA.

Ukiah, April 6.—J. V. Updike was with us 18 days; 45 additions—40 confessions. A heavy rain storm prevailed the first week of the meeting and hindered many from hearing the truth.—OTHA WILKINSON.

Fullerton, April 10.—Meeting in third week with 55 added. House packed at every service and great interest. Continue over another Sunday. We had our first day of Sunday-school yesterday. Our mark was at 50 and 82 were present. There were 12 classes formed. C. C. Chapman is superintendent. I am confident we will have at least 75 to organize church with.—SUMNER T. MARTIN AND J. WALTER WILSON, evangelists.

COLORADO.

Denver, April 14.—The hand of fellowship was extended to four persons Lord's day morning, April 9. Two were baptized Wednesday evening, April 12. The same evening the hand of fellowship was extended to three.—B. B. TYLER.

INDIANA.

Columbus.—A further word about our meeting held recently in the Tabernacle church. The work of the evangelists was satisfactory to an eminent degree. W. H. Book, of Martinsville, Va., was the preacher. He sought every opportunity to strengthen the work of the pastor and his place with the church and the community. The singing was led by Leonard Daugherty. One hundred and seven were added by baptism, letter and statement. In all, the church and its departments were greatly strengthened by this effort.—HARVEY H. HARMON.

Angola, April 12.—I lately closed a three weeks' meeting at Uniontown, Pa. We are here in a meeting with Vernon Stauffer and congregation. Angola is a model town, has a model college, a model congregation and a model minister. We ought to have a model meeting. Brother Daugherty is leading the singing.—JAMES SMALL.

Wabash, April 10.—Home forces closed meeting last night with 69 additions, viz.: Baptisms, 37, from Baptists, 6, United Brethren, 4, Methodist Protestant, 3, Dunkards, 4, New Lights, 1, by letter and statement, 14, total 69. —E. F. DAUGHERTY, pastor.

Francisville.—In a three weeks' meeting there were 58 additions, 42 confessions and baptisms, and the church is greatly strengthened. Clarke family, evangelists.—AMOS K. CLARKE.

Huntington.—Cephas Shelburne reports six additions to the church since his last report in March. Brother Shelburne is preaching a series of doctrinal sermons, and the building will not hold the people who desire to hear.

Whitewater, April 14.—Meeeing at Spartanburg closed Sunday night. Results in additions, 14. Began here Monday night. Pastor Willis M. Cunningham, who is also pastor at Lynn, at Spartanburg and here, is doing the preaching. Total results at the two other places, 29. We hope for several additions here.—GUY B. WILLIAMSON & WIFE, singers.

Terre Haute, April 10.—One confession at the College avenue church. Yesterday was our best day since I have been with this church.—LEONARD V. BARBRE.

ILLINOIS.

Bellmont, April 9.—Twenty days' meeting by Evangelist W. H. Anderson, of Fithian, Ill., closed here last night. Our village has been greatly stirred, our church wonderfully blessed and materially strengthened. Thirty-two were added—13 confessions, some from New Lights and M. E. Briefly it has been a great meeting for us and we feel we can now do all things through Christ.—B. FRENCH, JR., elder.

Chicago, April 9.—Six additions in one week at Monroe street, Brother Myers, of Fort Worth, Texas, evangelist.

Chicago Heights, April 10.—We had splendid audiences yesterday and one young man united with us. He was formerly a Methodist. Brother Shearer will be with us in May and June for a revival meeting.—HARRY E. TUCKER.

Greenview, April 10.—We began a meeting here yesterday. Our time is taken until about first of July. We are at liberty to make dates any time after that. We prefer several months ahead. It gives a better chance for preparation.—LAWRENCE AND EDWARD WRIGHT.

IOWA.

Mason City, April 8.—We have received 15 additions in the last three weeks, mostly by confession. Civic federation won in our city election recently and we believe we have the cleanest city of its size in Iowa.—W. W. BURKS.

Knoxville, April 13 —Work moving along. Five more were received by statement last Lord's day, making 42 in the past four months of soul-winning campaign.—F. E. DAY, pastor.

Dallas Center, April 13.—The work is moving along in spite of opposition. Last Sunday morning we had seven additions: one confession, one reclaimed, one by statement and four from the Progressive Brethren chnrch. All parties were well acquainted with the church into which they came. More are coming.—W. E. GRAY.

Archer, April 11.—Just closed a four weeks' meeting. There were 17 additions, the church and Sunday-school re-organized and the work is moving on now. Great interest was taken, business houses closed and attended the meeting.—J. P. CHILDS, evangelist.

Bloomfield, April 3.—We held a short meeting with home forces following our dedication, which resulted in 23 additions to the congregation. All are married people except three. Our work is moving nicely. Success to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.—D. G. WICKIZER.

Sioux City, April 10.—Nine additions Sunday night.—J. K. BALLOU.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Okmulgee, April 14.—We began a series of evangelistic services here Sunday, April 9, and in the three evening services held we have had six additions, two of them being confessions. Frank L. Van Voorhis, the pastor, is preaching, and we couldn't have brighter prospects.—RAY E. DEW, singing evangelists.

KANSAS.

Topeka, April 13.—Our meeting has been in progress nine days, 25 additions to date. The outlook is good.—H. A. NORTHCUTT, evangelist, V. E. RIDENOUR, singer, CHAS. A. FINCH, pastor.

Sedgwick, April 14.—One more last night, 23 so far. Will run another week. S. F. Wrigley and wife will fill this pulpit full time. I am raising his salary.—N. A. STULL, evangelist.

Lawrence.—The North Lawrence church has decided to commence a meeting May 7 with Neal Overman, of Topeka, as evangelist, assisted by our pastor, W. T. Clarkson. The church is in the best condition it has been in its history and we look for a good meeting. Five new members were added to the Christian Endeavor society recently, and the membership has doubled since we organized five months ago. The Student volunteer band of the State university will conduct the next missionary meeting of the Christian Endeavor society. Bro. A. Holmes, of Ann Arbor, Mich., is assisting the pastor, C. L. Milton, at the First church. They have had 37 additions in three weeks.

Geuda Springs, April 10.—Evangelist J. A. Tabor, of Ponca City, Okla., assisted by Mrs. Nellie McPherson Moore, of Watonga, Okla., has just closed a meeting here with 22 additions: 14 confessions, three from the Dunkards, one from the Baptists and four reclaimed. This was a great meeting considering the size of the place and the opposition we had. The church at this place was dedicated Nov. 27, 1904, by M. Lee Sorey. Brother Tabor is preaching for us half time until we can secure a minister. Since he began preaching in February, 29 have been received into the church. This is a place of about 300 inhabitants and

CURE YOUR OWN KIDNEY

And Bladder Disease at Home at Small Cost—One Who Did Gladly Tells You How.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock (the Clothier), East Hampton, Conn., says if any suffering man or woman will send him their address, he will, without any charge whatever, direct them to the perfect cure he so successfully used. We advise every one to take advantage of this free offer, for Mr. Hitchcock is positive it will result in their permanent cure.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

A Good Physician, married and a member of the Christian Church, can learn of a fine opening by addressing H. D. Williams, Canton, Mo.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. Address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

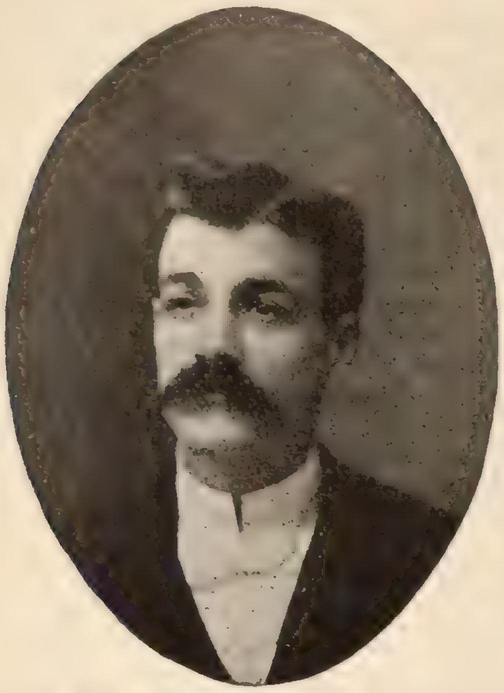
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

four saloons. The saloon people all came to hear Brother Tabor, the first time, it is said, that they have been known to attend church regularly.—Annie Newland.

Manhattan, April 11.—The work is moving along nicely, audiences are large and attentive. Since I moved here six weeks ago there have been three confessions and one from the Adventists. The prospects are bright for many more additions.—J. Edward Cresmer, pastor.

Potwin, April 11.—Thirty-nine were added at Fall River. A Christian Endeavor society was organized with 20 members. There were nine confessions here.—Jas. S. Beem, evangelist.

Yates Center, April 11.—Our meeting of five weeks' duration, closed Friday night with 77 additions (76 already reported in the Christian-Evangelist). Of this number about 60 were by confession and baptism; of the other 17 some had been members of the church at other places and were received by letter or statement and a few were baptized believers from other organizations. Careful preparation had been made by the local congregation for this meeting under the leadership of the pastor, Brother Slick. It was preceded by a number of evenings of prayer, and everything a consecrated people could do, was done to make ready for the meeting. Bro. R. A. Omer, of Camp Point, Ill., did the preaching. The song service was led by Bro. L. D. Sprague, of California, Mo. He organized a large chorus. The new church building, seating about 700 people, was taxed to its utmost capacity and on Sunday evenings numbers were turned away.—G. H. Lamb, elder.



E. S. Muckley, A. C. M. S. Evangelist.

Lincoln, April 15.—Closed a 16 days' meeting in the country; 12 additions—five baptized and seven from other churches. Five others will unite later. A few weeks ago I preached two sermons at Galesburg, with two confessions and offering for school of the evangelists. —N. Ferd Engle.

KENTUCKY.

Owensboro, March 11.—Eight additions by confession and baptism at regular services here last Sunday. The Harlow-St. John meeting begins with us April 30. We are making extensive preparations and expect a great meeting.—R. H. Crossfield.

Greenup, April 12.—J. M. Helm, of Hillsboro, O., has just closed one of the most interesting meetings ever held here. There were 41 additions—31 by confession and 10 by letter and statement. The entire church was moved perhaps as never before.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Everett, April 10.—Since the last meeting there have been five confessions, four baptisms and six additions to our church. God is working steadily in every department of the work here.—A. T. June.

MICHIGAN.

Adrian, April 11.—I recently held an 18 days' meeting at Owosso with 32 added, nearly all baptisms. J. H. Coultard has done a good work there. The work in this conservative mission field is prospering and we rejoice in the continual growth of the kingdom.—W. H. Kindred.

MINNESOTA.

Rochester, April 14.—C. R. Neel, of St. Paul, is in a meeting here. Two confessions.

MISSOURI.

Grant City, April 10.—Two added yesterday, five in last two Lord's days.—W. L. Harris, pastor.

Weaubleau, April 7.—J. D. Babb has just closed a two weeks' meeting at Hermitage, the county seat of Hickory county. There were seven confessions and a church organized with 20 members. He also organized a Christian Endeavor with 40 members. The whole town was stirred and much good done. All denominations came and took part in the meetings and prejudice was overcome.—S. E. Hendrickson.

Braymer, April 11.—Three additions since last report, two at Braymer and one at Mt. Olive. The Bible-school has increased about 30 per cent since I began my work at Braymer. —C. E. Hunt.

Troy.—My meeting here closed with 35 baptisms and nine other additions, making 44 in all. Outlook for the cause is encouraging indeed.—E. J. Lampton.

Elsberry, April 8.—During the month of March at Montgomery City we had 16 added by baptism, two restored and five by letter. We also organized a young people's society with about 50 members. At Elsberry we had one added by baptism and two by letter. Our work at both places is growing in interest. The ladies have taken up the work of the C. W. B. M. with renewed interest.—W. A. Meloan.

Purdy, April 10.—Fifty-three additions up to date. One very valuable addition last night, an ex-P. M. preacher. Having become disgusted with sectarianism quit professing religion some time ago. He was pursuaded to come and hear the word of God, was deeply affected the first night, fully convinced that he had found the right way, made the confession last night and was baptized. Came up out of the water and went on his way rejoicing. Two of the leading physicians have been baptized and, with their wives, have united with us. Several prominent men and women have come to us from the Baptists, M. E.'s, P. M.'s and Presbyterians. Expect others before meeting closes.—J. P. Haner, evangelist.

Gallatin, April 11.—Elder Chas. E. Freeman, of King City, begins a meeting for us April 24. We are in the midst of a Y. M. C. A. revival now.—C. W. Comstock.

Chillicothe, April 13.—Three confessions at our prayer-meeting last night. They were baptized "the same hour of the night."—James N. Crutcher.

Eagleville, April 15.—Eight immersed at Troy, Kan., April 2.—Thomas H. Popplewell.

Monett, April 10.—Net gain last month, 7; collections doubled; congregation more than doubled; every department doing well.—R. Simons, pastor.

Memphis, April 15.—Brother M. J. Nicoson closed his second year's work, the first Sunday in this month. In the two years we have had 98 additions, making a net gain of 74 members. The Bible-school had the largest attendance last year in its history. We raised for all purposes last year $2,318.38. We are well pleased with Brother Nicoson and his excellent wife.—J. M. Jayne, elder.

NEBRASKA.

Benkelman, April 12.—The recent meeting at Pekin, Ill., resulted in 70 additions to the church. This field is considered one of the most difficult in Illinois.—Charles E. McVay, singing evangelist.

Bee.—I am in a meeting with Edward Longman. Three confessions.—Edward Clutter.

NEW YORK.

Troy, April 10.—The Third avenue church has just closed a meeting conducted by Evangelist S. J. Corey. There were 12 baptisms and two accessions by statement. Brother Corey's preaching was a great help to the church. A hopeful spirit prevails.—C. C. Waite.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Wilson, April 16.—Seventy-five additions in 18 days at First church, where J. Boyd Jones is the minister. We expect splendid results from a meeting about to begin at Greenville.—Richard S. Martin.

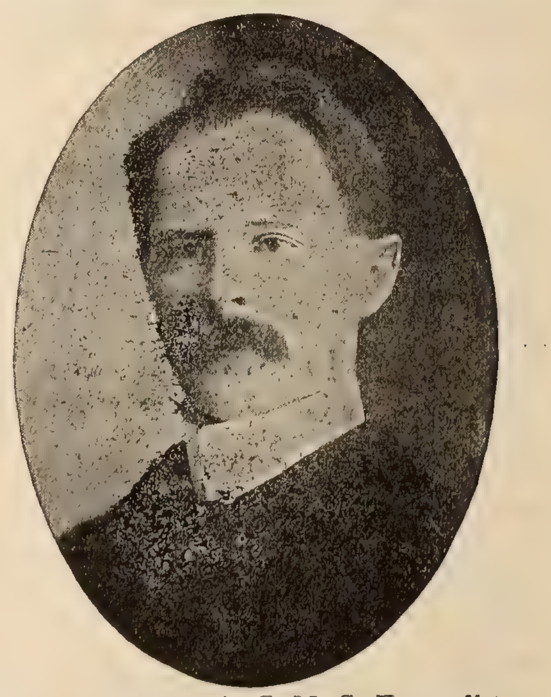
OKLAHOMA.

Stroud, April 10.—Six added at regular service yesterday—five by statement and baptism. The work is improving much.—C. E. Swartz, Cushing, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Ellwood City, April 10.—Our meeting still continues, with an interest never seen in any meeting held in this town; many are coming from the denominations; 13 confessions since last report, making 59 in all; 48 by primary obedience and 11 by statement. We shall continue for a few days longer.—Ferd F. Schultz, minister.

Scranton, April 8.—Eight baptisms at the Dunmore Christian church since January 1. The March offering was three times what it was last year. Five hundred dollars has recently been raised on our debt, the ladies' aid paying $100 of this amount and the Junior society $50. This last named organization, composed of 83 children, has given for the support of their orphan in India and for other purposes more than $100 since October 1. The Sunday-school has lately taken on new life and is a third larger than it was a few months ago. The outlook for the church is very encouraging.—Richard Bagby, minister.



J. P. Rowlison, A. C. M. S. Evangelist.

Newcastle, April 14.—Closed a four week's meeting with the church here last night. There were 24 added—18 by baptism and six otherwise. H. E. Stafford is pastor here. Herron

(Continued on page 521.)

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

STILLMAN.

Sister Frances Stillman, nee Dutcher, wife of Bro. John Stillman, departed this life at the age of 30, March 19, 1905. She died as she had lived, in the triumphs of a living faith. Funeral services were held from the Christian church.

Eldon, Mo. S. J. VANCE, pastor.

MARTS.

John C. Marts, born April 6, 1842, died March 22, 1905, aged 62 years, 11 months, 16 days. He was for a number of years a member of the Christian church at Palmyra, and for ten years was an elder of that church. He is survived by a wife, four children, one brother and two sisters. Funeral services were conducted from the Marts' residence by the writer. A. E. MEEK.

Milwood, Ohio.

JOHNSON.

Jeremiah R. Johnson was born near Osceola, Clarke county, Iowa, May 20, 1860. When about twenty-seven years of age he moved to McLean county, Illinois, where, in the village of Lytleville, he obeyed the gospel in 1888, under the preaching of one of the students of Eureka college. With him there was no half-hearted enlistment. The very next day after his baptism he talked with his brother about giving himself to the ministry and made the decision to devote himself to that work. Preparing himself for college, he continued working by the month and laying by money that he earned until the winter of 1890, when he entered Eureka, where he continued two years. It was during these days that the writer of these lines met the rugged man of God. I well remember my first impressions of his life. It could be said of J. R. Johnson that God made him on a big last. Not only was he of marked strength physically, but he had within him the elements of the really great. Though advanced in years and having been denied many earlier educational opportunities, he took up the work in the lower branches without any cowardly sense of humiliation, and by his manliness in this regard commanded the respect of even the most advanced student.

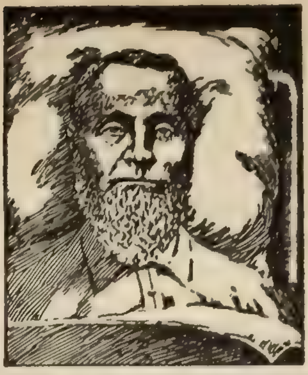
Brother Johnson returned to Iowa and took up regular work with the church at Volga. During this pastorate he held his first protracted meeting at Pleasant Grove, with 114 additions. Following the Volga pastorate, he spent one year each in Redding and Cromwell, and from the latter point came to Des Moines and entered Drake university. His thought was to complete his education. Under many difficulties he persevered in this ambition, and graduated with the class of 1902, receiving the degree of A. B. In June, 1903, he received the additional B. D. degree. All through his college days he continued his faithful heralding of the cross of Christ. He was pre-eminently a Bible preacher. He taught the people the simple things of the word of God. He won men to Christ and not to himself. While in Drake he was about three years with the congregation at Kent. During this time there were about 120 added to the church and their new building was erected. Later he spent one year preaching half-time at Mitchellville and half-time at Ontario, with some 50 additions at each place. After his graduation he served for a time as state evangelist under the I. C. C., and then located at Greenfield, Iowa. From Greenfield he turned to Harlan, in December of last year. From the latter field he resigned very recently with the thought of returning to Des Moines.

March 6, 1895, Brother Johnson was united in marriage with Miss Rose Curtis, of Bloomington, Illinois. To this union six children have been born, five of whom remain to share their mother's grief on the one hand, and to be her strength and inspiration on the other. In all her husband's labors and sacrifices Sister Johnson has shared fully. This hour of sorrow may well bear to her the sacred comfort of the thought of loving loyalty to the one she mourns.

In addition to his wife and little ones, our brother is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Nancy B. Dutton, of Des Moines, and Mrs. Ellen Pollock, of Leslie, Iowa; and by three brothers, F. M. Johnson, of Ottumwa, Iowa, S. A. Johnson, of Osceola, Iowa, and W. S. Johnson, of Des Moines.

The manner of our brother's death need not be enlarged upon. In the wreck hear Wiota, Iowa, Feb. 20, 1905, the end come. A strong man closed his labors. A true and generous friend and loving brother turned from many of us who loved to greet him here. A faithful husband and father led the way to the home land of our God. A loyal minister of Christ entered the presence of his Lord.

CHAS. S. MEDBURY.



I CURED MY RUPTURE

I Will Show You How to Cure Yours FREE.

I was helpless and bed-ridden for years from a double rupture. No truss could hold. Doctors said I would die if not operated on. I fooled them all and cured myself by a simple discovery. I will send the cure free by mail if you write for it. It cured me and has since cured thousands. It will cure you. Write to-day. Capt. W. A. Collings, Box 609, Watertown, N. Y.

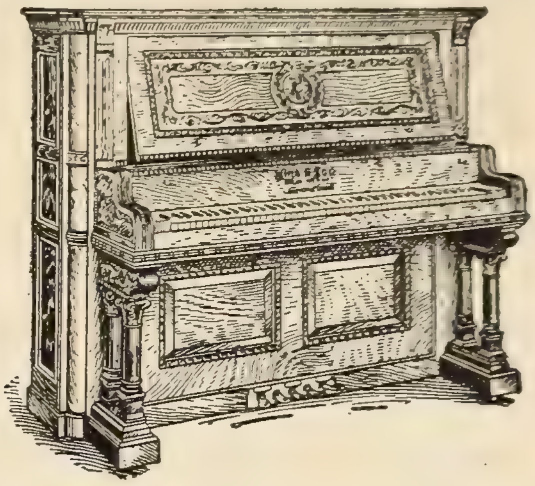
A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

WING PIANOS
Are Sold Direct From the Factory, and in No Other Way

You Save from $75 to $200

When you buy a Wing Piano, you buy at wholesale. You pay the actual cost of making it with only our wholesale profit added. When you buy a piano, as many still do—at retail—you pay the retail dealer's store rent and other expenses. You pay his profit and the commission or salary of the agents or salesmen he employs—all these on top of what the dealer himself has to pay to the manufacturer. The retail profit on a piano is from $75 to $200. Isn't this worth saving?



SENT ON TRIAL
Anywhere We Pay Freight No Money in Advance

We will place a Wing Piano in any home in the United States on trial, without asking for any advance payment or deposit. We pay the freight and all other charges in advance. There is nothing to be paid either before the piano is sent or when it is received. If the piano is not satisfactory after 20 days' trial in your home, we take it back entirely at our expense. You pay us nothing, and are under no more obligation to keep the piano than if you were examining it at our factory. There can be absolutely no risk or expense to you.

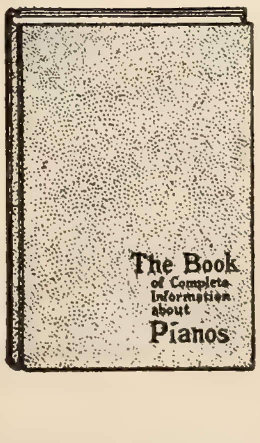
Do not imagine that it is impossible for us to do as we say. Our system is so perfect that we can without any trouble deliver a piano in the smallest town in any part of the United States just as easily as we can in New York City, and with absolutely no trouble or annoyance to you, and without anything being paid in advance or on arrival either for freight or any other expense. We take old pianos and organs in exchange. A guarantee for 12 years against any defect in tone, action, workmanship or material is given with every Wing Piano.

Small, Easy Monthly Payments

In 37 years over 40,000 Wing Pianos have been manufactured and sold. They are recommended by seven governors of States, by musical colleges and schools, by prominent orchestra leaders, music teachers and musicians. Thousands of these pianos are in your own State, some of them undoubtedly in your very neighborhood. Our catalogue contains nemes and addresses.

Mandolin, Guitar, Harp, Zither, Banjo—The tones of any or all of these instruments may be reproduced perfectly by any ordinary player on the piano by means of our Instrumental Attachment. This improvement is patented by us and cannot be had in any other piano. WING ORGANS are made with the same care and sold in the same way as Wing Pianos. Separate organ catalogue sent on request.

You Need This Book
If You Intend to Buy a Piano—No Matter What Make



A book—not a catalogue—that gives you all the information possessed by experts. It tells about the different materials used in the different parts of a piano; the way the different parts are put together, what causes pianos to get out of order and in fact is a complete encyclopedia. It makes the selection of a piano easy. If read carefully, it will make you a judge of tone, action, workmanship and finish It tells you how to test a piano and how to tell good from bad. It is absolutely the only book of its kind ever published. It contains 156 large pages and hundreds of illustrations, all devoted to piano construction. Its name is "The Book of Complete Information About Pianos." We send it free to anyone wishing to buy a piano. All you have to do is to send us your name and address.

Send a Postal To-day while you think of it, just giving your name and address or send us the attached coupon and the valuable book of information, also full particulars about the WING PIANO, with prices, terms of payment, etc., will be sent to you promptly by mail.

WING & SON, 351-398 W. 13th St, New York
1868—37th Year—1905

Cut or tear out this coupon and mail to us, after writing your name and address at bottom. We will promptly mail book and other information.

WING & SON
351-398 W. 13th
St., New York

Send to the name and address written below, the Book of Complete Information about Pianos, also prices and terms of payment on Wing Pianos.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

April 26, 1905.

HOW THE WEAK MAY BECOME STRONG.

But they that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint.—Isaiah 40:31.

The lesson for this evening's study is one of great practical value because of the fact that we all feel the need of moral and spiritual strength, in a larger measure, in order to resist the temptations, bear the burdens, and perform the duties, of our Christian life. The question of how we may increase or renew our strength is therefore one of vital concern to all of us.

The Source of Strength. The text suggests that Jehovah is the source of our strength. This is in harmony with all Bible teaching on the subject. (Read Psalm 27.) So, also, teaches the Apostle Paul. (See Ephesians 6:10.) [Members might be asked to recite other passages in which the same truth is taught.] All our experience corroborates this scriptural teaching. In ourselves we are weak; in Jehovah of the Old Testament, and the Lord of the New Testament, alone, are we strong.

How This Strength is Imparted to Us. The method as expressed in the text above is to "wait for Jehovah." This waiting upon or for Jehovah implies: (1) Believing on him (Heb. 11:6); (2) and obeying the will of God, as far as we understand it (Matt. 7:24-27); (3) Prayer (Eph. 6:18). By waiting upon the Lord in faith, obedience, and prayer we shall undoubtedly renew and daily increase our spiritual strength. Another important method of increasing our spiritual power, which is implied in the foregoing text, is a faithful attendance upon the religious services of the church. (Heb. 10:25.) Herein many church members fail, and in consequence become weak, and many fall by the way. Of course, we cannot do the will of God until we know his will, and this implies Bible study, which many church members are neglecting, and so remain weaklings instead of being strong and robust Christians. (2 Tim. 3:16.)

Results of Renewal of Strength. Three things are mentioned: (1) "They shall mount up with wings as eagles"; (2) "They shall run, and not be weary"; (3) "They shall walk, and not faint." This may seem like a descending climax, but it is not. It is glorious, of course, to soar on the eagle wings of faith, high in the spiritual empyrean. It is harder, perhaps, to "run" on all the errands of Christian service, "and not be weary"; but hardest of all, perhaps, is the faithful plodding, in the path of Christian duty, with no wings to soar, with no swift feet to run, and so to content oneself with such slow progress as is possible, in our condition, "and not faint."

Prayer. O God, our Father, we are weak, but Thou art strong! We thank Thee that Thou hast put Thy strength over against our weakness, and hast made it available for our use. So strengthen us, we beseech Thee, with might, by Thy Spirit in the inner man, that we may be able to perform whatever tasks Thou hast laid, or may lay upon us, and to come off victors at last, through Him who loved us, and gave Himself for us. In His name. Amen.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

April 30, 1905.

PRAYER FOR MISSIONS AT HOME AND ABROAD.—1 Tim. 2:1-8.

For the Leader.

Prayer is the Christian's opportunity. How we pull along through the trials and troubles of this world, seemingly never thinking that within so easy reach is a throne of grace and mercy! We can come to this mercy seat and pour out our souls before the Lord. He will hear. He will abundantly answer. If we are weak, he will supply strength. If we are tempted, he will make us able to bear it. If we are poor in spirit, he will make us rich, for the Son has said of those that thirst after righteousness that they shall be satisfied. If the day seems dark and dreary, prayer will bring out the sunshine. The storms will all roll by to him who has learned the secret of prayer. And, turning away from the individual self, what help the church may receive from prayer! She need not famish in the desert. She may be refreshed from the presence of the Lord. We should pray for Zion. Her missionaries should be borne up to the throne in our prayers. No opposition of the world has been able to overcome a praying church.

For the Members.

1. To pray for missionaries at all is a matter of first consideration. Why this? Will not God take care of his work? And will not the missionaries do just the same work without as with our prayers? Are we not too much taken up with the things of the world to pray? No doubt. It is this one thing of being taken up with the things of the world that first causes us to neglect; then it causes us to forget; then we doubt; then the spirit of prayer seems unreasonable to us.

2. Prayer is, like religion, too nearly a universal thing to be doubted; that is, it is too close akin to the human heart everywhere to be swept aside without a candid hearing. Why do men everywhere pray? In religion, this is taken as an argument for the place of prayer in our nature and in the plan of God. Did a devil plant this nature in man? Is it there save by divine planting? Does not God know about that which has been the sheet anchor of all the tribes of men? Surely it thus carries with it its own justification as of God.

3. The wish of the writer in Timothy that men everywhere pray, lifting up holy hands, is no more universal in its application than the desire upon the part of people to everywhere pray. In trouble it is a comfort. In perplexity it brings the solution. In sin it pours out the heart and relieves it of its burden. When without friends it keeps a door open in heaven from which we can feel that help is near. Where men are without the light of the cross they pray, but the darkness that covers the soul is pathetic. Shall we whose souls are lighted despise that light? Shall we let the men of heathen darkness rise up in the day of judgment and condemn us?

4. Our missionaries in the foreign fields are praying without ceasing for the churches at home. The converts they make to the dear Lord are praying for us. They tell us they could not go forward without the help that prayer brings. Then on this side shall we who hold the life-line cease to pray? The individual Christians who pray love most the thought of the fellowship in Christ. They follow the workers abroad with an interest born of heaven. The churches that pray often and earnestly for the missionaries are the growing and happy churches. They have meat to eat that the cold, skeptical one knows not of. Our missionaries in the home fields are in as sore need of prayer as those upon the field. We pray afar off many times and forget the heroic workers that are near. Let us study until we know the names of some missionaries at home and abroad, and then let us pray for them every day. Our society will thus grow strong. The problem of our spiritual health will be solved.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Oh, Lord, help me to pray more that I may live to honor Thee with a purer life.

DAILY READINGS.

M.	Commanded by Christ.	Luke 10:1-12.
T.	Taught by the Spirit.	Rom. 8:22-27.
W.	For missionaries.	Acts 13:1-3.
T.	Part of our warfare.	Eph. 6:17-20.
F.	"Thy kingdom come."	Matt. 6:5-13.
S.	Against foes of missions.	Rom. 15:30-33.
S.	Topic—Prayer for missions, at home and abroad.	1 Tim. 2:1-8.

* * *

There is no Disease on Earth

but what can be cured if treated in time and the proper remedy is used. Medical authorities have known for a long time that the berry of the Saw Palmetto is one of the best remedial agents known. Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine) is made from a combination of Palmetto berries and seven other vegetable drugs of well known curative properties, and the remedy is meeting with a hitherto unheard of success in the cure of all diseases of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bladder, and the minor ailments that are brought on by diseases of the mucous membrane and impure blood. This remedy works in harmony with nature and the Vernal Remedy Company, of Le Roy, N. Y., will cheerfully send you, free of charge, a trial bottle and booklet. Do not send any money as they wish to convince you first that the remedy is all or more than they claim for it. It is also sold by druggists everywhere.

1844 TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT 1905
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

The approved "effervescent" relief for

HEADACHES and INDIGESTION

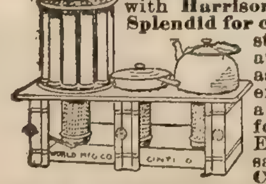
Sold on merit more than 60 years.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

WONDERFUL STOVE—BIG MONEY MAKER!



BURNS 90% AIR—ONLY 10% OIL-GAS. 7200 sold one month. Customers delighted with Harrison Valveless Oil-gas Stove. Splendid for cooking; also heating rooms, stores, offices, etc., with Radiator Attch. No wick, dirt, or ashes—no coal bills or drudgery—cheap, safe fuel, 15c to 30c a week should furnish fuel-gas for cooking for small family. Easily operated — absolutely safe—all sizes, $3 up. Write—Catalog FREE and Special Prices. AGENTS WANTED—$40 Weekly. Address World Mfg. Co., 5790 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

A Preacher as Mayor.

For several years the prohibitory liquor law has been violated openly in Salina. Our city officials have permitted such violation for the revenue derived from monthly fines—under a plan which was in effect license and direct violation of the state constitution and law. Under this plan drunkenness, gambling, prostitution and "grafting" ran riot and increased constantly. In an effort to bring about a change, no good, representative business man could be found to run for mayor upon a prohibition, "clean city" platform. In the crisis and in response to what he and his best friends believed to be a mandatory call of duty, Brother David H. Shields, pastor of our church, consented to become the candidate and lead the fight against wickedness and vice strongly entrenched. The joint-keepers recognized the fact that the life of their business was at stake. Christian people recognized the fact that the souls of men and women, boys and girls, were in the balance. The ministers of the city preached about the election from Sunday to Sunday. Mass meetings were held in the churches on three Sunday evenings. The vote was the largest in the history of the city.

Brother Shields was elected mayor. All the men nominated for councilmen on the ticket with him were elected, as was also the police judge. Every one of these men is an active prohibitionist and an active Christian worker. The ministers and the churches feel that the six weeks devoted to this campaign were spent in legitimate church work as important as any they have ever done. There is great rejoicing among the good people. The city dailies, not in sympathy with prohibition, speak in high praise of Brother Shields and express strong confidence in the success of his administration along general business lines. It is conceded that the prohibitory law will be enforced and that the moral cleaning up already begun will be carried forward successfully. The "joints" are closed. HOWARD C. RASH.

Salina, Kan.

❀ ❀

Benevolent Association Notes.

Send the Easter offerings to the Benevolent Association to Mrs. J. K. Hansbrough, 903 Aubert avenue, St. Louis, as soon as it is all collected. "Something from everyone" should be our motto.

Many of the children rescued from an environment of cruel poverty and virulent wickedness by the various orphanages of our Benevolent Association are now heads of households, and some are occupying important social and business situations. Not only are they factors in business and society, but they are Christian factors, in holy fervor consecrating all they have and are to the church that saved them for time and eternity, and to its Christ. Generous Easter fellowship in the labors of this society means the rescue of myriads more for all that is noblest and best in our church life.

A brother who has preached the gospel for more than fifty years in Missouri and Kansas recently wrote a plaintive request that he and his dear companion might find shelter in one of our homes for old Disciples for the rest of their days of waiting. As soon as arrangements could be made, a cordial welcome was sent them. He replied that a nephew had just invited them to his home. His letter contained expressions of gratitude to the brotherhood he has served so well for this offer of a home, richly compensating our board for many a struggle and disappointment. He will enjoy this home with his nephew all the more now, because of the assurance that if he becomes an unwelcome guest in that good man's home there awaits him a place provided by his brethren where "he will be in nobody's way." No other class of the poor are more tenderly cared for by the association than our venerable preachers and their wives, and it is a great pleasure to know they look toward us with hope rather than towards almshouses with dread.

❀ ❀

EVANGELISTIC.

(Continued from paae 518.)

Hill, Pittsburg, is our next meeting.—F. A. BRIGHT, evangelist.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Charleston, April 13.—O. P. Spiegel, of Birmingham, Ala., recently held a month's protracted meeting for our church with 19 added. Ten came by obedience in baptism and nine by statement. Six came from the Baptists, one from the Lutherans, two from the Episcopalians, two from the M. E.'s and eight from the world. This was a good meeting when one takes into account the conservatism of this field. The meeting was thoroughly advertized with 15,000 hand bills and window cards and the city was made to feel and know somewhat of our work, which here moves steadily on.—CHARLES E. SMITH, pastor.

WISCONSIN.

Grand Rapids, April 12.—There had never been a sermon preached in this place by one of our men until we came a week ago. We have but two or three families here, but they are bound to have a church organized.—C. H. DE VOE AND H. K. SHIELDS, evangelists.

WASHINGTON.

Montesano, April 12.—We had nine additions at Hoquiam last Lord's day and two, husband and wife, from the M. E. church the fourth Lord's day in March. Bible-school numbers now 74, an increase of 30.—R. M. MESSICK.

Do You Want Song Books for Church, Sunday School, or Endeavor?

A New Church Hymnal Gloria in Excelsis Edited by 20th Century Committee

W. E. M. HACKLEMAN, Editor-in-Chief

Over 800 Standard Hymns & Tunes, Spiritual Songs & Chants
64 pp. of Responsive Scripture Readings.
Edited by A. B. Philputt and D. R. Dungan

Orders of Service, Opening Sentences, Invocations, etc., by C. C. Rowlison.
Size, 1 inch thick, 6¼ inches wide and 8¾ inches long

An Abridged Edition about Half the Size of Complete Edition. Several Bindings. Prices and Sample Pages Sent on Application.

Special Songs

REVISED AND ENLARGED to 192 pages and 199 Songs.

By Gabriel and Huston.

New. Inspiring. Up-to-date.

The character of the music of this book is indicated by the title. Mr. Gabriel ranks first in America as a writer of Gospel music. His productions are used in every land. This book contains the best songs he has ever written and a large number of first-class songs by the most eminent American authors.

Send 25 cts. for sample copy. See the LOW price—

Flexible Cloth - $14.00 per 100
Boards - - - 17.00 per 100
Full Cloth - - 20.00 per 100

Praises to the Prince

By Allen Wilson and W. E. M. Hackleman

224 pages. 232 Songs and Hymns.
16 pages of Responsive Bible Readings.

This book is arranged "Topically" and is up to date. It is suitable to all occasions of Church Work and Worship. All the best American songwriters are represented. Solos, Duets, Quartettes, Choruses, etc., are to be found in abundance. The Responsive Readings cover every phase of doctrine and Christian experience, and are carefully edited by Allen Wilson, A. McLean, B. L. Smith, G. W. Muckley and G. L. Snively. Send 25c. for sample copy and let it speak for itself.

Limp cloth, $15 per 100 | Boards, - $20 per 100

Full cloth, $25 per 100.

Address, HACKLEMAN MUSIC CO., 413-416 Majestic Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Family Circle

Easter Lilies.

By Mrs. P. R. Gibson.

Again the Easter lilies bloom,
And all the air is sweet;
There is no darkness now or gloom,
Since Christ hath risen from the tomb,
About that dark retreat.

Our Lord has risen! Oh, flowers of spring,
Your purest incense give!
Let birds their sweetest carols sing,
And earth her gladdest joy-bells ring,
Now that our Christ doth live.

Yes, here to-day he walks beside
His loved ones, as of yore;
At morning and at eventide
He comes, and with us will abide
And lead us evermore.

And when for us life's day is done,
And we lie down to rest,
'Tis only life but just begun,
Its setting and its rising sun,
Our Easter morning blest.

St. Louis, Mo.

* *

OUT OF CHRYSALIS.

By Jessie Claire Glasier.

"And he entered, and behold! a damsel of rueful countenance—"

"Uncle Christopher! I didn't hear you come in!" Amy's face brightened with a loving smile of welcome. "I've been particularly wanting a talk with you. That's the worst of having the minister for your uncle. Everybody else sees more of him than you do. I've been threatening to fall ill so you would have to come."

Dr. Neale pinched the pretty, glowing cheek on a level with his shoulder. "I'm not so easily imposed upon as to take you for an invalid, Miss! But your aunt and I think we are the ones to complain. Having a popular young lady for a niece can be made a grievance, too, you'll find out."

"Well, I haven't been over as often as I meant to, that's a fact. It has been a gay winter. But I'm going to be sensible. Sit down in this big chair and just let me tell you, uncle Chris. I've begun a dressmaking class—we're going to learn to cut and fit and everything, you'll see! That's Mondays and Thursdays. Then I'm going to study Shakespeare with Mrs. Drew Tuesdays—you know she's perfectly fine, uncle. And our King's Daughters are going to sew every Friday for the orphanage, and —oh, yes! I've promised to read to old Mrs. Tucker Saturday afternoons. I knew there was something else. So you see!" she finished triumphantly.

"I do see. Not much time left to frivol.' I'm glad I happened to come Wednesday, for this seems to be about the only time to find you at home. But what do you do Wednesdays that makes you so long-faced? When I first saw you I could only think 'The heart bowed down with grief and woe.'"

Amy laughed. "It isn't a bit funny, though, uncle Chris. Look here!" She jumped up from her perch on the window-seat and pointed tragically to a row of small flowerpots, in each of which a puny hyacinth-stalk leaned limply toward the April sunshine. "The sole survivors of three dozen as promising young bulbs as you ever set your eyes on," she mourned. "The rest gave up early—just faded away as though they were Russians with the Japs after them. You see, a lot of us girls had read about raising bulbs for Easter—how easy it was to have all the flowers you wanted to decorate with or for a sale, you know; and we agreed to try it. I said I'd take hyacinths. It sounded as though nothing could be simpler—a bulb, a little water, a dark room for awhile, then sunshine and stalks and leaves and lovely flowers in no time. It's been an awful disappointment, after the way I've fussed over the things. I even took some of the sickest out into the kitchen, because somebody said it would be so good and steamy for them. Everybody in the house has had fun over my hospital. But they just got more 'piddling,' as grandma Tucker says, and besides they were in Nora's way. So I took a tray-full—I had my trays all made on purpose just like some I read about in a book on bulbs—I took one into the bathroom and tried turning on the hot water and letting 'em take the steam that way. One article in a magazine said that was fine for sick plants; but I suppose their constitutions weren't strong enough for a Turkish bath. Here's one coming out purple; that begins to look a little as I expected, and here's another seems as though it might be pretty and pink some day; but I'm not looking for much from any of them now. And I meant to have such a beautiful lot for the church for Easter. Isn't it a shame, uncle Chris?"

Dr. Neale bent his fine white head over the forlorn survivors, and Amy saw the peculiar, whimsical smile she loved creeping around the corner of his clean-shaven mouth. "Uncle Chris keeps on getting handsomer," she thought. "His profile is like a beautiful old cameo, but I don't believe he has ever thought about himself long enough to find it out. Pretty sorry lot, aren't they?" she asked, slipping her hand through his arm.

"I was wondering, my dear, whether some other variety of plant might not have responded better to your care—given you more satisfation."

"Do you think so? Lillian Arthur tried Easter lilies, to match her name; and Adele is getting on beautifullly with her tulips, but I don't know! I begin to think I'm not a success at raising flowers. Something always happens. One year I planted pansy seed. You never saw such beauties as those pansies were on the cover of the catalog—purple and lavender and brown and yellow and crimson and black velvet—oh, and big as a dollar, every one! Why, I was going to shower them on my friends all summer. Exeryone that was sick was to have some, and mamma was to have fresh ones at her plate every morning—you know how fond she is of pansies. Well, they came up in the dearest straight rows, like little green needles. I was rejoicing over them one night—I had them in a box in the dining-room window—and the next morning—you never would guess! Something had eaten the top off every blessed one! There was a print in the dirt just the size of a mouse, and we knew there had been one around, and there wasn't another creature that could have done it, so we concluded he must have got in and mistaken my pansies for a lovely new spring salad!"

Dr. Neale turned eager eyes on his niece. "Bless me! I must make a note of that. Cats will sometimes nibble plants, I know, but a mouse! Well, well!" He adjusted his eyeglasses and felt in his pocket for memorandum-book and pencil. Mrs. Neale declared that natural history was her husband's pet diversion, but the Doctor considered that an intimate knowledge of his small friends in fur and feathers was too important to be classed as mere recreation. "Understanding the ways of the little beasties helps me in all my dealings with the human animal," he would explain with his slow, introspective smile.

"And did you plant a fresh supply of greens for Mr. Mouse, my dear?" he asked as he penciled a line in his clear, rapid hand.

Amy shook her brown head with energy. "Indeed I didn't! It was getting late anyhow, and I just dropped a tear on the remains and carried the box down cellar. No, I'm like the girl that never nursed a dear gazelle. My flowers always die when

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

MICHIGAN
SUMMER RESORTS

There is no more entrancing summer country in the world than the Great Lake
Country
It is mountains and seashore in one.
Write for booklets of information to
H. F. Moeller, G.P.A.
Pere Marquette Railroad,
500 Union Station, Detroit, Mich.

WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

JUBILANT VOICES
A new music book for Sunday School and Devotional Meetings. Edited by Doane, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel and Hoffman. Much new material, Orders of Service, Responsive Readings, Topical Index. 256 pages. Cloth, $25 per 100, not prepaid. Returnable Sample mailed free.
HOPE PUBLISHING COMPANY, CHICAGO.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
Promptly relieve Coughs, Hoarseness, Throat and Lung Troubles.
Sold in boxes only. Avoid imitations.
Fac-Simile Signature of John I. Brown & Son on every box.

I come to love 'em well. I could tell you a whole book of sad experiences. These hyacinths are the last. A six-year-old child ought to be able to make a blooming success of them—that's literal, not slang—but it seems I can't. I'm sorry you should be the loser this time, uncle Chris."

"Dear child," the mellow voice was full of sympathy, "I'm sorry your kind thought should bring you only disappointment. But there's still time before Easter for you to take up another piece of gardening, one that would please me beyond anything, Amy. Will you try it?"

Vaguely conscious that uncle Chris was dealing in parables, Amy smiled up at him. "If it's anything I can do I'll be glad to, uncle."

"Well, then, there's a poor little soul that I know, Amy, that has been struggling hard to grow—a very weak little plant in poor soil; but it did put out a shoot or two bravely. Then one day, a black cloud came and shut the little plant up in bleak darkness. It seems to have stopped growing. If it doesn't get sunlight and warmth it will die. It is Anna Burt that I mean, Amy. You know Anna is going through a very hard experience."

"You mean her mother's death? We've all been sorry for her, uncle Chris, and several of us wrote and said so, but—well, it has almost seemed as though she avoided us since. Somehow, there's no getting at Anna. She shuts herself away from one," protested Amy. "I never would dare talk to her about her soul, if that's what you mean, uncle."

With all the wisdom of nineteen years, what a child she was, thought uncle Christopher. "Do you remember," he asked, "how much we enjoyed reading The Making of an American?"

"Of course! I'll never forget that book." Amy's look showed that she could not trace the underground connection which she felt sure existed between the Doctor's question and the subject under discussion.

"Then you remember how Mr. Riis says the women in bleak, frozen Denmark coax their plants into bloom—how they 'love them up'?"

Amy's face changed. "Uncle, you're a magician for getting to the bottom of a difficulty. I don't love Anna Burt, and that's the truth. It's like the old rhyme about Dr. Fell, 'The reason why I cannot tell,' unless it's because she has that cold, stand-off way with her. She just locks herself up inside of herself somehow. All the girls feel it. And if we try to be pleasant and friendly her manner seems to say, 'You might as well leave me alone, I'm not your kind,' and she isn't!"

"All the more reason why she must not be left to herself." Dr. Neale sat down in the big chair again and Amy perched on the broad arm. "That girl, my dear, is starving for love. Her mother was her world. She was silent and self-contained, too, but they understood each other; and while she lived Anna had something to work for. Now the little home is broken up and Anna is boarding at the Young Woman's Home with a crowd of other girls, all strangers, all absorbed in their own bread-and-butter cares. Anna comes from the store at night tired out, eats her supper in silence, goes up to her room—she shares it with a pert, frizzle-headed little cash-girl from Lanigan's. I saw her the other day. It's useless to expect Anna to open her heart to her in this time of trouble. No, she tries to read, Anna does, or she cries herself to sleep, and gets up in the morning and does the same things over again. She's at the bottom of a well, don't you see? And we've got to get her up where the air is fresh and pure and the sun is shining and the birds singing."

"What do you want me to do, dear?" Amy asked gently, putting back the thick, silvery lock that always fell over uncle Chris's forehead when he was much in earnest about something.

"I told you: love her and show her that you do. One reason I came this morning, was to ask you to carry her an invitation. You know she's at the lace counter at McGovern's?"

"Yes—horrid place! I can't bear to go in there for a thing. I don't know what I should do if I had to spend my days there!" Amy exclaimed with a face full of sympathy.

"Well, it won't hurt you to go in and buy a bit of edging or something, if McGovern's isn't on the Consumers' League white-list. And then I want you to ask Anna to come to dinner with you and your aunt and me, Friday, and spend the evening. Show her you want her to come and don't take no for an answer. Will you do it?"

"Why, of course. But I thought—weren't you to have a toast at that big banquet, uncle?"

"Oh, that's arranged. I begged off. They're going to put on the new rector of St. James's. You see, I couldn't have Anna Saturday night because she has to work till ten o'clock. Well, puss, I must go." He sprang up with a vigor that belied his white hair and stood regarding his niece with both hands deep in the pockets of his well-worn overcoat. "You will 'love up' this plant, won't you? We've got to give it a chance to grow. Such monotony is stifling. But that's not the worst. Anna is losing faith. Her mother's death seems to her cruelly needless—the circumstances were unusually hard, you know—and she doesn't look forward to ever seeing her again. She told me so in a stony kind of voice. I might have thought she was indifferent if I hadn't known the heartache underneath. Think what Easter ought to mean to her, Amy! If we can coax faith into blossom in that girl's soul, won't that be the sweetest of all flowers to offer the Master on Easter morning?"

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper.

"I think," said Amy to herself reverently, as she watched uncle Christopher's tall straight figure swinging down the avenue, "I think uncle is the very best Christian I ever knew. When I try to imagine Jesus I always think of uncle Chris. I wonder if Anna Burt will come?"

From the expression of Anna's face after the invitation had been given it was difficult to judge whether her answer would be yes or no. There was a slight softening of the lines about the girl's mouth, but her dark eyes, lonely, brooding, rebellious, did not change. Amy found herself suddenly longing to win a word of friendliness from the unresponsive lips. "We always have such pleasant times at uncle's. You'll love aunt Lucy. I'm counting on showing you some of uncle's treasures. He has a regular museum of odd things and a story for each one. You will come, won't you?" she urged, smiling with sunny assurance into the thin, dark face across the counter.

Dr. Price's
CREAM
Baking Powder
IN USE THE MOST ECONOMICAL

Greater in leavening strength, a spoonful raises more dough, or goes farther.

Price Baking Powder Co.
CHICAGO.

"You're very kind, Miss Latimer, and so is your uncle. I don't go anywhere evenings, but"—there certainly was a hint of an answering smile now in the brown eyes—"if you really want such poor company as I am, I'll come. And thank you for writing to me, Miss Latimer. I would have answered, but I hadn't any words. Venetian? Yes, ma'am. Ten cents a yard." She hurried to display the cheap laces that a new customer was tumbling about, and Amy went away with a friendly farewell nod.

Dr. Neale was at his best Friday evening, and there were many, both inside of his congregation and out of it, who would have told you that Christopher Neale at his best was fit company for the brightest and wisest of mankind. Even a reserve so shy as Anna's was bound to melt in the genial warmth of his manner. Bits of entertaining travel talk as the cosey little

No Stocks or Fluctuating Securities.

We call the attention of our readers to the striking advertisement of the Union Central Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati, on another page. That the management of the Christian Publishing Company believes in the Union Central is evidenced by the fact that the following officers and employes of the company hold policies. J. H. Garrison, president; W. W. Dowling, vice-president; G. A. Hoffmann, general superintendent; W. D. Cree, secretary and E. H. Calkins (until recently foreman of composing room).

The Union Central is prohibited by the Ohio laws from investing in stocks and bonds. Its investments are in first mortgage loans on real estate, the sworn appraised value of which is actually three times the amount loaned. The Union Central has made a wonderful record for conservatism and capable management during the last twenty years and more, and our readers will make no mistake in placing their insurance in this middle west company.

dinner progressed drew the lonely gi still farther out of the shadow of her own unhappy thoughts, and once, at the close of an amusing adventure, she laughed out with such a joyous lighting of her whole face that Amy could scarcely keep from flashing a look of triumph at uncle Chris. "She's positively pretty when she laughs," thought the warm-hearted little conspirator, "and uncle is a genius to plan all this. I never heard him talk so well. They won't have any such treat at their banquet to-night as we have had right here."

"Uncle says you read a great deal. Wouldn't you like to come into the library and look over the new magazines?" Amy proposed, when dinner had ended in a burst of general merriment. At sight of the four walls lined with book-cases Anna's eyes sparkled. Her breath came fast as she stopped before one shelf after another on which new volumes, freshly gilt and shining, elbowed friendly old favorites, worn with much handling.

"I never come in here," Amy confided, "without thinking 'here's richness.' Of course you've read 'Little Women'? I was brought up on it and I still go over it every once in awhile. Just try this lazy-back chair. There are some beautiful colored plates in this magazine that you will like, I know."

Half an hour later uncle Chris, looking in at the curtained doorway, met Amy's eye with a smile of approval. Anna's absorbed face, glowing in the red light of the shaded reading-lamp, wore for the first time the care-free look proper to a girl of twenty.

It was Amy who broke the spell. "You are going to show us those Indian necklaces you spoke of at dinner, aren't you, uncle? And the butterflies. Anna must see them. She has been admiring these colored plates and I told her you had even finer real ones in your collection."

"Yes, yes. And one new specimen that you have never seen," beamed uncle Chris. "I came down to ask you up to the den," and he led the way eagerly to a special nook where a languid butterfly was trying its frail, new-found wings.

"Oh, you beauty!" cried impulsive Amy. "When did it come out, uncle?"

"This afternoon. I hoped to be here to watch the little prisoner's escape, but I was called away for an hour and when I came back the cell door had been burst open." He pointed to the rent chrysalis that hung from a dry branch just over the table.

After her first cry of admiration, Anna had studied the shining little creature in silence. Now she took a long look at its empty sepulcher. "If it could have known!" she said, half to herself. "But I suppose it couldn't understand, so it had to just seem to die."

"Yes, waking up to a beautiful new life was as far beyond the caterpillar's comprehension as immortality is greater than we can realize," her pastor's voice came like a gentle echo of the girl's thought. " 'There is no death—what seems so is transition,' " he quoted, and then went on more lightly, "See this miracle of a curled-up proboscis, warranted to find the honey in the bottom of a flower-trumpet? I know this gauzy, shimmering thing was an ugly caterpillar only a little while ago, but I can scarcely believe it."

"It's the most wonderful thing!" breathed Amy, reverently.

"It is a new miracle to you, my dear. If you had dropped a seed into the ground for the first time and had seen a flower spring up and blossom, you would call that the greatest marvel of your life. Tennyson was right—we should 'know what God and man is' if we knew the secret of the smallest wayside blossom."

"Yes, if we could only know!" The cry seemed to come from Anna involuntarily.

* * * * *

"Come in!" called the minister, as a brisk rap sounded at his study door the next Monday morning. "So it's you, puss? Come to tell me you are a finished dressmaker?"

"No." Amy's cheeks were the exact hue of the roses in her hat. She dropped down on a stool at her uncle's feet, breathing fast. "I'm making the sweetest waist you ever saw, but I didn't rush up here to ell you that, I should hope. You know Anna didn't come to church yesterday. I really hoped she would, she seemed so different, so really like other friendly folks, when we left her at the boarding-house Friday night. Well, so I went around Sunday afternoon, and took her a plant."

"The pink hyacinth?"

"Oh, no! Nobody but a fond mother could see any beauty in that, poor thing! I bought a lovely tulip Saturday at market and it looked so bright and cheerful I couldn't resist taking it along, and perhaps that was what touched Anna's heart. The girl that opened the door told me to go right up—they don't stand on any ceremony there—so I took Anna by surprise and she hadn't time to put on her stand-off manner if she wanted to. She had a dreadful headache—didn't sit up all the morning. I really believe she would have come out if she had been able. The room-mate had gone out to walk with her young man, so we had a chance for a good talk. Uncle, I never was so sorry for anybody!"

"You can't say now you don't love her!"

"No, and she is going to let me love her. She showed me a glimpse of her heart and I—well, I never should have believed that I could talk to anyone as I did to Anna! It was just as though she let me see the awful black pit she had tumbled into, and I simply had to get her out. I told her I just as much believed she would see her mother again and be happy with her as I believed we were sitting there together. I told her all I ever read or heard about the beautiful visions that come to some people when they are dying—how aunt Edith saw her own dear mother standing beside her. About the glorious things old Elder Worth saw just at the last, but couldn't find any words to describe. I tried to repeat what you quoted yesterday about death as God ordained it; how our heavenly nature ought to unfold and the earthly nature fall away of itself so the man would grow into the angel as the infant grows into the child, and death would mean health instead of disease. I told her what I'd read about the way the early Christians felt when some one of their number died, calling on each other to rejoice instead of mourning, for another disciple had gone to be with their Lord. I told her all that Easter meant to me—the gladdest time of the year, even more than Christmas, for if there had been no resurrection we shouldn't be keeping the birthday of Jesus any more than that of any other baby that was born thousands of years ago. Why, uncle Chris, I didn't know myself how much I cared!"

"And Anna listened with her heart?"

"Yes, she did. I do think she was comforted. I'm going to take her my copy of 'The Other Room.' You know how near that makes one feel to those that are gone. And she promised to come to church with me next Sunday."

Uncle Christopher's eyes were very tender as he smiled down into the eager eyes raised to his. "And in short, you are 'loving up' our little starved plant," he commented.

* * * * *

The church had never looked lovelier than on Easter morning, thought Amy. Massed among the palms and hot-house lilies were the fragrant narcissus, the jonquils and tulips that had rewarded the efforts of the amateur florists, but even the thought of her failure with the hyacinths could not cloud the happiness in her eyes as she turned them on the girl beside her. Anna's face was no longer defiant or despairing; and when, with triumphant pealing of the organ, the grand old strains, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," filled the church as with a burst of Easter sunshine, an answering light flashed into the hungry, dark eyes, the promise of victory for a soul struggling out of chrysalis.

Individual Communion Cups

Why permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? Individual Communion Cups are sanitary. Let us send you a list of nearly 3,000 churches where they are in use. Send for Free Book.

We offer a Trial Outfit free to any church.

Sanitary Communion Outfit Co. 15th St. Rochester, N.Y.

✲ ✲

A CHEAP HEART CURE.

A Norwich Lady Tells You What to Use at Home, If You Would Cure Yourself at Once.

Alice A. Wetmore, Block 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease in any form will write her, she will without charge direct them to the perfect cure she used.

We advise every one interested to get this free information now, for Miss Wetmore is very positive it will lead to their complete cure.

For Over 60 Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.

An Old and Well-tried Remedy

We manufacture
CHURCH and SCHOOL
Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.
1. E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

NORTHFIELD HYMNAL

By Geo. C. Stebbins.

30c. a copy, postpaid. $25 per 100.

Returnable Sample free to Pastors, etc.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., Chicago-New York

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD DAY.—CONTINUED.

Mace would have liked for Miss Lizzie to begin talking about Mr. Worth Acre, for she suspected that there was some sort of a love story hidden in the gentle blue eyes. But the elder was far too sensitive and refined to lay bare the sacred depths of her heart. She could not even tell Mace how glad she was to have found a congenial friend, one with whom she felt at ease, and one of whose sympathy she was certain. Still, the girl in some way felt the happy gratitude of the woman, and although their ages were so far apart, a strong bridge of true friendship spanned the distance from sixteen to thirty-eight. Perhaps Miss Lizzie knew that the other would like to hear about Mr. Worth Acre, and to divert her mind she said, "And now that we are chums, you must tell me all about yourself, up to three days ago when I first saw you."

Mace began solemnly, "I am the only daughter of good and respected parents, and I have never done anything to get into the newspapers." Then she laughed, and so did her friend. "Have you any brothers?" asked Miss Lizzie Day.

"One, and he explains why we came here," Mace replied. "He is four years older than I, and so big and strong and broad-shouldered, he would make two of me, and almost three of you, Miss Lizzie. And he is very handsome, and good—I wish I were as good!" Mace sighed wistfully.

"I do not think you can be very bad," said Miss Lizzie, stroking her heavy hair.

"Oh, yes, I can; I can be perfectly dreadful," said Mace, shaking her head. "The worst is that it always comes on when I'm not looking for it. If I knew it was coming I could brace myself to be ready."

"What form does your badness take?" her friend asked, laughing gaily.

Mace smiled, but shook her head seriously. "Saying things. It's when I get mad; and then I just say what comes into my mind, and it looks like I can say the meanest things you ever heard of!"

"And are you trying to do better, Mace?"

"That's just it, Miss Lizzie. You can't try to do better when you've no temptation to do bad. I don't want to hurt anybody's feelings now, so how can I practice keeping from it? Of a sudden, somebody will throw me into a temper, and then there's no time to practice, for I speak out before I think. It's dreadful!"

Miss Lizzie shook her head, still smiling. "You must learn to bridle your tongue, dear."

"I'd bridle it if I could catch it," said Mace. "Perhaps you can suggest a way to get the bridle on it when it's galloping around, out of reach."

"I am sure I can," said the other. "When your tongue runs away and you can't bridle it, just wait till it comes up to be fed."

"Then it's too late," Mace objected.

"No; for then you must take that tongue over to the person it offended, and you must make that tongue humble and sorry and kind to that person. And when your tongue has found out that every time it runs away it is going to be punished, after awhile it won't even shy when it hears a cross word from somebody else's tongue."

"I will have to take my tongue over to Bob Enderthorpe," said Mace, "and I don't like to be humble to a person that seems so common and poor. We are poor, ourselves, but we don't feel like we are. I was telling you about brother. His name is Luther. When we had to let our farm go for the mortgage, we were in a good deal of trouble, with papa being blind. But just lately brother was offered a place on a farm near here, to work, you know." Mace paused and swallowed hard, and then said resolutely, "I mean he is hired for a farm hand."

Miss Lizzie hugged her and said, "I think that tongue will be mastered, yet!"

Mace blushed and continued. "So he wanted us to come and live here in the village, and every Sunday he can come and stay with us. And dear me! It's only Thursday, now, and three more days to wait till we see him! I feel like I can't wait. He lives on the farm, you know, and gets good wages—it is twenty dollars a month besides his board. And brother won't spend anything, hardly, so there is our living. I mean, till I am old enough to teach school. But won't that be long! The family where he stays are the Manceys; maybe you know who they are."

"I know them very well," said Miss Lizzie.

"Do you like them?" Mace asked, eagerly.

Miss Lizzie hesitated, then said "Why, yes, I like them, Mace, in a sense!"

"In what sense, if you please?" Mace persisted.

Miss Lizzie hesitated again, then said slowly, "Why, in the sense that I like everybody."

Mace laughed, and then looked solemn. "I do hope brother is in a pleasant home," she said. "Our preacher recommended Luther to the Manceys. But it seems to me that you do not like them in the sense that I like you, for instance."

"Well, Mace, it doesn't change or affect

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Agents Wanted

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourishment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR

that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER

gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

OUR line of pianos embraces the old and well-known makes of pianos. Why take any chances on unknown makes when for a few dollars more you can secure a

WEBER, KRELL-FRENCH,
IVERS & POND,
McPHAIL, O. K. HOUCK
or NORWOOD

Cash or terms to suit.

New pianos for rent, one year's rent to apply on purchase. Write for catalogue—a postal card will save you many dollars. Write for Booklet A.

O. K. Houck Piano Co.
1118 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.
H. A. PHIPPS, Mgr.
St. Louis, Memphis, Little Rock, Nashville.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

Have you read the startling truths contained in the book entitled

FROM THE BALL ROOM TO HELL?

A Dancing Master's Experience. 25 cents, postpaid. Agents write for rates. G. W. NOBLE, Lakeside Building, CHICAGO.

a person whether we like them or not, and if your brother likes the Manceys, that is all needful for his contentment. It isn't necessary for us to like them. Shall we explore this side of the street?" They climbed down from the church-window, for there was a faint suggestion of approaching darkness, and they passed out of the yard, which faced the beautiful mansion of Mr. G. C. D. Woodney. "And so," remarked Miss Lizzie as they passed along the sidewalk, "your cousin, Mr. G. C. D. Woodney, was not the cause of your coming here?"

"No, indeed!" said Mace with emphasis, looking over at the gay party which still occupied the front porch. "He had nothing whatever to do with it. We hadn't seen them for fifteen years, and do you know, when cousin Lucy and her daughter, Jennie, called on us, grandmother and papa both forgot she had a son named Ed, and so they didn't ask about him! He is about the same age as my brother."

"Oh, yes, I know Ed Woodney," said Miss Lizzie, "it was he whom you heard playing the mandolin."

"I should like to accompany him," said Mace, more to herself than to the other. Next to the church was a vacant lot; then came the school house. It was long and narrow with closed green shutters. There was but one step leading up to the front door which was curved at the top like a church door. It stood in a large yard which showed very little grass but many weeds. "The school," remarked Mace, "is just across the street from the Winterfields'. I wonder if I will have a fine time there this year? It begins in just ten days. I am so anxious to get started. Then I will get to know Marcia Winterfield and my cousin Jennie. I suppose Ed doesn't come here?"

"No; he and Marcia's sisters go away to college."

"When a school year begins," said Mace, "it is just like opening the first page of a good story. Is this Mr. Worth Acre's shop next to the school?"

"Yes," said Miss Lizzie, and they paused in front of the shop. Both doors stood open, so that almost the entire front wall of the shop seemed to have vanished.

They looked into a large room into whose corners dark shadows had already crept to sleep for the night. The red fire from a furnace cast a cheerful glow upon the rafters and along the hard earth floor. A huge tin oil-lamp burned on its bracket beside the window, throwing its light upon the anvil. Worth Acre stood, hammer in hand, beating a shower of sparks out of a heated bar of iron. A leathern apron protected his clothes. His brown arms were bare and showed magnificent muscle. His collar was cut low on his neck. His head was large, and so were his features, but a thoughtful disposition had softened them. It was a handsome face that turned toward them and could well endure the test of the great lamp and the blazing furnace. Mace felt, while looking at his flexible mouth, his large brown eyes, his firm-set mouth, his solid neck and his powerful arms, that this was a gentleman who could exert the strength of a giant. He was a man she would have liked to call upon in danger, or in sorrow. And though she had never seen him before, it was as if a great cheery fire were blazing upon the hearth of his heart, as the red flame leaped on the furnace, speaking a welcome. He was in the prime of life, and every motion was definite and hearty as if he were so charged with vitality it was all but impossible to exhaust the store.

"Good-evening, Worth," said Miss Lizzie in her timid voice. "I want to introduce my friend, Mace Woodney; and I want you to feel that she is your friend, too."

Mr. Worth Acre laid aside hammer and iron and came to the entrance. "Well, it's just jolly to have another girl come to town," he said, shaking hands, "especially if she is a friend of Lizzie's. I've been watching you folks from my shop—you're just catercornered over the street, you see; and I already feel like I know you pretty well. Now if my house had been next to yours, I suppose we'd have become acquainted at once, or at least as soon as you began dropping hens over my fence!" Here Mr. Worth Acre burst into a roar of laughter that made his shop ring.

Mace blushed and Miss Lizzie said, "Now, Worth! Mr. Tumbleton told them those were the Enderthorpes' chickens, and that's why they were dropped over the fence."

"Tumbleton told 'em that?" cried Mr. Acre, roaring again. "Well, when I saw even the old lady throwing hens, I says to myself, 'It's all up with the Enderthorpes!' You can't believe anything Tumbleton says. You got him to bring your things from the depot, didn't you?"

It was impossible to be displeased with Mr. Worth Acre, so Mace admitted the charge with a smile.

"Wonder he didn't steal all of you before he got here!" remarked Worth Acre. "Missed anything yet?"

"Why," said Mace, "every day we miss something we were sure we packed up. Do you mean that Mr. Tumbleton would —and we've engaged him to build our front porch!"

Mr. Worth Acre became very grave "Now, Mace," he said solemnly, "I'll tell you what wouldn't surprise me, if he goes there to build a porch. He's got an old wagon and a team of mules—it's not for me to say how he got 'em. It wouldn't surprise me, if some night he'd go there, and carry off the whole house with you people in it."

"Come on, Mace," said Miss Lizzie with pretended severity, "Mr. Acre ought to be at his work, and he is simply amusing himself at our expense."

"Well, come again!" called Mr. Acre. "Come in the daytime and see what I have to show you. And perhaps you'll visit my Horseshoe House before school opens." They walked past the shop, and the musical ring of the anvil followed them. "What a gay man he is!" Mace exclaimed. "Is he always so full of fun?"

"He is always laughing, and full of nonsense," said Miss Lizzie.

"He must be a very happy man," sighed Mace. "I wish I could always feel like laughing. I suppose he is just contented with his shop and his life."

"He wants us to think so," said Miss Lizzie wistfully.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both
in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

SUBTERRANEAN WONDERS

Mammoth Cave

AND

COLOSSAL CAVERN

Are the most interesting of all the Natural Wonders in America. These wonderful Caverns are visited annually by thousands of tourists from this country and abroad. They are pronounced by scientists the most magnificent work of nature. It would well repay you to take the time to make a visit to them. They are 100 miles south of Louisville, Ky. near the

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

and the undersigned will be glad to quote you rates, give train schedules or send you a beautifully illustrated 48 page booklet giving an interesting description of these remarkable places.

C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Louisville, Ky.

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

The first ten who clip this notice from the Christian-Evangelist and send to

DRAUGHON'S

PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.

COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mail FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

If you purchase a

PIANO OR ORGAN

with the name

ESTEY

upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.

THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

AULT & WIBORG

COMPANY

Manufacturers of Printing Inks.
CINCINNATI, NEW YORK,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.

This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

OHIO'S PRESIDENTS
GRANT
HAYES
GARFIELD
BENJ. HARRISON
McKINLEY

LIFE INSURANCE AT LOWEST COST IN

OHIO'S LARGEST INSURANCE COMPANY

ASSETS $44,000,000.00
INSURANCE IN FORCE $216,000,000.00

Its investments are not excelled by those of any company in the world. It has no fluctuating stocks and bonds. For over twenty years its mortgage loans on farm-lands have earned the highest rate of interest of any American company. Its ratios of death losses and expenses of management have always been very low. As a result it excels in large dividends to policy holders, among whom are divided the profits of the company.

THE UNION CENTRAL OF CINCINNATI
JOHN M. PATTISON
President

ADDRESS ADVERTISING DEP'T FOR PARTICULARS, W.
GIVING OCCUPATION AND MONTH AND YEAR OF BIRTH.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison,	President
W. W. Dowling,	Vice-Presiden
W. D. Cree,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann,	General Superintendent

Business Notes.

We have a very pretty button, with Bible scenes, at 15 cents a dozen, and which tend to make the school and its work interesting. Try them.

❁

How is your Home Department? What do you need further? Command us for any want in this direction, as we keep a full line of material.

❁

Our Cradle Roll Certificates are in colors, and very pretty; are 6x9 inches and sell at 50 cents per dozen, while our Birthday Greetings, in handsome coloring, 5x7 inches, sell at 50 cents per dozen.

❁

State Superintendent Denton's efforts to increase the membership of the Missouri Endeavor societies is going to help the records at Marshall in June, and we have the buttons, red and blue, at $1 per 100, postpaid.

❁

Popular Hymns No. 2, Living Praise, Silver and Gold, and The Gospel Call, parts two and three, are the standbys in good song books, while Praises to the Prince is the latest thing out. All sell at the same price, in limp cloth, $2; in boards, $2.50; in full cloth, $3 per dozen, not prepaid, while the 100 rate is $15, or $20, or $25, not prepaid.

❁

We are not saying so much about it, but have an abundance of New Testaments at 7 cents each in limp cloth, or 15 cents in full cloth, or 35 cents in large primer type, either revised or old version, but not Standard American revision. Above prices are postpaid, too.

❁

Have you contribution baskets or are you still "passing the hat"? We have nice baskets, either with or without handles, selling as follows: The round baskets, 9x13 inches at the top, 4 inches deep inside, white braided straw, are 50 cents each; with three foot handles are $1.25 each.

❁

"Are you planning for a promoting exercise this spring, when the children are transferred from the primary to the main school?" We have a very attractive "Sunday-School Primary Department Diploma," selling at 36 cents per dozen. They are in colors, are 9x12 inches, and are much appreciated by the "graduates." Try these simple methods of interesting children and see the results.

❁

Has your school tried the "button contest"? Some of the schools are on the third round and it works as well as the first. Buttons for both sides are $1 per 100, and while cards and other equipment may be used, the buttons should be.

❁

Have you a Cradle Roll? Do you know what you are missing not to have one? Do you wish to organize one? We have all the equipment necessary at prices as follows: Cradle Roll, with spacing for more than 100 names, postpaid, only 50 cents; application cards, just the thing to interest the members of the Primary Department in reporting names for the Cradle Roll, and these postpaid are only 15 cents per dozen.

❁

The tracts on "History and Doctrine of the Disciples," by Power, in Festival Hall, and G. L. Wharton, on "Tithing," are having a wondrous sale, about 10,000 of each, and the demand continues right along. In protracted meetings, the former, while in regular work, the latter, is fine for general distribution, as many of our official boards are learning. We are sending them postpaid at $1.50 per 100, 20 per cent off on 500 or more.

P. CHESTER MADISON, M. D.,
America's Master Oculist
(Copyrighted)

I Can Cure Your Eyes

Can You Dispute such Evidence as the Following Letter?

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Douglas Bldg., Chicago, Ill. West Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13, 1905.

My Dear Doctor and Friend:—I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both of my eyes, and for returning my vision with less than three months' treatment. The least I can say is that your treatment is truly wonderful, and hope that I will have the opportunity of referring hundreds of people to you for it.

Prior to three months ago my eyes had been gradually failing for a period of four or five years. Both of them were slowly but surely becoming covered with cataracts, and it became utterly impossible for any oculist to fit me with glasses. Shortly before I came to you I enlisted the services of one of Chicago's most prominent opticians, but repeated trials effected nothing. It was impossible for him to find any lenses which would do me the least particle of good. The truth of the matter is, my eyes were so bad that I suffered double vision at all times, and I could not remedy it.

Now that these cataracts have been removed from my eyes without the use of the knife, and entirely by means of your Absorption Method, I want to speak my mind relative to the claims advanced by some people that there is no hope except through an operation. It has been proved to me beyond all doubt the unwisdom of submitting to the treatment of these "eye butchers," as I call these men who use the knife upon human eyes—these men who dare to walk where angels fear to tread—who cut into the human eye, for they have left more blind people behind than the general public has any idea of. We hear occasionally of one or two successes out of the hundreds who are sent away left helpless cripples for life.

The whole subject of eye treatment, I am well convinced, will have to be revised, and the schools of optical instruction will have to rewrite their books. That there is a method of benefiting human eyes, removing their diseases without endangering them, is now recognized and capable of the most convincing proof. I can testify of the benefits I have received myself from intelligent treatment without an operation. My eyes became so desperately bad that it was absolutely necessary to do something. I was already blind in one. In desperation I turned to you. True, I expected little, and called on you more through curiosity than from the expectation of receiving permanent benefit. You were so positive and so emphatic regarding your ability to save the eyes without butchering, and to bring about the sight, or rather to remove the film, that I thought I would give you an opportunity of trying. The result is that to-day I am cured. The best evidence of this is the fact that while of course I need glasses to read with on account of my age, yet I have no need of them for any other purpose in fact even in the evening I do not need them except for reading. I have been so nearly blind, it is no wonder that I would be somewhat enthusiastic, and wish others who are having the same experience that I had to know that there is hope for them, a certain hope of cure, and a most certain assurance that no injury will follow the treatment.

I want to ask anyone who has cataracts, or for that matter, any trouble of the eyes whatever, would it not be policy for you to accept Dr. Madison's treatment? And I want to say to them truly, should he fail, and I am well convinced that he will not, you will still have your eye for the butchers to practice upon, if you so desire. If, however, you go to them first, it may be too late to take advantage of the treatment he offers.

Knowing how sad it is to be shut out from the light of the world, to be rendered helpless by lost vision, and knowing how easy it is to get into that sad condition, I feel, upon the general grounds of humanity that I should make known to any or everybody afflicted, the chances they have of being benefited should they avail themselves of it. This, Dr. Madison, is the sole purpose I have in writing this letter in testimony of my appreciation of your wonderful treatment for cataracts. Yours sincerely, MARTHA L. LEFEVOUR.

The Madison Absorption Method

CURES EVERY DISEASE of the EYE FROM CATARACT TO SIMPLE INFLAMMATION WITHOUT SURGERY

CROSS-EYES STRAIGHTENED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

AND WITH ABSOLUTELY NO PAIN. No matter if you have tried other treatments. Do not be discouraged. I am daily curing people who have tried other treatment, and received no benefit. I have published letters of such cured patients, and can supply you with hundreds of others. Evidence from cured patients themselves can not fail to convince you that there is certainly hope for you. Satisfy yourself by writing to those whose letters you have read. I do not give up a case simply because other doctors have failed. My 20 years' study and scientific research have fitted me for the purpose of curing all so-called incurable cases, and I am especially desirous of having such cases brought to my attention. MY OPINION AND ADVICE BOTH FREE. A moment of your time in writing to me, may save you or a friend from a life of darkness.

For the convenience of the readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, the attached coupon is printed. If you are interested in any way, either for yourself or in behalf of a friend, send it to me and I will gladly send you my book on "EYE DISEASES—THEIR CURE WITHOUT SURGERY," which teems with information concerning the eyes, and which is illustrated with colors. SEND TO-DAY.

P. C. MADISON, M. D.,
Suite, 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO

CUT HERE

Dr.
P. C.
Madison,
Suite 280,
80 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO.

DEAR DOCTOR:
Please send to me FREE of charge, a copy of your book, entitled, "Eye Diseases—Their Cure Without Surgery," as advertised in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

Name..
Town..
Street No....................................
County.............................State..............

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 17. April 27, 1905. $1.50 A Year

A LITTLE ARGUMENT WITH MYSELF.

How Much Ought I Give to Home Missions?

1. If I decide to give nothing, I practically cast a ballot in favor of supporting no missionaries.

2. If I give less than heretofore, I vote to support fewer missionaries than last year.

3. If I give the same as heretofore, I vote to have the work barely hold its own. My song is "Hold the Fort," forgetting that the Lord never intended that his army should take refuge in a fort. His word is "speak unto the Children of Israel that they Go Forward."

4. If I advance my offering beyond former years, I favor an advance movement in the work. Shall I join this class? If I add one hundred per cent to my former gifts, then I favor twice as many missionaries as heretofore. If I add fifty per cent to my former gifts, then I say, Have half as many more as heretofore. If I add twenty-five per cent then I say, Have one-fourth as many more as you have had.

What Shall I Do? I certainly cannot vote to stop the work. Nor am I satisfied that we hold our own in this work.

I believe in urging this work forward. I will, therefore, increase my contribution to this work.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER, } Staff Correspondents.
W. DURBAN,

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter.

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 531

Editorial:

What Does Church Membership Mean? 533
Our Opportunity and Responsibility.... 533
Notes and Comments..... 534
Editor's Easy Chair..... 535

Contributed Articles:

Our Congregationalism. W. A. Parker 536
The New Neology. William Durban.. 537
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 538
A Dispatch from the Firing Line. John A. Stevens 539
Letters from a Retired Minister..... 540
Our Budget..... 542
An Important Church Trial 544
Great Meeting at Paris..... 545
News From Many Fields 546
Evangelistic..... 549
People's Forum..... 550
Midweek Prayer-Meeting..... 552
Christian Endeavor..... 552
Sunday-School..... 553
Obituaries..... 554
Family Circle..... 555
With the Children..... 558

"THE ONLY WAY."
ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.
4—PERFECT TRAINS—4
MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.

CHICAGO & ALTON RY.

Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to
D. BOWES, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."
WABASH
THE WABASH LINE
Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between
ST. LOUIS
AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO, DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON, AND BETWEEN
CHICAGO
AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.
DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

BEST THING ON WHEELS.
FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS
ON THE
Henderson Route
(ALL TRAINS)
BETWEEN
ST. LOUIS
LOUISVILLE
AND KENTUCKY POINTS.
SPECIAL RATES.
One-Way Colonist
AND
Round-Trip Homeseekers

When you travel, why not be comfortable? The up-to-date equipment, the safe and convenient train schedules offered by the HENDERSON ROUTE and the direct connections made in St. Louis Union Station with all trains from the West and Southwest solves the problem.

If you contemplate a trip, take the time to write us.

Insist on your ticket reading via St. Louis and the Henderson Route. This will insure you comfort in travel.

ASK US FOR RATES.

F. G. CUNNINGHAM, - - T. P. Agt.
W. C. LINDSAY, - - - G. Agent.
206 N. Broadway, ST. LOUIS.

B & O S-W
HISTORIC AND PICTURESQUE ROUTE
TO
NEW YORK
VIA
Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

STOPOVER PRIVILEGES ON ALL FIRST CLASS TICKETS.

3 ELEGANT VESTIBULED TRAINS AND ALL OF THEM DAILY.

COACHES WITH HIGH BACK SEATS,
PULLMAN DRAWING ROOM SLEEPERS,
OBSERVATION SLEEING CARS,
COMPANY'S OWN DINING CAR SERVICE
Meals Served "a la Carte."

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP OVER THE ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS, THROUGH HISTORIC HARPER'S FERRY AND THE VALLEY OF THE POTOMAC.

For Rates, Time of Trains, Sleeping Car Reservations, Etc., call on any Ticket Agent or address

F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. April 27, 1905 No. 17

Current Events.

Party Spirit in Education. The proposed union of Harvard university and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has, after long discussion been reduced to a definite scheme and steps are being taken to determine, before putting it into operation, whether it is absolutely sound and unobjectionable from the legal standpoint. The project arose, as it will be remembered, out of the great bequest of the late Gordon Mackay to Harvard for scientific work. The estate amounts, at the least estimate, to $4,000,000, and it may possibly be worth as much as $10,000,000. This insures an immense enlargement of the Harvard scientific school, involving necessarily a duplication of much of the equipment of the Institute of Technology, which is just across the river, unless the two institutions could be so united that some of the money could be put into the institute. The plan now announced provides for the sale of the present institute property, which has become immensely valuable by reason of its location, the removal of the institute to Cambridge, and the sharing of the funds by the two institutions while each maintains a partial independence of administration. The curious thing about the whole arrangement is that everybody seems to like it better than the Harvard and Technology people do. The scheme commends itself to everyone's judgment as a plan by which the given funds can be most efficiently and economically administered with the greatest educational result. But there is a decided spirit of opposition to it on the part of both faculty and alumni of the two institutions. On the one side there is an unwillingness to have any money that belongs to Harvard spent upon what is in any sense an outside institution; on the other side there is a fear that the combination may result in a loss of the historic continuity and individuality of the institute. Both of these attitudes are entirely natural and human, but wholly partisan. The glory of Harvard and the glory of Tech. are not, after all, the supreme end for which the administration of those two institutions should be conducted. Results are of more importance than institutions, but the sentiment of institutional pride stands in the way of many desirable combinations, especially in the church. It is interesting to find cropping out in this Harvard-Technology matter the same impulses and sentiments which, whether acknowledged or not, are the most potent factors in opposition to any project of Christian union.

◆

Anti-Cigarette Legislation. Indiana has an anti-cigarette law of extraordinary scope and thoroughness. It went into effect on Saturday, April 15, and we shall have an opportunity to see the effect of a law which comes as near as possible to being absolutely prohibitory. The law forbids the manufacture, sale, exchange, giving away, use or possession of cigarettes or cigarette paper within the state. So, unless the law is declared unconstitutional, it will not permit individual smokers lawfully to import cigarettes for their own use or to keep or use them if by any hook or crook they should get them. It applies alike to adults and minors. When introduced in the State Senate about two months ago, the bill was unanimously passed, partly in jest and in the expectation that the House would kill it. But in the House it found real friends. The trust found it necessary to fight the bill. One day a member rose and exhibited a hundred-bill which, he said, had been sent to him by the tobacco trust as a bribe to vote against the bill. After that few dared to vote against it and it was passed by a very large majority and was signed by the governor. Although the discussion, both in the Legislature and the press, was naturally marked by a good deal of levity, it was gratifyingly evident that the cigarette had no friends, or at least none who were willing to speak out for it. Now we shall see about the enforcement. The dealers in the cities of the state declare that they will obey the law.

◆

Unscientific Benevolence. We all believe in scientific and systematic charity nowadays, and we all know how much more efficient and economical is the carefully planned work of charity organizations than the haphazard and often unwise giving which represents only individual impulse or caprice. But there is still room for the old-fashioned sort of charity. The other day a teamster was robbed of $1,400, the savings of his lifetime, as he and his wife were on their way from the bank, where they had drawn the money, to the agent's office where they were to pay for the little home which they were buying. It is not to be denied that a man in these circumstances who, as he is entering upon old age, sees suddenly vanish his lifelong hope of owning his own home, is a fit subject for commiseration. But there is no way in which organized charity can take cognizance of such a case. Even Mr. Carnegie's hero fund, which carries organization into a new field where both its propriety and its practicability are doubted, must stop far short of attempting to reimburse people who have been robbed. It would scarcely be possible to organize a Society for the Rellief of the Deserving and Aged Poor who have been Robbed of the Savings with which they Expected to Buy Homes. What happened in this instance was that a daily paper suggested that the teamster be helped, subscriptions began to come in and the amount is now almost raised, the man will get his house and several thousand people have had a very vivid and wholesome reminder that the possession of a home is one of the things to which every man ought to look forward with eager desire and for which he may well make sacrifices.

◆

Hand-to-Hand Fighting. It has been taken for granted by most people that the improvement of long-distance artillery and high explosives has already put an end to personal combat as an element of warfare. We think of the sword as only a relic of earlier days, like the vermiform appendix and the two buttons at the back of our frock coats—survivals of a past era that have outlived their usefulness—and we have been confidently looking forward to the time when the field-glass would wholly replace the sword as the symbol of the officer's authority. But it is not to be. There are signs of a revival of interest in hand-to-hand fighting as a mode of battle. An order has been issued for the equipment of the United States army with the new sixteen-inch Krag-Jorgensen bayonet, which is longer than the old one and is designed to offset the advantage which most other armies would have over ours in a bayonet encounter by reason of the unusual shortness of the magazine rifle now in use by our army. At the same time it has been ordered that all officers in the army and navy shall wear swords, and it is understood that military and naval cadets are to be instructed in the principles of jiu-jitsu.

All of this seems to indicate a belief that the art of warfare has not been entirely reduced to higher mathematics and scientific hygiene, and that all necessary fighting cannot be done by submarine torpedoes, dynamite guns with a range of ten miles, long-distance telephones and wireless telegraphy. Perhaps the Japanese are to be credited (or blamed) with this revival of the older style of fighting. In spite of their up-to-date scientific methods and equipment, they have shown in many instances during the past few months that there are exigencies in war where there is no substitute for the old-fashioned display of barbaric personal prowess with a weapon of cold steel. And perhaps it is just as well, for the sake of our love of peace, that we should remember that war, even after all modern improvements have been made, still involves such nasty processes as chopping a man's head open with a sword and sticking bayonets into people.

* * *

In the Name of Charity.

A series of entertainments recently given for the benefit of a popular and worthy charity in one of our cities showed the following net result: Total receipts, $1,172. Net profit, available for the charity, $49.99. Part of the expenses of the performance were borne by the participants. If these were deducted, even the slight balance of profit would be wiped out. But the figures ought to be sufficiently instructive as they stand. $49.99 is strongly suggestive of the bargain-counter, but it was an expensive bargain. The good people of the city were duly urged to buy tickets for charity's sake, and they did so. But of every dollar invested, ninety-five and a half cents went to pay expenses and four and a half went to charity. There is a venerable lie which used to be in active circulation to the effect that, out of every dollar given for foreign missions, only five cents actually reached the field, the remainder being consumed in the expenses of administration of the society which raised the money. That particular slander is no longer generally current, but here, in a different field of unselfish endeavor, is a case where the statement would be substantially true. The episode is no argument against charities, nor against the very excellent organization which was (only too little) the beneficiary of the entertainments mentioned. But it does fairly establish the fact that the most expensive kind of giving is the sort we do when we try to buy amusement for ourselves in the name of charity or religion. The ration of expenses to profits is not always as bad as in this case, though it is generally quite high enough to give one doubts. But the moral effect is nearly always bad. The way to give is to give, not to buy tickets to entertainments and charity balls.

Greed and Legislation.

Even in comparatively quiet times, when business is prosperous and strikes are not especially widespread or threatening, there are problems and troubles enough in the industrial world to give us anxious thought. J. J. Hill thinks that wages are too high, and that a general cut would tone up the economic situation. He does not say whether, in his judgment, the salaries of railroad presidents should be included in the cut, but we suspect that he would not insist on this point. A correspondent in one of the weekly papers, after reviewing the situation—strikes, trusts and all the rest—makes this contribution to the solution of the problem and the remedy of the evil conditions: "You ask: 'What is the real trouble?' I reply: 'Human selfishness.' What is the remedy? I believe the only remedy to be legislation which will limit the interest that any man may obtain from capital invested." The expedient suggested may or may not be a wise one. It may or may not be a possible one. But it seems curiously lacking in relevancy to what is called the root of the difficulty. He says, rightly enough, that human selfishness is the real trouble. But can legislation ever be a cure for selfishness? Surely not. Let us have the wisest and best legislation. Very likely we have not yet gotten nearly to the limit of legitimate legislation for the control of economic conditions. But this is not a cure. It is only a makeshift. A colony of chained wolves is not a colony of lambs. A society of selfish and greedy men more or less held in check by the restraints of law, is not a society of good men nor a good society. Let us strike at the root of the matter.

* * *

An Awful Innovation.

Now let the shades of all the ancients weep and classic ghosts bemoan the evil age. The last stronghold of the classic spirit has been taken by the assaulting forces of strenuous modernism. The high school graduating class motto has been done into twentieth century English. Time was when a class might as well not be graduated as to be without a Latin motto. There were some old favorites which rendered oft repeated service. There was "Esse quam videri," and "Ministrare non ministrari." Ours was "Certum pete finem." We nearly always knew what these mottoes meant, too, for that was in the days when we all studied Latin straight through the high school whether we wanted to or not, and when there was not much chance of getting into college without Greek unless one chose a school whose chief boast was that it did not require Greek. And so we went out with our crisp Latin mottoes, feeling that we were close akin to the classic worthies of all time and that we were the heirs of all the ages of scholarship, even though we had not yet entered into the whole of our inheritance. And now comes a high school class and, turning down all the sonorous Latin phrases which were doubtless suggested, announces this as its motto: "Don't foul, don't shirk, but hit the line hard." President Roosevelt's words, of course, and good sound doctrine. Not wholly different in meaning from our old friends, "Ad astra per aspera," and, "Palma non sine pulvere," for we must not get into the habit of thinking that strenuosity was invented during the present administration. But how shockingly lacking in classic flavor and academic aroma! If the Latin motto must go, we may as well abandon hope of stemming the tide, and go with it as fast as we can. So we suggest, as a suitably strenuous and modern motto for an enterprising high school class, that great American exhortation: "Play Ball."

* * *

The President's Trip.

Some apprehension was expressed as to the warmth of the President's welcome in Texas where he went to attend the Rough Riders' reunion at San Antonio on his way to the hunting grounds in Colorado. The Texas people are as firmly fixed in their opposition to social equality between the races as are the people of any southern state and it was conjectured that the Booker Washington luncheon and the Doctor Crum appointment might rankle unpleasantly in their memories. Perhaps they did, but if so the Texans gave no sign. They doubtless realized instinctively that social equality was not a present issue and need not be considered in determining their attitude to the President. Besides, the people of Texas are far too hospitable to give other than a warm greeting to their guest. And more than that, the Rough Rider element in Mr. Roosevelt's character is thoroughly appreciated in the great southwest, and the fact that he was there to attend a reunion of the regiment gave emphasis to that phase of the matter. All of this was easily predictable and those who cherished any suspicions to the contrary were quite uselessly alarmed.

* * *

John Paul Jones.

Ambassador Porter has found in Paris the body of John Paul Jones, the founder of the American navy. For five years the search has been going on and recently, when Congress took no action upon the President's recommendation for the expenses of the search, our ambassador continued this at his own expense. The subterranean mining in the old St. Louis cemetery, Paris, has at last been successful, and after one hundred years the body of the famous sailor was so well preserved that even an autopsy was possible and proofs of the disease from which the admiral is known to have died were shown. The body will be brought to America for reinterment.

What Does Church Membership Mean?

There is a very general agreement among us as to the conditions on which people may come into our churches, but we fear there is much lack of clearness of conviction and unity of sentiment on the question as to how they may go out. It is becoming a question in some churches whether any sort of unfaithfulness in Christian living, or any kind of immorality, constitutes a sufficient ground to withdraw fellowship from those who may be guilty of such offenses. As a matter of theory, we are agreed in saying that those who come into the church in the scriptural way are entitled to Christian fellowship so long as they maintain a Christian character; and that is the true New Testament idea of church fellowship. But as a matter of fact, do we live up to this rule? Are our churches making any serious attempt to live up to it?

There are lying before us, as we write, two questions relating to this subject, and based on two different passages of scripture. One of them requests our interpretation of Paul's statement in 1 Cor. 3:15: "If any man's work shall be burned he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved; yet so as through fire." This language, based on the figure of a building, is a warning against superficial work in building up the church of God. We may build perishable or imperishable material on the foundation. The work is to be tried. Only the true material will stand the test of fiery trials and temptations. It is an admonition to every preacher, to every evangelist, to every church official, to every Sunday-school teacher, and to every parent, to take heed how he builds. Half converted people add weakness, not strength, to the church. Those who add such material suffer loss, and they themselves will only be saved as by fire. One person truly converted to Jesus Christ, to become a sharer in his life, is of more power for good than a thousand people who have been persuaded to be baptized simply to become members of the church.

The other inquiry refers to Matt. 13:30, where Jesus says, speaking of the tares and the wheat: "Let both grow together until the harvest; and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers: Gather up first the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn." This brother says that in his church there are members who walk unworthily, absenting themselves from every service, and guilty even of profanity and drunkenness; "but when we try to draw the line," he says, "there are good brethren who say Christ said, 'Let both grow together until the harvest'; and they refuse to allow anything to be done." This is a clear perversion of the meaning of this passage. In the parable from which the language is taken, Jesus says, "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man that sowed good seed in his field; but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares also among the wheat, and went away." It was concerning the tares and wheat growing together in this field, that Jesus said, "Let them grow together until the harvest." But what is the field? When Jesus explained the parable, he said: "And the field is the world." It is not, therefore, the church. It is a lesson against religious persecution. Time was when the world tried to slay the church. The temptation would be, when the church gets into power, for it to use the authority of the state in persecuting non-Christians. This Jesus forbids in the parable of the wheat and the tares. It does not refer to what is usually called "church discipline."

There are many passages in the New Testament that teach the duty of the church to clear itself of evil-doers. On this question there have been two extremes, at different times and among different churches. Some are inclined to emphasize unduly what they call church discipline, and often turn young people out of the church for comparatively slight misdemeanors, and magnify little personal differences between brethren, and make them the occasion of church trials, greatly to the scandal of the church. This is a hurtful extreme. The church is made up of people who are learning and trying to live the Christian life. They are not perfect, but they love Christ, and desire to live so as to meet his approval. If such persons fall often, and yet desire in their hearts to mend their ways, the church should never cast them away, but forgive them as often as they repent, and seek to help them to stronger and truer lives. The other extreme is to ignore entirely the lives of church members, and to carry on the church roll names of persons who make no pretension any longer to Christian living; who spurn the church and its holy ordinances. This is equally far from the teaching and the spirit of the New Testament, and it is the extreme toward which we are now drifting.

Every church ought to revise the names on its church roll at least once a year, and see whether it is not carrying members along who cannot be found or identified. Many churches keep an absentee list of members. This is all right, provided the members are living where there is no church, and the church keeps in touch with them by correspondence. Often the church loses sight of such members, and knows nothing of their whereabouts. Such names should be stricken from the list; otherwise our church statistics are valueless.

It would be a profitable thing if we could return to the scriptural example of encouraging the weak; admonishing the erring; and seeking to win them back to their loyalty to Christ; and in building up our church membership in Christian life and character. In cases of real apostasy the church owes it to its own sense of self-respect, to its divine mission, and even to the offenders themselves, when they cannot be reclaimed, to publicly declare non-fellowship with them. This would make church membership mean something. As matters are, in many churches, we fear it has come to mean very little.

⁂

Our Opportunity and Responsibility.

We have come to a most interesting and crucial period in our history as a religious movement. American in its origin, the reformation which we plead has more than kept pace with the growth and development of the nation, and has won for itself a place among the leading religious forces of this country. Its spirit of liberty and of unity, based on loyalty to the personal Christ, has given it a prestige and power far beyond anything that could have been anticipated at the beginning. Our remarkable vigor in evangelistic work, and our phenomenal growth, together with the plea for unity which we have emphasized, have excited the attention and interest of the religious world and created certain expectations, or at least interrogations, as to our future. We are now at the point where we must furnish ampler proof than we have yet been able to do, in our short history, of our ability to cope with the great missionary and educational problems which sooner or later must confront every religious body.

We have been working at the missionary problem, both home and foreign, for some time, and the growth of this work has at least indicated the possibility of making good our claim to reproduce New Testament Christianity. It is only a beginning, however, which we have made. The only cause of our rejoicing is the increase which we are making from year to year in our offerings and missionary forces. We have by no means attained to the measure of our ability and of our responsibility in this work. It remains for us to show that in practice as well as in theory we believe in restoring the spirit of apostolic zeal and of self-sacrifice for the spread of the gospel which marked the early church.

The United States offers an open door and a most noble field for the Disciples of Christ. We are to the manner born. The plea for liberty, for loyalty, for unity, is indigenous to the American soil, and in perfect harmony with the very genius of our institutions. The rapid movement and intermingling of the people, native and foreign born, have broken up the fixed forms of religious belief and practice, which exist elsewhere, and have produced a condition of things most favorable for the reception of new and higher conceptions of truth. We have the prestige of past success. The gospel, as conceived and preached through the ministers and missionary agencies of this movement, makes its plea directly to the human conscience and the human will, forces upon men a sense of their responsibility, and tends to bring them to an immediate decision, upon their acceptance or rejection of Christ. The fields are calling for us. Ripening fields await the sickles of our reapers. Never did any people have a greater opportunity, and never did any people have a weightier responsibility.

The American Christian Missionary Society, our agent for the dissemination of the gospel in the United States of America, makes its appeal once a year for our offerings to carry on this great work. The first Lord's day in May is the time set for this offering. Every church and every individual member is hereby appealed to, by their love for the cause we plead, by their devotion to the Master, by their regard for the needs of communities, cities, states and territories, which are calling for help, to fall into line and make this offering of May 7 the most generous in our history. We owe it to ourselves, to our fellowmen, to the heroic sacrifices of our fathers, who gave themselves and their all for the promulgation of this cause, to make our offerings commensurate with our opportunity and our responsibility.

Notes and Comments.

One of our venerable subscribers, Bro. John Foster, who is eighty-four years old, as he writes, and who has been "a reader of the Christian, and Christian-Evangelist, besides a number of good books published by the Christian Publishing Company, and has generally been well pleased with both papers and books," begs leave to file a small criticism. He says: "I have read and re-read your comments on the Rockefeller gift to missions. Are large gifts acceptable while small ones are repudiated? About fifteen years ago the Christian-Evangelist commented very favorably on Bro. Simpson Ely's act when he promptly returned a saloon keeper's donation that came marked, 'From a saloon keeper.' The little sinner is often sent to the penitentiary and the big one to some United States office." Our venerable brother is right in supposing that the largeness of the gift ought not to influence the question of its acceptability. It is not the size of the gift that involves the principle under discussion, though it has no doubt served to attract the attention of the public to a greater extent by reason of its size. Brother Ely, we think, was right in refusing to accept money marked, "From a saloon keeper," for that was no doubt intended as a sort of challenge. Its meaning probably was, "Your opposition to the saloon is not genuine, as I will show by offering you some saloon money." If Mr. Rockefeller had marked his gift, "Standard Oil money," manifestly intending thereby to force an approval of the business methods of his company, the mission board would have been justified in returning it promptly. The case is altogether different when the money comes from an individual, who is a member in good standing in his church, and who is accustomed to giving large sums for religious and educational purposes without exacting any condition whatever as respects his business.

⁂

Referring to the "fraternal meeting" between the Baptist ministers and our own in this city which was held recently, an account of which was given in our columns, our neighbor, the Central Baptist, says:

> A frank and fraternal discussion followed, participated in by various brethren. It was not in any sense a debate, but a review of the lesser and larger differences between the two bodies. To prevent misunderstanding and to correct some possible misapprehension, two things need to be said about this meeting. In the first place there was the utmost good feeling on the part of all. A brotherly consideration was had of some points about which we are not agreed, and particularly of some questions which were the subjects of sharp contention three-quarters of a century ago. There was unrestrained liberty for every brother to speak his mind, and he did so without reservation and without offense. In the next place it needs to be said that there was no plan, or proposition, or schedule suggested for a union of the Baptists and Disciples. It was plainly recognized that there are some marked differences, particularly with respect to the place and significance of baptism in its relation to salvation. There was no attempt to either magnify or minify these differences. Some reports have gone out that are not quite warranted by facts.

It was indeed a "fraternal meeting," as our neighbor calls it, and the spirit of liberty to which our brother editor refers was no less marked than its spirit of fraternity. We believe the meeting accomplished the purpose which was had in view in holding it, viz., in promoting a better understanding of each other's positions and a greater spirit of brotherliness. We trust it will not be the last of such meetings. We do not know what reports have gone out to which the Central Baptist refers, but it is right in saying that "no plan, or proposition, or schedule was suggested for union of the Baptists and Disciples." "Plans and schedules" will take care of themselves when the time comes for real unity.

⁂

The manner in which leading scholars in all religious bodies now quietly admit that the New Testament baptism was immersion is indicated in the recent book by an eminent Scotch Presbyterian scholar, Dr. H. A. A. Kennedy, on "Paul's Conception of the Last Things" where he says:

> Baptism is, indeed, a vivid picture or illustration of the saving process. On the one hand, it sets forth the unseen experiences which are attained through faith. As the baptized person is plunged out of sight in the water, and then rises out of the cleansing element, a member of the Christian community, so does the believer, who by faith appropriates the benefits of Christ's atoning death and resurrection, pass out of contact with the sinful life of the flesh, annulled on the Cross, and rise in fellowship with the risen Lord to newness of life in the Spirit.

When all scholars have the frankness and feel at liberty to express themselves as freely as Dr. Kennedy has done, the baptismal problem will soon cease to be a cause of division among believers.

⁂

Replying to a question in the Christian Companion as to whether one who "belongs to the Methodist church and lives as he understands the Bible, will be lost," Bro. Briney says:

> It is our opinion that an unimmersed Methodist who lives a godly life, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, will be saved. The opinion is based upon general principles, including what we know of God's mercy and goodness. The sincere unimmersed Methodist makes a mistake in regard to baptism, but if all who make honest mistakes are to be lost, who, then, can be saved? But this consideration should not cause us to be less anxious to teach the unimmersed the way of the Lord more perfectly.

Some of the heresy hunters will no doubt call Brother Briney to trial before their little tribunals and pronounce him "unsound." But he is right in his opinion. Nor does it compromise one iota of our position, but on the contrary it strengthens it with all right thinking people by showing that it does not involve conclusions which antagonize our moral judgment, and cast discredit on God's character.

⁂

A correspondent wishes us to tell him how he may know he is a Christian. We happen to know the enquirer, and we venture to ask him how he knows he is a Democrat. We can readily anticipate his answer to that question: "I believe in the principles of the party and vote that ticket." Very well. If you believe in Jesus Christ with all your heart and "vote that ticket," you are a Christian. In other words, if you have given yourself to Christ, and are following him to the best of your ability, you are a Christian. If you love Christ and prefer to do his will rather than your own, you are a Christian. But if you "have not the spirit of Christ, you are none of his"—no matter how orthodox your creed or how regular your baptism. A Christian is a Christ-ed one—one annointed with Christ's spirit.

⁂

It is a sad day for any church when they begin to sing—

> "My town it is of thee,
> Home of my folks and me,
> Of thee I sing."
> —Missionary Union Tract.

The song would be appropriate, however, in many churches, where the spirit, if not the form, of their prayers, is, "Bless me and my wife; my son John and his wife; us four and no more"!

Editor's Easy Chair.

And so President Roosevelt is resting! The papers tell us how he is resting. Rather strenuous kind of rest, we should say, but it is rest, nevertheless. Change is rest. To turn the mind from one channel of thought into another; to look upon new scenes; meet with strange peoples; call into activity another set of muscles; and to have new experiences—that is rest. Collier's Weekly, referring to the President's outing, says:

> "We know nothing healthier than Mr. Roosevelt. His diet is as simple as the diet of the Japanese. The pleasures he seeks all tend to health and longevity. The danger which lurks in grizzly bears, mountain lions, or whatever animals he may come across, is as nothing compared to the dangers of inaction and the artificial life. Perhaps his hunting is mainly for air and exercise, like following an aniseed bag, and he may see few things more ferocious than a coyote or jack rabbit. Whatever he kills, or fails to kill, he is happy in the West, in the open air, in the exercise of his body, with the sky above him and the fresh breezes in his face. Reporters, cameras and speeches all along the route do not destroy the naturalness of the outing. The President on his spree is enjoying life as thoroughly, spontaneously, and wholesomely as a lot of boys at baseball or old hundred."

A man's capacity to make a boy of himself; to cast off his work and play, other things being equal, is the measure of his longevity and of his usefulness while living. We have known many a man to cease his work permanently because he did not learn to throw it aside temporarily and play.

◆

The man who is always looking for faults and blemishes in his neighbors or fellowmen soon comes to the point where he can see nothing else. To hear such a one describe the people and the world of to-day you would conclude that Christianity was a failure and humanity was on its way rapidly to the demnition bow-wows. There is a certain bird that sails very gracefully through the summer air, over beautiful landscapes full of life and beauty, but there is only one thing that seems to attract its attention and to be the object of its search; it is carrion! So these perverted people seem to have no eyes to see the vast amount of good there is in the world, and have no word of praise for the many noble, unselfish deeds and humble but heroic lives of which our current history is so full. They see the evil only, and do not see that so much with a view to removing it or curing it as to enlarge upon it and give it wide publicity. Some one has said, substantially at least, that

"There is so much that is good in the worst of us,
And so much that is bad in the best of us,
That it does not behoove any of us
To talk about the rest of us."

If every one of us should seek diligently to see the evil in himself and the good in his neighbors, it would make this world a vastly better place to live in.

◆

If anything could demonstrate the supreme selfishness which dominates the saloon business it is the opposition that is now being manifested by the saloons and breweries against the enforcement of the Sunday closing law. There is no denying the fact that crime is greatly lessened, that drunkenness is vastly decreased, that much better order prevails throughout the community, with closed saloons than with open saloons. Nor is it difficult to calculate how much this means to the homes and families of those addicted to strong drink. How many comforts this means to the wife and children, which would otherwise go into the till of the saloon keeper! Now, against all this good order, freedom from arrests, and domestic quiet and happiness, the saloon business puts its loss of Sunday receipts, and the latter outweighs the former! We say the saloon business because we dislike to think that the men who are engaged in the business are wholly devoid of human feeling, and are unable to appreciate the good resulting from the closing of their saloons on Sunday. They are probably the victims, in a measure, of the bad business in which they are engaged. No doubt, in their better moments, many of them wish they were out of it. They can not fail to see the vice and crime which are fostered, and often bred, by their traffic. If there were only some way of reaching their better nature and appealing to their sense of right and justice, they could certainly be made to see that no amount of money in the till can compensate for the broken hearts, the bitter tears, the domestic tragedies, the public disorder and expense which result from the open saloon. But have not the churches almost abandoned them as beyond the reach of reason and the power of the gospel? If only the closed saloon would bring to these men the opportunity of coming in contact with the higher motives which should govern life, and of catching glimpses of the great spiritual realities which make life worth living, then the closing of the saloons would be a double blessing. How can we bring the saloon keeper face to face with his business and with his God?

◆

Only a faded apple blossom! This morning when it was plucked from the tree it was a thing of beauty. It seemed to have come fresh from the hand of the Maker. How delicate were the pencilings of its petals, and how symmetrical its corolla, its stamen, and the green leaves which furnished its background! At noon it is withered, and its beauty is passing away. How transient has been its life! And yet, who will say that it has lived and flourished in vain? There is no flower that is "born to blush unseen, and waste its sweetness on the desert air." We love to think that everything fair and beautiful in God's creation accomplishes its mission. If this withered apple blossom shall only serve to remind us how brief and evanescent is our human life, may it not have accomplished a great and useful purpose? It is the practical Peter who quotes the prophetic word from Isaiah,

"All flesh is as grass,
And all the glory thereof as the flower of grass,
The grass withereth, and the flower falleth;
But the word of the Lord abideth forever."

And James too, reminding the rich and poor that the distinctions between them are artificial and temporary, says: "As the flower of the grass he shall pass away. For the sun ariseth with a scorching wind, and withereth the grass: and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth; so also shall the rich man fade away in his goings." Even so, withered and faded apple blossom, you have preached your little sermon to us to-day by reminding us that all that is outward and material of this life shall soon fade away, but the word of the Lord—even the word which you have brought to us—shall abide forever!

◆

Glad Easter, with its fragrant lilies, its sweet music, its inspiring messages from the pulpit, has passed, and we felt its holy influence upon our hearts. But how about its permanent effects upon our lives? Shall we continue to live, many of us, as if Christ had never risen, and were not the most potent and majestic personality at work in the world to-day? Now that we have caught a fresh vision of the risen Christ, will we "seek those things that are above," or shall we continue to be absorbed, very largely, with the things that are below, that perish with their using? After all, is not the value of the Easter observance to be measured by its influence upon our lives and character? It is hardly possible for one who has ever had a real vision of life as it is seen from the mouth of the open sepulcher to ever live again the old life of bondage to the material and the temporal. We have a right to expect that henceforth our worship will be more spiritual, our actions more unselfish, our giving more generous, our labors more abundant, our faith more triumphant under adversities and afflictions, our conduct more blameless, our characters more Christlike, because we have gone with the disciples of old once more to the sepulcher of Christ, and have found it empty, and have seen the vision of angels pointing upward and saying, "He is not here; He is risen!"

◆ ◆

This is the will of Him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day.

Our Congregationalism; Its Perils and Safeguards*

By W. A. Parker

If the position be established that it is not the specified forms of New Testament church life, but the principle of "the ruling power vested in the common people," which constitutes Congregationalism, we may conclude that the identification of the church of to-day with the body of Christ, is not a matter of its formal correspondence to the primitive type, but of its power to initiate new and living forms. The use of the scriptures to preserve cherished customs, however useful, in any past period, but which have lost their power for the present, is a perversion of scripture. A polity, therefore, which may seem to have departed far from the original form, is to be judged by the measure to which it secures the divinely intended ends, of knowing and doing the truth. The defenses of Congregationalism are to be based upon the spiritual quality of its service; upon its provision of an atmosphere of freedom and spontaneity wherein the finer fruits of character ripen to highest perfection.

The advantages of Congregationalism for spiritual culture have become historically apparent. Its characteristics are transcendent faith, and a clear vision of divine things. Its confidence is in the propelling forces, rather than in the responding appliances. Its primal trust rests in the primal cause. Its columns follow not Moses, but the banner of fire. Its superior liberties combine in greater power to know, with greater impulse to do. Its lack of patented mechanisms is at once its weakness and its strength. Emergencies are turned to account in the making of men. Occasions for consecration are required to perfect it. The final test of the system is the men it makes.

The problem of the church is to provide such methods for unified effort as shall secure effectiveness without repression; to unite the superior vision and spirit of its service with such conserving plans as may attain the double end of assured social results and of unfettered individual development.

Our Congregationalism, like that of the primitive churches, was due primarily to the incidental necessities of the early period. The remoteness of the communities of the reformers, and their zeal for the propagation of the cause in the immediate localities, would have made any movement toward the association of congregations impracticable. But strong reasons animated the leaders to avoid any approach to those synodical and episcopal councils, that were the principal conservators of the sectarianism they had abandoned, that they might oppose. The appeal to the New Testament as the warrant of all their practices, led to a consistently literal avoidance of all but the simplest forms of co-operation. The spirit of sectism, which grew out of the individualistic reaction against authority in Europe, had its effect in propagating the schisms of the time, and, although our leaders declaimed stoutly against the forms of the resulting sectarianism, its individualistic spirit undoubtedly operated to prolong the prejudices among us, against all customs which were likely to have a restraining effect upon freedom.

With the rise of our co-operative efforts for the evangelization of the world, a new spirit became manifest in the movement, indicating its presence in the twofold way of saving the people from self-consciousness, while bringing them into living relations with their real work. The reactive results of our missionary and benevolent work have been the stimulus to a higher order of life in the churches. Obedience has increased the will and the power to obey. And our efforts abroad have served to relate us more vitally with the great spiritual agencies of our generation, in a comparative way that, while it has brought to us some degree of humility, has given us a more just appreciation of the consecration of those whom we are seeking to interest in our program of Christian union.

The absence of a written form of constitutional purpose, and the lack of any statement of our paramount plea, suggests the peculiar liability of the Disciples of Christ to an unconscious degeneracy. "We ought therefore to give the more earnest heed to the things that we have heard, lest haply we drift away from them." The decision of the fathers, to abandon the accepted standards of present truth, and to refrain from imposing intellectual forms upon the thought of the future, marked an epoch of progress in the world's quest of the Eternal. With them, "the canonization of anything but the Infinite was a mistake. To fix the standards of truth and goodness in any utterance save the utterance of God in Christ, or in any character save the character of God in Christ, was in the nature of an outrage," not only upon the truth and goodness themselves, but "upon humanity." The wisdom of the step will be vindicated only by the successful indoctrination of our people with the primitive purposes of the movement, and the inspiring vision essential to be "instant in season" in urging them to acceptance.

But the signs are not wanting that indicate in some quarters either the lack of knowledge of the primal purposes, or the tendency to depart from them, in the passion for sectarian growth. Beyond question, the development of the organization and the numerical growth of the Disciples was necessary, and is yet necessary, in order to the accomplishment of our primary aim. The evangelization of the cities, the support of missionary enterprises, the endowment of colleges, the fostering of religious journals, are all and severally essential to the continuation of our organized life, to its intended ultimate, in the unity of the people of God. But the temptations to power, resulting from the successes of our evangelism, and the no less remarkable pastoral successes in various cities, have begotten in many a loyalty to party which is at variance with the spirit of Christ as much as are those forms of denominational zeal which it was the hope of the fathers to supplant with a nobler plea.

It is both the logical and legitimate tendency of every department of our organized work to encourage our continued growth as a separate people. The watchwords of our missionary societies comprehend a world-wide imperialism that awaits but the enabling consecration of money and men. The primary end of our competitive endeavors in our over-churched local communities is making Disciples, of a more or less distinctive kind, looking to an ultimate of social coherence and Christian solidarity.

What is needed is not less of the evangelistic earnestness and the missionary enterprise that has already won for us so conspicuous a witness of the favor of God and the timeliness of our message, but a new anointing of our eyes for the vision of to-day's task. We have come upon the times for the respectful hearing which the fathers sought and found not. We have reached the period of possible co-operation in a hundred ways. The Christian Association which in Washington, Pennsylvania, was an impossible undertaking is now possible in any community where the spirit of the Lord is on a single man. "That we are not more eager in our pursuit of this supreme goal of our movement, reveals to what extent we have become committed to a selfish policy of party promotion, and to what degree the ideals of the movement have been dimmed and forgotten. It is the instant duty of the churches to return to a new devotion to the spirit of our plea, and to set the great and growing power of our organizations to its accomplishment."

Our safety lies in the direction of a constantly heightening social average, rising to meet the emergencies of social progress animated by the spirit of the living truth. Failing in this, our vision is gone. And the greatness of our fall is in proportion to the altitude

(Continued on page 540.)

---

*A paper read at the Disciples' Congress, abbreviated.

The New Neology

By William Durban

Prelude.

In our English work there are bright gleams here and there. Dr. Henry, the distinguished American missioner and temperance advocate, is conducting a protracted meeting at West London Tabernacle, at which sanctuary the ministry of Mark Wayne Williams is being richly blessed. The church has recently received many additions through conversions in the congregation. They are the more welcome as West London Tabernacle, being in the inner suburban ring, is apt to be periodically depleted by the stream of removals of respectable families into the beautiful and growing outer suburbs of Chiswick, Kew, Ealing, Hounslow, etc. Brother Williams the other day sent me a card reporting the ingathering, with the observation, "We are all in ecstasies." I understand that T. H. Bates and E. M. Todd are both likely to sail in May for America. The churches which they will leave will be anxiously awaiting the filling of the pulpits. It must not be hastily concluded because several of our churches of Christ will be pastorless together, therefore short pastorates are in vogue among us. Brothers Todd and Bates have worked on steadily for several years in this country. Several of us preached for long years in one sphere, shifting to others only when urgently called on to do so. Our churches are not capricious or restless, and those which are now losing their ministers are manifesting deep regret at the changes. It is a great honor to several American preachers that they have stayed so long in this country, proof against inducements to return soon to their native land. And I believe that those who have again settled in America after a long English experience, cherish a warm heart toward us, knowing our difficulties. I do not hear that they disparage us. It is good to know that other American brethren are coming over, if arrangements can be made, to fill one or two of the vacancies. For the effect of an American element here is excellent. It corrects the tendency amongst us Englanders to over-conservatism in thought.

Neology Instead of Theology.

Intently and carefully watching from my vantage-point in London the various continental and British currents of religious thought, I notice with profound hopefulness one very conspicuous feature of an entirely novel character. In past periods French infidelity, German rationalism, and British scepticism have alike been characterized by the coldest cynicism. Unbelief has hitherto been allied for the most part with freezing selfishness. For instance, the high-priests of atheism of the last century delighted to avow themselves pure Hedonists. I recollect when W. Bradlaugh discoursed elaborately on the philosophy of self-satisfaction. He brutally explained that the main rule of life must be the attainment of whatever was pleasing to one's self. But under the rule of Bradlaugh British atheism did not flourish. In Germany unbelief lapsed into pessimism as defined by Hartmann and Schopenhauer. Life was declared not to be worth living, and accordingly suicides increased at a frightful rate. But various new departures ensued. There was something too repellent in this icy philosophy of godlessness. It was found that if God was put out many devils walked in. So instead of turning atheists multitudes of the people who did not accept Christianity simply lapsed into religious indifference. This was not what the rationalists bargained for. So in France arose August Comte with his bust of Clotilde, crowned on an altar with flowers, and clouded in incense. His religion of humanity, or positivist cult, bewitched such men of genius in England as Mr. Frederic Harrison and Mr. Congreve. But again there was only abject failure. The worship of humanity did not "catch on" with the masses, nor indeed with the classes. It collapsed like the Voltaireanism of the 18th century, though that had a far longer and more powerful reign. And of late years the main German current of unbelief has been the curious and bewildering monist philosophy of Haeckel. This is being widely disseminated by cheap literature in Britain. But it is realized by the vast majority of even unbelievers that Haeckelism is a mere vagary of a most brilliant mind. Haeckel's attacks on Christ and the Virgin Mary are so savage and so intolerably coarse that the publishers of the latest English edition have been constrained to omit certain sections of his "Riddle of the Universe." And the anti-Haeckel writers, in his own country more especially, led by Prof. Friedrich Loofs of the University of Halle, have triumphantly demolished the elaborate fabric of monist sophistry. Monism is slaughtered on the Teuton battlefield. Monism was exultingly declared to have actually abolished God as an entity in thought. Matter as a monad had taken the place of deity. Eternal matter was the real, everlasting deity. But Germany is tired of this sort of idol. And in both England and the continental countries one more new departure is now being tried. I will now allude to it. It is the new neology of one of the great schools of the socialists.

Sociological Neology.

The worship of humanity unfortunately never did anything at all for the good of poor humanity. It turns out in its creed to be vox et prœterea nihil. And though people in any numbers are always quite willing to listen to any charming or alluring voice crying in the wilderness, they expect something tangible and substantial to follow. But hitherto all the heralds of unbelief have been shadowy shams. Hundreds of infidels have left their families to starve till Christian philanthropists fed them. Not a single friendly society or benevolent club of any sort has ever, in England at any rate, been founded by infidels. All the hospitals, almshouses, orphanages, and refuges for the indigent, the aged, the helpless, are the work of the much abused churches and their members. When hospital Sunday comes round the Christian societies of all names and orders rally magnificently and pour into the treasuries of the charities vast sums. The sceptics never put in any appearance in this kind of category. But at length there are signs of a singular attempt to vitalize the torpid and moribund body of modern scepticism. The new neology seeks now to appropriate the methods of religionism, though there is a most suspicious air of mere theory about the fresh manifestation. The latest phenomenon is the substitution of social enthusiasm for religion. We are to do without doctrine. We are not to trouble about another world, but to sweep all the trouble out of this one. The parsons and the churches are derided for their useless other-worldliness. I have in mind several kindly and intelligent public men. They are now agitating for the creation of farm colonies, of labor bureaux, of new authorities to deal with the vast unemployed. But it seems sad that these very men, as far as I know them—and I know some of the ablest—are hostile to all evangelical religion. They look on organized Christianity with contempt. They have no sympathy with the churches, and take not the slightest interest in Sunday-schools. They never listen to a sermon. Yet they are not infidels and are enthusiastic about their schemes, some of which are truly commendable. But they never seem to see that thousands of churches and multitudes of Christians have been for many years aiming at getting these very schemes established, and that multitudes of institutions for the good of the needy are doing a quiet but glorious work all over the world which would never have been heard of but for positive Christianity. The favorite plan to-day with a large class of intellectuals is to divorce godliness and humanity, to cultivate humanitarianism without religion, and to ignore all the good done in the name or through the instrumentality of Christianity. Unbelief is appearing in a new guise. We are entering on the age of institutional Christianity. This will simply be applied Christianity. It

(Continued on page 541.)

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

The Holy Spirit is moving our people everywhere in the interest of home missions. Guided by his counsels we must respond to the demand on every side for larger gifts and labors for the home field. The Holy Spirit is himself a missionary. "I will send him unto you." The Spirit has to-day as his peculiar mission and office the conversion and sanctification of the world through the word, ordinances, and people of God. The Holy Spirit endues men and women for this service. On Pentecost he came as promised, brought all things to the remembrance of the apostles, endued them with power, and convinced the Jews through their teaching. They were Spirit-led, Spirit-filled, Spirit-fitted, Spirit-used men.

And this gracious gift, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, which is the striking feature of the new dispensation, is universal. "I will pour forth of my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." Not by age, sex, race, or social condition was this limited. All may receive the illuminating, life-giving, service-fitting power. Not as given to the apostles does the gift come to us. Men to-day are not made ambassadors for Christ, endowed with the gift of inspiration or clothed with miracle-working power. In this sense the apostles have no successors. But every obedient believer receives the gift. Impartation of the Spirit was the great final aim of the gospel, the last and crowning promise to the church on earth. Hence the great question in primitive times was not: "Have you made a profession of religion?" "Have you experienced a hope?" but "Have you received the Holy Spirit since you believed?" No man can be accepted of God or fruitful in his service without this divine indwelling. No church can be organized after the divine pattern, in union with the divine Head, harmonious in its parts, and successful in its operations without this divine living, personal, abiding fellowship with God through the Spirit here and now. No people under the influence of the Spirit of God can fail to give heed to the command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." We are to go forth in the power of the Spirit, taking the sword of the Spirit which is the word of God, and praying always with all prayer, and in the Spirit; and so shall we convince the world of sin, righteousness, and judgment to come, and the spirit of glory and of God shall rest upon us.

The Holy Spirit reveals the divine order of missions. "Repentance and remission of sins shall be preached in my name among all nations beginning at Jerusalem." "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." Jerusalem was the city of solemnities. Hither the tribes came up. Here was the temple, the metropolis of David's kingdom. Here the place of peril; the gospel could best be tested and the witnessing would be most effective. Here was the center of Jewish influence and power, and the gospel is first to be preached to the lost sheep of the House of Israel. Here, too, is a suggestion of the order in which all missionary work is to be performed. Is it not true of the sphere of every soul that it has first a Jerusalem, and then a Judea, then a Samaria, then an uttermost part of the earth? This was the order of apostolic missions: Jerusalem the place of the reception of the Spirit is also the place where the witness of the Spirit commences; Samaria, the mission field white for the harvest, our Lord names as the middle station between Jerusalem and the land of the Gentiles; and "the uttermost parts of the earth" is Rome, for there all nations united in the capital of the world. The order of history perfectly accords with the order of testimony. Jerusalem, Acts, chapters 1 to 7; Judea, 9 to 12; Samaria, 8; the world, 13 to the end.

Such is the order still. The Holy Spirit makes no distinction between home and foreign missions. Through a gospel for all the world he is to convince every one of sin, righteousness, and judgment to come. In the home field the work begins. Every man owes his first obligation to America. A five cent contribution was sent some time ago to the conscience fund of the Treasury Department at Washington marked, "What I think I owe the United States." With many a man this is the measure of what he feels is his obligation to the great work of saving his own country. Yet as the first and highest obligation, the Spirit of God lays upon our hearts the evangelization of America. It is first America, and then through America, the world. More and more does America seem divinely called to bear the light of Christianity unto all nations. The work of foreign missions can go no farther than the increase of the work at home will justify. From the heights of this favored land the water of life must flow down to the spiritual wilderness of heathendom. From our elevated outlook we trace the stream. It widens and widens to the river. It fills the valley. It stretches away before our vision until, with the soldiers of Xenophon, we cry: "Thalassa! Thalassa!" the sea! the sea! and then away, away to the wide ocean, until the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the great deep.

The Holy Spirit unfolds the true scope of missions. He is the Administrator of missions. We are in the magnificent parenthesis of history between the ascension and the second coming of the Master. In the divine economy to the Holy Spirit has been committed the office of applying the redemption of the Son to the souls of men. As the apostles were under the personal guidance of the Christ, so are we under the personal guidance of the Spirit. "It seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us," is the artless word of the Jerusalem council. Peter and Paul and James and Barnabas were present in that assembly, but another and more august person was there also, the Holy Spirit, the executive of the Godhead. He dictates the divine program of missions. The first word in the history of missions is, "The Holy Spirit said, separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. So they, being sent forth by the Holy Spirit, departed." He not only calls and sends, but he restrains and hinders. Paul and his companions were "forbidden of the Holy Spirit to preach the word in Asia, and assayed to go to Bithynia, but the Spirit suffered them not."

To operate in harmony with the Spirit we must understand the scope of missions. The trouble with us is we are sanctified in spots. Certain great causes are plead with all the fervor of apostolic zeal and others languish. Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit the church was developed symmetrically. The scope of missions involves first the enlistment of the whole church. The body was one and all had part in the fellowship. All should share. Christian union means a living, active co-operation on the part of all the members of the body. As far back as 1842 Alexander Campbell wrote of what he termed "the great need of a more rational and scriptural organization." "We can do comparatively but little," he said, "in the great mission field of the world, either at home or abroad, without co-operation. We can not concentrate the actions of the tens of thousands of Israel on any great effort without co-operation. We can have no thorough co-operation without a more ample, extensive and thorough Christian organization." Here then is the supreme need. We must stand together. Our whole brotherhood should be as one man in this work of evangelizing America. We should educate the preachers, give the people light, learn that the great commission is also a great permission, blot out forever the names "Anti" and "Progressive," and as one body stand together for the one faith and its full triumph. As Nelson said at Trafalgar, "England expects every man to do his duty."

Then the scope of missions involves

Continued on page 541.)

A Dispatch From the Firing Line

By John A. Stevens

I am on a tour of 51 churches in the heart of Missouri. I find that our people are so strong and well entrenched throughout the state that they can hardly imagine the situation away out on the frontier border of our brotherhood. They feel that the attitude of the world and the denominations has changed with reference to our people. Out on the firing line it looks like anybody ought to know better, but when one gets up into Missouri, even though he be fresh from the front, he feels himself that the attitude in general has changed toward our people. But really it is like the old woman who had been out in the cold all day and came into a warm room. When she sat there awhile she remarked, "I am glad the weather has moderated." The truth is that things have "moderated" up in Missouri, but out on the front the "weather" is just the same and more bitter than it was in the days of "Raccoon" John Smith. In the days when our forefathers went into the wilderness to preach they had no members to stand as specimens or "products" of the gospel they preached. The ideals they preached were not spoiled by a straggling half dozen of "has been" Disciples, whom the community knows to be apostates and little, if any, better than the average man of the world. Five out of ten of the unchurched, unhoused, unpastored Disciples that we missionaries find straggling around in missionary territory have years ago fallen from grace and have only the crudest materialistic framework of their religion left standing. Some have forgotten all about what we teach except that they have strong literalistic views on baptism. Some complacently admit that they are "Campbellites" and would just as soon have that name as any.

The greatest meeting I ever had was in a town of 6,500 people where we had but two members in the whole city and none to take membership. These two members were good Christian people and everybody knew it. The next greatest work I ever did was where we did not have a single member—nobody to give the lie to the ideals that I preached. There were 69 from the denominations who came into our church at the last mentioned place, besides a "great company" from the world. The thoughtful man will see at once that, in the language of A. J. Marshall, of St. Louis, "it will take ten times the evangelistic strength to reach the same results on the front to-day that it took in the days of our fathers." Our fathers met a sectarianism, unorganized and at war with itself. We missionaries of to-day meet an intrenched, organized sectarianism that has "agreed to disagree" and is calling this state of affairs "essential unity." Take this situation and give them our straggling, unkempt specimens to point out to us as the "product" of our plea, and you can have an idea of what the twentieth century evangelist has to contend with. I am not criticising these "fallen ones." It is a wonder that some of them ever remembered that they were even "Campbellites." I have found Disciples who had not heard a sermon or seen one of their brethren for 37 years. I found one dear old woman who went 40 years without ever seeing the face or hearing the voice of one of her people. She, however, took her church papers and kept her faith alive and her spirit fervent during all these years. After spending 40 years in the Romanistic wilderness of Louisiana she moved to the state of Mississippi and appealed to our boards, state and national, and caused the writer to be sent to her relief. She lived to see four churches planted in and around her town and died at the age of 87. Ninety-nine chances to one, had it not been for the American Christian Missionary Society, that saint of God would have lived and died, as thousands have done, still "waiting and watching" for evangelistic relief. There are three hundred appeals, more or less similar, in the desk of our national secretary to-day. These appeals can only be answered by the liberality of our churches on the first Lord's day in May.

If our people could stand upon the moon and take a glance at the destitute conditions surrounding thousands of our people who have scattered away into the missionary territories on the borders of our land, there would be $200,000 placed in the hands of our general secretary on the first Lord's day in May. I am often asked if the bitterness and persecution endured by our fathers is still experienced by our missionary evangelists. The answer to this question is that the persecution is not so open as in the days of our fathers and yet far more effective. The farther away from our people, however, that the preaching is done, the more easily is the situation handled. The arrangements made for defeating us are not so well planned in the far distant mission fields as in those closer to the border of our brotherhood.

Parts of South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana are absolutely without knowledge of us and know none of the subterfuges to which others resort in defeating us. There are sometimes five to eight counties in a block where they do not even know of the "Campbellites," to say nothing of the Disciples. In parts of the country in this condition they sit and listen in amazement. They are never stirred to opposition until their friends and relatives and church members begin to join us. Then, as a matter of course, they use whatever means they can command in trying to accomplish our defeat.

If you think that the battle has been fought, the victory won, and the controversial period ended, you are much mistaken. Ask J. L. Haddock, the hero of Baton Rouge, La., what he thinks of the controversial period and he will tell you that it all depends upon the part of the country in which you work. The "periods" of our existence are about as sensible as the famed "Stone Age," "Bronze Age," and "Iron Age." A moment's thought is sufficient for anyone to see that the "Stone Age" was in existence at one place while the "Bronze Age" and the "Iron Age" were in existence at other places, all at the same time. So it is with our situation. We are now in the "spiritualizing" period in Missouri but in the "debating" period in Louisiana, and will be for years to come. There are several things, however, at the present time that are much in our favor. While it is a fact that each child of denominational parents is as much a Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, etc., as his parents, and that whatever will move him is liable to dissatisfy his parents with their church, and while it is the duty of the evangelist to untie the feet of the unsaved, even though it should remove their Christian parents from their denominationalism into our church, the loss of faith in the "get religion" theory is making this consummation all the time easier.

Denominationalism which includes every sinner born and reared in a denomination is losing faith in a miraculous conversion. They are in a transition period. Many of them are swinging toward a latent skepticism, having never heard of anything but miraculous conversion and having lost faith in that, they have but little faith left in anything. They are seeking ease of mind through their own churches, but, as a matter of fact, cannot find it. We have what the people need. Now is our accepted time to step into the breach and lead these people to New Testament Christianity. Two thousand evangelists could be put to work in a day if we had the means to support them. Let the people come up strong on the first Lord's day in May and help our general board to increase the number of our missionary evangelists to at least one thousand. But more anon.

Dallas, Texas.

* *

Life is an earnest business, and no man was ever made great or good by a diet of broad grins.—Blackie.

*

Confidence of success is almost success; and obstacles often fall of themselves before a determination to overcome them.—Moir.

Letters From a Retired Minister

Los Angeles, April 3, 19—.

My Dear Nephew:—All of March got by without my getting a letter to you. I haven't been very well, in fact my doctor is beginning to object strenuously to my writing so much. I suspect the time isn't far off when I shall have to close these letters, much as I should like to continue them. My heart goes out to you always, Will. I find myself studying your problems and now and then doing a bit of planning for you. Your buoyant spirit is good to note. Cultivate it. Keep sweet whatever happens. Be wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove.

I do want you to miss entirely some pits into which really able preachers have fallen. Try to be every inch a man. Gregory the Great used to say that a preacher wins more to the Master by his acts than his words, and marks out the path of a godly life rather by his footsteps than by his speech alone. "He [the preacher]," says Gregory, "is to be like the barn-door cock which, when it is about to crow, first shakes its wings and thus beating itself awakens a greater earnestness; so it is incumbent on those who are about to utter the sacred words of holy office to rouse themselves beforehand to care for a godly life; lest while wanting in practical godliness they should vainly try to move others by mere empty phrases."

Watch your head, Will. Romans 12:3 is a mighty good text for a young fellow in the ministry to feed on. Have confidence in yourself—that's all right—but let it be a confidence begotten by a lively dependence on God, supplemented by hard work on your part. If you would renew your strength, lean hard on him. The best preachers are the God-made kind. Arrogance will eventually kill a top-notcher. I once knew a preacher of extraordinary brilliancy, who, at the conclusion of a really superb sermon, struck an attitude and said, "Now, brethren, don't go home to-day and talk about the eloquent sermon I preached; go home and talk about Jesus Christ." I knew another who stopped short in the midst of a fine, fluent sermon to quote a poem, and introduced the verse by telling his hearers that he had been assured by a certain professor of oratory that his (the preacher's) interpretation of this particular poem was the very finest he (the professor) had ever heard. Imagine Phillips Brooks or Theodore Cuyler doing a thing like that! Both performances were too much like a cow giving a bucket of cream, and then kicking it over. So I say, study Romans 12:3. Every man ought to begin early in life to cultivate the art of taking second place. No matter how brilliant a man may be he can't expect always and everywhere to do all the shining. The good Lord has balanced up things pretty well. No one man excels in everything. If a man is a pulpit star of the first magnitude (and they are few and far between), he is usually, but not always, an indifferent pastor. And if a man is a splendid pastor and a tip-top executive officer, it frequently happens he is not so able when it comes to the sermon. I pity the fellow who is always after the center of the stage, and pouts if he doesn't get it. Beware of the green-eyed monster! He gets into the ministerial menagerie sometimes, and always makes trouble. James put it pointedly: "Where jealousy and faction are, there is confusion." Be big-minded, Will, in the admirable sense of the phase. Go out of your way to do a kind deed or speak a good word for a worthy brother minister. Don't "damn with faint praise." Don't grow sarcastic when some other fellow's praise is being sung, and be all ears when somebody is saying nice things about yourself. Of course it takes some grace to sit smiling and nodding when for the fortieth time you are told of your predecessor's accomplishments. But that is all right. If you do your level best, the time will come when your successor will be hearing a plenty about your success. I don't mention this as a source of consolation, but simply to point out a red streak of human nature, to-wit: that few of us appreciate or are appreciated till vicissitude or death separates or removes. Praise is always pleasant when it is deserved, but don't expect it very often. If you do, you are laboring for the meat that perishes. Praise the other fellow every opportunity you get—that's a different matter. Praise, expecting nothing in return, for it's more blessed to praise than to be praised.

Don't be too critical, Will. I want to say to you that the most criticising I've done in my life I'm doing in these letters. And I'm doing this to help you. As I see it, there's a certain sort of low criticism that's a heap more dangerous than the so-called "higher" kind.

I am enclosing a list of some books you ought to read very studiously. You will note they cover just two subjects, sociology and missions. I advise you to give sociological subjects some little attention. The preacher of this twentieth century must do this. If your theology is devoid of sociology, I fear your ministry won't show much fruit. Religion, to be a vital thing, must find expression in lively deeds of philanthropy. As I see it, sociology stands related to theology as does works to faith. Sociology is applied Christianity. As for missions, well, you must know the church exists only to carry the good tidings to all the world. I hope you'll become a great missionary pastor. Don't be afraid of preaching too often on missionary subjects, provided you give the sermons the same careful preparation you would a baccalaureate. Read these books on my list. They will put iron into your blood and fire into your sermons.

"The Lord bless you, and keep you,
The Lord make his face to shine upon you."

Affectionately your uncle,
William Prentice.

P. S.—I don't think I should talk very much in the pulpit about sociology, that is, I mean don't call it by that name.—W. P.

Our Congregationalism.

(Continued from page 536.)

of our attainment. The greater glory of our past success becomes the equal shame of our present defeat. The catholicity of our faith is the fair background of our dark and partisan defense. The motto of the fathers, "Where the Scriptures speak," by which they were able to distinguish between the dead formalism and the living symbol, has declined for us into a coarse cry of literalism to dull our ears to "What the Holy Spirit speaks." Our attempt at embodiment of the living truth has been abortive. Our concepts of the unwritten gospel have proven unelastic and temporary. Our eyes have closed to the reality of the truth revealed in spiritual experience. Our witness to the worth of the "original vision of divine things" has become an inexpedient glorying in the memorable epiphanies of patriarchs and prophets, whose heritage of hope and faith we have forfeited for a spiritual formalism.

There are indications of a mighty movement toward Christian unity. Though manifest in forms that suggest the diplomatic and economic movements of the times, rather than a voluntary and spirited abandonment of the strife camps of sectarianism for the City of Peace, let it be ours to contribute the elements of high spirituality to the social tendency toward organic centralization. It is our privilege to lead in the agreement to abandon the competitive attitude. It is our joy to witness to the good pleasure of our Lord in such a consummation. It is our glory that such a condition may be made the precedent preparation for that world-wide conquest which our present agencies are set to accomplish, but which "waits the consummation of peace forevermore" among them that are the Lord's. His prayer is yet our program; his method is the path of true success. He is "the door; if by him we enter in, we shall be saved" from the degenerate forfeiture of our high mission; and saved to the ultimate privilege of service which shall be theirs who rejoice in the bonds of the universal fellowship, and in the citizenship of the commonwealth of God.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Orphanage Work in India.

There is no feature of the work of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions more promising than their orphanages. It was David who prayed, "Rid me from the hand of strange children, that our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth and our daughters as corner stones polished after the similitude of a palace."

Separated as the orphanage children are from an impure atmosphere, and where they are constantly under Christian influence, we know they have a stronger moral character than those who have no such privileges. To the orphanage mother such a large family, with temperaments, tastes, likes and dislikes so varying, is no enviable task. Here love, patience, courage and grace have a large field for exercise, and we thank God for those who are daily giving their strength for the accomplishment of all the higher virtues in the lives of their charges. There has been a steady moral and spiritual development among our orphanage wards, and we are beginning to realize in many that for which we have longed and prayed.

True, the year has brought some sad moments and days to those in charge, for some have disappointed us, and others have, in the silent watches of the night, encouraged by the glare of this world's attractions, gone forth, pitching their tents toward Sodom, but on the whole we have every reason to be proud of our orphanage families.

The hope of our mission work in India rests largely with the children and youth. No class presents so much promise as those brought up in our Christian orphanages, where they are cared for, educated, trained, married and pass out, the large majority of them to carry the name of Jesus and the gladness of the gospel message to the needy around them, and to live and speak the name of our Redeemer in all its living power and love. The past year, over fifty Christian homes have been established as the direct work of the orphanages, and we thank God for these centers of light and life where the beauty of Christian faith and love may shine.

The year has taught us that orphanages can be removed when emergencies arise, and that the work can be carried on successfully even if conditions differ materially. To transport more than 120 girls from Bilaspur to Pendra Road was no small task, but it was accomplished, and we admire the wisdom displayed by the workers in overcoming all difficulties and seeking the safety of the girls from that dreaded scourge, the bubonic plague. Miss Mary Kingsbury had charge of their removal, and for four months they were sheltered at Pendra Road, the Florence Briscoe station of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, which is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. N. Madsen. Walter G. Menzies.

Rath, India.

An Expression of Loftier Patriotism.

By Frank Emerson Janes.

The questions facing this America of ours are many and complex. It has its political, social and economic problems that at times reach appalling proportions, and at all times clamorously demand solution. It is being realized, in this saner age, that the greatest patriot is not the man who dyes some battle standard with his blood in order that his land may live. This sense of heroism, while we revere it, is surely taking its place with the dark things of a dead age.

Now, he is the patriot who shall forge out of his brain and heart the elements whereby these grim problems may be solved. The age of head and heart follows the age of blood and brawn, and men walk nearer the stars.

The most stupendous problem facing the American of to-day is the religious problem. This is its greatest need, not for some emotional or hysterical reason, but for certain sane and vitally essential reasons. Not the least of these is the fact that to give America Christ would be to solve the larger part of the political, social and economic questions that face it. This is merely an assertion, but it has the endorsement of the very best thinkers among those who struggle with the three problems alluded to.

It is for the Christian to catch this advanced patriotic vision and walk with upturned face and prouder step, for it is being realized more and more that the Master's expression concerning "the salt of the earth" is most literally and wonderfully true. John Knox cried eloquently, "Give me Scotland or I die." The cry of perplexed America, if she had voice, would be, "Give me Jesus or I die." It is true. The call of Christ on this coming May offering day is the call of the land as well. To heed it is to evince as lofty a patriotism as has ever led heroes forth for country. Christ asks us to help him win America for America's sake.

Fremont, Nebraska.

The New Neology.

(Continued from page 537.)

is destined to accomplish wonders. Indeed in Britain as well as in America some wonderful institutional churches have already sprung up in places where no other type of churches will be of any avail. Bloomsbury Baptist church, London, is about to be converted thus, as, under the lead of Mr. Silvester Horne, Whitefield's tabernacle has already been transformed. But it is to-day the fashion with the more serious and benevolent rationalists to pose as the only practical workers for humanity. Unfortunately, for the most part they are successful rather in theoretic and socialistic agitation than in immediate work. While the churches are actively taking up the enterprises needed to be carried out, the neologians, to whom prayer, the Bible, supernaturalism, and Jesus Christ in his divine majesty are objects of utter indifference or of actual aversion, are formulating grandiose schemes for Parliament to adopt. Such minds never seem to learn that apart from high spiritual motives all social and political expedients have in all ages and amongst all races ignominiously failed. The churches were never so fully alive as they are at this hour to the needs of men. And never was mere socialism more impotent for all practical purposes.

London, England.

As Seen From the Dome.

(Continued from page 538.)

cultivation of the whole field. Should we follow the leadings of the Spirit we would take first the cities: Jerusalem, Samaria, Antioch, Corinth, Ephesus, Athens, Rome. First principles of home missions we shall begin to understand when we get down to solid work among the great aggregations of humanity. If Paul should come to America he would not begin to preach at some western or southern crossroads, he would move on greater New York or Chicago. In matters of financial policy, of government, of education, even of morals and religion, there can be no question of the sovereignty of the city. But we will seek not the city only. The villages and towns and vast rural populations must have our care. The country feeds the city—first Jerusalem, then all Judea—the regions round about the country districts. Our opportunities are vast; our obligations weighty; our resources equal to the demand upon us; our place in the front. The Lord our God is with us as he was with our fathers. Seven times the Christ speaks from the most excellent glory, saying: "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches!" Oh, for a more intelligent and conscious hold upon the living and most gracious personality, the marvelous unfoldings and the infallible counsels of the Holy Spirit!

A Word for Home Missions.

By Alfred M. Haggard.

If the hollowness of most of our excuses could be revealed the offering would be very greatly increased. Why do these excuses seem sufficient to hundreds of people? Why is not their hollowness at once more evident? Why do so many consciences rest easy under this hollowness? If I am not mistaken the reason is that these great enterprises have never really found a place in our hearts. Does the mission work really pull upon your heart strings? Has it the interest of your children or your home? Do you worry when things go wrong as when they do with your dear ones?

Our Budget

—Home missions next Lord's day!

—Make the offering on the basis of $200,000 for home missions this year.

—Do not let the absent members escape. Have a committee who will see them during the week, and let the appeal be repeated from the pulpit until all have had an opportunity to participate in this offering.

—Hundreds of anxious eyes, many of them from away out on the frontier, will be watching the papers, and waiting to hear the results of home mission day, May 7. Do not disappoint them.

—We present another fine array of articles this week which will well repay a careful reading. Indeed, the Christian-Evangelist is made with a view of being read all the way through. Every page and every column is filled with matter you cannot afford to miss.

[Telegram.]

"Put Wilmington, Ohio, church on life line list rejoicing." E. J. Meacham.

[Telegram.]

New Orleans, La.—Soniat Bible-school offering for Benevolent Association $50.—R. M. Denholme.

[Telegram.]

Champaign, Ill.—University Place Christian church joins the life line group.—S. B. Fisher, minister.

—Tennessee has 562 congregations, and only 191 preachers.

—The Indiana state convention meets at Bedford, May 16-18.

—P. A. Davey, Tokio, Japan, reports eight baptisms at Ushigome.

—I. W. Lowman has entered upon the work at Sheldon, Ill.

—P. Y. Pendleton has resigned at Walnut Hills, Cincinnati.

—Louis R. Hotaling has removed to 16 Elm street, Ashtabula, Ohio.

—Robt. M. Campbell will enter upon the pastorate at Owensville, Ky.

—Frank Richards, of Winchester, Kan., has taken up the work at Effingham.

—A. T. Felix has lost his father, Judge Albert Felix, at Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

—W. O. Stephens, who has been at Baton Rouge, La., goes to Athens, Texas.

—Harry G. Hill recently had a narrow escape from being struck by a street car.

—P. S. Hillman leaves the church at Farmington, Mo., and will enter upon a business enterprise.

—Salida, Col., has taken W. Henry Jones, from Palmyra, Mo. Brother Jones has recently lost his wife.

—A young Kentucky preacher of considerable promise has passed away in the person of James Cochran.

—The new orphanage of the Benevolent Association will be dedicated at Loveland, Colo., next month.

—C. C. Rowlison has entered upon the presidency of Hiram college and taken full charge of the work.

—Wren J. Grinstead has resigned at York, Neb., to take effect May 16, and is open for evangelistic or located work.

—W. W. Burks, of Mason City, Ia., has been lecturing for the benefit of the Christian Endeavor society at Charles City.

—C. S. Thurgood has been chosen president of the Pittsburg ministerial union, which includes all the churches of the city.

—T. L. Noblitt of Perkins, Okla., has accepted the chair of biology in the Southwestern state normal school at Weatherford.

The subscription price of the Christian-Evangelist is $1.50. If you pay by cheques on your local bank it is $1.65, as the banks charge us 15 cents for collection. It is best to send us $1.50 in a money order or in a draft on St. Louis.

—The Foreign Society has received another gift on the annuity plan from a friend in Kansas, this being his seventh gift on this plan.

—Dean W. J. Lhamon, of the Bible college of Missouri, will attend the preachers' institute in Monett, May 2-4, and deliver four lectures.

—Our church at Nicholasville, Ky., is to have some improvements made at once. The district convention will meet there Mav 4, 5.

—The corner stone of the new building at Mexico, Mo., will be laid to-day. The editor of this paper hopes to be among those present.

—After June 1, S. M. Martin's home will be at Seattle, Wash. He has closed his meeting at New Albany, Ind., and gone to Salem, Oregon.

—J. A. Roberts, who has just closed his work at Miami, O., will continue to preach for the Macedonia church, but will live in Indianapolis.

—Lathrop Cooley, of Medina, O., has just give $1,000 in cash to the Foreign Society with which to purchase a printing press at Jubbulpore, India.

—G. A. Hess, pastor at Charles City, Ia., has just been the recipient of a surprise on the part of some of his members, who left behind them some good things.

—The brethren at Woodbine, Ia., expect to build a new church this summer. B. F. Hall has closed his work at Hamburg in order to enter upon the pastorate.

—Work is to be begun early in May upon a new building of brick and stone at Carmi, Ill., where Frank Thompson, formerly of the First church, Evansville, Ind., has just begun work.

—Z. T. Sweeney will dedicate the Central church, Wichita, Kan., May 7. It is a $30,000 building, and F. H. Stevens is the pastor. W. E. Harlow will begin a meeting about June 1.

—Robt. Pegrum, of Wauregan, Conn., has accepted the call of the Central Christian church, Charlottetown, P. E. I., and has already begun his work there. His address in the city is P. O. Box 806.

—J. W. Lowber is delivering five chapel addresses at the University of Texas on the subject, "Who Wrote the Bible?" The addresses are also to be delivered as sermons at the Central Christian church, Austin.

—The house at Salem, Ind., will probably be remodeled at a cost of from $3,000 to $4,000; 49 new names have been added to the church roll this year, and the congregation is as large as all the other four churches put together.

—W. H. Harding, of Harristown, Ill., has resigned after nearly two years' work, and accepted a call to Blue Mound, Ill., where he will begin May 1. A. P. Cobb, of Decatur, will supply the pulpit at Harristown for the present.

—The 31st annual meeting of the South Kentucky Christian missionary and Sunday-school association will be held in Hopkinsville, May 23-25. A fine program, of which we hope to give fuller particulars, has been prepared.

—Our latest reports from San Francisco indicate that the hall question is now settled, and everything is looking bright for the convention. It is possible that the communion service may be held in the famous open air Greek theatre at Berkeley.

Nailed to the Mast

WHY $200,000 FOR HOME MISSIONS?

BECAUSE—We should correct our neglect of this great work.

BECAUSE—It is the ripest field in the world.

BECAUSE—It is our base of supplies. The Missions receiving assistance from our Home Treasury sent $2,340.66 to our Foreign Society in 1904.

BECAUSE—Our own brethren—our own flesh and blood are asking help to establish churches—we should certainly hear and heed their cry.

BECAUSE—The Home Board did more work last year than any previous year in our history—165 churches organized and 16,861 additions by our Home Missionaries. This work is a success.

BECAUSE—It is the work of the Lord Jesus Christ—to win souls in America. We should be about the Lord's business.

Ask your minister about the Offering the first Lord's Day in May. Full supplies of envelopes; literature, papers, etc., sent on application to the Secretary.

American Christian Missionary Society
Benjamin L. Smith
Cor. Sec'y
Y.M.C.A. Bldg.
Cincinnati, O.

—De Loss Smith left immediately after the close of the big meeting at Paris, Ill., for Decatur, to fill an engagement there. Chas. Reign Scoville left the following day for his home in Chicago.

—R. H. Ingram has resigned at Creston, Ia., to take effect June 1. Brother Ingram has been there three and a half years, and goes to Allerton, one of our best churches in southern Iowa. Creston will want a good man.

—The church at Los Angeles, Cal., of which A. C. Smither is the pastor, becomes a living link in the Foreign Society this year and supports a missionary on the foreign field. This makes 18 new living link churches since the March offering.

—The congregation at Greencastle, Ind., where C. W. Cauble is minister, is rejoicing in having paid its debt of $2,200, and in the raising of all pledges to cover the expense of frescoing the walls, putting in a hardwood floor, and other improvements.

—The Board of Church Extension has just received $1,656.88 from the estate of Mrs. S. E. Johnson, formerly of Dallas, Texas. All remittances to the church extension fund should be sent to G. W. Muckley, Cor. Sec., 600 Water Works Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

—Edgar D. Jones is doing good work at the Franklin Circle church, Cleveland, O. He was recently voted an increase in salary, and the members think a great deal of him. Over 100 additions to the church and nearly $10,000 raised for all purposes was the record last year.

—Kilby Ferguson has resigned at Centerpoint, and Kerrville, Tex., intending to rest at Palatka, Fla., because of heart trouble. Applicants for the vacant churches should address G. P. McCorkle, at Kerrville. The pay will be from $500 upwards, much depending on the preacher.

—Sister Mary C. Douglas has just received her fifth annuity bond from the Benevolent Association. Her investment in this work now aggregates $5,000.00. Full information may be had from Geo. L. Snively, 903 Aubert Ave., St. Louis, of the work, and methods of issuing annuity bonds.

—It was through the ministration of I. W. Lowman that Chas. Reign Scoville, who has established the record for the largest number of converts at any meeting held by our brethren, became a Disciple of Christ. Brother Lowman was formerly identified with the United Brethren.

—Joel Brown will in the future hold meetings from September till May of each year and desires now to correspond with churches that may want the services of a competent evangelist. Brother Brown will continue to work as field agent for Drake university from May till September of each year.

—W. M. Hackleman will organize a large choir for Bethany Park assembly, which is to meet July 20-Aug. 14. He desires the names of those intending to be present who sing or play instruments, so he can use them in the many concerts that will be given. His address is Indianapolis, Ind.

—Fourteen years ago there was no church of Christ in Mason City, Ia. To-day there is one of the largest congregations in the state, with property worth $30,000, and a membership numbering nearly 900. Bro. W. W. Burks is the pastor, and there have been over 100 additions by baptism since January 1.

—During the first 19 days of April the receipts of the Foreign Society amounted to $25,627, or a gain over the corresponding 19 days of April, 1904, of $4,690. There has been a gain in the receipts up to date of about $27,000. A gain of a little more than $11,000 between this and Sept. 30 will insure the quarter of a million dollars.

—W. N. Briney, who has been at Warrensburg, Mo., has been called to take charge of the Broadway Christian church at Louisville, Ky. The fact that his father, J. B. Briney, is now editing the Christian Companion, published in that city, doubtless had much to do with Brother Briney's leaving Warrensburg after having so recently taken up the work there.

—J. J. Cramer has just celebrated his fourteenth anniversary at Lockhart, Texas. A very pleasant evening was spent in honor of the event. The work progresses and Brother Cramer has the confidence and support of the united congregation. It is anticipated that the coming year will be the best of his pastorate.

—At the meeting of the executive committee of the Foreign Society, April 14, Miss Olive Griffith, of Pawnee City, Neb., was appointed a missionary to India. She will be supported by the First church at Lincoln, Neb., of which N. S. Haynes is the pastor. She is a member of that congregation. Miss Griffith is a graduate of the Nebraska state university and it has long been her purpose to enter the foreign service.

—The churches of Browerville and Frazee, Minn., are in need of a pastor at once. Bro. A. J. Marshall reports that it is a good field for a good man. Both churches also are situated in Minnesota's beautiful lake region where work and recuperation can go on together. The climate is extremely healthful. Those desiring further information may write to Emil Burrow, of Frazee, or Artemas Sutton, of Browerville, Minn.

—Prosperous is the report of the condition of affairs at the South Meridian church, Indianapolis, where C. R. L. Vawter is minister. The mortgage has recently been canceled, the building repaired, and 27 added to the membership. Besides the regular work of his congregation, Brother Vawter has held a meeting for the state board and organized a congregation of 126 members. He has just been holding his third meeting with the church at Sonora, Ky., where he ministered several years ago.

—We have received the "Annual Bulletin" of the Christian church, Cameron, Missouri, containing, besides a list of the members, an historical sketch of the church, other useful information, pictures of the official board and of other prominent workers in the church. The pictures of Brother and Sister L. O. Brickert, the pastor and his wife, constitute the frontispiece. The only thing in the bulletin we would criticise, is the use of the political phrase, "stand pat." We prefer the New Testament phrase, "stand fast."

—A daily paper of Jacksonville, Fla., announces that "an interesting and deeply spiritual union service" was held at the Church street Christian church in that city, participated in by the pastors of two Methodist churches of the city and the pastor of the Christian church, in which the ordinance of baptism was administered to several persons after the apostolic manner. The Methodist brethren had borrowed the baptistery of the Christian church in order to baptize their converts. The paper announces that "the house was packed, and there were many expressions commendatory of the spirit of union shown by this unique service."

—We have received a copy of the semicentennial Eureka college calendar for 1905 which will be highly prized by all old students and graduates of the college. It is a fine work of art, containing excellent pictures of the college buildings and grounds, of the present and past members of the faculty and some of the tried friends of the institution, of students who have gone out from it to the mission field, and of some of the residences and familiar scenes about the town. The work has been prepared with great care, and will be a valuable souvenir for the students and friends of the college. Those who desire to secure a copy can do so by enclosing 50 cents to Miss Clara L. Davidson, Eureka, Ill.

—We have received the following note from Bro. W. H. Rogers: "Our 'jubilee' was a most delightful occasion. In a few days I will write an account of it especially for the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Just now I wish to express regrets to our many friends who have done so much for us, that there has been some delay in acknowledging remittances. This is in part because of my absence when letters came. I especially regret that after the remittances were taken from one batch of six or eight letters, and made secure, the letters were lost and we could not send acknowledgment, for lack of addresses. My canvass was much rushed at last, and the writer physically somewhat indisposed, which I hope may be offered in excuse. I hope the parties will forgive me, and also write and give me their addresses, and I will at once forward receipts."

Children's Day

FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:

1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. H. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.
2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.
3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.

Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

—The formal dedication of our new church at Worcester, Mass., will take place on May 7, with B. Q. Denham, of New York city, as chief speaker. A revival meeting will follow, Brother Denham having charge during the first week, and other ministers of our churches throughout New England participating subsequently. The final services in the small hall on North Ashland street, where the congregation has been meeting ever since its organization about three years ago, have just been held, Roland A. Nichols, pastor of the church, preaching in the morning and Alfred Flower, now nearing his 83rd birthday, in the evening. The services are now held in the vestry of the new church. The possibilities of progress in New England may be gauged somewhat by the history of this congregation. Seven years ago, when Brother Nichols was pastor of the First church on Main street, he selected a vacant lot on Highland, and began tent meetings. For four summers services were conducted in the houses of the people. Finally it was decided to start a mission church, and 47 members of the First church organized the Highland street church of Christ. The membership has trebled. Bro. H. L. Calhoun, now of the Bible college, Lexington, Ky., preached for this congregation while he was a post graduate student at Harvard, and Brother Nichols, after resigning the First church and a short time in Chicago, returned as pastor of the new church. The new building is a frame, 75x100 feet, and will seat about 450 people.

To the Business Men in Our Brotherhood.

As the time approaches for the May offering for home missions, we feel that an appeal to you for larger offerings is but right and proper.

In the business world we have had a succession of prosperous years, and it is a well known fact that in consequence of this, people are spending more money for the necessities, comforts and luxuries of life than they have ever spent before.

We very naturally feel that, when we have been prospered of the Lord, we should, as wise stewards, devote a large part of that which the Lord gives us to the establishing of his kingdom, and we know of no better way than by contributing liberally to the American Christian Missionary Society, as its records show what splendid results are obtained with the money that passes through its hands.

We therefore take the liberty, as officers of the Business Men's Association of the Christian church, to urge upon our brethren great liberality in making their offerings for home missions on the first Lord's day in May.

J. H. Allen, Pres.,
M. Daviess Pittman, Cor. Sec.

Notice to Former Students and Graduates of Kentucky University Now Living in Missouri.

The undersigned, having been asked by Pres. B. A. Jenkins to serve as a committee to secure a large attendance of former students and graduates of Kentucky university, now residing in Missouri, at the reunion in Lexington, Ky., June 14-18, ask that all who expect to attend the reunion send their names to some member of the committee so that railroad rates can be secured to the best possible advantage. The occasion will be one of great joy to all the "boys," and it is earnestly hoped that as many as can go will arrange to do so.

Robt. Graham Frank, Liberty, Mo.
W. N. Briney, Warrensburg, Mo.
J. T. McGarvey, Carthage, Mo.
J. L. DeLong, Kansas City, Mo.

Life Line Churches With B. A. C. C.

The Independence avenue church of Kansas City (Geo. H. Combs minister) is the first to write its name on the life line scroll recently formulated by the National Benevolent Association. The amount sent was $500. The minimum for this fund is $100. The Christian-Evangelist hopes there will be a goodly list of life line churches enrolling for the extension of this gospel of the helping hand.

Are your alms accompanying your prayers in behalf of the orphans, the aged indigents of the church and other of earth's disinherited ones? If your Bible-school has failed to take the offering, let all have fellowship in this ministry so essential to the restoration of apostolic Christianity.

Union Ave., St. Louis, J. B. Philputt, pastor.
Union Avenue Bible school, M. M. Scott, superintendent.
Maryville, Mo., H. A. Denton, pastor.
Maryville Bible school, Hon. O. C. Kirkpatrick, superintendent.
Wilmington, O., E. J. Meacham, pastor.
Paris, Ill., Finis Idleman, pastor.

Change of Place.

We wish all the third district workers to take notice that the district convention has been changed from Coffeyville to Cherryvale, Kan. The time is the same, May 3-5. The Cherryvale church offers a cordial welcome and will furnish entertainment. Come all and bring a large delegation. J. D. Forsyth, Sec.
Fredonia, Kan.

An Important Church Trial

As reported briefly in the last issue of the Christian-Evangelist, a decision has just been given in an important suit involving church property. The case is of great interest not only to the brotherhood known as Disciples of Christ, but to all religious denominations. It was tried by Chancellor Cooper, who began hearing the case on March 23, and the trial lasted until April 1. The testimony included the depositions of C. L. Loos, T. P. Haley, W. T. Moore, Robt. Moffett, Col. Alex. Campbell, J. B. Briney, J. W. McGarvey, G. A. Hoffmann, Mark Collis, B. C. Deweese, I. B. Grubbs, R. M. Giddens, A. I. Myhr, W. H. Sheffer, M. L. Curfees, H. L. Calhoun, J. H. Roulhac, W. H. Bates, J. H. Hardin, E. G. Sewell, and David Lipscomb. The depositions covered about 800 pages of typewritten matter. The court decided the case in favor of the defendants. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court. The issues determined are: 1. The right of a local congregation, by majority of its members to manage its own affairs. 2. What are tests of fellowship in the Christian church? 3. Is the use or nonuse of instruments in connection with the song service in worship, and are societies doing missionary work, departures from the faith?

The Church Building at Newbern, Tenn., which the "Anti" Brethren Sought to Take From the Members Who Favored Missionary Organizations.

The first and most vital question involved may be thus stated. The real estate (a lot in Newbern, Tennessee, on which a church building has been erected) was conveyed in 1880 by deed to trustees "for use of the Christian church at Newbern, Tenn." This is all there is in the deed as to the use that may be made of the property. The church has been split into two factions, and the editor of one of our papers has been active in raising money to try to get possession of the property in the interest of the "antis." The minority filed the bill, charging that the majority in possession of the church and using it, had abandoned some of the fundamental doctrines and tenets of faith held by the church at the time the property was conveyed to it—that said majority could not thus change its faith and practice and divert the property from the use for which the donor intended it—that that intention, it is justly to be inferred, was that the property should be held to promulgate the doctrines of the "Christian church" as they existed at the time of his deed, being the doctrines he entertained, and which the church then held. This proposition of law the defendants disputed, and claimed that it is the inherent right of every Christian church, of any denomination, to change, through the action of its own tribunals, any or all of its doctrines, and to adopt new tenets and new customs and practices—that if inference or presumption is to be indulged as to what the donor intended by his deed, he must be presumed to have known not only what the doctrines of the church then were, but that they were liable to be altered, by the exercise of that right or inherent power which was also a doctrine of the church at the time of his gift. The defendants insisted that if a giver of property to the church wishes to fetter the minds of the beneficiaries of it, and their successors forever, he must set forth in his deed specifically what particular propositions he requires to be taught.

Further, the defendants in their defense also denied that the majority has departed from any of the fundamental doctrines of the church held at the time the property was acquired, and a vast volume of evidence of an historical nature was introduced upon this issue—extracts from the writings of Alexander Campbell and other men, and the depositions of preachers already mentioned. We give above a picture of the church building which the "anti" brethren sought to take from the majority who are in sympathy with our organized missionary work. Only a few of the members are represented in the photograph.

[As this trial has involved a heavy expense upon a small number of our brethren, and as the trial is a matter of vital interest to very many of our churches, we think the members at Newbern may reasonably look for some outside assistance in paying the law bills. The Christian-Evangelist will be glad to receive and forward any subscriptions for this purpose.]

The Great Meeting at Paris

The Disciples of Christ are an evangelistic people and have become used to great meetings, but the greatest individual meeting we have ever held, in point of additions and enthusiasm, has just been concluded at Paris, Ill. We herewith give a report through the eyes of the pastor and the evangelist.

From the Pastor's Standpoint.

The Paris meeting began February 19 and closed April 19. There were 51 days of actual services. There were six confessions the first day and 26 the last. There was no day without additions, the lowest was four, the greatest being 41. There was no lull. With three exceptions (stormy nights) the house was crowded every night. The meeting began with personal work and its results, the "almost persuaded." It closed with many who were just ready to come. There were 13 who responded to the invitation on the night of the reception. There were no great days, nor small ones.

The evangelists, Chas. Reign Scoville and DeLoss Smith, came to us February 20. The church membership knew that we were upon the threshold of a successful meeting because of confidence in the evangelists. They had never failed, they would not here. Everybody expected a great meeting, everybody said so, everybody worked as though it were an assured fact.

We began preparations September 1, 1904. The entire city was districted and canvassed. Personal workers entered the homes for personal contact. The meeting was the subject of discussion; better still, the urgent word was then spoken, "This is the day of salvation." Names of all "friendly" citizens were kept. Next doorknob callers were hung on every door in the city.

At every Sunday's services some word was spoken in the interest of the meetings. Every prayer-meeting service for four months was wholly given to the personal work looking toward the meeting. Additional meetings were held for prayer and work. "Now" was the word used by all the workers in visiting. There were thirty-eight confessions during January and until February 19, at regular services.

The entire membership presented names for prayer and personal visitation. Almost the entire membership gave time and effort to soul winning. Many business men left their places of business for days and sought to interest all of the men in the city in the meetings. Carriages were constantly in use. Personal letters were written every day.

The evangelists won the loyalty and personal enlistment of the congregation in the first service. Brother Scoville is everlastingly hopeful. Things are never down with him. When it rained he grew more cheerful and when it stormed he defied it with triumphant hopefulness. No disadvantageous circumstances ever tempt him to be harsh. In fact we had 51 days of mountain climbing—ever upward, ever more glorious in vision. Brother Smith wins a great audience by his perennial happiness. He cannot be provoked to grouchiness. He wins the confidence of the best singers by singing better than any of them, yet remaining as humble as a child.

The city and country around was interested. The meeting was not simply an event of current events but the all absorbing topic throughout eastern Illinois. Large delegations came from all of the surrounding towns and cities. One special excursion was run from Arcola. Farmers unhitched at 4 o'clock every day for weeks to attend the meetings.

The city felt its influence. The chief of police said that he did not have one-half the work that fell to him before the meetings. Some saloon keepers were unable to meet bills at the end of the month. The entire city was affected and all of the principal men attested that Paris had never witnessed such a reformation.

Finis Idleman, the Pastor at Paris, Ill.

The character of the work done can be estimated by its captain as well as by its immediate results. He was first of all a great teacher. With an open Bible in his hand he was constantly showing chapter and verse for all that he said. "It is not what you think nor what I think but what God says." He was never logical to dryness nor sentimental to weakness. His appeal was first to the intellect. He taught in reading the scripture lesson like a successful teacher before his class. He taught during the baptismal service every night. But when he had informed and quickened the conscience he attacked the will with irresistible power. Here he was an orator in the highest sense. His appeal was on the high ground of "saving life" rather than "saving the soul."

Brother Scoville never antagonized. He preached Christian union constantly. He presented a platform to meet a necessity with such clearness and conviction, and yet with such love and sincerity that scores of men and women, the best in the city, came to stand upon it.

The strength of this meeting is such that the new membership could easily carry on the work of the church, morally, intelligently and financially without the assistance of a single old member. In fact, on Easter Sunday the new members had full control. They decorated the auditorium, provided nine ushers, eight collectors, two elders and eighteen deacons.

The members did everything they were asked to do and abundantly more, but church and community and pastor combine to say that no church will fail that has Brother Scoville and Brother Smith to lead. They succeeded in Beaumont, Texas, where there was no church, having more than 200 conversions. They led the greatest city campaign, Des Moines, Iowa, with 1,114 additions and now this greatest single meeting of 750 accessions. Their spirit and ability and methods will be blessed of God to success anywhere. Evangelism was redeemed in Paris from any unsavory reputation it had made in the past. Men who came to smile remained to pray. With a constantly kindly, courteous bearing in sermon and song, and an earnestness that is consuming in its zeal for winning men and women to Christ, these men

(Continued on page 548.)

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

Nebraska.

Two were added at Humboldt on April 2. They are busy with their new parsonage. Bert Wilson is the preacher.——Twenty-eight were added to the Brock church in the Putman-Egbert meeting. Brother Putman is now in Lincoln, having moved here recently.——Four were added at Harvard, where Brother Shirley ministers, on April 9. This church will ordain deacons on April 30.

Chas. McVay will sing at Salem, Oregon, with S. M. Martin.——J. E. Wilson held a four weeks' meeting at Bartley recently. No additions.——Two baptisms and one received by statement at Beatrice on April 9, where Brother Price ministers. One confessor is to be baptized. Mrs. Price has been quite sick and is still confined to her bed, though getting better.

The secretary attended the Brownville convention of district No. 1. It was well attended, there being 56 enrolled. The interest was good from the first meeting, and everyone seemed to have a good time. The reports from the churches in the district, as far as represented, were very hopeful. Falls City has a preacher in the person of J. Cronenberger. The new church at Cook made a good showing in its report, having a good work started. Peru is nearly ready to dedicate its new house. Burchard had been revived by a meeting held by Brother Lindenmeyer and R. A. Givens. The work at Pawnee is in good and growing condition. They have been planning a parsonage. Tecumseh was reported in the best condition it has enjoyed for several years. The meeting at Brock had not terminated but the report above indicates its excellence. Auburn, Brownville, Nemaha and Verdon made good reports. Charter Oak and Talmage will possibly become the Talmage church. No reports from Dawson, Elk Creek, Johnson, London, Salem, Sterling, Shubert, and only a partial one from Table Rock; by the state secretary. The program was most excellent. J. W. Sapp was elected president, and F. L. Pettit returned to the office of corresponding secretary and treasurer.

The secretary spent April 2 at Pawnee and on Monday evening met the Table Rock brethren in an effort to arouse the work there. E. L. Kechley preached for this church on April 9. At Pawnee the work is moving along in good order with Brother Lindenmeyer at the helm.

On April 9 we visited Wymore and Blue Springs. The Wymore meetings were pretty well attended considering the fact that no services have been held there for months. Brother Aylsworth will speak there on April 16.

At Blue Springs the question of the new building was taken up and a building committee appointed to proceed with the work. It is proposed to build a small house. A visit to Vesta and one to Sterling occupied Monday and Tuesday, April 10 and 11. Whether anything comes of these remains to be seen.

The working plans for the new tabernacle are being prepared by Architect Grant. The intention now is to proceed as rapidly as possible, and as early as the first of June at least, get the work of construction under way. Your pledges are now due on this behalf.

The national committeeman on transportation for the national convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17-24, has appointed the secretary as state excursion manager for Nebraska, as usual. There are several reasons why those who contemplate going should communicate with me at once. On so long a trip it should be planned so as to take in as many of the natural attractions by the way as possible. We should decide upon an itinerary and then work to that end. Unless this is done, the long ride will bring little but weariness. With a carefully outlined trip it can be made delightful and satisfying. It is the purpose to try to arrange things to accommodate as many as possible and still group ourselves together as much as possible. I shall be more than glad to receive information of those who are thinking of going. Write to me. No official route has been chosen from Nebraska as yet.

W. A. Baldwin.

Lincoln.

Baltimore Notes.

The Disciples of this city have recently enjoyed their annual banquet, in which all the churches took part. O. G. White was toastmaster and Geo. P. Rutledge, of Philadelphia, was the special speaker and H. D. Mentzel was the home speaker.

E. J. Meacham, of Wilmington, Ohio, is here in a meeting with Brother White at Twenty-fifth street church and we are all looking for a refreshing time from the presence of the Lord.

The Randall street church is without a minister at this time and we are on the lookout for a live man. It is located among the railroad people and is a great field.

The Christian temple is enjoying many blessings from the Lord. Our lot and building, which is only the chapel, stands us a little over $22,000 and our debt is only about $7,000. There are confessions at nearly every service and our building, which seats about 500 people, is overcrowded every Lord's day evening, and many are turned away. Brother Herbert Yeuell, of Uniontown, Pa., will begin a meeting with us April 30.

The Temple seminary will graduate its first class in June. This institution has a three years' course in the study of the Bible.

The monthly report of our churches is as follows: Twenty-fifth street, one by statement; Harlem avenue, one by letter; Lansdowne, four by statement; Temple, 22 by baptism; Fulton avenue, Calhoun street and Randall street reported no increase.

Peter Ainslie.

South Dakota.

Beginning with the first Sunday in February we have since been holding our Sunday evening services in the opera house, where I have been preaching to audiences ranging from four to nine hundred people. Both the message and the plan has received the hearty approval of a large number of citizens.

On March 26, H. H. Harmon, of Columbus, Ind., and H. A. Easton, of Chicago, began with us, conducting a series of meetings. We are delighted to have Brother Harmon with us, not only because we enjoy his strong, spiritual sermons, but as well his splendid personal influence. His positive message is attended by that charming spirit which enraptures, convinces and holds his audience. It is precisely the quality of preaching that is needed in this western field and will give the mission of the Disciples of Christ a larger place in the hearts of the people. Brother Easton has succeeded admirably in leading the song service. The congregational singing is universally conceded to be better than ever in the history of Aberdeen. The meeting is only started and there have been four additions to date.

The Aberdeen church is also holding a meeting in Ellendale, N. D. We have secured for our evangelist to hold the meeting there G. W. Elliott, of Brookings, this state. Notwithstanding there are many difficulties to be overcome in this field we have confidence in the wisdom and ability of Brother Elliott to succeed in the undertaking. He is without doubt one of our strongest evangelists and deserves much gratitude and encouragement from his brethren for the good work he has done.

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightful scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, by way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to Christian-Evangelist Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

Brother Jefferies, of Britton, spent two evenings at our meetings on his way to Verdon where he preached.——Brother Shellenberger, of Duluth, held a good meeting for the Arlington church where A. H. Seymour is pastor. This is one of our best churches and its strength is largely due to the long and faithful ministry of its pastor.——R. D. McCance, of Parker, held a successful meeting for the church at Highmore, where J. W. Thompson is minister.——B. B. Burton, of Des Moines, and Miss Parks, from Nebraska, are conducting a series of revival meetings in Alexandria where they are having large houses and prospects of a large ingathering. R. M. Ainsworth is pastor.

M. B. Ainsworth, pastor.

Aberdeen, S. D.

Iowa.

Polk county, Iowa, is largely indebted to Steuben county, Indiana, not only for a great preacher but, if they are really of Hoosier origin, for some fine ideas of church work. We think the one mentioned below will do to pass around.

At our county convention, Brother Medbury told of their bi-monthly county fellowship meetings, going the round of the churches, taking them in alphabetical order.

He at once found himself chairman of a committee to arrange for it here. The first of these meetings recently took place at Altoona and was a gratifying success. It had been advertised very little and some places did not hear of it in time; but 13 of our 21 churches were represented and 50 brethren and sisters outside of the local congregation were counted. Afternoon and evening sessions were held, including a Sunday-school address by State Superintendent Bryan and a sermon—one of Brother Medbury's best. The leading feature was delightful informal reports from each congregation and nearly every one was reported, either directly or indirectly, except a few small ones (?) like the Central and East Side, Des Moines, but it was indirectly understood that they still have preaching.

The royal entertainment between sessions and the fellowship and enthusiasm of it all certainly made it very profitable.

The next one will be at a country point and will be two day sessions only, with a picnic dinner and will involve a four mile ride.

I do not want to say too much about the University church or its preacher—it would be the farthest from his wishes—but April 9 was a remarkable day here; besides six additions by letter, four Presbyterian ladies came and made confession and at a special afternoon service a Methodist lady and her son, from one of the hospitals in the city, who is paralyzed and partially helpless, were baptized. She had long desired to be immersed and finally told her son it must be done, and he proposed to go with her. The son became the indispensable assistant, they going into the baptistry together. After the mother's baptism she asked if she could not see her son baptized. She was led to a corner of the baptistery where she supported herself while it was done.

Brother Medbury, in relating it at the evening service, stated that she had preached more eloquently than any preacher.

People are thus coming from other religious bodies constantly, but always on their own motion, they are not sought. S. C. SLAYTON.

❁ ❁

Western Pennsylvania.

Western Pennsylvania is being stirred by the movement on foot for simultaneous evangelistic services to begin in all the churches Oct. 22, 1905. A rally service is being held and largely attended in connection with the monthly missionary meetings the first Monday of each month. A silk conquest flag is given to the church having the largest delegation present, to be held until the next meeting, and the church having the largest total attendance will keep the flag. Central Pittsburg, C. L. Thurgood, pastor, holds the banner now. The next rally will be at McKees Rocks church, Monday evening, May 1. There seems to be already a large ingathering into the churches of additions both in revivals and at regular services. A notable work is being done at Ellwood City. A meeting with home forces has resulted already in 42 additions and a house crowded to the doors. The church has been in hard straits financially on account of the mills being shut down for a couple of years. Brother Schultz, the pastor, has preached on Sundays and worked in Pittsburg during the week and only began settled pastoral work March 1. This church was planted as a mission from the First church, New Castle, about four years ago and is nurtured by the western Pennsylvania Christian missionary society.

The semiannual convention of the W. P. C. M. S. met in Washington, Pa., April 9, 10, 11.—The home mission rally in Pittsburg, on Monday, April 3, was largely attended. If the interest and enthusiasm manifested is any guide, our judgment is that the May offering will be the greatest ever taken by our people. The Disciples of Christ ought to give the A. C. M. S. a quarter of a million of dollars this year.

Pittsburg, Pa. J. A. JOYCE, Cor. Sec.

❁ ❁

Empire State.

The work at Benedict is prospering under the pastorate of W. E. Wheeler. There have been about seventeen accessions since he took the work there in December.

Raphael Miller, of Buffalo, is soon to hold a meeting for the Columbia avenue church, Rochester. This mission church has just taken the largest foreign missionary offering in its history, $61. The New York churches are all missionary. We have now five living link churches. This is one out of every ten churches in the state. If the entire brotherhood did as well we would have one thousand living links.

Your correspondent is in a meeting with the mission church in Upper Troy, where C. C. Waite is pastor. We have had ten accessions so far. On Sunday evening all of the Protestant churches in Upper Troy combined and we held a union service at the Methodist church at which I preached. There was a very large audience and many turned away. The spirit of fraternity and unity is growing rapidly in the east.

Brooks Brothers have just closed a very successful meeting at the River street church, Troy. They had some eighty accessions. We have not a large constituency outside of the church here in the east to draw from. Our work is new and we must pave the way as we go. A meeting with fifty additions here means as much in many ways as one with several hundred in the sections of this country where we are known.

Now that the foreign offering is out of the way, all energy ought to be turned toward the May offering for home missions.

Buffalo is already making preparation for the national convention to be held there in 1906. The great convention hall has been secured for the meeting. There is no finer hall for the purpose in the land. We have some strong churches on the Niagara frontier and no better point for a great national meeting could have been chosen. The convention will do our eastern work an immense amount of good.

PONDS EXTRACT
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
Stiff Joints
become limber again after rubbing with Pond's Extract. Just the thing for Rheumatism, too.
Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of [illegible] Witch Hazel [illegible] wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both. To avoid danger of poisoning insist on [illegible]
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
PONDS EXTRACT

Our state convention is to be held in the new church at Elmira the last week in June.

I begin a meeting at Syracuse with the new mission church in two weeks. M. H. Garrard is pastor.—D. C. Tremaine and Perry McPherson are in a meeting at Fredonia.—Allen Wilson is with Jefferson street church, Buffalo. STEPHEN J. COREY, Sec.-Evan.

Rochester, N. Y.

❁ ❁

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper.

Don't Be Too Late

How often does the examining doctor have to say to applicants for life insurance: "If you had applied a year ago you would have passed." Don't you be too late.

Shall we send you some literature?

PENN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.
PHILADELPHIA.

BOWLDEN BELLS
CHURCH AND SCHOOL
FREE CATALOGUE
AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY CO. NORTHVILLE, MICH.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
CHRISTIAN WORKERS' NEW TESTAMENT,
With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter.
Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices, = = = = = 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars.
Christian Publishing Co., = St. Louis, Mo.

The Great Meeting at Paris.

(Continued from page 545.)

of God challenged this city to "choose this day" whom it would serve. There is no aftermath to be feared. There are no mistakes to outlive, no apologies to be made. A grateful people expressed their gratitude to Brother Scoville by making him a thank offering of $1,000 for his Chicago work, the Metropolitan church. No words can express the gratitude of a thousand people at the reception when a gold medal and a gold plated ebony pointer were presented to Mr. Scoville and a diamond scarfpin to Brother Smith.

The wonderful physical endurance of Brother Scoville is a happy complement to his faith. No man ever expected greater things for Christ and his church; few men ever see greater things done. Few men deserve to see greater things done, for he is absolutely unselfish in his labors—never spares himself, never withholds a penny. He is an untiring and matchless personal worker. He knows no compromise between duty and personal convenience. "Look at that cross," he is always saying, "and talk to me about convenience!" He has remarkable power to bring men to immediate decision. His whole bearing in life, in speech, is that no man can afford to trifle with God's call to duty.

The present task seems overwhelming—to assimilate a larger body than the original membership. Yet we enter upon it cheerfully, confidently. A great church stands ready to go upon any mission. It will be sent. We shall not condemn the evangelist for any failure—it shall be ours alone. "It is a grand thing to rally souls to Christ."

FINIS IDLEMAN.

❖

The Evangelist's View.

What made this great meeting possible? This question is not easily answered. "Paul may plant, Apollos may water, but God giveth the increase." Certainly! But who are the Pauls, etc., in such a victory? "God giveth the increase," but God's forces, agencies and instruments are many in such triumphs of the truth.

"The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation," but multitudes must hear it and multitudes must be influenced by it, and many must be strengthened in the faith if 750 souls are to be added unto the Lord. How then shall these multitudes be reached? How were they reached?

A book of "Instructions to Workers" was sent here months before the meetings began, and put in the hands of the pastor and official board, they immediately appointed all the committees as per the instructions and each committee was given its especial work. But plans to be of service must be executed. We must not only plan our work but work our plan. Here is one great secret of this victory. The fidelity to the plans of the evangelist and the indefatigable energy with which pastor and committees executed their work.

It would be impossible to overestimate the zeal and brotherly kindness of Finis Idleman, pastor of this church and servant of the "Most High God," and the great influence thus brought to bear upon the workers and the community. He was a true, wholesouled yokefellow in the fullest sense of those words and we were "workers together with God." Great evangelistic battles that might have ended in tremendous victory, have been lost simply because pastor and people did not organize and vitalize, which must always be done if we would successfully evangelize.

I cannot speak too highly of the mighty power of the gospel in song. I have been with Bro. De Loss Smith in many victories in our four years of work together, but he never led the great audiences in such singing as here at Paris. To hear over a thousand voices swell the chorus of some grand gospel theme, is almost indescribable. The solos were short sermons in song. We can safely say that no meeting ever held in the brotherhood had better singing than this one.

The unbounded confidence of the officers of the church in their pastor and evangelists and their unswerving fidelity to the meeting—to every plan suggested and every work attempted—had much to do with the farreaching results. No general could expect the greatest results or victory if his every movement were criticised or his orders countermanded. The church here had one object and moved as one man and the Lord of Hosts armed the right.

CHARLES REIGN SCOVILLE, OF CHICAGO, THE EVANGELIST.

Brother Idleman is not only a charming yoke-fellow, but also a grand personal worker. Together we called upon lawyers, doctors, bankers, merchants, teachers, farmers and men of every vocation represented in this town of 7,500 people. The fact that so many of the very leading citizens were among the converts added to the popularity of the meetings, increased our hold upon the city press (two daily papers), accelerated the enthusiasm of the church and increased the courage of the workers.

It would be impossible to give a detailed account of those added to the Lord's work, but it may be of interest to know that among the converts were the state's attorney, officers or directors of the three banks in this city, county officials, several merchants of great influence, wealth and ability, many clerks, seven public school teachers, many farmers, over 20 whole families and scores of husbands and wives who stood up side by side to confess Christ. The following will show the interest and progress of the meetings: There were 100 added in nine days; 200 in 17 days; 300 in 24 days; 400 in 32 days; 500 in 37 days; 600 in 43 days; 700 in 48 days.

One of the most remarkable things about the meeting was the great company of men who were obedient unto the faith. Next to the last night, when 16 had walked out for Christ, 14 of them were men.

We did not work for reports but for results. Much time was given by pastor and people to organizing the workers as they came into the church. The gospel can save the world only by saving manhood and womanhood. It is man-making and character-building that counts. "The world needs not more men, but more man." Christ came that we might have life. Our continual plea was not souls, but lives for Christ. To what end were you born and for what purpose came you into the world?

I have never seen a pastor and whole church who were more of a unit than Finis Idleman and the Paris church. He came here September 1, and began at once to plan for larger things. There were sixty-eight added from that date up to the beginning of the meeting, and when he began the meeting Sunday, February 19, there were six added that first day. I came on Monday and found a prepared place among a prepared people. Brother Idleman filled my pulpit at Chicago three Lord's days, and I returned to it twice. The meeting went right on with sixteen added one Sunday and thirty six the other, under the leadership of Brother Idleman and Brother Smith.

The great esteem in which the pastor is held by the church and community can be judged

(Continued on page 560.)

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

CALIFORNIA.

Winters, April 16.—We have just closed a short meeting with home forces resulting in ten additions, making 13 since January 1. The church is out of debt and a balance in all the treasuries. The Sunday-school has doubled in the last six months. The March offering for foreign missions was double the apportionment.—Geo. A. Ragan.

Riverside, April 17.—We are glad to report five additions yesterday—15 in the last three weeks—eight by primary obedience. We continue special meetings this week with home forces. This is a great year for our church.—Geo. Ringo.

Fullerton, April 17.—Yesterday we entered upon the fourth week of our meeting here. The Lord has blessed us with 73 added, 29 of them on confession of faith. We had 80 at Sunday-school yesterday—the second session. Next Sunday we expect to close, with the election of church officers and the organization of a C. E. The hearing continues fine.—Sumner T. Martin, evangelist.

COLORADO.

Rocky Ford, April 19.—Eight baptized into Christ in the last two weeks. Four were young men.—M. M. Nelson, pastor.

Boulder.—Four grown people baptized recently. More in sight. We are pushing hard for a good offering for missions in May.—S. M. Bernard, minister.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington, April 17.—At ministers' meeting to-day the following were present: J. Murray Taylor, F. D. Power, E. B. Bagby, J. E. Stuart, W. R. D. Winters, and the writer. Additions reported: H street (J. Murray Taylor), three—two by letter or statement and one confession; Fifteenth street (J. E. Stuart), four—three by letter or statement and one confession; Ninth street (E. B. Bagby), 18—eight by letter or statement and 10 confessions, total 25—13 by letter or statement and 12 confessions. The Ninth street revival, in which W. S. Priest, of Columbus, assisted E. B. Bagby, closed with 82 additions. The writer has been unanimously called to continue another year at Thirty-fourth street church.—Claude C. Jones, Sec.

FLORIDA.

St. Petersburg.—The little church, with their minister, J. H. Montgomery, stood by me faithfully in a short meeting. Five were baptized into Christ and one added from the Baptists. I am now at Ocala.—E. L. Frazier.

ILLINOIS.

Carbondale.—Am preaching to five hundred people on Sunday nights. Four baptized last Sunday; eight since last report. Work prospers in all departments.—A. M. Growden.

Carterville.—In the graduating class of the high school here four of the five graduates are members of the Christian church. We also have four teachers in membership with us. Last Lord's day evening I closed my first year's work with this people. It has been a very successful year. I continue with them with a substantial increase in salary.—F. L. Davis.

INDIANA.

Terre Haute, April 17.—Yesterday we had one confession at the College avenue church and four added by statement.—Leonard V. Barbre, pastor.

Cheap chimney,
dear lamp.
MACBETH.

My Index tells what chimney fits your lamp. If you use that chimney, you get perhaps twice as much light, and save a dollar or two a year of chimney-money,

It tells, besides, how to care for lamps; even that is imperfectly known.

I send it free; am glad to.

Macbeth, Pittsburgh.

IOWA.

Atlantic, April 17.—Two fine services yesterday. Three additions—two from the Baptists, one by letter.—W. B. Crewdson.

Shenandoah.—Cause moving on nicely; audiences increasing under the able presentation of the word by Brother Hendrickson. Eighty-five dollars raised for mission work recently.—A. Rhodes.

Floris, April 14.—We recently closed a series of special meetings which were a decided success. In a four weeks' meeting, through the worst weather of the season, good-sized crowds were in attendance each evening. Thirty-six were added to the church—32 by confession and baptism. The preaching was done by I. T. LeBaron, of Milton. After the close of the protracted meeting, Brother Le Baron assisted us further in an all day meeting, Sunday, April 2, when dinner and supper were served in the hall to all the members of the church. The all day meeting resulted in the election of new officers for the coming year.—Chas. Lawrence Wheeler, pastor.

KANSAS.

Glasco.—One confession and baptism at Miltonvale not reported. Also one added by letter from Methodists to the Glasco congregation, April 16, having been immersed. J. W. Ball, pastor at Glasco, will preach the memorial sermon, May 28.—J. W. Ball.

Santa Fe, April 17.—We just closed a short meeting among "scattered Disciples," with some 24 additions. Organized a church with 40 members and there are more to follow. The people out here are thirsting for the "primitive gospel." We need more young men to preach the gospel in the "land of magnificent distances." We expect to preach for these brethren once a month.—V. L. Goodrich and wife.

Sedgwick, April 18.—Closed last night. Twenty-three additions. Salary raised for full time. S. F. Wright and wife, C. R. Wright, of Burton, were called and begin pastorate at once. The Sedgwick church is in excellent condition. I go to Hamlin next.—N. A. Stull, evangelist.

Buffalo, April 20.—I baptized eight at Big Sandy in Woodson county last Sunday. This makes 22 added there since last report.—Gilbert Park.

Topeka, April 21.—Our meeting in the First church in this city has been in progress 17 days. There are 58 additions to date.—H. A. Northcutt, evangelist; V. E. Ridenour, singer; Charles A. Finch, pastor.

KENTUCKY.

Owenton, April 17.—The work of the church

Communion
Sets
Quadruple Silver Plate

This Communion Ware is manufactured by one of the largest and most reliable establishments in the United States. We will be pleased to give prices. Write us, stating how many of each piece will be wanted. Address,

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

advances steadily. In the foreign mission offering we exceeded our apportionment and the outlook is good for home missions. I preached last night the third discourse in a series of sermons on "Fundamental Beliefs." The "Junior Builders" are making preparations for a special Easter offering to missions, and the Sunday-school is planning for larger and better work this year. One addition at the morning service yesterday.—W. J. Clarke, minister.

MICHIGAN.

Grand Rapids, April 22.—C. J. Tannar, of Detroit, just closed a good meeting here. We were all greatly strengthened and will reap the fruit for months to come. Fifteen were added and others are ready.—F. P. Arthur.

MISSOURI.

Libertyville, April 18.—The new church organized in Flat River by Brother Clark, and much strengthened and increased by Bro. J. T. Craig's late meeting, is doing well. J. H. Hill preached Monday night, when two persons took membership. Brother Hill is continuing the meeting this week. The brethren aim to build a new church house this summer.

Mexico, April 23.—Offering this morning for orphans' home by Sunday-school, $65. Three additions to the church.—A. W. Kokendoffer.

Mt. Grove, April 20.—Eight additions since last report, four by confession, one reclaimed, one from Methodists and two by statement. I begin a meeting for the missionary board of Dade county, May 6.—E. W. Yocum.

St. Louis, April 23.—At a revival service held at the First Christian church, St. Louis, by the pastor, John L. Brandt, during the past three weeks, 133 were added to the membership, most of them being by baptism. Several came from other churches. Forty-four were added to the church in March when, preparatory revival sermons were preached, making 167 gathered in this short meeting with home forces.

OHIO.

Utica, April 14.—Six weeks ago Brethren Harry G. Hill, McConnell and Elston, held a four weeks' meeting for us in the town hall. The immediate result was 18 confessions and four from the Baptists. A church was organized. We are without a home; will have to meet in the hall until we can do better.—W. L. Fairael.

OKLAHOMA.

Perkins, April 17.—We have just returned from Marshall where we baptized four after the morning service and received one from the United Brethren church in the evening; house crowded.—J. W. Garner.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Ellwood City, April 17.—Our revival services have closed, with 60 additions: 53 adults and seven children. We have entered 28 new families; our summary is as follows: 14 heads of families, 39 young people, seven children; total, 60; days' work, 36. We are now moving on and getting in line for the simultaneous revival movement beginning October next.—Ferd F. Schultz, minister.

The Best Book Ever Written
on the subject, is
The Verdict of Thousands
who have read
Moral and Spiritual Aspects of Baptism
By N. J. Aylsworth
Cloth, 471 pages, $1.50
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

American Standard Revised Bible

"I am using the American Edition of the Revised Bible, and find it superior to any edition in existence in the English Tongue. I strongly commend it."
—Bishop E. R. Hendrix.

Issued in over 100 styles. For sale by all booksellers. THOMAS NELSON & SONS, Publishers, 37 East 18th Street, New York. We also publish the King James Version in over 400 styles. Send for catalogues.

Sandy Lake, April 17.—Just closed a four weeks' meeting at Carpenters Corners with 30 additions, mostly by confession and baptism, five from the Methodists. Miss Margaret Windsor, of Muncie, Ind., assisted us the two last weeks as singer. Much strength was added to the church. We are getting ready for a big summer campaign.—Thomas Martin.

NEW YORK.

Buffalo.—I am in a fine meeting here with the Jefferson street church of Christ, B. S. Ferrall pastor. Thus far there are 73 additions—68 being baptisms. Of the five coming by letter none have ever before been members of the Christian church. One out of six is a man. Several whole families. Interest is good in spite of Calhoun in union meeting with eleven churches, and 5 other meetings within a few blocks.—Allen Wilson.

TENNESSEE.

Nashville, April 18.—A series of sermons to young men every Sunday night is now in its seventh month. Interest unabated. Many additions and confessions. Twenty-five baptisms in the last four weeks. Gallery required to accommodate the crowds for 20 weeks.—Geo. Gowen.

WASHINGTON.

Lind, April 15.—Brother S. G. Griffith, of Pullman, assisted by R. W. Mills, pastor, and F. O. McCauley as song leader, closed a very successful meeting in Lind. There were 80 additions: 61 by confession, eight by statement, four from Baptists, four from Methodists and three others yet to be immersed. The work is growing in east Washington. More good preachers are needed who will preach the gos-without compromise.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling.—At the Island church 33 have been added since I began my work on Christmas day, and the work is growing in all departments.—C. Manly Rice.

WISCONSIN.

Lynxville, April 17.—One confession last evening at regular service. We will reopen the remodeled and refurnished church house on the second Lord's day in May.—A. M. Laird, minister.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Okmulgee, April 21.—The interest in the meeting has steadily increased, and we have had 13 more additions to the church, seven of them being confessions. This makes 19 in all during this meeting. Brother Van Voorhis' sermons, based on the Bible alone, are meeting with the enthusiastic approval of all.—Ray E. Dew, singing evangelist.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

WANTED—a good Physician, an active member of Christian Church, at Ripley, Okla., a fine location. For information write W. G. Patton.

WANTED—Members of Christian Church, who contemplate locating in Kansas and Oklahoma, to correspond with P. H. Guy & Co., Wigfield, Kansas.

TYPEWRITER—I have for sale a brand-new typewriting machine; one that I can recommend. Neat, well made, serviceable. Has same key-board as Remington. Can give you a bargain. W. D. Cree, 2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Man Preparing for Other Worlds

By
WM. T. MOORE, M. A., LL. D.

Or the Spiritual Man's Conflict and Final Victory : :
A Story of Man in the Light of the Bible, Science and Experience : : : :

Cloth, 500 Pages, $2.00.

VERDICTS OF THOSE WHO HAVE READ THIS GREAT BOOK

His best book . . . It is the book of the gospel—the gospel for the man in the street.—Dr. Jas. Hastings, Editor of Dictionary of the Bible.

All who read the book will be benefited thereby. It breathes a sweet, pure spirit and will certainly do much good.—D. R. Dungan.

It is a book for the age, by one who is alive to the needs of the age and the great problems that confront the leaders of the church.—J. J. Morgan.

It is the ripest thought and matured conviction of a veteran whose ministry as a preacher and writer among the churches of Christ has been conspicuous. It bears the unmistakable marks of wide reading, earnest thinking and catholic sympathies.—Christian Standard.

It has been quite a help to me. It abounds in good suggestions and new applications.—Wm. Ross Lloyd.

It is a book of wide compass, depicting the spiritual history of man from his origin to his final destiny.—J. W. McGarvey.

It is the greatest book ever published by our brotherhood. At every reading it has had fresh charm for me. . . Send for it now! Now!! Not by and by, and you will thank me for ten years to come.—Jas. Small.

Dr. Moore is the most picturesque figure of this present religious reformation, one of its profoundest theologians and most charming writers. Of all his numerous and valuable contributions to church literature this is his masterpiece.—Geo. L. Snively.

Published by
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

People's Forum.

Mr. Rockefeller's Gift.

DANVILLE, ILL., April 13.

EDITOR, THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST:—This week's paper is in my hands and I have read with much interest your comments in regard to Rockefeller's gift to the American board and the position of influential Congregationalist preachers in regard to it. I am somewhat surprised to find this statement from your usually correct and careful pen: "As a matter of fact, neither mission boards, nor local church officials, nor individual ministers undertake any such impossible task in reference to funds offered them." It seems to me this statement needs to be well qualified. We cannot always determine with absolute accuracy as to whether or not this money offered to the Lord has been honorably earned or obtained by the donor. Neither can we with absolute certainty determine in every case the controlling motive that prompts the donor. Therefore shall we give no heed to the how and wherefore of this gift? Were the great Dr. Chalmers and his noble four hundred unwise in refusing in their hour of great need the large offering from hearts of sympathy in the south, because they deemed it "blood money," taken from the backs of black brother slaves on southern plantations? Because I cannot always judge with absolute accuracy, shall I therefore close my eyes and ears altogether and accept the hush money offered by the saloon keeper and brewer politicians? Nay, I may have some reason or reasons for suspecting that their money has been stolen. Shall I then refrain from any investigation in the matter?

I have for years been of the opinion that we should exercise due care and caution in this as in other matters relating to the Lord's treasury. If we err at times in our efforts to be and do right, it is to be expected, being human and in keeping with our conduct in other things of like mport.

The church of Christ is now accused of being in league with the commercialism of to-day, and if this accusation is unwarranted, we should be careful in regard to the patronage we receive or is offered by those who are looked upon as oppressors not only of the poor, but of the toiling masses. Without passing judgment in this particular case in question, I am of the opinion that there are times when ministers, church officials and missionary boards are justified in saying to policy-loving representatives of the prince of darkness as they approach us with their gifts of hush or purchase money, "Thy money perish with thee," and yet we need to be wise as serpents and harmless as doves in this as in other things and exercise great caution and not mistake mere prejudice for conscience. Let us ask for and receive divine wisdom and the spirit of Christ. Now, Brother Garrison, I may have misunderstood you and my criticism may, therefore, be out of place. I feel, however, we are dealing with a vital question and one crowding itself upon us from all sides at this time. It is a question to be talked and written about as well as thought and prayed over. ANDREW SCOTT.

[The statement quoted from the Easy Chair, that "as a matter of fact, neither mission boards, nor local church officials, nor individual ministers undertake any such impossible task in reference to funds offered them," means, and was intended to mean, simply that, as a rule, neither individuals, nor officials representing missionary organizations, nor ministers of churches consider it any part of their duty to trace the antecedents of the money which is paid to them, to ascertain whether it has been earned honestly or otherwise. Clearly this would be an impossible task. This does not mean, of course, that a minister, or a church, or a mission board, or anybody else would receive what our correspondent calls "hush or purchase money." That is bribery. Any honest man would refuse to accept money from anyone when he had any reason to believe that it was offered him for the purpose of causing him to be silent in reference to things about which he ought to speak, or to favor anything he ought to oppose. That is not a doubtful ethical problem. But that is something very different from what we had in mind in calling in question the soundness of the logic of those who argue that it is wrong to receive money for religious uses where there is any reason to suspect that it has been made by doubtful methods. If this be a correct principle—that is, if it be wrong to use money that comes into the church treasury or into our hands, individually, for religious uses, that has been wrongly accumulated—then it becomes the bounden duty of every individual, or church, or missionary board to institute a judicial inquiry into the sources of all the funds that they receive, in order that they may know positively whether such money has been honestly accumulated. It is to be presumed that Mr. Rockefeller, as all others who give money for missionary purposes, gives it to the Lord. Mission boards or local churches are but the means of transmission to see that the money thus contributed is used for the purpose for which it was given. What right have they to assume the province of the Almighty in attempting to determine whether the gifts thus offered are acceptable to God, and in intercepting funds which have been directed to religious uses and diverting them into other channels? We hold that the Lord has not called any individual or any missionary board to any such work. EDITOR.]

⁂

All are Forgiven.

EDITOR. CHRISTIAN - EVANGELIST: — I have just received my old friend, the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, and oh, what memories crowd thick upon me when I read its familiar pages! Brethren, who long ago have passed into the great beyond, stand before me and really I feel young again. I note that many of these are still spared yet. Just keep on sending it. I am old and poor now, but praise God, I shall yet be rich, if not in this world, I trust that in the world to come I shall own a home of my own.

I have just read what the Standard said about baptism, and which the Baptist Argus criticised. I want to differ from both of these good brethren, and there is no use of making a long story out of a very short one. Listen! When Jesus died on the cross every sin ever committed was then and there forgiven. He died for the sins of the whole world. "It is finished." "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world," etc., etc. I might multiply scriptures but I deem these sufficient.

Forgiveness is not a personal matter, but one of a general character. Well then, if all sins were forgiven when Christ died what or who is it that condemns? might be asked. I answer that this forgiveness cannot save anyone. Salvation consists not only in being forgiven but in the further great fact that no one is saved until a new life is imparted to him. Though forgiven men still perish because they do not seek God and the eternal life which Jesus alone can impart. Baptism is the sign, the overt act, which testifies that we accept the forgiveness and eternal life offered to us by the blessed Lord. E. A. FROST.

[We are glad to hear from Brother Frost again, and to give his view as stated above. We think, however, he mistakes the provision for the forgiveness of all through the death of Christ, and the actual fact of forgiveness. There is in the death of Christ provision made for the sins of the whole world, and those who avail themselves of the provision thus made may receive the forgiveness of sins, otherwise they remain under condemnation; so, at least, it seems to us.—EDITOR.]

Individual Communion Servic[illegible]
Made of several materials and in many designs including self-[illegible]
Send for full particulars and catalogue No 27 Give [illegible] number of [illegible]
"The Lord's Supper takes on a new dignity and beauty by the use of the individual Cup."—[illegible]
GEO. H. SPRINGER, Manager, 256-258 Washington St., Boston, [illegible]

A Complete Line of

BAPTISMAL SUITS

Guaranteed Best Quality.

Write to us for Prices.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

REUBEN:
HIS BOOK

297 Pages of Humor and Philosophy
In attractive and substantial cloth binding
BY
Morton H. Pemberton

"Reub reminds one a little bit of the late lamented Ben King, who was indeed a lovely soul; but Reub's is rather a broader kind of laugh-making product. . . . .
"His book is already heading the list of 'best sellers' and deserves to go. 'It is good.' "
—St. Louis Republic.

A new book but one that is springing rapidly into popularity, because of its telling wit and humor and its freedom from coarseness.

Everybody Will Enjoy It
All Will Be Benefited By It

PRICE $1.00, POSTPAID.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

May 3, 1905.

A SCRIPTURAL MAP STUDY.

And he answered and said, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom; and the tares are the sons of the evil one. —Matt. 13:37, 38.

This is a lesson in the interest of home missions. We are to have a brief study of the field and its needs. And first let us consider—

The Fields. Many of them are already ripe for the harvest (John 4:35-38). The United States is one of the ripest fields in all the world for spiritual harvesting. We need not go amiss for needy fields. There is the great east, with its teeming population which is rapidly increasing by foreign immigration, which needs the simple and pure gospel of the grace of God. From the point of view of our reformatory work it is a needy field, and yet one that in many respects is ready for the sickle. The great south land with a more homogeneous population is ready to receive the plea which we are making for the Christianity of Christ and the unity for which he prayed. The same is true of the north and of the great west. When one compares the magnitude of these fields with the very few laborers who are at work, he can but recall the Master's word, "Truly the harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye that the Lord of the harvest may thrust forth other laborers into the field."

How Shall We Enter These Fields? We can only do it effectively by co-operation. It is by working together that the churches can accomplish the greatest results in these great and needy fields. This is all that our missionary societies mean. The American Christian Missionary Society is the medium simply through which our churches are co-operating in sending forth laborers into the great fields of our home land. The first Lord's day in May has been set apart for an offering from all the churches of the brotherhood for the purpose of supporting laborers in these needy fields to preach the gospel, establish churches, organize Sunday-schools and do whatever else is needed for the permanent upbuilding of the cause of Christ. Let no church that counts itself loyal to the Master, whether rich or poor, fail to make an offering according to its ability to this great work of evangelizing America.

Our Responsibility. The Disciples of Christ have a great opportunity and a great responsibility in this work. To them has been given a dispensation of truth adapted to the needs of the world to-day. We shall be faithless to a sacred trust if we do not make offerings amounting to sacrifices to extend this cause throughout the length and breadth of the land. (Read Gen. 13:14-18.) No missionary society in the world, perhaps, is winning so many converts with the same amount of means as our Home Missionary Society. Let us greatly increase our offerings, that the results may be correspondingly great.

Prayer. O Thou Lord of the harvest, we thank Thee for the ripening fields which Thou hast prepared for us, and for the virgin soil which yet waits for the precious seed. Thou alone canst furnish the sowers and reapers. We pray Thee to increase the number of laborers, and increase the liberality of Thy churches, that this great work may be carried forward in triumph until Thy glory shall fill the earth. For Thy name's sake. Amen.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

May 7, 1905.

THE MAKING OF A CHRISTIAN: HIS EXERCISE.—Jas. 1:22-27.

For the Leader.

We have come to the end of another month and the joys of another consecration meeting. I wonder how many look upon this as a joy, a privilege? It is well for all that do. It should never come into our minds to say, as some do, "Oh, dear, we have another consecration meeting at Endeavor to-night, and I have to take part." That is not the right way to look at the matter. It is evidence of not living as one should. The things of the Christian service are not looked upon in the light of duties to be performed, as things that could be, but for a promise or the pledge we took when we went into the society, left undone and we be just about as well off. It is far from being so. No one can keep his heart from the joys of this or any other Christian meeting without loss. It matters not whether he promised anything of the kind or not. It is a benefit, a spiritual uplift, that he does not have if he holds himself from the services. So, then, let us have a response from every one to-night. It will bring an uplift to you as individuals and an uplift to the society as a whole.

For the Members.

1. By the exercise of a Christian I do not understand that the intention of this topic was to place the emphasis upon the athletic sports and games practiced for the development of the physical man. There is a good opportunity for a fine lesson upon this phase of the thought alone. Bodily exercise is good for the body. Is it also good for the mind? And it may, under certain circumstances, be good for the spiritual nature. But this by the way, for the exercise that interests us now is the exercise of the spiritual man.

2. The importance of the exercise of the spiritual man lies in the fact of the superiority of the spiritual over the physical. As necessary as raiment for the body, and as important as food for the stomach, and as good as much learning for the intellectual man, yet much more necessary is food for the spiritual man. It is the life. The others are but the incidental things, such as clothing, food, and so forth. Is it thought strange that spiritual exercise is as food for the soul? It should not be so thought. Exercise, work, is the means of growth in goodness, in righteousness.

3. Now when we consider works set over against faith in the Christian life, we come to a point where we should take great care. We do not desire to weaken the idea of faith. That must not be done. We can not have too strong a faith. But at the same time, we do not want to hold the idea of faith in a way that will weaken the idea of good works in the Christian life. For the good deed is the end of the thought, and, in a loose way of stating the question, works are the end of faith. James says we must not hold the one in such a way as to destroy the other. One alone is of no value. Faith that does not issue in deeds dies before it reaches the end of its intention. Works that are not based upon faith are mechanical, and are no more meritorious than the works of a machine.

4. Hearing is good. We can think of nothing lawful to say against listening to the word. To be a good listener is to possess a rare grace. To go often to the house of the Lord and hear the words whereby we all who would see good days and enter the way of the Nazarene must be fed, is to do a commendable thing. But to be an habitual hearer without doing what we hear is a profitless thing. Like the image of one in a mirror which goes when the person steps away, so the good of the hearing dies with the echo of the speaker and the audience of the hearer. It is just as much to be condemned as a practice that wastes opportunity as to have faith and not do the demands of faith. If one can have faith without using it, and if one can hear in the true sense without doing. Let us not do things by halves. It takes the well-rounded character to meet the demands of the model the Lord has given us, Christ. Let us both hear and do, both believe and obey.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Is there any work the Christ wants me to do that I am not doing? Lord, teach me what it is and I will do it.

DAILY READINGS

M.	Perfect by striving.	Heb. 5:5-9
T.	Strengthened by trial.	1 Pet. 1:6-9
W.	Strengthened by fighting.	Eph. 6:10-18
T.	Resistance strengthens.	1 Cor. 10:6-13
F.	Comrades of Christ.	Heb. 3:12-16
S.	Striving for crowns.	2 Tim. 4:5-8
S.	Topic—The making of a Christian: his exercise. Jas. 1:22-27. (Consecration meeting.)

* * *

Arkansas and Louisiana.

The Passenger Department of the Cotton Belt Route (St. Louis & Southwestern Ry.), with headquarters in St. Louis, has just issued an attractive and interesting book entitled "The Waiting Wealth of Arkansas and Louisiana."

It contains a vast amount of information concerning the undeveloped resources of the two states mentioned, gives many facts as evidence of their future greatness and is embellished profusely with half tone illustrations.

Readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST who are interested enough to write to the Passenger Department, Cotton Belt Route, St. Louis, Mo., will receive a copy without cost.

Songs of Service and Praise

A NEW HYMN BOOK FOR ALL PEOPLE

HIGH GRADE LOW PRICE
Music by STEBBINS, MAIN, BENKE, THE SANKEYS, Etc.
$10 per 100 SAMPLE 15c.

UNION PRESS, Phil., Pa.

Gloria in Excelsis

624 Pages of Music and Responsive Readings in

Handsome Bindings

Now in Press

Write to us for sample pages & prices.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

Sunday-School.

May 7, 1905.

THE VINE AND THE BRANCHES.—John 15:1-12.

Memory verses, 5, 6.

Golden Text.—Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit.—John 15:8.

Between the last lesson and the present one occurred the supper which was the central feature of this gathering in the upper room. John, to whom we would have supposed that this tender memorial would have appealed with especial force, strangely enough makes no reference to it, but he gives at greater length the discourses which occupied the hour. Some of them, including this of the vine and the branches, were apparently spoken as the little group walked out to the Garden of Gethsemane. Or possibly they lingered about the table for a time even after the words, "Arise, let us go hence," had been spoken. In any case we have here the farewell utterances of Jesus to the Twelve, spoken after the supper and within a few hours of the arrest, trial and crucifixion.

The parable of the vine and the branches illustrates admirably the manner in which our Lord used parables. He chooses some simple object or event, often some vital process in nature, which illustrates some one great spiritual truth. Other related truths may be grouped about that one, but there is no effort to make every detail of the parable carry its special burden of spiritual truth. The parable is not an allegory.

In this case the great outstanding truth has to do with the relation of the disciple to his Master. It is to be an intimate and vital relation, rather than mechanical or official. The bond of unity between them is not to be an external authority imposed upon the disciple by the Master, but is to be the very life of the Master flowing into and through the disciple, vitalizing him and guiding him from within. And this life of the Master, coming into the disciple and becoming truly his life, will not only dominate and control him by an internal compulsion, but will make him fruitful to produce those results which are in keeping with the common character of the disciple and the Master.

To embody this truth, no figure can be more effective than that of the vine and the branch. One life fluid flows through and binds them into a vital unity. It is the vine which gives life and strength to the branch, not the branch to the vine, yet the branch is not controlled as by a rigid and mechanical force. The fruitfulness of the branch, even its very life, depends upon its continued connection with the vine, and only by fruitfulness can it justify its existence. Moreover, the vine needs the branches and can bear fruit only through them.

So is expressed the fact of man's utter dependence upon God as revealed in Christ, and that other fact—which should give every man a feeling of greater dignity and worth—that God needs men to carry on his work in the world and to bear fruit for him.

After all, the test of a vine is its fruit-bearing qualities. "In this is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit." The fruitfulness of the vine is the glory of the husbandman, and it is also the joy and glory of the branches, if vines could feel. There is no joy in Christian life without service; the condition of effective service is abiding in Christ, and abiding in Christ means to be filled with his spirit, which is love.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Church Supplies

Church Register and Record
With special rulings, headings and an alphabetical register. Printed on good paper and substantially bound. Size, 9 x 14 inches; cloth sides with leather back and corners.
150 pages - $2.00 300 pages - $3.50

Concise Church Record
A cheap and convenient book in which to record names of members, date of admission, how admitted and remarks. Space for 960 names. Printed on good paper and strongly bound. Price - - $1.00

Contribution Record
For use in connection with the envelope system. Designed expressly for keeping systematic account of weekly contributions. The most convenient record published.
Half leather, quarto, 80 pages - - $1.00
Half leather, quarto, 160 pages - - 1.50

Collection Envelopes
Made of good, strong manila paper. Neatly printed, 2 1-2 x 4 1-2 inches; satisfactory in every particular.
Per thousand by express, not prepaid $1.00
Per thousand by mail - - - 1.50

Church Letters
Bound in book form with stub for memorandum. The neatest and most convenient published.
No. 1. Fifty Letter Blanks - - $0.50
No. 2. One Hundred Letter Blanks 1.00

Baptismal Pants
We handle only the best grade. They are made in regulation sizes, based on the size of the foot. If an exceptional size is needed it can be made to order. In ordering send size of shoe worn. Prices quoted on application.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

SUBTERRANEAN WONDERS

Mammoth Cave

AND

COLOSSAL CAVERN

Are the most interesting of all the Natural Wonders in America. These wonderful Caverns are visited annually by thousands of tourists from this country and abroad. They are pronounced by scientists the most magnificent work of nature. It would well repay you to take the time to make a visit to them. They are 100 miles south of Louisville, Ky. near the [illegible] and the undersigned will be glad to quote you rates, give train schedules or send you a beautifully illustrated 48 page booklet giving an interesting description of these remarkable places.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Louisville, Ky

MICHIGAN SUMMER RESORTS

There is no more entrancing summer country in the world than the

Great Lake Country

It is mountains and seashore in one.

Write for booklets of information to

H. F. Moeller, G.P.A.
Pere Marquette Railroad,
500 Union Station,
Detroit, Mich.

WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

The People's New Testament With Notes
: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :

A complete commentary on the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.

The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2.00; Sheep, per vol., $2.75
Half morocco, per vol., $3.00
The volumes can be had separately.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

COMBS.

Just as the world was being released from the icy embrace of winter and the first songs of springtime greeted us, Bro. W. T. Combs was set free from his earthly tabernacle and taken up home where eternal springtime abides. Brother Combs was born in Kentucky. He attained the ripe age of threescore and twelve years. He was loved by all who knew him. Like Nathanael, in him was no guile. He thought evil of no one, neither spoke evil of any. He was pure in heart and gentle and loving in all his life. It was in the home that his virtues were seen to the best advantage. Never have we seen two lives more completely blended than his and that of his dear wife who survives him, with their two sons, Geo. H., who has for twelve years been the beloved pastor of the Independence avenue church of this city, and is known and loved by this whole brotherhood, and Dr. J. G., who is a practicing physician of great possibilities in his chosen profession. Nine years ago Brother and Sister Combs came to this city that they might be with their sons who were established here. Brother Combs' faith never faltered. He seemed to have had a premonition of his coming death, and he wrote a beautiful letter giving his parting blessing to each of the family. His desire was that his body be taken back to the old family cemetery at Campbellsburgh, Ky. It was accompanied by his wife and son George. At the grave they were met by a large company of old friends who had known him from his youth, and these lovingly laid his body to rest to await the resurrection of the just. May the good Father comfort his dear ones and especially may he be near his broken-hearted wife, who has lost one of the best loved and most loving of husbands.

Kansas City, Mo. J. J. Morgan.

DALTON.

Mrs. Margaret A. Dalton, who died Feb. 15, 1905, was long a worker identified especially with the Central church, Cincinnati, O. The following resolutions of the ladies' aid society express the sentiments of a wide circle of friends. "Thy shadow has again passed over our society, and taken from our midst our dear friend, sister and co-worker, Mrs. Margaret A. Dalton. In her death our society has lost a valuable member, a faithful and earnest worker. Only those who knew this lovely woman can realize what her death means to her family, her friends and the church. Wise, patient, loving and true, her life was a benediction to all who came within the circle of her acquaintance. Not only is this a bereavement to her own family, but to all who knew her. To old and young, at home and abroad, she was always kind, gentle and ever ready to please and do her whole duty in every relation in life. But none can feel her loss like those of her own household—the son, the two motherless grandchildren and a favorite niece who for years had made her home with her. To these we not only extend our deepest sympathy, but sorrow with them in their great loss. Gladly would we give comfort to their aching, sorrowing hearts; but God alone can give relief."

HUNT.

I am a little tardy, it may be, but my tribute is hearty, nevertheless. I first met Bro. W. T. Hunt when I went to Colorado Springs in June, 1898. He was preaching for a company of Disciples in the southern part of the city. He had spent some time in Cripple Creek, where he did good work. He impressed me, at once, as a sweet-spirited, whole-souled, genuine, Christian man. The longer I knew Brother Hunt the better I loved him and the more exalted was my appreciation of his worth. He excelled as a Bible teacher. He was an earnest, devout, and constant student of the Book. His faith in its teachings and fundamental principles was clear, strong, profound. In his work he was most unselfish. His devotion to his, and our, Lord was complete. The Christ, and his church, occupied the chief place in his thoughts, desires, efforts. If ever a man kept himself unspotted from the world that man was W. T. Hunt. He was a consecrated man without cant. He could have said, as said Paul: "Be ye imitators of me as I am of Christ." While Brother Hunt was pastor of the Christian church in Loveland, Colorado, the fine property which now belongs to the National Benevolent Association in that place was tendered, to be used as a home for orphans. This enterprise was on his heart. I have heard that the first address of Geo. L. Snively on "Christian Benevolence" was delivered in Brother Hunt's pulpit in Loveland. If this statement is correct, and I do not doubt it, then this other statement is true, namely: Brother Snively has never had a warmer or more sympathetic welcome than the pastor of that Loveland congregation gave him that day. The name of Wesley T. Hunt ought to occupy space on the walls of the Loveland orphanage when this home for fatherless and motherless children becomes a fact. Seventeen of the almost forty-five years of his life were devoted to the ministry of the word. He gave up this work only when failing health compelled him to do so. His only desire to live was that he might continue to serve Christ. His faith triumphed in the hour of apparent defeat. A short time before he passed out of the lower into the higher life he said, in a tone of unshaken confidence: "The Savior has a warm welcome for me." Farewell, my brother, until we meet in "The Better Land." Till then farewell.

Denver, Colorado. B. B. Tyler.

❀ ❀

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF

SACRED SONGS

FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS, YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES, EVANGELISTIC SERVICES, AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF CHURCH WORK AND WORSHIP, ENTITLED :

Praises to the Prince

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music.
Handsome Appearance.
Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market.

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid	$ .30
Boards,	" " "	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " "	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" " " "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" " " "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	15.00

PUBLISHED BY

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

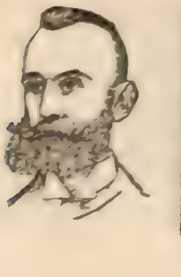
The Only Strictly First-Class Church Hymnal

Published by the Disciples of Christ

Gloria in Excelsis

The superior of any hymnal now in the market. A postal card will bring full information.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis



PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Fistula, Fissure, Bleeding, Itching, Ulceration, Constipation and all Rectal Diseases a Specialty.
Cures Guaranteed. Send for Booklet. DR. M. NEY SMITH, Specialist,
800 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo. Established in St. Louis in 1888.

The Editor of the Christian-Evangelist knows of his personal knowledge a number of persons who were severely afflicted with rectal troubles whom Dr. Smith has cured. He is personally acquainted with the Doctor, and has no hesitation in commending any sufferer thus afflicted to him.

AT DAYBREAK

By Lewis Worthington Smith.

Men, my brothers, let the silver light of dawn be shining still;
God is watching in the silence while your hopes repeat his will.

On each distant peak the promise flings a glory on the snow;
Let your eyes be flushed with laughter ere the tears must overflow.

Far along the purple distance in the shadow of the years,
Other dreams than yours have perished, other hopes have had but tears.

But the blood of other martyrs makes a nobler dream for you;
In the throbbings of their spirits you can make their visions true.

Human sacrifice is mortal, failing with the failing breath.
Only Christ, divinely human, lives forever in his death.

We who faint in human weakness can not make the world anew,
Save by warfare never-ending, life by life the centuries through.

Vain the blood of other ages to free Cuba in our own;
Greece must fight the old fight over, though the heir of Marathon.

Every hour has new achievements waiting for the sturdy blow
Of the downright hero-hearted, firm to will, to do, and know.

But for them no past outpouring of a sacrificial stream
Makes the present such a glory as one fancies in a dream.

Every day has needs new-planted, every day has hopes new-thrilled,
That each heart may throb with purpose and each life with use be filled.

Error dead may spring a phœnix from the ashes of the past,
And the never-ending warfare hears each day the trumpet-blast.

Men, my brothers, let the silver light of dawn be shining still.
God is watching in the silence! you must dare to do his will!

Guided by no past evangel, eager-visioned, promise-browed,
Let your will be greatly daring, let your heart be nobly proud!

Strong for larger needs and duties, higher hopes of man for man,
Science-nurtured, art-uplifted, music-souled, since day began.

On the purpled hills of sunrise, misty vapored, mixed with gray,
Just before your earnest vision, beauty gathers for the day.

Slowly, slowly, as you will it, light will flush across the snows,
Till the earth is warm with gladness such as reddens in the rose.

* * *

THE GOSPELLERS.

Heroic Itinerants Who Carried Religion into the American Wilderness.

By Rebecca Harding Davis.

Oddly enough, the most picturesque chapter of American history is as yet unwritten. It is that which will tell of the first attacks by the different religious sects upon the devil in the settlers and in the savages. We have, it is true, occasional grave accounts of their measures to save souls, but there were strange happenings in these assaults which are not set down in such annals, but which give to us to-day a clearer insight into the conditions of the times than do any formal history.

Take Father Marquette's story just as it is, for instance. A gallant young noble, in an ancient French town which for centuries had been a theatre for the glory of his family, chooses to give up his heritage—war and fame—and to go half around the world to an unbroken wilderness, there to uplift the savages. No glory is to be found in the adventure. It is a plunge into blackest night, with the certainty at the end of a nameless, forgotten death. In fact, the gallant young fellow prayed with such bitterness throughout all the years of his adventure that he "might die alone in the wilderness, far from human succor," that the worldly reader now finds himself wondering who the woman was that had driven his soul into these lonely straits.

No one knows, or ever will know. But there is no more dramatic figure in American history than this first white man standing upon the banks of the Mississippi among the savages whom he had saved, the chill of death creeping up through his veins.

A picturesque figure, too, is that of Asbury, the great Methodist itinerant. Another young fellow—English this time—leaves his comfortable home and comes to the same vast wilderness. For nearly half a century he travels unceasingly on horseback, on foot, he climbs mountains, he fords rivers, he forces a way through unbroken wildernesses; a fastidiously clean man, he sleeps in filthy, vermin-ridden cabins or on the ground; he travels, every year, thousands of miles. And for what? To save souls.

This is an old-fashioned true story, and, if you choose, you may find some significant hints in it of changed conditions in the world.

Some of his friends once proposed to Francis Asbury that he should take to himself a wife. He laughed. "My salary," he said, "is sixty-five dollars a year and food for me and my horse. Can a woman live on that?"

He did not tell them that out of these sixty-five dollars he supported his mother in England. He had sold his watch and his second suit of clothes once to send her more money, and never was able to replace them. She was an old woman, whom he had not seen since he was a boy. But she and her poor little cabin in Kent made the only home for him that he had in the world.

Asbury, we are told, "was a sickly fellow, and always desponding." But he rode, and tramped, and forded rivers, and to the last hour of his life brought Christ home to the soul of every man he met. Add to this the fact that the man had a keener appetite than other men for a good meal and a good house and the company of happy, pretty women, and you can make out the story for yourselves.

In those first years, when there were few breaks in the wilderness that stretched from sea to sea, the preaching was necessarily itinerant. The different sects held their men in leash, so to speak, but it was a loose hold. They came and went at their own pleasure, or, as they were apt to claim, at the will of God.

Outside of the borders of any sect were the gospellers, who traveled incessantly, holding stations for meetings in the forest. A hollow tree, cut off midway, served as a pulpit, while the congregation, gathered from far and near, were squatted on the ground. Chief among these traveling missioners was Lorenzo Dow, the son of a poor Connecticut farmer, who was called in a dream at nineteen to preach, and who continued at the work until death silenced him.

Asbury had the foundations of an education in boyhood; he was hungry for knowledge, and always carried one or two books in his pocket on his endless marches. Thus, during his fifty years of journeying he made himself a fair Latin and Greek scholar. But Dow had no respect for learning. The universe held only, besides Dow, God and the devil. He talked to them both in his sleep. His diary of his travels shows that they were directed by his dreams. He often saw "mankind hanging by a thread over the pit of hell," and with frantic haste strove to save them. Conferences and bishops found him hard to manage; hence, he preached for years before he was ordained. He once was warned in a dream to save the Irish people, and going to a seaport worked his way the hold of a ship to Cork. In Ireland he was treated with more humanity than at home, where he had met with cruel usage from the coarse squatters. We should call Dow insane nowadays, but he must have had a natural fiery eloquence which burned the memory of him into his times. And, after all, his purpose was as sane as that of Paul or John.

Many queer anecdotes of him have come down by tradition in the mountains of Virginia. One story is that he was once trapped into matrimony by a shrew who tried to force him to give up his hunt for souls for that of bears. The good man bore patiently with her for a year. One day he brought home a doe that he had killed and threw it down before the cabin door. His wife came out. Dow went to the other side of the deer.

"I married you only until death should us part," he said, pointing to the carcass, and then marched away, never to return to that range of mountains.

These grim gospellers were not without humor, judging from the old stories which have come down to us. One of them, Thomas White, was greatly baffled in his cure of souls by the preaching of a prophet named Rogers, who taught that there was no God and no hell; hence that there was no need for honesty, virtue or marriage. When Father White arrived in a certain village in New Jersey he found that the young people had dubbed themselves Rogerines, and were beginning to live on this basis. A young man and woman whom he had known since childhood presented themselves foremost in the crowd.

"We are living together," they declared insolently, "and no preacher shall dare to marry us."

"Oh! You are living together? What do you mean by that, John? Are you going to be true to this woman and have nothing to say to any other?"

"I mean to do just that," swaggered John.

"But you, Mary? You will take John to-day and some other man to-morrow?"

"No, no! I've taken him for good."

"Then," said the old man, lifting his hands, "I pronounce you man and wife. Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

The Rogerines soon died out. But new sects sprang up with each new year. This was especially the case in Pennsylvania. The incoming Germans brought with them many kinds of fantastic creeds, and formed communities throughout the Alleghany Mountains of divers size and character, from the powerful and wealthy brotherhood of the Rappites, on the Ohio, to the groups of two or three long-haired ascetics who had their caves on the Wissahickon hills near Philadelphia.

The chief among these was Kelpius, a scholarly young German, who sought the wilderness to escape from conventions and to find the real meaning of life. He was followed by about forty disciples who donned sackcloth and preached all kinds of vagaries. Some of them took to marriage and others to drink, and all deserted him. Kelpius apparently was a sincere, pure soul. He seems to have found content with God and Nature, and while he was still a young man died, quite alone, in the forest.

But the peculiar feature of the religious life of those days was the traveling soul-doctor, like Asbury, Pere Marquette or Dow. He took his life in his hand as he came and went, facing savages, wild beasts, and more deadly malaria; but St. Francis himself was not more beloved by the lepers of Umbria than was he by the poor mountain squatters of the Alleghanies. If he could obtain a quart of salt in the towns he could pay his way royally though the mountains. Salt, you must remember, was then in the wilderness a more common currency than silver. Once each year a deputation of settlers crossed the mountains to barter the cattle and other produce of all the farms in the seaport towns. They brought back the pay in salt. A cow and a calf were worth a bushel of it, and so precious was it that the law required that "when the salt was put into the measure it should be sifted in lightly by the hand, and no one be allowed to cross the floor during the operation lest it should be unduly shaken down." I give this as a homely but significant hint of the social condition of the people who were led by the gospellers.

We find in the old records of those days accounts of many preachers whose doctrines and conduct were unconventional enough—old Antoine Benezet, for instance, who laid the foundations in the village of Philadelphia of the modern Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Every spavined old horse or mangy dog was his friend, to the disgust of his neighbors. But their patience gave out when during a long, hard winter he fed each day swarms of rats in his back yard. The neighbors protested angrily.

"What!" cried the old man. "Shall I eat and see my brothers starve?"

The religion of those days, however, had little of this gracious, Christlike quality. It was usually made up of fierce controversies or rapt visions.

John Woolman, at seven, had a revelation which ruled and uplifted his whole life. That poor little tailor of Mount Holly preached truths so high, in English so pure, that Charles Lamb summoned all England to pay heed to them. But Woolman, like Dow, was directed by his dreams. He went about in clothes and hat of undyed wool, "being warned not to wear a lie in his coat and breeches." Being ordered in a dream to preach the gospel to the English, a first-class passage was bought for him by some wealthy friend. But the cushions and gilding on the cabin scared him as temptations of the devil, so he betook himself to the steerage, where he remained and worked among the sick paupers during the two months of the voyage.

It is curious to notice how often these devout men were drawn in dreams or waking visions to go to the ends of the earth in search of lost souls, turning their backs on those in their own fields or kitchens. One godly Quakeress, who had preached all through the Colonies, heard the heavenly call to go first to France, then to Italy, and afterward to the Arabs in northern Africa. She obeyed it, and actually went and preached in these countries, though she did not know a word of any language spoken in them. If, she reasoned, the wretched foreigners did not know English she was not to blame. She was guiltless in their damnation. Then, as now, nervous restlessness was often miskten for holy fervor.

To us of the laity, as we look back, the most remarkable feature of the early religious life in this country was the powerful individual influence which the leaders of different organizations exerted upon their followers. A man collected a body of believers in his creed in Europe, brought them here and formed a community in the wilderness. Very soon they adopted his habits and idiosyncrasies as well as the tenets of his faith. This was especially the case with the stern Puritan leaders in New England; with Rapp, the communist, in Pennsylvania; and with George Whitefield in Savannah. The zealous Georgians, who would have none of the ascetic high church doctrines taught to them by the Wesleys, adopted the fervid radical as their leader.

The most remarkable instance of this one-man spiritual domination, perhaps, was that of Dimitri Gallitzin, in the Alleghany Mountains. His story is almost forgotten, but is worth the telling.

The Gallitzins were great boyars and princes in Russia before the Romanoffs were even known to exist. Dimitri's father was ambassador, under Catharine II, at The Hague; his mother was one of the most noted beauties in Europe. The boy had, from both sides, the blood of famous soldiers in his veins; he held rank in his cradle as an officer in Catharine's bodyguard. He was educated wholly for a military life. His mother retired to a lonely estate with him, donned coarse clothes, and surrounded herself with scholars and

Quick Meal
(Evaporator)
Gasoline Stoves

are absolutely safe—the Insurance people have tested them everyway to their full satisfaction. You take no chances with a Quick Meal.

It's simplicity itself—turn a valve—strike a match and you have a blistering hot fire instantly—and it stays that way without variation till you turn the valve off.

You can't do the wrong thing—it's impossible with the Quick Meal. It is safe, quick, clean and convenient.

And the intense, even heat means quick, even baking and cooking and your kitchen work done before you know it. No waits for your fire to "come up," while the bread dries in the oven.

● Cost only 4¢ or 6¢ a day for fuel— think of it—and no kindlings—no coal—no ashes—no soot—a hot fire the instant you want it—and better still a cool, clean, comfortable kitchen. The heat is under the kettles, and the bake-oven, and nowhere else on a Quick Meal.

Better see the dealer today. If he doesn't carry the Quick Meal, tell us and we'll sell you.

WOULD YOU LIKE A PRESENT?

We will send you something useful—something you'll like if you'll simply tell us your dealer's name and say whether or not he carries Quick Meal. Sign your name plainly so the present will be sure to reach you safely.

RINGEN STOVE CO. Div.
408 N. 6th St., St. Louis, Mo.

$50 POSITION
PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

The first ten who clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and send to

DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.

COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mai FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

A PRODUCT OF A GREAT REVIVAL
THE GREATEST OF ALL
REVIVAL HYMN BOOKS
Church Hymns and Gospel Songs
BY SANKEY, McGRANAHAN & STEBBINS.
NEARLY 700,000 SOLD!
Used and Endorsed by the CLERGY OF ALL DENOMINATIONS.
NEW EDITION!—JUST ISSUED!
With SUPPLEMENT of NEWEST SACRED SONGS added regularly to all Editions and Bindings.
Music & Words, all Large Type, 30c. by mail, $25 a 100.
Words Only, with New Supp., 12c. by mail, $10 a 100.
Returnable Samples mailed to "earnest inquirers."
Published by the publishers of the famous "Gospel Hymns."
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

philosophers in order to train him as a pagan and a stoic. He was crammed with languages, and was perpetually drilled in the hope that he would take place as the most skilled soldier of his day. But the fighting blood in his veins had turned white as milk. At twenty he was a prey to nervous terrors, he trembled at a sudden noise, and cried if he were left alone in the dark. Even his mother was forced to acknowledge that this last of the great fighting race was a coward.

John Adams, who was a friend of his father, counseled that the boy should be sent to this country "to see the world." The advice was taken. When he was on the pier at Rotterdam, ready to embark, the terror of the voyage overcame him with a deadly faintness; he clung to his mother, begging to stay.

"You disgrace me!" she cried, and pushed him from her with such force that he fell into the sea. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the ship. He refused to return or to see his mother again. The blow or the cold baptism had worked a strange change in the man's nerves. He never again in his life showed the least sign of fear.

On the voyage to this country he came to know the emigrants in the hold, and conceived the idea of giving his life to the help of such poor wretches in the world. Some time after he had reached Baltimore he sent word home that he had entered the priesthood. His father ordered him to return home, his mother pleaded, the Empress commanded. But Dimitri Gallitzin remained in the mountains of Pennsylvania while he lived.

His family sent him large sums, but he spent them all in buying tracts of land and colonizing them with poor emigrants. He laid out settlements within a radius of a hundred miles for his wretched dependents, and for fifty years was not only a missionary to these people but their doctor, nurse and friend, living himself in abject poverty, tramping the year round through wildernesses infested with wild beasts, or forcing his way through swollen rivers. He did not know fear.

During this half-century of poverty, and at last of want, his place and estates waited for him in Russia whenever he chose to claim them.

Gallitzin not only taught his flock religion, but imbued them with the qualities of his own strong personality. They held him in such reverence that they refused to believe that he was dead nor would they bury his body.

Twenty years ago I saw it, still above ground, in a little chapel in the mountain village of Loretto. I do not know whether it is still kept as a holy relic or not, but I do know that something of Father Gallitzin's sincerity, his zeal and his friendly spirit still lingers in the character of the mountain people to whose elevation he gave his life.

As picturesque a figure among the old gospellers as the Russian prince was David Zeisberger, a Moravian peasant. When he was a lad of fifteen the famous Count Zinzendorf adopted and educated him, bringing him to America when he came to visit his colony of pious Moravians at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

The boy wandered through the wilderness with the Lenape Indians and conceived a curious friendship for them. He seems to have had the same passionate pity for them which Gallitzin felt for the wretched steerage folk.

His longing to lift them up and make Christians of them was, he believed, a call from God. In those days young men were on the watch for calls out of the unknown.

Count Zinzendorf and his suite at last started home. They were on the ship in the harbor at New York; it had weighed anchor, when the Count found David alone on deck, watching the receding land with tears in his eyes.

"Is it possible that you do not wish to go back to Europe?" for a pleasant and prosperous future awaited the boy there.

"No. God bids me go into that wilderness and work for him!" David cried.

Zinzendorf also believed in calls from the unseen. "Go back, then, in God's name!" he said. The ship was brought to, and David went back. For sixty-two years he lived with the savages, trying to help them. He never would take a dollar of salary from any church.

When, at a great old age, he lay dying in his hut, crowds of his poor Indian converts knelt in the fields without, singing the hymns of triumph which he had written for them in their own tongue.

The old gospellers belonged to all of the Christian sects. They wandered from settlement to settlement, facing danger and death daily trying to save souls. We have full biographies of all the notable soldiers in the colonies, but not a word of these men, although their lives were great Iliads of daring and endurance.—The Saturday Evening Post.

* *

HEALTH IS YOUR HERITAGE.

If you feel sick, depressed, irritated; if food disagrees with you; if you are constipated, suffer from catarrh, or get tired with the least exertion, you are not getting out of life what you are entitled to. There is no reason why you should not be restored to a life of perfect health and usefulness. There is a cure for you, and it won't cost a cent to try it. The Vernal Remedy Company have so much confidence in their superb remedy, Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine) that they are willing to send, free and prepaid, to any reader of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST a trial bottle. You can try and test it absolutely free of all charge. The remedy is also sold by druggists everywhere. We advise every reader to take advantage of this generous offer and write to-day to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y.

No Dealer
Can Duplicate
Our Factory
Price

SAVE 1/3

Our high grade carriages are made in our own factory, and sold exclusively by mail order at a saving of from $15 to $30 to the buyer. We warrant every vehicle to be just as represented or refund money and pay freight both ways. Send for free catalogue. It tells the advantage of buying from factory.

THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE AND HARNESS CO., Columbus, Ohio.

Are you scribbling yet? Don't! It's out of date. The American $50 Typewriter has every qualification of a standard machine—universal keyboard, ball bearing carriage, printing from ribbon with steel type, rapid escapement, unlimited speed.

American Typewriter Co.,
260½ Broadway, - - - NEW YORK.

ONE HUNDRED

copies of a letter, piece of music, drawing, or any writing can be easily made on a Lawton Simplex Printer. No washing. No wetting paper. Send for circulars and samples of work. Agents wanted.

LAWTON & CO., 30 Vesey Street, New York. 59 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

NOTICE!

The Woolley Sanatorium, the only institution in the United States where the Opium, Cocaine and Whisky habits can be cured without exposure, and with so much ease for the patient. Only 30 days' time required. Describe your case and I will write you an opinion as to what I can accomplish for you. Ask your family physician to investigate. Dr. B. M. Woolley, 106 N. Pryor Street, Atlanta, Ga.

JUBILANT VOICES

A new music book for Sunday School and Devotional Meetings. Edited by Doane, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel and Hoffman. Much new material, Orders of Service, Responsive Readings, Topical Index. 256 pages. Cloth, $25 per 100, not prepaid. Returnable Sample mailed free.
HOPE PUBLISHING COMPANY, CHICAGO.

Gloria in Excelsis

The New High Grade

Church Hymnal

More than 800 Hymns, Spiritual Songs and Anthem.

Write to us about it.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

The Approved

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

Effervescent relief for Headaches

SICK STOMACHS, INDIGESTION

Acts pleasantly, quickly, with such general beneficent effects that it has retained the favor of Physicians and the Public for more than 60 years.

At Druggists, 50c and $1, or by mail from
THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD DAY.—CONTINUED.

As they walked on, Mace thought over Miss Lizzie's last words. Miss Lizzie was, herself, in a thoughtful mood, so there was silence between them as they approached the next building—the village store—which was exactly opposite Mace's new home. At last Mace spoke: "But do you not think Mr. Acre is a happy man?"

"It hardly seems fair to him to doubt it," was the answer, "considering how he tries to seem so."

"He has such a jolly laugh," remarked Mace, "and makes fun when he doesn't find it already made—I can't think he really knows much about pain or sorrow. When I am unhappy, I don't care who knows it—do you? I don't want people to think I'm satisfied when I'm not, you know. And so far from laughing when I'm in trouble, I don't want to hear anybody else laugh!"

"Yes," said Miss Lizzie, "I know just what you mean. But suppose Mr. Acre has a sorrow that can never be helped—never, you understand; and one it couldn't do him any good to show—Which would be best?—to make people unhappy from seeing him unhappy, or just to hide it and laugh, and give pleasure to those who meet him?"

"Of course," said Mace, "I agree with you. He must be a very good man."

"He is a hero," said Miss Lizzie gently.

"But I don't believe there are sorrows that can never be helped!" cried Mace. "He is so strong and good—let him go forth and overcome the sorrow and get the better of it." Her eyes flashed, and the color was in her dark cheeks. If Mr. Worth Acre loved Miss Lizzie, and if Miss Lizzie loved him, what prevented their being happy?

Miss Lizzie smiled a little sadly. "How splendid it is to be young!" she said. They were now before the store, a two-story building with a porch before the front of the house. Mr. Wren and his family lived in the second story, and every evening at six o'clock the lower part of the house was locked up, while heavy red curtains concealed the interior. An outdoor pair of stairs led to the living-rooms, at the side of the house. On the porch sat Mr. Wren, a short, fat gentleman with hair sticking up above each ear not unlike ruffled feathers. He occupied a great rocking-chair, and his short legs did not reach the floor except when he rocked forward. His wife sat in another rocker. She was very tall and heavy, dressed expensively, and sitting with the air of one who wishes to show every fold and tuck to the best advantage, and who scarcely dares move lest some fold or tuck be effaced. In spite of her gigantic proportions and her too evident care for her garments, her face wore a pleasing look of good humor. On the edge of the porch sat a young man and a boy of about thirteen, while at the front, upstairs windows were to be seen Mrs. Wren's mother and three of Mrs. Wren's daughters, and one of Mr. Wren's. Miss Lizzie was greeted by all of the Wrens at the same time, which produced the effect of a chorus, and as it was not yet dark, she paused and introduced Mace to the family. The girls came down the outside-stairs to the gate, and so did the young man and the boy. But Mrs. Wren contented herself with an affable smile, and did not disturb her folds and tucks. Mr. Wren settled his rocking-chair permanently forward, rested his short legs on the floor, and locked his fat hands over one knee.

"We have been wondering" remarked Mr. Wren after the introductions, "that none of you have been over."

"Now, Mr. Wren!" warned his wife, carefully lifting her lace fan to shake it at him. Then the lady continued, addressing Mace, "It is our rule never to mention our business after six o'clock. We are obliged to live over the store, so it isn't as if we could go away from the shop as other merchants do, and put it out of our lives in moments of family relaxation. But though we must live over it, and around it, and in front of it, as when we sit on this porch, we agree to completely ignore and forget it, and treat it as if it were not present. Nobody who knows us ever dreams of coming here after six o'clock to buy anything. It is awkward when we have company, but they can sit with us out on this porch, till cold weather, and then we take them up that flight of stairs—if they aren't dizzy-headed—to our apartments."

It is not to be supposed that the rest of the family were silent during this speech, for all the time Mrs. Wren was talking, Mr. Wren, in a hearty voice, was explaining to Mace, "Reginald, here—" indicating the young man—"is Mrs. Wren's son; Peter—" pointing at the boy who bashfully tried to run his hand down the back of his neck, apparently with a view to hiding it—"is our child; as I sometimes say to Mrs. Wren, our mutual child. Annie and Puss are Mrs. Wren's daughters, and Helen is mine, and Maria Tucker is again a mutual child." Then he added in an explanatory tone, "Mrs. Wren and I had both been married before we became acquainted with each other."

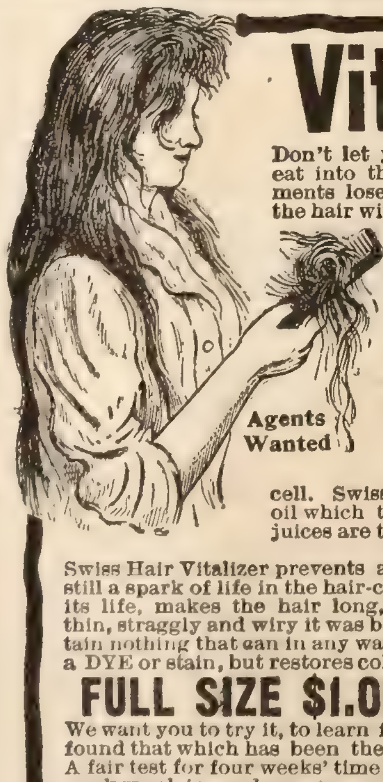
While Mr. and Mrs. Wren were producing, as it were, a duet from the porch, a word of which was occasionally audible to Mace, the young people were pursuing a running fire of hospitable remarks. Nor did Mrs. Wren's mother consider herself out of the scene of action. From the upstairs window she was trying to tell Miss Lizzie Day a piece of news, and almost at every word she would bob her cap significantly, and raise her eyebrows, and tap her lips with her finger in the manner of one imparting a secret. Miss Lizzie could just hear enough of the old lady's story to want to hear more and to believe that it concerned someone of whom she had heard—a lady who was a rich mine of interest to the neighborhood because she was continually furnishing gossip of the most exclusive nature. Puss (Mrs. Wren's daughter) and Helen (Mr. Wren's) were of Mace's own age. They were quite unlike except that both were inclined to be fleshy and round faced. "What grade are you going to be in, in school?" asked Puss, while Helen was saying, "We've got a new teacher this year, and I'm anxious to see her. The last one we had—" "Oh, come on in and sit till dark!" coaxed Maria Tucker, age twelve. "I'll get you some pretty flowers, and—"

"Tell your pa," called Mr. Wren, "that the lumber will be here to-morrow for his porch."

"Now, Mr. Wren!" expostulated Mrs.

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.



Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR
that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER
gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.
Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.
We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

Wren, "I will not hear another word of business after six o'clock!"

The old lady's shrill voice from upstairs; "And after 11 o'clock at night, a-buggy-riding! What is the world coming to, I wonder?"

"Oh, yes, I know Ed Woodney very well," continued Reginald to Miss Lizzie, who was dividing her attention between him and Mrs. Wren's mother. "So he is your cousin, Miss Mace? Well, he's just full of life!"

Among all these conversationalists, Annie Wren appeared as a decided contrast. She was a tall, slim girl of eighteen. The upper half of her face all seemed to run down to her nose, and the lower half of her face all seemed to run up to it, while the nose itself tapered off to a sharp point. She did not say a word, but stood discontentedly resting first upon one heel, then upon the other. Her eyes were small and beady, and they ordinarily watched out of their corners, reminding Mace of bad little boys hiding at the angle of a house. Mrs. Wren often said that Annie was the smartest child she had, but nobody understood her; and that she had very wise thoughts in her head, but unfortunately would never give them utterance. When Miss Lizzie and Mace moved on, all (except Annie) cried that they were coming over as soon as Mrs. Woodney was ready for company, and all (except Annie) begged the strollers to come again. Next to the store was the big ice house, at the rear of which a creek made a loop, almost coming up under the floor.

"It is confusing to visit the Wrens," remarked Miss Lizzie, pressing her hand to her head. "I do wish I could have heard what Mrs. Wren's mother was telling about Miss Lida Coons—at least I think it was about Miss Lida Coons; it was either about her or old uncle Dave Bennett."

"But they seem very friendly people," said Mace; "except Annie."

"Annie is a curious child," said Miss Lizzie. "Her mother says she is the smartest member of the family. She is always dissatisfied about something."

"Maybe it's because all talk at once," Mace suggested. "Maybe she's the reaction."

"For one thing," said Miss Lizzie, "she is always trying to train the family. She corrects them from morning till night, and they never object in the least. They all believe she knows more than the others put together. I don't know how she got the mastery of them, but she has a firm grip on one and all. She tells her mother how to dress, and her father how to use his verbs; but talk they will, and that she can't cure. Well, Mace, we have now seen every house in the village except the saloon, and if you'll excuse me, we won't examine it any closer. The family lives there, and we don't want to call on them."

"No, indeed," said Mace, pausing at the saloon corner, then looking across the street at the Tumbletons'. "Look, the family has come home!" The Tumbleton yard was swarming with children, while Mr. and Mrs. Tumbleton, both with short black pipes between their teeth, were sitting on the single doorstep. "She smokes!" cried Mace in horror. "Let's not go by there. Since I learned that Mr. Tumbleton isn't honest, I don't want to look at him. We'll cross over to the Horseshoe House." They traversed the street diagonally and looked once more upon the circular building with its inner court of flowerbeds and the silver maple. "Mr. Worth Acre must love his trade," remarked Mace, "even to build his home in the shape of a horseshoe!"

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

Widely known as a reliable remedy for bronchial diseases. Afford prompt relief for Coughs and Hoarseness.

Avoid Imitations. John I. Brown & Son

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for restoring my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife by a new method, which never fails.

Madison Absorption Method

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do—Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

If You Want the Best
You Must Secure

Gloria in Excelsis

The New Church Hymnal Edited by the 20th Century Committee of Leading Brethren.

Let us Tell You About it.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

"He does love his trade," said Miss Lizzie with a sigh. "Now, here we are at our house, and I will tell you good-bye."

Miss Polly Day and Miss Susie Day were at the front door. "Have you girls had a good time?" asked Miss Polly.

"Just splendid!" cried Mace.

"Well," said Miss Susie, "it's time for children to be off the street, now. Come in Lizzie!" Miss Lizzie laughed, but Mace, who had caught sight of a young man across the street, said, "Look—isn't that my cousin, Ed Woodney?"

"Yes, Mace," said Miss Lizzie in a gentle voice, as if she were sorry about something. "Why, look!" exclaimed Mace, starting. "He has gone into the saloon!"

"Well," said Miss Susie sharply, "he won't get lost in there, that's one thing. Children, the dew's falling."

"Home, again!" cried Mr. Woodney when he heard his daughter's quick step. "Well, Mace, how do you like the village?"

"It's hard to tell in just a sentence," said Mace, taking off her hat, "for it's so different."

"Then you shall tell me in as many sentences as you please," cried her father gaily, "for the night is before us."

"You two run into the next room," said Mrs. Woodney. "I've just started a prime novel, and I am so interested, I can hardly keep still while I'm reading it!"

"We'll go into the next room," said Mr. Woodney cheerfully, "and Mace shall tell me everything she saw and heard, and it will be the same as if I had seen the village myself; then we'll discuss our great project of rebuilding the church."

"Company is coming!" called old Mrs. Woodney.

Mrs. Geraldine Woodney snapped her book to, and smote the table with it.

"My dear, my dear," said her husband gently, "let us accept the blessings and the ills of life as they are dispensed to us. Mace, run, open the door. Mother, your teeth are on the gasoline stove. Geraldine, be calm and do not desert us. Not too fast, Mace, I find I have on that old moving-coat. I will retire to the next room and change."

"And I will retire," cried Mrs. Geraldine Woodney threateningly, "and—"

"No, no!" expostulated her husband. "Open the door, Mace, open the door!" Mace rattled the door knob and the wild confusion within was instantly stilled, while Mrs. Woodney, who was half across the room, book in hand, being thus trapped, turned at bay.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

❖ ❖

The Establishment of Easter.

"The festival of Easter is to be celebrated on the Sunday following the first full moon after the beginning of spring."

Therefore, if the moon becomes full upon the day on which spring begins, the Sunday after the next full moon is, of course, indicated by the directions of the Council as Easter day. And if the moon becomes full on a Sunday, the next Sunday, similarly, must be Easter day.

The history of this controversy respecting the date of Easter, which the Nicæan Council happily settled, includes a number of diverting anecdotes based upon the disinclination of different people to accept even the council's rulings.

A story is told of a European of prominence who celebrated Easter every year on the very same day on which his wife celebrated Palm Sunday. Another story is told of a devout old couple in Germany who refused to abide by a new church decree relative to Easter. The decree altered the date, and on the day on which they had always attended the Easter services the old people walked from their home to the church. They found the church closed and no Easter service in progress. The old gentleman beat upon the door with his stout stick, and demanded admittance, and when there was no response from the uninhabited church, the old people retraced their steps to celebrate Easter at home.—The Pilgrim.

❖ ❖

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of urine difficulties. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. GARRISON, - - - - President
W. W. DOWLING, - - - Vice-Presiden
W. D. CREE, - - - Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. CROW, - - Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. HOFFMANN, - - General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Our new edition of Christian Baptism is to be sold at $1.00, same as Christian System, Campbell-Owen, and Campbell-Purcell.

◆

Dr. J. H. Garrison's book on the Holy Spirit will soon come from the bindery and our advance orders will have first recognition, at $1.00, mailed.

◆

The Red Letter Bibles and Testaments, from 50 cents to $4.00, are always in stock, and will be more so, as the demand seems to grow.

◆

We have just put in one of the largest stocks of Award Tickets and Cards ever carried by this house, on new lines entirely, at prices from 10 to 50 cents, the higher priced being in the form of booklets.

◆

We have a splendid stock of those pretty little buttons, with scenes in the Life of Christ, or with appropriate scripture texts, selling at 15 cents per dozen. Present your pupils with one each and see their faces.

◆

Would you really like to have a good, big Bible school, or would you like to see your Y. P. S. C. E. take on new life, which means growth? Do you want to hear "Present" when the roll of officers and teachers is called?

◆

Our new book-room has enabled us to put in a full supply of all those little necessities in making your school go, and we are only too willing to have all that can, drop in and examine the stock, or write us for what you want.

◆

The new church hymnal should be in hand by the first of May and will have more than 60 pages of "Responsive Readings," with more than 500 pages of music, and will be one of the best and cheapest song books of its character on the market. Write us for sample pages.

◆

A lady friend writes, "Your Easter cards were very pretty and were so much cheaper than I expected." Well, that's just what we aim to do every time, give perfect satisfaction, preferring to do better by our friends than they expect. Our line of Easter novelties is not lacking.

The increase campaign in the Bible-schools and Endeavor Societies is on in many communities, and we are sending out red and blue buttons by the quantities right along, cent each in any number, postpaid, while the cards, red and blue, are also being used, and are sold at same price.

◆

"Need any song books?" We will furnish any one you wish at the regular price, but we have some of our own that cannot be surpassed, such as Popular Hymns, The Gospel Call, I or II, or combined, and Living Praise, also Silver and Gold. They are in limp at $2.00 per dozen, not prepaid; or boards, at $2.50, not prepaid; or full cloth at $3.00, not prepaid; while The Gospel Call, combined, is in boards at $5.00, not prepaid, and cloth, $6.50, not prepaid.

◆

The Christian Worker's New Testament (see advertisement) is an effort to help those not accustomed to locating scripture texts along a given line of thinking and, with some improvement, can be used very advantageously. There are ingenious methods of marking by which you are led from the first passage on a given subject to the next and next and last in the New Testament. Prices, owing to binding, 75 cents to $1.25.

◆

Our song book trade was never better, and we aim to see that it shall not be less by always keeping in stock the best and latest, as Praises to the Prince, for Bible-schools, Endeavor, and all purpose books, while Gloria in Excelsis is for the worship of the congregations, filled with those grand old hymns that touch and fill with reverence and grateful praise.

◆

Wait, wait, wait! "Why?" Well, until you have seen the new church hymnal—now in press—the "Gloria in Excelsis," prepared by the twentieth century committee of more than 20 representative brethren. The book will contain more than 600 pages, and will have selections for responsive service. The book will be in silk cloth binding, title in gold, and all the book is to be first-class in every way. Write us for particulars.

◆

"No telling what you have until you move," for we find some steel portraits of our brethren whom we will never forget, but whom the children and younger generations among us should know. Size, 7 by 10 inches, and to be sold at 50 cents each, but you may take them at 10 cents each, prepaid, or $1.00 per dozen prepaid. They are of the following: Longan, Hopson, Hayden, Haley, Pinkerton, Benton, Moore, Milligan, Baxter, Lamar, McGarvey, Sweeney, King, Loos, Burgess, Anderson, Shackleford, Munnell, Fanning, Walker, Wilkes, Franklin, Dumond.

Dr. Price's
CREAM
Baking Powder
MAKES HOME BAKING EASY

Young housekeepers find in its use the beginning of success in cookery.

Price Baking Powder Co.
CHICAGO.

The Great Meeting at Paris.

(Continued from page 548.)

when I say that in fewer minutes than it takes to write it I raised the money to buy a fine horse and rubber tired carriage for Brother and Sister Idleman. The $5 and $1 gifts came so rapidly we could hardly keep a correct account.

On the last night of the meeting the church, led by the pastor and official board, presented me with $1,000 for the great work we are building up in the Metropolitan church of Christ in Chicago. Every cent of it will go to the church, and let us all hope the day has come when our great and growing brotherhood will not longer neglect these great centers with their multiplied thousands of unsaved and unchurched souls. Let us pray that the home as well as the foreign board may be strengthened, until these great centers and masses of humanity, wherein many of which our plea is unknown, may be taken for Christ and his church.

On the night of the reception we put out the enlistment cards and $1,224 was subscribed to the regular current funds by the new members, and scores of them will hand in their cards next Lord's day. They asked the privilege of talking it over at home.

I shall never be able to express my profound gratitude to Brother Idleman and this, the now greatest congregation of our people in Illinois. But they shall receive their reward from Him "whose we are and whom we serve." For "they who are wise shall shine as the firmament and they who turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever."

Yours in Jesus for his glory,
CHAS. REIGN SCOVILLE.

A Modern Plea
for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St Louis. Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 18. May 4, 1905. $1.50 A Year

KEEP STEP

IN CROSSING bridges an army breaks step, because the united force of thousands of feet coming down at the same time, in a swinging march, step after step, would crush the timbers of any ordinary wooden structure. In our advance movement against sin and unrighteousness and for the evangelization of America, let all the churches keep step, that the steady tramp of the advancing army of the Lord may crush beneath its united and majestic tread all the bulwarks of sin. On next Lord's day—May 7—all the churches of this Reformation are requested to fall into line and keep step with each other, to the music of "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and "My Country, 't is of Thee," in making the largest offering for Home Missions in our history. Jesus Christ will be sitting "over against the treasury," as of old, ready to grant His largest blessing to the church or individual making, not the largest contribution, but the greatest sacrifice, to spread His gospel among men. With the eye of our Lord upon us, and with the Macedonian cries sounding in our ears, let us rise to the demands of the great occasion.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor
PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor
F. D. POWER, B. B. TYLER, W. DURBAN, } Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.
In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.
Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company.
Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.
News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 563
Editorial:
A Talk With One of Our Evangelists. 565
Not of Equal Importance 565
Notes and Comments 566
Editor's Easy Chair 567
Contributed Articles:
Our Congregationalism. W. A. Parker 568
Home Mission Work Among the Chinese. John L. Brandt 569
A Mighty Motive. Fred Kline 570
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 572
A Visit to Chicago 573
Our Budget 574
Three Great Meetings 576
News From Many Fields:
A Yankee in the Old Dominion 578
Missouri Bible-school Notes 578
Indian Territory 578
Kansas 579
C. W. B. M. in Missouri 579
Good News from Hot Springs 579
Ohio 580
In Washington, D. C. 580
Virginia 581
Kentucky University Letter 581
Austin College, Effingham, Ill. 581
Evangelistic 582
Midweek Prayer-Meeting 584
Christian Endeavor 485
Sunday-School 585
Marriages, Obituaries 586
People's Forum 587
Family Circle 588
With the Children 590

Christian Church Convention

California

The Christian Church will hold its International Convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 24

The Santa Fe is the best way there

Santa Fe

It's the shortest line to Southern California and a direct route to San Francisco—the time is fast—the weather is cool in summer—the track is oil-sprinkled and practically dustless—the mountain scenery is magnificent—one management all the way insures satisfactory service, start to finish—and Harvey serves the meals, the best in the West.

Tickets on Sale August 6 to 14, good to return in 90 days, from Middle-West states—on sale a day earlier in the East.

Round-trip Ticket rate via direct routes, $62.50 from Chicago, $57.50 from St. Louis, $50 from Kansas City, with stop-overs in Colorado and West.

Regular Service

The Santa Fe runs four trains to California. The California Limited is fastest and most luxurious—equipped with compartment, observation and drawing-room Pullmans, buffet-smoker and dining car. The California Fast Mail is almost as swift; the other two are called the Los Angeles and San Francisco Expresses; all three carry standard and tourist Pullmans and chair cars.

Special Excursion

Christian Church Special (equipped with standard and tourist Pullmans) leaves Dearborn Station, Chicago, via the Santa Fe, 10 p. m., Monday, August 7, leaves Kansas City 11 a. m., August 8, and arrives Los Angeles 6:00 p. m., August 12, stopping several hours at Albuquerque, N. M., Redlands, Cal., and Riverside, Cal.; also one day at Grand Canyon of Arizona. Personally conducted by a representative of the Santa Fe. Mr. G. W. Muckley, Corresponding Secretary, Board of Church Extension, American Christian Missionary Society, Mr. R. H. Waggener, National Superintendent, Christian Church Y. P. S. C. E., and Mr. Chas. A. Young, of the "Christian Century," will be in charge.

Grand Canyon Side Ride will cost $6.50 extra for railroad ticket, $1 extra for Pullman, and reasonable amount for accommodations at El Tovar hotel. The most wonderful scenic spectacle in the whole world, worth going thousands of miles to see. No extra charge for Redlands and Riverside side-rides through California orange groves.

Not room here to give full particulars. Won't you write to me for all the facts?

A. Andrews, G. A., 209 No. Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO, DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,

AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."
Vol. XLII. May 4, 1905 No. 18

Current Events.

The Delayed Naval Battle.

The world has held its breath about as long as it can in waiting for the expected clash between the squadrons of Admirals Togo and Rojestvensky in the far eastern waters. The only thing that has occurred to relieve the anxiety is a declaration by the French government that the rules of neutrality must be observed, and that the Russian squadron could expect no special favors in the harbors of French Cochin China. The whereabouts of the two squadrons is not known to the public. Two questions are being asked: Will the two squadrons actually come together in full force in "one of the greatest naval battles of history"? and who will win if they do come together so? Granting an affirmative answer to the former question, the latter is a hopeless mystery. The forces are not far from evenly matched, so far as heavy vessels are concerned. Mr. Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, a correspondent of the London Times, who spent six months in the Japanese lines before Port Arthur, and was the first correspondent to enter that city after its capture, expresses the opinion that there will be no real naval battle. After witnessing the tactics of the Japanese infantry before Port Arthur, where, in repeated assaults, thousands of men were sent to certain death that a certain position might be taken without risk of serious disaster beyond the loss of these men, he believes that similar tactics will be employed on sea. Admial Togo can command a large flotilla of torpedo boats and destroyers—say fifty. If the cruisers and battleships are kept at a reasonably safe distance, where they are not likely to be seriously damaged, and the swarm of torpedo boats and destroyers is sent against the Russian squadron—somewhat like an infantry attack backed up by long-distance artillery fire—it is fairly certain that a few of the little boats would get near enough to the enemy to disable three or four of the heavy Russian vessels. It is also fairly certain that the torpedo boats would all, or almost all, be sunk before they could get away, and that the crews which manned them would be annihilated. This latter feature would be considered no special drawback, for the loss of life would be trivial compared with that involved in some of the infantry assaults referred to, and there would be no difficulty whatever in finding crews willing to sacrifice themselves for the cause. It is estimated that by such an exchange of pawns for knights and bishops, the Russian squadron can be so weakened that Togo's heavy vessels will run little risk in meeting it. This is one way in which the case may be handled. It is certainly not the only one, but it would not be unlike the Japanese operations on land.

⁂

Fitzhugh Lee.

The death of General Fitzhugh Lee last week serves as a reminder of the increasing breadth of sympathy in our country and the passing of prejudice between the north and south. General Lee was a cadet at West Point when Fort Sumter was fired upon. He left the service of his country and went into the service of his state. He served as a high officer in the Confederate army, and together with his uncle, General Robert E. Lee, added new lustre to the name of Lee, which was already one of the highest in the military annals of the nation. After the war he retired to his estate, like a Virginia gentleman of the old school, and emerged from that retirement only to become governor of Virginia, and later, by appointment of President Cleveland, consul-general at Havana. To this critical and important post, he, an ex-confederate and a lifelong Democrat, was re-appointed by President McKinley, and the appointment was applauded as warmly in the north as in the south. His military services in the Spanish-American war and his general popularity on his return are fresh in all memories. The north and the south can still sustain a pretty warm argument over some phases of the negro question, and it is far from possible as yet to get unanimous consent either to the enforcement or to the repeal of the fifteenth amendment. But we have no difficulty in getting together in our admiration of those great men who, forty years ago, served their states because they thought they ought, and who now serve the union because they think they ought. It is told that, at the time of the outbreak of the rebellion, Lee was asked by a northern classmate at West Point what he intended to do. He answered in words that showed his perfect certainty of his first duty, and yet his grief for the parting of the ways: "My God! What can I do? If Virginia secedes, I must secede with her." To condemn as a traitor one who took the erroneous view on a point which grave constitutional lawyers have argued interminably, and which was decided only by the verdict of history, is as barbarous as to damn as a pagan one who has mistaken the Lord's will regarding the form, subject and design of baptism.

⁂

Bowen's Recall.

Minister Bowen is to be recalled from Venezuela for the investigation of charges that have been made against him by Mr. Loomis, Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Bowen rendered very notable and efficient service at the time of the Venezuelan imbroglio three years ago, and it will be regrettable if his useful diplomatic career is cut off at this point. Mr. Bowen reported to the department at Washington that Mr. Loomis was charged at Caracas with receiving money for services to the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Co., while he was minister to Venezuela.' The story leaked out and got into the New York papers. Loomis has issued an emphatic denial, asks for a full investigation and charges Bowen with having given the story to the papers. Bowen has already been ordered home for investigation and if no ground is found for the charge against him—that is, the charge of having published injurious and baseless rumors against his superior—he will be given some other place in the diplomatic service. He is already persona non grata to Venezuela (which is not greatly to his discredit) and Castro has been asking for his recall. The recall of Bowen and his possible commission to another post will involve a general shifting of our representatives at Venezuela, Chile, Colombia, Panama, Brazil and Mexico.

⁂

Mr. Rockefeller's Veracity.

Dr. Washington Gladden is beaten, but neither convinced nor silenced in his contention touching the character of Mr. Rockefeller's business ethics and the propriety of accepting his benefactions. He is attempting to prove that Mr. Rockefeller is guilty of perjury. The case which he cites is a somewhat remote piece of history, but it has been sufficient to call out a very sharp retort from Mr. Rockefeller's private attorney. It is alleged that, when being examined under oath before a committee of the New York legislature touching a company called the "South Improvement Company," which, according to Dr. Gladden, "was one of the schemes invented by the Standard Oil magnates to plunder their competitors and enrich themselves," Mr. Rockefeller testified that he had heard of such a company but was not in it. Dr. Gladden asserts that Mr. Rockefeller was not only in the company, but was its author and moving spirit, and that he committed perjury in denying his connection with it. Mr. S. J. Murphy, private counsel for the oil king, gives Dr. Gladden the lie direct, and in so doing asserts that there was a "Southern Improvement Company" in which Rockefeller was interested and his connection with which he never denied, and a totally distinct South Improvement Company in which he truthfully denied that he had any interest. Dr. Gladden in turn denies that there were two companies and asserts that a search of the records shows the incorporation of only one. No reply to this has yet been filed by Mr. Murphy, and on the particular point at issue the disinterested observer may as well reserve judgment until there is some degree of certainty as to the facts.

* * *

Carnegie's New Gift.

A ten million dollar fund to provide honorable pensions for superannuated college professors is Mr. Carnegie's latest benefaction. It is a wise gift. Not only is the profession as a whole inadequately paid, in proportion to the ability and preparation required, but in hundreds of cases colleges which are financially unable to pension their superannuated professors are driven to choose between two alternatives: either to drop an old professor inhumanly from the faculty and the pay roll, or to keep in service men in whom the infirmities of age render impossible the most effective work. The latter alternative is the one usually adopted, for colleges are generally less pitiless than churches in their treatment of those who have passed the dead line, and the teaching suffers from it. Mr. Carnegie's gift will not only give relief to a most worthy class but, all sentiment aside, it will do much toward increasing the effectiveness of the educational machinery. The administration of this fund is placed in the hands of about forty trustees, most of whom are presidents of colleges or universities. The list of institutions represented on the board includes colleges of every class and of all parts of the country, so that the small college and the western college need not feel that their interests are in danger of being overlooked. Mr. Carnegie's letter to the trustees is remarkably interesting. It reads as follows:

APRIL 18, 1905.

I have reached the conclusion that the least rewarded of all the professions is that of the teacher in our higher educational institutions. New York city generously and very wisely provides retiring pensions for teachers in her public schools and also for her policemen. Very few, indeed, of our colleges are able to do so. The consequences are grievous. Able men hesitate to adopt teaching as a career and many old professors whose places should be occupied by younger men cannot be retired.

I have therefore, transferred to you and your successors as trustees, $10,000,000 5 per cent first mortgage bonds of the United States Steel Corporation, the revenue from which is to provide retiring pensions for the teachers of universities, colleges and technical schools in our own country, Canada and Newfoundland, under such conditions as you may adopt from time to time. Expert calculations show that the revenue will be ample for the purpose.

The fund applies to the classes of institutions named, without regard to race, sex, creed or color. We have, however, to recognize that state and colonial governments which have established or mainly support universities, colleges or schools may prefer that their relations shall remain exclusively within the state. I can not, therefore, presume to include them.

There is another class which states do not aid, their constitutions in some cases even forbidding it, viz , sectarian institutions. Many of these established years ago were truly sectarian, but to-day are free to all men of all creeds or of none—such are not to be considered sectarian now. Only such as are under control of a sect or require trustees (or a majority thereof), officers, faculty or students, to belong to any specific sect, or which impose any theological test, are to be excluded.

Trustees shall hold office for five years, and be eligible for re-election. The first trustees shall draw lots for one, two, three, four or five year terms, so that one-fifth shall retire each year. Each institution participating in the fund shall cast one vote for trustees.

The trustees are hereby given full power to manage the trust in every respect; to fill vacancies of non-ex-officio members, appoint executive committees; employ agents; change securities, and, generally speaking, to do all things necessary in their judgment to insure the most beneficial administration of the funds.

By a two-thirds vote they may from time to time apply the revenues in a different manner, and for different though similar purpose to that specified, should coming days bring such changes as render this necessary, in their judgment, to produce the best results possible for the teachers and for education.

No trustee shall incur any legal liability flowing from his trusteeship. All traveling and hotel expenses incurred by trustees in the performance of their duties shall be paid from the fund, the expenses of wife or daughter accompanying the trustees to the annual meeting included.

I hope this fund may do much for the cause of higher education and remove a source of deep and constant anxiety to the poorest paid and yet one of the highest of all professions.

Gratefully yours,
ANDREW CARNEGIE.

* * *

Open Shop Again.

The Chicago strike grows more and more violent and determined on both sides. The contention is, in the main, the "open shop" issue. The teamsters' unions are determined that only organized labor shall be employed in their trade and the allied trades. The Employers' Association makes no war upon the union and is willing to employ union men on a par with non-union men. It stands for the "open shop." There has been enough violence on both sides to give the public all they could do and, in some cases, much more. The difficulty in transporting freight and express matter has reached a point where the food supply of the city is imperiled. The latest development is the indictment of twelve of the strike leaders, including the presidents or business agents of the principal unions involved, on the charge of conspiracy. There are six counts to the indictment, the most general being a charge of conspiracy "to prevent all persons not members of the Teamsters' Union from securing employment as drivers." Other counts had specific reference to the interference of the strikers with the conduct of the business of particular firms—especially Montgomery Ward & Co. The employers have been taking the aggressive during the last few days by ordering their drivers to deliver goods to the firms under boycott on penalty of discharge, and several hundreds have been discharged for refusing to do so.

* * *

A Selfish Sacrifice.

A few days ago a man committed suicide and left a note addressed to his wife in which, after dwelling upon his supreme love for her, he said that he was gladly sacrificing his life so that she might be free to marry the man whom she really loved. And strangely enough, a good many people, while condemning the practice of suicide, have accepted this act as an example and proof of a genuine and deep affection. Far from it. It was one of two things. Either it was a mere pretext, and a most cruel one, to conceal the real cause of his suicide, or it was the expression of a love so perverted by mock heroic, so colored by an egotistic self-consciousness, so alloyed with selfishness and meanness, that he would pay even his own life as the price for a particularly acute pain to inflict upon his wife. If he had killed himself and kept still about it, he might have deserved credit for disinterested affection though he merited none for sense or morals. But to commit suicide and leave a post-mortem explanation so that the widow could not fail to know that she was the cause of it, and so that the neighbors and general public might know that she had driven her husband to suicide by her unfaithfulness—that is not a manifestation of love but of morbid self-consciousness and an impotent passion for revenge or at least for pity. The case, is, of course, an extreme one, but it was only an illustration of one of the most common of human qualities—vanity and selfishness masquerading as self-sacrifice.

* * *

Indiana State Convention will be held at Bedford, May 16-18. Address Mrs. R. E. Dobbins, 1121 West Fifteenth street, for entertainment.

A Talk With One of Our Evangelists.

A heart to heart talk of two or three hours with one of our ablest and most widely known evangelists on a railroad train a few days since gave opportunity for discussing many phases of our evangelism. It is a good thing for an editor and an evangelist occasionally to sit down together, and, in the spirit of the Master, talk over this problem from their different points of view. The editor's heart will be sure to warm toward the evangelists as he hears their problems stated, and their work described by one who is actively engaged in such service. No class of men among us appreciate more highly the coign of vantage we occupy as a religious movement than our evangelists. They see its teaching brought into contact with that of the older evangelisms, and have witnessed its triumphs on so many fields that they come to have a sublime confidence in the potency of their message.

There was perfect agreement on the part of the editor and of the evangelist that if we have anything as religious reformers which the world needs, our evangelists, coming in contact, as they do, with those who know us not, should present these things fully, plainly, and as convincingly as possible. While evangelists should avoid giving such exclusive attention to our peculiarities as to create the impression that we hold nothing in common with the rest of the religious world, there should be a wise and fraternal presentation of those things for which we specially stand. If this fraternal and affirmative presentation of our plea for a return to the simple New Testament Christianity, with its catholicity and unity, shall so meet the approval and satisfy the hearts of religious people not associated with us that they come, seeking our liberty and fellowship in Christ, this, we agreed, was not proselyting in any offensive or objectionable meaning of that term. The only possible way, as the editor remarked, to prevent this migration from other religious bodies to our own, is for such religious bodies to furnish these people what they desire to satisfy the demands of their consciences and the longings of their hearts. The same principle, of course, holds good as respects ourselves. If some have left us because they felt a lack of something they could get elsewhere, and if this something is legitimate and right, we must supply it. If, however, it results from mere restlessness and an itching for strange doctrines, the party losing such members is the gainer.

It was agreed by both the evangelist and the editor that the time for pugilistic preaching, if it ever existed, had passed, and that the most efficient weapon a preacher can use is the gospel, preached in love, and in the spirit of kindness toward all, denouncing sin, but seeking to save the sinner. The preacher who loses his temper usually loses his battle.

The evangelist pointed out the importance of what is called "doctrinal preaching"—the setting forth in a clear-cut, forcible way, of the great doctrines of the New Testament, and our position on all these vital questions. The editor agreed to the necessity of this, but insisted that there should be a greater effort than is sometimes made by the evangelist to fill all these scriptural terms, such as conversion, regeneration, repentance, faith, baptism, with their full spiritual content. A preacher, he said, ought to be able to preach on baptism, for instance, without any controversial spirit, and so to impress its spiritual meaning and significance as to melt all hearts. The evangelist remarked that he had but recently learned this lesson, and that he recognized the importance of avoiding a mechanical or superficial presentation of the conditions of salvation; but he thought it was difficult for young ministers to apprehend the spiritual significance of these scriptural requirements until they had some experience in the spiritual life. The editor thought, however, that this depended much on how the young ministers were taught, and that if their instruction in college and elsewhere where they received their preparation should be of a deeply spiritual character, their message from the beginning would be marked with this same characteristic.

Altogether it was an exceedingly interesting interview, from which the editor at least, came, with a warmer appreciation of the evangelist who had opened his heart to him, and with the conviction, also, that our evangelism in the future is to be more loyal than ever to the New Testament in that it shall take on a deeper spiritual tone, and, while not compromising in the least any external requirement, shall lay increasing emphasis upon the internal and spiritual.

Not of Equal Importance.

In the criticism which we publish elsewhere by Bro. A. E. Dubber, he asks us, if it be true that Jesus did not make baptism equally important with the work of the Holy Spirit, as we affirmed, to "explain in what particular being begotten is of greater importance than being brought forth." This shows how, unless we guard against it, the use of figurative language may lead us into confusion and into erroneous ideas. The Greek language has but one word to express the fact of a birth, and it is rendered into English, sometimes by the word born, and at other times by the word begotten, owing to the connection in which it occurs. Of course it is figuratively used to describe the act of spiritual renewal or the change involved in becoming a Christian. The fact that "water" is used in connection with the Holy Spirit in John 3:5 has led the vast majority of Bible scholars to conclude that baptism has a place in the process of initiation into the kingdom of God. But since we know from many passages that the Holy Spirit imparts the new life, through faith in Christ, it follows that baptism can only be the formal manifestation of that life in connection with an outward or visible organization of the kingdom of God. But to make an outward act, even though appointed as the formal manifestation of the new life, equally important with the action of the Holy Spirit in begetting faith and hope and love in the heart, is to abuse seriously a figurative phrase. Life manifested according to one's knowledge of God's will is the supreme thing.

The statement of our friendly critic that "there is certainly no bringing forth by the Spirit," hardly harmonizes with the statement of Jesus that "that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." It is true enough, perhaps, to say that one is born of the Spirit when he is born of water, for baptism is nothing except as it is an act of faith; but few would care to take the position that, since to believe and to be baptized is the normal process of the new birth, including the impartation of the new life and its formal manifestation in the initiatory ordinance of baptism, therefore those who have never been baptized, that is, immersed, have never been born of the Spirit. Has the new life had no outward manifestation in the way of obedience? It is one thing to say that baptism has been appointed as the means of openly confessing Christ, and of entering into fellowship with his church, and quite a different thing to assert the equal importance of that act with the life-giving work of the Holy Spirit.

The "fact" which our brother fails to see, and to which we referred, is the unquestionable fact that many thousands of persons who have never been baptized, in any way that we call baptism, do manifest the spirit, temper and character of Christians, and it is no more possible to deny their Christian character than it is to deny their existence. Any theory, we say, that runs up against a fact like that needs some modification. The highest possible proof that any man can furnish us that he is a Christian is that he lives a Christian life, and manifests a Christian character. Thousands of people furnish such evidence who have been mistaken about the meaning of baptism. Have they, therefore, not been "born again"? To so conclude is to be in bondage to formalism, from which "may the good Lord deliver us"!

The same principle applies to what our brother says about forgiveness of sins, and being in the kingdom of Christ. We must not exalt the form above the substance, nor the letter above the spirit. The confession of Christ with the mouth and in the beautiful and impressive ordinance of baptism are both divinely taught, and blessed is the man who understands their significance and yields loving obedience to such requirements; but let us not limit God's love and grace to these or to any other external requirements. We who know God's will in these respects are indeed condemned if we refuse obedience when it is within our power; but we are not to suppose that those who have not such understanding of God's will, and who yet obey him to the best of their knowledge, are without the kingdom of God and the covenant of grace. "He is a Christian," says Alexander Campbell, "who believes on Christ and who obeys him to the measure of his knowledge of his will."

Our brother assumes again that the church and the kingdom of God are "synonymous." He has evidently not run this line of thought out to its legitimate consequences. Let him think further on that question, and see if he encounters no difficulty. The kingdom of God is much wider, in its scope, than the church, although they touch at some points.

No, we do not assume "that men are Christians and go to heaven without being born again," but we do not tie down the Almighty, with his infinite grace and truth, to a figure of speech. Nor do we assume that God has bound himself where he has bound us who know his will.

Sunday Closing.

The enforcement of the law requiring Sunday closing of saloons and barber shops has drawn out a complaint from the breweries that the street-car business should also be stopped. This point is not well taken. It is not difficult to see that the running of street cars on Sunday belongs to an entirely different class of business from that of the saloon. There would be force, however, in the contention that a good many kinds of business now being carried on on Sunday—the weekly rest day—should be discontinued under the operation of the same law. We do not need to specify, but anything that cannot be classed as a work of charity or of necessity, ought to be discontinued by law-abiding people who favor Sunday closing for the saloon. It is not surprising that saloon-keepers have hitherto violated the Sunday closing law, when a good many church members have violated its spirit, if not its letter, by pushing their business on Sunday. If this agitation shall serve to change the practice of many church members who go to their offices on Sunday to look over their mail, instead of going to church, it will have a wholesome effect on some of our city churches. The benefits of enforcing the Sunday closing law will be greater respect for law, decrease in crime, and the turning of the wages of working men to the purchase of food and clothing for their families.

Notes and Comments.

Here is an indictment against the pulpit of to-day by Dr. Hillis, of Brooklyn, that ought to awaken reflection in the minds of those to whom it applies:

> We have been preaching cold self-culture so long that we have well-nigh forgotten how to tell the story of Jesus Christ. We have preached about the things that have interested us and not interested other people. We have had too many sermons with subjects rather than objects. Systems of economics, culture, politics and ethics we have preached, instead of telling men about the saving grace.

* * *

In an editorial on "Lapsed Church Members," the Presbyterian Banner says:

> One hundred and thirty-four thousand in three years—this is the enormous loss which our church suffers through this leakage; this is the immense number of past-tense Presbyterians that are accumulating in our church alone. If, now, we could add up all the lapsed members of all the churches we would have a great multitude of many hundreds of thousands, probably more than a million. Thus the Christian church is suffering a steady and large drain upon its membership through the lapsing of those who once were active in its service but must now be described in the past tense. If this leak and waste could be stopped, the church would make very much greater progress.

Who will suggest a remedy for this spiritual boll-weevil that is destroying so many church members?

* * *

"There are no two denominations on the face of the globe that are farther apart," says the Baptist and Reflector, speaking of the Baptists and Disciples of Christ. Upon this the Baptist Argus remarks: "That is exactly true if you take the ultra Disciple, and yes, the ultra Baptist." We do not have the honor of knowing the editor nor even the location of "the Baptist and Reflector," but we have a suspicion that the editor is more of a Baptist than he is a Reflector. If he would only reflect on the subject a little, he would know that it is unsafe to base generalizations as to the characteristics of two religious bodies scattered all over the world on deductions gathered from his neck of the woods. The remark bears the earmarks of a very narrow provincialism. The Argus is right. One who puts all Disciples in one class and all Baptists in another, is guided in his classification more by prejudice than by the desire for scientific accuracy. There is far greater difference between the extremes within either religious body, than exists between the representative men of the two bodies. Everybody knows that, except, perhaps, the editors of belated local religious journals.

* * *

And now the Baptists and Disciples of Virginia are trying their hands at a little courtship. We notice that the Richmond Times-Dispatch of April 25, contains a brief report of a meeting of the Baptist ministers' conference, which was addressed by Bro. J. J. Haley, of Richmond. The dispatch says:

> The feature of yesterday's meeting of the Baptist ministers' conference, held at the Baptist Neighborhood House, was an address of Rev. J. J. Haley, pastor of the Seventh street Christian church, on the doctrines of the Christian denomination. The address was declared by many of the ministers to whom it was made to be the clearest and most comprehensive exposition of the views of Mr. Haley's denomination they had ever known and the fraternal spirit which characterized it, charmed the brethren. The address developed the fact that the Baptists and Christians had far more in common than is generally supposed. A number of the ministers, among them Drs. Hawthorne, Gardner and Cridlin, warmly thanked the speaker for the splendid address.

Referring to the same meeting, Bro. J. J. Haley himself, in a personal note to the editor of this paper, writes: "We had a glorious time. Some of the ablest men in the denomination declared that it was an epoch making occasion for the future of Baptists and Disciples in the Old Dominion." This simultaneous manifestation of the spirit of unity between these kindred religious bodies in widely separated sections of the country indicates very clearly a growing spirit of fraternity, back of which no doubt lies a growing consciousness of their essential oneness and their duty to manifest such unity in the face of a divided Christian world.

* * *

In the corner stone exercises for the new Christian church at Mexico, reported elsewhere, the pastor, A. W. Kokendoffer, said:

> "In the favor of God and his people it is my happy privilege as pastor to join in these ceremonies, laying here a corner stone upon which is to be founded a temple of the Living God, and upon the front of which, we pay homage to his son Jesus Christ. Thus would we honor the name which is above every name, the only one under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved, and the name upon which according to the confession of the Apostle Peter at Cæsarea Philippi, and the answering words of Jesus, the whole kingdom of the church rests. Observation reveals that we are building well, and it is our profound hope that we are also wisely laboring together with God, for we persevere wholly conscious that except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. So in the fear of God and love of souls we commit the mechanical work to this high order of Masons and the workmen, but the inner sanctuary to the Christ and his people. And may I venture the cherished hope, that this temple shall be kept holy by the prayers, helpful by the charities, and pure by the lives of its votaries; that the building may stand as a monument of unsullied truth to all, and an inspiration to nobler things on the part of many; that its services may be a benediction to the saints, its preachers godly men, and its influences sacred during all the years of its history. When the structure to rest here falls, as sometime it must, may the strength and comeliness of the living stones built into this spiritual house be as an host 'encamped about by the angels of the Lord.' "

Editor's Easy Chair.

If any of our readers are snoozing away these early morning hours, they are missing the best part of the day. The bird minstrelsy in itself is rich compensation for early waking, if not for early rising. Between five and six, these feathered prima donnas seem to be doing their best work. To lie in one's bed, in idle slumber, when these warblers are filling the morning with their glorious music, when the first roseate hues in the east are prophesying the rising sun whose rays will soon drive back the shadows of the night, and when the young day is emerging from the womb of darkness, is almost profanation. Unfortunately our late hours in the city cause many people to miss the glory, the music, and the inspiration of the early morning. There is no hour in all the twenty-four that should be so sacred, and so useful in fitting one for the labors and turmoil of the day, as that first quiet hour of the morning.

* * *

It is always a good thing to have something bright and interesting ahead of us, to which we may look forward with pleasure. Thousands of people die because they have nothing especially to live for. One of the most interesting things just ahead of the Disciples of Christ, is the great national gathering on the Pacific coast at San Francisco, next August. It looms up in its magnitude above the Sierras and the Rockies, and is clearly visible to the inhabitants of the great Mississippi valley, and even to those who live east of the Alleghanies. Many eyes are now turned toward it, as it towers up in the far western horizon, its summit gleaming with a light that never shone on Pike's Peak, Mt. Hood, or Mt. Rainier! It is the light of Christian love and fellowship, glowing with an ardent zeal for the evangelization of America and of the world! To stand on that glorious height with the elect spirits who shall be gathered there, will be one of the choicest gems in memory's casket.

* * *

There are two good things about the Pacific Coast convention in August that are very attractive. It is difficult to decide which is the more attractive. Some will be attracted more by the one, and some by the other. The two things are, the convention itself, and the trip there and back. Think of a convention on wheels, running day and night, across prairies, and plains, and mountain ranges, pausing here and there at interesting points to stretch its limbs, feed its eyes on visions of beauty and grandeur, and on to its great destination! One can almost hear in advance the strains of sacred music, rising above the roar of the train, as it sweeps across the wide-stretching plains toward the Golden Gate. The "Christian-Evangelist Special" will contain a mighty host of congenial spirits, who will hold a sort of prolonged love-feast—"sweetness long drawn out," as it were—from St. Louis to San Francisco. If any healthy, thoroughbred Disciple thinks he can afford to miss this opportunity of a lifetime—both the going there and being there, to say nothing of the coming back—he needs to give the question a little more careful consideration.

* * *

A little trip out into Missouri a few days since, served to impress us anew with the surpassing beauty of "Old Missouri," when she is clad in her fresh robes of green, with the smile of heaven resting on her varied landscape. The copious rains of the past few days had washed the face of Nature and refreshed all living things; and the grass, and the leaves of the trees, and the green wheat fields, and the blooming orchards seemed to prophesy a fruitful season and a plenteous year. Nature has done and is doing her part to make these great American commonwealths splendid in their material prosperity. It remains for the people who inhabit these states to give them a high type of civilization, and to make them the abodes of a happy, contented, intelligent and virtuous people, loving God and their fellowmen. For, after all, the greatness of a state consists not so much in its material wealth as in its educational, benevolent and religious institution, and in the moral character of its people.

* * *

At no period, perhaps, in the world's history, has there been such a shaking-up in regard to political corruption, commercial dishonesty, and corporation crookedness. We are investigating beef trusts, Standard Oil methods, insurance companies, industrial oppression, and political graft. There is danger that many people will suppose that this is worse than all preceding ages, whereas it is but the uncovering of moral rottenness that has existed for a long time, with a view to removing the same. It is throwing light in on dark places, and revealing a state of things in "high finance," in the methods of great monopolies, and in the dark and devious ways of the politician, of which the public were not aware. The first condition of remedying a disease is to find out its nature, and this we are certainly now doing. No one who believes in the common honesty of the people can doubt that this uncovering of so much wrongdoing in the various departments of our political and commercial life, will lead to its correction.

* * *

Geo. Adams Smith, in one of his sermons tells of his climbing one of the great Alpine peaks, with a guide, who when they neared the summit, stepped aside to let him be the first to reach the top and catch the glorious vision. As he sprang upward, unmindful of the strong wind which he would encounter on reaching the summit, the guide grasped him, saying, "Down on your knees! It is unsafe on this lofty height except on one's knees!" At no time are we in greater peril and have greater need to fall upon our knees than at the very height of some success which has crowned our labors. These are the times, too, when we are most likely to forget our need of prayer. In our defeats and humiliations we naturally look up to God for his strength and consolation, but on the dizzy heights of success we are tempted to feel sufficient within ourselves, and fail to realize the danger from the strong winds of temptation or opposition which assail those who mount up to success.

* * *

The greatest victories of our lives are won in prayer. Men see the outward proofs of these victories in some external act, and locate the triumph there. But if we knew the internal history of every noble, unselfish act or high achievement in which self was immolated on the altar of duty, we should know that it was not out yonder before the public eye, but within the privacy of the chamber, alone with God, the battle was fought and the victory won. It was so in the history of Jesus. He won his battle alone in the wilderness, and walked the earth a conqueror of all its forces. He won his great battle in Gethsemane, wrestling with God in prayer, and then stood before Caiaphas and Pilate calm and unterrified, and wore his crown of thorns and endured the shame and agony of the cross, with courage, and even with joy, as the splendid fruitage of his victory in Gethsemane. Prayer, involving complete submission to God's will, must be the prelude to every high achievement and to every victorious life.

* * *

The Easy Chair would utter a final word in behalf of Home Missions before the first Lord's day in May. The calls are urgent, and the needs are great. We are losing great opportunities for establishing our cause in many strategic centers for lack of funds to support evangelists in these places. Never had any people a greater opportunity than that which is now before the Disciples of Christ in the United States. With a plea which wins its way to the heart, to the intellect, and to the conscience, wherever it is intelligently urged, what hinders us to go up and possess the land, except the lack of faith to utilize the resources which God has put into our hands for the accomplishment of this great work? The American Christian Missionary Society deserves well at the hands of the brotherhood in America for its energy, its economy, and the wise administration of the funds which have been entrusted to it for its great work. Let us show our confidence in it and in the cause it represents by a great offering, May 7.

Our Congregationalism: Its Perils and Safeguards

By W. A. Parker

(Continued from last week.)

The Peril of Our Neglected Churches.

Any attempt to deal with the problem of our pastorless congregations may well begin by invoking the spirit of him who said, "I am the Good Shepherd; and I know mine own, and mine own know me, even as the Father knoweth me, and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep."

The statement of the situation requires no embellishment to emphasize its urgency. One-fourth of our congregations are practically without disciplinary supervision or pastoral care. These churches, established by a sporadic evangelism, and left to the uncertain fortunes of independent existence—often with indoctrinated suspicion of all forms of co-operative effort, and equally often without the advantages of strong federated fellowships—become sickly and languishing causes, needing the Shepherd whose love they were rescued to proclaim.

Another fourth of our congregations have but the uncertain existence which is concerned to live up to the standards of the past, rather than to strike boldly out toward a possible future maturity. With respect to the ordinances and the teaching of the word, these churches have a hand-to-mouth existence, being favored with only the once-a-month presence of some faithful man of God, who is forced to supplement the small support he receives from his three or four remote congregations, with the earnings of his hands. The time was, when the country congregation, living the quiet life of the remote and rural population, was amply shepherded by its faithful farmer elders and deacons, aided by the periodical monthly preaching day, with its advent of the big voiced and big hearted preacher of the saddlebags. The early churches of the Reformation not only existed, but grew and flourished, with no more competent supervision of the ministry than was afforded by these itinerant messengers with their words of flaming fire. The strong preachers of a generation ago, and many more of the leaders today, look back to the old meeting-house at Mt. Zion, or Pleasant Hill, where in sound of the baptismal brook, and under the eves of the tremulous forest, the soul held tryst with the Man of Nazareth, to discover, like the men of old, that he was the Son of God. But with the incorporation of the country communities into the great system of our modern life, with its daily mails, morning papers, and telephones; the news of yesterday becomes the commonplace of to-day, and the more tardy methods of associate rural life are no longer competent. Many of our strong country churches are able to hold their own, and to dominate the social life of their neighborhoods. But oftener the communities that once were centers of religious interest and the training places of the strong men and women for our large city enterprises, have lost their first love and their zeal for God, and the candlestick has been removed.

The remaining one-half of our congregations may also be divided roughly into two classes: The one of which is the class of churches committed to the policy of the short term pastorate, with its successions of fevered activity, alternating with periods of spiritual dearth. The other one-fourth may be placed in the class of the well ordered and efficiently administered congregations, whose growth in numbers, and in graces of the Spirit, accounts for the progress of our people among the religious forces of the world.

By a generous reckoning, the last mentioned class of our churches may be said to contain one-half of our membership. The size of the congregation may be taken as a general indication of its class. The weakest in numbers may, with some conspicuous exceptions, be taken to be the most destitute of the care essential to spiritual growth, and, accordingly, as being most in need of saving relationship with the moving cause of the Lord.

Thus by a calculation based upon the statistics of our missionary work in four states, one-half of our people, and three-fourths of our churches, are living below the standard of possible efficiency, in gradations that embrace the various stages of degeneracy, from incipient declension to spiritual death. The staggering fact of how the other half lives, is at once our shame and our problem. It is idle to talk of apostolic methods, and of ecclesiastical dangers, in the presence of the solemn truth that our movement is but half safe. Without question, the active and growing portion of the reformation is advantaged by its congregational independence. With a strong central church provided with an officiary of successful men of business, accustomed to forming judgments, and shaping policies, the conduct of a congregation's life is in safe hands. But the inactivity of the unprogressive congregations is largely due to the lack of competent leaders, to solve the local problems of organization, financial support and discipline. The condition calls imperiously for a remedy. The following plan is outlined as a possible beginning, looking toward a growing system of appointive and administrative supervision. The first need is that of an oversight which shall reinforce the points of congregational weakness, and make them efficient; and which shall aid the churches in the selection and retention of fitly qualified men to preach the gospel.

The stronger churches of a given district, who may need, of themselves, no particular aid in this direction, may voluntarily commit the question of pastoral selection, and the amount of support to be paid, to a representative board, or to a representative man. The wisdom of the plan will gradually commend itself to the weaker churches, in whose particular interest it is operated. It is reasonable that the functions of such a body would not be intruded upon an unwilling congregation, as its aid would not be required by the strong, except by way of conventional approval.

The general adoption of such a plan, attended by the enrollment of our body of ministers, together with the data as to their educational qualifications and experience, would gradually settle itself into an accepted policy, which would doubtless involve a train of perplexing problems, but would justify itself in the way of multiplying the saving efficiency of the smaller churches and thus contribute in large measure to the saving of the world.

If the fear of the abuse of authority is likely to deter us from the plan, let it be considered that those to whom we have delegated authority as supervising boards for missionary, benevolent or educational purposes, have, without notable exceptions, remained the servants of the churches, and have confined their activities to the strict lines of their appointed work. It may be argued, however, that no such departure from our polity is comprehended in any plan for co-operative effort hitherto; the missionary agencies have had no effect of interference in congregational matters. It may be answered that any principle which is capable of extended application must of necessity begin in a small way, gradually expanding as the adapted life of the organizations declares their readiness by providing room for it. And the fear that abuses will grow out of such a system, may blind us to the greater abuses already in our midst.

The advantages of the plan, to the ministry, are equally apparent, in the assurance, first of all, of continued employment. The provision of a suitable plan for financial support among the churches, and stimulus of fellowships manifest in the supervision, would probably double the stipends of the worthy workers in the smaller fields, while exercising by natural selection the necessary discrimination among men. It would diminish the possibility of the sudden acquisition of prominence by the occasional morning or evening star of fatuous eloquence; but it would provide a more rational and just basis of promotion. It would

(Continued on page 571.)

Home Mission Work Among the Chinese

By John L. Brandt

John L. Brandt.

Mrs. John L. Brandt.

The Chinese mission of the First Christian church, St. Louis, was organized in March of 1904 through the instrumentality of Leon Get, who came from Dayton, Ohio. As soon as he united with the church he importuned the pastor to start a Chinese Bible class, saying, "If you will get the teachers I will get the Chinese boys."

Mrs. John L. Brandt undertook the work and the school was organized with three pupils and two teachers. "A small beginning," but small beginnings carefully nurtured sometimes make great endings. There are now fifty-four names on the roll; two of this number, Sit Wayn and Chou Woo, have gone back to China to take up the work for the Master in their native land. For effective work each pupil must have a teacher. This makes it more interesting both to pupil and teacher. It also demonstrates the value of personal work. If each church member had one soul to instruct and win to Christ, what a blessing it would be to the church! The "boys" are diligent in study and most of them learn rapidly. The text book is the Bible with parallel columns in English and Chinese. The class meets in the parlors of the church on Lord's day at 2:00 p. m., and the lesson occupies two hours. The boys are never ready to stop at the completion of the lesson, so the teachers serve lunch to them in the dining room and then engage in a song and praise service. The motives of the Chinese boys are threefold, viz., to learn about the Bible, to learn the English language, to learn more about the customs, manners, etc., of the American people. The motive of the teachers is to win souls to Christ.

Some of the pupils were born in America, some came from Australia and the remainder from China. With the exception of Mrs. Dott, her two little girls and boys and little Mabel Leo, all the members are men. Dr. Dott has a classical education, is also a graduate of Rush medical college, of Chicago, is a practicing physician and a man of rare attainments. More than a score of years ago he gave up his traditional belief, cut off his queue, donned American dress, accepted Christ, and was a member of the first Chinese mission started in Chicago. Mrs. Dott was for a number of years a missionary amongst her own people in Chicago. She is a refined, gentle Chinese lady of splendid education and a talented musician. They have four bright children; the oldest three, aged six, four, two, sing beautifully and are a great attraction wherever they go.

Mrs. Brandt is superintendent of the school. She has an interpreter who translates the English into the Chinese that the boys may be able to hear the same truth in both languages.

The school has grown rapidly from the first. The teachers are consecrated men and women who truly love the work. It has given a new inspiration to the church. The pupils apply themselves diligently and make rapid progress. Those who keep in touch with the work can see a marked improvement in the reading, writing, reciting, speaking, and singing, as well as in the general appearance of the "boys." A number of them have already cut off their queues and twenty-six have united with the church. They are faithful members, liberal givers and as far as I am able to judge are living good Christian lives. They accept Christ as soon as they are fully instructed in the gospel.

We need a Chinese church under the general supervision of one of our mission boards, under the immediate supervision of the city mission board, with a missionary to devote all of his time to the work and a good, consecrated Chinese man, who could move among the boys as one of them, to act as interpreter. I believe such a church would be largely attended, reach hundreds of Chinese men who would come, feeling that the house belonged to them, and that they were welcome at all hours of the day. It would supplant the gambling houses and opium dens and help to make useful citizens of these unassuming, faithful yellow men, who have been much neglected, abused and lied about. It would also be a most effective way of doing foreign missionary work. Most of these boys are here to stay, but all of them have relatives in China with whom they are in constant correspondence. All the boys are inspired with the principles of western progress and are anxious to see China become a Christian nation. Already some of them, through correspondence and visits to China, have persuaded their relatives and friends in China to attend these mission schools and churches and give their thoughts to personal and national reformation.

Chinese Sunday-School of the First Christian Church, St. Louis.

MABEL LEO.

Leon Get is the young man who was instrumental in starting the mission. Chu Fun has been a member since the beginning of the school and as soon as he knew the truth about Christ he made the good confession and was baptized. He is a good scholar and a consecrated church member. Chu Young is an accomplished musician, who speaks good English and sings in English and Chinese. Charlie Yee is another member of the church, and is a graduate of the Canton high school and a genteel little prince. Wing Pong is a member of the church and a professional cook, a jolly, whole-souled man who is most liberal in his support of the school.

Not half the boys and teachers are in this picture of one section of the school.

To know these boys is to love them. The teachers enter into their troubles and pray and rejoice with them. In my judgment it is the Lord's work and the results will be far reaching both here and in China.

A Mighty Motive

By Fred Kline

It is easy to miss large things, because in a world of Godlike proportions they are very large and very many. How often the soul is put to flight out of its low estate by the dawning of some great truth, by the sudden grasping of a great idea. Its glow and stimulus get into the blood and make us thrill with impulse. The power of the race does not wane, because its great impulses are not exhausted, its great visions have not ceased. Christianity is not losing and cannot lose its hold upon men because in the whole human sphere it unlocks resource and transmutes energy into motive. The Christian conquest of the world is a Godlike task, God-given, and along the path of its accomplishment he has pre-laid the magazines of higher and higher potential that shall be needed as the task proceeds. What highway, then, of human progress can mean so much to them who travel it as the path of divine purpose, thickset with the relay stations of the power of God?

And even so it is to-day, not in dream but in history. Is it not apparent that the banner of the Cross has passed from Palestine through Rome to the Anglo-Saxon race? And why should we falter at the farther thought of America's inevitable leadership of that race? It was neither a frenzied patriot nor an upstart prophet who declared, "America holds the future." The same who said, "There is a vision of territory, population, power, passing all experience. The exhibition to mankind for the first time in history of free institutions on a gigantic scale is momentous. But together with and behind these vast developments there will come a corresponding opportunity of social and moral influence to be exercised over the rest of the world, and the question of questions for us as trustees of our posterity is, what will be the nature of this influence? Not what manner of producer but what manner of man is the American of the future to be? How is the majestic figure, who is to become the largest and most powerful on the stage of the world's history, to maks use of his power?" If any man finds it difficult to get out of the fancy of this thing into the fact of it, let him read that book, "The Americanization of the World," by another Englishman, Mr. W. T. Stead, editor of the English Review of Reviews.

As Americans, we must grasp this concrete fact before we are fit to choose a career. As Christians we must not only see it but feel it before we, to whom "the power of God unto salvation" has been given, shall know what he means when he says unto us, "What is that in thine hand?" In other words we shall miss the begetting energy of this mighty motive, this divine call of a nation into his service, unless we understand that even now God is in council with us for this very thing. Russia, with all her coarseness and cruelty, has believed herself the instrument of God by which he would subdue the world unto himself. In all her vast ambitions this note has been strong. But, even as the people of the flood, God has rejected her as being in every way unfit.

If not Russia, then what nation? In the light of the past century, what nation? The present cry is that "Japan is the key to the Orient." If so, this is of primary interest to America. Fifty-one years ago Perry bore from the United States the key that opened Japan, opened her ports to trade, her minds to ideas, her court to diplomatic converse with the world. This forcible awakening has since become to them the cause for profound gratitude to the United States. She has looked so steadily upon America—become so imbued with its spirit, that her people are being called "the Yankees of the East." Her bulk of export trade is to America, she has continually courted America's sympathy during the present war, she has floated her loans here, she has chosen an American as adviser to the king of Korea—a most signal confidence—and some of her best military leaders were educated in our military schools. When arbitration is intimated, Japan lets it be known that in such an event she will prefer the services of the United States. We repeat that if Japan is the key to the Orient, religiously, this fact is of primary importance to the Christian people of the United States. This continent, before another century, will change its front and face the Pacific. Our chief commerce will be over the western ocean, and it will be principally with the now undeveloped Orient. On that highway we have already erected the way-stations of the Hawaiian Islands, Guam and the Philippines.

And what of that East to which the Sunrise Kingdom is the key? Students of the far land declare that ultimately, the Orient will mean China. That she alone, but that she abundantly, is endowed with the mass, character, area and resources that predicate a really great nation. Japan will lead her for a time and may always influence her, but if while she is still helpless she be saved from despoliation, China will yet show the world one of its splendid empires, and will be, not the key to the Orient, but the seat and center of it.

Toward this great premise of China's integrity, the present Titanic war is largely contributing. Indeed, when "the tumult and the shouting dies," probably this addition to the world's good will be seen to be the most valued single outcome of the war, unless it be the awakening of Russia—the second great nation Japan has brought to its senses. But before Japan struck in behalf of China, did the United States actually save her by vetoing the plan to partition at the close of the Boxer troubles. John Hay's "open door" policy was the buttress of that move. Within the present year the same statesman has checkmated Russia in her attempt to establish a technical claim against China, looking toward land indemnity. Finally the United States has restored the $22,000,000 accruing in the Boxer settlement. In short, there is no nation in better form or more friendly relationship with Japan and China at the present time than is this United States of America. And these are principal among the very nations with whom we seem destined to have larger and larger converse.

But the missionary has everywhere been the pioneer of commerce. It is now his privilege to follow and rightfully to ask large favors of the same. In other words, the "open door" in the East is for the gospel also, and that not by the grace of any state, but by the right of having opened it. This open door, this good will of the peoples, this very strength and ability of the United States—all these together constitute the mighty motive—listen!—not for foreign missions first of all, but first and mightiest for home missions.

All that has gone before has but touched on opportunity. Is it not enough to sober us? Is it not enough to drive us to our knees? "The question of questions for us as trustees of our posterity is, what will be the nature of this influence? What manner of man is the American of the future to be?" Let it be solemnly and often reiterated that no true servant of God can think upon this responsibility without the deepest anxiety for our own land. That we are to wield a profound influence, there is no escaping. What kind of influence will it be? Shall the worst or the best of its elements be the stronger? We have not much time to think, we must decide. The opportunity is here!

Our men of state are bending every energy to get the nation ready for its higher station. What is busying the men of the kingdom in these days? Commercialism is scurrying hither and thither, it is gathering capital, it is forming companies, it is securing options. Is there this dead earnestness in the house of Israel to gird itself, to purify itself, to enlarge itself to the measure of this great opportunity? It is not play, this getting ready, it is not poetry, it is not feeble desire. It is clear vision first of all, it is clear hearing of the voice of God, then it is prayer and labor—hard labor—and denial and sacrifice, and persevering against hope and faith that removes mountains, and no surrender, and yet complete surrender, and giving one's self, and one's possessions and one's flesh and blood—"for the kingdom of heaven's sake"! This is a great task, we have great means to perform it and a great God expects us to be great. If we halt at such sacrifice we are halting in our walk with Christ. He will not halt with us. He will go on. When will the church show a fiber that will match the enterprise and daring of the world? When will it set the standard in faith and sacrifice and achievement? When will it be strong enough to walk with its Lord?

If sacrifice appall us, let us look on Japan and be ashamed. If we think to conquer abroad while we are weak at home, let us look on Russia and be warned. Our American Christianity is calling for less perfunctory religion, for more courage, more open and absolute commitment to the cause. Our very languidness is telling us we must exercise and put our powers to use. We must get stronger thews and bigger bone. We are weak in the day of our opportunity. What man can see it and not put his full unit of energy behind the work here at home? "Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords and strengthen thy stakes." There is no other way.

Minneapolis, Minn.

Preach the Word.

By David Cary Peters.

Seek not of earth
Her praise or worth,
Nor yet of mirth
Thy measure over-fill.
Preach the Word.

For far and near,
Oppressed by fear,
In dread that's here,
Men call for light and life.
Preach the Word.

Evangel's cry
Be lifted high
On winds that fly
Like messengers from God.
By mountains high,
Where palm trees sigh,
The sea-beach by,
O, lift the golden rod.
Preach the Word.

Ring out the sound
To earth's wide bound
'Till all be found
For whom our Savior died.
O, run in haste,
No time to waste,
For men must taste
The "Bread of Life" supplied.
Preach the Word.

Trinidad, Col.

Our Congregationalism: Its Perils and Safeguards.

(Continued from page 568.)

operate to effectively rid us of the ubiquitous promoter-preacher, who is ever ready to coin his ministerial influence into cash; but it would encourage the single-hearted service, which would make the man of the stock selling type a disappearing species. It would work some hardship if it exalted an educational standard as the inflexible test of advancement; but, liberally applied, it would recognize the value of experience and of practical wisdom for the present, while stimulating a general tendency toward higher theology and ministerial training for the future. It would go far toward a solution of the question of what to do with the honored class of effective men who have lost the vigor of youth, but who have retained the spirit of service and the wisdom which has come with the years. The practical condition confronting the preacher of mature years suggests the paraphrase,

> "Has there any old fellow got mixed with the > boys?
> If he has, put him out, if he does make a > noise"!

And try as he will to hang the cheat of the almanac and the spite of the catalogue, he is unable to convince any but himself that "old time is a liar." It is a commonplace of our observation, that while the problem is an urgent one even in those systems of closer organic supervision, and rests finally upon the question of interrupted mental and spiritual progress in the man, the existence of the indiscriminate prejudice against the men of mature years is not only an unjust and ungrateful treatment of the men, but an unfortunate and unwise attitude for the churches. Under such a system as is contemplated, the evils of such a condition could be greatly reduced, and the happy ends conserved of strong men engaged in the ennobling work of perfecting the saints. The anticipated objection to any plan for pastoral supervision, on the ground of its being a surrender of our congregational polity, goes back to the position outlined in the beginning, that the principle of congregationalism is preserved in the power of the congregation to appoint the supervisor, and the right to approve or disapprove his action in the court of final appeal.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

* *

If a man cannot attain to the length of his wishes, he may have his remedy by cutting them shorter.—Cowley.

No one can be good, or great, or happy except through inward efforts of his own.—F. W. Robertson.

In matters of conscience, first thoughts are best; in matters of prudence, last thoughts are best.—Robert Hall.

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

The meeting of W. S. Priest, of Columbus, at the Ninth street church resulted in over eighty additions. It was a genuine revival. All our churches felt the impulse of this good work. The evangelist won our hearts. He is safe and sane. Preaching the simple gospel, with great force and beauty, he yet aroused no ill-feeling among those differing from us, but commended his message to every class of hearers. Seed was sown from which we shall continue to reap for all time to come. It was a gracious gospel presented in a gracious way and Washington is better for Priest's coming.

Ninth street is a busy hive. It is never satisfied unless things are moving. Last week I passed Mr. Roosevelt's shanty—a small one-story building at the end of the White House shed where he does business, and remarked to the lonely policeman: "You seem out of a job." "Yes; nothin' doin'," was the answer. It is never so at Ninth street. They have just kept their fourteenth anniversary. During these years of history 1,800 members have been enrolled, over 1,000 on confession of faith. That great meeting at Paris, Ill., we are all rejoicing in, and Scoville and Idleman deserve the thanks of the brotherhood, but this is the east and no man hustles the east. One thousand converts in fourteen years are "much people." For church purposes they have raised $65,000, and they have not a single moneyed man. Over $4,000 has been given for missions, and six young men have gone out from them to preach the gospel, one of whom is a missionary on the foreign field. E. B. Bagby has steadily grown in favor with his people and with all the city. He is ably supported by W. R. D. Winters, his faithful assistant, and an excellent corps of officers. On the 11th and 12th of the month I was with our Philadelphia brethren. First there was a dinner given by the board of officers of the First church to their president, Dr. E. Montgomery. It was a very happy occasion. There were present such elect souls as L. G. Batman, C. Q. Wright, Samuel B. Troth, S. B. Myers, Henry B. Tener, Kinley J. Tener, J. D. Fergusson, Thomas Hunter, V. B. Brecht, Dr. J. O. Arnold, Dr. G. W. West, J. W. Mulholland, E. D. Koon, James Bengs, W. T. Sanders, and Millard F. Fisher. H. B. Tener was toastmaster. There was good cheer and there were good speeches. It was a very happy occasion and an honor fitly bestowed. Dr. Montgomery's standing among the leading surgeons of the world is very gratifying to his brethren, but more gratifying is his standing in the church as a simple disciple of the Great Physician.

My second evening was with the missionary union of our churches in Philadelphia. The meeting was at the First church and it was one of the most stirring I ever attended in the Quaker City. It is said men are not disposed to get a move on them in this quiet old burg. The traveler complained of the slowness of one of their cars. "If you don't like it," said the conductor, "why don't you get out and walk?" "I'm afraid." "Afraid of what?" "Afraid you'd hitch the thing on to me and make me drag it." Well, this missionary meeting was enthusiastic enough. Our churches are pulling together as never before. There are four of them, and one mission. The First has 450 members; the Third, West Philadelphia, has 350; the Sixth has 100; and the Kensington church 100. G. P. Rutledge is at the Third, George A. Cubbey is at the Sixth, W. A. Sherwood has the mission, and Kensington has called Brother Harrington, of Indiana. Miss Jennie Dalzell is pastor's assistant at the First church. We have only 1,000 members in Philadelphia's 1,400,000 people. There is a good outlook, however, in this conservative field. What a splendid opening for our home missionary society! You should take that offering now, if never before.

The work in our neighboring city of Baltimore is in a healthy condition. All are preparing in the Monumental City for the great international Christian Endeavor convention July 5-10. Recent duties called me there in the interest of our state mission work. The Randall street church has passed under the control of the Temple congregation. The busiest ecclesiastics over there seem to be Peter Ainslie and Cardinal Gibbons, and Ainslie is of these two probably in the lead. When I presided years ago at the little meeting one Sunday afternoon when the Second church was organized, there was little prospect of any large work coming out of so feeble a beginning, but God has blessed them. First there was the Calhoun street church. Then Twenty-fifth street, of which O. G. White is the efficient pastor. Then Randall street, and now "The Temple." Four churches and a property worth $50,000 or more. Since the Christian Temple was organized there have been large congregations and constant additions. Herbert Yeuell is now in a series of meetings. Before entering the Temple they raised $6,000, on the day of opening $5,000 more, and recently a gift of $500 and another of $2,000 have been received, leaving a mortgage of but $7,000. For people of very little means they are great givers.

But this is not all our Saint Peter is doing. He is the founder and president of the Christian Tribune Home for Working Girls. It seeks to be a help to a few of the great army of girls who are constantly leaving the rural districts for the city. They opened five years ago and have sheltered and cared for 154 young women. If our Peter has never exercised the right, which belongs to him as well as to the original Saint Peter, to have his own wife and mother-in-law, he has provided a home and protection for scores where the average preacher cares for but one and probably grumbles at the occasional visits of his mother-in-law. Peter should have done this and not left the other undone.

The Temple is the seventh congregation of Disciples in the city of Baltimore. B. A. Abbott at Harlem avenue and David Wetzell at Fulton avenue are busy men, and a congregation of brethren in black complete the perfect number seven. When you pray and give for home missions remember our work in the Oriole Metropolis. If you would invest a thousand where it will bring greater profits than in lumber, oil or mines draw your cheque to Peter Ainslie.

These lines are written from Newport News, Virginia. Here nearly in sight is Jamestown. "Here the white man first met the red man for settlement and civilization; here the white man wielded the first axe to cut the first tree for the first log cabin; here the first log cabin became a part of the first village; here the first village became the first state capital; here was laid the foundation of a nation of free men which has extended its dominion and its millions across the continent to the shores of another ocean." Here the first public school was established, the first prohibition law was enacted, and the first suggestion of a Continental Congress was made. Here the last battle of the revolution was fought and the first of the great civil war, and the first of iron clads. Here I had my own beginnings as a man, as a preacher of the gospel, and the most important day in my life was the day I was born. Here comes the Ter-Centennial in 1907. Keep it in mind. All the nations will be here. St. Louis will not hold a candle to this electric light.

"Give us back the ties of Yorktown, perish all the modern hates;
Let us stand together brothers, in defiance of the fates;
For the safety of the union is the safety of the states."

We have two churches here. Milo Atkinson is pastor at Thirtieth street and is in a meeting with three additions. It was my privilege to-day to marry in the Freemason street church, Norfolk, Miss Nellie Virginia Mason and Mr. Thomas Newton Miranda. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Mason formerly of Ohio. Here I met our pastors, J. T. T. Hundley and W. C. Wade. Seven baptized at Vermont avenue last week.

A Visit to Chicago

It was the privilege of the Editor of the Christian-Evangelist to spend Easter Lord's day and the Monday following with the brethren in Chicago. The occasion of our visit was the meeting of the Chicago Christian missionary society, on Sunday afternoon, and the rally of the American Christian Missionary Society on Monday and Monday evening. We were the guest of Brother Lloyd Darsie and wife, of the Jackson boulevard church, while in the city, and occupied his pulpit on Lord's day morning. This church has made great progress since our last visit to it, having completed its building by the addition of its present fine auditorium. The church also recently put in a large pipe organ. There was a great congregation and a great Sunday-school and every evidence of a live, working, aggressive church. Brother Darsie has recently completed the second year of his pastorate here, and the church is evidently making fine progress under his able and energetic leadership.

DENOMINATIONAL AVERAGES IN THE UNITED STATES.

Denominations.	Membership per Church.			No. of Additions on Confession per Church.			Contributions to Benevolences per Church.			Contribution to Home Expenses per Church.			Benevolences per Capita.			Home Expenses per Capita.
	1894	1903	1904	1894	1903	1904	1894	1903	1904	1894	1903	1904	1894	1903	1904	1894	1903	1904
Baptist (Regular).............	91.7	96.5	98.6	4.6	5.1	5.1	$119.98	$ 58.38	$ 64.64	$ 209.49	$ 277.68	$ 283.66	$1.30	$ .60	$ .66	$ 2.28	$ 2.87	$ 2.88
Congregational................	107.2	112.8	112.7	6.6	5.0	5.0	458.87	369.99	358.68	1,337.91	1,374.72	1,365.84	4.27	3.27	3.18	12.47	12.17	12.11
Methodist Episcopal.... ..	102.4	104.5	105.2	11.0	7.2	7.1	83.09	100.31	108.22	584.96	619.86	636.41	.81	.96	1.03	5.71	5.93	6.05
Presbyterian....	123.4	137.0	138.0	10.2	8.3	8.6	509.27	596.13	582.96	1,461.29	1,691.77	1,645.20	4.12	4.35	4.22	11.84	12.34	11.92
Protestant Episcopal.........	101.9	114.7	118.8	7.4	5.6	7.2	....		....	....	..... .	....	.....	.....	.....	. ..	. .	.....
Reformed........................	165.9	177.2	176.5	10.5	8.5	8.2	609.58	488.36	477.25	1,780.52	1,953.28	1,869.96	3.71	2.80	2.75	10.84	11.21	10.78
United Brethren	52.5	62.6	63.8	...	...	...	53.14	74.55	74.52	235.50	358.85	381.88	1.02	1.19	1.17	4.48	5.72	5.95
United Presbyterian...........	116.1	129.3	128.1	8.5	7.2	7.3	372.68	543.30	592.62	1,294.25	1,439.60	1,460.03	3.21	4.20	4.63	11.14	11.13	11.31
Christian (Disciples)........ .	96.0	110.5	111.4	9.0	8.8	9.5	96.50	110.18	111.42	430.75	560.05	649.50	.75	1.00	1.09	4.10	5.10	5.06

[This table, except the figures pertaining to the Disciples of Christ, is to appear in a new book entitled "Social Progress," edited by Dr. Josiah Strong. We asked G. A. Hoffmann, our statistician, to insert the corresponding figures showing the relative averages of the Disciples.—Editor.]

The afternoon rally of the Chicago churches at the First Methodist church in the central part of the city was cut down somewhat in attendance by the special services of the day, but it was a fine, enthusiastic gathering nevertheless. Lloyd Darsie presided, and the roll of the churches was called by W. G. Sickel, chairman of the executive committee, and the members of each congregation present responded by rising to their feet, and reporting number present, number of additions during the last quarter, and total membership. Not all of the churches were represented, but many were by good delegations. The reports indicated a forward movement among the Chicago churches, with one or two new places opened up, and one church reported for the first time with a large delegation. The writer's address, on "Christ in the Cities," attempted to point out some of the conditions of success in city work and to emphasize the value of such work in its relation to the Christianization of the country at large. It was well received by the brethren who were present. The Chicago brethren cannot be accused of any lack of appreciation of a well-meant effort in behalf of a good cause, even though it should fail to reach the highest standard of excellence.

This, perhaps, is as good a place as any to say that the co-operative work of our churches in Chicago seems to us to be in better condition, and to have a brighter outlook, than ever before. The encouraging fact in the situation as we see it is that a number of the younger and more enterprising business men of the churches have taken hold of the city missionary work, and are giving considerable thought and time, as well as money, to its success. These men are planning larger things for our cause in the future, and it takes large plans, that undertake the accomplishment of difficult tasks, to enlist men of large means, and large ideas. Many wealthy men have been lost to our cause in all the great cities for lack of large enterprises in behalf of the church, and their enlistment in such enterprises. On this page we publish a statement from Brother Larrabee, who is secretary of the Chicago missionary society, giving the number and names of the churches and the amounts they have contributed during the last fiscal year for city missionary work. The American Christian Missionary Society has doubled the amount given by the churches for missionary work in the city.

In the evening we visited the Metropolitan church, of which Chas. Reign Scoville is pastor, and at the close of a very interesting program of Easter exercises by the Sunday-school in the interest of our Benevolent Association we spoke a few minutes to the children and grown people, who packed the large room in which they are meeting for the present. One of the ushers told us that there were at least 150 people turned away after the building was full. Brother Scoville had been away for several weeks holding a great meeting at Paris, Ill., but his work does not seem to have suffered during his absence. He baptized three persons at the beginning of the evening service, and at the close of the service he gave an exhortation and the invitation, when two others came forward to make the good confession, and the newly baptized members to receive the hand of fellowship. One seldom finds such a high tide of the evangelistic spirit, and such an atmosphere of enthusiastic, aggressive Christian work as were manifested in this church. Brother Scoville's plan is to build here an institutional church, to be kept open seven days in the week, and to be a center of religious work of various kinds looking to the building up of the kingdom of God. He is the kind of man to conduct such a church, as he has both the evangelistic spirit and administrative ability. He regrets, as others do, that the location which they have secured for their future building is so near to the Jackson boulevard church, but he says they were unable to find a lot elsewhere that was within their reach that would answer their purpose so well, and that there is

(Continued on page 581.)

MONEY CONTRIBUTED BY CHICAGO FOR MISSIONARY PURPOSES FROM OCTOBER, 1903, TO OCTOBER, 1904.

Churches.	A. C. M. S.	Chicago	Foreign	C. W. B. M.	Ch. Ex.	C. B. A.	Totals.
Austin..	$ 17.17	... . ..	$ 41.55	$ 58.58	....	......	$ 117.30
Central.	....	... .	10.00	52.68	$ 13.00	....	75.68
Chicago Heights.............	15.00	$ 20.00	24.58	....	....	....	59.58
Douglas Park............	8.75	43.15	39.50	74.00	....	.. ..	165.40
Englewood..	140.00	250.00	505.00	164.20	....	.. ....	1,059.20
Evanston..........	29.09	76.55	60.25	47.08	....	. ..	212.97
First Church..................	75.00	68.50	117.61	98.25	39.45	$ 30.40	429.21
Garfield Boulevard............	....	....	4.79	....	... .	....	4.79
Garfield Park.................	1.00	....	....	....	. ...	....	1.00
Hyde Park.............. ...	80.00	97.00	91.25	133.09	59.00	10.00	470.34
Harvey, Ill.	2.00	25.00	10.00	45.85	....	....	82.85
Humboldt Park................	5.00	5.00	17.00	12.45	....	....	39.45
Irving Park......	58.75	70.00	77.62	54.65	45.00	10.00	316.02
Jackson Boulevard.... ..	150.00	......	124.00	228.92	....	....	502.92
Kendall Street	....	. .. ...	30.00	....	....	....	30.90
Laflin Street	12.15	25.00	13.00	33.75	... .	....	83.90
Logan Square..................	....	20.00	.. . .	....	....	....	20.00
Metropolitan.	300.00	. ...	177.37	41.10	....	....	518.47
Monroe Street..............	....	75.00	81.00	49.85	.. ..	....	205.85
North Side...	38.70	103.40	67.00	141.97	....	.. ..	351.07
Northwest Mission......	....	....	2.30	....	....	.. ...	2.30
South Chicago............	....	5.00	9.00	....	.. ..	.. ..	14.00
South Side........	....	5.00	1.50	3.50	....	....	10.00
W. Pullman.	10.00	. ...	21.95	....	....	.. ...	31.95
"Personal".....	6.00	32.00	36.10	5.00	....	....	79.10
Total................ ...	$948.61	$920.60	$1,562.37	$1,244.92	$156.45	$50.40	$4,883.35

SUMMARY.

Gain to A. C. M. S. over previous year..$	635.85
" " City Missions " " ..	216.74
" " Foreign Society " " ..	154.58
" " the C. W. B. M. " " ..	281.73
" "Ch. Ex. and C. B. A. " " ..	44.32
Total......	$1,333.20

The foregoing exhibit of missionary offerings by our Chicago churches, when considered in connection with heavy local expenses and the ever continuing struggle to maintain the home church, will be taken as proof of substantial growth in this exceedingly difficult but all important field.

Reported by
A. Larrabee, Cor. Sec.,
Chicago Christian Missionary Society.

Our Budget

—Last call for home missions, May 7th!

—Remember the home missionary offering comes but once a year; hence your offering will represent your interest in the evangelization of America for a whole year.

—After all, much will depend upon the spirit and earnestness with which this cause is presented to the congregation by the preacher. Fire in the pulpit will beget fire in the pew. Nothing is more contagious than enthusiasm in giving for a holy cause.

—Let preachers and church officials remember that he who causes two churches to contribute, where only one contributed before, is a benefactor of the cause. If we could double the number of contributing churches this year it would indicate a mighty advance movement of our forces.

—Read Brother Rogers' report of his jubilee at Swampscott, and renew your faith in the power of faith to accomplish the impossible. In a note from Brother Rogers he sends a statement to the effect that our advice to him in the beginning, as to the method of procedure, proved very helpful to him in accomplishing his end; but we prefer to say that it was the spirit of indomitable faith and utter consecration to this work on the part of Brother Rogers, which has won friends and means for his cause. We rejoice with him in the success already gained, and trust that the few hundred dollars yet remaining to be raised may speedily be forthcoming.

—The convention of the Michigan churches will meet in Kalamazoo, June 5-8.

—Calvin Ogburn has organized a church at Calton, Cal., with a membership of 58.

—The work goes along nicely at Braymer, Mo., where the offering for state work has just been taken.

—G. F. Bradford delivered the anniversary address to the Odd Fellows at the opera house at Eureka, Kan., on the evening of April 26.

—D. O. Cunningham and wife of Findlay, O., have been appointed missionaries of the Foreign Society to India, and will sail September next.

—The home mission rally of Macon county, Ill., was a good one, and W. H. Harding, the secretary, suggested that the county should become a living link.

—The Foreign Society has just received $3,343.76 from the estate of Mrs. S. E. Johnston, Dallas, Tex. The society has also received another gift on the annuity plan.

A little boy, eight and one-half years old, has sent in the two first subscriptions for the Christian-Evangelist from San Bernardino, Cal. Hurrah for John R. Miller, Jr.!

—The work at Soniat avenue, New Orleans, which would not have been possible but for the help of the Home Board, continues to grow. Two Chinamen have just been immersed.

—The congregation at Mexico, Mo., has contracted with the firm of George Kilgen & Son, of St. Louis, for the building of a pipe organ for their new edifice. The organ is to cost $2,500.

—More than $12,000 has been secured towards the $20,000 needed to make Bethany college the recipient of the gift from Mr. Carnegie. In addition to this amount, Bro. Thos. W. Phillips has given $7,000 as a memorial to his son.

—Henry Bodine, Box 393, Martinez, Cal., can put churches in correspondence with an experienced minister who could supplement his salary if he were granted the privilège of practicing medicine. He prefers Texas or Arkansas as a field.

—Willis M. Cunningham, of Indianapolis, Ind., preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Whitewater high school at Bethel, Ind., Sunday evening, April 9. The trustees, teachers and graduates said, "It was a splendid sermon."

—At the first service held by J. E. Randall, of Kingston, Jamaica, after he became a missionary of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, there were three confessions. Three have been added since to the Mt. Carmel church, to which he ministers.

—Everyone is rejoicing at the outlook at North Bend, Neb. Enough money is now raised to insure the building of a new parsonage. J. H. Stark, who organized the church twenty-eight years ago, and was its first pastor, has just paid the brethren a visit.

—J. P. Myers has closed his pastorate at Painesville, O., to begin at Paulding next Lord's day. C. E. Freer, our Ohio correspondent, has accepted a call to fill the Painesville pulpit. Collinwood, which he leaves, has a man selected to lead its work.

—During the month of April the Foreign Society received $38,074.62, a gain over the corresponding month one year ago of $8,541.68. The total receipts for the first seven months of the missionary year are $119,130.68, an increase over the first seven months last year of $31,381.64.

—A note from E. M. Todd, Hornsey, England, informs us that he is about leaving England for this country. Bro. Todd has served our cause many years in England, and will no doubt receive a warm welcome from his friends in this country when he returns to his native land.

—Mrs. Philena Satterthwait, of Iowa, has just sent $300 to our National Benevolent Association. This is her fifth gift on the annuity plan, aggregating $2,500, securing to her credit a memorial named fund with the association. Geo. L. Snively, 903 Aubert avenue, St. Louis, will readily explain the annuity method and the memorial named feature.

—A report of the Editor's visit to Chicago will be found on page 573. The churches in other cities will have to get busy and keep busy if they are going to keep up with the Chicago brethren. We did not have opportunity of calling on the Christian Century, but we met some of its staff and stockholders. It is doing business at the old stand, with increasing prospects of success. Bro. C. A. Young was in the field holding a meeting.

—Every department of the church at Salem, O., is in splendid condition. Sunday-school average attendance about 500, 633 being present last Lord's day. The audiences are the best for years. The large auditorium was packed at the last service and scores turned away. The pastor, Walter Monsell, now in his sixth year, will deliver the annual address to the I. O. O. F., making his fourth address to that body, the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the public school and an address at the state convention.

—Dr. W. T. Moore, of Columbia, is delivering before the ministerial class of our Missouri Bible college, at Columbia, a series of lectures on "Preacher Problems; or the Twentieth Century Preacher at His Work." He has also been delivering some lectures at the request of the church at Columbia on "Our Distinctive Plea; Newly Stated, and Critically Examined." We have not heard these lectures, but we feel free to suggest that it would be a good thing to have them delivered in many other places besides Columbia. Brother Moore's age, experience, and ability enable him to give a most valuable statement of our special work.

—The following note which we have just received explains itself: "Let me thank you for your kindness in remembering me with the extra copies of the Christian-Evangelist, with its thoughtful outline of my address on 'The Central Significance of Jesus.' I thoroughly enjoyed my visit at Columbia, and I appreciate greatly the courtesy that you have all shown in so many ways. Sincerely yours, Henry C. King." President King's visit to our Congress gave its members the very greatest satisfaction, and more pleasure than they could express. Everyone who heard his two masterly addresses was lifted into the higher realms of Christian thought and experience. We trust that the members of the Christian churches will enjoy other opportunities of hearing the president of Oberlin college.

Nailed to the Mast

WHY $200,000 FOR HOME MISSIONS?

BECAUSE—We should correct our neglect of this great work.

BECAUSE—It is the ripest field in the world.

BECAUSE—It is our base of supplies. The Missions receiving assistance from our Home Treasury sent $2,340.66 to our Foreign Society in 1904.

BECAUSE—Our own brethren—our own flesh and blood are asking help to establish churches—we should certainly hear and heed their cry.

BECAUSE—The Home Board did more work last year than any previous year in our history—165 churches organized and 16,861 additions by our Home Missionaries. This work is a success.

BECAUSE—It is the work of the Lord Jesus Christ—to win souls in America. We should be about the Lord's business.

Ask your minister about the Offering the first Lord's Day in May. Full supplies of envelopes; literature, papers, etc., sent on application to the Secretary.

American Christian Missionary Society
Benjamin L. Smith
Cor. Secy.
Y.M.C.A. Bldg.
Cincinnati, O.

—The church at Mexico, Mo., laid the corner stone of its splendid new edifice on Thursday of last week. The day was warm and summerlike. At two o'clock a great concourse of people had gathered about the site of the new church, where the ceremony of laying the stone by the Masonic brethren, according to the plumb, the level and the square, was to take place. By request of the church, the Editor of this paper was present to deliver one of the short addresses on the occasion. This he was compelled to do before the formal laying of the stone by the Masons, in order to get the return train in the afternoon. After the impressive ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the new building, the audience adjourned to the Methodist church, where addresses were to be delivered by Pres. J. B. Jones, of Fulton, and Bro. W. B. Taylor, of Moberly, a former pastor. Time prevented us from remaining to hear these addresses. The foundation of the new building is about completed, and indicates a structure of splendid proportions. It is to cost between $25,000 and $30,000, and is to be located about two blocks northwest of the present building. Bro. A. W. Kokendoffer, the faithful pastor, has done and is doing a splendid work for this people. A brother said to us, "Brother Kokendoffer has been here four years, and I have yet to hear a man, woman or child, in or out of the church, say anything against him." That is a fine testimonial.

—Since the foregoing was written Brother Kokendoffer has sent us the following report of the remainder of the proceedings:

"At the close of the impressive ceremonies of the Masonic order we adjourned to the new Methodist church which was kindly offered us for the occasion and the crowd filled all the space in both rooms. The address of W. B. Taylor was carefully prepared and presented the great men of Biblical days made so by faith in God. The missionary heroes and other self sacrificing men were to be reckoned here, and even men of modern times. These men were made so because they heard the voice of Jehovah and gave heed. President Jones especially emphasized the kind of men who should hold office in the state; that they should be men of truth, and honor, and conscience; that they should be free from covetousness and the corruptive vices of the age; that Governor Folk had accomplished his reforms because the church with its moral force was back of him; that it was the province of the church to discover and develop such men and imbue them with moral courage. The banquet at night was a royal occasion."

Brother Kokendoffer's address will be found under "Notes and Comments."

—R. H. Fife, pastor of the Hyde Park Christian church, Kansas City, has tendered his resignation as pastor of that church after a most successful pastorate of three and a half years, in which he has built up a strong congregation, and erected a splendid church building, which is now practically out of debt. The resignation is to take place no later than July 1. The Kansas City Times of April 24 reports the resignation of Brother Fife, and states that after the resignation was accepted, Dr. A. L. McKenzie, chairman of the official board, presented the retiring pastor a check for $1,000 as a gift of the congregation, and in doing so spoke of the "untiring efforts of the Reverend Mr. Fife on behalf of the church, and of the sacrifices the pastor and the members of his family had made in order that the church might be built up." As a matter of fact, in order to curtail expenses, Brother Fife donned a pair of overalls and a jumper, and took personal charge of the building operations and laid some of the stone with his own hands. His three sons, Clyde, Robert and Earl, assisted also in the building of the church, thus reducing the expenses of the building several thousand dollars. Brother Fife has added 158 members to the congregation during his term of service, and the Sunday-school has grown from 67 to 259 members. He and his family have greatly endeared themselves to the church and to the community by their unselfish labors and sacrifices. Brother Fife will occupy the general evangelistic field for a few months after closing his work in Kansas City before locating again as a permanent pastor. He has been successful as an evangelist as well as pastor, and no doubt his interim between pastorates will be fully occupied by the calls that he will receive. He may be addressed at 3740 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.

—A great meeting is in progress at three places in North Carolina, with Richard S. Martin as the evangelist, and the Martin family as musicians. Over fifteen hundred people crowded the Sunday night service, April 23, at Kinston, N. C., where Preston B. Hall is minister, and in the first week of the "Martin family" services there have been over 80 additions, with 75 additions at Wilson, N. C., in 18 days, and 60 at Noblesville, Ind. Greenville and Rocky Mount, N. C., are to have the Martin family two or three weeks each, then they go to Georgia, Texas, Kansas, Indiana, Maryland, Illinois, in the order mentioned, filling all their dates to December 1. For engagements during 1906 at Chautauquas, camp-meetings, conventions, tent and tabernacle meetings, they may be addressed any time at New York City, care general delivery. Great crowds and large results attend them as evangelists and lecturers. RICARDO.

Children's Day

FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:

1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. H. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.

2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.

3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.

Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

❀ ❀

A Gospel Excursion.

Something unique in the way of excursions, is the trainload of people who went out from Bloomington, Ill., the other day to attend a revival meeting that was being conducted in Decatur. J. H. Gilliland is pastor of the Second Christian church, Bloomington, and he has been conducting a meeting for the new Central Christian church at Decatur for the past two weeks. His own congregation conceived the idea of going over en masse, so to speak, to greet their pastor and extend their moral encouragement to him, and the pastor, F. W. Burnham, and people of the church where he was working. The Illinois Central R. R. provided a special train with fine appointments and all possible comforts, and one of their ticket agents took personal charge, to look after the pleasure of the guests, who numbered 132 and filled four coaches. Leaving their city at 5:30 they reached Decatur shortly after 7 o'clock, and found four special street cars waiting for them to take them on to the church. Two confessions were made during the services, making a total of 51 up to that date. At the conclusion of the service the ladies of the Decatur church gave a reception to the visitors, and served refreshments, after which the Bloomington contingent were escorted around the new building and then took the special cars in waiting back to the depot, whence they departed on their special train, reaching home at midnight.

❀ ❀

Ministerial Exchange.

Wanted:—An active, energetic and loyal preacher to take work for three or four congregations in northwest Missouri to do the pastoral and evangelistic work. Good references required. The field will pay from $600 to $800 per year. Address, J. F. Bickel, Barnard, Mo.

Twenty-three Thousand Dollars Permanent Fund for Home Missions.

At the meeting of the acting board of managers of the American Christian Missionary Society, held April 21, 1905, the secretary, Benj. L. Smith, reported concerning the financial work of the society as follows:

"Your secretary begs leave to report that since the last meeting of the board, the society has received annuities and permanent funds as follows:

Annuities.
"A Friend"	$ 500.00
One of our ministers	400.00
"A friend in Ohio"	300.00
Another minister	50.00
Mrs. Frances T. Mee, Cleveland, Tenn., in favor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary L. Day	2,500.00

"In addition to this through the help of O. P. Spiegel we have received a life insurance policy for $10,000, the premiums of which are guaranteed. This is to constitute an endowment fund for mission work in South Carolina. We have also received from Thos. W. Phillips, New Castle, Pa., the sum of $5,000 to constitute a named memorial fund in honor of Norman A. Phillips, his son. We have also received a note for $5,000, payable in July, 1905, to constitute another named memorial fund, making a total of $23,750 received on the annuity and permanent named memorial funds in cash and subscriptions during the month of April, 1905."

When the above paragraph was read to the acting board of the American Christian Missionary Society, there was awakened in the hearts of all present, gratitude to the donors, and additional enthusiasm and hope for the work of our society, whose usefulness for many years has constantly increased. We feel it due to the brotherhood that we publish the above, not simply that many others may be moved to good works, but that all interested in the extension of our Lord's kingdom may share our joy. Our board is glad to testify that its administration of the permanent funds entrusted to it has been such as to preclude the loss of a single dollar, and we rejoice to know that the brethren able to support the great work of home missions, appreciate, not only the security of their money thus invested, but the wise purpose to which it is put—the evangelization of America. The increased interest in home missions is a matter of congratulation to the entire brotherhood, and we trust it will deepen and extend until all our churches come into active sympathy with the great work which the American Christian Missionary Society is divinely commissioned to perform.

H. T. Loomis,
S. M. Cooper,
C. J. Neare,
Financial Committee.

❀ ❀

Convention of Ohio Christian Missionary Society and C. W. B. M., Newark, Ohio, May 22-25, 1905.

A rate of one fare for the round trip plus 25 cents has been granted by the railroads for the state convention to be held at Newark, Ohio, May 22-25, 1905. A splendid program is being prepared which will be ready for publication next week. Begin now to plan to attend.

Everyone Should Read It.

HEAVEN'S FIRE.

A PERFECT SCIENCE OF GOD

—AND—

How to Become a Christian in God's Way,

God's Revivals, Through Repentance,
By a Business Man.

Price, 50 Cents. F. C. SEELY. P. O. Box, 599, REDLANDS, CALIFORNIA.

Three Great Meetings

The Sunday-School and Paris.

To give the view of a Sunday-school superintendent of this greatest of revivals and the assistance given to and by the Sunday-school, presents some difficulties in considering what should be said and left unsaid.

Our pastor had, by his well-laid plans, caused all of our teachers to feel newer and deeper responsibilities. We have for some time used the closing Sunday of each quarter for decision day in its complete meaning, i. e., the children are invited to make the biblical confession and, of course, assume full church relationship.

Our Sunday-school before this meeting had an average attendance of about two hundred and fifty, with weekly offerings of about seven dollars. It has increased by leaps and bounds until it now numbers six hundred, with offerings of over fifteen dollars each Sunday.

Evangelist Scoville and our pastor have long recognized the mighty power that can and should be exerted by the Sunday-school.

Our consecrated teachers used a part of each regular teachers' meeting in planning and praying with the pastor and evangelist to bring all their pupils to Christ. The regular lessons were often omitted, and the teachers used the study hour for a heart to heart talk with their pupils. When the classes reassembled, the teachers sat with their pupils, and if necessary urged them to make the good confession.

This close sympathetic organization of the teachers produced almost pentecostal results. During some invitations, the entire non-Christian members of a class would respond. Over and over at the close of the various services many teachers with tear-dimmed eyes could say, "Every one of my class has put on Christ."

These new converts went forth with a burning zeal to bring their friends into the school and thus to Christ.

Every Friday night during the meeting the pastor's appeal for all members of the church to attend the Sunday-school was given a hearty response. All classes have been more than doubled. Some have been divided because of the number being too many for one teacher.

When the school began to increase so rapidly the problem of securing teachers seemed to present a difficulty, but this was easily overcome by the many converts who had the ability to teach, and who at once asked for places in which they might work.

The outlook for the Sunday-school, as a result of these services, is filled with great opportunities. Well may we say that the past has its lesson, the present its duty, the future its hope.

Geo. W. Brown, Supt.

The Pastor, the Leader of Music, and the Evangelist in the Paris Meeting.

❖

A Great Meeting in Bedford, Indiana.

The conditions were ideal. For weeks previous to the meeting a deep and widespread religious interest was developed and the great audience room and spacious annex crowded. Every regular service witnessed additions to the saved. The people were clamoring for the evangelists to begin. On Sunday, March 26, the Brooks Brothers began and no day or night up to the close of April 19 saw the invitation without response. The people took hold with enthusiasm. There was no lack of volunteers for a chorus. A. K. Brooks as director of music and soloist did excellent service.

Evangelist W. T. Brooks, a splendid type of physical manhood, has a mind strong and steady and balanced to suit such seasons of refreshing. His sermons were plain, logical, dignified and possessed a strong flavor of sincerity. As a preacher he can be implicitly trusted to give his message the reverence and dignity that becometh the gospel. One of the most admirable and satisfactory traits he possesses is the gracious and pleasant faculty of receiving suggestions that have real merit and reason. His plans and methods were faithfully followed by our people and there were but few modifications necessary. The board of officers and congregation acted with entire harmony. No mistakes were made and no criticism encouraged.

Everything was done to give the evangelist full advantage and he measured up to it. The pastor laid his influence and knowledge under tribute to the evangelist and worked to his limit for the success of the meeting. Long before the hour of service people were flocking to the house of the Lord. The press was wisely used, and added much in keeping alive the interest. It was the greatest religious revival Bedford ever witnessed. There was a union meeting just preceding ours by the Methodist and Presbyterian churches which did not near develop such audiences and interest. The happy service continued for 25 days with 250 additions. Of these 175 were baptized and 75 by statement or letter. Among the number were eight from the Methodists and four from the Baptists. We have at once inaugurated a system that will keep our recent converts in touch with our membership and church, and if any of them get away they will have to leave town to do so.

The church is healthy, vigorous, united and happy. Our supreme need is the continued development of the missionary spirit and that element is steadily increasing.

E. Richard Edwards,
Bedford, Ind. Pastor.

❖

Evangelist's View.

In some respects Bedford gave a remarkable series of gospel victories, for there were additions at every regular service, both day and night, from the very first to the last, varying in numbers from three to twenty-four. It is a rare thing that a break does not occur in a revival. I attribute this record largely to the close and faithful personal work of the pastor and people. Bro. E. Richard Edwards is a Kentucky university graduate, and believes in the everyday application of the old gospel. He gave us his full help, laying under tribute every power of mind and body throughout the meeting. He has a great congregation of a thousand members and I think he knows every member by name, and what is more remarkable, he knows almost every man, woman and child in the city by name. They all know him and love and respect him, and when he starts out on a round of personal work he is received graciously always. He has studied all sides of the minister's work and is one of the best all round men I know in our brotherhood.

They have a magnificent plant costing $30,000, and seating comfortably over 1,000 people. We never saw any empty seats during the revival. The members are earnest, consecrated, industrious and hopeful. They have reduced their debt to where they will easily handle it and I think they now stand at the very front rank of southern Indiana churches. It is a center of religious influence for several important counties. I think they will soon hive off two good churches. The conditions are ideal here for Christian work.

Ladoga, Ind. W. T. Brooks.

❖ ❖

[Telegram.]

Buffalo, N. Y., April 30.—Nearing close of great meeting with Allen Wilson; 120 added in 26 days. Calhoun, with 11 churches, in union meeting and five other meetings within a mile of us. Entire city knows of our effort.—B. S. Ferrall, pastor.

The Day of Jubilee at Swampscott, Mass.

I. What Has Been Done and How.

It was thought the church at Swampscott must be sold because it was under a debt of $4,000 and more, at a time when a disheartened congregation of 20, or less, were giving the church an income of less than six dollars a week. This was last June. Die, or do something large, seemed the only alternative.

Including traveling expenses of the solicitor and current expenses of the church, which had to be maintained during the months the debt was being provided for, full $5,000 had to be raised to make a jubilee worth celebrating. It seemed impossible, but we have raised more than $4,500 and there is only $500 left of our mortgage. At least $1,700 of this was raised in Swampscott. Five hundred was given by the home board and the C. W. B. M. and the remainder was the wonderfully generous response on the part of the brotherhood through the country in response to the personal appeals of Pastor Rogers.

II. Prejudices Encountered.

The hardest thing I had to bear was what I well knew to be the well founded and just prejudice against personal appeals outside of the regular channels. In my heart I could not, and generally did not, blame the people for not giving when they refused on this account. Why need I wonder that I could not make everybody see what I so sincerely felt, that my case was really an exception?

Sometimes when I thought about the church that might well be dear to me, I would give way to tears—not often. There was much waiting, much praying, tramping, talking, planning, some cold, hunger, loneliness, weariness, fasting. When preachers who knew my mission were shy of me I really felt that they acted wisely, as they ought, and as I, too, would have done in their place.

But under it all I carried the unwavering confidence that I was doing the work the Lord had put upon me.

III. Rich Compensations.

So I got sight of some truths I could have learned in no other way, and tasted some sweet joys never before felt. It was a truth-revealing, soul-uplifting canvass. Precious Christian fellowship, glad hours with saints who made me feel so unworthy, yet helped me not only with their words of encouragement, but with their love and sympathy; good men and women from whom I learned so much.

IV. Not a Money Mission Alone.

All the time it came to me that I must have a higher aim than mere money getting, that I must leave a lively, lovely testimony for the faith; that I must be helpful, impart cheer, leave a blessing. I succeeded to some extent in this, but not as well as I could have wished.

One brother wrote me that after my visit his preacher had seemed a happier, stronger man and had done better work. Indeed I have had some such blessed letters of fellowship and friendship—yes, many—as make me rich beyond human riches. And I know God gave me strength, for I carried about with me a physical weakness that would have proved my collapse had I been in any other work than the work of the Lord.

V. Out of Debt but In Debt.

How can I express my gratitude to the brethren who have helped me so bravely?

The hardest part of my burden is yet to come. I owe it to my brethren to see to it that a strong, united, self-reliant, spiritual church is built up here by the seashore. And the debt will not be paid unless the church is especially foremost in philanthropic and missionary enterprises.

The sense of responsibility almost overwhelms me. Again, I say, I will do my best. Pray for me, and if I myself cannot succeed, perhaps I can leave it where some one else can take up the work who will succeed.

VI. The Jubilee Exercises.

Well, they were very simple. As there remains $500 to be paid on the mortgage we got a transcript of it and burned it in effigy. Mrs. S. Irene Daseton, the heaviest giver according to her means, struck the match and set the paper afire. She did this as representing the "modern Priscillas," an organization of young ladies that had reduced the mortgage from $4,500 to $3,500 before we began our work.

The doxology was sung, of course, and a band of music added eclat to the occasion. The pastor preached the jubilee sermon, but that was of no especial account. But the words of visiting ministers from our own and other religious bodies were most fervent and inspiring. Indeed they were.

Bro. A. T. June represented Everett for our brethren; Bro. A. L. Ward represented Boston; and Dr. J. M. Vanhorn represented Worcester. Vanhorn's address was unique, but all were excellent. It being patriots' day with us Dr. Blackburn of the First Baptist church in Salem, gave in the evening a sermon on "Patriotism and Piety" that was most heartily received. Our 20 churches in New England are much scattered, but there was a goodly representation from them present on this occasion.

Thus ended the strenuous work of eight months in a jubilee which celebrated not only a debt raising feat, but the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first coming of the present pastor to Swampscott; the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the church and exactly the sixteenth anniversary of the dedication of the main building. It should be added that the laymen were represented by speeches on this occasion also, in the person of P. M. Hunt, of Worcester, G. W. Seenis, of Malden, F. O. Ellis, of Swampscott, and Sylvester Butler, now of Maplewood, but who is a charter member of the church at Swampscott. In addition to some very felicitous remarks, F. O. Ellis read a beautiful poem written by Rev. Frank B. Sleeper, pastor of the Baptist church at Rowley, Mass. W. H. Rogers.

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightful scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, by way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to Christian-Evangelist Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

* *

Changes.

T. L. Noblitt, M. D., Perkins to Weatherford, Okla.

Ed. R. Bryan, Hasse, to Proctor, Tex.

J. N. Jett, New Douglas, Ill., to Queen City, Mo.

O. O. Felkner, Quanah, Tex., to Ellensburg, Wash.

P. A. Davey, Tokyo, Japan, to 88 Burke Road, Camberwell, Victoria, Australia.

Christian Church at Paris, Ill., Where the Great Meeting was Held.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

A Yankee in the Old Dominion.

In my last account of my itinerary in Virginia I had proceeded as far as Gordonsville. Leaving there, I arrived at Louisa, the county seat of the county of the same name. This church and others in this section were served faithfully by Richard Bagby for over nine years. I have seldom found a church where the minister and his wife have loved the people and been more beloved by them than Brother and Mrs. Bagby. If they never return to live in Louisa, it is a cherished hope that their ashes may rest in the churchyard there. But we hope that may be far in the future, and that Brother Bagby may do other work as good as he did here, in our state of Pennsylvania.

The Louisa church is almost phenomenal in missionary giving, as they give more for all missions than for preaching at home. Prof. W. M. Forrest, from Charlottesville, is supplying while they have no regular minister. They have preaching once a month.. Three other churches in the town have their preaching day once a month. It is considered a breach for any other church to have preaching on another church's day. Is that union or sectarianism?

Our next point was Gilboa. Bro. D. E. Hanna, from Gordonsville, passes Louisa and preaches here twice a month. I find that in different parts of Virginia the churches nearest together do not always co-operate. Brother Hanna has done well at Gilboa. A good audience listened attentively Lord's day to the claims of our home land, and brethren promised to increase their offering.

This is interesting ground. I was entertained in the cultured home of Dr. Eugene Pendleton, a nephew of the late W. K. Pendleton. Dr. Philip Pendleton, the aged brother of President Pendleton, still survives, and he inquired about the growth of the home mission work. At this place, Cuckoo P. O., the Missionary Weekly was published by I. J. Spencer in its most successful days.

Monday night found me in Bethpage, kindly cared for in the home of Major Richardson. His brother, a teacher, and father of Z. P. Richardson of Lynchburg Christian college, makes his home here, being too deaf to longer train the young minds.

Addressing the church here, next morning I went to Richmond and visited Brother P. A. Cave of the Third church. He was rejoicing in a good meeting which has resulted in about 50 additions. C. O. Woodward, of Manchester, preached between Lord's days. F. W. Troy was assisting Brother Melton in a meeting at Marshall street. The parks in Richmond were beginning to look beautiful. I returned to Hanover and went to Corinth. The church there will take the offering for home missions. Their preacher, R. H. Jones, comes all the way from Blacksburg. An uncle of Bro. E. L. Powell, of Louisville, Ky., was my host, and Bro. R. W. Fox sent his team to carry me nine miles to and from the station. We passed on the way Hanover court house, a queer old building which once resounded with the eloquence of Patrick Henry.

A heavy rain hindered us from making the trip of nine miles in time to get the train to reach Grafton for Wednesday. It was with regret that I missed a visit to the church that gave to us our beloved F. D. Power. This trip is affording me many pleasant reunions. Spending the night in Richmond it was a pleasure to be entertained in the home of Captain Cason, whose family were formerly members of my congregation when in Rockville, Md.

A pleasant ride on a fast flyer of the C. & O. brought me to Hampton. Here I was greeted by Bro. A. J. Renforth, who has ministered there for severel years. I was delighted to meet him again and see the good work he is doing, as it was my privilege to bury him in baptism at Proctor, W. Va., over 15 years ago. A good audience for the midweek listened attentively to the urgent needs of home missions, and they pledged an offering for this work. On Lord's day I addressed a deeply interested audience at the Norfolk church. Bro. J. T. Hundley went to the country to recuperate from the grip. This church increased the foreign offering more than a hundred dollars over last year and Brother Hundley expects to get $150 for home missions. He has pushed the work forward. The Christian Endeavor is conducting a Bible-school at Portsmouth across the river. Milo Atkinson was beginning a meeting at Thirty-fourth street, Newport News, and we did not have an opportunity to present the cause, but he has promised they will do their best. At Twenty-fourth street I spoke at night and they will observe the home offering.

This is an interesting section. Norfolk is a busy city, but on Sunday crowds issued from the churches on their way home from services. This is an important shipping point. Newport News has the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Co. At their yards on Saturday I had my first view of the launching of a ship. With Brother Renforth as escort, I also visited old Fortress Monroe and the celebrated Chamberlain hotel at Old Point Comfort. Also the Hampton normal institute for the education of negroes and Indians. Here Booker T. Washington was trained for his great work. It has industrial training as well as book learning. The Soldiers' home is near by, and just outside Fortress Monroe is the Y. M. C. A. for soldiers, presented by Miss Helen Gould.

Among the reunions mentioned has been a meeting with a Sister Pace in Hampton with whom I once boarded in Wheeling, W. Va.; Bro. W. C. Wade, who has charge of the Park Place church, Norfolk, who hospitably entertained me over night, and with H. H. Rumble, a college mate at Bethany. He is a successful lawyer at Norfolk, and I enjoyed his friendship in his pleasant home at Port Norfolk.

I must close with this incident. Brother Hanna, of Gordonsville, told me he was a traveling salesman at the time of the jubilee convention at Cincinnati. He went to the great communion service in Music Hall and was so impressed that he went away, became a Christian, resigned his position and went to Kentucky university to study for the ministry, and is now preaching the gospel. I find the Christian Standard and the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST on my journey and keep in touch with progress. We need a great May offering.

Waynesboro, Pa. J. A. HOPKINS.

P. S. As I enjoy the delightful fellowship of the brethren in the south, I thank God the churches of Christ never divided, on geographical or political lines. J. A. H.

Missouri Bible-School Notes.

Have you sent in the report card for your school? Odessa's report came first. J. W. Prince is superintendent, and F. W. Allen the minister. A number seem to be trying for the booby prize. Please send the report at once.

Your apportionment or pledge is also very much desired.

Maryville is working hard on the increase campaign in their school and all is going well. Divine hustling is the thing needed in our Bible school work.

J. A. Gordon, of Marshall, says: "Out of 231 present in the Bible-school, 133 read the Bible every day of the previous week." Let's hear from some one who can offer anything better in this line.

R. B. Havener sends in a fine report for the month. Six new Bible-schools organized. And still there are over 400,000 of school age in Missouri outside of any Bible-school. Eighty-three per cent of those who come into the membership of our churches are from the Bible-schools. Let us put forth strenuous effort to have every one (especially the young people) in some Bible-school.

We had a fine rally of workers in Holt Co. These rallies are proving very helpful. If you want to do your county good, send for one of our men and have a rally.

W. T. Spaurhower writes of Denver, a country Bible-school in Worth county: "We have had a continuous organization for 21 years." But if you can't run through the winter, call the people together for the summer and study the word. W. A. MOORE.

Mexico, Mo.

Indian Territory.

I began a meeting last night in Wilburton, a thriving city of some three thousand. We organized the church here last summer, and they are prosecuting the work well, considering discouragements. Frank Brain, one of our most consecrated Indian Territory preachers, is working faithfully to build up the cause.

J. T. Hawkins, pastor of the church at South McAlester, is in a meeting with the church in Oklahoma City. South Hawkins, eldest son of J. T. Hawkins, and former pastor of the church in Corona, Cal., has come to reside in the Indian Territory.

Randolph Cook is in a meeting at Afton. W. J. Waugh recently closed a meeting at Tishomingo.

J. C. Read, pastor at Ardmore, is to hold a meeting this month at Marietta. We are expecting him to organize a church with 50 or more members. L. B. Grogan and the brethren at Lindsay are about to dedicate a very pretty little church. The Lindsay brethren are not yet organized; they will first move into their new and comfortable home, then organize a church and a Sunday-school, and go to keeping house for the Lord. E. S. Allhands is pushing the work at Roff. He writes that the walls of their new church are going up, and he will want the writer to dedicate it in a few weeks.

J. C. Halloman sends in a most flattering report of the work in Stillwell. The church was organized in February with 20 members. In two months the congregation has more than doubled, a preacher has been employed for half time, and about $2,000 raised for a building. In four months they expect to have a $2,500 house completed and paid for. The church in Tulsa has nearly quadrupled its financial support in the past eight or ten months.

Frank Van Voorhis has just closed a meeting at Okmulgee. S. R. HAWKINS, Cor. Sec.

A Fine Kidney Cure.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn., (the Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder troubles will write him, he will, without charge, direct them to the perfect home cure he used.

Kansas.

E. E. Lowe is located at Neodesha for full time. He moves his family to his new field this week. The outlook is promising.

S. F. Hutchison, formerly of Missouri, is getting well settled in his work at Randall and Star. He likes Kansas, especially her good roads, bright skies, and wide-awake people.

F. A. Emerson has closed his work at Asherville and Scottsville, and accepted a call to White City for full time. He did a good work in his old field, and will do well in the new one.

A. R. Poe, pastor at Plainville, reports that a new $4,000 house will soon be under way at that place. This has been sorely needed a long time. In a recent meeting held by home forces, there were 33 additions to the church.

The writer expects to assist in the dedication of the new house near Morrowville, on April 30. These brethren have labored under adverse conditions for a long time, and are now reaping the reward of their preseverance.

The ministerial institute at Leroy was a success so far as the program was concerned, it being one of the best in the history of the organization. Burris A. Jenkins gave a series of strong, scholarly addresses which were highly appreciated by the preachers of the state who were fortunate enough to hear them. The papers presented by the Kansas preachers were exceptionally helpful. But the attendance was not what it ought to have been. The annual dues have been reduced, or may be reduced, to $1, which it is hoped will increase the membership.

At the present writing we are at Jewell, where the convention of the Sixth district has convened. B. A. Channer, the pastor, has everything in readiness. The church knows how to take care of a convention, so we are anticipating a pleasant time, so far as the chickens and "garden sass" are concerned.

This leads to the remark that the district conventions will follow each other in rapid succession from now on, one each week, until the remaining eight will have been held. We drop out one week, however, for the state Sunday-school association which meets May 9 11 at Hutchison, but with that exception the districts will meet as follows: First district, Hiawatha, April 25-27; Second, Iola, May 16-18; Third, Cherryvale, May 3-5; Fifth, Clay Center, June 6-8; Seventh, Wichita, June 13-15; Eighth, Ransom, May 23-25; Ninth, Hill City, May 30, June 1, 2. The Fourth has been held, and the Sixth is now in session. W. S. LOWE.

Topeka, Kan.

❀ ❀

C. W. B. M. in Missouri.

Mrs. Carrie L. Thomas is working in Ralls county, visiting each church there. She spent some days at New London, Santa Fe, Perry and Center. She organized a little auxiliary at Salt River and hopes to do so at Prairie View. Brothers B. H. Cleaver, B. G. Reavis, J. M. Bailey and J. T. Sapp minister to these churches, together with churches at Huntington, Spaulding and Rensselaer. They have been of great help and encouragement in arranging Mrs. Thomas' trip, and we are hoping for a rich harvest in the future. Mrs. J. L. Moore is spying out new places—places that for various reasons we have been unable to reach with the auxiliary work. She is just the woman to do this work. If she cannot get in at the front door, she is liable to seek the back door. We are thankful that very few of our churches are sending our work to the back door, and we hope they will soon see the injustice to this branch of God's work.

Great hopes are centered on the convention of the Springfield district, to be held at Monett the first week in May. A very warm commendation of our work comes from Monett's pastor, Brother R. Simons. We appreciate such words as he sends.

I would like to know how many of our auxiliaries are working hard to reach their apportionments of women, and Tidings and special money before the state convention, which is only six weeks off. I am constrained to mention this because many auxiliaries are reporting actually fewer members and fewer Tidings on the March cards than on the December and September reports. Sisters, God's kingdom never grows downward, nor does anything in nature stand still. If there is life in anything, it grows. Am I to believe that our auxiliaries are dying, that they lose in members? If so, God help the dying world, if his elect forget to pray, and to work as they pray! Need I say more to send every auxiliary officer and member to her knees for forgiveness and for more light as to what to do, and how?

Mrs. M. A. Fowler, manager of Clinton district, reports a new auxiliary at Eldorado Springs, of 14 members and five Tidings. The officers are, Mrs. Nora Herrin, Mrs. Frank Forry and Mrs. Durburon. We are glad to welcome this new band to our number.

St. Louis. MRS. L. G. BANTZ.

❀ ❀

Good News From Hot Springs.

We were able on the first of April to make payment of all that was due on our lot and the interest on future notes. It was by heroic sacrifice and self-denial on the part of the congregation here. This makes $2,000 that we have paid up to date. We have received $60 from the outside as a result of what has appeared in our paper and from our correspondence, a small amount under the circumstances. We closed a fine bargain when we purchased our present location. If we desired we could sell now for $8,000. This is what the lot would cost us at this time were we purchasing. We think it advisable to build with two rooms beneath the auditorium and chapel, to be rented as store buildings. We have a fine business location. By following this plan of building it will give us $1,500 a year rental money, which will guarantee the perpetuity of this work through the future years, whether the congregation be small or large. This the brethren advised who have visited here, and we believe it to be the best plan upon which to build. This will necessitate the raising of a larger sum than the original plan included. In the place of an expenditure in the building of $10,000 the above plan will cost us $20,000.

Thanking all who have sent us assistance, I am, T. N. KINCAID.

Hot Springs.

❀ ❀

A Reliable Heart Cure.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Madison Absorption Method

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both
in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By CHAS. H. GABRIEL and W. W. DOWLING

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

For the Busy Minister

A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE

Minister's Pastoral Record
and Memorandum.

FITS THE VEST-POCKET.

Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

The People's New Testament With Notes

: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :

A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.

The most Satisfactory
Work of its kind ever published.

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Ohio.

F. C. Lake, of Toronto, Ont., became pastor at West Mansfield, May 1. He comes highly recommended and will find a good force and field.

Two new congregations have been organized the past month. Norwalk, the capital of Huron county, is the place of a new church of about 30 members. James Deming goes from Londonville as evangelist under the Clark fund and will be pastor of the new flock. The outlook is very hopeful. Utica, in Licking county, has a new organization on the primitive foundation. About 65 enter here as charter members. They will have a pastor at once also.

J. A. Jackson, of Capac, Mich., will anchor at Shelby, May 1. Brother Jackson has hitherto been preaching in Free Baptist pulpits. He can, very evidently, preach all his old sermons at Shelby with acceptance to his people. He only loses his peculiar name, Free Baptist, for the common family name, the name of the head of the church. We welcome him most cordially and pray for his success.

The twentieth district held its annual convention at Collinwood, April 11, 12. The women had an unusually good program, which is saying much. The home mission rally was good and helpful. J. G. Slayter made the principal address. It was characteristic of the man. Slayter says if it takes 179 Congregational dollars, and 213 Presbyterian dollars, and 48 Baptist dollars and 50 Methodist dollars to make one convert on the home mission field, while among the Disciples of Christ it takes only $5, therefore the Disciples have by far the heaviest home missionary responsibility of any people. The people who can do the work the cheapest ought by all means to do the most of it. Let us have, then, an heroic offering May 7 for American missions. Let no church fail.

The state convention at Newark, May 22-25, is going to be a "hummer." That grand veteran, Dr. Geo. H. Ball, of the Free Baptists, will make the closing address Thursday night. Everybody will want to hear him. That will be worth a trip to Newark. The women will have Monday afternoon and night and Tuesday, as usual. Harvuot will preside over the sessions of the O. C. M. S.

Annual meetings are the order of the day in this neck of the woods. Franklin Circle, Cleveland, reports receipts for the year $8,904.64. Of this $3,063.24 was for missions. The pastor preached 83 times and baptized 70 and received 49 by letter. All bills paid and $365 of a balance in the various organizations. The pastor's salary was increased. It has been a great year. But should we not expect great things from 800 people?

Collinwood reports $2,238.44 for the year. Of this $191.67 was for missions. The preacher preached 124 times and received 29 into the church.

H. H. Moninger has resigned at Steubenville and will be become chief Sunday-school man with the Standard Pub. Co. He is an expert in Sunday-school work and will be at home in his new field. He has led the work at Steubenville very successfully for three years.

T. W. Pinkerton will be given a cordial welcome by the Kenton church to his old parish, and also the state holds out the hand of welcome. Brother Rowlison has taken up his duties as president of Hiram a little sooner than was expected, but will continue to supply the pulpit at Kenton till Brother Pinkerton arrives.

Portsmouth and Canton surely ought to get all there is to be had out of a Sunday-school contest. If you are inclined to think such contests can be carried to extremes this one may give you food for such thinking.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES Invaluable for relieving Hoarseness or Loss of Voice, Coughs, Irritation or Soreness of the Throat. In boxes only. Avoid Imitations. John I. Brown & Son

J. P. Myers has resigned at Painesville and has received a call to Paulding that he will likely accept. He leaves Painesville with a splendid church plant, about 600 members and out of debt. The Painesville church has extended a unanimous call to the Ohio scribe to become Brother Myers' successor, and the call has been accepted. The Ohio letter will soon be mailed, therefore, from Painesville. The Collinwood church will have a man ready to take up its work immediately. Don't ask, therefore, to be recommended to this pulpit.

Cleveland has the newest sensation. Twelve old ladies, between 75 and 85 years old, walked a race of four miles down Euclid avenue one day last week, the winner doing the "stunt" in a little over two hours. Now some jealous old man is pleading through the daily press that the old men be given a chance, and thereby rebuke Oslerism. What next?

Collinwood, Ohio. C. A. Freer.

❁ ❁

In Washington, D. C.

It was a delight and a privilege to assist Bro. E. B. Bagby and the Ninth street church in Washington in a four weeks' meeting. To enjoy the fellowship of all the pastors in the capital of the nation, even if for only four weeks, was a blessing not to be measured in words. What a great, wide-awake church is Ninth street! What a large, enthusiastic Bible-school! What splendid societies, ladies' aid, C. W. B. M. auxiliary, C. E., boys' brigade, and all the rest! What accomplished and devoted ministers as Bagby and Winters! What a host of loyal Disciples of our Lord! What magnificent audiences, devout, attentive, willing to hear and obey the Lord! If there is any "preach" in a man surely there it will be brought out. How well I remember when we had but the one congregation in Washington, the little, almost unknown, band, meeting in the small frame chapel, presided over by Bishop Power.

Now, see what we have: six or seven places of worship with ministers Power, Bagby, Jones, Taylor, Smith and Stuart preaching the word. Can any city in America show a better growth the past fifteen or twenty years? Of course, Brother Power is the dean of our preaching force, for he celebrates his thirtieth anniversary next September. Next comes Brother Bagby, who celebrated his fourteenth anniversary April 9, with great crowds, beautiful flowers, an inspiring sermon and several additions by confession and by letter. In these fourteen years he has received into fellowship more than 1,500 persons. His is one of the aggressive forces of the nation's capital. Here is the argument for long pastorates. In all the churches there are about 2,250 members, with property worth $116,000, and these congregations are growing in numbers and spiritual power by leaps and bounds. Washington is as ripe for an earnest and faithful presentation of the ancient order of things as any city in the land. The brethren there are as loyal to the book as any preachers anywhere. Their influence for good is incalculable.

One Monday morning the pastors had their regular meeting on a steamer going down the Potomac to Marshall Hall. In the cabin of the boat Brother Power gave us a splendid outline of his sermon of the evening before on Judson, the great missionary. It was a treat. I shall never forget it. The sights about Washington were seen as much as the little time taken from other duties would permit. The first concern was the meeting. That had the right of way. To be guest in such a charming home as Brother Bagby's; to break bread with other pastors; to be so graciously received into scores of homes—surely, was no preacher ever more honored. Brother Winters, Brother Bagby's assistant, the accomplished musician, leader of the four large choirs, which rendered such excellent service; the officers and members of the church vied with each other to make the meeting a success and my stay among them pleasant. I shall never forget them all and thank them for one of the happiest months of my life.

Walter Scott Priest.

Columbus, Ohio.

OUR line of pianos embraces the old and well-known makes of pianos. Why take any chances on unknown makes when for a few dollars more you can secure a

WEBER, KRELL-FRENCH, IVERS & POND, McPHAIL, O. K. HOUCK or NORWOOD

Cash or terms to suit.
New pianos for rent, one year's rent to apply on purchase. Write for catalogue—a postal card will save you many dollars. Write for Booklet A.

O. K. Houck Piano Co.
1118 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.
H. A. PHIPPS, Mgr.
St. Louis, Memphis, Little Rock, Nashville.

❁ ❁

Remarkable Success—Cancer of the Cheek Cured by Anointing With Oil.

Ainger, Mich., June 6, 1904.
Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
Gentlemen—Just five weeks ago yesterday I commenced your treatment and the lump on my face came out a week ago last Friday; and in six days it may all be healed. Very truly,
S. K. MAY.
All forms of cancer and tumor cured by soothing, balmy oils. Doctors, lawyers and ministers endorse it. Write for free book to the Home Office, Dr. D, M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

JUBILANT VOICES
A new music book for Sunday School and Devotional Meetings. Edited by Doane, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel and Hoffman. Much new material, Orders of Service, Responsive Readings, Topical Index. 256 pages. Cloth, $25 per 100, not prepaid. Returnable Sample mailed free.
HOPE PUBLISHING COMPANY, CHICAGO.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

NEW INVENTION!
Write for new booklet, Special Offer this month. Our new Quaker Folding Vapor Bath Cabinets, finest produced. Everybody delighted. Enjoy at home for 3c each all the marvelous cleansing, invigorating, curative effects of the famous Turkish Baths. Open the 5,000,000 skin pores, purifies the entire system. Beats Hot Springs. Prevents disease. Saves Dr. bills. Cured thousands. Nature's drugless remedy for colds, grip, rheumatism, aches, pains, blood and skin diseases, Kidney trouble children's diseases and female ills. Guaranteed. Sent on 30 days' trial. $100 to $800 a month, salesmen, managers, general agents. 100% profit.
WORLD MFG. CO., 82 World Building, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Virginia.

J. T. T. Hundley, the popular and successful pastor of the First church of Norfolk, has recently been very sick. He is now in the country for a complete rest. The prayer of all who know him is for a speedy recovery.

F. W. Troy, senior, has held a very successful meeting in Marshall street church, Richmond. B. H. Melton preached one week before the advent of Brother Troy, with 13 accessions.

C. O. Woodward recently held a meeting with P. A. Cave and the Third church. There were 53 accessions.

The Manchester church, under the efficient leadership of C. O. Woodward, is planning for a new building. It is sorely needed and will no doubt be secured.

F. W. Troy, Jr., for three years pastor at Clifton Forge, has accepted a call to Grafton, Olive Branch and Lebanon. He has already entered upon his work.

Marshall street, Richmond, has entered its new Sunday-school room. The room is a beauty and the people are delighted. This school will give $100 to Virginia missions this year.

Pulaski Sunday-school under the leadership of Geo. R. Cheves gave $20 to Virginia missions this year and $12.50 last year.

W. H. Book, Martinsville, will hold a meeting for the new congregation at Radford beginning May 15, and continuing 10 days. He will dedicate the new house and complete the organization of the congregation.

B. H. Melton will hold a meeting with S. A. Morton at Crewe in the month of May.

Herbert Yeuell will hold a tent meeting in Portsmouth in June. This is a town of 25,000 people where our people are unknown.

A. J. Renforth, of Hampton, will do some evangelistic work in Mathews county this summer.

C. N. Williams, our mission worker along the Rappahannock, has recently married. Brother Williams is well trained and successful. He and his good wife have our best wishes.

D. S. Henkel will hold a three weeks' meeting with J. D. Hamaker at Mt. Jackson the latter part of April.

H. C. Combs, Fin. Sec'y, V. C. M. S.
Richmond, Va.

* *

Kentucky University Letter.

The lectures recently delivered at the university by Prof. W. M. Forrest and Dr. C. W. Kent of the University of Virginia were greatly enjoyed by the students. Dr. Kent especially gained many warm admirers while in the city.

Prof. M. L. Hurst addressed the Chautauqua circle of the women's club of this city a few days ago, having for his subject "Ernest Renan." Later he, Prof. T. B. McCartney and Prof. C. L. Loos were made honorary members of the circle.

The K. U. room at the Good Samaritan hospital has been refurnished through the efforts of Mrs Jos. W. Porter and Mrs. Wm. Withers. Mrs. J. B. Davis, of Brownsville, Tenn., assisted very materially in the work. She interested some of her Brownsville friends in the work and they gave very liberally of their means. Mrs. Davis is a former Lexington woman and recently visited in the city.

The death of Bro. James T. Cochran, who dropped dead in his pulpit, April 2, was a severe blow to his many friends here. He finished in the College of the Bible last June and had been in the university until Christmas of this college year. He was apparently in the best of health and had a very bright future before him. Memorial exercises were held in the College of the Bible after his death.

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

American Standard Revised Bible

"We believe that, * * * it is the very best translation of the Bible, because it most faithfully represents the original inspired words."
—Christian Endeavor World.

Issued in over 100 styles. For sale by all booksellers. THOMAS NELSON & SONS, Publishers, 37 East 18th Street, New York. We also publish the King James Version in over 400 styles. Send for catalogues.

James Lane Allen, the Kentucky novelist, has made a present of $100 to the Periclean literary society. Mr. Allen is an old Periclean. He was asked to appear on the Periclean program in June in the anniversary exercises. His going to be in Europe at that time caused him to have to refuse to appear on the program, but he sent $100 instead.

W. B. Davis, of Nicholasville, representing the Periclean society, won the contest which decided the representation of K. U. in the state and southern oratorical contests. Mr. Davis represented K. U. in the state declamatory contest this year.

On the evening of April 14, the joint debate between Philothea and Phileusebia, the Bible college literary societies, was held. W. B. Blakemore, C. M. Gordon and Jas. E. Thomas, representing Philothea, and having the affirmative side, won the decision. L. H. Schwartz, R. N. Simpson and Benj. Smith represented Phileusebia. The question discussed was, Resolved, That labor unions are beneficial to the laboring people.

There were no classes in the College of the Bible, April 19, on account of the rally for home missions which was held that day at the Broadway church. Bro. W. J. Wright was the leader of the rally. E. B. B.

Lexington, Ky.

* *

Austin College, Effingham, Ill.

Since last September I have been at the head of affairs in Austin college, Effingham, Ill. This institution can become a college of the Christian church. There is an indebtedness of about ten thousand dollars against the college. If we are to control the school we must arrange the faculty at once. If we have capable young men among us who would go into this school for what we could promise from tuition and a small pledge fund, we could build up a good school here. Or this property could be made over to three or four persons who would become instructors in the college and owners of the plant. If our people are interested write. If there are those who can handle college work and want to share in the management of the school address me at once. D. R. Bebout.

A Visit to Chicago.

(Continued from page 573.)

an abundance of people to work on, so that neither congregation need have any lack of material. It is always better, however, where we can control the matter, to have such a distribution of churches in different parts of a city as would indicate unity of purpose and plan among the different congregations. We have no doubt that both these churches will do a great work in the future with two such splendid leaders as they now have, even with their present locations, but if some good streak of fortune should make it practicable for the Metropolitan church to locate its new institutional building a few blocks farther away, it would augur still larger success for an enterprise in which all the brethren in Chicago are interested; meanwhile the churches are co-operating as brethren with little or no friction. We have not met with any more earnest and consecrated Christians than we met with in these two live and aggressive churches of the west side.

The rally of the home missionary forces was pronounced a decided success. The attendance in the forenoon was not large, but respectable; was increased very considerably in the afternoon, while the night service was attended by a large audience that well filled the Jackson boulevard church. A luncheon was served at noon by the ladies of the C. W. B. M. The addresses by the local brethren were of a high order of merit, and could not fail to generate new interest in our great home mission field. In the absence of Bro. B. L. Smith, Brother Darsie presided.

At six o'clock there was a banquet held—a sort of semiannual affair, we believe—in which over 200 people sat down to a repast given by the King's Daughters. E. M. Bowman, chairman of the Chicago missionary society, presided and acted as toastmaster for the occasion. Interesting speeches were made by Bro. Lloyd Darsie, Carl Bushnell, Mrs. E. M. Bowman and W. G. Sickel. Brother Darsie emphasized the idea that we had lost our opportunity in the downtown district, but the suburbs were now open to us, and there was our chance to gain lost ground. Brother Bushnell spoke in behalf of the business men's association, showing that it was not only wealth which the cause needed, but it needed the thought, and time, and energy of consecrated business men. Mrs. Bowman called attention to the work which the women were doing in connection with their brothers, and Brother Sickel stirred up the pure minds of the brethren very vigorously on the "Sinews of War."

It was half past eight before we rose to go upstairs to the evening session of the home missionary rally. After a brief musical program of patriotic songs, and brief devotional exercises conducted by Prof. H. L. Willett, the Editor of this paper addressed the large audience on our opportunity and obligation as a religious movement in relation to the evangelization of America. If on account of the lateness of the hour of beginning, and the large number of interesting things which preceded, the speaker failed to rise to the full demands of the occasion, the momentum which the meeting had gained at the previous sessions carried it on to the close without abatement of interest.

We feel it to have been a privilege to meet with these Chicago brethren, and feel grateful to them for the kindly and brotherly way in which they received us and the messages we tried to bring them. We feel more hopeful for the future growth of our cause in Chicago than ever before, and we are sure the brethren everywhere will rejoice to know of these encouraging signs, for our success in Chicago means much for our success throughout a large area of this country.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

Dravosburg, Pa., April 24.—Dedicated new Y. M. C. A. department out of debt; cost $1,000. Clarence Mitchell here at same time in best meeting ever held here.—Ray Oakley Miller, pastor.

ARKANSAS.

Fayetteville, April 27.—There were five additions to the First church last Sunday, one conversion and four by letter.—N. M. Ragland.

CALIFORNIA.

Fullerton, April 24.—After four weeks our meeting closed yesterday; 83 in all came forward—75 of them enrolled as charter members of the new church, three were not baptized, five took membership with other churches; 34 were baptized, eight reclaimed. There were six M. E.'s, five Catholics, three Baptists, three Christian Union, three Holiness, one Lutheran and one Seventh Day Adventist. Yesterday we elected elders and deacons and organized a Christian Endeavor with 30 members. The new church starts off with fine prospects of growth.—Sumner T. Martin.

COLORADO.

Denver, April 24.—Three were baptized in Highlands church on Easter Sunday. Two received by letter the Sunday previous.—J. E. Pickett.

Boulder, April 25.—Our Junior Endeavor society rendered a resurrection program on Easter Sunday, that drew a large audience through the rain, and netted a neat sum for missions.—S. M. Bernard.

Denver, April 24.—Rain fell all day yesterday, Easter Sunday, without intermission, but this did not prevent the people from coming to the South Broadway church, nor from contributing $300, without special effort, to the work of the Master. S. M. Bernard, of Boulder, heartened us a few days ago by sending the following telegram: "If God makes wireless telegrams possible, he can make it possible for you to pay your entire debt this year." Easter Sunday two persons confessed Christ. Three united with the South Broadway church by letter. Five were baptized. J. E. Pickett came from the Highlands church to South Broadway and baptized four converts. —B. B. Tyler.

CONNECTICUT.

Danbury, April 24.—Eighteen members received at regular service here yesterday; 33 since Jan. 1, all but four by primitive obedience. The annual meeting a week ago showed over $6,000 raised during the year, of which over $800 went to missions. All bills are paid. The church has no debt, and a balance on hand. The membership, including resident and nonresident, is 799. Small and Daugherty will hold us a meeting in February, 1906.—E. Jay Teagarden.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—One confession at prayer-meeting last Thursday night. Our Sunday-school was larger Sunday than it has ever been. Exercises by the school on Easter morning were very fine. Our money for the building fund continues to come in.—J. Murray Taylor.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Cures Nervous Diseases.

Headache, Insomnia, Exhaustion and Restlessness. Rebuilds the nervous system.

ILLINOIS.

La Harpe, April 24.—Eight additions here recently, five by letter and statement, three by confession. Work moving nicely and outlook encouraging.—L. G. Huff.

Sheldon, April 25.—The work here is in a fine condition. Two added by letter since we took the work. We are trying to make Iroquois county a living link county for home missions. I have been elected president of the county organization.—I. N. Lowman.

Waverly, April 26.—We just closed a seven weeks' engagement with Pastor Willis M. Cunningham and the three churches at Lynn, Spartanburg and Whitewater, Ind. Brother Cunningham is faithful to the truth. This work resulted in 44 additions. We start tonight for Weleetka, Ind. Ter.—Guy B. Williamson, song evangelist.

INDIANA.

Anderson, April 24.—There were seven young men received into the church here last Sunday on confession, all of them members of the Sunday-school.—T. W. Grafton.

Indianapolis, April 24.—Last night the writer closed seven weeks of continuous evangelistic work. Three weeks at Lynn with 15 added, 12 by obedience, one reclaimed, two by statement. A Christfan Endeavor society was organized with 19 active and nine associate members. Two weeks at Spartanburg with 14 added, 11 by confession, one by letter, two by statement. Two weeks at Whitewater with 15 added, nine made the good confession, five by statement. Five different denominations sent representatives to be Christians only. Bro. Guy B. Williamson and wife, of Waverly, Ill., who are excellent singing evangelists, had charge of the music, and are splendid helpers in all evangelistic work.—Willis M. Cunningham.

Ft. Wayne, April 24.—7 confessions at W. Jefferson street church, yesterday. Six additions at services during week when J. H. O. Smith, C. Shelburn, of Huntington, J. L. Thompson, of Peru, E. O. Filburn, of Warsaw, and J. O. Hull, of Kendallville, preached. Bro. M. G. Long, of Markle, held a meeting for our East end mission recently with four additions. There are additions at Jefferson street nearly every week.—E. W. Allen.

New Salem, April 24.—Just closed a two weeks' meeting between Lord's days at Orange, with 17 confessions.—Frank B. Thomas.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Bartlettsville.—With R. A. Omer preaching and L. D. Sprague singing, the church will begin a campaign for Christ the second Lord's day in May.—R. E. Rosenstein, pastor.

Weleetka, April 24.—We begin a meeting next Sunday assisted by Guy W. Williamson and wife. I am delighted with my work here. —F. Hooker Groom.

IOWA.

Osceola, April 21.—I have just organized a new congregation at the Lewis church, of 80 members. This was one of the most remarkable meetings ever held in this community. Only 18 nights of services, with 55 new accessions to the church. Of this number 44 were heads of families. I baptized 23 men and 11 women at one baptismal service. Three of the new converts were drunkards, but have left their old associates and have quit drink. Many came from the denominations, and the whole community turned to the Lord except four families. This will be one of the strongest country churches in the community.—H. E. Van Horn.

KANSAS.

Topeka, April 27.—Our meeting has been in progress 23 days; 96 additions to date. Expect to close in a few days.—H. A. Northcutt, evangelist; V. E. Ridenour, singer; Charles A. Finch, pastor.

Hepler, April 24.—We are having a revival at the Christian church here. Two additions last night. The meeting continues this week. The community is interested and the church edified.—B. McDonald, evangelist.

Atchison, April 29.—Our meeting of one month's duration conducted by home forces closed April 18. There were 60 additions—52 by confession and baptism. The meeting brings us into 32 new families. Our church building proved too small. We rented the opera house and it was not large enough. Every department of the work prospers and our people are happy. We are planning many new lines of work. Atchison will be heard from in the future.—W. T. Hilton.

Eureka, April 29.—One added by primary obedience since last report.—G. F. Bradford.

KENTUCKY.

Carlisle, April 24.—We recently closed a great union meeting in our town; much good was done. The day after the meeting closed we voted the saloons out of town by 103 majority. I held a few services in our church and baptized eight and received three by letter and one was reclaimed.—E. J. Willis, pastor.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore, April 28.—Since the opening of the Christian Temple, Jan. 15, there have been 40 conversions at our regular services. Herbert Yeuell will begin a meeting with us Lord's day, April 30.—Peter Ainslie.

MISSISSIPPI.

Meridian, April 26.—Our two weeks' meeting held by Bro. O. P. Spiegel, of Birmingham, closed April 23 with four additions to the congregation, one by letter, three by bap-

$1500. YEARLY easily earned by Christian man or woman as Manager Pictorial Biographical Engraving of PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S CAREER from Boyhood to Presidency. Send addressed envelope for particulars to Robert Doan, Ex-Member Congress, 211 Colorado Bldg., Washington, D. C.

Praises to the Prince

A Choice Collection of

SACRED SONGS

for Sunday-Schools, Young People's Societies, Evangelistic Services, and all other branches of Church Work and Worship.

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music. Handsome Appearance. Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market. : : :

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid . .	$ .30
Boards,	" " . .	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " . .	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" "	15.00

Bound with Cap and Rivet if desired.

PUBLISHED BY

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

tism. The preaching was splendid and much good was accomplished. All departments of work are in excellent condition.—W. M. Baker.

MISSOURI.

Bogard, April 26.—Three additions at Norborne Sunday, all by letter.—C. C. Taylor.

Gallatin, April 24.—Eight additions by letter and statement yesterday morning. Offering $15 for benevolent work last night. Freeman, of King City, begins an evangelistic meeting for us to-night. Very good prospects.—C. W. Comstock.

Lathrop, April 24.—I preached an illustrated sermon to children Easter morning. The house was crowded. Had one confession. Bro. W. A. Moore, of Mexico, spent the day with us and preached a splendid sermon at night to an appreciative audience. Our offering for Christian benevolence is about $20.—J. G. Creason.

Moberly, April 24.—Two baptisms on my last visit at Hawk Point. Also four additions Sunday at Cairo—two confessions. Good program rendered at Clark, Easter, and collection for the Home. My work is progressing. Been in this field six years. I will dedicate Salem church third Lord's day in May.—S. J. Copher.

Marshall, April 12.—H. D. Smith, of Hopkinsville, Ky., closed one of the finest and most successful meetings this church has ever had. It lasted but a little over two weeks, and in that time there were 52 additions to the church, including 41 baptisms. The greatest blessing was in the spiritual uplift of Brother Smith's sermons. Much credit for the success of our meeting is due the faithful superintendent and officers and teachers of our Sunday-school, as 41 of the additions were from the Sunday-school.—B. T. Wharton.

MONTANA.

Central Park, April 24.—Six additions here yesterday by letter. I took charge here April 1. This is a field of great possibilities. The prospects are excellent—Paul H. Castle.

NEBRASKA.

Bee, April 24.—Edward Clutter is in a meeting here. There have been 11 additions, nine confessions, one by letter and one from the Baptists.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Wilson.—The Martin family have just closed a splendid meeting for us, resulting in about 75 additions to the church. They made a splendid impression on our church, and the town. The spirit of the meeting was fine, and the church was greatly built up in all departments. Brother Martin and his splendid family will bless any church. They will do several weeks' work in North Carolina.—J. Boyd Jones.

OHIO.

Carthage, March 20.—Harlan P. Runyan, of Latonia, Ky., just closed a meeting for me with 18 added—17 baptisms. Ida Hanna, of Cincinnati, did excellent service as singing evangelist. I commend both of them most highly.—Chas. M. Fillmore.

Warren.—Fifteen persons were received at Central Christian church here, J. E. Lynn, pastor, on Easter Sunday. Eight others were added during the special series of Sunday evening sermons preparatory to Easter.

Steubenville, April 28.—We will begin a short meeting in our Bible school mission soon with E. A. Cole, of Washington, Pa., as evangelist. Had 636 in our main Bible-school Sunday and 64 in the mission, making an even 700.—H. H. Moninger.

Cleveland, April 29.—At Cedar avenue our Easter services were of a high order. Congregations large, music excellent, spirit fine, largest number of Sunday-school scholars attending church. Three additions—one by confession and two by letter.—E. R. Wise.

Akron, April 24.—The greatest day in the life of the First church was yesterday. It was the anniversary of the fifth year of Bro. Jno. G. Slayter's pastorate and withal the grandest. The Sunday previous had been fixed upon as decision day. Twenty-six had come forward, others had promised to come. Yesterday 13 more came, making a total of 39. The communion service and a short but most impressive invitation was followed by baptisms. The baptisms were made the feature of the hour. All nature seemed to rejoice in the new life. A profusion of flowers filled the room with fragrance. An unusual crowd had gathered. The Sunday-school rooms and galleries were full. It was the great day of the present pastorate. Bro. I. J, Spencer's meeting had resulted in 47 additions in February. Just 20 more had come since Jan. 1 and now with decision day 39 more, making a grand total of 96 in just four months. The March offering resulted in $800. The year has begun with the most propitious outlook of all the splendid years that Brother Slayter has spent in our midst.—B. C. Caywood.

Ravenna, April 25.—Three confessions, one letter and two by statement Easter Sunday—all adults; 105 have been added since the present pastorate began 16 months ago. We have introduced the "individual communion cup service." The I. O. O. F. return for their anniversary sermon Sunday night. We observe the seventy-fifth anniversary of the church May 14.—M. E. Chatley, pastor.

OKLAHOMA.

Goltry, April 26.—In a 12 days' meeting at Goltry, Woods Co., there were 40 additions, 15 by confession. Lots procured, money raised for building a house 28x40, making the sixth since our convention last September.—R. S. Smedley.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Charleston, April 24.—Three added to the church here yesterday.—Charles E. Smith, minister.

TEXAS.

Cleburne, April 24.—I am trying to hold a short meeting here, assisted by H. S. Saxton and wife as evangelists. Weather has been against us.—W. H. Bagby.

The Bethany Books

Christian Endeavor Reading Course

——SUBJECTS——

(1) The Plea and History of the Disciples of Christ
(2) The English Bible : (3) Christian Missions
Three Cloth-Bound Books on each Subject.

This course of study if followed as outlined by the authors will give the student a thorough and most helpful knowledge of the people who are pleading for simple, primitive Christianity, and of the Bible which they exalt as the Book of books. Note the titles and authors below:

Concerning the Disciples.—B. B. Tyler.
Bible Doctrine for Young Disciples.—F. D. Power.
Life and Teachings of Jesus.—H. L. Willett.
A Hand-book of Missions —A. McLean.
Sketches of Our Pioneers.—F. D. Power.
A Guide to Bible Study.—J. W. McGarvey.
Prophets of Israel.—H. L Willett.
Heroes of Modern Missions.—W. J. Lhamon.
Missionary Fields and Forces.—W. J. Lhamon.

PRICES:
Any one book prepaid, 35 cents : Three books, $1.00
The entire course of nine books, $3.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 PINE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—New Lever Press, Chase 6 1-2x10. Box 111, Hiram Ohio.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

DISCIPLES or others desiring to buy excellent farming lands, at most reasonable prices, will do well to correspond with W. H. BELL, Jonesboro, Ark.

WANTED—Members of Christian Church, who contemplate locating in Kansas and Oklahoma, to correspond with P. H. Guy & Co., Winfield, Kansas.

TYPEWRITER—I have for sale a brand-new typewriting machine; one that I can recommend. Neat, well made, serviceable. Has same key-board as Remington. Can give you a bargain. W. D. Cree, 2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

SINGER—Would like to sing for a good evangelist during summer months or direct choir in city where voice teacher is needed from June 16th to Sept. 4th. Would locate permanently if right place is found. Tenor voice. Experienced. Good references. Wm. H. Meyers, Box 525, Seward, Neb.

Normal Bible Studies

For Teachers, Classes Institutes and Assemblies

The
Normal Instructor
By W. W. DOWLING

In Seven Parts as Follows:
I.—The Book
II.—The Christ III.—The Church
IV.—The Land V.—The Institutions
VI.—The History VII.—The People

Each Part Bound Separately In Strong Manila Covers : :

PRICE:
15c. per Copy. $1.50 per Dozen

Christian Publishing Co.
St. Louis, Missouri

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

May 10, 1905.

A CALL TO THE YOUNG.

"Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth, before the evil days come, and the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."—Ecc. 12:1.

In no class of people should the church be so much interested as the young. It is in the young and tender years of childhood and youth that the heart is most susceptible to divine influence. Then, if ever, one hears the voice of God calling him to himself, and to duty. Youth time allowed to pass unimproved, the "evil days" soon come, and thoughts of God and the higher life are often crowded out.

Remembering. [Quote other passages asking us to "remember."] The word, remember in the text suggests a tendency to forget God. It implies also, what is true in Christian lands, at least, that the young have had some knowledge of God imparted to them. To remember is to hold in the mind any fact or truth, and to allow it to have its due influence upon us. The fact that we have been created by God, and are under obligations therefore to him for life, and all that life may mean to us, is to be kept in memory by the young, and their lives should be influenced and molded by that fact. Strange that we should forget God, who has created us, who preserves us daily, who has redeemed us through his Son, and from whom cometh every good and perfect gift. These are certainly good reasons why we should remember him lovingly and loyally.

Why Remember Him in Youth? Because the heart is tenderest in that period, and is therefore most likely to be influenced by the thought of God, and because the young need God in their thought and in their lives to direct them through the dangers that beset them, and train their lives in right directions. Most of those who are Christians to-day became such in their young and tender years. To turn to God in youth is to have a whole life to give to his service.

Danger of Procrastination. "The evil days come" on—days of temptation and trial; days when the mind and heart are occupied with material things, and the love of the world takes possession and crowds out higher things; days when the habits become fixed, and it is hard to turn the life into new channels. Then there is the possibility of death without preparation for the life to come.

God's Call to the Young. The story in 1 Samuel, third chapter, which should be read in connection with this lesson, tells of Samuel's call, in his tender boyhood, to a great mission. Many a youth has responded to the call of God to fill a noble mission in life. Through his providence, through his gospel, and through his continual goodness and grace, God is calling to the young to-day not only to remember him, but to dedicate their lives to his service. To follow in the path of duty, as one sees it, is to heed the voice of God.

Prayer. Our Father in heaven, we thank Thee for the children Thou hast given us in our homes, in our Sunday-schools, and in our churches. May the care of these little ones lie heavily upon the heart of Thy church, and may they be so trained in the knowledge of God, and of their obligations to Him, that they may yield their young lives to His service in youth time, that they may the better serve humanity and glorify Thy name, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

May 14, 1905.

SPIRIT-FILLED CHRISTIANS.—Acts 2:1-4, 41-47.

For the Leader.

Our topic this evening brings us to a study of a very important subject—the life that is filled with the Spirit. Without anticipating the discussion of the subject, it may be said that the life that is filled with the Spirit is a fruitful life. It is not a barren life. The Christian who brings not forth fruits meet for repentance need not claim that he has the Spirit. The Spirit-filled life is the life of unison. It is harmony. It is not given to church disturbances. It is for peace. The fruits of the Spirit are peace, joy, love, long-suffering, service. The Christian who is filled with the Spirit is a man of power. He does not beat the heavens as if they were brass when he prays, but he seems to look into the face of God and speak to him as naturally and as easily as a child with its father. If this be true, is it not well worth our while to give the subject some serious thought? And let the meeting of the evening be one in which we will frankly speak out our difficulties and our joys in the Christian life.

For the Members.

1. The Spirit meant in the topic is the Holy Spirit. By this we do not mean an influence, but a person. We do not say "it," but "he." This is plain from Jesus' talk with his disciples when he was consoling them on his departure. The Spirit of truth, "He will lead you," etc. Jesus said the Holy Spirit would take his place with the disciples. While we may never on this side satisfy ourselves as to many questions about the nature, person, etc., etc., of the Holy Spirit, we are as sure as Jesus' word can make it that he is a person and that his relation to us is as the relation of God or of Jesus.

2. We should not forget that Jesus told his disciples that the world could not receive the Spirit. His doctrine was that only his followers could receive him, because only such could know him. Peter on the day of Pentecost said the same thing about the dwelling of the Spirit in the individual. His exhortation to those who heard his sermon was to accept Christ, and the same Spirit that had enabled the disciples to preach with such power, and to realize such happiness, should be theirs. He said that the promise was to them and to their children and to all that were afar off. So the promise to all of every land and clime who accept Jesus and obey him is the Holy Spirit following the remission of sins.

3. We should not jump at a hasty conclusion, and fail to distinguish between the different gifts of the Spirit. The apostles, and others, through the laying on of hands, or for special purposes, enjoyed a gift of the Spirit that enabled them to do wonderful works in the name of the Lord. This was for a purpose. No doubt this purpose was the same in part with the purpose of the miracles of Jesus: to start the new cause. To command at once attention for it. To show the mercy-nature of Jesus. To make a way of entrance by means of the physical for the spiritual. This was a special gift. As to whether it obtains to-day, I think, we can waive the question as to whether it is promised, and rest our contention upon the fact. Has any one the special gift of the Spirit to-day? Has he the credentials? Does he do the work? A careful comparison of the present-day claims with the works of Jesus, and, after that, the works of his disciples, will satisfy one. The special gift does not, in the opinion of the writer, obtain to-day.

Individual Communion Cups

Why permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? Individual Communion Cups are sanitary. Let us send you a list of nearly 3,000 churches where they are in use. Send for Free Book.

We offer a Trial Outfit free to any church.

Sanitary Communion Outfit Co. 15th St. Rochester, N.Y.

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

The first ten who clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and send to

DRAUGHON'S

PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.

COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mai FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

4. The gift of the Spirit that we crave to-day, and that is promised us in the gospel, is the indwelling of the Spirit, not for the special purpose of enabling us to do wonderful works, but for the purpose of comforting us and strengthening us, and helping us to live the Christian life in the midst of a wicked generation. This indwelling the apostles had, but they had a special gift in addition to this. The gift of the Spirit that Peter promised on the day of Pentecost to every one who accepted Christ was the indwelling of the Spirit. Every Christian may be a Spirit-filled Christian, but he must not confuse this with being able to work miracles. On the one hand, the man who does not believe in miracle working to-day must not go so far because of that belief as to deny the Spirit altogether; and on the other hand, the man who reads of the gift of the Spirit for healing must not conclude that this is the sense in which he is promised to all men.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Is my heart a fit temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit?

DAILY READINGS.

M. The Spirit Jesus sent. Acts 2:32-39.
T. Answering prayer. Acts 4:23-31.
W. Begetting love. Acts 4:32-37.
T. Bringing joy. Gal. 5:22-26.
F. Giving power. Rom. 15:13-19.
S. Converting sinners. Acts 11:19-24.
S. Topic—Spirit-filled Christians. Acts 2:1-4, 41-47.

* *

FOOT COMFORT

Obtained from Baths with Cuticura Soap and Anointings with Cuticura, the Great Skin Cure.

Soak the feet on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure. Bandage lightly in old, soft cotton or linen. For itching, burning, and scaly eczema, rashes, inflammation and chafing of the feet or hands, for redness, roughness, cracks and fissures, with brittle, shapeless nails, and for tired, aching muscles and joints, this treatment is simply wonderful, frequently curing in a single night.

Sunday-School.

May 14, 1905.

JESUS PRAYS FOR HIS FOLLOWERS.—John 17:15-26.

Memory verses, 20, 21.

Golden Text.—I pray for them.—John 17:9.

The intercessory prayer (John 17:1-26), like the words of the preceding lesson and the intervening discourse, was spoken either during the walk from the room where the supper was eaten to Gethsemane, or while the little company lingered about the table after the suggestion to depart had been given (John 14:31).

One statement made just before the intercessory prayer throws light upon the spirit and purpose of this prayer: "I say not unto you that I will pray the Father for you, for the Father himself loveth you" (16:26, 27). These words should dispose of the theory that God is essentially an angry God and that the function of Christ, whether through his atoning death or his intercessory prayer, was to soften the hard heart of God toward men.

The prayer in John 17 may be variously analyzed, but the following points may be especially noted:

1. A prayer for glorification. "Glorify thou me" (John 17:5). This was not a selfish prayer. He was not praying for himself. He had just spoken the significant words, "I have overcome the world" (16:33). The path to real glory always lies through overcoming. It was the consummation of this work of overcoming the world that brought the hour of glorification, and the purpose of the glorification of the one whom the Father had sent was to be the glory of the Father. Verse 4 states a universal principle touching the divine significance of work. It is open to every man to view his work—if it is an honest work and properly his—as the fulfillment of a divine commission, and his highest means of glorifying God. In the case of such a unique work as that of Jesus the words have of course a much larger meaning. In verse 6 Jesus speaks of himself as having been glorified before the world was.

2. A prayer that the disciples in all times and places might be kept holy and unspotted from the world. They were to be God's representatives among men. It was necessary that they should be pure as God himself is pure that they might represent him. And it was necessary that they should not keep their holiness intact by fleeing with it to the wilderness but should preserve it in the very midst of the human throng, in order that their representation of God might be effective with men. So difficult a problem is this that many of earth's saintliest characters have given up the attempt to solve it and have hidden their saintliness behind barriers that cut off their contact with the world, while many others, whose hearts were too warm and whose sympathies too keen to permit them to withdraw from any needy or corrupted one, have themselves caught the contagion of "the evil that is in the world." We may say that these sympathetic sinners are more lovable than the frigid saints, but Christ's ideal is the disciple who keeps his purity withwithout sacrificing his vital touch with humanity.

3. A prayer for unity. In praying, "not for these only," the eleven who were within sound of his voice, "but for them also that believe on me through their word," Jesus seems to have in mind a vision of the spread of his gospel and the inclusion of many diverse and possibly uncongenial elements among his followers. If a comparatively homogeneous group of a dozen men could find such opportunities of quarreling as these had found before his very eyes, how probable it was that the enlargement of the circle to include men of many localities and races, of various temperaments and divergent interests, would give occasion for fatal ruptures in the bond that should hold them together. This suspicion was too soon justified. The apostles preached unity but had to contend constantly and with varying fortune against various schismatic tendencies even in the first generation of the church's life. The world has not seen a perfect realization of Christ's ideal of the unity of his followers.

4. A prayer for an effective church and a contagious faith, "That the world may believe that thou didst send me." The unity of Christ's followers has a value within itself, because it implies that they will have the Spirit of Christ, which is essential to unity. But it also has a value as contributing to the effectiveness of the faith in winning others. A divided church is unlovely and unconvincing. Only the Spirit of unity and the visible embodiment of that Spirit will bring about that momentous result toward which all missionary activity is directed —"that the world may believe."

"THE ONLY WAY."
ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.
4—PERFECT TRAINS—4
MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.
CHICAGO & ALTON RY.
Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to
D. BOWES, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.
SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily to May 15th, also Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

WEST BADEN SPRINGS, IND.

American Water Works Association. Tickets will be sold from all points in C. P. A. Territory, May 5, 6, 7. Return limit May 16th.

Decoration Day. One fare for the round trip to points within radius of 150 miles. Tickets will be sold May 29-30. Return limit May 31st.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

National Baptist Anniversary. Tickets will be sold from all points in C. P. A. Territory, May 15, 16, 17. Return limit May 27th.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.

National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.

National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.

United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—

F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville
Railroad
FROM Cincinnati and Louisville
TO KNOXVILLE
Two Trains Daily
from each city
Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars
For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

AULT & WIBORG
COMPANY
Manufacturers of Printing Inks.
CINCINNATI, NEW YORK,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.
This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

A Modern Plea
for Ancient Truth
By J. H. GARRISON
An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.
94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.
Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. St Louis, Mo.

MARRIAGES.

VAN AKEN—POINTER.—Mr. E. Earl Van Aken and Miss Mabel N. Pointer, at Belleville., Kan., April 11, 1905, W. N. Porter officiating.

RANDALL—RANDALL.—In Oskaloosa, Ia., April 18, C. H. Strawn, of Prairie City, Iowa, officiating, Mr. L. E. Randall to Miss Zella Randall, both of Sigourney, Iowa.

STAUFFER—ALLEN.—At the Christian parsonage, Atlantic, Iowa, April 16, J. E. Stauffer, of Anita, Iowa, and Elva N. Allen of Marne, Iowa, by W. B. Crewdson.

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

ABRAMS.

Thomas Abrams was born in Madison county, Kentucky, Jan. 4, 1806. In young manhood he moved to Greenup county, and for many years was prominent in public affairs. He was long a magistrate of the county and also served as one of the county court judges seven years, from which service he obtained the title of "Judge." In 1857 he moved to Missouri and settled in Chariton county, where he was actively engaged in farming and merchandising until 1873, when he retired from active life. For 25 years he was a magistrate in this county, but very few suits were tried before him from the fact that he had the faculty of getting the disputants together and settling the matter out of court. For the past 31 years he has lived a quiet life, save occasionally acting as attorney in justice's court, or preaching an occasional sermon, he having been a preaching elder in the Christian church for many years. He was one of the charter members of the Cunningham congregation and did all in his power to build up the cause of the Master. When the congregation moved to Sumner, he went with it and lived a faithful member until his death. He was a man of vigorous intellect and always manifested a broad, liberal spirit in his dealings towards others. On Thanksgiving day, 1904, he assisted the writer in the thanksgiving service at the church in Sumner in a very acceptable manner. His speech will be long remembered. It was the occasion of his last attendance at church. He was the oldest preacher in the brotherhood. He was married to Elizabeth Rose, of Greenup county, Ky., in 1826. To this union thirteen children were born, three sons and ten daughters. His wife and eleven of his children preceded him to the beyond. He was married to his second wife, Mrs. R. M. Cheatham, July 19, 1870. No children were born to this union. He died March 9, 1905, aged 99 years, 2 months and 5 days, leaving a wife, two children and grandchildren many, to the fifth generation, and a host of friends to mourn his death. Few men can hope to live such a long and useful life. His mind was unusually good to the end, and he often talked to the writer about his faith and hope in eternal life which grew stronger and stronger until the last. His faith in the correctness of the plea of the church of Christ, of which he was a member, was marvelous. His funeral took place at the Christian church in Sumner, March 10, after which his body was laid to rest in the Stewart cemetery to wait for the call of him in whom he trusted. The community feels a sad loss in his death. In hope of a grand reunion of the faithful,

N. J. NICHOLSON.

BATES.

John W. Bates, born July 13, 1833, in Scott Co., Ky., died March 30, 1905, aged 72 years. Mr. Bates was a member of the Christian church and one of the oldest settlers in Brown county.

BATES.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bates, born 1818, died March 25, 1905. She was a consistent member of the Christian church. The funeral was held from the Christian church, J. E. Lorton conducting the services.

CASNER.

Judge John C. Casner was born in Brook county, West Virginia, March 8, 1828, and died after an illness of three weeks, of la grippe and diabetes, at his home near Wright City, Warren county, Missouri, March 17, 1905. The Casner family originally came from Germany, and the Judge's grandfather was a soldier in the war for American independence. The Judge's parents were James Casner and Elsie (Kerr) Casner and they were both members of the Presbyterian church. Judge Casner was reared in the county of his birth and attended the home school, and later the academy at Wellsburg, West Virginia. On Nov. 9, 1858, he was married to Miss Rosa V. Smith. In the fall of 1858 they moved to a farm near Oskaloosa, Iowa. In 1865 they moved to Warren county, Missouri, where he became a very successful farmer and stock raiser. In 1874 he was elected presiding justice of the county court of Warren county, and held the position for eight years. The family were members of the Methodist church until their removal to Missouri, where they attended the Congregational church near their house. In 1887 Mrs. Casner died, one daughter having preceded her to the better land. Their three sons, Judson S., of Warren county, Missouri, Edward H., of Troy, Missouri, and Dwight E. Casner, of Lead City, South Dakota, are all intelligent and highly respected citizens. On Feb. 1, 1888, Judge Casner was married to Mrs. Louisa H. McGary, of Fulton, Missouri, and they came to Warrenton in 1893, where he erected a comfortable home. Here the Judge and his wife were active members of the Christian church, of which he became an elder and contributed largely toward the erection of a church edifice. The Judge always took an active part in the educational interests of the county and contributed liberally to the Central Wesleyan college, where he also sent his sons to be educated. He was a man of solid intelligence, and sober, sound judgment, good business qualifications, and withal an agreeable Christian gentleman. He was popular among his neighbors and his house was famed for an open hospitality. He was a dignified and incorruptible official and always sought to do the right as God gave him to see the right. A few years ago they returned to his farm to live, where, after a short period of intense suffering, he fell asleep in Jesus. The funeral was largely attended and the services were conducted by Rev. G. B. Addicks, D. D., president of Central Wesleyan college, after which his mortal remains were laid to rest in the Wright City cemetery. He leaves to mourn his departure, his three sons, his bereaved wife, one brother, J. H. Casner, of Troy, Missouri, and two sisters, Mrs. Grandfield, of El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. Woodson, of Lincoln, Nebraska. A good man has gone to his reward. Peace to his ashes.

EADS.

Mrs. C. A. Eads was born Aug. 24, 1834, near Richmond, Ky. Died April 1, 1905. She was a member of the Christian church.

PARMLEY.

On Saturday, March 25, 1905, the church at Pasadena, California, lost by death one of its most dearly loved and most useful members. Marshal C. Parmley was born in Center Rock county, Wisconsin, May 22, 1862. His father and mother, Ira and Aurora E. Parmley, were pioneer Disciples in this state. In young manhood their son Marshal united with the church and was faithful unto death. His place in the choir will never be filled. Brother Parmley was prominent in business circles, being manager of large mining interests. Brother Parmley will be waiting "over there" for his beloved wife and daughter, his two sisters, Mrs. C. H. Jorden and Mrs. J. A. Ross, and his brothers, R. G. and H. T. Parmley. The sisters are residents of Pasadena, and the brothers of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. The funeral services were conducted by the writer and were attended by a throng of people.

> "He liveth long who liveth well,
>   All other life is short and vain;
> He liveth longest who can tell
>   Of living most for heavenly gain."

FRANK M. DOWLING.

REYNOLDS.

Sister Mary, wife of Bro. Jno. Reynolds, departed this life March 30, aged 52 years. A consistent Christian for 36 years, she died in the triumphs of a living faith. We laid her to rest in the Highland cemetery, five miles north of town, where she sleeps in peace. S. J. VANCE, minister.

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing ou City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Oliv Sts., St. Louis.

A TRIO

of devotional books which have aided thousands of readers.

Alone With God

The Heavenward Way

Half Hour Studies at the Cross

Written by J. H. Garrison,

Editor of THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

They are similar in size and binding, and being all written for the purpose of comfort and spiritual strength, they constitute what may properly be called

A Devotional Library.

PRICE,

Seventy-Five Cents a Volume, or Two Dollars for the Set of Three Volumes, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' NEW TESTAMENT,

With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter.

Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.

Prices, = = = = = 75 cents to $1.25.

Write us for particulars.

Christian Publishing Co., = St. Louis, Mo.

People's Forum.

Is It Not Equally Important?

EDITOR CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST:—In your editorial, entitled, "Is There Not Common Ground?" you say, "It is impossible that Jesus could have made baptism an equally important condition with the work of the Holy Spirit in regeneration and salvation of men." If that statement is true, please explain in what particular being begotten is of greater importance than being brought forth. There is certainly no bringing forth by the Spirit, and a birth is no birth without it. The new life is begotten or conceived by the word or Spirit, and born or brought forth by baptism.

You say: "No doubt the Christian Standard has some way of harmonizing its theory with the fact mentioned by the Argus." Now I fail to see any fact expressed in your quotation from the article in the Argus; you may think the following to be a fact: "This doctrine puts the large majority of Christians in an unborn condition though they are living Christian lives, reaping spiritual harvests and going to heaven in an ever-increasing procession."

I see only an opinion and no fact in the above. A man has no right to assume that one who has not been born again is a Christian and going to heaven; if they go to heaven that is God's business, and not ours. One might just as well conclude those who have never obeyed any part of the gospel will be saved. A man is either a Christian or he is not. He is either born or he isn't. He is either in the kingdom or he isn't in it. Opinions of men, such as is expressed in the Argus, have worked all kinds of mischief.

Baptism is for, or in order to, the forgiveness of sins, and one certainly is not in the kingdom of Christ whose sins are not forgiven, nor has he been born again whose sins are not forgiven, and to assume that he has been forgiven without being born again is to do so without any authority. Again you say: "We cannot suppose for a moment that Jesus Christ, the great Spiritual Teacher of man, could ever teach that the lines of his kingdom would be conterminous with the lines of his visible church." Why can we not? You answer: "Any theory that proceeds on such supposition is bound to run against facts of the most impregnable character." It seems to me that, as the church and kingdom are synonymous terms, and as the church is a spiritual and divine institution the lines of his kingdom and his church must needs be conterminous and that facts that proceed thus might and do run against theories.

If we are to assume that men are Christians and go to heaven without being born again, as you assume (and there is and can be no birth without baptism), and if such assumption is correct, then we must conclude that Jesus did not mean what he said in John 3:3-6, for we know that he said, "Ye must be begotten by the Spirit, and brought forth by water, or ye cannot enter the kingdom," or church.

Sunday-School

CLASS BOOKS,
ENVELOPES
RECORDS,
BLACK BOARDS,
MAPS, CARDS
AND OTHER

Up-To-Date Supplies

Order what you need from

Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo

Then it seems to me that we may go on assuming in any manner we please.

Very respectfully,
Ft. Collins, Col. A. E. DUBBER.

[See editorial reply—"Not Of Equal Importance."]

❀ ❀

Baptism and the New Birth.

EDITOR, CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST:—Under the title "Is There Not Common Ground?" in your issue of April 6, you discuss the conflicting opinions of the Standard and the Argus. In this article you say (referring to John 3:5), it is sometimes stated that water in the figure is the mother; then you say: "To affirm this of the water of baptism would be absurd, not to say irreverent." I infer from this you would call that absurd or irreverent which would delegate to any material element or elements spiritual power. But does not Christ thus delegate it?

In Paul's definition of the gospel (1 Cor. 15) which has delegated to it the power of God unto salvation, does he give importance to the burial and resurrection of Christ equal with his death? If so, we understand Christ to give equal importance to that which is a figure of the burial and resurrection to that which is a figure of death only secondary in the sense that it follows and is thereby dependent upon it. Christ gives it this relation in the commission, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."

Has not God in all ages given the working of his spiritual power to bless mankind through material and human agencies?

In the wilderness God delegated to the brazen serpent, coupled with the obedience of the people's looking upon it, power to heal them from the poisonous bites. In like manner to the tree of knowledge of good and evil. Likewise of the tree of life.

Again, is it less irreverent to look upon the table around which we assemble on the Lord's day and see in the broken loaf and fruit of the vine the Lord's broken body and shed blood? Not in transubstantiation but in the loving remembrance and obedient discernment there is delegated to these and the emblems combined that power to feed our souls and make us to grow in grace.

God gave us his Son through a birth the combination of whose parents was spiritual and human (or earthly).

The gospel gives us the death of that which is earthly (the body). The spiritual part of Christ suffered but could not die, could not be buried and in that sense could not be resurrected. Yet without this death, burial and resurrection we could have had no gospel, no "power of God unto salvation." Hence as God has thus delegated unto human and natural agencies so much power, and gave unto Nicodemus so explicitly the figure of a birth, I see no irreverence in calling the water of baptism, as Christ implies, the spiritual mother. For so God, being the Father of all good, has delegated to the earth the motherhood, or the visible agencies of bestowing his bountiful blessings.

Your brother,
Bogard, Mo. C. C. TAYLOR.

[All that our correspondent says about the use of material elements in religion is entirely apart from the point criticised in our editorial. We are quite well aware that God has used the material, and in the very article criticised we pointed out that he used the water of baptism in a very important way, giving it an important place in his method of human redemption. In the Lord's supper the bread and the wine are used as symbols to represent the Lord's body and blood, but to convert them into the reality, as the Roman Catholic dogma of transubstantiation does, is to pervert their meaning. Baptism likewise is a most expressive symbol of great spiritual facts, but to call the water of John 3:5 the mother, is the same kind of perversion that Roman Catholics are guilty of, with reference to the emblems used in the Lord's supper. It is to materialize a spiritual transaction. Christ does not "delegate" any such power to the water of baptism. Baptism stands related to the new life in Christ, as the formal outward manifestation of that life, in an initiatory act by which the believer becomes openly and visibly identified with the kingdom of God, and this justifies its use in connection with the Holy Spirit in the figure of the new birth. It does not, however, justify the pressing of the figure to the extreme of making the water of baptism in the new birth answer to the place of the mother in the natural birth.—EDITOR.]

Comfort--Economy

A Cool Kitchen

No kindlings to chop—no dirt—and a kitchen as comfortable as the sitting room that's Quick Meal way—just turn the valve—strike a match and you have instantly a red hot fire—and in no time breakfast is ready. And it costs almost nothing for fuel, 4¢ to 6¢ a day, that's all. It's just as simple and as safe as an ordinary kerosene lamp.

It is built according to the insurance people's ideas—they have tested the

QUICK MEAL
(Evaporator)
GASOLINE
STOVE

in every possible way to their full satisfaction.

The Quick Meal saves half an hour's sleep every morning and ever so much time during a day. You can roll it into your Dining Room, if you prefer—wherever you use the Quick Meal, your room remains clean, cool and comfortable.

You should have a Quick Meal in Your kitchen.

If your dealer doesn't carry it, tell us, and we'll sell you.

Would You Like a Present?

We will send you something useful—something you'll like if you'll simply tell us your dealer's name and say whether or not he carries Quick Meal. Sign your name plainly so the present will be sure to reach you safely.

TRADE MARK

Ringen Stove Co., Div. Makers
408 N. 6th St., St. Louis, Mo.

❀ ❀

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

Have you read the startling truths contained in the book entitled

FROM THE BALL ROOM TO HELL?

A Dancing Master's Experience. 25 cents, postpaid. Agents write for rates. G. W. NOBLE, Lakeside Building, CHICAGO.

Family Circle

Mother May.

By W. S. Whitacre.

Welcome, May, Mother of Summer,
  Beautiful, laughing May,
Charming are thy many graces
That the hand of Nature traces
In thy face and form and bearing—
Graces thou art ever wearing,
  Beautiful Mother May.

Gracious May, beautiful Mother,
  Sweet are thy laughing eyes,
Beaming on us kindly, brightly,
While thou art advancing sprightly,
Giving us exquisite pleasure
Day by day in fullest measure
  From thine azure skies.

Welcome May, bountiful Mother,
  Summer will soon be grown.
Then the charms that we are singing,
Then the sweets that thou art flinging,
Then the presence of thy spirit
And the beauty hovering near it—
  All these will have flown.
  Mt. Vernon, Ill.

◆ ◆

An Easter Story.

By J. H. Wright.

"Is this St. Louis?" said a little brown-eyed girl, as I rang the bell at the Christian orphanage in St. Louis, not long ago. "Yes, dear, and this is to be your home. Isn't it a beautiful one?" She had been placed in my care at Paris, Mo. There were unshed tears in her eyes as she looked into mine and her lips were quivering when we took our seats in the car. A generous traveling salesman went down into his grip and handed me some candy with, "This for the little one." Others looked on in sympathy and hearts were touched when I said, "I'm taking her from the county 'poor farm' to an orphanage where they will care for her for a time and then give her a Christian home." Not a syllable did she utter on the way to Moberly. In the waiting room some children shared their cookies with her. On the Wabash I took down a little box and said, "Now, Annie, we'll have a lunch." How her eyes sparkled, and how eagerly she ate! Just like you older people at some reception, she went for the good things, and then grew sociable. "Are you going to St. Louis?" she asked. I was. A mother who heard her story said, "Annie, come see my tiny baby," and she was happy. As we drew near the station I said, "We must get off now." But she hesitated and said, "Guess I won't get off." But when told that this was St. Louis, she was satisfied and bravely clambered on street cars and then walked the two blocks to the home. It was then she asked me, "Is this St. Louis?" And I told her of "Miss Tena," the beloved matron, who would be her "mother" now and of the little ones with whom she could play. At last the door opened and "Miss Tena" came with her hearty greeting. Annie wandered where she would while we talked for a moment. Her child's curiosity took her down the hall and into a room where a good phonograph, the gift of the St. Louis Star, was making music for the boys and girls gathered 'round.

"It is just time my little tots were getting ready for bed. Come, I want you to see them," said Miss Tena. So up to the "nursery" we went. Almost all were ready for bed. A few boys were "hustling" into their "nighties." "Come, children, I want to hear you say your prayers to-night," said Miss Tena." Close up around her some thirty boys and girls gathered, each on his knees and, with folded hands and bowed heads, repeated the simple prayer. Then came the "good-night" kiss to Miss Tena. Some scampered into their beds, while others lingered to ask if Annie, who was sitting on my lap, was to be a "nursery tot." Not knowing how to answer, I turned to Miss Tena, who asked, "How old is Annie?" Learning that she was only four, she said, "Yes, little ones, she's a 'nursery tot'; now go to bed."

Promising to see Annie in the morning I went downstairs. The chapel was now filling up. An hour was spent in song (and how they did let their voices out!), Bible reading and Bible study. So good and thorough is this instruction that almost every one, old enough to understand what the Lord asks of them, is a Christian. I thought of the city waifs untaught, and of the little children in fine homes, where fathers and mothers are "too busy" to give this instruction, and I was glad for these homeless ones.

The next morning I saw Annie again and since then they have written me that she was well, that they all loved her, and that they would soon place her in a splendid home.

Then I went over to the Hospital and Mothers' and Babies' Home. How would you like to have six cradles full of babies to take care of? That was what one of the nurses had in the first room I visited. And there were two babies in each cradle save one—and that one had three! Dear, dear, what a sight and what confusion for a few minutes, for somehow the first little squeak was contagious and it seemed to me that I could hear thirteen different voices at once. Imagine my surprise to see some of them placidly sleeping. Soon this one was turned over, and that one lifted into a different position and peace reigned, some asleep, some blinking at the light, some stretching their toothless mouths wide open in baby glee. Thirty-five were "at home" the day I called. Ten mothers, also, were being cared for and the eight nurses have their hands full caring for all these day and night. Sometimes a single word tells a great story of the work done. Bear with me when I say they use a thousand diapers in a single week! (So says the Christian Philanthropist.)

I could tell you much more about these Homes, but I must not. Let me speak of the organization. "Pure religion visits the fatherless and the widows in their afflictions." The National Benevolent Association of the Christian church has at present eight institutions. The Central Orphans' Home that I have described has cared for 1,300 children from 27 states and found homes for 500 in 20 states. The Babies' Home and Hospital has received 580 babies from 28 states. It has temporarily cared for more than 325 destitute women and found employment for them. These are in St. Louis. In Jacksonville, Ill., is the Central Old People's Home, where aged women are cared for. In East Aurora, N. Y., is the Eastern Old People's Home. At Cleveland, Ohio, is another Orphanage and Child's Hospital. The Western Orphans' Home, of Loveland, Col., will soon be completed on the $10,000 tract of ground given by the liberal people there. The Christian Hospital opens its doors in St. Louis to as many of the destitute as its means will allow. The Juliette Fowler Home, near Dallas, Texas, is the latest of these benevolences. Already 50 children are being cared for there.

Make Ice Cream in ten minutes
With
Jell-O
Ice Cream Powder
Everything but the ice and milk in the package. Does not have to be cooked, sweetened or flavored. One package makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream you ever ate. Costs very little. Quality the highest. Pure and wholesome. Received Highest Award, GOLD MEDAL, at the St. Louis Exposition, 1904. If your grocer can't supply you send 25c. for 2 packages. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Send for new illustrated Recipe Book issued April 15th, 1905. Address, The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

Are you wondering who pays for all this? I am. For they have no endowment. Gifts, annuities, bequests and free will offerings from people like you and me who want a part in this blessed ministry, is their sole dependence. You are invited to help us make a large Easter offering on next Sunday. This will be done largely through the Sunday-school and its solicitors, but you will be given a chance at the morning service.—Paris, Mo., Mercury.

◆ ◆

"Peculiar People" You Have Met.

By Leander S. Keyser.

You long ago discovered that there are "peculiar people" who are not "peculiar" in the scriptural sense of the term. Not all of them are members of Zion, either; some of them belong to that element of society known as "the world," and others are advocates of various cults. Who ever started the cranky notion, anyway, that all the cranks are in the church?

But of course there are some of them there, you are well aware of that. One of them you met not so very many months ago. She lived quite a distance from the church, and for years you hadn't known her to attend the mid-week prayer-meeting. But one bad, disagreeable night, the wind howling and the rain pouring, she came to the Wednesday evening service. Seeing the small number present, she glanced around with a look of severe and righteous condemnation.

"Why, what a small turn-out at the prayer-meeting!" she exclaimed. "Not much interest in the prayer-meeting in this church, I should say! Why, I should think, if I can come from 'way over on the far side of town on a night like this, them that lives near the church ought to be able to get out!"

And, half in anger, half in disgust, she plumped herself down into a seat. That was the last time she has been at the prayer-meeting, whether the weather was pleasant or otherwise; and you can't even remember having seen her at any of the church services on Sunday.

One of the acutest "peculiars" you have ever known was Mr. X. He was a bachelor, had no one to take care of but himself, received a good salary, and was a member of the church. But his subscription to the current expenses was ridiculously small. Other men in the church, with good-sized families, received no larger salary than did your bachelor friend, yet gave three and four times as much as he. The officers of the church felt that this was unjust, and, as money was badly needed at the time, one of the deacons was delegated to call on your well-to-do bachelor, and induce him, if possible, to increase his contribution. In the discussion that followed, the visitor urged the fact that men with large families were paying more than Mr. X.

"Ah, that may be!" Mr. X. quickly rejoined, with the air of one who had reasoned the matter out long ago. "But you should remember that there are more persons in their families to enjoy the services of the church, and therefore they ought to more than I do!"

Wasn't he a dialectician, though? A genuine disciple of the ancient and renowned order of Sophists.

You remember your experience with a most interesting "spiritual" woman. She went a few times to the missionary meeting of the ladies of the church. They were especially interested in the study of foreign missions, and the conversion of the heathen, and usually had a program consisting of prayer, singing, the reading of tracts, a little business, and a social quarter or half hour. But this woman found fault because the meetings were not "spiritual," and in a public gathering she criticised the society quite sharply for its lack of the devotional spirit. Some of the ladies of the society found it necessary to reply to some of her strictures, maintaining that there was nothing in the whole program that was not of a devotional and spiritual character, when entered into in the proper temper.

These rejoinders made the intensely "spiritual" woman very angry. She almost went into a tantrum, and a few days later was in bed with nervous prostration. She stopped going to the missionary meetings entirely, threw up her Sunday-school class, kept away from the church services, and almost created a row in the church by her harsh talk and gossip.

Wasn't she a "peculiar," though? Wasn't that an odd way for a "spiritual" person to act? And wasn't she anxious for the conversion of the heathen?

Ah, I notice that you're smiling! Since you have fallen into the reminiscent mood, another specimen of the genus of "peculiars" occurs to your mind. It was Brother A—Z. Seeing the minister playing croquet one day, his tender conscience was greatly hurt. Indeed, he was so wrought up that he not only talked to a lot of other people about it, but finally felt "moved" to reprove the minister himself.

"See here, Brother P—T," he said, "I want you to tell me honestly whether you could kneel down and pray to Almighty Gawd, and ask him to bless you, just before you begin a game of croquet." When the minister, who had a little ginger too, replied that he could, Brother A—Z shook his head sadly and declared:

"Well, I couldn't! My conscience wouldn't let me!"

The very next week Brother A—Z was one of the parties in a horse trade. Seeing a chance to make a handsome pile of money, he cheated the other man out of hand and gloves! Ha! ha! yes, sir, he did! The minister met him a few days later, and asked him archly:

"Brother A—Z, did you ever hear of a man who strained at a gnat and swallowed a camel?" Brother A—Z's eyes grew as big as tin pans with innocent wonderment, and he cried, "What in the world do you mean, Brother P—T?" He was a "peculiar," now wasn't he?

What do you say? Oh, that the genius for idiosyncrasies is not confined to church people! You know of a concrete case, do you? You knew a man who couldn't believe in Christianity; the Bible was too unreasonable for him to accept, especially the miracles. No, you never could get an intellectual man like him to bow before such a book.

Yet this same mental giant had no trouble about accepting the rappings, slate writing, tambourine playing, materializations, etc., of spiritualistic seances in dimly lighted rooms, under tables and behind curtains—no, he hadn't the least difficulty in accepting these performances as bona fide manifestations of the spirits of the dead! It never struck him that it would be easy for people to be imposed on in the darkness or the dim light. He never reflected that if the spirits of the departed condescended to come back at all, they ought to be reasonable enough to come in broad daylight, when there would be no chance for deception. If they are at all wise, and are anxious to convey the truth to the people who are still in the body, they ought to see what a point they would score by clear and open manifestations. Isn't it odd that they don't realize how strategic that would be?

Well, this great reasoner's wife died. He told you again and again—shortly after her death—that he was very happy in her spiritual companionship; that she came to him every day, sat by his side at the table and by the hearth. "Oh, it's glorious! glorious!" he murmured.

But the funny thing about it was—a little over a year after his wife's death he married again, this time a young and beautiful woman. Now you can't help it; your mind curls itself up into the form of an interrogation point. Did his first wife cease by and by to visit him? or did he enjoy the company of two wives—one a woman of real flesh and blood, the other a spirit? If the latter, was it a case of bigamy? Wasn't it "peculiar," to say the least? Ah! you're smiling again. What's that? You say he never once cheeped a word about having spiritual communion with wife number one after he married wife number two! Well, that was "peculiar."—The Advance.

A Complete Line of

BAPTISMAL SUITS

Guaranteed Best Quality.

Write to us for Prices.

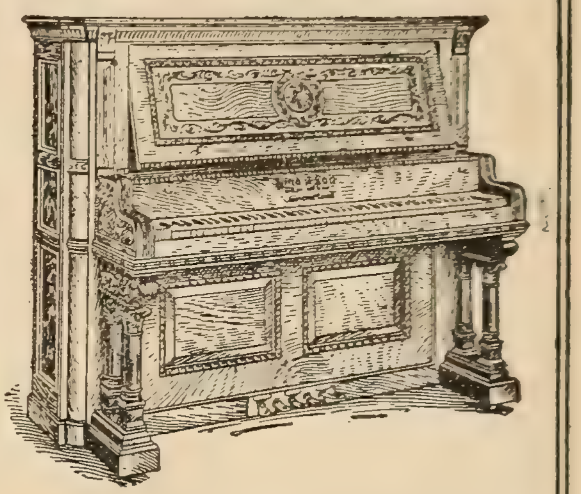
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WING PIANOS

Are Sold Direct From the Factory, and in No Other Way

You Save from $75 to $200

When you buy a Wing Piano, you buy at wholesale. You pay the actual cost of making it with only our wholesale profit added. When you buy a piano, as many still do—at retail—you pay the retail dealer's store rent and other expenses. You pay his profit and the commission or salary of the agents or salesmen he employs—all these on top of what the dealer himself has to pay to the manufacturer. The retail profit on a piano is from $75 to $200. Isn't this worth saving?



SENT ON TRIAL

Anywhere We Pay Freight
No Money in Advance

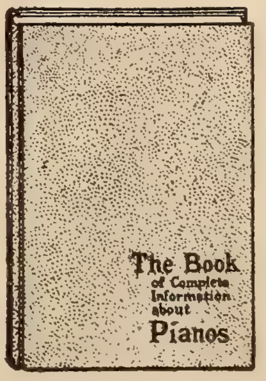
We will place a Wing Piano in any home in the United States on trial, without asking for any advance payment or deposit. We pay the freight and all other charges in advance. There is nothing to be paid either before the piano is sent or when it is received. If the piano is not satisfactory after 20 days' trial in your home, we take it back entirely at our expense. You pay us nothing, and are under no more obligation to keep the piano than if you were examining it at our factory. There can be absolutely no risk or expense to you.

Do not imagine that it is impossible for us to do as we say. Our system is so perfect that we can without any trouble deliver a piano in the smallest town in any part of the United States just as easily as we can in New York City, and with absolutely no trouble or annoyance to you, and without anything being paid in advance or on arrival either for freight or any other expense. We take old pianos and organs in exchange. A guarantee for 12 years against any defect in tone, action, workmanship or material is given with every Wing Piano.

Small, Easy Monthly Payments

In 37 years over 40,000 Wing Pianos have been manufactured and sold. They are recommended by seven governors of States, by musical colleges and schools, by prominent orchestra leaders, music teachers and musicians. Thousands of these pianos are in your own State, some of them undoubtedly in your very neighborhood. Our catalogue contains names and addresses.

Mandolin, Guitar, Harp, Zither, Banjo—The tones of any or all of these instruments may be reproduced perfectly by any ordinary player on the piano by means of our Instrumental Attachment. This improvement is patented by us and cannot be had in any other piano. WING ORGANS are made with the same care and sold in the same way as Wing Pianos. Separate organ catalogue sent on request.



You Need This Book

If You Intend to Buy a Piano—No Matter What Make

A book—not a catalogue—that gives you all the information possessed by experts. It tells about the different materials used in the different parts of a piano; the way the different parts are put together, what causes pianos to get out of order and in fact is a complete encyclopedia. It makes the selection of a piano easy. If read carefully, it will make you a judge of tone, action, workmanship and finish. It tells you how to test a piano and how to tell good from bad. It is absolutely the only book of its kind ever published. It contains 156 large pages and hundreds of illustrations, all devoted to piano construction. Its name is "The Book of Complete Information About Pianos." We send it free to anyone wishing to buy a piano. All you have to do is to send us your name and address.

Send a Postal To-day while you think of it, just giving your name and address or send us the attached coupon and the valuable book of information, also full particulars about the WING PIANO, with prices, terms of payment, etc., will be sent to you promptly by mail.

WING & SON, 351-398 W. 13th St, New York
1868—37th Year—1905

Cut or tear out this coupon and mail to us, after writing your name and address at bottom. We will promptly mail book and other information.

WING & SON
351-398 W. 13th St., New York

Send to the name and address written below, the Book of Complete Information about Pianos, also prices and terms of payment on Wing Pianos.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

The Advance Society.

I am writing this the day after Easter Sunday. Our Plattsburg Sunday-school raised $60 for the orphan homes and old people's homes. Did you do as well? Or did you take out your religion in making or listening to speeches, and in wishing you were better off, so you could give something? It isn't more money that people need, to enable them to give something to orphans and the helpless sick. Ever notice that the poorest people manage to go to the circus? Why is that? Because their hearts are just set on going, and therefore they go. I'm proud of Plattsburg for once; and it's not often I get to say so. That reminds me of our orphan Charlie. Here's a note from him: "I guess you think I've forgotten you. I've been sick in bed, but I am all right now. I hope you all are well. I read the book the Advance Society sent me for a Christmas present. I began it one day at dinner and finished it the next day. I think it a nice story. I am in school. I can see the wagons and hear the cars every time I want to. I would like to be where I could go across a street without having to 'watch out' for a wagon. I have a little printing stamp that I can print my name with." Not long ago came a letter from a lady, inviting Charlie to spend the summer on her farm. The lady is Mrs. Bessie Tracy Ryman, who lives nine miles from Liberty, Mo. She is not such a very old, old lady, for she went to school to me (I'm not saying how much she learned) and she is younger than I, and I haven't gray whiskers yet. She has a little boy named Tracy, and Charlie could play with him, and use her piano and be a farmer. I was anxious to get him the outing so I wrote at once to the orphan home at St. Louis to find out if they'll let him go there for the summer, and stop here on his way home to visit me—I don't live very far from Mrs. Ryman's farm — perhaps I should say Mr. Ryman's farm. Mrs. Hansbrough writes that he may come, and I know you will all be glad. The Av. S. will pay his railroad expenses. Of course we can take that out of the orphan fund we have raised, but I'd like very much to keep that little toward his future education. Don't you think some of you could send a mite toward these vacation expenses? When you remember how Charlie has to live in that brick house in the heart of St. Louis, with a hundred other children, not one kin to him, yet keeps as cheerful with his one leg as if he had twice as many, you will not consider this summer on the farm a luxury for our orphan, but a blessing. Mrs. Hansbrough writes that they still have $11 for Charlie's clothes, which the Av. S. sent some time ago. Speaking of sending money—I must tell you that, since I last wrote, I have sent Drusie Malott $10.85, local currency, which makes in all $43.90 the Av. S. has furnished her in her Chinese missionary field. Here is a letter from her:

"Tai Ming-fu, North China: My heart is full of praise, for God is working wonderfully in our midst. Almost eight months have passed since I saw my home, but 'my heart is not turned back'! I should describe this country in one word—ashes. The ground reminds me of ashes, the air is filled with dust. The city walls and houses look like ashes. China's religion and civilization are in the last stages of decay, but praise God, a new China is about to rise from the ashy ruins! The country is filled with crows, fit emblems of the heathen darkness. The ground is dotted with graves—cone-shaped mounds of earth heaped up over the bodies which are but a few feet under ground. No one can realize the wretchedness and misery of the people, unless he has seen it. My heart bleeds to see the beggars, cold and in tatters, some even naked except for a straw mat drawn about them. One I saw eating the fruit peelings that had been thrown in the dust. It is pitiful to see the little children-beggars, anxious to give themselves away to get food. We have two dear little girls in our girls' school, and a boy in the mission, a humble beginning, but we believe God will do great things in this way. The hope of China is in the children. We can tell a Chinese 'dude' from a distance; he always carries a bird cage with a bird in it, instead of a cane. Sometimes the cage is fastened to a pole which he carries across his shoulder, gun fashion. The masses live in one-room houses. Most are built of dried mud bricks and mud plaster, and are surrounded by mud-brick walls. The wall around Tai Ming is several hundred years old. The cities all have four gates with a little house over each for the gate-keeper. When a popular official goes from one city to another, he leaves his old shoes over the gate by the gatehouse. Chinese money is very heavy. It takes 1,000 'cash' to make about 30 cents. These 'cash' are strung on twine, and one string makes a 'taio,' that is, about 30 cents. There are very few horses here, but many mules. While crossing the country we often saw long lines of camels. I had often heard of people coming long distances to hear 'the Jesus doctrine,' but I never understood, until my own eyes saw a band of 26 villagers who had come 20 miles through the cold (60 'li'). They spread out their mats on the chapel dirt floor at night, sleeping there in order to remain all day Sunday. They sometimes bring a cart and want a missionary to go back with them, but the request must be refused because none can be spared. Oh, pray the Lord to speedily send more laborers!"

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

Agents Wanted

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

For Over 60 Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.

An Old and Well-tried Remedy

NORTHFIELD HYMNAL

By Geo. C. Stebbins.

30c. a copy, postpaid. $25 per 100.

Returnable Sample free to Pastors, etc.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., Chicago-New York

We manufacture CHURCH and SCHOOL Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.

I. E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.

Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

25 CTS 25 CTS

Speaking of China suggests Japan. Mrs. Stevens, of Akita, writes: "Our boy Henry has kept the Av. S. rules faithfully, but I was too busy—or thought I was—to help him prepare his reports. He now does all the reading himself and enjoys it. Christmas week a guest said, 'Henry, get your mother to excuse you from your lessons, and we will take a walk.' 'Oh,' said Henry, 'I don't think she'll do it, for the Board doesn't allow me to skip one day.' (By Board, he means the Av. S. Henry is our youngest member; his picture is on my parlor table. I have just received Bertha Beesley's photo, and her 26th report. She is attending the Normal school at Warrensburg, Mo., and, I suppose is preparing to be very smart, indeed!) Donnie Swift, Billings, Mo.: "I like 'A Week With the Woodneys' all right so far, but like 'Pete' best of all your stories. My brother kept the Av. S. rules nine weeks, then forgot one. I send 25 cents for our missionary, Drusie Malott." M. J. O'Dell, Lebanon, Mo.: "This money order for $1.25 is my penny thank offering, to be used for our missionary. I must tell you that 'Adnah' was among several pleasant Christmas surprises on the tree for me." Kate E. Sammert, McKirk, Mo.: "Carl and Robert send 25 cents each for Charlie, and Alice and Louisa send 25 cents each for Drusie. I would like to join the Av. S. and advance with it." Hazel M. Beattie, Dover, Mo.: "I think Drusie so brave to leave home and loved ones to be a missionary. Please accept this dollar for her. I am Florence Belle's sister. I do wish you would have the 'Green Witch' printed in book form; how I enjoyed it!" (And Jean Chambers, of Richwood, Ky., says she'd never have read it if she'd known how it was going to turn out! But then, she lives in Kentucky!) Mrs. E. P. Walker, Cedar Keys, Fla.: "Though not a member of the Av. S., I am interested in its orphan and missionary work. I inclose a dollar to be equally divided between Charlie and Drusie, and 75 cents from a Methodist friend for Drusie. I saw Brother Snively at the Florida state convention, and he told me about Charlie and I have told my Junior band about him." Mrs. W. A. Mason, Nevada, Mo.: "I did not see my 5th report in the Christian-Evangelist. I was afraid you didn't receive it." (Yes, I did, and the silver coin which always come with every report you send.) "I enjoy our missionary's letters. She is a brave, good girl to undertake what she has, and the Lord has certainly been with her. You will find inclosed my little offering. May the Lord bless each member of the Av. S. and may our missionary and our own little orphans prove great blessings to the society." A Friend, Jacksonville, Ill.: "I inclose a dollar for Drusie with the prayer that a kind Father will spare her life and health that she may be the means of bringing many to him, and that the work of the Av. S. may be blessed." Mrs. Dan Dick, Fairbury, Neb.: "I send 75 cents for Charlie, 75 for Drusie, and kind wishes to all the Av. S." Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Junger, Soldier, Ia.: "We inclose $5 for our missionary, Drusie Malott; also 50 cents for Charlie. Wish we could say we have kept all the Av. S. rules, but sickness interfered. Hope we will do better hereafter." Lucile Jones, Bolivar, Mo.: "I am going to school; when it is out I will visit my grandma. I am in the 7th grade—11 years old. I like 'A Week With the Woodneys.'" Beulah Shortridge, Glenwood, Ind.: "I send a new name—Maria Lindale. Why not have a society flower as well as colors? I have worked so hard getting my report copied that my head is about to burst." (Mrs. D., Hannibal, Mo., sends 50 cents for Charlie, and a dollar for Drusie. I met Emma Simpson Bland the other day and she gave me a quarter for our missionary. From Platte City comes 50 cents. From a grandmother, living near Plattsburg, comes $3.) Alma Shivell, Moberly, Mo.: "This $2 is sent by the King's Daughters of the Moberly Central Christian. Accept it with their best wishes."

Eva Coors, Russellville, Ark.: "I am a little girl, 11 years old, in class A of the 5th grade. I want to give something for Drusie and inclose a quarter. I live with my grandma; she likes to read about Drusie and Charlie, and I like to hear her. She incloses a dollar for them. I belong to the church." Helen Ross, Independence, Mo.: "You have not heard from me for some time, but I am going to begin again and not leave off any more. My friend, Katherine Mize, aged 12, wishes to join the Av. S. Inclosed find an offering for our missionary and orphan. I think this the best part of our work." Eleanor Wilkes, California, Mo.: "I would like to join the Av. S. It is just what I need to make me regular. My brother was in Plattsburg last summer, and he said he would like for me to know you. I cannot know you any way but this, but I think it a very good way." Dorothy Brown, Francesville, Ind.: "I have kept the rules 12 weeks. I am 8, in the 4th grade. I go to school a mile and a half. I take reading, arithmetic, grammar, geography, spelling. There are 5 in my class." Mrs. F. A. Potts, Chattanooga, Tenn.: "I am so glad the Av. S. has taken up missionary work. I inclose $2 for Drusie Malott." Mrs. Jennie Shryock, Moberly, Mo.: "Bless the dear girl who has started out as a missionary, trusting in God for support. He will reward her faith and answer her prayers. I inclose a dollar. I am a poor woman and an invalid, and send this as a Thanksgiving offering, feeling I could not spend it in a better way." Mrs. Annie E. Penn, Wellsville, Mo.: "We inclose $1 for the orphan fund. Melvin and I are much interested in Charlie. We earnestly pray that he may grow to be a man of power in his name. Melvin is 9, and I am his mamma." NEW HONOR LIST: Beulah Shortridge (5th quarter); Mrs. F. A. Potts (15th); Lucile Jones; Jean Chambers (11th); Myrtle M. Brown, Medaryville, Ind.; M. J. O'Dell (9th); Mrs. W. A. Mason (5th and 6th); Grace Everest, Oklahoma, Okla.; Mabel G. Damarell, Walnut, Kan. (9th); Donnie Swift (3rd); Henry Asbury Stevens, Akita, Japan (2nd); Olive Leavitt, Frankfort, S. Dak. (8th); Bertha Beesley, Warrensburg, Mo., formerly Moselle, Mo. (26th).

Plattsburg, Mo.

If you purchase a
PIANO OR ORGAN
with the name
ESTEY
upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.
THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

POPULAR HYMNS No. 2
By C. C. CLINE
Now used by
Thousands of Churches Everywhere
in the land.
The Popular Song Book
with the People.
PRICES:
SINGLE COPIES, POSTPAID.
Limp cloth, - 25 cents Boards, - 25 cents
Cloth, - 30 cents
PER DOZEN, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $2.00 Boards, - - $2.50
Cloth, - $3.00
PER HUNDRED, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $15.00 Boards, - $20.00
Cloth, - $25.00
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
CENTRAL VALLEY ROUTE
WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Every Large City in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory is Located on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.
This is a reason why you should travel and ship your freight via "The Katy" to Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Waco, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Shawnee, South McAlester and Muskogee.
THE MK and T
MISSOURI KANSAS & TEXAS RAILWAY
Particulars about rates, time of trains, business chances in the Southwest or any other information you want will be cheerfully furnished on request.
GEORGE MORTON W. B. GROSECLOSE
General Passenger and Ticket Agent General Freight Agent
ST. LOUIS, MO

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison, - - - - President
W. W. Dowling, - - - Vice-President
W. D. Cree, - - - Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow, - - Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann, - - General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Have you gotten that Cradle Roll? We have all the supplies at prices that will surprise you; for we allow no one to undersell us.

⁂

Do not forget that our new 128 page catalogue will give you a list of our new reward cards and tickets. It is one of the largest stocks we have ever carried.

⁂

We have an excellent "Song Leaflet" for Children's Day exercises at 30 cents per dozen, with which you can use any recitations desired.

⁂

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or Scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

⁂

The advance orders for J. H. Garrison's new book on the Holy Spirit are coming in quite freely and will be given the preference in sending out this excellent work Price $1.00.

⁂

Nearly 2,000 song books have gone out this week, and we will gladly send samples to any congregation or school wishing to introduce a new book, a good book and a cheap book. Write us.

REUBEN:
HIS BOOK
297 Pages of Humor and Philosophy
In attractive and substantial cloth binding
BY
Morton H. Pemberton

"Reub reminds one a little bit of the late lamented Ben King, who was indeed a lovely soul; but Reub's is rather a broader kind of laugh-making product. . . . .

"His book is already heading the list of 'best sellers' and deserves to go. 'It is good.'"
—St. Louis Republic.

A new book but one that is springing rapidly into popularity, because of its telling wit and humor and its freedom from coarseness.

Everybody Will Enjoy It
All Will Be Benefited By It

PRICE $1.00, POSTPAID.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

DR PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

Greatest in leavening strength, a spoonful raises more dough, or goes further.

Working uniformly and perfectly, it makes the bread and cake always light and beautiful, and there is never caused a waste of good flour, sugar, butter and eggs.

With finer food and a saving of money comes the saving of the health of the family, and that is the greatest economy of all.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
CHICAGO.

NOTE.—Many mixtures made in imitation of baking powders are upon the market. They are sold cheap, but are dear at any price, because they contain alum, a corrosive poison.

E. L. Powell's book of addresses is soon to come from the press and will be eagerly sought by the brotherhood, as his reputation for oratory and Bible doctrine is known far and wide. Price, $1.00 postpaid.

⁂

By the first of next week, we hope to have our 128 page catalogue from the bindery, filled with the books and supplies you may need to qualify yourself or equip church and school for your work. Command us!

⁂

We keep a good supply of the contest buttons and cards, though the demand lately has surprised us. Buttons for your school or society, one cent each, any quantity. Before summer is fine time for such work.

⁂

All our schools should keep Children's Day, and if for any reason you wish an exercise, we have, among others, "Beautiful Land of the Free," at five cents each, or fifty cents per dozen, words and music. It is fine.

⁂

"Gloria in Excelsis" is well on the way and as soon as ready, sample pages, prices, bindings and so forth will be sent you. The determination of our Company is that this book shall be the best in church hymnal make-up and appearance for years to come.

We have an excellent cantata for Children's Day, "The First Children's Day," and the few copies in stock will be sent out at 35 cents each, or $3.00 per dozen, postpaid. This is one of W. L. Mason's best. No samples.

⁂

"The Christian's Use of the Tithe System" is a good pamphlet to introduce where you want a "revival" of faithfulness in meeting our obligations to the Lord, as many cheerfully testify after using them. They are mailed at three cents each, 25 cents per dozen, $1.50 per 100.

⁂

Possibly Alameda, California, has the largest Home Department in the brotherhood, though Pastor P. C. Macfarlane and Superintendent E. G. Butler are not working to that end, but for the good results that come. We carry a full and complete stock of everything in that line. Samples sent.

⁂

The brethren at Norfolk, Virginia, and other places are preparing for their protracted meeting right by ordering "History and Doctrine of the Disciples," byF. D. Power, for general and generous distribution. While we are selling them very low, we will make a special rate for 500 or more for such good use. They are splendid in communities where we are not known.

THE CHRISTIAN-
EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 19. May 11, 1905. $1.50 A Year

A VISION

WHILE standing on a lofty height at early morn,
A vision of the City's life before me passed.
Three temples rose in splendor from the streets,
A symbol each; of human thought and labor born.
A temple of religion one, surmounted by the cross.
Another spake of justice 'twixt man and brother man.
A third for learning stood, our Country's flag aloft.
These, products all of highest art and skill of hand
And lowly toil, the forces wield that make for gain or loss.

Again I saw the marts of commerce and of trade.
Here gathered men of wealth their shining hoards to count,
To plan and scheme to multiply their growing gains;
Their homes enriched by art, their boards with dainties weighted.
There, a toiling army from quarry, shop and mine;
With faces grimed and calloused hands and shoulders bent;
Ill fed, ill clothed, ill housed, their homes abodes of want;
With minds inflamed, and hearts with fiery vengeance filled,
They give their hands to force to gain their rights divine.

I saw that men most wise to solve the problem sought
The strife to end 'twixt those who toil and those who pay.
One spake and said: "Through war the breach shall wider grow.
'Tis not by might of arms, by laws with mammon bought;
'Tis not by lockouts, strikes, nor terms with grudging drawn,
Shall peace and plenty bide, good will and progress come.
In yonder cross and flag, in temple, court, and school,
Are seen the forces strong that unify mankind;
Service and brotherhood, like rights for brain and brawn."

Bloomington, Indiana. THOMAS J. CLARK.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER,
W. DURBAN,
} Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 595

Editorial:
- Problems Solved and Unsolved 597
- Get Right With God First 597
- Questions and Answers 598
- Notes and Comments 598
- Editor's Easy Chair 599

Contributed Articles:
- Baptists and Disciples. D. G. Porter. 600
- A New View of the Apocalypse. W. Durban 601
- Our Congregationalism. W. A. Parker 602
- As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 603
- Was Method in His Mind? J. H. Hardin 604

Our Budget 605
News From Many Fields 609
Evangelistic 614
Midweek Prayer-Meeting 616
Christian Endeavor 616
Sunday-School 617
People's Forum 618
Marriages, Obituaries 618
Family Circle 619
With the Children 622

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO,
NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

A Superb New Church Hymnal

A CREDIT — TO — THE CHURCH

More Than 600 Pages
—CONTAINING—
Orders of Service, Opening Sentences, Invocations, Responsive Readings and
Over 800 Standard Hymns, Spiritual Songs and Anthems.
One Inch Thick, Six and One-Fourth Inches Wide and Eight and Three-Fourths Inches Long.
A Variety of Bindings.
Also an Abridged Edition, about one-half size.
Strictly First Class in Both Music and Workmanship.

AN UPLIFT — TO — THE SERVICES

Gloria in Excelsis

THE VERY BEST — OF SACRED MUSIC

EDITED BY
20th CENTURY COMMITTEE.

F. D. Power
S. M. Cooper
B. A. Jenkins
B. J. Radford
W. F. Richardson
S. T. Willis
A. B. Philputt
A. C. Smither
J. H. Garrison
T. E. Cramblett
C. C. Rowlison
D. R. Dungan
H. O. Breeden
A. W. Conner
E. B. Wakefield
O. W. Stewart
B. B. Tyler
W. J. Russell
E. V. Zollars
A. M. Harvuot
J. V. Coombs
W. E. M. Hackleman

Sample Pages & Prices of the Hymnal sent upon request

A CHOICE COLLECTION — OF SPIRITUAL SONGS

PUBLISHED BY
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."
Vol. XLII. May 11, 1905 No. 19

Current Events.

The Railroad Congress. The International Railroad Congress is in session at Washington, D. C., and is attended by prominent railroad men from all parts of the world. When one reflects that in this country one person in every eight, on an average, is supported by wages or salary paid by the railroads, and that this proportion is fairly carried out in the leading countries of Europe, it is evident that the Railroad Congress represents a very large direct constituency, not to mention the even more important fact that the railroad is really a public institution upon which the welfare of all of us depends in a large measure. Paul Morton, Secretary of the Navy—who has the reputation of knowing quite as much about railroads as he knows about naval affairs, and perhaps more—delivered an address to the congress in which he asserted that the railroads of the United States offered the lowest freight rates in the world, that our rates are on an average probably 40 per cent lower than those on European railroads, and that in spite of the fact that American railroad men are the highest paid railway employes in the world—and, he might have added, though he did not, in spite of the fact that American railroads so often have to pay higher prices for American steel rails than European roads have to pay for the same American rails. In general, it is perfectly true to say that American freight rates are at a reasonably low average level. It is a mere truism in economics, but an important fact to remember, to say that the need is not for a lower average rate, but for an equalization of rates, so that competing shippers will be able to compete on a fair basis.

❁

Collecting Evidence. In a certain city which has an active Law Enforcement League, the attorney for that league recently employed two men to secure evidence against law-breaking liquor-sellers. They secured it by going into a saloon and buying liquor on Sunday. When this evidence was presented to the Board of Commissioners as ground for the revocation of the license, the commissioners decided in favor of the saloon-keeper, and denounced the attorney's method of securing evidence. It is surprising how sensitive some people become about a matter of this sort. They are extremely anxious that no unfair advantage be taken of the poor defenseless saloon-keeper. It seems to them perfidious treachery for a reputable citizen who is working for the enforcement of law to disguise himself as a genuine boozer and, by buying liquor on Sunday, obtain indubitable evidence that liquor is being sold on Sunday. They speak of the saloon-keeper who has been caught in this trap as one might of an innocent girl who had been betrayed by some smooth-tongued rascal. A saloonist stands behind his bar all day Sunday, dispensing beverages to all comers. The agent of the league buys one for evidence, and they say he has "tempted the saloon-keeper to break the law." All of which is pure nonsense. The relation between good citizens and the saloon is one of war. War demands strategy. Some movements can be made in the open, and some must be made under cover. Obtaining evidence of illegal sales is a procedure which demands subtlety. To go at it with that noisy frankness which the commissioners appear to admire is like going after birds with a brass band. The injunction to the righteous to be "wise as serpents," must seem an awful scandal to these commissioners and to the other supersensitive souls who think that the saloons ought to be permitted to fight from ambush while their enemies must always stay in the open.

❁

Philadelphia's Gas Steal. A daylight robbery of extraordinary proportions is in progress in Philadelphia. It is impossible to tell yet whether the cracksmen will get away with the stuff. The gas company, which now operates the municipal gas plant under a lease which guarantees a falling scale of prices for gas and a large annual payment by the company to the city, proposes to substitute a new lease for the old one. By the terms of the new lease the company would pay the city a lump sum of $25,000,000 in lieu of the annual rental, would have possession of the plant for eighty years with the privilege of maintaining the dollar rate for gas. The city council was apparently prepared to acquiesce in the new scheme, and it was arranged that the mayor should be out of town where remonstrances could not reach him and that the bill should be sent to him for his signature. But the storm of protest was overwhelming. It was positively dangerous. The whole city saw in the proposition an exhibition of disregard for the people's good which, even in Philadelphia, was remarkable for its boldness and effrontery. The council made a weak excuse that the city needed the $25,000,000 at once. The Philadelphia North American has offered to subscribe $5,000,000 toward that amount if a syndicate of respectable interests can be formed to take over the gas plant on terms as favorable to the city as those now in force. This offer and the tremendous uproar raised by a populace indignant at the proposed iniquity have compelled the council to postpone action for a time. Delay means greater publicity, and publicity will make it increasingly difficult to get the legislation desired by the company.

❁

A Threat of Violence. The farther the Chicago strike goes, the less it commends itself to the sympathy of good citizens. The violence which has accompanied it, seems not to be an incidental and unavoidable accident due to the acts of irresponsible parties, but an actual part of the strikers' plan of campaign, if the words of President Shea, of the Teamsters' Union, are to be taken at their face value. In an interview between President Shea and Levy Meyer, attorney for the Employers' Association, a colloquy took place which is reported as follows:

> Attorney Meyer asked President Shea on what terms he would call off the strike. Shea replied: "We will call the strike off on condition that the employers discharge all the non-union men they have imported and take the old men back in their places." "The employers can not accede to that demand," replied attorney Meyer. "Why, you have been importing negroes by the hundreds," said Shea. "Do you mean to say that you refuse to discharge negroes and reinstate white men?" "So long as a teamster does his work he will not be discharged, be he black or white," replied the lawyer. "That is an outrageous stand," said President Shea. "You have brought those negroes in here to fight us, and we answer that we have a right to attack them wherever found." "Then do so at your peril," retorted Meyer.

Observe that the President of the Teamsters' Union claims the right to attack the non-union men who have taken the strikers' places' By "attack" he evidently means physical violence. He justifies this on the ground that these men have been brought in to "fight" the union. But the "fight" in this case means simply taking a vacant job and working at it. Mr. Shea's words mean, in substance, that his men claim the God-given right to throw bricks at any person who accepts a job which one of them has vacated to go on strike. The wickedness of this proposal is equaled only by its folly. The general public still cherishes the notion that this is, or ought to be, a free country. They do not like "capitalistic tyranny under the forms of law," and neither have they any use for labor union tyranny without even the forms of law. The unions will have to get their allies just as other organizations in this country do—by persuading people that they deserve support and are worth joining. If they undertake to gain support by compelling people either to join their organization or to keep out of their way under penalty of being sand-bagged or otherwise assaulted, they have gotten down to the level of the mere mob. That cannot be. There is no "right of attack" in this country, especially upon innocent parties. The labor leaders have always heretofore insisted that the disorders in connection with strikes were not acts of the union and were deeply regretted by it. It is to be hoped that Mr. Shea's words represent merely a temporary exasperation and not a settled policy of his union or others, for in the latter case the organization would have to be destroyed like any other law-breaking guild.

⁂

A "Presbyterian Cathedral." The Presbyterian General Assembly, which will meet at Winona, Ind., May 18, will be asked to approve and support a plan to build in Washington, D. C., an edifice which, by an obvious adaptation of terms, is called a Presbyterian cathedral. The plan gains in interest from the fact that Justice Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court, is an ardent advocate of it, and has expressed his willingness to retire from the bench (he is now 72) and devote his remaining years to carrying out the cathedral project. He believes, as do many others, that it would be worth while to have a great monumental structure in the nation's capital, something on the scale of the European cathedrals, to stand as a reminder of the greatness of the Presbyterian church. The objection to such a plan is upon the tip of all our Protestant tongues. It has been uttered thousands of times against Bishop Potter's cathedral of St. John the Divine. We have no money to waste on mere display. God is glorified by serving his children and not by squandering money upon great useless buildings in his name. "Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence and given to the poor?" And this objection has its true weight. But let us go a little slowly in our condemnation of useless expenditures until we see whether they really are useless. We want efficiency and real results when we spend our money, but there are some results which cannot be measured by our little foot-rules to-day or to-morrow. It is possible that such a building, standing for centuries, may give to millions of people an increased sense of the dignity and value of religion. We like to see our government erecting buildings which are not only useful as places for doing federal business, but impressive monuments to the dignity and majesty of the national government. Such buildings cost money but—quite apart from the foolish pride which sometimes leads to their over-elaboration—most of us think that it is money well spent and that, in the long run, the unseen and unmeasured results of the influence of such buildings justify the expenditure. It may be so with cathedrals, including the Presbyterian cathedral, or with our many handsome churches which fall short of the magnitude of cathedrals yet quite exceed the limits of immediate utility as meeting houses. Besides, the money that is put into such things is usually money that would not be given to foreign missions or for the help of weak churches.

⁂

Joe Jefferson. A great many thousand very excellent people experienced a sense of personal loss when it was announced that Joseph Jefferson, the veteran actor, was dead. Judging from the almost universal chorus of praise which was given to him during his life, his must have been a personality of unusual charm and of a wholesome quality not ordinarily found upon the stage. We are not going to debate the familiar question as to whether the good done by such a man on the stage through the uplifting influence of his own personality is or is not counterbalanced by the harm done through the fictitious respectability and increased popularity which he confers upon an institution that is, on the whole, demoralizing and deleterious. However that may be, it certainly seems to us that a good deal of nonsense has been talked on the subject. The following extract from a sermon by Rabbi Hirsch is worth reading. His theme was, "Laughter and Those Who Make Us Laugh."

> The man who does not laugh is despicable, and it is the jealous, deceitful hypocrite who does not laugh. Those who make us laugh fully serve their purpose in life and the world is better by far for their being. The stage is elevating. For three generations a great Rip Van Winkle made us laugh. He lifted us from cares and made us see things in a better light. He is passed away and his will be the kingdom of heaven. He was in truth a consecrated priest of the Almighty God; his stage was his pulpit and when he occupied it the theater was the temple.
>
> The stage presents to us life from all its aspects and, therefore, its pictorial eloquence opens our eyes to deeper realities. The true stage will never recognize the vile—the pure who enter the theater shall leave it as pure as they were when they entered. Life is not all in Sunday-school.

What the eloquent rabbi says about the value of laughter is all true enough. We are with him most heartily on that point, though we hasten to add that we file an exception if the reference to the Sunday-school is meant to indicate that that institution stands for what is dull, formal and morose in religion. But an actor as "a consecrated priest of Almighty God"—isn't that a trifle strong, even when applied to the loved Jefferson? Granted that he rendered a real (and well paid) service to the tired man who needed relaxation and the sad man who needed to be cheered up, it seems an abuse of language, perhaps growing partly out of a delight in brilliant paradox, to call the impersonator of Rip Van Winkle a "consecrated priest of Almighty God."

⁂

The Teamsters' Strike. The Chicago teamsters and their allies have given us a week of constant rioting and the unpleasant spectacle of a great city whose officials were either unable to preserve peace and protect innocent workmen or else unwilling to make the effort. Mayor Dunne has not exhibited himself in the most admirable light. Of course we cannot say what mental anguish he has suffered from the sight of constant rioting and violence in the streets of his city, but his actions have not indicated that he took the matter at all seriously. He has rather appeared willing that the strikers and the strike-breakers should fight it out without interference. The strikers appear to be fairly convinced that no further good can come to them from the continuance of the struggle at the present time. They have asked Governor Deneen to appoint two other men, one representing each side of the controversy, to act with him as arbitrators, and they have promised to abide by the decision of such a board.

⁂

Britain and France. There was a portentous cablegram in some of Monday's papers, to the effect that French officials at Saigon had assisted the Russian fleet, and had refused to transmit a correspondent's telegram announcing this violation of the international laws of neutrality. We do not for a moment believe that the government at Paris approves the action of the authorities at Saigon, any more than we believe that Great Britain wants to enter upon a war with France. But this may, by reason of the Anglo-Japanese compact, be the result. Much depends upon the Japanese. If they are wise and cool-headed, the conflict may still remain between them and Russia. It would be deplorable for France and Great Britain to get into the fight, and that would not be the end of it.

Problems Solved and Unsolved.

As a religious movement, striking out in a new path, under new conditions, we have had several important problems to meet and solve. The fact that some of these have been satisfactorily solved encourages us to believe that others will receive a wise solution.

One of the first problems which confronted our fathers was the harmonization of the two great principles of liberty and union. This reformation had its origin in an assertion of Christian liberty, or independence from all the creeds and formularies of doctrine which men of previous generations had made as bonds of union and fellowship. But the leaders in this reform movement believed in unity no less than in liberty. How could these two principles be conserved? The solution, as our readers know, was to restore the original creed of Christianity, viz., the Christhood and divinity of Jesus of Nazareth, and to make the acceptance of Christ, through faith, the basis of unity, with full liberty of opinion in all matters of doctrine and polity not affecting Christian character. Time has vindicated the wisdom and practicability of this solution. It is commending itself more and more to thoughtful men in all religious bodies. It has led to a most important distinction between theology and religion; between faith and opinion; between trust in the personal Christ, leading to the purification of the heart and life, and the acceptance of certain theories or theological views, which at best serve only to clarify the intellect.

It was one thing, however, to apply this principle of combining liberty and unity, in the sphere of local church membership, and quite another thing to apply it in the wider sphere of our co-operation for common ends. Hence there arose another problem: Where shall we draw the line between an ecclesiasticism which assumes the right to legislate for the local churches, and to settle matters of doctrine and discipline, and such necessary unification of our churches as will make them efficient in promulgating the gospel and in extending a knowledge of the principles for which they stand? The solution of this problem was that our churches may and should co-operate through any organization which they may devise which violates no New Testament principle, for the furtherance of their common ends. They may hold district, state, and national conventions, but these shall be free, voluntary assemblies, having no legislative authority nor disciplinary power. Their sole purpose will be to devise ways and means of spreading the gospel at home and abroad and, as auxiliary to this great end, to promote our educational and benevolent interests. The actions of such conventions shall not be mandatory but simply advisory. The great body of our people have accepted this solution as wise, avoiding religious despotism on the one hand, and religious anarchy on the other, and securing in the main the co-operation of the churches in missionary, educational and philanthropic enterprises.

Another one of the problems which may be said to be in the process of solution and which has reached such solution in the minds of many, is that which relates to the proper blending of the spiritual and the formal, the internal and the external, the vital and the instrumental, in our teaching, work and worship. It is clear enough that while we are in the body Christianity cannot dispense with the outward or formal in religion. While Christianity is pre-eminently a spiritual religion as compared with Judaism, or with any other religion, it has embodied itself in certain forms and institutions, which have their legitimate use, and are practically indispensable to its propagation and triumph in the world. There is the organization of the local church, with certain members especially appointed to look after its spiritual and material interests. And then there are the three monumental institutions, all of which derive their significance and value from their relation to Christ—baptism, the Lord's supper, and the Lord's day. These have been divinely appointed to meet certain needs in our human nature, and to make the church more efficient in its mission of spreading the truth and establishing the kingdom of God among men.

It is needless to point out how the idea of a church with its two ordinances—baptism and the Lord's supper—has been abused. The problem with us has been to steer clear of two extremes: the one exalting the church into a spiritual despotism, and the ordinances into essential channels of conveying regenerating grace to men; the other revolting from this extreme so far as to count church membership of little value, and to make the ordinances a mere matter of personal taste or preference, which one may comply with or disregard, at his pleasure, with no serious moral consequences.

In our effort to rescue the ordinances from the disrepute into which they had fallen, and to restore them to their New Testament use and meaning, we have been charged with exalting them unduly, and even with giving to baptism the regenerative power ascribed to it by Roman Catholicism and the old medieval theology. This of course has been unjust and untrue. It must be confessed, however, that in the effort to avoid the modern extreme in respect to these ordinances, some among us have come dangerously near to the older error of sacramentarianism. The tendency is now away from that extreme, and there are already some among us perhaps more in danger of under emphasis than of over emphasis. But we shall reach the true medium on this question. Our confidence that we shall reach a perfectly satisfactory solution and statement of this problem, grows out of the fact that we have given Christ his true place in the Christian system, as its center, and have seen, as no other people seem to have seen, that the church and its ordinances take their legitimate, but subordinate, place under him, to serve his ends and to accomplish his purposes in the world. This is the thread which will lead us, and all who follow it, out of the maze of contradictory theories and hurtful extremes into the clear light of New Testament teaching and practice.

Get Right With God First.

There is no question but that Christianity has a horizontal as well as a vertical dimension. It not only concerns itself with God, but with one's fellowmen. But it makes all the difference in the world which one of these relations is established first. This is just where a great many social reformers miss the mark. They seek to regulate the relations between man and man, without first of all getting the relations between man and God settled right. The first thing for any man to do is himself to get right with God. Then, and not till then, is he prepared to see his true relation to his fellowmen.

On this point the Christian Century in a recent editorial speaks very much to the point. It says:

> There is but one thing in this world worth speaking of for a man to do, and that is to get himself right with God. If a man is right with God he is right with everything and everybody. If he is wrong with God, he can not be right with anything. "Ah," said A. Simpson, the pastor of the most consecrated church in America, "when a man is right with God you have no trouble with him." "I tell you," he said to a friend, "it is a positive joy, a ceaseless delight, to be the pastor of a church where the people are right with God." Yes, brother minister, if a church member is in right relations to God, if he is living the self-surrendered, Spirit filled, God-dominated life, like a thing of beauty, he is a joy forever. You do not have to coddle him into doing his duty, do not have to run after him, or flatter his vanity, or galvanize him into a little temporary spiritual life by personal appeals, are happily under no necessity to coax, or squeeze, or tempt, or scold money out of him for missions, or for other departments of the Lord's work. If the people are right with God, they will pour out money like water if God's gospel is to be preached for the salvation of men and the glory of God. It is no use to try to set a man right on this or on that if he is wrong with God. It is like cutting dead leaves off with a penknife or a pair of scissors, and tying them on with a string before the sap begins to flow in the tree. Where the life current begins to run, the question of buds and leaves, flowers and fruit, is already settled.

Once this right relation with God is established one is able to see life in its true relations, and is prepared to reach out a helping hand to his fellowmen. He is equipped, too, with a motive for altruistic service which he could not otherwise possess. "Seek God first and then find your neighbor," is a very wise rule of procedure.

Questions and Answers.

1. What were the charismata or spiritual gifts of the New Testament church?

2. Does the New Testament teach that there cannot be a repetition of such a gift, or that such a gift is no longer found in the church? C. N. Stevenson.

Letete, St. George, N. B.

◆

1. This seems to have been a special form of spiritual power conferred upon certain members of the New Testament churches for the purpose of enabling them to edify the other members, until such time as the normal gifts of the church could be developed.

2. There is no evidence that such a peculiar gift exists in the church to-day, and the New Testament clearly intimates that such gifts were to cease with the infancy of the church. For a fuller discussion of the subject, see the editor's forthcoming volume on The Holy Spirit, chapter "Spiritual Gifts."

◆

How can you reconcile the doctrine of predestination as taught in the eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh chapters of Romans with 2 Pet. 3:9, Acts. 17:31, and with the commonly accepted teaching that every man is responsible for himself, pardon is extended to all men who will believe and that all men may believe? F.

The problem of reconciling the doctrine of foreordination and predestination with human free will and responsibility, is an old time theological puzzle. People of to-day are far less troubled about it, however, than they once were. It is safe to say that God has a purpose in history that he will accomplish, and that while the actions of nations and peoples may delay the accomplishment of his purpose, they cannot thwart it. It is equally true to say that man's election and salvation depend upon his free and voluntary co-operation with God in working out his salvation. The sovereignty of God over the affairs of this earth and over the ultimate course of history, on the one hand, and the freedom and responsibility of man, on the other, are truths clearly taught in God's word.

It will help us to harmonize the chapters referred to in Romans, with other passages of scripture emphasizing man's responsibility, to notice that Paul, in the chapters referred to, and particularly in the ninth, tenth and eleventh of Romans, is not speaking so much of the election unto salvation, as the election for special service. The father of a family undoubtedly has the right to select one of his children for one kind of service, and another for a different kind of service, according to his knowledge of their fitness for such service. God calls nations and individuals in the same way, and on the same principle. The Jewish nation was an elect nation, not necessarily unto salvation, as we learn in these very chapters that many of them were cast away because of their unbelief, but for a special service to mankind. Abraham, Moses, David, Saul of Tarsus, are instances of individual election for special service. The scriptures do not justify us in believing that any of these elections, even for service, were of an arbitrary character; much less do they permit us to hold that God elects some men unto salvation and others to condemnation, on purely arbitrary ground. These very chapters in Romans that are supposed to be the stronghold of unconditional election clearly teach that Israel was rejected because of their unbelief, and that a remnant was saved because of their faith, and that those cast off would again be received on their repentance, while those who were received might be rejected if they continued not in faith and obedience.

If we bear these facts in mind and remember that it is characteristic of Paul, when he is stating one phase of truth, to state it very strongly, as if it were the only side, and that he has done this for both the sovereignty of God and the freedom and responsibility of man, the seeming difficulties in the way of harmonizing these two truths will largely vanish.

Notes and Comments.

One of our extreme reactionary journals has offered "a reward of fifteen cents for chapter and verse authorizing" a number of things which he specifies, among which are "children's day"; "rally services"; "the name Christian church"; "organs"; "hired evangelist," etc. The Herald and Presbyter suggests very pertinently "that the brother give chapter and verse authorizing the offering of a reward of fifteen cents for scripture proof of any of these propositions." The point is well taken, but the brother referred to no doubt regards himself as an exception to the law he has laid down. Why should a law-giver be subject to his own laws? The Herald and Presbyter has stumbled upon one of the literary curiosities of the day, in the way of a religious journal, and copies of it will probably be preserved in some museum of curiosities for the amusement of future generations!

◆

We have received a pamphlet announcing the great Inter-church Conference on Federation to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, November 15-20, 1905. The pamphlet states that "for the first time in the history of the Christian church in America, delegates representing communions whose aggregate membership is over 17,000,000 will meet together for mutual counsel with a view to federated action regarding matters of common interest." This great gathering will mark one of the important steps of Protestantism in America toward that unification of his followers for which our Lord prayed on the eve of his betrayal and crucifixion. We are glad to know that a large number of our ministers will be present in that meeting to lend their influence to every measure looking to a closer co-operation among the friends and lovers of our Lord Jesus Christ.

◆

The article entitled, "Baptists and Disciples," which appears elsewhere, derives its special interest for our readers from the fact that it gives a statement of the relation and difference of the two religious bodies from the point of view of an eastern Baptist. Referring to what Professor Porter says of baptism being a symbol, we have only this to add, that the question seems to be, what does it symbolize? It seems to us to symbolize two things, viz.: Christ's burial and resurrection, and the believer's own death to sin and his resurrection to newness of life. As to the baptismal formula, we think it is a very general custom among us to use the phrase, "In the name," or "by the authority of Jesus Christ, I baptize you into the name," etc. The first part indicates the authority for the act and the latter its transitional character. The time has come when both Baptists and Disciples must cease to "twist around several passages of scripture to support their theory," and be willing to let the inspired writers of the New Testament speak for themselves, and give their words their plain, natural signification.

◆

The Religious Herald, of Richmond, Va., referring to the address of Bro. J. J. Haley before the Baptist ministers' conference of that city, to which reference was made in our last issue, has the following statement:

> Rev. J. J. Haley, D. D., pastor of the Seventh street Christian church of Richmond, by request of the Baptist ministers' conference of Richmond, addressed them on Monday, setting out the views of scripture doctrine currently held by his people, and comparing them with the beliefs of Baptists. He was so frank and fraternal, so clear and strong, so judicious and discriminating, that the brethren heard him with delight which they were not slow to express. It was evident to all that the two denominations are not nearly so widely or deeply separated as is generally supposed. The result of the discussion will be, on the part of all who either participated in it or listened to it, an increase of mutual respect and the deepening of fellowship between the two denominations in this section. Dr. Haley's statement of what Baptists stand for was full and fair, and would pass current among well instructed Baptists. His statement of his people's views was a practical reaffirmation of the Baptist position in almost every item.

Those of us who know Brother Haley are not surprised at the Herald's characterization of his address. It takes a man of larger mould than the average to give a "full and fair" statement of the position of another religious body than that to which he belongs. Some people are intellectually incapable of doing that, and others are morally incapable. Let these fraternal conferences go on in every section of the country, particularly in the south and west, to the end that there may be "an increase of mutual respect, and the deepening of fellowship" between the two bodies.

Editor's Easy Chair.

The Easy Chair likes to find a hopeful side to every situation, no matter how dark and forbidding it may seem to be. This matter of strikes, with their accompanying disorder and violence, always reminds us that the millennium is not yet, and that the reign of the Golden Rule has not been introduced. And yet we may at least console ourselves that the situation is not so bad, by the length of infinity, as it would be if the servitude of laboring men under the tyrrany of grasping greed were so deep and hopeless that a strike for liberty and for better conditions would be utterly hopeless. We are grateful that the laboring men of this country have the liberty to strike when they feel that the situation demands it, even though this liberty is often abused. We are glad, too, that the wage-workers have the right to organize themselves into unions for self-protection against the aggression of organized capital, even though such unions may, and do sometimes, overstep the limits of right and justice.

◆

And yet we show you a more excellent way. A strike, after all, is an appeal from reason to force; from the higher to the lower. This is the deplorable thing about it. As one reads of the riots, the disorder and the bloodshed in the streets of Chicago, between the army of union wage-earners and the employers and their non-union employes, he can but deeply regret that here in the light of the twentieth century, and in the liberty of the freest and most enlightened country in the world, rational men cannot settle their misunderstandings by some rational method. The introduction of the Golden Rule on both sides would settle the trouble before sundown! Let each party put itself in the other's place and look at the points of difference from the other's point of view, and then apply the rule, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," and peace and mutual good-will would at once prevail. Our industry will not be Christianized until the practice of the Golden Rule has made strikes both unnecessary and impossible.

◆

The disturbing question arises at this point—Has the church become sufficiently Christianized itself to practice the Golden Rule? How many of the employers and employes on both sides of this industrial war are members of Christian churches? While we cannot answer this question, it is reasonably certain that a sufficient number hold membership in churches which claim Christ as Lord and Master, to control the situation, provided they held steadfastly to Christ's method of settling disputes between man and man. But the truth is, the church has been so much engaged in theological hair-splitting and fortifying its denominational boundaries, and in keeping its ecclesiastical machinery in order, that it has failed to make vital and practical the great cardinal principles laid down by Christ for the government of the conduct of men in their relations with each other. The probability is that a large majority of men connected with the great business corporations of the country and members of the church, do not believe in the practicability of Christ's teaching for our day and time. Hence our industrial wars!

◆

But here again let us look for the hopeful side. The church is more concerned to-day over these practical problems of life which have to do with the relations of men to each other, than ever before. It is investigating the conditions of labor and of capital, and how they may be brought into mutually helpful and fraternal relations as never before. It is seeking to come down out of the clouds, and to deal with the questions which have to do with the life of men here on earth, as it has not done since the first century, at least. The church is laying more emphasis upon the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and far less upon those speculative, theological dogmas which have too long divided the church. It is a more united church to-day than it has ever been since the great apostasy. All this fits it for being of service to men in their practical problems, and for being a leader in every movement that looks to the establishment of fraternal relations between man and man.

◆

The weather bureau has been missing it so often in its predictions of late that one of the officers of the government in this service has felt called upon to explain the causes of these failures. He says that forecasters have no difficulty in locating the storm, but that 90 per cent of the failures result from not taking into the calculation the pressure of the atmosphere in front, or on either side, of the storm. The storm, following the line of least resistance, is delayed in its progress or turns to the right or left, according to the density of the atmosphere. It occurs to us that this principle applies to social and religious movements as well as to storms. It is not enough to know how much truth and righteousness there is in any cause to know how rapidly it will succeed. We must also know the nature of the resistance with which it will meet. This is why Christianity succeeds better in some communities and in some countries than others. This is why our own movement grows more rapidly in this country than elsewhere. It is following the line of least resistance. The better the environment the more rapid its success. This fact ought to suggest some things to us in reference to the extension of the Reformation which we are pleading.

◆

Speaking of storms, the one which the weather bureau has been predicting for a few days has just arrived. Though belated, it does not seem to have lost any of its intensity. How majestically the dark green clouds moved up from the west and northwest toward the zenith, sending on their black couriers in advance as if to warn the people! And then the rain came down in torrents, until the asphalt pavement in the street became a river. Few things are more beautiful and sublime than a summer rainstorm. In the country the earth is soaked with the gracious downpour from the clouds, and all growing things are refreshed, while in the city the cleansing effect of such a rain as we have just had is of incalculable value. The walks and gutters are cleansed, the sewers are flushed by the sweeping torrent of the summer rain, and health conditions are vastly improved. And so we pardon the hail, the fierce wind, and the deafening thunder peals for the sake of the life-giving rain, every pearly drop of which is a contribution to the health and wealth of the country.

◆

How vastly important are the Sunday-school lessons we are now studying! Jesus is teaching his disciples in these closing days of his earthly ministry some of the profoundest truths of the kingdom of God. Take the lesson of last Lord's day—"The Vine and the Branches." It is designed to teach us the vital relationship which exists between Christ and his disciples. He is the true vine, and his disciples are the branches. All life and fruitfulness in the branches depend upon their union with the vine. If a branch bear no fruit, it is taken away. If it bear fruit, it is pruned or cleansed that it may bring forth more fruit. What proportion of our church membership gives proof of vital union with Christ by Christian growth, and fruit-bearing? "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit." By the Christian characters we are forming, by the clean lives we are living, by the good deeds we are doing, do we glorify God in the eyes of the world? The apologetic which the world needs to-day is a transformed life, giving reality to religion and glorifying our Father in heaven. This was the kind of evidence which Jesus chiefly relied on for the advancement of his kingdom. "Let your light so shine before men," said he, "that others, seeing your good works, may be constrained to glorify your Father which is in heaven." Fruit-bearing is about the highest form of witness-bearing for Christ and his church.

Baptists and Disciples

By D. G. Porter

In the abundance of excellent matter which I found in the April 13 number of the Christian-Evangelist that which interested me by no means the least was the report of the union meeting of the Baptist and Disciple ministers of St. Louis. I have long regarded Baptists and Disciples as practically one body; and the fact that they hold to different forms of church organization does not to my mind constitute any real matter of separation.

I have heretofore regarded them as moving on converging lines toward the truth not as clearly apprehended by either party—but with the Disciples slightly in the lead. Lately, however, I have had occasion to change my opinion somewhat, and I now think the Baptists are fully abreast if not slightly in advance in the line of progress.

I was much interested in the many excellent things said by Dr. Ford, and in the excellent spirit therein manifested. And yet I do not think that eastern Baptists would completely endorse his view that baptism is simply or chiefly "a declarative act." In fact Baptists in this quarter seem to have grown extremely reluctant about attempting to define baptism as to what it really is, though they know perfectly well how it should be performed. The old definition that it is "a public profession of faith," or an obligatory symbol pointing backward to a reality already accomplished and complete without it, seems no longer to satisfy. We naturally expect symbols and figures to point forward to a fulfillment to be realized in the future, and in this view a purely symbolic baptism would apply better to infants than to believers. Also there are many people who think a symbol of an event after the great fact supposed to be symbolized is already complete, must be of very little consequence, or at least that it can add nothing to the completed fact which is the all important thing.

Besides there are many good people who have a most serious objection to making a solemn declaration that at some period in the past they died to sin, and have since been absolutely dead thereto. The testimony applies much more reasonably to a present purpose of which the subject can be consciously sure, than to a presumably completed experience as to which he may naturally have some lingering doubt.

Also baptism is declared by the apostle to be "toward God," not toward the churches or the world. There is no evidence that publicity was an object in New Testament baptism, but much to the contrary, as it was administered the same hour of the night or in the solitude of the desert. The fact that it was immediate and without previous announcement, besides proving that there was no intention of aiming at publicity, also relieved the New Testament evangelists of all necessity for the very profound metaphysical discriminations which our modern theology has called into practice. So far as we know they never stopped a believer on his way to the water to ask him if he did not feel that he was already saved and his sins forgiven without any baptism and to say that if he did not so feel or believe he had better not go any further. This lack of metaphysical training seems to account for a certain supposed carelessness of expression on the part of some of the New Testament writers, which has made a good deal of trouble for modern theologians. The injunction to "put on Christ" has been held to refer to baptism, as an outward and public profession of Christianity, by those who forget that we are also enjoined to "put on the bowels of compassion," which could scarcely be done outwardly. The meaning doubtless is that we are to be Christlike and compassionate in heart and purpose, not that we are to make public profession of so being.

Now in the original controversies between Baptists and Disciples I conceive that both parties were at fault. The latter declared that baptism was for the remission of sins. For this statement they seemed to have clear scriptural grounds. But they could not stop there. The human mind is so constituted that it required a philosophy of things, and this they attempted to supply in their arguments and statements as to "the design of baptism"—the very term implying inevitably a philosophy of the act or institution. The Baptists could see no propriety in the remission of sins or the assurance of such remission being imparted by means of an arbitrary physical act, and they advanced the contrary theory that baptism is simply a declarative act, declarative that is of the regeneration already experienced, and having absolutely nothing to do with actual remission or regeneration. Of course they had to turn down or twist around several passages of scripture to support their theory, but to many minds they seemed to have the better philosophy.

Now the way out of the difficulty and the dispute would have been to go back to Jerusalem. This the Disciples thought they had done, but in the opinion of the present writer they did not go all the way. Peter at Pentecost said not only, Be baptized for remission of sins, but he said also and more emphatically, Be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. In these words we seem to find the key to the whole situation. None could be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ without believing as the apostles preached, that Jesus was the Christ, the King of Israel, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, or without pledging his allegiance to him as such. Baptism then is the believer's act of allegiance to Jesus as Lord and Christ. Under the apostolic formula it could not be less. Now when we know what a thing is, we are in a fair way to find out what it is for. These Pentecostians were in great distress when Peter told them that God had raised up this same Jesus whom they had crucified and made him Lord and Christ; but he also told them that if they would cease their opposition and pledge their allegiance to him as the Christ, the hope of Israel, the sin of their opposition and rebellion would be forgiven—just as any rebel or conspirator is pardoned, if he is pardoned at all, when and only when he has taken the oath of allegiance to the government he has been attempting to overthrow.

Now there is no passage of scripture as far as I know which does not accord with this view, which we get by going back, and all the way back, to Jerusalem. If we stop at the trinitarian formula, which apparently the apostles never heard of and never used, the difficulty of course remains. But it occurs to me that the Disciples, of all others, should revert to the original apostolic formula since they hold so strongly to Acts 2:38 in which the command to use it is clearly given and the result of obedience promised.

I would not, however, advise the neglect of the formula given in Matt. 28:19. It is regarded by many with suspicion, but nothing has been really proved against it, and in any case I can see no harm in its use. The safer way would seem to be to use it, but always preceded by the more authentic formula, "in the name of Jesus Christ," or "the Lord Jesus." I believe the use of the so-called shorter formula to be a matter of much importance as explaining clearly the significance of baptism, and it is in this regard that I am inclined to think that eastern Baptists are perhaps in advance of the Disciples in their progress towards the truth of the original gospel.

Waterbury, Conn.

* *

The injunction to "be kindly affectioned one toward another," covers that which is essential to the really courteous life. If this precept had sway in the hearts of all professed Christians there would be no complaints at any church service of any denomination of neglect of duty in the way of pleasant greetings to those who are strangers there and of ready interest in their welfare. Christian courtesy knows no class, no "set," no "caste" other than that which Christian character creates, and never hides itself in the presence of any person. —Universalist Leader.

A New View of the Apocalypse

By W. Durban

When I thus entitle this article, the caption does not at all signify that I am presuming myself to present to my readers a fresh interpretation of the revelation of John the divine. What I propose to do is to give a succinct idea of the exposition of the latest work on this subject. It is the splendid volume just published by A. C. Armstrong & Son, New York, from the pen of Dr. W. M. Ramsay, the famous eastern traveler and noted professor at St. Andrew's university, Scotland. The particular subject of the noble book is "The Letters to the Seven Churches of Asia, and Their Place in the Plan of the Apocalypse." It will at once be understood that Dr. Ramsay does not attempt to deal with the whole of the last book in the New Testament. But he does furnish a very welcome key to the leading motive of the apostle in writing the Apocalypse.

The Making of an Apostle.

The book is eminently suggestive, because we see by its help that the exile of John on the isle of Patmos was of divine ordering. Domitian banished John, and as he issued the cruel decree, little understood that his savage dispensation was to be overruled by unseen powers for the benediction of the human race for all time. No one can read Dr. Ramsay's work without gaining a new impression concerning the causes that contributed to transform the whole spiritual and intellectual nature of the apostle whom Jesus loved. His depression in Patmos was the means of his soul's exaltation all the time heavenward. If we want during daylight to see the stars, we must descend some deep well, shaft, or pit, and then if we look up, some galaxy will be seen blazing above. John could not have beheld the celestial glory, had not he been plunged into the dark sulphur mine in Patmos in company with convicts and felons. His tribulations and the compensating revelations so educated and fashioned him that he became qualified to write not only the fourth Gospel as the supplement of the three synoptic Gospels, but that fifth Gospel known as the Apocalypse.

Not Eschatological.

It is refreshing to get hold of a book, written with consummate ability, which deals with any portion of John's Apocalypse from another than the eschatological view. I like reading eschatological books occasionally, if they are not altogether extravagant. I enjoy sometimes dipping into Martin's "Voice of the Seven Thunders," even though the smart writer imagines that the apostle wrote very particularly about America in some of his passages. Well, no doubt John did know a great deal more by inspiration than he is usually given credit for, but till Brother Martin let the light in thus dazzlingly, I had never thought that the apostle had in his prophetic eye the continent which managed to keep hidden till Columbus hit upon it. The "Forty Coming Wonders of Michael Baxter" have scared many nervous folk who decline to have anything more to do with the study of horns, trumpets, vials, scorpions, candlesticks, dragons, beasts, serpents, and other items in the tremendous "apparatus mysticus" of this finale of the Bible. For they were not prepared, till Baxter let loose the whole menagerie of mythical monsters at once, to face such a terrific troop of apparitions, nor till Baxter announced that for several years, very near at hand, there will be an earthquake every few minutes, did these timid souls ever imagine that John was so awful a vaticinator. I myself always took it for granted that the apostle signified that this poor old terra, this lovely little planet, will have to encounter one cataclysm at a time. But Michael Baxter hurries the archangel Michael up. Well, I repeat with unfeigned satisfaction that here is a book which leaves very much alone the darkness of the future, while it lucidly and learnedly expounds the spiritual lessons of the past. For, though when John wrote to the Seven Churches their destiny was future, that future has now been converted into the preterite. This fact renders the first few chapters of the Apocalypse of peculiar value.

The Atmosphere of Love.

The first great lesson is, that love is the atmosphere for great revelations. Had not John been the special apostle of love, he could not have been made receptive of these marvelous celestial disclosures vouchsafed to him as he gazed from the shore of Patmos across the blue Ægean waves at that other island of Therion—"the Beast"—with its blazing volcano in incessant eruption suggesting the powers of the mother world working in all their malign force. Professor Ramsay teaches us to recognize that exile, persecution, loneliness, martyrdom, may be among the all things that work together for good for them that love God. He says, "They who strive really to understand the education of Patmos will be able to understand the strangest and most apparently incredible fact about the New Testament, how the John who is set before us in the synoptic Gospels, could ever write the fourth Gospel."

The East and The West.

Professor Ramsay in his Introduction somewhat startles the ordinary reader. I myself, belonging to this category of readers, was deeply impressed by these preliminary considerations. They involve a curious and most instructive comparison between the east and the west, which Dr. Ramsay makes out to be not nearly so diverse as is generally imagined. Most people, for instance, think of India as hopelessly in contrast in all respects to the Anglo-Saxon world, but men who know that part of the east intimately, declare that after all the people are like our first cousins. I have had some curious confirmations of this. In London lately I had a long talk with a converted Brahman. I was astonished to discover that there seemed no radical difference between him and myself. Shortly afterwards, I met in London an Indian Christian, who had been born and educated as a Moslem. Again I was surprised at the essential unity of ideas and convictions, intellectual and spiritual, with those of our own people. Now, Dr. Ramsay says that "there is no religion but Christianity which is wholly penetrated both with the European and with the Asiatic spirit. . . . . . The stage to which Christianity is moving and in which it will be better understood than it has been by purely European thought, will be a synthesis of European and Asiatic nature and ideas. . . . . . Thus is the relation of Asia to Europe being profoundly changed."

The Epistolary Septenary.

The Seven Letters are beautifully expounded in Ramsay's chapters. Ephesus is the "City of Change." The city changed its site; the sea that once laved its shore changed its line. The temple of Diana was lost for centuries until Wood tracked its site. The missionaries from Ephesus to the Rhone valley and their Huguenot descendants in France were the children of the church whose candlestick was removed, but not destroyed. The geographical center was changed, but the church did noble service and was never extinguished. Smyrna is the "City of Life." It is to-day a busy seaport, and the church is there active in mission work. The city is still called by the Turks "Infidel Smyrna" on account of the strong Christian element in it. It was faithful to death in the persecution and martyrdom of its bishop, Polycarp, and it received the crown of enduring life. Pergamos is the "City of Authority," and of Roman dignity. Thyatira was "Weakness Made Strong." It was a military city. Both cities are flourishing today. They represented the persistence of carnal and secular power. In the former was satan's seat, apparently of sorcery. In the latter the people were adepts at making brazen helmets. The Christians in each were

(Continued on page 604.)

Our Congregationalism: Its Perils and Safeguards*

(Continued from last week.)

By W. A. Parker

Experience demonstrates that for practical reasons leaders are required in the conduct of the affairs of a social body. The equality of all men is the ideal ethical principle of freedom. Yet the liability of the strong to usurp authority suggests that between the alternatives of revolution and anarchism on the one hand, and some modified form of administration on the other, the latter is preferable, the privileges of the rulers and the rights of the governed being carefully prescribed.

The nature and effect of these prescriptions is to restrict the authority of officials within the limits of their appointed duties. The natural prestige which grows out of official position, is productive of influence quite disproportionate to the real worth of the individual. In our own government, penal prohibitions enjoin the representatives of one department from interfering with the operations of another, or from using their influence to alter the policies of the general administration.

The application of these truths to the affairs of our own church polity is required to illustrate the principle by which the organized methods of our operation may be productive of ecclesiastical abuse, and provided against it.

There are among us three general classes of authoritative servants, each of which sustains a peculiar relation to the people as a whole. First of all, there is the minister, whose official relation to the brotherhood is wholly represented by the terms of the contract with the local congregation he serves. The second general class includes the servants of all the churches, who as the official managers or representatives of the various missionary or benevolent agencies, are chosen by the semi-popular bodies that maintain these agencies and by attending the conventions, give general direction to their operations. The missionaries themselves may be said to be the servants of the brotherhood, chosen by the various boards who are answerable in supreme council to the whole people. In this category also may be placed the faculties of our colleges, which, owned by the religious body and governed by appointed trustees, are administered as institutions of public control. The third class is that order who are servants of the whole people as a secondary consideration, as the representatives of private enterprises administered with the primary economic purpose of self-support, but dependent for that self-support upon the rendering of acceptable organic service to the people. In this group are to be placed the privately owned and controlled colleges, and the corporate institutions owning and publishing our religious journals, and other literature.

It will appear upon reflection that each of these orders of appointment is invested with an influence of its own, intensive and extensive in accordance with the scope of the work involved in the official position. The minister, while exercising by reputation and friendship an effective sway quite beyond his parish, will nevertheless be found to have his dominant prestige in his immediate community. The authority of the missionary executive will be co-extensive with the territory of his operations, and will be persuasive locally, in general correlation to the breadth of his field of control. But the representative of the privately controlled institution is limited in influence only by the limitations of his corporate employer, and may reasonably assume to be the servant of the whole people, for all those purposes for which the enterprise is founded and fostered.

The first two of these classes of officials may be said to hold their positions and wield their official influences by the direct consent of the people, acting in the one case as the local congregation for the election of the ministry, and in the other as a general assembly of the churches selecting the missionary leader. Each is, in a direct way, answerable to the governing body; and each is guided and limited in his authority to the express functions of his office.

But the third class knows no such restrictions. Chosen for his position, not by the judgment of any discriminating body, but by the corporation he serves—an association that may or may not be Christian men—operated in a purely secular way for secular purposes, its policies formed by considerations of mingled prudence and consecration, and its influence heightened by its worthy traditions—the editor of a religious journal will be able to exercise a range of control quite beyond that of his personal equals, who occupy positions of less conspicuous nature. And in addition to the fact of his influence, when it is considered that it is of the nature of leadership assumed, rather than that of authority delegated, the liability to the prostitution of so high an office becomes apparent.

The definition of the scope and provinces of the religious periodical is not within the purview of this essay. But the example of the editorial office is here taken as furnishing the most practical illustration of the possibility of ecclesiastical control, against which there is no protection, nor recourse, in our scheme of things.

Nor does the abuse of prerogative argue the insincerity of the delinquent. The doling out of editorial commendation may be patronage for service rendered the corporate cause; but promotion of the enterprise will seem to its zealous servant to be the will of God. Considerations of self-support may suggest the creation of a sectional prejudice; but our leader is saving the remnant against the day of desolation. A man or an institution may be misrepresented and vilified; but our modern champion is but defending the faith. Man proposes, but he disposes; and secure behind his cavernous waste basket no bomb of protest shall cause his heart to fear.

It is to be said in this connection, that no factor among us has had more honored and useful place in the making of a people than our religious journals. From the days of the Christian Baptist and its sweeter toned successor, the Millennial Harbinger, to the days of our equally mighty periodicals, we have had recourse to them, and inspiration from them, in all our emergencies. The doctrinal conflicts of the early period were fought by them. The problems of interpretation were later solved by them. And their ringing messages inspire every holy endeavor of our present day activity.

But it is also to be noted that growing out of the very conditions of this past service, are traditions most worthy to be cherished, and an inheritance not to be lighty bestowed. The preservation of our freedom as a people and the conservation of their spiritual growth is conditioned supremely upon the acknowledgment by our leaders of our controlling ideals for unity of faith and clearness of vision. Forfeiture of these involves the forecasted end of the blind leading the blind; and we are but committing ourselves to the misguided virtue, which is even more dangerous than vice, because it is not subject to the restraints of conscience.

In every stage of our progress we have required the editorial function. In the years to come we shall require it even more. The promotion of the interests of the whole is possible only by the widest possible employment of the power resident in the public press. It is equally necessary that the freedom of the press be granted and maintained. The safety of our faith and administration from abuses reposes in the enlightened public conscience, armed with the weapons of a spiritually suffused and fearlessly free order of journalism.

* *

The number of conversions reported thus far from the Welsh revival exceeds eighty thousand. All of North Wales is now afire with the revival spirit.

---

*An address [abbreviated] delivered at the Disciples' Congress.

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

Washington has been in the hands of the women. First came the Mothers' Congress, then the Women's Council, then the D. A. R. The first meeting was comparatively quiet, the second was larger and more pronounced and aggressive, the last was the climax. Bright women from all over the land were in attendance at all these sessions, with perhaps a preponderance of brain, brawn and business in the Council, and of blue blood in the Daughters. The mothers dealt with questions of the home and the children. The Council took up such matters as woman's suffrage, social evil, race suicide, divorce, Mormonism, arbitration, temperance, charity, and the whole range of woman's work. The Council is a club of clubs, an organization of organizations. It has many strong women. It includes all creeds and schools. It gathers into its fold Jews, and Catholics, and Protestants, gnostics and agnostics, white and colored, business unions and Christian leagues, hives of Maccabees and Rathbone Sisters, peace associations, and benevolent associations, and suffrage associations, clubs and societies of every name and hue and purpose, representing nineteen countries. Susan B. Anthony, and May Wright Sewall, Kate Waller Barrett, and J. Ellen Foster, Edwin Markham, and Anna Shaw, and our own Elizabeth Grannis, were some of the prominent figures. It is a revelation to see how potent are some of these woman's organizations. Here are the Rathbone Sisters, for example, with 60,000 members, and the National Association of Colored Women with 20,000, and the Catholic Benevolent Association with 100,000, which has paid to beneficiaries over $3,000,000. The W. C. T. U. is the largest, and the "Ladies of the Modern Maccabees" the oldest, and perhaps the Woman's Suffrage Association the most active. Miss Anthony said: "This Council is different from any other organization in the world; it is an organization of organizations. When I first began to speak, 55 years ago, there was not even a woman's society in the church. In 1888 there were 57 national organizations of women affiliated with this one. Now we want the suffrage. We want to be let in with the men." Mrs. Livermore told of a country lyceum president who on one occasion introduced her by saying, "Ladies and gentlemen: You have heard of the Grand Old Man, Mr. Gladstone; I want to introduce you to the Grand Old Woman, Mrs. Livermore!" This title seems to fit the famous woman suffragist and she was by all odds the foremost member of the Council, being introduced as "the most distinguished woman in the world." She is now 85 and threatens to keep pegging away at her favorite theme, "if it takes a hundred years." From present indications she will do it.

The Council was a vigorous body. The discussions were not always harmonious. Even the peace question stirred up not a little difference of opinion. One declared: "War is the great curse of woman as well as man. There is one subject more fundamental than the injustice to women in regard to suffrage. I do not forget that we are spending as much money upon liquor as on breadstuffs, and that we have 6,000,000 illiterates in this country, but international dueling or armed peace is an even more important evil. That is what is sapping the economic life of to-day. Europe in a time of peace is spending for the preservation of peace a pile of dollar bills 52 miles high and $1,000,000,000 worth of labor each year. Every taxpayer and every human being bears this burden. It is perfectly possible to stop this now, and not in the millennium." Another said: "We must train our girls not to admire above all else brass buttons and stripes, and the boys must be trained not to think first of killing something. When we teach them that not to fight is evidence of more courage than to fight, things will be different. Teach them to be kind to animals and not to kill them. There never was a time when crimes and murders were so prevalent in this Christian land, which talks so much about governing other people when it can't govern itself. We must teach our boys manliness and not mannishness." Still another affirmed: "I would never let them sing 'the army and navy forever.'" This was too much for a G. A. R. woman. "I belong to a fighting organization," she exclaimed. "I believe in singing patriotic songs. I believe in patriotism. I believe in peace, and I believe in it if you have to fight for it." And everybody applauded. War seemed imminent.

Race suicide was another thing over which there were serious differences. There was strong feeling that "quality" of children should be placed above "quantity," and that the President made a mistake in placing a woman who merely bears children above such a woman as Susan B. Anthony. One made a spirited attack upon the doctrines enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt at the Mothers' Congress, and it was agreed that steps should be taken to offset a wrong impression throughout the country. "When we speak of race suicide we fail to reflect whether the race is really worth continuing," declared one of the "unappropriated blessings" of the council. "If it is, then it should be preserved. Some specimens of the race are worth preserving. Some are not. Where they are not, race suicide should be practiced. The President laid too much stress upon motherhood." An anti-Mormon resolution, and one expressing "sincere and profound sympathy with the Russian people," also caused a lively scrap and were relegated to the tomb of the Capulets; and an expression on divorce was opposed by Miss Anthony, who declared: "I do not believe that divorce always brings evil. It is just as much a refuge for women married to brutal men as Canada once was a refuge from brutal masters. I do not believe in accepting the position of the bishops, for they put the stopper on, and I do not believe that the women here should say there should be no divorce. The church is not taking an advance step. I do not know that the women were consulted when the bishops framed their expression on divorce at Boston." The council has a purpose and a mind.

Altogether the sessions of the D. A. R. were the stormiest and the most entertaining. These ladies seem to take themselves seriously and Washington gets a good deal of downright good-natured fun out of their congresses. They are political and spectacular. The supreme event of this 14th continental congress was the election of President General. They assembled in their unfinished hall and dedicated it. "Its reality is surpassingly fair in good sooth," said Mrs. Fairbanks, using ye ancient English, and another bright daughter called it "the Aladdin's lamp." But this event and all others were overshadowed by the election of a new president general. Lobbies, parlors and apartments of hotels were thronged long before the opening of the congress by fair women championing the cause of their particular candidates and striving to win votes. Man was in a lonesome minority. Lovely woman ruled the roost. Fifty-one speeches, sparring for political preferment, constant parliamentary enquiry. Then the voting. The decks cleared for action, the great scrolls for names of candidates, the cheers for favorites, the never downed question of privilege, the everlasting pounding of the gavel, the worriment of the president general: "This is a campaign speech and I won't listen to it. Sit down. Be quiet. I won't have any more campaign speeches, I tell you." "The chair loves her daughters but she really wishes they would take their seats." "You will excuse me, madam; I think you are very charming, but you are not in order." "I am not going to try to talk against you all; you might as well hush." "Now you keep quiet over there." "Now, stand still—do you understand?" They understood. "Count your noses, girls," said one and the vote went on. Then the interruption by a befogged old gentleman who wanted to give the P. G. a pair of sleeve buttons! Then the strenuous time of the thirty tellers, sitting up till 5 a. m., losing beauty sleep which they

(Continued on page 604.)

Was Method in His Mind?

BY J. H. HARDIN

The editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST recently brought before his readers the noted interview between Jesus and Nicodemus as the basis for a search for common ground between Baptists and Disciples. The interpretation given will provoke thought, and probably some discussion. It is not my purpose to discuss the editor's interpretation of this celebrated passage. It may be true that in this conversation Jesus sought to correct some wrong impression in the mind of Nicodemus regarding the meaning and office of John's baptism. The reader is advised to read the article if he has not already done so, and to re-read it if he has not done so attentively, and to give it careful thought.

But my purpose in referring to the matter is to venture an opinion regarding this passage that has been of great help to me in estimating its value.

John 3:3-8 is usually understood to treat of the method or methods used by the Holy Spirit in effecting the new birth. Indeed, with the effects of modern controversy so deeply impressed upon men's minds, it is almost a psychological impossibility for them to approach the passage without thinking of it as some part of these contentions. It is used as a proof-text of some peculiar view of the Spirit's method of effecting regeneration. It is often used as a proof-text for immersion. With "wind" properly rendered Spirit it is used to show that the true method of the new birth is the breathing of the Spirit where he pleases—"so is every one born that is born of the Spirit."

So it has come to pass that every one who has some pronounced convictions on these controverted matters, feels bound to offer an interpretation of this passage that will show it to be a main support of the method of the new birth he regards as the true one. It hardly needs to be insisted that this is a most unsatisfactory way of dealing with the scriptures. The proof-text method of interpretation is rarely scientific, and nearly always misleads.

What Jesus said to Nicodemus was not said in view of the present day disputes about the new birth, baptism, the operation of the Spirit, etc., but from another view-point entirely. That view-point was, not how one is born of the Spirit, but how the person who is born of the Spirit is controlled; not the method which produces the birth, but the power by which those so born are actuated as citizens of the kingdom of God. The effect of the new birth rather than the methods of it seems to me to be the main thought. With this in mind the Lord's allusion to the Spirit breathing where it pleases will appear clear. So is every one that is born of the Spirit controlled, i. e., by a power from above. He is not only born of the Spirit, of water and of the Spirit, these together constituting a spiritual birth, but he continues, as a citizen of a spiritual kingdom, to be moved by spiritual influences and motives.

I admit that Nicodemus was perplexed about the method of the thing; indeed the words of the Savior unquestionably bear in some degree on the method of the new birth, but only indirectly and by inference. His main purpose was not to settle the question of method at all, and especially as debated in modern sectarian controversies, but, as already stated, to show that a subject of his kingdom is to be under the control of the Spirit and not of the flesh nor of earthly influences. As the acts of the Spirit himself are controlled from above, so those who are born of the Spirit are controlled not from earth but from heaven. This, it seems without doubt, is the main scope of the eighth verse; and this to my mind harmonizes with all the other features of the interview. And this view of the case removes the passage so far from playing any part in present day wrangles, that, viewing it thus, it has for a number of years had, to me, a new and constantly enlarging spiritual value.

Richmond, Mo.

❖ ❖

A New View of the Apocalypse.

(Continued from page 601.)

subject to raging persecutions, but the imperial power is shown as naught. The real church is sublimely exhibited as being above the power of the emperor, the state, the army, and the cruel and brutal paganism. Sardis is the "City of Death." A remnant were pure in heart, walking with Christ in white, but the keynote of the Epistle is degradation, false pretension, carelessness, and over-confidence. Dr. Ramsay makes it abundantly clear that where the churches in these cities of Asia Minor were unfaithful, not only did they lose their candlesticks, but the cities themselves also decayed. The pagan cities survived in which the Christians were most faithful. How full of suggestiveness is such a historic fact! Philadelphia is the "Missionary City." A Greek city, it worked by peaceful means. It was the city of the open door, and by means of its trade with all nationalities it prospered amazingly. And it prospers today and is still largely Christian. But Laodicea the lukewarm is but a heap of ruins. It is in the Apoclaypse the "City of Compromise." John teaches the churches to-day that they may save the world by their faithfulness, but they cannot save either the world or themselves by compliance or complicity with worldliness.

As Seen From the Dome.

(Continued from page 603.)

sorely needed, counting those votes; and the charges and countercharges of nullifying the returns, and the old lady with her knitting calmly awaiting the decision. Then the exciting second ballot and the weary count. Finally the announcement—McLean—and a deluge of feminine emotion, hysterical hugs and kisses and pandemonium; and a love feast. It was dramatic enough. It was a great mixup of millinery and patriotism and political enthusiasm. One of the Daughters sighed as she said to me of the new president general: "She always was a thorn in the side of poor dear Mrs. Fairbanks." But Mrs. McLean has been my candidate from the start. She is the brightest of the Daughters, if not the darlingest.

❖ ❖

COFFEE HEART

Very Plain in Some People.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

A gentleman in Brooklyn describes his experience, as follows:

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart, from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years) but I found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"I realized that I must give up the harmful indulgence in coffee, but I felt the necessity for a hot table drink, and as tea is not to my liking, I was at a loss for awhile, what to do.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum Food Coffee, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial. My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble. Postum Food Coffee proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot beverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. It has completely cured the heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and am compelled to drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum Food Coffee cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Ten days' trial proves an eye opener to many.

Read the little book "The Road to Wellville" in every pkg.

Our Budget

—Did your church take up the May offering?

—Is your personal contribution represented in that offering?

—If any one is delinquent so far there is time for repentance during the month of May.

—At a critical period in the history of Israel, when a great conflict was being waged with its enemies, the inhabitants of a certain town held back and did not fall in line with their brethren. This is the curse pronounced by the prophetess Deborah against the town:

> "Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of Jehovah,
> Curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof;
> Because they came not to the help of Jehovah,
> To the help of Jehovah against the mighty."

Mightier forces of evil confront the church of God to-day than Israel ever knew. What shall be said of the congregation that stands aloof from its sister churches when they are marching to this mighty conflict?

—We are offering our readers this week, as usual, a number of exceedingly interesting articles, and we bespeak for them a careful reading. Those who read their religious paper thoroughly are those who get the most good out of it, and are liable to continue permanent subscribers. A brother said to us recently, "I read the last issue of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST clear through the other day, and I wondered whether every number is as good as that!" We are offering our readers in each number articles by our ablest men. If these articles are not read it is a great loss to our readers.

—The church at 169th street, New York City, of which Bro. S. T. Willis is the pastor, has a lot clear of encumbrance, valued at twenty thousand dollars, on which it has recently erected the first story of a building which is very much needed to carry on their work in that city. We have received a copy of a circular containing a front view of the new building as it will be when completed, and making an earnest appeal for assistance. Brother Willis writes that they must have at least five thousand dollars outside of their membership to enable them to complete the building. It seems altogether proper that the brethren throughout the central and middle west where we are strong should help these brethren in New York City to bear their burden, by assisting them in the erection of a suitable building in which to do their work. We commend this enterprise to the favorable consideration of brethren throughout the country. For further information address S. T. Willis, 1281 Union avenue, New York City, and we can assure you that any assistance sent to him will be wisely used, and highly appreciated.

[Telegram.]

—First church joins living link column for home missions. Rejoicing.—W. F. TURNER, Joplin, Mo.

[Telegram.]

—Offering for home missions by Soniat avenue Christian church, $123.50.—R. M. DENHOLME, New Orleans, La.

—W. H. Zenor becomes pastor at Clearfield, Iowa.

—A new church has been organized at Joliet, Ill.

—Flemingsburg, Ky., will soon have a new parsonage.

—Chas. E. Geis has become minister at Meyersdale, Pa.

—Plans are on foot to build a new church at Arbela, Mo.

—W. H. Van Deuzen has resigned at East Smithfield, Pa.

—L. W. Klinker, of Iowa, will enter upon work in California.

—The mortgage on the church at McKeesport, Pa., has been reduced $500.

—The church at Jackson, Tenn., is engaged in paying off its indebtedness.

—The church at Hamburg, Ia., is now out of debt, but it is also without a pastor.

—John W. Whitsett bequeathed $1,500 to the endowment fund of Butler college.

—Wesley Hatcher goes from Columbus to take charge of the work at Hamilton, O.

—Union City, Tenn., reports good progress under the leadership of J. J. Castleberry.

—R. E. Rosenstein has resigned at Chanute, Kan., to take up the work at Bartlesville.

—J. G. Slayter, of Akron, Ohio, has accepted the work at East End, Pittsburg, Pa.

—The old church building at Nineveh, Ind., is soon to be replaced by a new and larger one.

—T. J. Golightly will remain at Lebanon, Ky., having refused the call to Santa Paula, Cal.

—The church at Oklahoma City is making special effort to raise its mortgage indebtedness.

—J. W. Ellis now has work at both Union and Whitton, Ia., and reports a bright outlook.

—Twenty charter members are to be organized into a church at Southern Ft. Worth, Texas.

—The new parsonage of the Christian church at Concord, Cal., is just about completed.

—William Pearne has resigned at Collierville, Tenn., and taken up the work at Huntingdon.

—J. L. Hill is supplying the Central Christian church at Cincinnati, Ohio, for four weeks.

—E. Lynwood Crystal, of Tennessee, has been called to be the minister of the church at Baton Rouge, La.

—At Eldora, Ia., a new church is being rapidly completed. To J. M. Hoffmann much of the credit is due.

—A new $6,000 building has just been dedicated free from debt at Oakland, Ia. D. P. Green is the pastor.

—Pres. W. E. Garrison is to give the baccalaureate sermon for Hamilton college, Lexington, Ky., on May 21.

—J. H. Hester has organized a new church at Douglas, Ariz. He will be assisted by the board of home missions.

—The Christian Woman's Board of Missions has received an annuity gift of $1,000 from a friend in Kentucky.

—The Easter thank offering of Cynthiana, Ky., auxiliary of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, was $200.

—The semiannual convention of the western Pennsylvania Christian missionary society began May 9, at Washington, Pa.

—There will be a reunion of Butler students and alumni on May 18, in connection with the Indiana convention at Bedford.

—Mr. Carnegie has offered to give $25,000 for a science building, if the University of Kentucky will raise a $25,000 endowment.

—The church at Vinton, Ia., which Bro. J. T. Nichols recently left, has extended a call to A. B. Elliott, who will begin work June 1.

—Brother Davis, of Yale, has been invited to take charge of the new mission at Portland, Maine, under the direction of the home board.

—A. W. Van Loon, formerly of Cincinnati, and a student at Bethany College, has removed to Los Angeles, Cal., and will soon be at work.

—The address of Joel Brown, who is to enter upon evangelistic work during a portion of the year, is 785 26th street, Des Moines, Iowa.

—David E. Olson has resigned at Thurston, Oregon, and obtained a leave of absence for four months from Coburg to conduct meetings.

—W. J. Wright will represent the American Christian Missionary Society in the state conventions in Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana this year.

—The new building at Kokomo, Ind., has got to the frescoing stage, and will be dedicated early in July. It is a forty thousand dollar building.

—"The secret of our success lies in this one thing—a spiritual church." So writes H. E. Wilhite of the San Bernardino church, San Bernardino, Cal.

—The new building at Canton, Ohio, is to be dedicated this month. P. H. Welsheimer reports an average of nearly one thousand in the Sunday-school.

—The date for the dedication of the church at Pullman, Wash., is June 11. Bro. Z. T. Sweeney, who is to be present, will remain over for the state meeting.

—The members of the Central Christian church, Dallas, Tex., of which M. M. Davis is pastor, have placed a handsome pipe organ in their new house of worship.

—J. C. Campbell and wife have just celebrated their golden wedding. Brother Campbell has been preaching for forty-six years, and three of his sons are in the ministry.

—W. S. Lemmon has resigned at Hampton, Ia., and wishes to engage elsewhere. He would like to hold a few meetings. There were 43 additions at Hampton while he was there.

—The church at Lawton, O. T., has taken on new life. The building, after reseating and remodeling, is the largest and best house of worship in the city. W. T. Morrison is the pastor.

—The church at Mobile, Ala., has called Bro. Claude E. Hill to remain with them another year. They are engaged in building. This is one of the missions of the home board.

—Chas. Reign Scoville is having success at South Bend, Ind. He went to stay only a week. He goes to dedicate at Saunemin, Ill., May 28, and to Beaumont, Texas, to dedicate, June 4.

—W. L. Harris and wife have just been tendered a reception by the brethren at Grant City, Mo. Brother Harris has been having large audiences. He has just began a revival meeting.

—W. H. Taylor will do missionary work among the Mexicans in the southwest, with headquarters at San Antonio. He will be superintendent of Mexican missions under the A. C. M. S.

—The publicity committee of the San Francisco convention has prepared a handsome sticker in white and gold advertising the convention. It is designed to go on the address side of the envelope.

—Pres. J. W. McGarvey is to visit Lynchburg, Va., where he will preach on June 18, and for one week following, assisted by some able helpers, will conduct an institute for preachers and teachers.

—West Kentucky college's commencement began on Lord's day last, and closes to-night. This college, which is situated at Mayfield, is owned and controlled by the Christian church, and its president is J. E. Lewellen.

—The Jefferson City church is the first to follow our suggestion to get Dr. W. T. Moore to deliver his lectures on "Our Distinctive Plea," which he recently prepared at the request of the church at Columbia, Mo.

—As we make ready for press comes the news that Bro. T. W. Phillips, whose gift to Bethany college we have announced, has promised to pay $5,000 to Texas Christian university by the opening of the fall session, with intimation of more to follow.

—We cannot tell you how much we enjoy the Christian-Evangelist — its breadth, length and depth—in the service and development of Christian manhood and womanhood.

Sedalia, Mo. M. C. Smith.

—The brethren at Tampa, Fla., expect to get in their new meeting house the third Lord's day in May. This is a great gain for that little congregation and was made possible only by the assistance of the board of home missions.

—State conventions will be held in the near future as follows: Texas, at Waco, May 15-19; Indiana, at Bedford, May 16-18; Ohio, at Newark, May 22-25; Louisiana, at Monroe, May 23-26; south Kentucky, at Hopkinsville, May 23-25.

—We note that the correspondent who sent us the item about the Kentucky university reunion made a mistake in the date. This interesting occasion will be held June 4-8 inclusive, instead of June 14-18, as announced in these columns.

—Reports presented at the ministers' meeting at the office of the Christian-Evangelist showed that during the past month there were over two hundred additions in the St. Louis churches represented. All the churches are in a prosperous and growing condition.

—Governor Hanley, of Indiana, who shows evidence of desiring to do for that state what Mr. Folk is doing for Missouri, has accepted an invitation of the Evansville ministerial association to deliver an address there on the Enforcement of Law, and the Maintenance of Order.

—Rooms for young men have just been completed in the church at Dravosburg, Pa. They are to be used for socials, and as a kind of club room for all the men in the town. The church has received an offer of a branch Carnegie library. Ray O. Miller is the go-ahead pastor.

—If they live until May 16, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Bishop will celebrate their golden wedding. Brother Bishop is the eldest son of the late Ex-Gov. R. M. Bishop, of Ohio, who was so prominently identified with the Christian church. Brother and Sister Bishop are members of the First church, St. Louis, Mo.

—Merritt Owen has resigned as pastor of the church at Washington, N. C. Brother Owen has done several years of useful service in that state. He has for some time acted as associate editor of the Watch Tower, which position he will continue for some weeks until his future field is determined.

—The brethren in California are somewhat perplexed just now over the question of the time and place of their state meeting. Brother Van Kirk, we note, is in favor of holding it at San Francisco immediately before the national convention. Bro. R. N. Davis does not favor this plan but suggests that Santa Cruz be the place selected and the time July 10 or 28.

—Mrs. Maria R. Ford, matron of the Bayaman Porto Rico orphanage of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, will spend the summer in the United States. Her health demands the change. Her home is in Tennessee, and she will be warmly welcomed by the churches of her native state for her works' sake.

—Some of the brethren planning to go to San Francisco, Cal., have arranged to stop over at Denver Lord's day, Aug. 15, visit the principal churches of the city in the morning and have a union meeting in the Central Church in the afternoon. Another day will be spent at Colorado Springs and another at Salt Lake City.

—A. E. Zeigler has resigned his pastorate at Wheeling, W. Va., and will become field agent of the Bethany Beach Association. He is now ready to furnish information about this beautiful summer resort of the Disciples on the Atlantic coast, and will visit congregations who may desire to know more about it. He can also be secured to fill temporarily vacant pulpits. Wheeling, W. Va., will find him.

—The church at Marion, Ohio, O. D. Maple pastor, has sent us the financial secretary's statement, which shows a healthy state, with an increase in liberality, and in church property. It gives as its watchword for 1905, "Our new church by New Year's day," and for the present quarter, "One thousand dollars as a total income." It is a good thing for a church to lay out a definite work for itself, and then stretch itself to reach it.

—A. J. Bush, superintendent of the orphanage at the Juliette Fowler home, reports that it is doing well. "We have," he says, "cared for sixty-two children in the home, and have had a doctor only once, and that was for a boy who had been kicked by a horse. We have a ten thousand dollar building complete in all its departments, and paid for. Our farm of two hundred acres promises well this season. The Lord is blessing us in this ministry."

—The Beacon Journal, of Akron, O., says that the resignation of J. G. Slater has "caused a wave of sincere regret and a sense of personal loss not alone among the members of his own congregation, but in the heart of practically every member of this Christian community." The editorial goes on to state that he has accomplished a great work for the entire city, and that few or no ministers in the city's history have done so much in a similar space of time.

—Mrs. W. D. Jeter, of Bellefonte, Ark., sends us $1.00 for home missions, saying, "We have no church here, but I read and enjoy the Christian-Evangelist, and am glad of the opportunity to pass it on." We are glad to pass on our sister's contribution to the headquarters at Cincinnati. Should other scattered readers wish to join in this May offering, let them send their contribution to Benj. L. Smith, Y. M. C. A. building, Cincinnati, O.

—"If I had my life to live over, I would do it differently," remarked Rudolph on the eve of his execution, last Monday. But that is the difficulty. We don't have our lives to live over. We have only one life to live. We pass this way but once. That is what young people, and older ones, too, for that matter, forget, when they enlist in such enterprises and habits as blast their lives. Remember it, young man, you will not have your life to live over. Live it right, therefore, while you can control it.

—J. M. Killam, of Ill., has just received annuity bond No. 93 from our National Benevolent Association for $200. As the association is approaching its one hundredth annuity bond it desires to celebrate the event by issuing that number for at least $5,000. Concerning this method of making absolutely safe investments so far as temporal returns are concerned, and at the same time of greatly extending the gospel of the helping hand, Geo. L. Snively, 903 Aubert Ave., St. Louis, will give full information.

—Our readers will be glad to learn that the Christian Publishing Company is getting out a volume of sermons by E. L. Powell, pastor of the Fourth and Walnut street church, Louisville, Ky. The book will contain about twenty sermons from among the best of those delivered by Brother Powell in his own pulpit, and on other platforms. For spiritual insight and vigorous thought, expressed in fine English, these sermons will compare favorably with any volume of sermons which has been offered to the American public. Young ministers, especially, and the host of Brother Powell's friends all over the country, will be glad to welcome this volume of sermons from one of the ablest pulpit orators in this country. Further announcements will be made as the work progresses.

—The property of the church at Johnstown, Pa., has just been sold for a money consideration of $32,000 with the understanding that the congregation retains absolute control of the whole building until May 1, 1906. The trustees have been instructed to purchase property located in the very heart of the city, yet away from the noise and confusion of the main street, at a cost of $12,000. Thus there will be a balance in hand of $20,000 to start the new building which will be commenced as soon as is consistent with good management.

—We are glad to hear such a good report of the work of David R. Francis, minister of our church at Sullivan, Ind. The congregation is contemplating either the enlargement of the present building or a new one. At least $15,000 will be expended in the improvements. Brother Francis is in favor of an institutional church, making it a center of interest for all, especially the young people. A committee has been appointed to carry out the plans as far as practicable, and it is hoped that a new house, free of debt, will be dedicated before winter.

—Did you take the offering for home missions last Lord's day? Have you remitted promptly? Be very careful not to use the home offering for any other purpose, as the home board is very much in need of it. Do not allow local needs to cause you to appropriate the home offering for any local purpose, but remit the offering promptly to Benj. L. Smith, Cor. Sec., Y. M. C. A. Building, Cincinnati, Ohio. In remitting your home offering be very careful not to send any money loose in an envelope. Several offerings have been lost by this course. We want to caution all treasurers to send either by check, draft, money order, express order or registered letter, but do not send loose money without registering.

—E. F. Harris, pastor of the Christian church at Cripple Creek, Col., has organized a new church society, the purpose of which is similar to some of the objects of fraternal orders, though there is no secrecy in its work. The idea is to unite Christian people of all denominations in practical Christian benevolence, in loving our neighbor as ourselves. So far as it covers local work in caring for the sick, burying the dead, providing for widows and orphans, it is no doubt a very good movement. At the same time, we trust it will not in any way conflict with the work of our Benevolent Association, which is already well established in our midst, yet needs to be much more widely developed, as an agency of the helping hand.

—Bro. G. P. Rutledge seems to have made an impression on the members of the order of Odd Fellows in Philadelphia. For the second time within the last six months he has been invited to address one of their large gatherings. His church was crowded on last Lord's day when he spoke upon the subject of "Friendship." After the sermon the Odd Fellows presented Sister Rutledge, through her husband, with a handsome basket of flowers. Brother Rutledge himself is not a member of the order. We are glad to know that the Third church is having a season of prosperity. The finances are better than ever before, and additions to the membership are constant. Brother Rutledge is in the eighth year of his ministry there.

I can put you in correspondence with an educated, experienced minister of good address. You can secure him as pastor reasonably by granting him the privilege of practising medicine to supplement his salary. Available at once. You will be fortunate to secure him and his estimable wife. Texas or Arkansas preferred. State your proposition fully. Write Henry Bodine, Box 393, Martinez, Calif.

—Mrs. Helen E. Moses, who has for over six years edited the Missionary Tidings, has, by reason of poor health, retired from that rather onerous work, and Mrs. Anna Robison Atwater, who has served with good success as state president in Ohio, takes up the editorial work in succession to Sister Moses. Both are consecrated women, and while we regret that Sister Moses must be less active in this particular field, we are glad that a woman seemingly so well qualified has been selected for the important duties that devolve upon an editor.

—"When I first subscribed for the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST I thought I would take it for six months only," writes a subscriber from Kansas, "but now I feel that I could not do without it. I never knew how well the church was prospering until I began to take the paper. I am much better satisfied on the subject of the Holy Spirit." The remark of our sister that she "never knew how well the church was prospering until she began to take the paper," illustrates the vast amount of good that would come from a wider circulation of such religious journals as the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. It puts new courage, hope and vigor into members to learn what victories are being won in other fields. He who causes two members to take a good religious journal where only one took it before is a greater benefactor than he who causes two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before.

—A saloonatic of St. Louis has written a letter to Rev. Samuel Lindsay, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri, on Sunday closing, in which he says:

"Church and state are separate, thank God. The saloon is the poor man's club-house. He has only one day in the week to enjoy, you ———, miserable parasites, scoundrels, you want to take that from him. Is this Russia, or America? If it had not been for those miserable hypocrite preachers, the World's Fair would have been open on Sunday. Drive the preachers out of town. Preachers are misleaders of the people."

This country would be Russia, or something worse, if such men as the writer of this letter could have their way. Yes, "church and state are separate, thank God." But morality and social order and the state are not separate, thank God. And this is what cuts our saloonatic.

—"As long as the Disciples administer baptism 'for the remission of sins,' rather than because of remission of sins, there will be those who will continue to be Baptists."—Journal and Messenger.

Then, if Baptists are opposed to the rendering in the King James version "for the remission of sins," are they ready to stand by the Revised Version, "unto the remission of sins"? Is there any rendering of Acts 2:38, which scholars will endorse, that the Journal and Messenger would be willing to stand by? So far as Disciples are concerned they do not make such agreement a condition of fellowship or union, but we would like to satisfy our Baptist brethren if they can agree upon any rendering of the passage referred to. Either the King James or the Revised Version suits us. We venture to say that no committee of scholarly Baptists in this country or in Great Britain would render the Greek phrase, eis aphesin hamartioon, "because of remission of sins"!

—We see that our friend, Dr. W. B. Palmore, editor of the Christian Advocate of this city, has returned. His paper states that he was in a fearful storm on the Bay of Biscay, and was so unfortunate as to suffer a dislocation, but expected to be all right in a few days when they last heard from him. A Buenos Ayres paper announces his lectures in the American church of that city. The Doctor is a good lecturer as well as a good traveler. He may be expected to start somewhere else soon.

—One associated with the early days of our reformation has just passed away, we learn from Bro. B. L. Wray, who conducted his funeral at Lanark, Ill. William Davis Moffett, who died on May 2, was the oldest son of Garner Moffett, who was an old pioneer preacher of the primitive gospel in Illinois. He graduated at Bethany College with the class of 1850 when Prof. J. W. McGarvey received his B. A. and Prof. Chas. L. Loos was among the M. A.'s. Brother Moffett became a Christian under the preaching of Alexander Campbell and was baptized by Professor Pendleton. Most of his life he spent upon a farm, dying, as he had lived, a noble man.

—Chas. Forster, pastor church of Christ, West Pawlet, Vt., writes that he is going to take a short vacation, next September, and that he desires to use it in holding a Christian evangelistic meeting for some church. He wishes to do this work for some needy church in a needy and populous location. He desires no remuneration, but would like the assistance of a leader of song, who would have to receive something, "say the collections." Here is an opportunity for some needy place, particularly in the east, to secure the services of a good man, to hold them a meeting on terms as reasonable as they could ask. Churches interested may communicate with Brother Forster as above.

—A brother, referring to the communication in our issue of April 20 on "Colonization," and especially to the question, "Is There No Message in This for Missouri Disciples?" answers that he thinks there is, and that something might be done for the cause through colonization. We doubt not it would be a wise thing if brethren desiring to migrate to a new country, should have some mutual understanding, and settle together where they could organize schools and churches and form a society from the beginning; but these colonization schemes have to be managed very discreetly to avoid dissatisfaction and suspicion. Thus managed, they may be the means of planting the cause and a Christian civilization in new countries, besides bettering the material conditions of those forming the colony.

—A statement was published some weeks ago in the Wheeling Daily Register to the effect that C. Manly Rice, pastor of the Island Christian church, had baptized three prisoners in the county jail, two of them by immersion and the other, upon request, by sprinkling. One of our own religious papers, noticing this, emphasized the sprinkling part of it, and Brother Rice has been receiving many inquiries regarding the matter. Brother Rice informs us that the story is a pure "fake." He says he never sprinkled anybody in his life, and was not within a mile of the county jail on the Sunday in question. The next issue of the Wheeling paper printed a conspicuous denial. We are very glad to publish Brother Rice's statement, though we do not presume many of the readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST gave credence to the newspaper report, if they saw such.

—M. C. Douglass writes that a minister of another religious body recently declared that we must give up the name "Christian" and asks: "Is the name of our Lord a miserable sectarian name that should not be named among us? If we are baptized into the name of Christ, and put on Christ, may we not take his name? If Christ's followers for centuries were willing to be known as 'Christians' why should we not be permitted to wear it?" We think that no one can legitimately object to our calling ourselves Christians, or Disciples of Christ, if we do not claim a monopoly of these titles, as we certainly do not; but we are sometimes misunderstood, and these names are sometimes used in a sectarian sense so as to create this wrong impression. But let us not forget that the main thing is to be Christians, in fact, and to live like Christians, and the world will not begrudge us the name "Christian."

—Brother D. R. Dungan, who has been at the head of the Bible department in Christian university, at Canton, Mo., for a number of years, has accepted a call to return to the Bible department of Drake university where he labored once before for nine years. This will be a gain for Drake, and a loss for Christian university, at least until his place can be filled. Brother Dungan is widely and favorably known as a Bible student and teacher. He succeeds Professor Lockhart, whose resignation, we understand, is to take effect at the close of the present school year, as does also that of Brother Dungan at Canton. It is not known yet who will succeed Brother Dungan in Christian university. That school, however, is in a much more prosperous condition than it has

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightful scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, by way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

POND'S EXTRACT
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
The Baby
should be rubbed gently with Pond's Extract after the bath. It wards off colds, strengthens and invigorates.
Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of seventy samples of Witch Hazel—so often offered as "just as good" —fifty-two were found to contain wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both. To avoid danger of poisoning insist on having been in for years; has a large number of ministerial students, and offers a fine field for a man that has the capacity for training young men for the ministry. Professor Lockhart, we learn, will probably travel some in Europe, and probably conduct some special studies.
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
POND'S EXTRACT

—The first year of the work of the new church at Magnolia avenue, Los Angeles, is of interest. Jesse P. McKnight organized it one year ago, with 87 charter members, 60 of these coming from the First church; 138 were added during the year, so that the membership, counting removals, at the beginning of the second year was 213. The Sunday-school has increased from 39 to over 200. There is corresponding growth in all departments. Contributions to missions amounted to $560, while the total amount raised was a few dollars short of $6,500. A fine $12,000 church building is now in process of construction which will be a credit to our cause in one of the most desirable parts of a very rapidly growing state.

—We are in receipt of the Tabernacle Year Book for 1905, of the Central church of Christ, North Tonawanda, N. Y. This book contains, besides a list of the members, reports from different parts of the church, an historical sketch of the church and a sermon by the pastor, W. C. Bower. It is a very handsome appearing book, but the chief attraction about it is an excellent sermon by the pastor on "Face Light," based on the text, "And Moses knew not that his face shone by reason of his speaking with him." Judging from the character of this sermon, and the reports of the different departments of the church, this congregation is to be congratulated. The year book also contains the pictures of the pastor, and of the evangelist who recently closed a successful meeting with them, H. H. Moninger, of Steubenville, O., and a group of the Sunday-school officers and teachers.

—The following from the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, of March 26, will be read with interest by the friends of Dr. D. M. Breaker:

"SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

"The friends of Dr. Breaker, irrespective of denominational connections, gathered at his residence on Wednesday evening, March 22, to celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday. All the ministers in town were on hand and took part in the exercises. The old hymn, 'How Firm a Foundation,' was sung. Special emphasis was made by Pastor Rayner in reading over the lines to the verse:

"'E'en down to old age all my people shall prove
My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable love;
And when hoary hairs shall their temples adorn,
Like lambs they shall still in my bosom be borne.'

"Then Pastor Moore offered an earnest and appropriate prayer. Pastor Jackson furnished a very interesting sketch of the Doctor's long and useful life. After some other speaking Dr. Breaker was called on for a speech. He responded in his usual happy style and showed that he retained a large proportion of the power which in his younger days secured for him the description of 'an able and eloquent preacher.' A recent literary production of the Doctor's was read by one of the preachers, to the delight of the company. 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds' was sung, and with hearty good wishes and affectionate hand clasping the company departed, leaving behind many substantial tokens of their regards."

—The condition of many of our ministers is a very sad one. For instance, we have just discovered one whose total salary for the past fourteen months was $301.75. Out of this he had a family to keep, and after rent, washing, fuel, etc., were paid he had $4.99 per month to expend on the table and the clothes of the family. Of course, this is a mere existence, and debt must of necessity be incurred. This preacher has been doing a good work. We are not surprised that the church to which he ministers has in the past done but little for missions, nor are we surprised that when he asked the officers to grant him one Lord's day off so that he might make enough to pay his rent by outside work they refused to do so. There are quite a number of churches of this character who cannot pay a man a decent living, and will not divide time with each other so that the work may be kept up and the preacher's family reasonably supported. The problem of the country church will never be solved until the members of many of them are taught to do unto others as they would have others do unto them.

NEW ONTARIO—TO THE FRONT.
Offer to Tenant Farmers.
A five acre lot, or a hundred acre farm for 25c per acre cash, the rest at 5c per acre per month.
R. A. BURRISS, Port Arthur, Ont.

Children's Day
FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS
The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:
1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. H. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.
2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.
3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.
Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,
F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

❁ ❁

Bethany College.

Bethany college is closing one of the most successful sessions in recent years. During the past month more than $19,000 has been secured for our endowment fund. Thos. W. Phillips, a lifelong friend of the institution, has just given $7,000 as a memorial to his son, Norman A. Phillips, who was educated at Bethany, and who died a year and a half ago. Another friend, whose name is withheld for the present, has just given $5,000. Andrew Carnegie offers to give $20,000 to erect a new library building, as soon as the friends of the college raise $20,000 for the permanent endowment fund. Already more than $12,000 have been secured, and there are evidences that other substantial gifts will be added soon to this. Mr. Phillips' gift is not to be counted in the $20,000 endowment block necessary to reach Mr. Carnegie's gift.

We have enjoyed very much a visit from Prof. E. B. Wakefield of Hiram college. Professor Wakefield was here acting as a judge in an oratorical contest. Bro. W. B. Taylor, of Ionia, Mich., recently spent a day with us and gave a very helpful lecture at chapel service. President Rowlison of Hiram college is to give a course of four lectures to the students, and during the first week of May we are to have with us Prof. G. P. Coler, of Ann Arbor, Mich. He will deliver two Bible lectures each day to the students, faculty and citizens of Bethany. We are anticipating a rich feast. T. E. Cramblet.

Benevolent Association Life Liners.

The life line movement inaugurated by our National Benevolent Association is destined to be one of the successful enterprises of the church. Already the following churches and schools have attained the life line rank in the records of the association:

Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo., Geo. H. Combs, minister; Union Ave. church, St. Louis, J. M. Philputt, minister; Union Ave. Bible-school, St. Louis, M. M. Scott, superintendent; Class No. 4. Union Ave. Bible-school, St. Louis, Mrs. H. M. Meier, teacher; Maryville, Mo., church, H. A. Denton, minister; Maryville, Mo., Bible-school, Hon. O. C. Kirkpatrick, superintendent; Wilmington, O., church, E. J. Meacham, minister; University Place church, Champaign, Ill., S. E. Fisher, minister; Paris, Ill., church, Finis Idleman, minister: Sedalia, Mo., church, J. M. Rudy, minister; Armington, Ill., church, L. E. Chase, minister; Franklin Circle, church, Cleveland, O., Earl D. Jones, minister.

Several others are so near the life line rank that it is confidently believed that they will soon attain it. There is no fairer scroll on which to write the names of our churches, Bible-schools, classes and individual Disciples. We are grateful for the response to our life line overtures; and ask the co-operation of our churches everywhere in greatly extending it.

Geo. L. Snively, secretary.
903 Aubert Ave., St. Louis.

❁ ❁

The May Offering.

Not many churches have reported up to the time of our closing our forms, but the indications are that a good offering has been made.

Telegrams announce the following new living link churches:

University place church, Des Moines, Ia. (C. S. Medbury, pastor).

First church, Joplin, Mo. (W. F. Turner, pastor).

East Dallas, Texas (H. R. Ford pastor), keeps its place in the ranks.

Union avenue, St. Louis, Mo. (J. M. Philputt, pastor), raised considerably more than the sum required to put it in the ranks, and will probably reach $600.

Vincennes, Ind., doubled its apportionment.

Soniat avenue, New Orleans, La., $123.50.

❁ ❁

Orphanage Dedication.

The McMillan memorial cottage, built on the "Warren foundation" of the Colorado Christian orphanage, will be dedicated at Loveland May 23. The principal address will be delivered by B. B. Tyler, of Denver; the dedicatory prayer will be presented by L. G. Thompson, Cor. Sec. of the Colorado state board of missions. Numerous interesting addresses will be delivered by various Colorado ministers. It is hoped that all of our brethren from Colorado and surrounding states that possibly can, will be present at this happy and very significant occasion.

Mrs. H. M. Meier, Pres.,
Geo. L. Snively, Sec.

❁ ❁

Dedication at Wichita.

[Telegram.]

Wichita, Kan., May 8.—The central church was dedicated yesterday by Z. T. Sweeney. The day was fine. Though the building seats 1,300 many were turned away both morning and evening. The church cost $30,000, including a $3,000 organ. We asked for $12,000 and received nearly $15,000. Harlow will begin a meeting May 28.—C. F. Stevens, pastor.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

Nebraska.

J. Cronenberger, recently of Athens, Ga., began his work at Falls City April 9. He has been greeted with large audiences.

D. S. Domer, the minister at Beaver City, has been unable to preach since he located with that church. An operation was found necessary and he is at this writing convalescing at St. Joseph's hospital in Omaha.

B. H. Coonradt, of Edgar, was quarantined at his home with smallpox for some weeks, but is now well.

The Bible-school at Nebraska City reports encouragingly since the location of our veteran brother, John T. Smith, as preacher. The work of the church is showing increased strength.

Melvin Putman preached at Brock and they organized a Christian Endeavor society with 36 members. He will visit them again in two weeks.

One hundred and three have been received into the First church, Omaha, during the ten months' ministry of S. D. Dutcher. A large and comfortable tabernacle, costing $4,700, has been erected on their lots at 19th and Farnam and paid for. The audiences are large and the work prospering.

G. W. Burch is the preacher at South Omaha. They still meet in a hall, not having begun the building of their new house.

Four by letter and one by baptism at the First church, Lincoln, April 23. N. S. Haynes will be absent for a few Lord's days, but the pulpit will be supplied regularly. Brother Haynes has not been well for some time.

Ed. Clutter is still at Bee in a meeting at this time. Baptized nine on April 23, and had one by letter and one from the Baptists. Our church building is the only one now in the town. G. W. Muckley preached the morning of April 23 and raised in pledges about $85 for church extension debt.

Brother Muckley was at Louisville on Friday evening, at Seward Sunday night, at Wymore April 24, and at McCook April 25, looking up the loans at these places.

The union meeting at Hebron, in which four churches participated, resulted in 161 professions of conversion. Of these 53 chose the Christian church. Brother Schell held a week's meeting after the close, and had 18 other additions. He has baptized 50, with several to be baptized. The net results to the church are 66.

De Forest Austin began a meeting at Blair April 23.

State Evangelists Whiston and wife spent Lord's day at Minden. Baptized one more, making 23 in all, with total added 31. Samuel Gregg, well known in the state, was there also, and will probably be called to the work at Minden and Norman. The church at Minden is fully revived and is enthusiastic. Brother Whiston began at McCook April 25.

The Eddyville meeting, held by Brother and Sister Frank E. Janes, closed at the end of two weeks. Four baptisms and one added otherwise. The church reports itself in much better condition. No preaching had been had for nearly a year. They have subscribed about $20 per month for supply preaching and we hope that some one can be found to take it up. F. D. Hobson, at Kearney, will keep them in mind and perhaps do some work there during the week.

Since E. C. Davis took up the work at Red Cloud there have been 20 additions to the church, seven of them by primary obedience. The audiences have steadily increased. The Sunday-school doubled in attendance. The house has been painted and papered. This, with the fact that harmony prevails in the church work, will be good news to the friends of the Red Cloud work.

J. G. Slick, who had accepted work at Arapahoe, has decided not to do so. This leaves that church still looking for a preacher. A good man is needed.

District No. 3 convention was not well attended. The district is very well manned for preachers for that district. Dutcher and Kirchstein at Omaha, Burch at South Omaha, Swan at Fremont, White at North Bend, were present. Chase of Valparaiso and Divine of Ashland were absent. Brother Beattie supplies at Plainview. The next convention will be at Fremont.

F. G. Hamm visited Rising City and Summit April 23.

Chancellor Aylsworth and the secretary spent Lord's day at Humboldt, April 23. The occasion was the ordination of Bert Wilson to the ministry of the word. Brother Wilson has been serving this church as a student preacher for several years, and, having been proved and found worthy, the church, through its elders, and assisted by the chancellor and this secretary, formally and publicly ordained him at the morning service. The house was fittingly decorated. Chancellor Aylsworth delivered the address and the ordination prayer, the secretary read the charge to the church and preacher.

The new parsonage at Humboldt is getting rapidly along toward completion.

The unhappy and unnecessary confusion prevailing as to the proper use of the Easter offerings, whether C. W. B. M. or Benevolent Association, is painful and should be cleared up before another year rolls around.

We are now ready to receive the tabernacle funds. Let every one who would love to see the work of the state furthered by the construction of a tabernacle on the convention grounds, respond at once with the cash—from one dollar up to twenty-five.

The route chosen from Nebraska to the national convention begins on the Union Pacific. We will go through Denver and Colorado Springs. The details will be worked out and printed in a short time so that all those planning to go may have the itinerary. Write me for definite information. I should be glad to hear from as many as possible in the next three weeks. We should arrange to get at least a car load to go at one time so that we can have our own tourist sleeper. The rate for the round trip, not including sleeper, will be $56 from Nebraska points including Los Angeles and Portland. If the Portland trip is not desired it will be $50. Sleepers are $11.50 per section that will accommodate four, each way. Short stops will be made going, at places of interest. The tickets are good for 90 days.

W. A. Baldwin.
State Secretary.

1529 S. 18th St., Lincoln.

* * *

Colorado.

The next meeting of "the Denver Methodist social union" will have a unique feature. The general topic will be, "Agreements." The familiar hymn, "Count your blessings," will be sung in this way:

"Count agreements,
Name them one by one,
And it will surprise you
What the Lord hath done."

A Jew, an Anglican, a Roman Catholic and a Disciple of Christ will speak on the many things wherein each agrees with Methodism. Is not this something new under the sun? It is not only new; it is good. Now and again it is well to come together and speak face to face of the things in which there is agreement.

The Rev. John H. Houghton, D. D., is rector of Saint Mark's Protestant Episcopal church. He is, for the third time in succession, by unanimous vote of the brethren, president of our ministerial alliance. This alliance includes all the ministers of the city who acknowledge the name Christian, except the adherents of the pope; and even a Roman Catholic priest has addressed the alliance by invitation. Dr. Houghton has established a "clinic" in connection with his church. He proposes to find out, in a strictly scientific manner, what there is in "mind cure," "faith cure," "mental suggestion," "Christian Science," "sacred relics," "holy places," "Dowieism," "mental therapeutics," etc., etc., for the cure of bodily diseases. He proposes to employ representatives of these cults and give the man opportunity to show what they can do in healing the sick. Dr. Houghton does not ignore the doctors of medicine. He believes in them. An accurate record will be kept of all that is attempted, done, accomplished, with the method, or methods, employed.

By the way, Christian Science is not taking the world, as some vainly imagine. Josiah Strong's annual volume entitled, "Social Progress"—a year-book and encyclopedia of economic, industrial, social, and religious statistics for 1905—is just from the press. The latest statistics of "Christian Scientists" are as follows: Ministers, 1,222; churches, 611; communicants, 66,022; the gains of "Christian Scientists" for the year were: Ministers, 104; churches, 52; communicants, 5,739.

There was a more general observance of "Passion Week" in Denver this year than ever before. In the South Broadway Christian church we met each evening for worship and for a study of the incidents and sayings in the life of our Lord during the week of the crucifixion. A young man came last evening with a letter of commendation from a Presbyterian church and requested baptism. I baptized recently a young woman who came with a similar letter from the Congregationalists.

There were special services Good Friday evening in the Central church—W. B. Craig, pastor. The Sunday-school of that church hopes to contribute $200 this year to missions.

Colorado is a great field, if you consider the extent of its territory and the almost boundless possibilities, the area of the state is 103,925 square miles. Colorado is considered one of the arid states; but there are within its borders 280 square miles of water. The population is about 600,000. The Disciples have 45 churches. This is a good beginning. The Baptists have 90. This is a better beginning. The growth of the Disciples is steady, solid, intelligent. They are in better condition than at any previous period. There is a spirit of evangelism unprecedented in their history. The material resources of the state are incalculable; the opportunities of the Disciples are great.

The church in Golden is planning to build a new house and in a better location. J. W. Maddox is the pastor.

A start has been made at Sterling. Leonard G. Thompson, our efficient corresponding secretary and state evangelist, recently spent two days in this place. Twenty-six were enrolled in the Sunday-school the first day. A ladies' aid society has been formed which meets each week.

At Grand Junction 104 persons have been added to the church since F. F. Walters became pastor about a year and a half ago. This church met each evening of "Passion Week."

A. O. Walker, from Medicine Lodge, Kansas, is now pastor at Loveland. We hear only good concerning Brother Walker.

A series of special meetings closed at Greeley, March 29, with 47 additions. Nineteen were baptized. Greeley is a new point. F. D. Macy is the preacher. He has not been with the church a year. There have been 77 additions.

At Rocky Ford eight persons have recently been baptized into Christ. M. M. Nelson is the minister.

J. P. Lucas has been reappointed prison chaplain, at Canon City, by Governor McDonald. Brother Lucas will also preach for the church at Canon City for an indefinite period.

William Henry Jones began work at Salida Easter Sunday. Brother Jones comes from Palmyra, Mo. He comes to Colorado commended as "one of the best young men in the state of Missouri." This is high commendation. F. S. Cook is compelled to leave Salida on account of the health of his family. He will go to Portland, Oregon.

J. H. Mohorter is having good success at the Central church, Pueblo. Four young men were baptized the first week in April. The Sunday-school attendance has increased about 33 per cent without boom methods. When Brother Mohorter went to this church there was a debt of about $800. This has been provided for. The parson and family will, by and by, be in a brand-new parsonage.

S. M. Bernard preaches to fine audiences in Boulder. Under his ministry souls turn to God. Four were recently baptized. We are receiving persons into the South Broadway church as a result of Brother Bernard's work with us last February. He has recently preached his forty-second sermon on "The Books of the Bible." Brother Bernard says that the interest in these discourses is greater than when he began the series sixteen months ago. The house was crowded to hear the discourse on, "The Epistle of James."

The American Christian Missionary Society expended in Colorado, from 1883 to 1891, about $3,000.

Brother E. F. Harris has recently organized "The Society of Applied Christianity." Address him at Longmont for information. This organization is national and interdenominational.

B. B. TYLER.

Denver, Colorado.

* *

A Remedy for Epilepsy.

Out of deep sympathy for our readers who are afflicted with epilepsy, we wish to give the following information:

Our son suffered from this dreadful disease from childhood and had the attacks daily, and often as high as eight and ten times a day. All medicines and doctors were of no use—his case was considered hopeless. The more medicines he used the worse he became. Somewhat over two years ago we heard of a doctor who had, after thirty years of hard study, found a cure. As hopeless as our case was, we decided to try this doctor. One of our ministers from there wrote us that he was personally acquainted with the doctor and knew of the most incurable cases, some of which were of thirty and forty years' standing, which had received help, and had been enabled to enjoy good health thereafter. We put our boy under treatment, and at once were aware of a change for the better. The first five weeks he had but one spell a week, then followed weeks in which he had none; the last two spells he had occurred two years ago, and otherwise his health is bettered. Thanks to God! Any further information will be cheerfully given to any one who may inquire. REV. E. R. IRMSCHER, City Missionary and Editor of "Our Visitor," 643 Olive St., St. Paul, Minn.

You want to know how to get my lamp-chimneys.

(1) Your grocer sells them, if he is fit to be your grocer; may be he don't.

(2) If you'll write me, I'll send you my Index; that tells everything

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

Illinois.

John W. Street, who preached regularly at Shirley and attends Eureka college, dropped out of his regular work long enough to hold a little meeting at Martinton with 50 additions. This gave me a chance of an extra visit to Shirley, where any messenger of the gospel finds a cordial welcome. This is a splendid church with a very wide range of unoccupied territory. Eureka men have usually done its preaching and a number of its children have enjoyed the benefits of the college.

A few hours at Atlanta with our preacher, S. S. Lappin, is always refreshing. The church has enjoyed an excellent meeting the past winter, held by the pastor and J. W. Kilborn. This is one of the most public-spirited and truly aggressive churches of the state. All departments are well sustained. A Eureka college calendar hangs in its Christian Endeavor room, as would be well to hang in every Christian Endeavor room of the state.

L. E. Chase, the energetic young minister at Armington, is getting a good hold of the work and is much loved by his people. The Armington church has a great field and is able by consecration and sacrifice to build up one of the strongest and most useful churches among us. The field is practically left to us and such a responsibility should not rest lightly upon the church.

J. E. Couch and his devoted wife are worthy leaders of the church at Minier. This is one of the unfortunate churches in the midst of a large foreign population who insist on having saloons in the otherwise beautiful little town in a very rich part of Illinois. The faithfulness of the church is the hope of the place. It may take a long hard fight, but the Lord never fails to lead his forces to victory finally if they are loyal to him. Let no man desert to the enemy, let the position of the church be clear before the community, and victory will come if it takes a whole generation.

Bro. Geo. Southgate, a student from Eureka college, supplies the good little church of Lilly. It numbers about 100 members and was organized about 68 years ago. This is the home of the Lindseys. John Lindsey went to Bethany college from this community, graduated and returned to Eureka as teacher more than half a century ago. D. A. Lindsey, our good preacher, now of Mt. Pulaski, was raised here. Lilly has been a constant recruiting station for other places all these years, and still is and hopes ever to be.

The Pekin church is enjoying a great season of prosperity under the ministry of J. A. Barnett, who graduated at Eureka a year ago. He held his own meeting the past winter with 70 additions. All departments of the church have taken on new life and if all are willing to make proper sacrifices and work together, each willing to push forward, there is a bright future for the Pekin church even amidst the great difficulties which surround it.

We hope all friends and former students of Eureka college are planning to attend our great jubilee commencement June 11-15.

Eureka, Ill. J. G. WAGGONER.

* *

Chicago.

Chicago work is full of activity just now. The evangelistic campaign of the winter is over, but its results are still being observed. The campaign was of brief duration, but as results are counted in the city it was successfully conducted. City problems are intricate when counting results. There were evangelists in these meetings with a record of many more additions in a single meeting than came into all the Chicago churches during this campaign. Many good people who are accustomed to such observations in the country are inclined to ask, Why? The question is suggestive at least. Only they who have worked in both fields can properly answer it.

Another incident, a pleasant one indeed, has been the presence of the Editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST among us. The occasion of it was the quarterly rally at the First Methodist church on Easter Sunday. His address was of lively interest and in the interest of wider evangelism in our cities; it is to be hoped it will find its way into the columns of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

There was an all day rally of the A. C. M. S. at the Jackson boulevard church on Monday, April 24. To this Brother Garrison remained as the chief speaker. His presence in any of our gatherings is wholesome. The rally was well attended morning and afternoon. A fitting close to the day was a banquet served by the King's Daughters from 6 to 8 p. m. After dinner addresses were made by Carl Bushnell in behalf of the Business Men's Association; and Mrs. E. M. Bowman on "Those Women"; Lloyd Darsie, "A Crisis and an Opportunity"; and "The Sinews of War," W. G. Sickel.

The day was wound up in a great patriotic meeting, with the music by the Jackson boulevard choir, and the address by Brother Garrison. Thus it will be seen that the Editor was

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

The first ten who clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and send to

DRAUGHON'S

PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.

COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mai FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

kept busy, and while perhaps weary from strenuous activity, he left many and lasting impressions for the larger good of our work. Our only regret is that he cannot be more often among us. ROBERT L. WILSON.

177 92nd St.

* *

Southeast Missouri District Convention.

The annual convention of the southeast Missouri district convened at Poplar Bluff, Wednesday evening, April 26. The opening sermon was preached by E. B. Widger of Kennett. Brother Widger is a new man in S. E. Missouri and this was his first convention. The admiration between preacher and people seemed to be mutual, for all were pleased to have Brother Widger with us and he seemed to enter into the deliberations of the convention with a zest and earnestness that made us feel that he greatly enjoyed his new field and surroundings. The convention began the next morning with an address of welcome by Col. H. N. Phillip of Poplar Bluff, followed by a response by Brother Widger. The report of the corresponding secretary and the roll call of the churches occupied the remainder of the morning session Thursday. The report and roll call seemed to be gratifying to the convention, as it showed a marked gain in workers and results over last year.

The afternoon of the same day was devoted to symposiums on Bible-school and Christian Endeavor work; the former led by Bro. I. R. Kelso and participated in by Brothers I. B. Dodson, of Higdon; R. F. Linn, of Dexter; T. A. Abbott, of Kansas City, and others. The latter symposium was conducted by myself and was participated in by H. E. Van Horn, the new pastor at Poplar Bluff, and E. B. Widger. At the evening session we were entertained by two masterly addresses; one by the president, Dr. Albert Buxton, of Dexter Christian college and the other by T. A. Abbott, of Kansas City.

Friday morning the convention was treated to a drive over the city of Poplar Bluff by the congregation of the local church and other citizens of the town. At the close of this delightful drive the convention devoted the remainder of the morning to a symposium on the "Needs of the Field," reports of committees and the election of officers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Albert Buxton; vice-president, I. R. Kelso; recording secretary, Miss Kynion; corresponding secretary, J. H. Tiller; treasurer, Horace Siberell. The afternoon session was in charge of the C. W. B. M., who rendered a very fine program. The convention closed with the sermon by G. A. Hoffmann, of St. Louis. At the close of the Friday evening session Brother and Sister Ruth gave to the convention at their palatial residence a very delightful reception which was enjoyed by all. Upon a whole this was one of the best conventions ever held in southeast Missouri, and every one left it feeling that the outlook for our work in this section is much more hopeful than for many years. The next convention goes to Dexter. HORACE SIBERELL.

* *

The Springfield (Mo.) District Convention.

This was a great meeting. It was an epoch-making meeting and went far above high water mark. The attendance was just double what was expected. It looked very much like a state convention. There were four reasons for this: First, it was held at Monett—a splendid railroad point near the center of the district. Second, the old preachers were there. Third, the ministers of the strong churches, such as Carthage, Joplin, Springfield and others, have become thoroughly identified with the work and are putting their hearts and lives into it. Fourth, and by no means least, Joseph Gaylor, the district evangelist and president of the convention, had done all in his power to work up a good convention.

The program was a delightful one and everybody on it was present. The addresses were among the most helpful we ever heard. W. J. Lhamon, dean of the Bible college, Columbia, Mo., was the chief speaker. His four addresses were highly appreciated and were delivered to crowded houses. The addresses of F. M. Hooten, T. A. Abbott, W. F. Turner, J. W. Baker, D. W. Moore, John A. Stevens, J. H. Jones and W. A. Moore were all worthy of the occasion and made a deep impression upon those who heard them. In addition to these there were other short speeches well rendered and the devotional services were exceptionally good. One lady, who evidently knew little about the Disciples and had not been in any of our meetings before, rose up in one of the devotional meetings and said, "I am a Baptist and I thank the Lord that the Campbellites have heartfelt religion."

Our ladies from the auxiliaries of our C. W. B. M. were present in full force. The way they managed their program is highly commendable to their wisdom and interest in the cause of Christ. Sisters L. G. Bantz and Miss Martha Stout were present from outside of the district and Sister Wm. Hall, district president, together with others from the district, made their part of the convention very profitable. The business of the convention was presented through the committees appointed for that purpose and was disposed of with enthusiasm and wisdom. Among other things Governor Folk was heartily endorsed for the enforcement of our Sunday laws. The work of holding Bible institutes in the churches by Professors Lhamon and Sharpe was heartily approved and the missionary meeting and institute were merged into one annual gathering, which will meet at Marionville, May 1, 1906.

Convention Notes.

Brethren Joseph Gaylor and J. T. McGarvey reported a new church organized at La Russell and money raised for new building.

F. M. Hooton is the political leader of his party in Webster county. He has been a great blessing to the churches of the county, and reports the cause of Christ advancing.

J. W. Alderson, Monett, is the veteran preacher of southwest Missouri and northern Arkansas. He attended every service and enjoyed the meetings heartily.

Clark Smith and W. B. Cochran were both on hand. The former has preached 37 years and the latter 33 years in southwest Missouri.

Joseph Gaylor made a capable presiding officer. He has had 1,200 additions in his work in southwest Missouri in five years.

John A. Stevens delivered the home mission address. Brother Stevens is from the New York of the south, Texas, and carries into his work all the vigor and strength of the state from which he hails.

The officers for the next year are, president, W. F. Turner; vice-president, J. R. Blunt; secretary, Robert Simons; treasurer, J. T. McGarvey. The work must succeed in such hands. G. A. HOFFMANN.

* *

Dedication at West Lebanon, Ind.

The church there now owns a very beautiful house of worship—a house that is a great credit to the church and the town. E. E. Adams is the very successful pastor of the church, and his work is being greatly blessed of God. I recently preached the opening sermon, raised all the money necessary to pay all debts and dedicated the house. It was a great pleasure to meet with the brethren there once more. In other years I baptized quite a number of them. L. L. CARPENTER.

Wabash, Ind.

LIFE SAVED BY SWAMP-ROOT

The Wonderful Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

SAMPLE BOTTLE SENT FREE BY MAIL.

Swamp-Root, discovered by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, promptly cures kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Some of the early symptoms of weak kidneys are pain or dull ache in the back, rheumatism, dizziness, headache, nervousness, catarrh of the bladder, gravel or calculi, bloating, sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, suppression of urine, or compelled to pass water often day and night.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, liver, bladder or uric acid trouble you will find it just the remedy you need.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and a pamphlet that tells all about it, including many of the thousands of letters received from sufferers cured, both sent free by mail. Write Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and please be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

To Southern Disciples.

If home and foreign missions are the two wings of the church, have not we southern Disciples badly disabled her by clipping one of her wings? Last year the church of Christ in six of the southern states made the following report as to the amount given for foreign missions, for home missions, and the amount received from the home board as supplement to the work being done in these weak states:

	Foreign missions	Home missions	Rec'd from home b'd.
Alabama	$ 592.13	$319.21	$1.500.00
Florida	1,318.97	193.46	1,100.00
Georgia	2,739.59	897.12	750.00
Louisiana	510.78	338.07	1,400.00
Mississippi	323.16	203.85	500.00
South Carolina	309.52	222.29	700.00
	$5,794.15	$2,174.00	$5,950.00

Thus it will be seen that we gave $5,794.15 for foreign missions, only $2,174 for home missions, while we received from the home board as supplemental to our own efforts $5,950. We helped to greatly reduce the home board's receipts and thus compelled a reduction in the supplements to our work, for the home board can appropriate only that which it receives. Surely we can blame only ourselves for this reduction in the supplement to our work.

But it seems a pity to compel the home board to reduce its aid to our work when we are accomplishing so very much. I plead with you to let us all join hands and hearts to make foreign mission offerings no less, but home mission offerings much more, so that our work in the home land and especially in our south land be not retarded. Let us roll up the largest offering in our history for home missions the first Lord's day in May. Our opportunities were never more auspicious. A little money will do much for the Lord's work in our section. The home board appreciates our opportunities and is well pleased with our expenditure of the money entrusted to us. It will put much more money here if enabled by the May offering to do so, and if we show our appreciation of what it has done and is doing for us. Send all offerings to B. L. Smith, Cincinnati, Ohio, Y. M. C. A. building. O. P. Spiegel.

Birmingham, Ala.

"The Star of San Francisco."

Alameda, Cal., April 21, 1905.

Christian-Evangelist:—The star of San Francisco, 1905, is in the ascendant. The prospects for a great convention are growing brighter and brighter. The committee of arrangements, under the skillful management of Chairman Walter M. White, pastor of the West Side Christian church, San Francisco, has the entire enterprise well in hand. Weekly meetings of the general and sub-committees are held, and reports received, suggestions made and discussed, plans adopted, and measures of all kinds working to the general advancement of the convention interests set on foot. The absolute harmony and splendid industry with which all are working, proves that California and the Pacific Coast will feel themselves proud in the matter of entertaining the convention of 1905.

The hall question, which has been a serious one every since our conventions began to be of ordinary size, has possibly been settled better in San Francisco than perhaps for a long time. All who have attended the large conventions will remember that it is impossible to hear more than a small part of what the speakers said, if the meeting place was a large one, and then that splendid stimulus and enthusiasm, gathered from the gathering in a single place of great numbers under the impulse of a common purpose, was entirely lost where it was found necessary to split the convention up into various gatherings, meeting in more or less widely separated buildings. The convention of 1905 will have for its disposal two large auditoriums seating about 1,500 persons each, which are not widely separated but directly contiguous to each other, so that while each person in attendance will be able to hear every word spoken from the platform, yet the two parts of the convention will not be widely separated from each other, thus none of the mass effect of the convention will be lost. The program will be adapted to meet this condition, and delegates can thus choose the sessions which they will attend, and may be sure they will miss nothing of importance that transpires through not being in the other building; at the same time should they wish to change to the other, it is but the work of a minute to do so, as they do not even have to cross the street, but simply step from one auditorium into the other.

The widest possible interest is being manifested in the convention by people at large in California. The evangelistic campaign being planned by our bureau of evangelism is being seized upon with avidity by the churches. There is not a doubt in the world but that we will see our plea proclaimed and understood and appreciated on the Pacific Coast as it never has been before. We are not saying that our convention will be the greatest in point of attendance, but we think we hear enough from those who are coming to be assured that the attendance will be very large. We believe that the figure named by one of the general secretaries, of eight to eleven thousand delegates, will not be too high.

This is an opportunity to visit beautiful California and the wonderful northwest, and attend one of our greatest conventions at the same time. Who is there, who can possibly come, who is willing to hear it said to him next fall, "We had a great convention in San Francisco and you were not there"?

WHEN SLEEP FAILS

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Half a teaspoon in half a glass of water just before retiring brings refreshing sleep.

It is not too early to plan for attendance. Write to general chairman, W. M. White, 2520 Bush St., for information of any sort.

P. C. Macfarlane.

South Kentucky.

Will you allow me space in your fresh and newsy columns to say a few things about our south Kentucky work and our coming convention, which meets in the city of Hopkinsville May 22, 23, 24 and 25.

In regard to our work in south Kentucky we not only have reason to rejoice over what has been done, but we are constantly living in the joyful anticipation of what may be done.

September 29, 1904, found me speeding on my way to this south Kentucky field from Paris, Ark., where I had served the church for two years. A few days were spent in St. Louis, during which we had a pleasant time in the busy workshop of the Christian-Evangelist. My daughter and I, together with Miss Mabel Wood, of Paris, started for Lexington where they both entered Campbell-Hagerman college. Thursday, October 4, I left Lexington for my future home and field of labor—Hopkinsville and the 33 counties of southwest Kentucky constituting the territory of the south Kentucky Christian missionary and Sunday-school association. The end of April completed the seventh month I have been in this field. During the time some 25 or 30 places have been visited, three protracted meetings have been held and 40 souls have been brought into fellowship with God and his son, Jesus Christ. About $1,200 have been secured for the support of the work and our small debt is gradually giving way.

Now we look for a moment into the joy of anticipation. In the first place there is a gratifying increase among all of God's people in south Kentucky, of confidence. There is also a disposition to be more liberal, as we must have a larger increase in missionary funds if we would meet our sacred obligations to the Lord. Then again we are expecting a large increase of attendance at our next south Kentucky convention, which meets in this city May 22-25. Let me tell you what we have in store for those who come. Monday evening, May 22, the C. W. B. M. will begin a session which will last till Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock; followed by a rousing mass meeting of Sunday-school children and workers. S. W. Bedford, of Owensboro, one of the best Sunday-school men in all south Kentucky, will have charge. W. M. Forrest, of Virginia, will address the people during the sessions of the C. W. B. M. If we had no other attraction to insure a large attendance to our convention this would be enough in itself. But "the half has not been told." Nearly every phase of the Lord's work will be discussed—chiefly, however, our own south Kentucky work. Such men as T. D. Moore, C. E. Moore and W. H. Pinkerton will make addresses in which the field, missionary forces and spiritual preparation will be discussed.

F. Fowler, "the old man eloquent," will address us on "The Church, what is it, and its final destiny?"

Then we are to have a rare treat on the general theme, "New Testament Evangelism," divided into three subjects as follows: "The Message," by John W. Ligon, "The Method," by W. T. Wells, and Howard J. Brazleton will close on "Its Assured Victory."

Thursday afternoon the Sunday school workers will have the right of way. John S. Crenshaw, of Cadiz, will have charge of this part of the convention. He is certainly one of the best Sunday-school superintendents in Kentucky. He will be assisted by John C. Gates, of Princeton, Prof. Charles Evans, of Marion, S. W. Bedford, of Owensboro, and Robert M. Hopkins, of Louisville. All this gives promise of one of the best conventions, if not the best, we have ever had.

Thursday evening, H. W. Elliott, of Sulphur, will give the final address on "The Crime of Twentieth Century Disciples."

I wish you had space for the full program. Come to see us and we will do thee good. One and one-third fare rates plus 25 cents on certificate plan for all who will come. Free entertainment to all who will write Harry D. Smith. W. J. Hudspeth.

Hopkinsville.

State Bible-School Notes.

We have a new school at Hickory Grove in Platte county. L. S. Cupp deserves the credit. A hundred preachers in Missouri should call the people together in the country districts near them, and set them to work. You who are interested in the souls of men, how can you keep from doing this? Where there are a dozen children and no Bible-school, some one is sinning. "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

Holt, Platte and Lafayette county rallies were each a success, because of the leadership of Brethren Peters, Cupp and Coil. Your secretary can speak to representatives of all the schools in your county as well as to one school, and several other adddresses may be given during the day.

The strong schools may not feel the need of the rally, but the weaker ones are very appreciative and are benefited very much. Brethren, it is largely in your hands to decide how much good shall be done in this spring campaign.

The red and blue contest seems to be taking on new life. We have explanatory circulars for you free. Marquand says: "Had contest last October. Increased from 20 to 60 and still enthusiastic and ready for a meeting."

A Lafayette county teacher says: "Every scholar in my class reads the Bible every day." Marshall's superintendent says: "One hundred and thirty out of two hundred and twenty-five read the Bible every day last week, and forty-one from the school obeyed the gospel during the meeting."

We are asking every preacher in the state to

POPULAR HYMNS No. 2

By C. C. CLINE

Now used by
Thousands of Churches Everywhere
in the land.

The Popular Song Book
with the People.

PRICES:

SINGLE COPIES, POSTPAID.
Limp cloth, - 25 cents Boards, - 25 cents
Cloth, - 30 cents
PER DOZEN, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $2.00 Boards, - - $2.50
Cloth, - $3.00
PER HUNDRED, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $15.00 Boards, - $20.00
Cloth, - $25.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

preach a sermon on some phase of the Bible-school work before our June convention. Judging by remarks a large per cent will do so. Some have chosen children's day; others the second Lord's day in June. Choose your own time, but preach the sermon.

R. B. Havener reports twenty-nine days in the field last month. He will have a fine report at Marshall convention June 16 21, and you will be glad you have helped to keep him in the field. W. A. Moore.

Mexico, Mo.

Indiana State Convention, Bedford, May 16, 17, 18.

Tuesday, 2:00 p. m.—Fellowship meeting, addresses by L. L. Carpenter, D. R. Lucas and others.

8:00 p. m.—"The Christian Religion—All Comprehensive and All Conquering," by L. M. Sniff.

Wednesday—Address by A. McLean, sermon by Vernon Stauffer, reports of state evangelist, corresponding secretary, treasurer, address by J. O. Rose.

Afternoon—Sunday-school, Primary and Junior work. Address, J. H. Craig, "Our Duty to Increase." "Evangelistic Facts, Fields, and Forces" by E. B. Barnes. Round Table conference.

Evening—"State Work From the Viewpoint of the Pastor," P. J. Rice. "State Work From the Viewpoint of the State Evangelist," T. J. Legg.

Thursday.—Business. "Church Extension," by Chas. A. Finch. A Conference on Practical Needs, Ways and Means. Address, L. E. Sellers.

Afternoon.—Address, "Men and the Arms" by W. E. Garrison. C. W. B. M. address by W. J. Russell.

Evening.—Address, "On the Firing Line," by Earl Wilfley.

Railway Rates: One fare plus 25 cents for the round trip from points in the state of Indiana, except where the regular one way fare to Bedford is less than $1.00 when the additional 25 cents will not be required.

The First Christian church of Bedford, Ind., will entertain the state convention. A cordial invitation is given for all who can attend to come and make it the banner convention. We will esteem it a great favor to have prospective delegates send their names beforehand so that our committee may arrange assignments before the convention begins. Send all names to the undersigned. Mrs. E. R. Dobbins.

1121 West Fifteenth St., Bedford, Ind.

The Missouri Christian Endeavor Increase Campaign.

The increase campaign is now on in the societies. The following societies have asked for samples of the plan and how to work it: Gallatin, Darlington, King Hill, St. Joseph, Higginsville, Holden, Columbia, Appleton City, Elsberry, Maitland, South Street, Springfield, Bethany, Garden City, Independence, Troy, Second church, St. Louis, Lexington, Rothville, Windsor, Mound City, California.

No society can afford to be left out of this effort at a forward move in Christian Endeavor work. The campaign lasts until June, first Sunday. As soon as you inaugurate the campaign let me know, so I can enter your society as one competing for the banner to be given at Marshall for the largest actual increase by the first Sunday in June.

If you have not heard of the plan in your society, it is possible that your corresponding secretary has put the plans in a pigeon-hole and let you take the consequences. The superintendent sent a notice slip of the campaign to every society on his list, about five hundred. Ask your corresponding secretary to bring out that communication and have it read to the society, or get a new corresponding secretary.

The matter of increase in members is not all the plan contemplates. To get more systematic and liberal offerings is a much needed work in most societies. The plan looks toward this end. Why not? I never could see why some people act as though it were a sin to work a plan to get money in religious work. We have dozens of societies, and churches, too, in the land that do not seem to think it a sin to let bills go unpaid, but the first mention of a plan to increase receipts brings a wonderfully quick development of the conscience on this subject.

Money and numbers do not bring all that is needed. Prompt attendance is a matter of great moment in the work. The plan takes note of attendance on time. That is half the victory: prompt attendance.

Numbers, money and prompt attendance, while they make up a large part of our work, are not all, and by no means the one thing most needful. Taking part prayerfully and spiritually is the goal we all seek. In connection with the effort to increase and better our societies let us look to the development of the members in the exercise of the gift in public worship.

Then, along the line of evangelism, is a great work for our societies. To get a large list of associate members is to get a harvest of souls ready for the pastor or evangelist in the coming meeting.

If we get busy in some such work as herein mentioned, we will have no time to lament the decline of Christian Endeavor.

Write me at once for particulars. Who will be first this week? H. A. Denton, Missouri Supt. of C. E. for the Christian church.

Louisiana State Convention, Monroe, May 23, 24, 25, 26.

Tuesday Evening.—President's annual address. G. L. Snively on the N. B. A. Appointment of committees, etc.

Wednesday.—Reports. "World Wide Missions," Marcellus Ely.

Afternoon.—C. W. B. M. session.

Evening.—"The Churches and Our Schools," B. C. Caldwell. "Our Duty to America," W. J. Wright.

Thursday.—"Pastors' Problems," by Roy Linton Porter. "Looking Forward" by F. M. McCarthy. "The Mississippi Plan" by W. W. Phares.

Afternoon.—Addresses by Marcellus Ely, W. S. Buchanan, L. C. Wilson.

Evening.—Reports of Committee on Resolutions. "Church Extension." "The Greater Evangelism."

Ministerial Exchange.

If a good church paying from $700 to $1,000 salary will write me, I will put them in touch with a good consecrated man. Address, S. J. Corey, Cor. Sec. New York, Rochester, N. Y.

Have time for one more meeting on account of cancelled date. Can come with or without singer. Address, Evangelist C. R. L. Vawter, Indianapolis, Ind.

Wanted:—Preacher to supply pulpit in May and June; $10 per Sunday. Address, W. R. Jinnett, Columbus, Ind.

Churches desiring to employ a capable young preacher with experience, having best of reference, may address immediately, "Christian Preacher," Concord, Ill.

A minister, age thirty-three, educated and experienced, would be pleased to correspond with some church with a view of locating. Received, last year $900. Address, Christian Minister, 90 M. D., University of Chicago. Chicago, Ill.

Young minister desires to preach for two or more churches within 50 miles of St. Louis. Address, Minister, 605 North Vandeventer Ave.

The church at Sheridan, Mo., desires to locate a minister for half time. Other churches in easy reach. Correspondents desired. They may address Judge J. H. Nash, or Newton Long at that place.

Wanted:—Three preachers for town and country churches. Salary from $600 to $800 per year. We want men who can give good recommendations. Address, J. E. Davis, secretary of Nodaway Valley district, Stanberry, Mo.

Changes.

J. N. Thomas, Normal to Saybrook, Ill.
John Young, Albany, Mo., to Lodi, Cal.
F. G. Tyrrell, St. Louis to Fruitvale, Cal.
C. E. Chambers, Coalgate, I. T., to Mystic, Iowa.
O. C. Bolman, Pleasant Hill to Mason City, Ill.
A. Immanuel Zeller, Bay City, Mich., to P. O. Box 5, Farmer City, Ill.
Andrew Scott, Normal to 720 Bowman avenue, Danville, Ill.
W. O. Stephens, Baton Rouge, La., to Athens, Texas.
C. B. Dabney, Rushville to Barry, Ill.

A. C. M. S.

We feel that the time has come to rally all friends of home missions to the support of the board. If the enlargement of the work, the payment of debt, the pushing of home missions to the front, deserves support, we ask our friends to rally, and very greatly increase our income.

We have stretched our cords now to their fullest extent in enlargement; either the cords must be lengthened or they will break, and appropriations will have to be cut down in every direction. If the churches would only hear our cry and give us $200,000 for home missions, what a work we could do!

Benj. L. Smith, secretary.

The Denton Party to the General Convention.

This party will be the official party for the Endeavorers of all the state and for the churches in North Missouri, Mr. Denton having been appointed Excursion Manager for North Missouri by the Convention authorities at San Francisco. Let all those who come within this territory write at once for full particulars concerning the first and happiest delegation leaving old Missouri for the Convention.

Train leaves Kansas City at 11:00 a.m. Aug. 7. For the Northwest delegation the train leaves St. Joseph same day at 7:30 a. m. Both trains over the Santa Fe. They will come together at Topeka.

You can have your choice of Pullman, Tourist, or Chair Car.

This party will be personally conducted from start to finish by Mr. Denton. We can give you any length of trip and any kind of trip desired.

Will preachers and Superintendents in the territory please announce at church, and help to take a great crowd to the convention.

Write at once to H. A. Denton, Supt. of C. E. in Mo. and Excursion Manager for North Mo., Maryville, Mo.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

Chillicothe, Mo., May 8.—Sixty additions in first 15 days; 16 yesterday; home forces.—Crutcher and Wagner.

[Telegram.]

South Bend, Ind., May 7.—Scoville and Smith are here; 25 added to-day; 97 in ten days; crowds turned away to-night; continuing.—P. J. Rice, pastor.

ARKANSAS.

De Queen, May 4.—Preached twice the fourth Lord's day in April five miles from here. Two additions, one man 70 years old. —W. O. Breeden.

CALIFORNIA.

Norwalk, April 26.—R. L. McHatton, of Santa Rosa, closed a 16 days' meeting here last night with 21 additions—18 by confession, two from the Baptists and one by statement. Since last report we have had five additions at regular services—three by letter and two by confession.—J. R. Jolly, minister.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington, May 2.—Additions reported at ministers' meeting yesterday: Ninth street (E. B. Bagby), three by letter; Vt. avenue (F. D. Power), ten, one by letter and nine baptisms; 15th street (J. E. Stuart), two confessions; Whitney avenue (Walter F. Smith), three baptisms; H street (J. Murray Taylor), one confession; 34th street (Claude C. Jones), five, two by letter and three baptisms. Total, 24, six by letter and 18 by confession and baptism. The semiannual report of 9th street church shows the following increase: Number added to church, 110, Sunday-school 101, C. W. B. M., 17, Christian Endeavor, 44. W. R. D. Winters has been called to continue as assistant pastor. Whitney avenue church has broken ground for a new building.—Claude C. Jones, secretary.

ENGLAND.

London, April 22.—We have concluded a first class mission at the West London tabernacle, with Dr. J. Q. O. Henry, of New York City, and Mr. J. Raymond Hemminger. Good audiences, splendid interest, earnest work, and good results occurred. Children's services and Bible studies were held in the afternoons. Midnight parades each Saturday night were successful in bringing in many, and converting some of the broken fragments of manhood and womanhood from public house and street and slum. The difficulty of this district makes the results more remarkable. About 170 adults and 80 children made profession. The percentage who will take membership with us will be smaller than in American churches for numerous and English reasons. We are much cheered and strengthened by this effort.—Mark Wayne Williams.

ILLINOIS.

Quincy.—We almost doubled the amount raised last year for foreign missions and double the number had a share in the giving. Three additions, two by statement and one by confession of faith.—Walter M. Jordan.

Chicago Heights, May 1.—One young lady confessed her faith in Christ at yesterday's service.—Harry E. Tucker.

Carbondale, May 1.—Three received into membership yesterday. Last night the people crowded the auditorium and lecture room to witness Easter exercises. For our splendid orphans' home work in St. Louis, nearly $25 was given.—A. M. Growden.

Lake Fork.—Baptized three Easter Sunday, and one Wednesday, April 26. This makes 68 members received on this field since Jan. 20, 1905. I was called to Bellflower, Thursday, April 27, to preach the funeral of Thos. Bradberry.—J. D. Williams, minister.

Armington, April 27.—Our work is very much alive. Interest and attendance increase as the spring opens up. March 5 we raised $81 for foreign missions; our apportionment was $30. There was rain and mud but people came for miles just the same to attend our missionary rally. Have recently organized an aid society. It promises to be a most helpful auxiliary. A Junior Christian Endeavor and young ladies' missionary circle will soon be organized. Our church and Bible-school raised $200 for our Benevolent Association and our ladies sent the little folks 36 dozen eggs for Easter. During the past seven months we have raised $450 for missions and benevolences, our church numbers less than 250 members. Two added Easter Sunday and one at our prayer-meeting Wednesday evening, making 19 at regular services since October 1. April 18 we voted our town "dry" by a majority of 25.—L. E. Chase.

Champaign, May 1.—Our meeting, with John Marshall, of Waco, Texas, evangelist, closed April 16, with 230 added. Brother Marshall did us splendid work. A neighboring pastor says, "He preaches the naked gospel." Bro. C. E. Millard as leader of song and soloist rendered us most excellent aid. Six were added at last night's service, a total of nine since the close of the meeting. We are installing a new pipe organ this week and hope to inauguarate a free lectureship during this month, a plan by which some one of the leaders of thought and life in our brotherhood may be heard each month by our people and the community in general. These events will, we hope, greatly increase our usefulness both in the local and the student community.—Stephen E. Fisher, pastor.

INDIANA.

New Albany.—S. M. Martin's meeting at Park church closed with 19 accessions; two by statement, 17 by confession and baptism.—Wm. A. Ward.

Kendallville, May 1.—One confession last night and one from Baptists April 23. Offering for state missions $32. Junior Easter offering over $25. New members added to every organization of the church during April; 67 additions since Jan. 8, 1905. The church will help home missions toward the front on May 7.—J. D. Hull, minister.

Rensselaer, May 1.—We closed a meeting here last evening in which there were 25 additions—19 by confession and baptism. There have been 35 accessions to the church since the first of January. The church is prospering and the outlook is bright for the future.—G. H. Clarke, pastor.

Waveland, May 3.—One added by confession and baptism Sunday evening. Twelve have thus been added to the church here since my coming, and one by letter. Have been chosen by the senior class to deliver the so-called baccalaureate sermon May 7. The church building has recently been beautifully frescoed, the ladies' aid society being the moving force. We are pushing home missions now.—S. D. Watts, minister.

Frankfort, May 1.—Our work in this charming city, and with this excellent congregation, is progressing nicely. This is a splendid church, made up of many earnest workers. The congregations are large, and the outlook for the future is one of greatest promise. During the past month there have been 12 additions.—W. J. Russell, pastor.

Sullivan, May 1.—Since David R. Francis, our minister, took charge of this work over three years ago no report of his labors among us has appeared in our papers, so the official board requested the undersigned to report. During this time every branch of our church work has enjoyed a most healthy and substantial growth. It has not been of the "fits and starts" kind, but steady and substantial. Sister Francis organized the first successful "Junior" we have had; and in three years it has become the "banner society" within this state and bids fair to hold the place. Brother Francis has recently closed his third series of protracted meetings among us, at which 69 were added to the membership, 50 of these by "primary obedience." The majority were men. Much credit is due to Mrs. Francis who had charge of the music and the opening exercises each night. This meeting has been pronounced by men who have lived here over half a century as "one of the three greatest meetings ever held in this community." The house was full almost every night and scores frequently went away for want of room.—Robert Taylor, elder.

Warsaw, April 25.—It can be said in all truth that the work at Warsaw is prospering. The interior of the church building has been recently redecorated at a cost of $250, the greater part of which has been paid and the balance provided for. It meant something of a sacrifice on the part of the people to make this needed improvement at this time, as there is the necessity of raising $500 to apply on church debt this year, as well as the running expenses of the church. We added new lights for the auditorium, and moreover, the money for the debt fund is already well cared for, and the time will find the amount in hand. All expenses of the church are paid promptly—there is but a trifle owing on old bills, and these will be paid in the near future. There is a growth in grace along all lines. Three accessions since last writing; 31 in all since Jan. 1. Would like to hear from an efficient evangelist for a meeting later. Write fully terms. —Edward O. Tilburn, minister.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Pryor Creek.—I am in a meeting here. Meeting eleven days old; 23 added. Continuing.—S. R. Hawkins, corresponding secretary.

Okmulgee, April 27.—Our meeting still continues with fine interest. We are really having the first favorable weather since the meeting began, yet we have had good attendance and much to encourage from the start. There have been 32 accessions to date. We will continue at least a week longer.—Van Voorhis and Dew.

JAPAN.

Tokyo, March 29.—Nine baptisms at our Ushgome church, four at Hachioji, and one at Takahaya; three of these from Miss Wirick's work.—P. A. Davey.

IOWA.

Osceola, May 1.—The church here is prospering. There were four accessions yesterday, three by confession and one by letter. We have just closed an 18 days' meeting at the Lewis church, eight miles out in the country, which resulted in 55 accessions and an organization with 80 members.—H. E. Van Horn.

Lafayette.—There were two confessions and baptisms, a man and wife, recently. The work prospers at both Lafayette and Alburnett, —B. F. Shoemaker.

Des Moines, May 1.—Three additions by letter at Grant Park yesterday. The church is planning to put in new pews very soon. The outlook is encouraging.—R. Tibbs Maxey, minister.

Des Moines, May 2.—There were 20 additions at the University church here, April 23, eight of them confessions, and three of the eight were from other churches, including a husband and wife who had been very active in church work in New England, and had never heard our plea, but had always wanted to find something like it.—S. C. SLAYTON.

Waterloo, May 1.—Three confessions and two baptisms here yesterday; four confessions Easter Sunday; 23 accessions since we came here the last of November. No revival meeting. Our ladies have completed their "sample sale," and it netted us about $500, which will be applied on our new lot.—MRS. IDA C. GARWICK.

KANSAS.

Caldwell, May 1.—Two by confession last night after the benediction had been pronounced; one by letter not reported.—LEE H. BARNUM.

Lawrence, May 1.—Three by confession at morning service yesterday—all young ladies and sisters. A special sermon to young people in the evening; at the close of the service two young ladies, making five in all yesterday. One young lady to be baptized is a member of the Methodist church, but desires immersion. This makes 45 added since I came here.—W. T. CLARKSON.

Topeka, May 2.—We have just closed a four weeks' meeting with the Fourth church. There were 112 additions, about 80 of them by confession and baptism. This church and the Sunday-school is as perfectly organized as the Japanese army; every member has the utmost confidence in the pastor (Charles A. Finch) and the success of the Master's cause. There were no adverse criticisms on the pastor, nor evangelist, nor singer, nor plans. The success of the meeting was due very largely to the splendid preparations made by the pastor before the meeting began.—H. A. NORTHCUTT, evangelist; V. E. RIDENOUR, singer.

Oxford, May 1.—I began my second year's work here with all in good shape. The church and every department on the honor roll. The church more than doubled our foreign mission offering; the Junior offering on Easter was $40. The average attendance at Junior is over 50. Our Bible-school has increased during the year about one-third. Thirty-four added to Oxford church this year. Although we gave Easter to the Juniors, we will not forget the little and helpless ones. One added from the M. E. church since last report.—B. F. STALLINGS.

KENTUCKY.

Sturgis, May 4.—We concluded a nine days' meeting at this place on Monday night, May 1. Ten additions, all by confession and baptism, and all from the Sunday-school.—J. W. LIGON, minister.

MINNESOTA.

Plain View, May 2.—Meeting goes nicely—17 added. Close Thursday night.—ATWOOD AND GARDNER.

MISSISSIPPI.

McComb City, May 6.—We had five confessions at regular service Sunday, and three were baptized at baptismal service Monday night. This makes 15 additions at regular services since January. Allen Wilson will be with us in June. We expect this meeting to set an example before other Mississippi churches.—W. W. PHARES.

MISSOURI.

Chillicothe, May 5.—Twenty-seven additions to date; 22 the first week, mostly confessions. We continue indefinitely. The whole town is stirred as never before. J. N. Crutcher is the minister.—CLARENCE E. WAGNER, singer.

Hannibal, May 4.—Easter Sunday was decision day in the Sunday-school and 15 made the confession. The movement was continued on April 30 and nine more came, making 24 in all. These young people came forward at the regular morning service in the church.—LEVI MARSHALL.

Trenton, May 4.—We began work here five months ago. Since then there have been 17 additions. The Bible-school has an enrollment of 350, a gain of 150 per cent. An auxiliary to the C. W. B. M. has been organized and $3,000 paid on the church debt. The church membership is nearly 600. The outlook is bright.—S. J. WHITE, minister.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Kingston.—The Martin family have closed a 15 days' meeting with 142 additions and great crowds at every service.

OHIO.

Findlay, May 2.—Monthly report for April—thirteen baptisms and one letter.—C. H. BASS, pastor First church.

Alliance, May 4.—Thirty-four added here up to date. Among the number is the general freight agent of the L. E. A. & W. Ry. and his wife. Bro. A. B. Moore is a host in himself. He is fast bringing the cause here out of a chaotic state.—R. A. OMER.

Bellefontaine, May 7.—We held a two weeks' meeting which closed on Easter Sunday with 25 accessions. W. E. M. Hackleman led in the music and added much to the success of the service. Easter offering for church debt $470.—W. T. GROOM.

Painesville, April 28.—I closed our work at Painesville, April 30 and began at Paulding, May 6. There have been four accessions at Painesville in the last three weeks. On Wednesday evening, April 26, the Christian Endeavorers took possession of the parsonage. Tokens of remembrance were left behind for both the pastor and his wife. It goes without saying that our joy was full. Painesville has a most excellent C. E. society. C. A. Freer, of Collinwood, has accepted a call from Painesville and will begin work about June 1.—J. P. MEYERS.

OKLAHOMA.

Lawton, May 1.—We are in the midst of a good meeting at this place; 12 accessions yesterday, making 33 in all. L. F. Stephens is doing the preaching and his wife leading the song service.—W. T. MORRISON, pastor.

Blackwell, May 1.—One young man united with the church last night. Baptized six persons in the river yesterday afternoon. Just closed a short meeting for the benefit of the church. Work is going nicely; 25 new pupils at Sunday-school yesterday.—ISOM ROBERTS.

Oklahoma City, May 1.—We have just closed a series of meetings, with some 56 additions to the congregation in this city, and much good accomplished otherwise. John T. Hawkins, of South McA'ester, I. T., was with us something over three weeks and did us most excellent work.—S. B. MOORE, pastor.

OREGON.

Salem, May 3.—S. M. Martin is in a meeting here, where D. Errett ministers. Charles E. McVay is song leader and soloist.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Ellwood City, April 30.—April 30 was one of the best days in the history of our church in this place. At Bible-school 116 in attendance; a deep and abiding interest; 100 present at morning service and house packed at the evening worship; many are inquiring the way.—FERD F. SCHULTZ, minister.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, May 6.—The Bible-school of the Manton Christian church had an average attendance for April of 78, out of a total enrollment of 90; the collections averaged $2.69. We had one confession on Easter Sunday, and one baptism April 30. Next Lord's day we celebrate our thirty-fifth anniversary. At that service the pastor, Bro. C. W. Bruninghaus, will give a history of our work here and its relation to the work of the brotherhood at large. The work at Manton is the best in its history, and we are planning for greater things in the future.—HENRY A. BLAKE.

VIRGINIA.

Newport News, May 1.—Meeting closed last night with ten added. Our Easter offering paid the last of our building debt and left some money in the treasury. Beginning plans now to remodel and enlarge our house of worship. Sunday-school offering for Virginia missions went beyond our apportionment first Lord's day in April.—MILO ATKINSON.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Bluefield, April 22.—We have just closed a meeting here with home forces which lasted 34 days. The immediate results were 28 confessions, 16 united by statement, three by letter, three reclaimed, two from the Methodists and one from the Baptists, 53 in all. The congregation is greatly encouraged and strengthened and is in a position for better work in the future than for some time past. Much valuable information has been secured that will be a help in the future. Seed has been planted in many hearts that will yet yield a harvest. Services were held only at night except on Sundays and the attendance and interest were good until the close. The writer did all the preaching except one able sermon which was preached by Bro. C. D. Elmore, who is just entering the field as a general evangelist. The recent meeting has brought minister and people closer together and has, we trust, paved the way for greater victories in the future.—W. G. WALTERS, minister.

WISCONSIN.

Grand Rapids, April 29.—Our efforts to plant a Christian church in this city are being blessed and much interest is being taken in our "plea." Until our coming some three weeks ago there had never been a sermon preached in the town. Good audiences have greeted us every evening and the people listen attentively. Eight persons have already come forward and await baptism, among whom is a Methodist, Episcopalian, Moravian, Lutheran and a Congregationalist. Many more are about ready to take their stand with us. H. F. Barstow, of Ladysmith, state secretary, and J. C. Thurman, of Green Bay, state president, were with us Tuesday, and gave us much encouragement. We hope to be able to organize a good church before closing our services, which will continue until about May 15.—C. H. DEVOE AND H. K. SHIELDS, evangelists, Rochester, Ind.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

MILLENNIAL HARBINGERS—Write J. F. Callahan, Noble, Ohio, for lot of M. Harbingers—cheap.

COMPOSITOR WANTED—On straight matter; piece work. Apply Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED—Position in a boarding school as teacher and librarian, or as companion. Address, S, care of CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

WANTED—Members of Christian Church, who contemplate locating in Kansas and Oklahoma, to correspond with P. H. Guy & Co., Winfield, Kansas.

INVEST your surplus money in St. Louis REAL ESTATE. We have some good paying apartments, paying as much as 10, 12 1 2 and 15 per cent. on made streets and 20 minutes ride to P. O. Olive through cars. We will attend to collecting rents for you. Reference furnished. R. H. W. Godwin, 4971 Delmar, St. Louis.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

May 17, 1905.

WHY TOTAL ABSTINENCE?

"Abstain from every form of evil."—1 Thess. 5:22.

Perhaps the revised rendering of the above passage unfits it for the use it was intended to serve in this lesson. And yet it is pertinent to the subject of total abstinence from intoxicants. Indeed the lesson committee on our International Series of Sunday-school topics and other committees who select scripture passages to teach the virtue of temperance, seem to us to be unnecessarily limited in their use of scripture. One can scarcely teach any Christian virtue without having opportunity of teaching the evils of intemperance, and the wisdom of total abstinence.

A Form of Evil. Among the various forms of evil from which we are to abstain, there is none more perilous, perhaps, and few more prevalent than that of the use of intoxicants as a beverage. The evils resulting from this widespread habit ought to make every Christian set his face sternly against it. A whole brood of evils is to be found in connection with the habit of strong drink. It breeds disease, dishonesty, lasciviousness, poverty, cruelty and crime of various kinds. Its victims are slaves of the worst type. Its woes are described most graphically in Prov. 23:29-45, which should be read. Its victims are barred from the kingdom of God (1 Cor. 6:10).

Its Insidiousness. One of the chief dangers of strong drink is the stealthiness with which it gets a hold upon its victims. No one begins the use of intoxicants with the idea of becoming a drunkard! But it is in the very nature of the poison that lurks in these intoxicants to deceive, to lure on from little to more, and from bad to worse, until the habit is formed, and he who started out to be a moderate drinker finds himself bound hand and foot by cords which he cannot break. Could any more powerful and convincing reason be given why we should totally abstain from the use of all intoxicants as a beverage?

Stumbling Blocks. If it be said that all who use intoxicants do not become drunkards, this fact is freely admitted; but these are great stumbling blocks to others in leading them into habits which they cannot resist. We are bound to consider what effect our actions will have upon others, as well as upon ourselves (1 Cor. 8:9-13). The principle involved in this scripture will prevent any conscientious man from the use of intoxicants as a beverage.

How to Oppose Intemperance. (1) By personal example; (2) by early training as to the nature and effects of alcohol, in the home, in the Sunday-school and in the day school; (3) by moral suasion and exhortation (1 Peter 4:1-5; 2 Cor. 6:17); (4) by wise and wholesome laws, restraining evil men (Rom. 13:1-3).

Prayer. Our Father in heaven, we thank Thee for the warnings in Thy word against the evils of drunkenness and intemperance. May we be on the alert lest we be deceived and brought into captivity to this insidious foe. May all Thy children, by their example, and conduct, and influence, and prayers, and votes, oppose both the use of, and the traffic in, strong drink as a beverage, and may Thy Church present a united front against these deadly evils which threaten our nation and people! In Christ's name. Amen.

* *

Fresh Milk

is always obtainable. Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is absolutely pure cows' milk combined with the finest grade of granulated sugar. For sale at your grocers. Avoid unknown brands.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

May 21, 1905.

GROWING UP FOR GOD.—Eph. 4:11-16.

For the Leader.

This is planned as a meeting with the Juiors and Intermediates. The topic wording, "Growing up for God," sums up the whole of Christian object and effort. How many of our churches have any well defined idea of the business of a local congregation? How many appreciate the fact that, as we draw our information from the scriptures of the New Testament on this subject, we find that the only business of a local church is to grow up in the likeness of our Lord; to plan for and assist all who come into the fellowship to model after Jesus and grow up in him toward the fullness of his stature? One is constrained at times to believe the number thus believing is altogether too small.

The Christian Endeavor department is just one of many in any well organized congregation. We are this evening looking into only one phase of the work. But if we do this well there is a great field for us. If the Endeavor work with us is organized in its threefold relation—Junior, Intermediate, Y. P. S. C. E.—we do well. Now let us see to it that every department works to the full limit. Let us not be satisfied with a dragalong gait in our progress.

For the Members.

1. We are to grow up for God. If this be true, then we are not born of full stature in the Lord. This is the experience of every one who has not deceived himself into believing that he has been made over by some sort of magical project into a man of God of full stature and beyond the possibility of sin. Yes, let each one feel how poor, and little, and weak he is when first he seeks and finds the Lord. But let us rejoice at the prospects of a wonderful growth under the direction of God. All the ministries are for the perfecting of the sinning and erring children of God.

2. It is not only so with the individual, but it is just the same with the local congregation, with the Junior, Intermediate, or Christian Endeavor society—it is not born of full growth. It may start well. Its membership may be large and enthusiastic, but it is low of stature in the good works of Jesus. It must grow. It is the will of the Father that it should grow. It is the necessity of the society that it should grow, if it ever accomplishes the object of its organization. Woe to the society that gets its growth! Woe to the band of Endeavorers that says through its president or pastor, "We can not expect to improve much, we will just try to hold our own." It is not possible to hold one's own. One must either gain or lose.

3. The lesson of the scripture to-night is to teach us how all the ministries of the church, of Christianity, are for the building up of the body of the Lord's followers. Not all have the same office. Not all have the same work. All work is the same in rank and in honor with the Lord when it is well done, though. We should not, then, strive for this or that work, with the idea that one is more honorable than the other. It is not so. The only motive that should control in selecting work is whether one is better fitted for this than for that work. Some will be fitted for the Junior service. Work there, then. Some will be fitted for what is a more difficult field, the Intermediate Endeavor. Let such as are fitted not shrink back because it is difficult. Others will find the field of their usefulness in the Y. P. S. C. E. Let them work there. But no one has exhausted his interest when he has looked after his department. He should know and love all the departments. We are growing up together. We must make the bonds of sympathy between the three departments of our work strong.

A Suggestion.

Have a meeting in which all three societies—Junior, Intermediate, Y. P. S. C. E.—are represented. Have each society seated in separate sections. Let officers and committees sit together. Have so many from each society take part, seeing them beforehand. Then give time for voluntary talks. Call for sentence prayers, asking responses from all parts of the room regardless of society lines.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Am I doing what I should in our young people's work in my church?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	Growing like Joseph.	Gen. 39:1-6.
T.	Like Samuel.	1 Sam. 3:19-21.
W.	Like Josiah.	2 Chron. 34:1-7.
T.	Like Daniel.	Dan. 1:8-17.
F.	Like Timothy.	2 Tim. 1:3-12.
S.	Like Jesus.	Luke 2:40-52.
S.	Topic—Growing up for God. Eph. 4:11-16. (Union meeting with the Juniors.)

* *

MOTHER'S SLEEPLESS NIGHTS.

Little Daughter Suffered with Eczema for Two Years Until Cured by Cuticura.

"My little girl had been suffering for two years from eczema, and during that time I could not get a night's sleep, as her ailment was very severe. I had tried so many remedies, deriving no benefit, I had given up all hope. But as a last resort I was persuaded to try Cuticura, and one box of the Ointment and two bottles of the Resolvent, together with the Soap, effected a permanent cure."—Mrs. I. B. Jones, Addington, Ind. T.

ONE HUNDRED

copies of a letter, piece of music, drawing, or any writing can be easily made on a Lawton Simplex Printer. No washing. No wetting paper. Send for circulars and samples of work. Agents wanted.

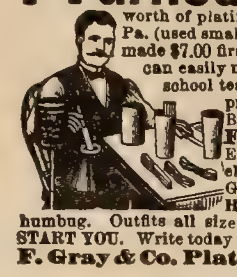
LAWTON & CO., 30 Vesey Street, New York. 59 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Dr. Woolley's PAINLESS OPIUM AND Whiskey Cure

SENT FREE to all users of morphine, opium, laudanum, elixir of opium, cocaine or whiskey, a large book of particulars on home or sanatorium treatment. Address, Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, 106 N. Pryor St. Atlanta, Georgia.

I Turned Out $301.27



worth of plating in two weeks, writes M. L. Smith of Pa. (used small outfit). Rev. Geo. P. Crawford writes, made $7.00 first day. J. J. S. Mills, a farmer, writes, can easily make $5.00 day plating. Thos. Parker, school teacher 21 years, writes, "I made $9.80 profit one day, $9.35 another." Plating Business easily learned. We teach you Free—No Experience Required. Everybody has tableware, watches, jewelry and metal goods to be plated with Gold, Silver, Nickel and Tin plating. Heavy Plate—latest process. No toy or humbug. Outfits all sizes. Everything guaranteed. LET US START YOU. Write today for Catlog, Agency and Offer. Address F. Gray & Co. Plating Works, Cincinnati, O.

Sunday-School.

May 21, 1905.

JESUS BEFORE PILATE.—John 18:28-40.

Memory verses, 37, 38.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.—John 18:37.

The order of events from the arrest until the crucifixion is somewhat complicated by the fact that none of the gospels gives an entirely complete account and the several records need to be used to supplement each other to obtain the full narrative. It will be remembered that Jesus and his disciples went out to Gethsemane, probably late at night, after a long evening of fellowship in the upper room. John's record by itself would not indicate the lapse of any time between the arrival in the garden and the appearance of Judas with the soldiers and priests. The other three evangelists, however, tell of the agony in the garden, the prayer, "Let this cup pass, nevertheless not my will but thine be done," and the sleep of the disciples. It seems singular that John, "the gospel of the heart of Christ," should not only wholly omit all record of the establishment of the Lord's supper in the upper room, but should also leave unrecorded these incidents in the garden which seem to show us so much of the heart of Christ. Perhaps it was because John, interested almost exclusively in the divine side of Christ's nature, saw comparatively little value in the human desire for remembrance and the human shrinking from the final agony.

It must have been midnight or even later when the arrest was made. He was taken at once to the house of Annas, the high priest's father-in-law and chief adviser. The events which make up the so-called trial (though it exhibited nothing of the nature of a judicial process) are arranged as follows:

I. JEWISH TRIAL.

(During the night.)

1. Examination before Annas. (Reported only by John.)
2. Trial before Caiaphas and part or all of Sanhedrin in informal session, and condemnation to death on charge of blasphemy.

(While waiting for the morning.)

3. Buffeting and mockery.
4. Peter's denials.

(In the morning.)

5. Formal session of Sanhedrin to confirm the previous act of condemnation.
6. The case referred to Pilate for confirmation and execution of the sentence.

II. ROMAN TRIAL.

1. Accused before Pilate on a new charge—treason.
2. Pilate's examination and acquittal of Jesus.
3. The case referred by Pilate to Herod, and by Herod back to Pilate.
4. The choice—Jesus or Barabbas?
5. Jesus acquitted—and delivered to the executioners.
6. Scourging and mockery.

The lesson directly concerns only the Roman Trial. The insincerity of the prosecutors is evident from the fact that the charge is changed when the case is removed from the Jewish to the Roman court. In the former, he was condemned for blasphemy. In the latter, nothing is said about this and he is accused of treason in claiming to be a king. Pilate would have taken no cognizance of the first charge, and he was evidently not much impressed by the second, since he declared that he found no fault in the man even after he confessed on the charge of claiming kingship.

The words "my kingdom is not of this world" cannot have meant much to Pilate, but he evidently saw that the claim, whatever it meant, was of a wholly nonpolitical nature. He was familiar with all types of revolutionists, from honest but misguided zealots to rascally robbers like Barabbas who covered their depredations under the cloak of patriotic revolt against Rome, and he saw that Jesus had nothing in common with any of these insurrectionists.

The choice of Barabbas to be released is a further commentary on the insincerity of the charge against Jesus. Barabbas was a real insurgent. He had made a rebellion against Cæsar (Mark 15:7) and had committed murder in advancing his revolt. Yet the release of this man is demanded by those who profess such devotion to Cæsar's interests (John 19:12).

Man Preparing for Other Worlds

By WM. T. MOORE, M. A., LL. D.

Or the Spiritual Man's Conflict and Final Victory : :

A Story of Man in the Light of the Bible, Science and Experience : : : :

Cloth, 500 Pages, $2.00.

VERDICTS OF THOSE WHO HAVE READ THIS GREAT BOOK

His best book . . . It is the book of the gospel—the gospel for the man in the street.—DR. JAS. HASTINGS, Editor of Dictionary of the Bible.

All who read the book will be benefited thereby. It breathes a sweet, pure spirit and will certainly do much good.—D. R. DUNGAN.

It is a book for the age, by one who is alive to the needs of the age and the great problems that confront the leaders of the church.—J. J. MORGAN.

It is the ripest thought and matured conviction of a veteran whose ministry as a preacher and writer among the churches of Christ has been conspicuous. It bears the unmistakable marks of wide reading, earnest thinking and catholic sympathies.—CHRISTIAN STANDARD.

It has been quite a help to me. It abounds in good suggestions and new applications.—WM. ROSS LLOYD.

It is a book of wide compass, depicting the spiritual history of man from his origin to his final destiny.—J. W. MCGARVEY.

It is the greatest book ever published by our brotherhood. At every reading it has had fresh charm for me. . . Send for it now! Now!! Not by and by, and you will thank me for ten years to come.—JAS. SMALL.

Dr. Moore is the most picturesque figure of this present religious reformation, one of its profoundest theologians and most charming writers. Of all his numerous and valuable contributions to church literature this is his masterpiece.—GEO. L. SNIVELY.

Published by

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

For the Busy Minister

A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE

Minister's Pastoral Record and Memorandum.

FITS THE VEST-POCKET.

Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Songs of Service and Praise

A NEW HYMN BOOK FOR ALL PEOPLE

HIGH GRADE LOW PRICE
Music by STEBBINS, MAIN, BENKE, THE SANKEYS, Etc.
$10 per 100 SAMPLE, 13c.

UNION PRESS, Phil., Pa.

Radium

has lately proven highly successful in medicine and has cured severe cases of Eczema, Cancer, and Consumption. Its beneficial effects have been obtained in Radiozone. Sold at $1.00. Order direct or thru your druggist. Send for sample booklet. The Radium Ozone Co.; Station F, Chicago.

A TRIO

of devotional books which have aided thousands of readers.

Alone With God

The Heavenward Way

Half Hour Studies at the Cross

Written by J. H. Garrison,
Editor of THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

They are similar in size and binding, and being all written for the purpose of comfort and spiritual strength, they constitute what may properly be called

A Devotional Library.

PRICE,

Seventy-Five Cents a Volume, or Two Dollars for the Set of Three Volumes, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

People's Forum.

Editor, Christian-Evangelist:—Through your columns I would like to make a suggestion in behalf of ministerial relief. Any one who has ever attended one of our national conventions and enjoyed the climax of its fellowship in the great communion service, must have felt the appropriateness of the offering for ministerial relief as a part of that worship. On that Lord's day many congregations at home are praying for the success of the convention. It would be easy to bring the other brethren into line with the convention, and for a blessing to be brought back to them by their pastor in attendance. Can we not extend the fellowship of that grand occasion to them in a very practical way?

Allow me to suggest that we make the communion service on convention Sunday the time for making an offering in all of our churches for Ministerial Relief. Eli H. Long.

Buffalo, N. Y.

[The above suggestion has several things to recommend it. In the first place the Lord's day of our convention is already ministerial relief day for those who attend the convention. In the second place it would solve another problem: by relieving the Christmas season from ministerial relief, the Benevolent Association could take that time and relieve the double pressure on Easter day. Besides, there would seem to be an appropriateness about associating ministerial relief with our convention season that would be sure to enhance the interest in that good work. The objection to the plan would be bringing that offering so close to church extension on the one side and state mission day on the other; but a little adjustment here might obviate that objection. The suggestion is worth thinking about.—Editor.]

Praises to the Prince

A Choice Collection of

SACRED SONGS

for Sunday-Schools, Young People's Societies, Evangelistic Services, and all other branches of Church Work and Worship.

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music. Handsome Appearance. Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market. : : :

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid . .	$ .30
Boards,	" " . .	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " . .	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" "	15.00

Bound with Cap and Rivet if desired.

PUBLISHED BY

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

MARRIAGES.

WILSON—BARNES.—At the home of the bride's mother at Atlantic, Iowa, April 29, John A. Wilson, of Des Moines, and Catharine Barnes, of Atlantic, W. B. Crewdson officiating. Both are active Christian workers, and will be a blessing to the Lord's cause.

WILLIAMSON—BOWERSOX.—Mr. C. Scott Williamson and Miss Grace Bowersox, at Bellville, Kan., April 8, W. N. Porter officiating.

LITTLE—RAHN.—At the residence of the groom's father, Mr. F. P. Little, April 16, Mr. William B. Little and Miss Iva Rahn, both of Burlington, Col., Eld. C. A. Yersin officiating.

❖

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

BARRON.

Samuel J. Barron was born in Madison Co., Mo., on Aug. 13, 1841, and died April 1, 1905. He was for many years an officer in the Christian church, and died in the faith. The funeral discourse by the writer was listened to by 500 relatives and friends. S. W. Robinson.

LANE.

On the early morning of Feb. 27, 1905, the quiet and gentle spirit of Mrs. Elizabeth Lane, widow of our late lamented brother, William A. Lane, left its feeble tenement of clay for its home in the presence of the Lord. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Ellett, in Sullivan Co., Mo., and near Browning. Sister Lane was born near Somerset church in Montgomery Co., Ky., on Nov. 11, 1827, and on Aug. 19, 1846, was married to William A. Lane. Her maiden name was Miss Elizabeth Lane. In 1855 she and her husband came from Kentucky to Missouri, and resided many years in Chillicothe, which was her home on the day of her death. Here her home was ever given to hospitality. She loved the church, of which she had been a faithful member from early womanhood until she was called up higher, and many an humble preacher of the gospel of Jesus Christ has been cared for in the good home where she presided with the true dignity characteristic of her noble life. Never can I forget the great kindness manifested to me in a dark hour of my life by this dear woman and her devoted husband. Like Dorcas of old, she "was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did." Her left hand knew not what the right hand did. Hers was a long and useful life, and the church and the community, as well as her children, will all miss her much, but she is at rest with the Lord. Three daughters, Mrs. Virginia Goode, of Olathe, Kan., Mrs. Fannie Watkins and Mrs. Bessie Ellett, of Sullivan Co., and two sons, W. Newton Lane and Ralph Lane, of near Laredo and Browning, survive their good mother, and no children ever had a better one. Farewell, dear Sister Lane, until that day when we shall meet again on the evergreen shore.

R. M. Messick.

LOWE.

Persis M. Riggs was born in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, Oct. 31, 1840. At the early age of 15 she gave her life to Christ, and united with the Christian church. Three years later she married Elder Joseph Lowe. It was a union of the hearts and lives of two Christians, and for nearly a half century she filled the difficult position of a preacher's wife with rare tact and cheerfulness of spirit. Two daughters, Mrs. Frank M. Lowe, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Carrie Smead, of Leavenworth, Kan., and three grandchildren, Edith Persis Lowe, Frank M. Lowe, Jr., and Paul Smead, survive her. Bro. Joseph Lowe, so well known and loved by his noble life and consecrated ministry of nearly fifty years in the Christian church, has the sympathy of a host of friends in his irreparable loss. He also has the consolation of the blessed assurance that the reunion is not far distant. Sister Lowe was one of the charter members of the C. W. B. M. in Missouri. She was vice-president of the Christian Orphans' Home in St. Louis at her death. Her life was given to a happy Christian service to all who were in need. Always cheerful, she brought sunshine into many darkened homes. Hers was a strong faith, because intelligent. She knew her Bible. Her faith was steadfast till the end. She passed away April 11, 1905, at the home of Hon. Frank M. Lowe, in Kansas City, amidst the most tender care loving hearts could administer. Love could not keep her away from Christ, whose love exceeded that of all friends, children and her devoted husband. She was laid to rest in Mt. Washington cemetery in this city.

"She has gained her home at last,
In this palace bright and glorious;
Every wave of Jordan past,
Over every foe victorious."

Kansas City, Mo. J. J. Morgan.

THOMPSON.

The news of the death of little Ruth Thompson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Thompson, late of Windsor, Mo., and granddaughter of Grandma Penny Thompson, so well known to many of the Christian-Evangelist readers, will be received with sincerest regrets. This dear child, after a few days' illness, passed up with a song on her lips to meet her Master. The services were conducted in Little Grove church by myself.

Dix, Ill., April 3. F. O. Fannon.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE

Two Trains Daily from each city

Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars

For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.

SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily to May 15th, also Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

WEST BADEN SPRINGS, IND.

Decoration Day. One fare for the round trip to points within radius of 150 miles. Tickets will be sold May 29-30. Return limit May 31st.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

National Baptist Anniversary. Tickets will be sold from all points in C. P. A. Territory, May 15, 16, 17. Return limit May 27th.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.

National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.

National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.

United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—

F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

Family Circle

Patience!

Have your wearied of the battle? Have you grown discouraged, son?
Looking backward on life's pathway, is it little you have done?
Does the woof beneath your fingers seem to tangle more and more
While the riddle of the future seems yet stranger than before?
Just be patient for a season; for at last the mystic fates
Bring the tangled threads out even for the one who works and waits.

Does she shyer seem and farther from your love's entreating hands,
Than his harbor from the sailor wrecked upon the barren lands?
Is the call of music stronger than your heart's beseeching cries
As she whirls amid the gay ones with the glamour on her eyes?
Yet be patient. Youth will waken, and at last the time will come
When the heart no more is stifled and when love will not be dumb.

Have you seen your idols falling by the road you bravely trod,
With your whole life dedicated to your people and your God?
Did you lift against the dragon dauntlessly your single lance,
To be stricken down by malice or the sword of circumstance?
Still be patient, oh, my brother, and take courage in the fight—
For your own soul will reward you in the battle for the right!

Have you wandered in the wilderness till hope is nearly dead,
While the flying brush of time has painted winter on your head?
Is the promised land no nearer to your anxious, dimming eyes
That have watched the silent heavens for a glimpse of paradise?
Patience!—just a little longer, and the dark night will be gone,
And your soul behold the splendor of the everlasting dawn!

—Lowell Otus Reese, in Leslie's Weekly.

❁ ❁

A Shoot of Goodness.

By Edith Eaton.

[There is much interest attached to the author of the following little story. She writes over the pen name of "Sui Sin Far," which, in the celestial language, would be "Narcissus," or "Chinese Lily." Born of a Chinese mother and an English father, Sui Sin Far, or Edith Eaton, as she was christened in Mecclesfield, Cheshire, England, thirty-two years ago, has been writing stories and sketches of her Chinese half-kin ever since her parents moved to this country in 1884. Her father is an artist, with a large family of children, of which Sui Sin Far is the eldest. She has studied her mother's people closely, and writes sympathetically of them.]

There is a lovely little city called Seattle lying between the Olympic and Cascade ranges of mountains in the Pacific Northwest. Puget Sound, stretching its gleaming length towards the mighty Pacific, lies at its feet, and limpid lakes and cool, green forests embrace its head and arms.

It was in Seattle that I first became acquainted with Wan Lin. I had charge of a camp of men working on railway construction and was experiencing great difficulty in securing a good cook. As a last resource I called on the Japanese employment office and interviewed several likely appearing Japs accomplished in the gentle art of cooking. These, however, upon learning that it was a place out of town that they were expected to fill, withdrew their offers of service, and I was turning disconsolately away when the Japanese agent said:

"I have the name of a Japanese cook who is willing to go to the country; but perhaps you would not care for a Chinaman."

"I don't care what he is as long as he can cook. Besides," I added, "a Chinaman's about the same as a Jap, isn't he?"

"That is as you like to think," replied the agent with a shrug of his shoulders. However, he gave me the Chinaman's address and before the day was over Wan Lin was installed in my kitchen camp, to my great content and comfort. I liked him from the first. He seemed honest, capable and industrious. Moreover, his personal appearance was pleasing. I took him to be about twenty-five and was surprised when he informed me that he had attained to the honorable age of thirty-eight. I asked him to explain why he looked so youthful, and he replied, "It is because I not can sleep well—some nights I not sleep at all. That why I have such bad temper."

Wan's explanation amazed me. As to his bad temper, I told him that if he had such an appendage he had better keep it out of my way, as I had no use for it whatever. I subsequently found that on certain days Wan's answers were a little shorter than they might have been, but I deemed it wisest to pass them over without comment, as there had been a time when I too had lain awake nights, and it is said, "A fellow feeling," etc.

In the month of November my contract with the railway company expired and it happened that Wan and I journeyed back to the city together. I caught his eye when he entered the car and motioned for him to come over and share my seat.

"What are you going to do now, Wan?" I inquired.

"I think I go work in laundry in Seattle," he replied.

"You can get plenty to do, then."

"Oh, yes, plenty of work, but not all same kind. Some time I dig grave, some time I cook, some time I get job on boat. One year and half I work in cannery in Alaska and four months I get job on boat. One year I dig in mine."

"You must make quite a lot of money. What do you do with it? Save it like the rest of the Chinamen who come to this country?"

A shadow crossed Wan's face.

"I not can save. My heart not allow me," he replied. And in answer to another question, he explained that all he had over after paying for necessities, went to his people in China, who were very poor. "Sometimes," said he, "my palents' letters make me most sad, for my money I make slow, and though I give all the time, it not make much diffelence and they all the time poor. One day my father say in his letter to me that he think my mother, she have to go out work in the lice field. That make my heart sink into the dark pit of my mind, and for long I try to think of some way to lelieve my people. After some time I get letter from my young blother. He say, 'My father and my mother, they not see me with favorable eyes and that make life most hard for me. You send for me to come to Amelica.'

"I beat my head upon the floor. I say to me, 'What can I do to help my blother and my palent?' I lealize that to keep send money home and do no more, it not seem make my family any less poor. So I decide I work more hard. I work not only day, I also work some time in the night. So by time gone by I have enough bling my blother out. I consider that one way help my family. There be one less mouth for my father's lice. My blother be happy with me and some day him work

Individual Communion Service
Made of several materials and in many designs including self-collecting tray
Send for full particulars and catalogue No. 21. Give the number of communicants
"The Lord's Supper takes on a new dignity and beauty by the use of the individual Cup."—J. K. W[illegible]
GEO. H. SPRINGER, Manager, 256-258 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

The Successful
TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT TRADE MARK REGISTERED.
Effer-vescent
Relief for Indigestion
Distress after Meals, Sour Stomach
Nearly two generations of satisfied users testify to its great medicinal value. Simple, Pleasant, Reliable. It has been sold on merit more than 60 years.
At Druggists, 50c and $1, or by mail from
THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

The People's New Testament With Notes
: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :
A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.
The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

too, so that he also be able to send help to our palents."

"But what about your wife?" I inquired. "If you think so much of your father's family, you wrong your own."

"My wife," said Wan sadly, "I not have no wife. I tell you. You kind fiend. One time I like little Chinese girl much more than my explession can expless me; but she go to the spilit land before she know what in my heart. That why I not need make money for wife and family. I just attend to cultivate my shoots of goodness to show to her in the place of happy spilits. She be little Chinese girl in Amelica mission, and the American lady she tell me she send that message to me."

After my talk with Wan on the train I lost track of him for nearly two years, the march of events in the Northwest having carried me with it.

One day as I was walking along Seattle's water front I paused to watch a crowd of eager men, with a few women interspersed, surging on to a ship bound for an Alaskan port. The last passenger had passed over the gangway when I felt a tug at my coat, and, looking down, beheld my one-time camp cook.

"Wan Lin! How are you?" I exclaimed.

"I all lite. How be you?"

"Cultivating my shoots of goodness," I replied.

Wan Lin smiled at my remembrance of his own quaint speech, and said, "You not forget what I say. Perhaps you lemember also what I tell you about my blother. Now I have save almost sufficient to pay to bling my blother to me. Next month I think I send for him."

"That's nuts, Wan," I replied, "but I thought you would have changed your mind about that long ago."

"My mind not change for one minute."

"It will cost you twice as much when you have your brother to keep."

"I know; but he be good company for me. My own blother!"

"You should think of yourself, Wan."

Wan smiled.

"Oh, it be for me I tubble myself. If I not do what I can for my family, my heart not be at rest. If I tubble myself for my people, it is because I consider me, Wan Lin."

So he argued; but my fifty years' experience of life caused me to shake my head over the use he was making of his little hoardings. Relations have been known to be unappreciative and ungrateful.

When I next saw Wan Lin, he was accompanied by his brother, young Wan Loo, a chunky little fellow of about sixteen years of age. His eyes lacked the frankness and his mouth the sensibility of my former cook's; but he appeared to be a bright, likable young fellow who could speak English even better than his brother, having attended a mission school in Canton, his native city.

Wan Lin's face fairly beamed with affection and pride as he introduced him to me, "He be very smart boy," said he.

Wan Lin was working for Ho Suey, the proprietor of Seattle's chief Chinese laundry, and it was his intention to have Wan Loo engage in the same business—if the boy wished.

I congratulated Wan Loo on having arrived in such good condition, expressed the hope that he and his brother would find comfort in each other, and promised that in future I would patronize the laundry wherein by the sweat of his brow Wan Lin earned his daily rice.

According to that promise, about two weeks later I visited the laundry of Ho Suey. Wan Lin was busily engaged in manipulating a sad iron, but when he saw me, he came forward and relieved me of my parcel.

"Where is your brother?" I inquired.

"He tired; he not work to-day," answered Wan.

"That is strange, I should think you would be the tired one," I rejoined, observing that Wan's face was thinner and his eyes more sunken than when I had last seen him.

On the occasion of my second visit to the laundry, I had the satisfaction of seeing Wan Loo starching linen collars, under the supervision of Wan Lin, who held the position of foreman for Ho Suey.

"How are you, my boy?" I inquired, reaching over to shake hands with the younger brother, Lin having been called away by another customer.

"Me not velly well," replied Loo. Then with a covert eye on his brother, he whispered, "He make me work too hard. Just now he leploof me much."

When Lin came back, he informed me, "I velly bad temper; but my blother, he good temper all the while. He never say one bad word to me, but I closs to him when he not learn quick enough for me."

Poor Lin! He had his faults and knew what they were; but they sank deep beneath the depths of his affection and loving kindness.

(TO BE CONCLUDED.)

SAVE 1/3

No Dealer Can Duplicate Our Factory Price

Our high grade carriages are made in our own factory, and sold exclusively by mail order at a saving of from $15 to $30 to the buyer. We warrant every vehicle to be just as represented or refund money and pay freight both ways. Send for free catalogue. It tells the advantage of buying from factory.

THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE AND HARNESS CO., Columbus, Ohio.

Woman's Desire.

Clear, rosy Complexion, Mrs. Baker's Massage Powder, Antiseptic, 50c. Mrs. Ida Baker, Odebolt, Ia.

What of the Future?

Have you ever considered what will become of your loved ones after you are gone? Or what will become of you in your old age? We have made provision for you in either case. Our FREE booklet, "The How and the Why," gives our plan. Write for it.

Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co.,
921 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

That sermon, essay or club paper should be typewritten. Why not own an American $50 Typewriter on easy payments? Typewritten correspondence is more effective, more business-like—and saves time.

American Typewriter Co.,
260½ Broadway. - - - NEW YORK.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' NEW TESTAMENT,

With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter.

Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.

Prices, = = = = = 75 cents to $1.25.

Write us for particulars.

Christian Publishing Co., = St. Louis, Mo.

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

At Your Own Home, Without the Use of the Knife, With Absolutely No Pain, no Risk, No Inconvenience.

The Madison Absorption Method

—CURES—

Every Disease of the Eye from Cataract to Simple Inflammation.

CROSS EYES STRAIGHTENED

Without the use of the knife by a new method which never has failed

An unparalleled record of cures, hundreds of which have been effected after world-famous oculists had pronounced the troubles beyond all medical aid, or had condemned the patients to an operation.

P. Chester Madison, M. D.,
America's Master Oculist.
(Copyrighted.)

Call or write me a postal card for my latest book, a valuable treatise on all eye diseases, illustrated in colors. It is FREE. WRITE TO-DAY.

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Keeping the Furs.

A resourceful friend of mind, who is a famous housekeeper, uses old linen sheets for wrapping the furs before placing them in box or barrel. Sheets are selected that are too old and thin for other use, and they are kept for this purpose from year to year, as they would not be fit to use on the beds after their summer service in fur storing, especially if oil of cedar is used as a moth preventive. She saturates small balls of cotton batting with the oil of cedar, and pins them to the sheets in which the furs are to be wrapped. It is almost impossible to confine the oil to the batting, however, and the sheets will come from the storeroom badly stained. Many object to the very useful oil of cedar because of its strong odor; but those who have tested it find that the odor soon passes off after the furs are taken from the storeroom. In fact, it does not cling to them after thorough ventilation half as long as the odor of camphor and many other preventives. Sheets of newspaper are often more highly recommended than cotton or linen sheets for wrapping expensive furs before storing them, as there is something about the printer's ink that proves disagreeable to the moths. The sheets must be especially prepared for this purpose, however. In order to wrap the large fur securely, the newspapers must be pasted to form sheets of the right size, and this pasting must be so firm that no cracks through which a moth may find a chance to enter will be left. It is best to provide two or three newspaper sheets for each piece of fur.

Large, tough paper bags will be the best receptacle for small capes and neck pieces. Several of these—wrapped separately in newspaper as an extra precaution—may be placed in one bag if the large, strong bags such as are used by butchers can be secured.

If any of the usual moth preventives are used in connection with the thorough wrappings, it will be unwise to have them come in contact with the furs. Although few will leave the reddish stain peculiar to the oil of cedar, there is always danger of discoloration, especially with the light furs. It is always safest to wrap the oil saturations in waxed paper, and the balls or powders in tissue-paper, before placing among the furs. These will retain their strength throughout the summer, and need not be removed from their paper wrappings, or replaced by fresh preventives, when the furs are taken from their storage places for periodical shaking and brushing.—The Pilgrim, for May.

UNEQUALLED
FOR USE IN
EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS
NEW SONGS OF THE GOSPEL No. 2.
$8.00 the Hundred.

Contains nearly all the great gospel songs now in use in America and England, including "Tell Mother I'll be There," "As the Day Breaks," "Never Known to Fail," etc. Send for returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co., 1018-1020 Arch St., Phila. 156 Fifth Av., N. Y.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.

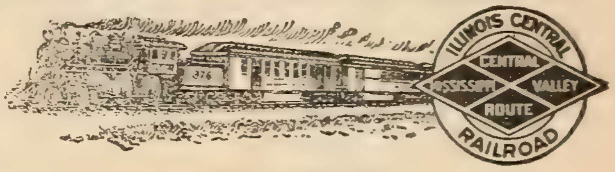
LIVING PRAISE

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.



WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

PROFESSOR MORAN'S
Course of Instruction in
SHORTHAND
The American Pitman System

Used by over Nine-tenths of Stenographers in America.

Comprised in the following books:

The Reporting Style of Shorthand, 329 pages, 12mo, cloth - -	$1.50
Key to the Reporting Style of Shorthand. Cloth - - - - -	2.00
The Shorthand Primer. 32 pages -	.25
The Sign Book, 47 pages, limp cloth	.25
Shorthand Dictionary. Cloth - -	1.00
One Hundred Valuable Suggestions, Cloth - - - - - - -	1.00
Student's Shorthand Manual. Cloth	1.00

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

Papa's Way of Spelling.

By Ida L. McIntosh.

I'm having such a dreadful time
At learning how to spell!
You see, I'm just a little girl
And can't do very well.
I've been to school for two months now
And so some words I know;
For teacher writes it on the board
And says, "g-o" spells "go."

I've learned that "r-a-t" spells "rat,"
And "h-e-n" spells "hen";
That Rover is a "d-o-g,"
And "B-e-n" is "Ben."
My teacher says she thinks that I
Am doing very well;
But papa spells a different way,
And says, "Sh! Don't you tell!"

You see, my names are Alice May,
And my last name is Hall,
And yesterday I spelled them out
At school before them all.
My teacher said, "That's nicely done!"
And so at home last night
I spelled them out for my papa,
And thought I had them right.

But papa said, "You're wrong, my pet;
For 'A l-i-c-e'
Spells 'darling,' and 'M-a-y'
Spells 'sweetheart'—don't you see?"
I told him what my teacher said,
But he declared, "Oh, no!
That's not the way your papa spells;
Your teacher doesn't know."

My papa wouldn't tell me wrong,
Or say what isn't true,
And yet my teacher says that she
Spells just the way I do.
I'm 'fraid I'll never learn to spell—
No matter how I try—
If "darling" 's "A l-i-c-e"
And "sweetheart" 's "M a-y"!
—St. Nicholas.

* *

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD DAY.—CONTINUED.

Mace opened the front door, then said, "There is nobody here; they must have gone away."

"Listen!" said old Mrs. Woodney in a hoarse whisper; "they are going around the house."

"What did I tell you?" Mrs. Geraldine Woodney exclaimed triumphantly. "I said it would be only a matter of time when people would learn that our parlor door is at the back of the house. They thought of it, and have gone around. This is the first time anybody has gone around to our back door. Let us give them a grand ovation for coming to the parlor instead of to our front kitchen." She caught up the lamp, carried it to the parlor and set it upon the organ, which still kept its face to the wall like a punished, bad schoolboy. Old Mrs. Woodney hastily slipped her teeth into her mouth, which had been resting from them since supper, and even Mr. Woodney, who by this time had changed his coat, stood a little straighter than usual. A knock now sounded upon the back door, and Mace opened it, in a flutter of excitement, thinking perhaps one of her rich cousins had come to spend the evening, and glad that her grandmother had in her teeth. It was dark outdoors, and the lamp-light showed very plainly against the black frame of the clouded sky the form of a boy, soiled and ragged, barefoot and weary, with a bundle fastened to his back. Upon his head was a shapeless straw hat which had more than once been rained upon and which had cracked and stiffened under the sun. His coat, much too large for him, dangled its frayed edges about his knees, and he wore no vest, his torn blue shirt, fastened together with a string, was revealed in all its dingy extent. The boy was about Mace's age, apparently, but neither so tall nor so well developed. Indeed, his form was fragile and, in the embrace of the large coat, seemed unnaturally delicate. The face was thin and long; the forehead was narrow just above the eyes, but broadened as it rose, like the forehead of a dreamer and a poet. The eyes were large and wistful, of a golden brown, which added a magic touch to all the face—a magic the more wonderful because its meaning was hidden.

The boy hastily swung the bundle from his shoulder; it consisted of a canvas bag containing a violin and bow and a few trifles. "Will you give me something to eat?" he asked; "I will play for you."

Old Mrs. Woodney slyly slipped out her teeth. They had never fitted, and she saw no occasion now to punish herself with them. Mrs. Geraldine Woodney saw her castle of a guest coming to the parlor door fall to the ground. "Is there anything cooked, Mace?" she asked.

"I am sure," spoke up Mr. Woodney, "that something can be found. Is it a child?"

"A boy, with a violin," his wife explained. "He doesn't look very strong. Where do you come from, boy?"

"I left a place in Illinois," the boy answered shyly. "It was a farm near Galesburg."

"But how did you come all this distance?"

"I walked, generally, but sometimes I rode on wagons, and once on a freig[illegible]in." The boy stood very straight, althou[illegible] was not tall, with his bare heels together, and his eyes fastened on Mrs. Woodney's face. His violin was in one hand, the bow in the other. "Can I play for you?" he asked.

"You shall play for us after you have eaten," said Mr. Woodney; "it is bad business to pay in advance." The boy looked at the speaker and for the first time discovered that Mr. Woodney was blind. He glanced at Mrs. Woodney, and she saw tears in the golden brown eyes. They were his passport. "Put your fiddle on the organ," she said kindly, "and come with us to the kitchen. We will try to find something for you." She carried the lamp back to the kitchen and the others followed. "There is very little to offer you," she said. "Here are cold boiled potatoes, we meant to fry for breakfast, and cold cornbread and—and—Mace, what were we going to have for breakfast, besides the potatoes?"

"There is always the molasses," said Mace cheerfully. "And as it will be his first time at it, he may like it real well. The first time we tried it, we thought it delightful."

"Sure enough," said Mrs. Woodney, "but there isn't any cold cornbread. I remember now, poisoning it for the mice."

"I am afraid," remarked Mr. Woodney regretfully, "that a very few bars of music will pay for your supper, my lad."

"I will play the very best I can," said the boy impulsively, "because all of you are so kind to me. And I am so hungry that the boiled potatoes and the molasses will do fine, all mixed up."

"Did you ever try it before?" old Mrs. Woodney asked, glancing at his thin frame as if she suspected that he had been subsisting upon such diet a long time.

"Oh, no!" cried the boy. "Oh, no, never! But," he added with great earnestness—everything he said was uttered with the emphasis of one whose soul enters into his speech—"I'd rather have 'most anything and feel welcome to it, than have fine things given to me as if I were a beggar."

"Hurrah!" cried Mr. Woodney. "That's the American spirit. A fellow that talks that way will always stand by the stars and stripes. Geraldine, couldn't you cook him some bread?"

"There isn't a drop of gasoline in the house," replied his wife; "I meant to send Mace to the store early in the morning."

"There's no use to go there, now," said Mace, "for they won't talk business after six o'clock."

"Mace," said her father, "you've been the length of the village, is there anybody you could borrow a little gasoline from, or some bread?"

"I believe we can get it from the store!" cried Mace with a sudden idea. "I hate borrowing. Papa, you come with me, and I'll explain. The boy had better come, too."

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use, it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping feeling in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neigaborhood, who know and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the whole system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made again.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 183, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
25 CTS. 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

"Shall I bring my violin?" asked the wanderer.

"You'd better leave that fiddle on the organ," spoke up old Mrs. Woodney. "I believe it would do more harm than good." Mace took her father's arm and the boy followed out of the yard. As the village had no street-lamps, they found the road very dark, but as the store was just across the way, they reached the store sidewalk without many stumbles. The store was surrounded by a lawn, and the fence and gate gave the effect of a residence, after six o'clock. Mace could hear voices from the front porch, where Mrs. Wren and some of the children were still seated.

"Now, papa," she whispered, "you call Mr. Wren here to the gate, and tell him it's on business." Mr. Woodney raised his voice: "Is Mr. Wren there?"

"I am, sir," answered Mr. Wren from the darkness.

"May I speak to you on business?"

Mr. Wren left his rocking-chair and came out to the gate, while the other Wrens remained where they were, each talking along some line congenial to himself, and nobody listening to anybody else. There was thus produced a continuous hum of voices which allowed Mace to say to the store-keeper with no fear of being overheard, "Oh, Mr. Wren! we are out of gasoline, and want to get just enough now to cook a little bread."

"But it's after six," Mr. Wren objected, rubbing his fat hands doubtfully, and shaking his fat head.

"Can't you get us just enough to cook some bread? I've brought this can, you see. I thought you might, because here is a very hungry boy who hasn't had anything to eat for so long that it would be more like doing a kindness than like business."

"Gasoline is gasoline," said Mr. Wren, "and never smells like anything else. It's pure business, gasoline is. But I'll tell you what I'll do, Miss Mace. Give me that can, and I'll slip around to a back window and see if I can crawl in. I am afraid they're all locked, but there's the bare chance that one isn't."

"That's just what I thought you might suggest!" exclaimed Mace, louder than she intended.

"Is that Mace Woodney's voice?" cried Mrs. Wren starting up.

"Yes," warned Mace, "but I'm here on business!" Then to Mr. Wren—"Run, Mr. Wren, run!" Mr. Wren, his fat sides shaking with suppressed laughter, snatched up the can and trotted away in the dark.

"Then don't you dare to come upon this place," cried Mrs. Wren good-humoredly. "Keep your business outside our fence! Are you alone, Mace?"

"My father is here. Mrs. Wren, this is my father."

"Pleased to meet you," called Mrs. Wren, who could see no vestige of Mr. Woodney. "Are you on business, too, sir?"

"Good-evening, Mrs. Wren; I'm afraid I am, this time. Mace has explained to me your six o'clock rule."

"Mr. Woodney," said Mrs. Wren earnestly, "one is obliged to put business out of one's life for a period every day or be swallowed up in it. Necessity obliges us to live over the store, but we are not obliged to talk about it, and think of it all the time."

"I quite agree with you," he returned; "I think it quite an admirable plan to close your mind to the store when you close the store-door."

"There is no connection at all," Mrs. Wren assured him, "between the store and the upstairs rooms where we live. It is just like having two distinct houses under the same roof." At this moment a crash was heard from within, and Mrs. Wren's voice rose to a scream of alarm, while the various Wren children cried out that there were robbers in the house.

"Madam," cried Mr. Woodney in distress, "allow me to explain. Mace, lead me up to the porch that I may make myself heard." Above the alarmed cries of the girls and the ferocious voice of Reginald Wren, who was demanding a meaning of the crash, were now to be heard peals of hearty laughter. "That is Mr. Worth Acre!" cried Mace. "Mrs. Wren, it is all right."

Another voice was heard laughing—the voice of Mr. Wren. At the sound of so much mirth all alarm vanished. The blacksmith was now to be seen, carrying a lighted lantern in one hand, and with his other hand, holding the merchant by the collar. Both were convulsed with laughter, and a tin can, which Mr. Wren held, shook so violently that the gasoline within could be heard dashing from side to side. They came around the house, while Mr. Worth Acre explained, between delighted peals, that he had just left his shop and was going home by the alley behind the store when his lantern showed a fat pair of legs disappearing through the store window. He had crept up and had seized the burglar on his reappearance. At first Mrs. Wren was disposed to be ruffled over her husband's infringement of the six o'clock rule, but it was impossible to withstand the blacksmith's boisterous good humor. So presently all were laughing, and when Mr. Woodney carried the gasoline away, everybody was in a glow of high spirits. As the Woodney house was on Worth Acre's way home, he crossed the street with the party of three, and on the way learned what the gasoline was for. "Now this boy will want to sleep somewhere," remarked the blacksmith. "I'll just take him to Horseshoe House after he has had his lunch."

"It is very kind of you to offer him a bed," said Mr. Woodney gratefully. "Then you will come in and wait for him, and perhaps take a bite with him yourself?"

"Now, that would be friendly," said Worth Acre. "Anyway, I'll go in to the light and get a look at the little chap's face."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

❀ ❀

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing ou City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Oliv Sts., St. Louis.

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

CANCER CURED

WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.

Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address

DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

BOWLDEN BELLS
CHURCH AND SCHOOL
FREE CATALOGUE
AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY CO. NORTHVILLE, MICH.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Fistula, Fissure, Bleeding, Itching, Ulceration, Constipation and all Rectal Diseases a Specialty.
Cures Guaranteed. Send for Booklet. DR. M. NEY SMITH, Specialist,
800 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo. Established in St. Louis in 1888.

The Editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST knows of his personal knowledge a number of persons who were severely afflicted with rectal troubles whom Dr. Smith has cured. He is personally acquainted with the Doctor, and has no hesitation in commending any sufferer thus afflicted to him.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison,	President
W. W. Dowling,	Vice-President
W. D. Cree,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann,	General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Have you gotten that Cradle Roll? We have all the supplies at prices that will surprise you; for we allow no one to undersell us.

◆

We have just from the press a very pretty "Certificate of Graduation" from the primary to the main school at 50 cents per dozen.

◆

Do not forget that our new 128 page catalogue will give you a list of our new reward cards and tickets. It is one of the largest stocks we have ever carried.

◆

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or Scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

◆

The advance orders for J. H. Garrison's new book on the Holy Spirit are coming in quite freely and will be given the preference in sending out this excellent work. Price $1.00.

◆

In the Home Department list we have anything you want and are selling them remarkably low, desiring to see more of our schools inaugurate this beneficial and helpful department.

◆

We keep a good supply of the contest buttons and cards, though the demand lately has surprised us. Buttons for your school or society, one cent each, any quantity. Before summer is fine time for such work.

◆

We have an excellent cantata for Children's Day, "The First Children's Day," and the few copies in stock will be sent out at 35 cents each, or $3.00 per dozen, postpaid. This is one of W. L. Mason's best. No samples.

◆

Have you tried the Lesson Commentary? One of the best commentaries on the International Bible-school Lessons, and in fine cloth binding at only $1, but trial orders will be filled at 75 cents, letting you see its merits for yourself. Supply is limited.

◆

We have a cloth bound commentary on the Gospel of Matthew, put out by the Oxford University press, prepared by Peloubet, priced at $1.25, which we will sell for 50 cents while they last, but you'll "have to hurry," for such a book by that author will not drag.

◆

"The Christian's Use of the Tithe System" is a good pamphlet to introduce where you want a "revival" of faithfulness in meeting our obligations to the Lord, as many cheerfully testify after using them. They are mailed at three cents each, 25 cents per dozen, $1.50 per 100.

◆

Possibly Alameda, California, has the largest Home Department in the brotherhood, though Pastor P. C. Macfarlane and Superintendent E. G. Butler are not working to that end, but for the good results that come. We carry a full and complete stock of everything in that line. Samples sent.

◆

More than 7,000 copies of Living Praise have gone out in the last few months, indicating somewhat the popularity of this excellent all purpose book, and more than 500 of them have been sent out this week, some in limp cloth at $2 per dozen, others in boards at $2.50 per dozen, others in full cloth at $3 per dozen, not prepaid.

◆

The brethren at Norfolk, Virginia, and other places are preparing for their protracted meeting right by ordering "History and Doctrine of the Disciples," byF. D. Power, for general and generous distribution. While we are selling them very low, we will make a special rate for 500 or more for such good use. They are splendid in communities where we are not known.

◆

Our Cradle Roll Supplies are:

1. Cradle Roll, a lithograph, 21x26 inches, with spacing for more than 100 names, at 50 cents, and a better one at $1.
2. Cradle Roll Certificate, 6 x 9 inches, in two colors, very pretty, per dozen, 50 cents.
3. Application cards, 3x5 inches, pretty picture in one corner, 15 cents per dozen.
4. Birthday Greetings, 5x7 inches, extra fine, with pretty picture, at 50 cents per dozen.
5. Birthday cards, 3x5 inches, with baby's picture in upper corner, 15 cents per dozen.

Dr. Price's
CREAM
Baking Powder

CONTAINS NO ALUM, LIME OR AMMONIA

Made of pure cream of tartar, it safeguards the health of the family.

Price Baking Powder Co.

CHICAGO.

Communion Sets

Quadruple Silver Plate

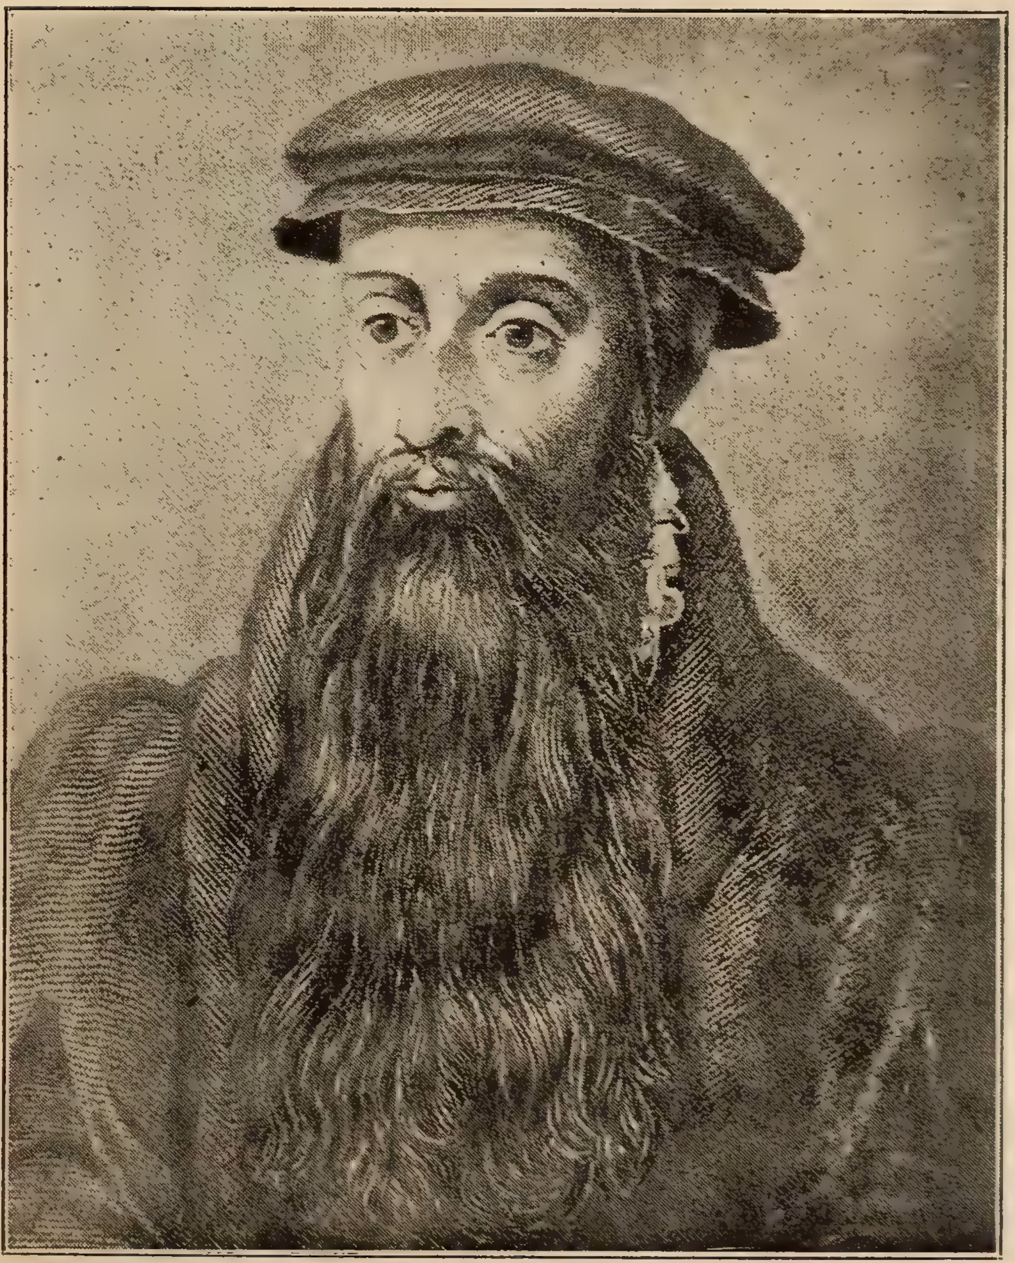
This Communion Ware is manufactured by one of the largest and most reliable establishments in the United States. We will be pleased to give prices. Write us, stating how many of each piece will be wanted. Address,

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 20. May 18, 1905. $1.50 A Year



JOHN KNOX,
Hero-Reformer of Scotland,
Whose Four Hundredth Anniversary is to be Celebrated May 21.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER, B. B. TYLER, W. DURBAN, } Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
    Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
    The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
    For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
    Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
    And the song of victory.

J. H. GARRISON.

CONTENTS.

CURRENT EVENTS 627

EDITORIAL:
- Contending About Words 629
- Is This True? 629
- Union Between Bapists and Free Baptists 629
- Children's Day 630
- Notes and Comments 630
- Editor's Easy Chair 631

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLES:
- Behavior Becoming House of God. Archibald McLean 632
- Letters From a Retired Minister 633
- As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 634
- Our Congregationalism. Prof. Silas Jones 635
- Our Early Violets. Poem 636

OUR BUDGET 637
- Some Notes on Cuba. W. S. Giltner .. 640

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS 641
EVANGELISTIC 645
PEOPLE'S FORUM 647
MARRIAGES, OBITUARIES 647
MIDWEEK PRAYER-MEETING 648
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR 648
SUNDAY-SCHOOL 649
FAMILY CIRCLE 650
WITH THE CHILDREN 654

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO,
NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Church Convention

California

The Christian Church will hold its International Convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 24

Santa Fe

The Santa Fe is the best way there

It's the shortest line to Southern California and a direct route to San Francisco—the time is fast—the weather is cool in summer—the track is oil-sprinkled and practically dustless—the mountain scenery is magnificent—one management all the way insures satisfactory service, start to finish—and Harvey serves the meals, the best in the West.

Tickets on Sale August 6 to 14, good to return in 90 days, from Middle-West states—on sale a day earlier in the East.

Round-trip Ticket rate via direct routes, $62.50 from Chicago, $57.50 from St. Louis, $50 from Kansas City, with stop-overs in Colorado and West.

Regular Service

The Santa Fe runs four trains to California. The California Limited is fastest and most luxurious—equipped with compartment, observation and drawing-room Pullmans, buffet-smoker and dining car. The California Fast Mail is almost as swift; the other two are called the Los Angeles and San Francisco Expresses; all three carry standard and tourist Pullmans and chair cars.

Special Excursion

Christian Church Special (equipped with standard and tourist Pullmans) leaves Dearborn Station, Chicago, via the Santa Fe, 10 p. m., Monday, August 7, leaves Kansas City 11 a. m., August 8, and arrives Los Angeles 6:00 p. m., August 12, stopping several hours at Albuquerque, N. M., Redlands, Cal., and Riverside, Cal.; also one day at Grand Canyon of Arizona. Personally conducted by a representative of the Santa Fe. Mr. G. W. Muckley, Corresponding Secretary, Board of Church Extension, American Christian Missionary Society, Mr. R. H. Waggener, National Superintendent, Christian Church Y. P. S. C. E., and Mr. Chas. A. Young, of the "Christian Century," will be in charge.

Grand Canyon Side Ride will cost $6.50 extra for railroad ticket, $1 extra for Pullman, and reasonable amount for accommodations at El Tovar hotel. The most wonderful scenic spectacle in the whole world, worth going thousands of miles to see. No extra charge for Redlands and Riverside side-rides through California orange groves.
Not room here to give full particulars. Won't you write to me for all the facts?

A. Andrews, G. A., 209 No. Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."
Vol. XLII. May 18, 1905 No. 20

Current Events.

The President and the Strike.

Mr. Shea, president of the teamsters' union, and the other strike leaders in Chicago seized the opportunity presented by the President's brief stop in that city to present a memorial to him. The gist of it was (1) a reiteration of their willingness to submit the whole question to an arbitrator and abide by the decision; (2) a request to be allowed further opportunity to present their side of the case to the President before any federal action is taken; (3) and the chief burden of the document, a protest against the use of federal troops at the present time in Chicago. The President gave them little satisfaction. He disclaimed any knowledge of the merits of the case, deprecated the reference to the army as if it would in any case be used except for the preservation of order, and declared that he heartily approved of all that Mayor Dunne had done to restore peace in Chicago. The document presented to the President was singularly shallow and feeble. The following paragraphs show the tone of the references to the army:

> "They [the employers] openly boast that they can spurn [the request for arbitration], and that the troops under your command will shoot down him who dares to openly protest against their action. They flatter themselves that the federal army is their ready tool to act upon their suggestion—right or wrong—and they therefore refuse to have any inquiry made as to whether they are right or wrong.
>
> "But can they do it? Is the army all these men think it is? Is it not a fact after all that the power of the army even rests to a great extent upon the support of the people? What would a few soldiers be against a nation?
>
> "Is it just or is it necessary to bring the United States army into Chicago in an effort to smother the cry of the toiler for arbitration?"

◆

A Perverted Statement.

Was there ever a flimsier statement of a case? If the above paragraphs are true, it seems that the employers are openly boasting that they will get the federal troops to shoot down whoever politely but firmly requests arbitration. We must admit that that open boast has not reached us. But we have heard the employers threatening to get the federal troops to shoot down, if necessary, any person or persons who conspire to commit assault and murder in the streets of Chicago, As a matter of fact, certain persons, chiefly strikers and their sympathizers, have made it unsafe or impossible for certain other persons to engage in lawful occupations which they have a legal right to engage in, have killed many of them and injured many more, have interfered with the conduct of business, have blockaded the streets, and have subjected innocent and disinterested persons to inconvenience, danger and personal injury. If troops are called out, it will only be to put an end to these lawless conditions. When President Shea identifies the enforcement of law and order with "smothering the cry of the toiler for arbitration," he does his own cause a very great injustice. Every person who has a spark of intelligence knows that federal troops never did and never will "shoot down" men who in an orderly way are demanding arbitration for their grievances. Mr. Shea overleaps his mark and makes himself ridiculous. Only last week he was saying to Attorney Meyer, in regard to the "imported" strike-breakers: "We have a right to attack them wherever found." Now he says to the President: "Every act of violence performed by either a union man or a sympathizer reacts to our detriment." The latter statement is true as a general proposition, but meaningless when taken in connection with Mr. Shea's other utterances. As we have said many times before, we believe in unionism, but the curse of the union is unwise and irresponsible leadership. There are not enough John Mitchells to go around.

◆

Chicago's Gas Bill.

In striking contrast with the gas tangle in Philadelphia is the happy issue of the first part of a fight for cheap gas in Chicago. By a unanimous vote, both houses of the Illinois legislature passed a measure which gives the Chicago city council the right to fix rates for the sale of gas and electricity for lighting purposes and also authorizes the city to sell the surplus electricity from the plants which are operated for municipal purposes. It still remains for the Chicago council to take advantage of this enabling act and establish a reasonably low rate for gas. Two facts give great importance to this announcement for cheap gas. One is the increasing use of gas as fuel. Is it not possible that some of us may live to see the time when the burning of coal within the limits of our cities will be forbidden by law and the cleaner fuel universally used in its place? The other interesting fact is the accumulating evidence that gas can be manufactured and sold with a reasonable profit at prices much lower than those generally charged. The investigations in New York lately showed that gas had been actually sold wholesale at prices varying from 28 to 40 cents per thousand feet, and apparently there had been a fair profit in it for the seller even at these low figures.

◆

French Neutrality.

The long delay of the Russian squadron in leaving French waters in Indo-Chinahas strained the relations of Japan and France almost to the breaking point. It appears, in general, that Rojestvensky's vessels have obtained coal and supplies and have found opportunity for cleaning their hulls, and that when they were warned against abusing the hospitality of a neutral harbor they withdrew for a short time beyond the three-mile limit, meanwhile keeping up communication with the shore, and presently returned to harbor. The Japanese minister at Paris has made a formal protest, to which M. Delcasse, French minister of foreign affairs, has replied with the assertion that there has been no breach of neutrality. The French argument is summed up in five conclusions, which have been approved by Great Britain: (1) There is no internatioal code on the subject of neutrality. Each nation has its own code, and it would be a sufficient defense for France to say that she has acted in accordance with her own understanding of the requirements of neutrality. (2) Precautions have been taken to secure impartial treatment of the belligerents. (3) Russian purchases at French ports have been insignificant, and less than from the British and Germans, especially in the matter of coal. (4) That any possible favor which may have been shown to Russia would have been shown to Japan equally under similar circumstances. (5) In short, France has completely fulfilled its duty as a neutral power so far as it was possible to do so. The appproval of this general statement by Great Britain disposes of the fear that Japan would be able to bring Great Britain into the war under the terms of the alliance, and it is reported that the temperature of the Japanese feeling against France has fallen considerably. Meanwhile the reports, vague and unfounded as they are, give Japanese sympathizers an increasing uneasiness. The junction of the two squadrons under Rojestvensky and Nebogatoff seems a certainty. The accidental sinking of Admiral Togo's flagship Mikasa is an unconfirmed rumor which is probably not to be taken seriously. The possible escape of the Vladivostok squadron to join Rojestvensky is giving some concern. In spite of his lamentable and absurd mistakes in the North Sea, Admiral Rojestvensky has handled his case very skillfully.

* * *

A Preventive of Crime.

A writer in the current number of the Craftsman asserts that the possession of a trade is the best known prevention for crime, and his argument goes a great way toward proving the proposition. Statistics show that a large percentage—some say as high as 80 per cent—of the men who are brought to trial for crime are men who have no trade. Perhaps the possession of the trade, with the accompanying opportunity for earning an earnest livelihood, removes the temptation to criminality. It is certain that the trained workman is to a much larger extent than the unskilled laborer free from the uncertainties and vicissitudes which furnish the suggestion for much crime. But more than that, the process of acquiring skill in any trade, the discipline to which a man must submit himself to obtain command of any craft, goes far toward removing a man from the class of the potentially criminal. The principle is the same that is involved in the introduction of manual training into the educational system—namely, that the training of hand and eye contributes not only to the making of the workman, but to the making of the man and the citizen.

* * *

Taft on Rate Control.

Secretary Taft was invited to address the International Railway Congress at a dinner held in connection with their meeting at Washington. What was expected was doubtless a polite, agreeable piece of postprandial oratory dealing with the magnificent contribution of the railroads to the advance of civilization and the wonderful growth of the industry in America. What was delivered was a strong and ringing address in favor of government control of railway rates. "You cannot run railroads as you run private business," he said. "You must respond to the public demand. If there is danger of discrimination, then you must allow the establishment of some tribunal that will remedy that discrimination." The toastmaster, Stuyvesant Fish, president of the American Railway Association, felt called upon to answer Secretary Taft at some length and laid emphasis on the rights of capital and vested interests, after which Secretary Taft asked for fifteen minutes to reply. The request was granted, of course, and Taft reinforced his previous remarks by outlining a plan for government control. It was a notable occasion and it displayed Secretary Taft in an admirable light as a man who does not hesitate to beard the lions in their den and who can give a good account of himself when he does so.

President Roosevelt, in his speech at the Iroquois club dinner in Chicago, had something to say about rate legislation. He heartily approved of Taft's remarks. "Personally," he said, "I believe that the federal government must take an increasing control over corporations. There should be, and I trust there will be, ho halt in the steady progress of assuming such national control, and the first step toward it should be the adoption of a law conferring upon some executive body the power of increased supervision and regulation of the great corporations engaged primarily in interstate commerce of the railroads."

* * *

Why They Lost Their Jobs.

An enterprising Chicago paper has recently conducted an investigation into the reasons why young men lose their positions. Some allowance must be made for the fact that these are the reasons assigned by the men who were discharged. The bosses who discharged them might tell a different story. Still, on the whole, it appears that the men represented in this series of returns have dealt very frankly with their own shortcomings and have not been inclined to shift the blame for their failures. Of eighty-one persons who recounted the stories of their discharge the reasons are classified as follows:

Drink	11
Because he wanted to learn English	1
Called on girl while on duty and lied about it	1
Shirked work	2
Swelled head	6
Refused to run errand	3
Because the beer froze	1
To reduce expenses	3
Thought business couldn't run without him	1
Gave the boss the wrong tip on a race	1
"Kidded" the boss	1
Cheated to keep up with heavy work	1
Loafed	9
Didn't work unless specially told to do something	1
Offered to box with priest	1
Bad company	7
Cigarettes	2
Wanted to marry boss' sister	1
Business discontinued	4
Accused of drinking	3
Accused of gambling (one guilty)	4
Boss boorish to women clerks	1
Couldn't understand when owner dictated in broken English	1
Carousing unfitted them for duty	7
Forty year old stenographer wanted to marry him	1
Manager's wife disliked him	1
Aspired to get higher jobs	4
"Knockers" got busy	2

It will be observed that 21 of the 81 got into trouble and out of work through drinking or carousing, while the many more whose faults were "loafing," "bad company" and "swelled head" would probably contribute several to the number of those whose fundamental weakness was drink. The data was not sufficiently extended to form the basis of a very large generalization, but, so far as they go, they show rather strikingly that the man who loses his place usually does so through his own fault. It is generally true that the right sort of man can get a place and keep it.

* * *

Mob Law in Missouri.

A negro who had kidnapped, and held for ransom a woman and child the other day was lynched by a mob at Belmont, Mo. Kidnapping in this state is a capital offense whether in white or black man, and the facts were so obvious that the law must have been vindicated by the proper officials. For a mob to take the prisoner from the hands of the sheriff and summarily lynch him is one of those acts of lawlessness which we have many times condemned. We are glad to see that Governor Folk has at once taken steps to prosecute the mob leaders. It is this spirit of every man being a law unto himself to do his own way that is one of those greatest sources of weakness in our commonwealth. We trust every Missourian will uphold Governor Folk, who has done so much already to vindicate the law, in his effort to give every man justice apart from passion.

* * *

The Ragged School Union.

The "diamond jubilee"—the sixtieth anniversary—of a very useful institution has just been celebrated at the residence of the Lord Mayor of London. This society maintains 219 Sunday-schools in London, with 50,000 pupils in them. Last winter it provided 14,000 Christmas dinners and 300,000 books for the children of the poor. Upon the rolls are 7,000 crippled boys and girls and in a year it deals with no less than 100,000 waifs. Most of the work is carried on by voluntary helpers and it is the kind of work for which he who takes note of a sparrow's fall will bless them.

* * *

Cutting Loose from Rome.

At the moment when the Roman Catholic prelates of America have gathered in St. Louis to confer the pallium upon its archbishop and announce a new one million dollar cathedral, comes news of the breaking away from Catholicism in the old world. Forty-seven students in the University of Vienna have publicly cut "los vom Rom" and preferred the reformed faith. Creeds and customs change slowly in Austria, and this student movement is significant.

Contending About Words.

In answering some questions in relation to the Holy Spirit, Bro. J. B. Briney, editor of the Christian Companion, says:

> "Are Christians literally and personally in the Spirit, and at the same time the Spirit literally and personally in them? Are Christians literally and personally in Christ, and he at the same time literally and personally in them? We know that Christ is personally in heaven, and therefore is not personally in people on earth."

It is a pity to have some of the most precious promises of Christ to his disciples obscured or explained away by the use of terms which serve only to confuse the mind. What, for instance, is the force of the word "literal," in connection with the Holy Spirit's indwelling? If it be used in antithesis to the word figurative or metaphorical, then we would ask if the coming of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost was a "literal" fact, or was it a mere figure of speech? It would be admitted, probably, that this advent of the Holy Spirit was literally true. The consequence of that coming was that the disciples were "filled with the Holy Spirit." Is that "literal" or figurative? The phrase, "baptized in the Holy Spirit," we take it, is a figurative statement of the same fact. The former statement seems to us to be a literal, unfigurative statement of the fact. The minds and hearts of the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit. But in any event let us hold to the reality of the fact, and not fritter that away by contending about words.

Again, did the Holy Spirit accomplish this work personally, or by proxy? We should say his coming and his filling of the disciples was actual, real and personal. It was the Holy Spirit himself, working in and through the disciples, and accomplishing his purpose through them. But if our brother, or anyone else, stumbles at such words as "literal" and "personal" in connection with the Holy Spirit, let him throw them aside and affirm, without qualifying terms, as Paul did, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God?" and "Christ liveth in me." Why should it be thought a thing incredible, in the realm of the spirit, for Christ to dwell in us, and we in Christ, or that we should be in the Holy Spirit and the Holy Spirit should be in us? These are spiritual truths, and are spiritually discerned.

In his work on the Holy Spirit Dr. Richardson uttered a warning against the attempt to explain away what we cannot fully understand which we will do well to heed in our time. He says:

> "Much of the rationalism and skepticism which exists, in relation to the indwelling of the Spirit, arises from the tendency which men have to demand positive definitions and palpable demonstrations in regard to matters wholly beyond the provinces of reason and sensation, and to refuse credence to everything which may not be actually submitted to sensible perception, or made plain to the ordinary understanding. In their vain endeavors to express what God is, in forms of human speech, metaphysical theologists presume to dogmatize and decide in regard to themes upon which the human mind should simply meditate in humble adoration."

Brother Briney is neither a rationalist nor a skeptic, but he has been led into this method of reasoning about the Holy Spirit, partly perhaps in revolt against certain extravagances and errors concerning the Holy Spirit, and partly by his tendency to eliminate the mystical from Christianity, and to bring its great truths within the sphere of logical demonstration. It is safer, in our judgment, to humbly accept these great utterances of Christ and of his apostles in their fullness, even when they reach heights and depths which transcend our knowledge, rather than attempt to reduce them to a meaning which falls within the sphere of our knowledge or experience.

Is This True?

Here is about the worst charge against the Baptists we have seen for a long time, and, strange to say, it comes from a Baptist paper, being quoted by one of our exchanges from The Baptist and Reflector. That paper is represented as saying: "They [Baptists and Disciples] agree absolutely only on one point, and that is the form of baptism. They disagree on every other point!"

That is very bad indeed; bad, we mean, on our Baptist brethren. We had supposed that they agreed with the Disciples of Christ on the following, among other things:

1. The inspiration and authority of the Holy Scriptures, and their sufficiency as a rule of faith and practice.
2. The Tri-Personality of God, who is revealed as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.
3. The sinfulness and depravity of men, and the necessity of regeneration in order to the enjoyment of life eternal.
4. Salvation by grace, through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, who is to be accepted and obeyed as both Saviour and Lord.
5. The mission of the Holy Spirit, who came on Pentecost to abide in the church forever, to convict the world of sin, of righteousness and of judgment, and to dwell in the hearts of believers for their enlightenment, comfort and sanctification.
6. That the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, and should be preached unto all nations for the obedience of faith.
7. The church of Christ is built on Christ, and is made up of all true believers and only such as share the new life in Christ.
8. The perpetuity of the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's supper, only penitent believers being proper subjects for baptism.
9. Believers are to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Christ through prayer, Bible study, and Christian service, loving one another and forgiving one another as Christ also forgave them.
10. Beyond this present life it shall be well with the righteous who enter into the full enjoyment of life everlasting, while the wicked and impenitent enter into a just retribution on account of their sins.

Now, in all these things we supposed the Baptists were in essential agreement with us, but the Baptist and Reflector says they are not! Is this true? We do not believe it, but we are willing to allow our Baptist brethren to speak for themselves. What do the Watchman, the Standard, the Baptist Argus, the Central Baptist, the Religious Herald, and other representative Baptist papers say about this?

Later. We have learned that the paper from which the above charge is quoted, is published at Nashville, Tenn. We admit that there is something palliative in that fact, as it may have gained its idea of what the Disciples of Christ believe from a local contemporary, but it is by no means a justifying fact, for an editor is not dependent on his local environment for his information concerning other religious bodies.

Union Between Baptists and Free Baptists.

The Watchman (Baptist), of Boston, states that a movement is on foot for the promotion of union between the Baptists and the Free Baptists. In a number of states the Baptist conventions have appointed committees on this subject. The plan now is to have a number of representatives of the Free Baptists meet with the Baptists in their national anniversaries in this city on May 17 and 18, where, in mutual consultation, a national committee may be appointed to enter into negotiations with a similar committee from the Free Baptists with reference to closer relations and ultimate union. The Watchman quotes the Rhode Island committee of Free Baptists as saying: "We believe this movement is from God, and that the fulness of time has come for such action," and the Watchman adds, "We heartily endorse their words." We are delighted at this manifestation of the spirit of union.

It will be remembered that committees have been appointed both by the national convention of Free Baptists, and by that of the Disciples of Christ, to confer together on the same subject. There seems to be no good reason why, when mutual misunderstandings are removed, and a better acquaintanceship has been brought about, all these "baptized churches of Christ," as Dr. Ford would call them, should not co-operate as brethren in the advancement of the kingdom of God. The main difficulty, of course, in all such union movements, is the spirit of provincialism that prevails here and there in all religious bodies, and the extremists, from which none are exempt. But why should a movement which has its impulse from God, and which is in direct harmony with Christ's prayer for the oneness of his followers, be thwarted by a minority of extremists? Ought we not to obey God rather than man?

The question may occur to some, whether the negotiations for union between Baptists and Free Baptists would hinder the progress of union between the Free Baptists and the Disciples of Christ. We see no reason why these movements toward union should not help each other. It is the spirit of union, after all, that is going to overcome whatever obstacles there are in the way. Back of the spirit of union is the conviction that divisions among Christ's followers are wrong, and should be healed. Where this conviction exists, it will seek unity in all possible directions.

The three religious bodies named ought to have no difficulty in standing together on the inspired platform of unity given by Paul: One body, one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all. And thus united what an invincible power they would be in bringing in the universal reign of Christ!

Children's Day.

It is the first Lord's day in June. It is the Red Letter day in the Sunday-schools. It is looked forward to with pleasure, and backward to with pride. It is pre-eminently the children's day. They have the right of way. Preachers, elders, and deacons, may be present and assist in any way they can, but they must not get in the way of the children! The children do the singing and most of the talking and nearly all the giving.

All the best schools have been getting ready for it for weeks. If your school hasn't, it is time you should wake it up and show it the calendar! Tell it June is here with its roses and its sunshine and its children's day. What would June be without its children's day? What can a Sunday-school be that has no part in this great national children's festival?

What does children's day mean? It means that the children amount to something; that they are the future church; that they have minds to understand and hearts to feel; that they can respond to the Savior's appeal for help in carrying the good news to all the world. It means that the children who give their dimes and dollars today will give their hundreds and thousands to-morrow.

Therefore give it the right of way, and make it a great day.

Notes and Comments.

The president of Virginia Christian college, Josephus Hopwood, says in the April issue of his little paper, The Light: "I am sixty-two years old today, April 18." There must be some mistake about that! Josephus was a college mate of the editor of the Christian-Evangelist, just a little while ago, and at that time he was "one of the boys," learning his lessons, and dreaming his dreams, like the rest of us. Is it possible that he has allowed the years to run by with so rapid rate that he is now an elderly gentleman of sixty-two? The school girl was right—"Tempus does fugit!"

◆

It used to be a very popular answer with some of the popular evangelists to say, in reply to the question, "What must I do to be saved?" "Do nothing at all. Jesus Christ has done it all." But that answer completely ignores the distinction between what Christ may do for a soul, and what the soul must, in the nature of things, do for itself. Dr. Theodore Cuyler, one of the sanest and most sensible religious teachers in this country, says:

> "What must I do to be saved?" You are right in emphasizing that little word "do," for your Savior having already done his mighty work of providing an atonement for you, the next doing must be done on your side. If anybody tells you to do nothing at all, but simply trust yourself to Christ, he or she may only confuse you. Jesus himself never gave any such advice. He said, "Follow me," and that means, go where I lead you, and do what I tell you.

That sort of talk has the advantage of being both scriptural and sensible, and is calculated to lead men out of a fog-bank into a plain path that grows brighter unto the perfect day.

◆

We perhaps ought not to be surprised to learn through recent reports from England and Wales that Evan Roberts, the evangelist, and the leading spirit in the recent great revival in Wales, is showing signs of an abnormal mental condition. One of our exchanges says:

> Recently Mr. Roberts visited the Welsh Calvinistic chapel, in Liverpool, where, although the meeting had been in progress for two hours, awaiting his coming, he sat for an hour silent in the pulpit, and his sermon was mostly a repetition of the one word, "obedience." The churches he is to visit are kept a close secret. He has puzzled and troubled his friends by occasional outbursts against unnamed individuals, whom he has charged with hindering the influence of the Spirit. He stopped, and bade them leave the building. A minister tried to soothe him, but he moaned and rocked in anguish.

It is possible that in addition to the extraordinary strain that has been put upon Mr. Roberts he is the victim of some extravagant theories concerning his use by the divine Spirit, which have preyed upon his mind. We trust that rest and further time for reflection will bring the noted evangelist back to a normal state. Meanwhile it is said the revival in Wales goes on, regardless of any one man's leadership.

◆

Prof. Geo. A. Coe has expressed the opinion that the reason why more women attend church than men is that the churches, in their organization and methods of administration, are better adapted to feminine tastes and activities than to those of men. This is probably not the only reason, but it is worth considering. The organization of a Business Men's Local League in each congregation would go far toward remedying this defect. There is no doubt but that the women of our churches are better organized than the men. It may be laid down as a fundamental proposition in church life and growth that people must be given something to do in order to be interested in the church and to develop their spiritual life. As a matter of fact few of our churches expect the men coming into the church, outside of the official board at least, to do anything more than to make a pledge to current expenses and attend the services with reasonable regularity! That sort of regime is not going to develop a very robust and heroic type of Christian character.

◆

St. Louis is to be the center of Baptist interests this week. The Northern and Southern Baptists will meet here in fraternal conference from 17th to the 23d inst. in the Third Baptist church, on Grand avenue. This will be their first joint session since their separation into two distinct assemblies in 1845, we believe. It is not proposed, as we understand, that any proposals will be submitted in this joint meeting for "organic" union of the two branches of the denomination, although "organic" union in this case can mean little more than their co operation in missionary work through the same societies and by joint conventions. No doubt the free intermingling of these brethren will do much to obliterate geographical and sectional distinctions. Then if there be economic and fraternal reasons why they should cooperate more closely, this is bound to come in time. It is a great religious body, standing for great truths and principles and having a great history and a promising future, that meets in our city, this week, and the Christian-Evangelist extends its fraternal greetings and bids them God-speed in every good word and work.

◆ ◆

We are glad to notice that now and then even an editor is appreciated. The editor of the Central Baptist, Rev. J. C. Armstrong, recently received a testimonial from his St. Louis brethren in the form of a purse that will enable him to attend the Baptist World Congress to be held in London this summer. We congratulate him.

Editor's Easy Chair.

S. H. L.: Your personal letter is all the more appreciated, because it is the only expression of approval which has reached us, of the editorial which you so heartily endorse. We believe with you that the positions taken in the editorial to which you refer are vital to our future success. But we are not surprised that no one but you has expressed his approval, and that you do it under the seal of privacy. We are glad to believe that many among us are willing to have these things said in the CHRISTIAN EVANGELIST, but they do not care to say them or to publicly endorse them when they are said by some one else. Nor is it always cowardice on their part; it is quite as often the result of an honest conviction that their usefulness might be impaired by their endorsement of sentiments which a large element of our membership are not prepared to accept. We are not finding fault with that policy, but—it is not ours.

◆

But is it not a wise principle, approved by our Lord, to withhold certain truths from people who are not ready to hear them? Yes, that is the principle Jesus adopted in respect to his disciples, and by the Holy Spirit he has been showing them those things for nineteen centuries. What the Holy Spirit, through the scriptures, has made plain to us, that we are to teach to those who are prepared to accept it. All people do not make the same progress. Some make rapid progress in spiritual things while others are slow to learn, and seem quite satisfied with their meager elementary attainments. If there be a dull boy in school who seems unable to get on with his lessons it would be wrong to hold back the entire school to his slow pace. Why should it be otherwise in the church, which is the school of Christ? "We speak wisdom," says Paul, "however, among them that are fullgrown," that is, who have made sufficient progress in the knowledge of spiritual things to understand his message.

◆

How is a preacher to manage this question when in every church there are so many grades of advancement? Perhaps this is where "rightly dividing the word" has one of its applications. A wise pastor will try to adapt some of his spiritual food to the different members of his flock. But a preacher must not assume too readily that he has attained spiritual conceptions of Christianity which his members would not appreciate. We have often known it to be the case where the members in the pew were hungering for some of the deeper things of the spiritual life, and were fed on controversial husks which they did not care for. Most preachers can learn something of real faith and consecration from some very humble and unpretentious people in their congregations. It is a good deal safer for a preacher to trust his members with any assured truth, which he has learned in his spiritual experience, or any well-attested facts relating to the Bible, than to incur the charge of believing one thing and preaching another.

◆

The editor solves the problem of adaptation by the principle of "natural selection." People naturally select the religious paper that furnishes the kind of food, in quality and quantity, to satisfy their spiritual hunger. We found out a long while ago that there are some people who do not relish the kind of food we supply. They are generally people whose spiritual tastes have been formed by a different sort of religious pabulum. Our subscription department sometimes sends out sample copies to names gathered here and there, and the responses received to the invitation to subscribe furnish confirmation of what we have said about different tastes. Some write: "That is the kind of paper I have been longing for; enroll me as a permanent subscriber"! Others say: "I don't want your paper; it doesn't suit me," and one man—perhaps he belonged to the "floating membership"—added "stop it,—— quick"! Perhaps that man would turn out and get up a club for another paper that suits his style. De gustibus non est disputandum!

◆

It is a great gain when a man becomes reconciled to the fact that all people are not going to like him and his way of believing and teaching. It will help one to be reconciled to this situation to remember that Jesus said, "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you!" The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, with a constituency of which, as respects both size and quality, any paper might well be proud, has never been in danger of this woe. There have always been those who have not spoken well of the paper. But for more than a generation it has continued to bear witness to the truth as God has given us to see the truth, believing that the truth-loving and the truth-seeking would justify its course. It not only sees no occasion to change this policy, but it sees no justifying reason for its continued existence except as it remains faithful to this mission. If it were possible for a religious paper to die pursuing this course, its epitaph might well be: "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

◆

A flying trip up into Michigan last week enabled the "Easy Chair" to see some of the resorts in their preparatory stage, getting ready for the summer visitors. We were glad to find that the reports concerning the ravages of the winter storms at Macatawa park were exaggerated. The lake-front plank driveway has indeed been undermined and broken up, but only about one-third of the granitoid pavement has been destroyed. These will be replaced. One or two new cottages are under way or near completion, and a few cottage owners were on the ground overlooking some repairs. Pentwater, 80 miles further up the lake, where the "Easy Chair" expects to summer again, as far as the San Francisco convention will permit, was smiling, unharmed by winter storms. Located in a cove or bend of the shore line, it seems to be better protected than most places. The 40 acre plot fronting on Lake Michigan, which has been taken by a few brethren for a summer colony of Disciples, wore an inviting look, even this early, with its majestic heights, its deep ravines, its pines, hemlocks and oaks, and here and there the trailing arbutus adding its fragrance and beauty to the scene. On these forest-crowned sand-dunes, and along these picturesque ravines, we hope one day to see scores of tasty but simple cottages inhabited by Christian resorters.

◆

If the "Easy Chair" does not often rise to the heights of imagination where poetry is born, it has at least had the effect of inspiring the poetic muse in others. The following beautiful and tender verses from the pen of one of our gifted St. Louis sisters will, we are sure, be appreciated by the Easy Chair readers:

"APPLE BLOSSOMS."

BY MRS. P. R. GIBSON.

["Only a faded apple blossom!"—Editor's Easy Chair.]

O blossoms so delicate, dainty and sweet,
So full of rich promise, your coming I greet;
With your exquisite breath, o'erladen with spring,
How tender, suggestive the thoughts that you bring!

Back again—home again—bridged the long years,
By memories spanning life's torrent of tears,
To the glad days of yore ere the sunlight of life
Had grown dim in its toil, its care and its strife.

Back again—home again—borne on your breath,
Heartache forgotten, and sorrow and death—
As storm clouds that sundriven backward must roll—
These vanish as child-life comes back to the soul.

In your rich buds of promise, sun-tinted, I trace
The dawning of life with its mystical grace;
I see in your faces that rival the snow,
Dear kindred and friends of the days long ago.

O memories tender and sweet as your bloom,
Like gay, gladsome children troop into the room.
A father's caress, a mother's fond kiss—
Was ever a memory dearer than this?

Sweet blossoms, I turn with a hope that grows glad
Away from these memories tender yet sad,
To find in your forecast of fruitage to come
A promise of joy in the bright "harvest home."

Behavior Becoming the House of God

By Archibald McLean

The Lord delights in that which is beautiful and becoming. He is a God of order, and not of confusion. He has made everything beautiful in its season. He asks us to do all things decently and in order. He has given us the faculty of taste for this very purpose. This faculty has its place and its function no less than reason and conscience and imagination. There is room for its exercise in the church as well as in the home and in society. Some things connected with public worship are acceptable to God and pleasing to all good people. These are worthy of consideration by all who desire the edification of the body of Christ.

In the first place, good taste requires that the entire membership be in their places on time. This will be a delight to all, and will be a great advantage to the service. Some good people are habitually late. If these same people had an invitation to meet the president of the nation or the governor of the state they would take pains to be on time. They would regard it discourteous to appear after the time appointed and after the reception had begun. If we feel this way when we are to meet a fellow-mortal, how much more when we come together to meet God! Once in a while one may have a sufficient reason for being late. Ordinarily there is no reason, and not even an excuse, The Sunday newspaper, that abomination of our time, that enemy of the church, is responsible for much tardiness. It will add immensely to the interest and value of the services if all are in their seats when the time comes to begin. Every late arrival detracts from the beauty and impressiveness of the worship. Tardiness is in bad taste. It is disrespectful to the God of heaven whom we profess to serve and adore.

Secondly, good sense and good taste will lead one to sit in the body of the house and well to the front. One man on the front seat is worth more to the service than two on the back seat or in the wings. Not only so, but one gets twice as much good from the worship. A great aching void in the heart of the church, while the audience is ranged like wall-flowers, is depressing to the leader and to all present. One should go to the sanctuary to give help as well as to get help. The benefit one receives will be measured by the contribution he makes. Every believer is a priest. It is his province to offer up spiritual sacrifices. If these are properly offered they are acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. There is no obligation relating to the public worship that rests upon the minister that does not rest equally upon every member. The body of Christ is fitly framed and knit together through that which every joint supplies. The ambition of every Christian should be to assist according to the measure of the ability that God has given him. By so easy and simple a matter as sitting in the best part of the house one can help mightily.

Thirdly, a sense of propriety will lead one to come prepared to sing and pray and listen with the spirit and with the understanding. One cannot do that if his mind is full of the latest scandal or crime or accident. He cannot do that if he is thinking how he can buy and sell and get gain. It has been well said that if a man comes to church with his head full of business he cannot go away with his heart full of blessing. If his mind is preoccupied the message will go in at one ear and out at the other, the good seed will not be able to find a lodgment. One should go to the house of God after a season of prayer and praise. This meeting God is the supreme event of the week. A bride adorns herself when she goes to the altar; courtiers array themselves in their best robes when they are to be presented to their sovereign; so a Christian should suitably prepare himself in every respect when he is to meet and worship the King in his beauty.

It should be known and remembered that nothing perfunctory is well-pleasing to God. He is Spirit, and he wishes us to worship him in spirit and in truth. He is the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only God; he is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and the Lord of lords. The seraphim cover their faces and their feet and worship him in lowliest reverence. Nothing inconsistent with the dignity and glory of the Most High is in place here. Sleep and drowsiness are an offense. One would not think of sleeping in the presence of the president of the nation. That would be regarded as an insult. The same is true of yawning. No cultured person would yawn in a neighbor's parlor. Any one with the slightest respect for his host or for himself would refrain from such inexcusable rudeness. One who claims to be a follower of "the first true gentleman that ever breathed" should be careful not to violate the most elementary rules of good manners. Indifference, however manifested, not only discredits the worshiper, but hinders the worship. It takes the heart out of the minister. He cannot do his best if those to whom he ministers are unsympathetic and irresponsive. He cannot deliver his message as he would. The whole tone of the service is perceptibly lowered. It should be borne in mind that we go to church to meet God, to hear his word, and to receive blessings from him. The minister and the ordinances are the channels through which he pours his grace into the soul. If there is any discourtesy shown, it is shown not to the minister but to God whose mouthpiece he is. The profit one will derive from the service will depend upon his frame of mind and heart, The hungry and receptive will be filled with good things; those who have no sense of need will be sent empty away.

Minister and people know that there are times when the atmosphere is electric. The audience is awake and alert. They have come prepared to participate in all that is said and done. They are in fullest sympathy with the object for which they have met. There is no sign of sleep or weariness or indifference. The leader is at his best. He surprises himself and his hearers. Strangers are profoundly impressed. Saints are edified, They drink in the truth as the thirsty land drinks in the rain. Sinners are convinced and confess with their lips the faith that is in their hearts. God is honored and his cause is advanced. Of such a church and such a service it may be said, "This man and that man were born there."

Thirdly, good taste will prevent undue haste in the conduct of the services. Haste is incompatible with dignity and edification. The tendency in modern times is to boil everything down, to cut everything short. It is easy to push that tendency to an extreme. It is possible for a service to have some merit other than that of brevity. It is not an uncommon thing to see persons restless from the time they enter the house till they leave it. They look at their watch or at the clock every few minutes. Their whole bearing shows that they are eager for the end. There is a sigh of relief when the speaker reaches the conclusion. While the doxology is being sung and the benediction is being pronounced they are occupied with putting on their overcoats and rubbers. As soon as the last "Amen" is uttered, or even before, there is a grand rush for the doors, which the janitor is careful to have standing wide open so as to facilitate the exit. In their minds the main thing is that the services be compressed within the very narrowest limits. The sermon is judged not by the amount of truth it contains, but by the number of minutes occupied in its delivery. The fewer the better. It goes without saying that in the presence of God all haste is irreverent and indecent. If one should act in the same way in the presence of some distinguished character or in a group of friends he would be considered as deficient in the rudiments of culture. In any social circle no well-bred man shows that he is bored or that he is weary, or looks at his watch, or hurries from the place. He knows that if he were to show any lack of appreciation of the occasion he would wound his entertainers, and would advertise himself as a boor. If it is necessary to withdraw to take a train or to fill an engagement, he apologizes for the necessity of leaving that charmed circle before the function closes. There is a place for good breeding in the church as well as at a banquet or at a ball.

The saints of all ages have found unspeakable delight in the house of God. "How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Jehovah of hosts! My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth, for the courts of Jehovah; my heart and my flesh cry out for the living God." "A day in thy courts is better than a thousand." "One thing have I asked of Jehovah, that will I seek after: that I may dwell in the house of Jehovah all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of Jehovah, and to inquire in his temple." "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of Jehovah." We are told to wait on Jehovah, to wait patiently for him. "They that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint." "Delight thyself also in Jehovah." Such "waiting" and "dwelling" and "delightiug" preclude extreme brevity and haste. When an audience is pleased no one is in a hurry to get away. The language of all is,

"My willing soul would stay in such a frame as this,
And sit and sing herself away to everlasting bliss."

Those who frequent the circus and the opera and baseball games watch hour after hour, and the audience is larger at the end than it was at the beginning. It would be the same in the house of God, if all who attend understood that they are there to meet God and to be refreshed and energized and illumined by him. If all Christian people felt as they should about public worship, the scandalous rush for the doors now seen in some places would be unknown. Instead of a desire to depart at the sound of the last word of the service, all would sit down and engage in silent prayer for a few moments and then retire quietly.

Lastly, a due regard for what is becoming would lead all to give on a scale worthy of the place and the object. It is in God that we live and move and have our being. It is in his hand that our breath is, and his are all our ways. "Of him, and through him, and to him, are all things. To whom be glory for ever and ever." He asks us to remember our obligation to him and to give as he has prospered us. "Bring an offering, and come into his courts." He asks the best we are able to give. In ancient times, when the blind and lame and sick were offered, he refused to accept them. He said to the people who were guilty of sacrilege, "Present it now unto thy governor; will he be pleased with thee, or will he accept thy person?" He charged those people with robbing him. They impudently asked, "Wherein have we robbed thee?" He answered, "In tithes and offerings." For this robbery they were cursed with a curse. "Bring ye the whole tithe into the store house, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now herewith, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there will not be room enough to receive it." The same charge and admonition are in place now. Many of those whom he has abundantly prospered make no return whatever. They do not give a penny or a prayer or one single interested thought in a year to carry on his work. Many of those that give something, give a pittance. They are offering the blind and the lame and the sick and the torn. They would not dream of offering on that scale to the governor. He would spurn such paltry trifles. There are those now, as there were then, who withhold more than is meet, and it tendeth to poverty. Their very blessings become curses. It was said by one of old time, "Thy people offer themselves willingly in the day of thy power." This is the glorious day of which the inspired Psalmist spoke. To rob God is bad manners as well as bad morals. Those who do this offend their Creator and wrong their own souls.

If the conduct of all Christian people were in harmony with the will of God, the results would be very great and very gratifying. Those who looked on would be convinced that God is in them indeed, and they would fall down and worship him. This is the new apologetic that the age needs.

Letters From a Retired Minister

[Young Prentice has just written to his uncle confessing to a very distressing pulpit failure. The young man also writes that a very prominent member of his congregation seems to have taken offense at some strictures his pastor recently made on a popular amusement of the day.]

LOS ANGELES, May 6, 1905.

MY DEAR NEPHEW:—I am making it a point to answer your latest letter right away. For the first time I've detected an unmistakable note of discouragement in your letter. Now, I'm not a bit surprised. I expected it before this. Life isn't all sunshine, neither is the minister's way always a rose-strewn one. I think I can testify to that. Even the most buoyant fellow gets under the juniper tree occasionally. But I don't want you to take this too much to heart. I see you are disposed to quiz me a bit. Did I ever preach a poor sermon? Yes, and many a one, too. Now, I'm not proud of this, I'm just answering your question. I suppose I suffered as keenly from a sense of pulpit failure as any youngster in the ministry ever did. The fact is, during the first years of my preaching experience, I rarely slept any on Sunday nights. If I preached poorly, I felt too bad to sleep, and if I preached well I felt too good to sleep, so in either case I rolled and tumbled about the bed fighting all the battles over again. I kept this performance up for several years. Maybe I never would have gotten over it had it not been for the words of a dear old preacher who had known me from the time I put on my first pair of trousers, and had been greatly beloved by my father. I poured out my story to him once, and, after listening to it patiently, the old gentleman smiled on me and said very slowly, as if weighing every word:

"William, you aren't leaving anything to God; besides, William, you know your sermons at their best aren't going to turn the world upside down, and at their worst, William, they won't do any harm. Do your level best, William, and leave the rest to God." You see, Will, it's very easy to go wrong here. It's the old story of thinking more of the form than the matter. I don't believe the man who always keeps in mind the object of a sermon ever really fails. Here is an instance fresh in my mind. Three weeks ago Dr. Bailey's pulpit here was filled by young Rhodes of Brockton. You know what a brilliant youngster he is. Well, in the morning he gave us a fine sermon on Romans 5:1. His delivery was as effective as one could wish. He fairly magnetized that big audience. I go out very little of nights, but I went out to hear him. He spoke in the evening on Hebrews 2:3 and I saw pretty soon that he was ill at ease and uncertain of speech. But he struggled on manfully. Big beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead. I never saw a man more painfully conscious of failure. Finally he gave it up and said, as nearly as I can recall the words: "Friends, I can't present my message to-night as I prepared it, but I can tell you the love of Jesus. Some of you are neglecting the greatest thing in the world. You are missing this great salvation simply by neglecting it. Surrender to your Christ, submit to him. Oh, do it to-night." I tell you there was a thrill in his voice, a pathos in his words, that went with convicting power to the hearts of all of his hearers. There were four conversions. Now I say, Will, that this was grander than Father Taylor's getting tangled up in a rush of utterance and saying, "I have lost the nominative case, but one thing I know, I am bound for the kingdom."

I don't think you can misunder-

(Continued on page 636.)

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

Two important conventions are in sight: July 5-10, and August 17-24. The first occurs in the neighboring city of Baltimore and will consist of the Christian Endeavor hosts gathered from all lands for their bi-ennial festival; the second is the great missionary convocation of the Disciples of Christ at San Francisco. In both of these Christian assemblies we have a deep interest. Coming as they do on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and uniting the Chesapeake and San Francisco bays, they tell of the breadth of our Christian sympathies and the wide sweep of our Christian activities. From sea to sea and beyond the seas must be the reach of our parish. The outlook from the Dome takes in the world and all worlds.

Washington is closely connected with the Oriole city. It is just 40 miles away and we make the trip in 45 minutes. The Christian Endeavor convention is therefore in a sense our convention and we will send 5,000 young people to enjoy it. For our young men and women all over the land this will be a great event, we trust. It has been two years since we journeyed to Denver, and were refreshed on that mountain top of privilege. Except for the tumbling of the tent on the heads of a few thousands of us, that was a blessed meeting, and this promises even larger things. Baltimore is the sixth city in America, has passed its 175th year, and to-day covers 32 square miles. It was laid out in 1730, 60 lots of less than one acre each, three streets and nine alleys. It is now a mighty metropolis famous for commerce and progress. It is new Baltimore and greater Baltimore. The fire of February 7 and 8, 1904, swept 150 acres of its finest business section, but from its ruins it has risen in richer splendor. Recently $13,000,000 have been voted for municipal improvements; new docks and piers are to cost $6,000,000; and a sewer system is to take $10,000,000. A million more is to be expended in parks, and cobblestones are to give place to modern pavements. The great fire was a great blessing. Wider streets, better buildings, up-to-date equipment in every respect mark the spot which a year ago was a great heap of ashes, twisted iron, and smoking brick of "fire proof" structures.

We call it the Monumental City. It is historic in every way, the home of the "Star Spangled Banner," written by Key during the attack of the British in 1814. One sees in the harbor Fort McHenry whose flag inspired the national song. Key was on board a ship, and in the light of early dawn when the firing ceased, looked to see what flag was flying on the ramparts. When he saw it was the "Stars and Stripes," he sat down and wrote his immortal song. Taking it to Benjamin Eades he said it must be sung to the "Anacreon in Heaven." It was sung in Baltimore for the first time by an actor named Durang. Key died January 11, 1843, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Howard, on Mt. Vernon Place. Battle monument also commemorates this event of 1814. It is in the midst of the business section and is a tribute to the brave defenders who sacrificed their lives during the repulse of the British.

The title, "Monumental City," came no doubt from the shaft to George Washington whose corner stone was laid in 1815. It is a noble Doric column of white marble, rising 180 feet and surmounted by a statue of the Father of his Country. Mount Vernon Place where the monument stands is in the heart of the most wealthy and exclusive residence section, enriched by statuary and other objects of art. Other columns and memorials are those to the Maryland heroes of the Revolution, to the Confederate soldiers and sailors, to the Mexican war veterans, to Poe, Wallace and Columbus.

In its parks and public buildings the city is one of the richest and most beautiful in the land. Druid Hill is a splendid resort for thousands, with 671 acres of lake and lawn and grove. Clifton Park has 255 acres. Carroll, Riverside, and Federal Hill, Patterson Park, and the public squares, and Eutaw Place, Mount Royal, Fulton Avenue and Broadway with their parked street beds are attractive spots. Then Johns Hopkins Hospital, Peabody Institute, the Pratt Library, the Woman's College, the City Hall, Post Office and Court House, and the many splendid churches and houses, give great architectural beauty to the convention city, One must not conclude that all there is of Baltimore is cobble stone pavement, and overground sewers, and the B. & O. railroad, and "the Sun paper," "plug uglies," and oyster houses, and ill smelling tunnels, and white marble steps which they are perpetually washing. It is really a city well worth visiting. The Calverts were quite respectable, and all the race who came over in the Ark and the Dove in 1634 were really very astute, and large minded, and well intentioned folks, and their successors on the head waters of the Patapsco have proven themselves worthy of their sires.

Baltimore has a history. Here was once the capitol of the nation in the darkest day of its life when Congress was fleeing before the redcoats. Here Franklin Pierce was nominated, and Lincoln and Johnson and Horace Greeley. Here the first telegram was received sent from Washington in 1844, "What hath God wrought?" Here, too, Edgar Allan Poe and Sidney Lanier wrote their lyrics. Sometimes these two men are alluded to as Baltimore's literary lights. It suggests the wit's remark that Pennsylvania's two most famous men were Albert Gallatin, of Switzerland, and Benjamin Franklin, of Massachusetts, to say Poe, of Virginia, and Lanier, of Georgia, were Baltimoreans, but they did write here, and Poe's body rests here in the old Westminster burying ground at the corner of Fayette and Green. Poe's foe was the appetite for drink and he died here at forty. He was picked up on the street, Oct. 4, 1849, taken to the Washington university hospital where he died, Oct. 7, and on a raw cold day, with only nine people present, the remains of the immortal singer were laid away. For twenty-six years the grave of the author of the "Raven" was unmarked; then the public school teachers and pupils erected the monument with his face cut in the stone and his name carved on the base. Lanier, possibly a great poet, certainly a better man, battled with consumption and fell at thirty-nine, dying in Lynn, N. C., in 1881. Read his "Sunrise," or "The Harlequin of Dreams," said to show more genuis than all the poems of Longfellow, Lowell and Poe.

Of course you will come eastward July 5-10, and you will see this noble metropolis of the Chesapeake; and then you will go westward for the vision of the Golden Gate. That August festival on San Francisco Bay, 17-24, should be remembered constantly in our prayers. As I train my spy glass from this elevated station on the whole scene it is a surpassingly charming one, a vision splendid. There is the ever memorable pilgrimage itself. Over Uncle Sam's broad domain toward the setting sun; along the old trail of the red man, the emigrant wagon, and the gold seeker, once alive with buffalo, deer and antelope; rolling along in a comfortable Pullman and eating dollar dinners in the diner, and dreaming of red skins and Argonauts and Bonanza kings and nascent empires and wild beasts and prairie schooners and cowboys; sweeping onward through growing cities and towns, well tilled acres and grazing herds, across prehistoric seas and burying grounds, and treasure-locked regions and great masterpieces of nature; amid bewildering buttresses and temples, columns, castles, colonnades and cathedrals reared without hands, through deserts and snow-sheds endless and aggravating, and vast stretches of mountain scenery stupendous and awe-inspiring in their lonely grandeur, over the roof of the world you are carried to a lovely region of orchards and wheat fields and orange groves and gardens, and live oaks and warm sun and clustering towns and villages, to the very gate of

(Continued on page 636.)

Our Congregationalism*

By Prof. Silas Jones

It is understood that there are some among us who would affirm the proposition that we are anarchists and others who are of the opinion that we have a pope, though they grant that his authority is not universally acknowledged. Disregarding these extreme views, we pass on to the inquiry concerning the extent to which the principles of congregationalism have been adopted by us, and to ask what are the tendencies, if there are any, toward anarchy on the one hand, and toward ecclesiastical tyranny on the other.

A creed is involved in every protest against creeds. When Pyrrho declined to turn aside to save himself from being crushed by a wagon or from falling over a precipice, on the ground that nothing is worthy of belief, not even the testimony of the senses, he nevertheless had his philosophic creed to which he adhered rigidly. What men mean, therefore, when they say they will have nothing to do with creeds, is that they do not believe some things that are accepted by their neighbors as true or were held to be true by men of former generations. Objection may legitimately be taken to the form in which a doctrine is stated and to the manner in which its acceptance has been secured. The Disciples of Christ have rejected many articles in the creeds that have come down to us from the ancients. They have been liberal in their denunciations of the methods by which opinions of councils have been forced upon unwilling peoples. But they have never taught that it is a matter of indifference what a man believes. On the contrary, they have ever insisted that it is a great moment in a man's life when he can say from the heart, "I believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God," and thus joins himself to those who hold the fundamental verities of the Christian religion. They teach that a man's belief determines his growth in character and his usefulness to his fellow men, and therefore his standing before God.

Inasmuch as we have no ecclesiastical body whose right it is to tell us exactly what we must believe in order to be saved and to pass judgment concerning those who reject its authoritative standards, how do we protect ourselves against teachers of strange doctrines? Does not great scandal result from our method, or lack of method, of dealing with propagators of error? In attempting to answer these questions, account is to be taken of the age in which we live and of the kind of people with whom we have to deal. The theologians of the early councils had before their minds the unity that prevailed in the Roman empire. Rome compelled men by military power to obey her laws. The church of the middle ages was the Roman empire in ecclesiastical garb. It treated dissent as a crime. The eyes of some men of the present are turned toward the church of the middle ages. It is the embodiment of their ideals. The truly modern man seeks no such embodiment for his ideals. If he has the historic spirit, he will not withhold the praise that is due the ancient church for its great achievements in behalf of religion and civilization. He will recognize the limitations under which the early thinkers and statesmen of the church labored, and he will not condemn them for their failure to think and act like citizens of the United States in the twentieth century and advocates of the return to apostolic simplicity in religion. The institution they built made possible the modern state and the modern church. In the new order the individual has his rights. His intelligence and conscience constitute the court of final appeal in matters of faith. He dares to examine the facts for himself and to formulate his own creed. His acquaintance with the methods of science has made him suspicious of the ancient creeds and indifferent to the opinions of ecclesiastical dignitaries. He counts it a sin to let another think for him. Now we have tried to be modern in our efforts to preserve the unity of the faith. Our fathers made their appeal to the people. They erected no court for the detection of heresy. That we have always fully trusted the people will not be maintained. The pre-eminence accorded to Mr. Campbell because of his abilities was desired after his death by other men. They reasoned that Mr. Campbell's authority had been necessary to save the churches from destructive heresies and that he ought to have a successor. One man said, a short time before Mr. Campbell's death, that as soon as Mr. Campbell had gone he would denounce certain men and send them into retirement. He was a good man and he had consecrated his energies to the service of Christ. But he and others who aspired to the office of creed-maker had wrong notions as to the way in which false teaching is to be corrected among the Disciples of Christ. The people refused to stop at the barriers they erected. Several years ago a number of the leading preachers of Illinois got it into their heads that some provision should be made to bring the preachers to account for their loose opinions. Some of the men of college training began to fear the unlettered would not pronounce correctly the shibboleths of orthodoxy. After a few speeches had been made and a few private conferences held, the matter was dropped.

There has been disorder here and there, owing to the desire to grant to every man the liberty there is in Christ. A brilliant preacher has now and then led astray his congregation, or a good part of it before the slow methods of public opinion separated him from his brethren, with whose aims he was no longer in sympathy. The disorders that have been due to erratic preachers do not call for an apology on the part of the whole people. Individuals may deserve censure. We are a growing people and we must pay the penalty of growth. All truth is not yet in our possession. The man who thinks we are not casting off the errors of former generations fast enough is one of us, and also the man who thinks that we are in danger of forsaking the right way of the Lord in our zeal for what is new. Both men have a right to be heard. The young man must have a certain freedom to make mistakes if he is to be worth anything when he comes to maturity. The old man must have freedom to indulge in what the young men consider pessimistic comments on the paucity of correct opinions. We shall continue to express our view freely and the churches will continue to receive the ministries of the men whose teaching they are willing to approve. Our troubles would probably be increased if we should put forth an authoritative statement of belief and appoint a body of men to see that it was accepted by every one who came forward as a teacher.

The weakest point of our congregationalism appears when we attempt to organize our strength for evangelization and Christian culture. The fellowship of congregationalism is one of sentiment. Affiliation for Christian activity must be spontaneous. There is a lack of right sentiment concerning the enterprises that require the cooperation of all the churches. Thousends who call themselve good and true disciples and pass for such with their neighbors have little or no knowledge of what is being accomplished by co-operative effort and of what might be accomplished if every disciple would do his part, and they endure their ignorance with tranquil satisfaction. It is perfectly natural that a church with a vision so limited should busy itself with trifles and separate itself from Christian people for reasons that have no warrant in scripture. Personal whim takes the place of the principles of Christ. The church becomes a private institution, as all churches are to the extent to which they are sectarian.

What is the sentiment in our churches respecting the educational problem? In many of them it has never been suggested that there is an educational problem. The representative of the college is regarded as an enemy if he appears and asks to be heard. Churches that have for years heard the gospel from the lips of men educated in our colleges, that demand thoroughly trained men for their pulpits, have not the slightest sense of obligation to the colleges. Here is a danger of our congregationalism.

---

*Being a portion of the Reviewer's paper at the Congress.

The weaker churches would fare better if they were not so suspicious. Suspiciousness is not to be charged against them all. The little churches contain some of the truest souls in the world. A considerable number of them, however, are always looking for sinister motives in those who come to join them in Christian activity. Their undoing comes because they question the motive of the wrong persons. While they are telling the representative of the state missionary society their conviction that he is trying to foist an ecclesiasticism upon them, the rascally preacher creeps in and destroys the church. The evangelist or secretary could have warned them against the bad preacher but they would not listen. Increase of intelligence will effectually cure suspiciousness.

The immoral preacher is a greater reproach to us than the heretical one. Who does not feel a sense of shame when he reads in one of our papers, "Warning: A Bad Man!" followed by a description of the offender and a list of the names by which he has been known, under which he has won his reputation? The same man will disgrace half a dozen churches after his character has been published to all men. Ministerial associations have done good service in exposing the immoral preacher. The secretaries of the state missionary societies are able seriously to interfere with his plans. But he is still a problem. If all the churches were in touch with the missionary organizations of the states, they would be comparatively free from his devices.

The people have a direct vote on the management of our religious papers. In subscribing for a paper a man gives his vote in its favor. The editor whose views you abhor is the only defender of the faith as another sees it. Your favorite editor is a stupid traditionalist in the eyes of your neighbor. The people also have the control of the colleges in their own hands, whether they elect the trustees or not. The colleges must come to the people for students and for money.

Some Safeguards.

1. Emphasis on the personal Christ rather than a definition of him.
2. The Christian ordinances. As they are observed in all the churches, they keep prominent the fundamental facts and principles of Christianity.
3. Associations for the discussion of topics of vital concern to Christian people—the congress, ministerial associations. We learn to understand one another, we bring our judgments nearer together.
4. The missionary conventions, district, state, national. They supply information and inspiration, and emphasize the real thing for which we stand.

Letters from a Retired Minister.

(Continued from page 633.)

stand me. You know what I think of ragged pulpit preparation. But when you've done your best, that's all you can do. You will need all your strength both of body and mind for the next duty. Let the dead past bury its dead. "No man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God." Don't cross any bridges till you come to them and in some instances not even then. You will have enough real problems without taking to heart every unavoidable thing. I am rather disposed to make answer to the problem the latter part of your letter presents, by relating an incident I heard Dr. John Robertson, of Glasgow, tell when he was with us last spring. That great hearted blonde Scotchman gave us a bit of his personal history. He said that in his first pastorate there was a very wealthy and prominent member who was worldly to a distressing extent. "Finally," said Dr. Robertson, "I could stand it no longer, and preached a sermon in which I struck his sins some hard blows, when to my consternation he put his fingers in his ears and calmly sat the sermon through." After that every time young Robertson's sermon touched on the particular sins of that man, up would go his fingers to his ears. The young pastor was distressed immeasurably. The thing just about made him sick.

Not long after these distressing experiences began, Robertson was down to London and called on Mr. Spurgeon, who was ever the young preacher's friend, and with whom he had some acquaintance. Well, to shorten a long story, Mr. Spurgeon saw the young man was worried about something, and bade him open his heart. He did so, and poured out the whole miserable story, almost ready to burst into tears the while. And he concluded by saying:

"Now Mr. Spurgeon, what would you do if you had in your congregation a man who put his fingers in his ears every time you preached the truth to him?" Spurgeon's face became very long and very serious. "What would I do if I had a member of my church who put his fingers in his ears every time I preached the truth to him?" he repeated, his brows contracting all the time as though in deep thought. "Well, I think I should pray the Lord to send a fly to light on his nose!" Dr. Robertson went on to say that a good many worries had been spared him since, by this remark of Mr. Spurgeon. I think you can find an application in it for this particular experience of your own.

Feel free, Will, to preach what you believe, but remember, your hearers will accept only so much of your sermons as shall commend itself to their consciences, and since conscience is an elastic thing, don't look for unanimity. You won't find it.

"And now I commend you unto God and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all them that are sanctified."

Affectionately your uncle,

William Prentice.

Our Early Violets.

By Alice Alwilda Frost.

Welcome, welcome Violets!
With joyful hearts we greet you!
Greet every modest drooping head,
So glad we are to meet you!
Tho' cold bleak winter stayed so long
With garment white above you,
Your royal hues now dot the green,
And O, how much we love you!

For May-day cheer you're everywhere
With blossoms in profusion;
You fill our baskets for the sick,
A surprise—yet no delusion;
And thus at early dawn you go,
Upon the threshold waiting,
'Til gathered in to cheer the heart
Of the Shut-In with your greeting.

'Tis joy and comfort that you bring,
'Tis promise—winter's ended.
New life, new strength shall come again,
New growth with beauty blended.
Without you life were incomplete;
You come with touch caressing,
To fill our hearts with hope and cheer—
Our early spring-time blessing.

As Seen From the Dome.

(Continued from page 634.)

the Occident and Orient, and to warm hearts and happy homes, to a great city in an ideal situation on the Pacific with its Nob Hill and its Golden Gate Park, its Chinatown and its Sutro Baths, its Seal Rocks and its Palace Hotel and its everlasting bay windows, and above all its Christian convention.

Two cautions: take your overcoat, and don't believe everything they tell you. Several men were telling California stories on the Overland Limited. One after another had delivered himself of his most colossal imitation of Munchausen. A bystander took in the recitals without change of countenance. Presently one of the group turned to him and said: "Stranger, you don't seem to express any surprise at these things." "No," drawled the stranger, "I am something of a liar myself." Still even the stories are not more picturesque and immense than the realities in mountain and forest and field and flowers and fruits and people, and most of all in the blessed assembly of the Lord's elect. Go, by all means. Next to the "Forty-niners" will be the Nineteen-fivers.

Our Budget

—Ohio state convention, Newark, May 22-25.

—Missouri state convention, Marshall, June 16-21.

—Indiana and Texas in state convention this week.

—Missouri Bible college dedicates its new building May 24.

—Oklahoma City is entertaining the ministers' institute May 16-18.

—The Michigan state convention will be held at Kalamazoo, June 5-8.

—Make a note of these dates and plan to attend your state conventions.

—This is a good point for the Business Men's Leagues to get in their work in seeing that their churches are represented in these conventions.

—Concerning the debt of the South Broadway church Brother Tyler says: "Our church debt is down now to $3,500. The treasurer sent off $500 May 1, 1905. The slogan is, "Burn the mortgage in December, 1905." Money is coming into the treasury of the South Broadway church as I never saw money come into a church treasury; and every week persons are turning to the Lord. It is a glorious thing to be permitted to engage in the work of a herald of the good news and to live in such an atmosphere as that in which I am now living!" Brother Tyler has done much to create the very atmosphere he finds so invigorating.

—E. L. Frazier, who has spent some weeks in Florida, has come north again.

—A. C. Boblitt has resigned at McArthur and aecepted the work at Leipsic, O.

—J. K. Ballou, the new pastor at Sioux City, Ia., is making a splendid beginning in his new field of labor.

—J. N. McConnell, of Palouse, will succeed A. J. Adams at Rosalia, Wash., Brother Adams taking charge at Waverly.

—Under date of May 7, Bro. B. B. Tyler writes from Denver, Col., as follows: "Hiram Van Kirk, of Berkeley, Cal., is in Denver, in the interest of the San Francisco convention. He is on his way to the east. Mrs. Van Kirk is with him. He preached in the South Broadway church this morning. To hear the sermon that Brother Van Kirk gave us was a privilege. If he is in the habit of preaching as he preached to us this morning, any church that can secure a sermon from Prof. Van Kirk is to be congratulated. Three persons came forward, one to confess Christ, and two with letters of commendation. Three candidates are awaiting baptism."

—The Frankfort (Ind.) Times contains a report of a sermon by W. J. Russell, in which he pays his compliments to "Christian Science," which had just been presented to the people of that city by Judge Hanna. He quotes Judge Hanna as saying that Christian Scientists believe in Jesus Christ, and then quotes from Mrs. Eddy's "Science and Health" as follows: "The science of being shows it to be impossible for an infinite soul to be in a finite body" (pp. 205). She explains the incarnation by saying that "the virgin mother conceived the idea of God and gave her ideal the name of Jesus" (pp. 334). Brother Russell compares with this, John 1:14, "The word was made flesh and dwelt among us." He also quotes John, making the anti-Christ to be he that denieth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. In like manner he showed that Christian Scientists do not believe in the atonement.

—A. L. Ferguson has just closed his work at Cuba, Ill., and will reside for the present in Macomb. There were 37 additions during his pastorate of two years and four months. His successor has not been chosen.

—The Easter offering for the Benevolent Association has about quadrupled in three years.

—J. M. Lowe thinks there is nothing like being a country person, now that he has tried it. His residence is still Galesburg, Ill., where W. G. Brown is the faithful minister.

—The South Meridian street church at Indianapolis has recently paid off its debt. There have been frequent additions and a perceptible increase in attendance recently. C. R. L. Vawter is the minister.

—Melancthon Moore, who has been elected president of the Kansas state ministerial association, has been pastor of the Christian church at Garnett for several years, where he is beloved by the members and respected by the citizens.

—Miss Myrtle B. Parke, of Staunton, has been called to the pastorate at Ramsay, Ill. She has accepted, but will continue her studies in Eureka college, where she has shown herself to be a bright, consecrated young woman and a good student.

—C. H. Winders will deliver the baccalaureate sermon for Christian college next Lord's day, and F. N. Calvin, of St. Louis, the commencement address on May 23. R. G Frank is the preacher for William Woods Sunday morning, and M. A. Hart will deliver the annual address to the juniors in the evening. Home talent entirely this year, and good talent.

—News from Cincinnati, O., indicates that Brother Bower is doing a good work at Columbia and erecting a new building; Brother Harvuot has secured a lot at Evanston and begun work; Howard Cramblett reports 44 additions at Richmond street since January 1, fully half of them by baptism. In another column we give a statement about the evangelistic campaign.

—May 8, was to have been a great day at Bakersfield, Cal. The mortgage has been paid off to the church extension board, and about $300 of other indebtedness on the property, leaving the congregation entirely free of debt. A special program had been prepared for the burning of the mortgage, but a severe storm necessitated a postponement of this event for two weeks.

—A good program has been arranged for the convention of the eighth district of Illinois, which will be held at Carterville, June 6-9. Among those to take part are D. A. Hunter, Gilbert Jones, B. J. Radford, E. W. Sears, W. W. Weedon, W. A. Schwartz, H. J. Reynolds, R. H. Robertson. Entertainment will be free to those who send their names to Mrs. F. L. Davis, Carterville, Ill., by June 4.

—The contract has been let for the building at Brazil, Ind., and the congregation, which it will be remembered was burned out some three months ago, expects to build a new and better home within six months. The cost will be about $20,000. The needs of the congregation and rapidly growing Sunday school have been studied. We are glad to know that every department of this work under Bro. E. L. Day, is active despite the great inconveniences to which it has been put.

—W. J. Russell, pastor of the First Christian church at Frankfort, Ind., has had many calls for special addresses since he began his work there in March. On Sunday evening, May 21, he is to give the baccalaureate sermon in the Presbyterian church. On May 30, he is to give the memorial address for the Grand Army of the Republic. On the first Sunday in June he is to give the memorial address for a union meeting of the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, Redmen, and Maccabees, at Rushville, Ind. His work at Frankfort is marked with great interest. The home offering is five times larger than it was last year; three times larger than it was two years ago; and will double any previous offering for the American Missionary Society.

—Rolla G. Sears, in the absence of W. H. Williams, head of the Hebrew department in the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, is teaching his classes. Professor Sears is also a regular member of the instructional force in that department and teaches Hebrew prose composition. He completes this year the requirements for Ph.D. in the Universities of Chicago and Wisconsin.

—St. Louis had a pleasant visit from the Georgia mountain missionary, Wm. Shaw, last week. He preached for the Union avenue Christian church on Lord's day evening, May 7, and delighted the people. He also spoke to the ministers' meeting Monday morning. His mission to the city was to secure the co-operation of the Benevolent Association in caring for the homeless children in his 'charge," and we learn he was successful. Brother Shaw will always be welcome in St. Louis.

—Twelve years ago the First church, Covington, Ky., was destroyed by fire. When George A. Miller took charge of the work eleven years ago, the debt on the building, over and above the subscriptions then on hand, was about $18,000. The building cost $33,500. There has been a constant reduction of the debt, until on Sunday, May 7, by a special effort, enough money was raised in cash to pay off the remainder and leave $500 in the treasury. The congregation is hoping for greater usefulness in the near future.

—W. J. Burner, of Barry, Ill., spent last Lord's day in St. Louis, preaching morning and evening at the Union avenue Christian church, whose missionary he is to Argentina. The C. W. B. M. auxiliary of the congregation with the co-operation of the congregation raised a sufficient sum to entitle them to select their mission field and missionary and they have chosen Argentina, and Brother Burner, who desires to start to his new field as early as possible. The church was well pleased with him.

—The church at Bowling Green, Ohio, where Clyde Darsie is pastor, has decided to commence the erection of a new house of worship as soon as suitable plans can be prepared. The necessity for this action became apparent last winter during the Shelburne-Reynard meeting. A subscription list has been circulated, and $15,000 has already been pledged by the members for the work. The new building will stand where the old one has stood. D. Mercer is chairman of the building committee, and J. W. Knight its secretary.

—The following from the Central Christian Advocate, it must be remembered, is applied to Methodist general secretaries, not to ours:

"Those old stories told by the perambulating general secretaries, how we try to smile as we hear them for the forty-eleventh time! They remind us of the little lad who was very quiet during the first courses, and every one forgot that he was there. As dessert was being served, however, his father told a story. When he had finished and the laughter had ceased, the little son exclaimed delightedly, 'Now, papa, tell the other one'! "

—"Although not a member of your body, and to my mind there is much among you that is wide of the mark of New Testament Christianity, yet your paper is so manifestly fair and Christian in spirit, and your 'plea' is so sound and wholesome, that I have concluded to read it this year at my own expense, which expresses better than words my appreciation of your paper."—Thanks, brother. We are sure that there is much in all of us that falls short of New Testament Christianity, especially as to practice. We are glad you have the grace of forbearance for that, while you accept what is good.

—Grant K. Lewis, pastor of the First Christian church at Long Beach, Cal., has been unanimously elected secretary of the missionary work of southern California and Arizona, and has accordingly resigned his pastorate. The same position was tendered Brother Lewis a year ago, and he accepted the work temporarily. But his congregation was up in arms at once, and in view of the fact that a new edifice was in course of erection, Brother Lewis gave his thought to the pastorate. He has been at Long Beach about three years. A $20,000 building and a congregation more than doubled is the result. The annual convention of southern California will be held at Long Beach in August.

❁ ❁

Thomas W. Phillips Again Helps the Cause.

Thos. W. Phillips, who has been long considered one of the general supporters of the work of the American Christian Missionary Society and who supported Wm. F. Cowden as our superintendent of missions in the northwest, who now gives an annual subscription to the American Christian Missionary Society, enough to support J. A. Joyce as corresponding secretary of the western Pennsylvania board, has further shown his devotion and interest in the work of home missions by giving $5,000 to the American Christian Missionary Society as a "Norman Phillips Permanent Named Memorial Fund."

Norman Philips was the beloved son of Thos. W. Phillips, and died of typhoid fever. His father desires that his name should be held in everlasting remembrance, for in the name of this fund the American Christian Missionary Society agrees to keep a missionary preaching the gospel through all the years. Brother Phillips has just promised, also, sums to Bethany and Texas Christian college.

❁ ❁

Children's Day.

Children's day was first observed by our Sunday-schools in 1881. Since then the schools have given $577,499.00 for foreign missions. This shows what can be done by gathering up the small amounts.

The two Sunday-schools that made the first offerings for foreign missions were the Central of Cincinnati, and the Fifty-sixth of New York city. These schools gave before children's day was appointed. They gave before they were asked.

Last year 3,532 Sunday-schools responded to the call of the foreign society for financial aid. The contributing schools are 600 more in number than the contributing churches. This means well for the future. The schools to-day will be in the churches to-morrow. Those who are trained to give in childhood will continue to give in after years. The habit being formed, they cannot depart from it.

This year the Sunday-schools are asked for $75,000. For a million children this is not an extravagant request. The schools are well able to give $75,000. They would give twice that amount if they had a chance. The trouble is not with the children; it is with those who are their leaders. Their leaders do not have enough faith in them to ask for money for the Lord's work. If they had, they would be surprised at the results.

Two-thirds of all the children living have no knowledge of Christ. They have never heard the gospel. They have never sung any of the sweet songs that were inspired by the life and teaching of Jesus of Nazareth. They are strangers to all that brightens and blesses the lives of children in Christian lands. They need Christ and the gospel of his grace. The money given on children's day goes to supply this need.

❁ ❁

A Call From Wyoming.

One addition by letter since last report. We sent an offering of $15.50 to the Benevolent Association as the result of our Easter collection.

At present the writer is the only preacher of the Christian church in the state, as I am informed that Brother Sickafoose has gone from our borders.

There are several towns in the state that ought to have the primitive gospel preached in them, for there are many people in them that have been identified with the church that could be gathered together, and many that would accept simple New Testament Christianity, that will stand aloof from denominationalism. Laramie, a town of some 10,000 inhabitants and having the state university located there, should not be neglected.

Cheyenne, the capital of the state, a city of 15,000 inhabitants, should have the simple gospel. The basin country, into which thousands of immigrants are pouring, should be looked after.

There being so few churches in the state, we can have no state organization for a time, at least, and we must look to the home missionary society for our help. We feel that the society will help us if the churches will place the means in their hands. It is not the missionary board alone that is anxious as to the result of the home missionary offering, but out here in the west are many hearts that will ache if the collection is small, for it will mean that at least another year must pass before we can hope to receive the help that we must have if this state is ever taken for Christ. Brethren, I appeal to you in the name of our divine Lord, in the name of the gospel that he revealed and commanded us to preach, in the name of the scattered brethren all over the west and especially all over Wyoming, in the name of those who have not the gospel of our God, but who need it even as you, that you come over and help us.

We are poor and needy, but we will not let Lord's day, May 7, pass without contributing to this worthy cause. Will you? Brethren, if you fail in this, well may the Master say when you stand in his presence, as God said to Cain of old, "The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground."

F. E. BLANCHARD.

❁ ❁

Evangelistic Campaign in Greater Cincinnati.

The Disciples of Christ in Greater Cincinnati are planning vigorously for the evangelistic campaign which is to begin October 8. Some of the very best men in the brotherhood are being engaged as evangelists. Both the strong and the weak churches are planning to co-operate. An enthusiastic rally was held in the Central church, April 28, in the interest of this work. W. J. Wright had planned to be with us and gave us a stirring address. All the preachers present followed with brief talks. Another rally is being arranged for on June 16, in the First church, Covington. This second rally will be preceded by a general exchange of pulpits throughout the city. It is hoped that we may secure one of our best evangelists to address the meeting. This simultaneous effort does not only promise a great opportunity for saving souls, but is doing much to bring our churches in this vicinity together in a deeper, sweeter fellowship in Christ. It means much for the cause of New Testament Christianity that similar meetings are being planned for in many localities throughout the country. Our great plea will be brought to the notice of thousands in this way who otherwise would not hear it at all. Judging by recent similar efforts we are to look for great victories next fall. In every country or community where there are three or four churches there ought to be simultaneous meetings arranged for, as well as in our great centers. Whole states ought to enlist in such an effort. I feel that a day ought to be set apart in all our churches for special prayer in behalf of our evangelistic work. This would not only bring upon us the blessings of God but would at once thoroughly unite our hearts in the work of saving precious souls. I want to ask at any rate that our brethren pray that the cause of primitive Christianity may triumph in the great and wicked city of Cincinnati as it never has triumphed before. "Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the work of the Lord may run and be glorified."

W. G. LOUCKS,
Chairman of the campaign committee.
Station R, Cincinnati.

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightful scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, by way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

❁ ❁

Another Annuity for the Home Board.

The American Christian Missionary Society received $500 last week from a brother in Ohio on the annuity plan. This is the second payment toward a $5,000 named memorial fund that this brother is creating. The Home Board agrees to maintain that fund as a personal memorial, and in the name of that fund guarantees to keep a missionary preaching the gospel through all the years. This is the twelfth named memorial fund of the American Christian Missionary Society.

The Missionary as a General Benefactor.

The history of missions, whether on the frontiers of our own country, or in foreign lands, is a history of the progress of civilization. Foreign missionaries especially have had much to do in molding the civil and social life of the peoples among whom they have labored. This fact is illustrated in the following communication from the United States Minister in China to Bro. W. P. Bentley, one of our missionaries at Shanghai, China. The letter speaks for itself:

Legation of the United States of America,
Peking, China, March 30, 1905.

W. P. Bentley, Shanghai, China:

Dear Mr. Bentley:—On my return to Peking about two months ago, I found a package of your pamphlets, suggesting the establishing of a Board of Agriculture for China, awaiting me.

The suggestion is an excellent one, and, in compliance with my promise to you in Shanghai, I forwarded the pamphlets, with my hearty endorsement, to the Board of Foreign Affairs for distribution among the high officials.

I am now in receipt of a reply to my note, saying that your pamphlet shows a thorough acquaintance with agricultural matters, and that the establishment of such a board would be of great benefit as shown by the results obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture. The note also reports the distribution of the pamphlets and requests me to transmit the thanks of the board to yourself.

I sincerely trust that your suggestions may have careful consideration and bear some practical fruit in the adoption by China of some measures looking to the improvement of their agricultural methods.

Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) E. H. Conger,
American Minister.

In suggesting this plan for a National Department of Agriculture for China, Brother Bentley has probably conferred untold benefit on the millions of that country. If it should be carried out, as Brother Bentley suggests in a personal note, "Science would confer an inestimable boon upon the millions of human beings who are now perishing for want of knowledge. The destruction of want and famine is certainly part of God's plan." Nothing can be more certain than this, for nothing is foreign to the kingdom of God that has to do with the welfare of humanity.

Great Victory in Sight.

Last year we undertook to raise $250,000 for foreign missions, but failed. The receipts were $211,318. The effort is being renewed this year. We must gain $38,682 if we succeed.

During the first seven months of the missionary year, October 1, 1904, to May 1, 1905, the receipts amounted to $119,130, a gain of $31,381, or over 35 per cent. During this time the churches as churches gave $63,137, a gain of $8,277, or 15 per cent. The churches as churches were asked for $100,000 this year. It now seems probable that they will give this amount.

Individual offerings for the seven months amounted to $14,485, a gain of $9,275, or 178 per cent. We are confidently expecting $25,000 from this source this year.

The gains thus far are phenomenal; more than ever before for the corresponding time in our history. They show what can be done. If we can gain $7,301 more before September 30, we will reach the goal. Shall it not be done?

Our chief hope of success now is in the children's day offering, the first Sunday in June. Last year the children gave $56,832. We are hoping to receive $75,000 from them this year. Many leaders urged us to ask for this amount. The day of larger things is here. It is hoped that each school will break all previous records. Remember, a signal victory is in sight.

Twelve new missionaries are under appointment and will sail for the far east in September. The New Bible college at Jubbulpore, India, is in course of construction. More than $20,000 is assured for the female Christian college, Tokyo, Japan. The reports from the fields are the most encouraging ever before received. These are glorious days. Advances are being made everywhere. Our people are coming to a larger and better life.

May we not count upon the united, industrious, persistent, and generous effort of every friend?

A. McLean, President.
F. M. Rains, Cor. Sec'y.

The Home Offering.

From the office of the American Christian Missionary Society, we have received a splendid report of the first week of the May offering. The secretary, Benjamin L. Smith, says that the record of the week shows 105 churches sent in offerings this year that did not contribute last year. The offerings of the churches are more than $869 ahead of the first week last year. Sixty-six churches contributed larger amounts than last year.

The offering, of course, has only begun. The entire month of May belongs to the work of home missions, and it is the earnest hope of every true lover of our cause that this gain will be maintained, until the records show the largest income by our Board of Home Missions in all its history.

State Convention of Ohio.

The state convention of the Christian Women's Board of Missions of Ohio will be held at Newark, May 22-23.

Mrs. H. Gerould, of Cleveland, who has just returned from a nine months' visit in India, will be with us. We are most happy to say that she will be the speaker on Monday afternoon at 2:30, May 22, and on Tuesday morning. I. J. Spencer, of Lexington, Ky., is the speaker for Monday night. Miss Rannells and Mrs. McCorkle speak Tuesday morning and Prof. C. T. Paul, of Hiram college, and our national president Mrs. N. E. Atkinson, are the speakers for Tuesday afternoon. With the usual business and president's address the program will be one of the best. Good music by J. Herman Dodd and Miss Dean. The Newark church gives a reception to all delegates Monday from 3:30 to 4:30. A rate of one fare plus 25 cents for round trip.

Mary A. Lyons, Secretary.

Ministerial Exchange.

Wm. H. Van Deusen, Box 163, East Smithfield, Pa., can be secured as pastor or evangelist.

J. M. Lowe, Galesburg, Ill., can assist in special meetings within one hundred miles of that town "upon interesting terms."

There is a good opening at Cleveland, Minn., for a physician who is a member of the Christian church. Address, Box 95.

Le Roy St. John, singing evangelist, Terre Haute, Ind., having closed the season with Evangelist Harlow, will be open for engagements after May 28.

The churches at Redfield and Cunningham, Ia., want a minister. The latter place is six miles in the country. He should be married. Address N. Meade, Redfield, Ia.

A young, unmarried minister, fair education, one year's successful experience as preacher and pastor, desires a place to preach for two or more churches. Present salary about $600. Can furnish the best of references from leading Iowa preachers. Address L. W. Box 18, Park Ave. station, Des Moines, Iowa.

Children's Day

FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:

1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. H. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.
2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.
3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.

Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

There is a good opening for a Christian physician of the old school in these parts. He could locate at one of several points with splendid prospects of a remunerative practice. I will be glad to give information to those enclosing stamped envelopes. Claris Yeuell, Lewisville, Minn.

Prof. T. M. Burgess, superintendent of our public school and also clerk of our church, is qualified for a more advanced school than ours. He is a graduate of Eureka college, with nine years' experience of successful teaching. Any school board wanting a $900 or a $1,000 man, should write him. H. H. Jenner, Washburn, Illinois.

"I know of a good thousand dollar preacher who is in the prime and vigor of manhood and a splendid worker and pastor, who would take a congregation for eight or nine hundred dollars with a promise to increase his salary as soon as the congregation feels able to make the increase. I can recommend this man, and parties desiring his services may write directly to me. Z. T. Sweeney, Columbus, Indiana."

Changes.

A. L. Ferguson, Cuba to South Lafayette St., Macomb, Ill.

W. A. Fite, Tucson, Ariz., back to Amarillo, Tex.

P. A. Davey, Japan to 88 Burke Road, Cumberwell, Victoria, Australia.

S. M. Bolton, St. Louis, Mo., to 1015 Temple St., Los Angeles, Cal.

Walter S. Hayden, Indianapolis to Sullivan, Ohio.

A. C. Boblitt, McArthur to Leipsic, O.

A. J. Adams, Rosalia to Waverly, Wash.

J. H. Ragan, Eddyville to University Place, 1350 W. 27th St., Des Moines, Ia.

C. G. McNeill, Covington, Ky., to Maple Ave., Sta. M., Cincinnati, O.

West Kentucky Convention.

The members of Christian churches in western Kentucky are cordially invited on behalf of the church here to attend the west Kentucky missionary convention to be held here May 22-25. Free entertainment will be provided for all who come. Send your names to Miss Bettie Hopper of this place. H. D. Smith.

Hopkinsville, Ky.

Some Notes on Cuba

By W. S. Giltner

Mrs. Giltner and myself arrived in Havana on Monday, the 27th of March. In the afternoon of the same day I attended the Protestant ministerial association. There were ten present besides myself. There were five communions represented, to-wit: The Baptist, Christian, Congregationalist, Methodist and Presbyterian. There was a paper read in Spanish by a Mr. Hubbard on "The Work of the Holy Spirit in Conversion." I do not understand Spanish. It was a well written, scriptural document, judging from the comments upon it expressed in English. The trend of the remarks plainly showed that the speakers expected no conversions by the agency of the Holy Spirit apart from the written or preached word. The general expression was that "the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes." The passage from John was quoted: "These things are written that you might believe that Jesus is the Christ and believing might have life through his name." It was very manifest that no one of these missionaries believed that there could be any conversions by the direct or miraculous influence of the Spirit independent of the word of God.

On Thursday night Brother McPherson conducted services in the chapel in his own home. The services were all in Spanish. A short sermon was delivered by Brother Godinez, a native assistant. He is a gifted, fluent speaker and is a graceful, eloquent, natural orator. The singing was under the direction of Brother McPherson, and Miss Meldrum presided at the organ. The tunes are the same we use and hymns in Spanish are the familiar ones we sing at home. The worship, though conducted in an unknown tongue, was very soulful and inspiring.

On Lord's day at 9 o'clock a. m. the Bible-school was held in the same chapel. The classes were all taught in Spanish except the Bible class taught by Miss Meldrum in English. She uses the same lesson helps that we do. There were in the class several Presbyterians from Minnesota, several visitors from Kentucky and other states, and some English-speaking Cubans. Miss Meldrum is from Buffalo, N. Y., and was baptized by Brother McPherson while he was pastor of the Jefferson St. church in that city. She is a "living link" supported by that church. She is thoroughly qualified for her work and her instruction will compare favorably with that of the most skilled and best informed teachers I know in Kentucky. At half past 10 a. m. English services were held in the Methodist chapel on Virtudes street. Mr. Clements, the minister, preached an excellent sermon on "The Atonement." It was their quarterly communion day. At 4 o'clock p. m. in the chapel at Brother McPherson's home the Lord's supper was observed with appropriate memorial services. At the conclusion of these exercises, Brother Martinez, an intelligent and influential Cuban official, was immersed in a baptistry in the house. He will make a very valuable member, as he is already beginning to take part in the worship.

On Lord's day the Ninth Bible-school was held in the chapel at 9 o'clock; at 10:30 a. m. all attended the English services at the Methodist chapel. Dr. H. Grattan Guiness, the distinguished preacher, author and missionary worker of London, delivered a very inspiring sermon on "Blessed." The Psalms begin with "blessed" and with hallelujah. Christ came to beatify or bless mankind—make men happy. He began his ministry with blessed and he repeated it nine times. He descanted in detail upon the nine characters whom Jesus pronounced happy—the inner man, not the outer, Christ beatifies. He quoted in closing and commented upon Paul's benediction upon the Corinthians: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all. Amen." The audience was delighted. Brother McPherson conducted Sunday-school in Spanish at 64 Concordia at 2:30 p. m. At night he conducted English services in the Young Men's Christian Association building, 67 Prado. The test of loyalty is obedience. Text: "To obey is better than sacrifice and to hearken better than the blood of lambs." This was by far the largest audience we have seen at any service.

In the two weeks we have been here J. C. Martinez has been baptized; Morales, from the Baptists, a zealous Christian, has taken membership; and six natives have confessed and will be baptized next Lord's day. All these came at the regular services. This work is marvelous in our eyes. Contrast this with the condition under Spanish rule only a few years ago when the Roman Catholic church was the established religion of the island. "So late as 1898 when the funeral of the Maine victims was held in the Government Palace and Captain Sigsbee requested of the bishop of Havana that the Protestant burial service might be read over the Protestant dead, the request was politely declined. All Sigsbee could do was to read the services a part at a time as opportunity offered, chiefly in the carriage on the way to the cemetery and afterwards in his room at the hotel." The Spanish-American war has changed all this. All the denominations have chapels where services are held both in English and Spanish several times a week.

The Methodists have the largest number of missionaries on the island, The Presbyterians have the strongest financial backing; a Mrs. McGregor, of Detroit, Michigan, has given recently $25,000 to buy a suitable lot and build a good house of worship upon it. This will give them great prestige, as no other Protestant communion, so far as I can learn, owns any property. Is there not a wealthy brother or sister who will contribute a like sum to build a suitable house for the Christian church? Notwithstanding our small force of workers here—Brother and Sister McPherson, Miss Meldrum, and the native assistant Godinez—they are making more converts than any of the communions represented. Brother and Sister McPherson are greatly overtaxed and are making sacrifices that ought to make us in the States blush with shame when we contrast what we are doing with their marvelous work and self-denying sacrifices.

Here is a statement prepared by Brother McPherson which gives you some idea of their multitudinous duties.

Statement.

We hold at least eight services a week—more than 400 each year. We have four mission points in Havana. We had fifty accessions last year—as many as any of the other religious bodies represented in Havana.

The Methodists have had a work here more than fifteen years. The Baptists have had a work here 20 years. Until Miss Meldrum came last October, Mrs. McPherson and I did the work. The Methodists have had fifteen and eighteen missionaries here all the time since I came.

Mr. Godinez assists us in two of the services each week. He is forty years old; he has been a student of the Bible twenty years and knows it and preaches it. He is a poor man with a family of seven children. His life as a Christian father and husband commends him. He works hard every day, He ought to be released from his work in order to give all his time to helping us. Other churches here employ native helpers not so good as Brother Godinez and pay them good salaries.

Brother Martinez, who was baptized last Sunday, is one of the best educated men in Havana. He is a graduate of Belen university, one of the oldest and strongest Jesuit colleges. He is an official in the provincial governor's office of Havana and is regarded as being one of the influential men in politics whose character is above reproach. A little more than a year ago he began studying English with me at his own urgent request. Now he is a devoted and talented Christian man who reads his Bible daily. I gave him Isaac Errett's "Our Position" for an English study, with the New Testament. He used these with his dictionary and grammar, sitting up nights until one o'clock. Now he understands my English sermons and is profoundly convinced and convicted. He is caring for seven orphans, he not having any children of his own. He told me that during the past year he has thought more of God's love and mercy and of his own responsibilities than in all the other forty years of his life. The Jesuit priests fleeced him out of hundreds of thousands of dollars of inheritance. His father founded a Roman Catholic school in Havana. He made his first talk in prayer-meeting last Wednesday evening.

We hold one all-English-speaking worship each week and our English meetings during more than five years have probably had a better average attendance than any other English-speaking worship in Havana.

The education of our children has been a problem from the beginning. We have had to teach them in our home, and besides this duty Mrs. McPherson, much of the time without a servant, has had to oversee the house and assist at all the services. This has been a great trial to her strength.

When we opened our mission on Calle B near a Catholic church, the priest threatened to come and demand a hearing of our congregation, because he did not regard us as a church, but as a society for public meetings in which all should have a right to participate. I told those who informed me of his attitude and threat that his coming would do him no good, for our worship should not be molested; but that, if he wished, we would go to a park or public hall and discuss what he wished to say. His threat has not been heard of since.

Mr. Roscoe Hill and Mr. M. Menges have charge of our mission at Matanzas. Also in a little town out of Matanzas they have a number of members. They find the work very easy in such towns as Matanzas and smaller ones as compared with that in Havana where there are so many diversions. And the missionaries of other churches say that the results in Havana are very difficult to achieve in comparison with other parts of the island. In Matanzas and in a country around are about fifty members.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

A Yankee in the Old Dominion.

Since my last notes to the Christian-Evangelist I visited Mizpah church in Dinwiddie county, Va. It rained and no one came but the janitor and Bro. F. O. Robertson, an elder in the church, who drove me over. But here is a missionary story, as I learned it from this elder. Some years ago the church was called Zion and it had the ministrations of a preacher who told them they could not give for missions, that they could not do more than pay him. They were paying him $150 a year. After several years had passed they could not pay that amount and he ceased to preach for them. They then secured a preacher at $100 a year who took the same view of missions as the former minister, and they were not able to pay him long.

This elder was himself opposed to missions, but Miss Bessie Farrar, now Mrs. Madsen, of Pendra Road, India, came to the community to organize a C. W. B. M. auxiliary. She spent three or four days in this elder's home, and when he saw how well she was equipped for the mission field, and realized that she intended to leave home and friends and society for work in dark India, he was converted to missions, and you hardly ever saw a man more thoroughly converted.

The church tried about this time to build a new house of worship, but was so reduced in numbers they did not succeed. Some brethren in another community proposed to join with them in erecting a building at some point between the communities. A neat new house was built, costing $1,000 and much hard work.

There was a debt of $600. The fearful ones said, "It will take 14 or 15 years to pay it." The church was dedicated and a meeting afterward held by W. H. Book, and the debt raised, besides a large number gathered into the church, so that they number over a hundred members.

This year, 1904-5, they are giving for these objects:

Preaching at home	$250.00
State missions	50.00
Foreign missions	15.00
Rebuilding school at Kimberlin Heights	15.00
J. C. Reynolds, burned out	13.65
Janitor	12.25
Toward building Blackstone church	100.00
Total	$455.90
Also individuals in the church gave to Virginia Christian College, Lynchburg,	200.00
Grand total	$655.90

Last year they gave for church extension, and their Junior Builders was the banner organization of all the Junior Builders in the world, raising $85.

They will also give for home missions. Let every church that is afraid it can not give for missions have this read in their service, and if any church has not taken an offering for home missions, let them do it at once, for their own salvation, and to help save the world.

At Crewe I found Bro. Stephen A. Morton in charge and had a good service. Like Stephen of old he is a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit. The church made pledges for home missions.

Beulah, a small church in the country, promised $20 for home missions. Here I was entertained by Symeon Bondurant whose brother was a professor in Bethany college, now studying at Chicago university.

At Green Bay I spoke in the afternoon, and spent the night with F. W. Berry, who lives on his farm and preaches at various points. Lord's day morning found me with the church at Chatham. This is the home of Daniel E. Motley, president of Christian college, Washington, D. C. At night we had a good audience at Danville, and J. A. Spencer, minister there for five years, gave a hearty second to my message. I had a pleasant visit, and met Sister Farrar, mother of Mrs. Madsen.

Monday night I had a hearty reception at Martinsville by W. H. Book, the only edition of the kind, though he has quite a library of Booklets. After I had made a strong appeal to his congregation, he said, "I endorse every word of it." Pledges were taken. The original Book is not bound in calf, or any other way. He preached a sermon some time since against the dispensary in Martinsville, and was asked to apologize by one of the city officials. He told the official he had nothing to take back, and when threatened if the accusations were repeated, assured the man he was afraid of nobody.

From W. J. Basset's I enjoyed a horseback ride of four miles to Horse Pasture church. The church is exceedingly plain but they expect to do something for home missions.

I spoke one night at Stoneville, N. C., where Bro. J. A. Spencer preaches once a month. They will take the offering. At Roanoke I found W. G. Johnston interested in many good works. They will not only give for home missions, but he and Brother Coffey were in a meeting at Piney Grove, near by, with about 30 additions. They hope to establish a church there.

Bro. B. F. Ammen entertained me at Salem, and I spoke to a good audience. They promised to take the offering. Brother Owen was to begin a meeting April 25.

At East Radford Lord's day morning the home mission claims were presented. Bro. S. L. Jackson took good care of me. I spoke at Pulaski at night, and was a guest with Brother Howard.

At Wytheville I spoke on Monday night to a deeply interested audience, and was kindly cared for by Bro. J. D. Pobst. The next night Bro. A. H. Shores, who has done much for the work at Petunia, drove me to that point. I came to Chilhowie, and had a fair hearing, though a revival was in progress at the Methodist church. Most of the last mentioned places are without a regular preacher, but nearly all made pledges for the home work.

Waynesboro, Pa. J. A. Hopkins.

* *

Florida.

I chronicle with sadness the death of the wife of our evangelist, S. J. White. Brother and Sister White had only begun life's pilgrimage together, and her taking away seems doubly sad. All our hearts turn in loving sympathy to him.

The cause throughout Florida is in a healthy condition. On the resignation of F. J. Longdon, Jr., as evangelist for the east coast, the state board called Bro. Andrew Chisolm to that work and he enters the field at once. Brother Chisolm is a graduate of Kimberlin Heights and has preached in Michigan and Pennsylvania. He brings the enthusiasm of youth to his task and we predict for him a career of great usefulness on the east coast.

Pastor E. H. Rayner, of Kissimmee, is in the midst of a church building enterprise. The building is a neat frame, to cost, completed, about $3,000. When the building is dedicated Brother Rayner feels that he must reenter school to more thoroughly equip himself for the ministry. The matter of securing his successor has been left with the state board and a strong man from the west will be installed before Brother Rayner leaves, if the board's present plans are carried out.

Evangelist M. L. Harlowe is in a fine meeting with First church, Jacksonville, with 57 additions the first of this present week. Our correspondent from Jacksonville writes, "You can say all the good things you please about Brother Harlowe's preaching; he's the best teacher I ever heard," etc., etc. The membership of the First church is now nearly 700.

Evangelist E. L. Frazier, of Indiana, has been in a meeting with the St. Petersburg congregation. Two baptisms and some splendid preaching have been reported. This congregation has grown from 11 to 43 in the past nine months.

Tampa has just closed a meeting, with Robert Lord Cave, of Clarksville, Tenn., doing the preaching. Writing out of the depths of a rich experience, I am almost sorry our papers can not publish eulogies, for there are many things I am impatient to say concerning the value of Brother Cave's work with us. Suffice it to say, however, that the spirituality of the congregation is deepened, a splendid hearing was won for the truth as we see it, and 13 were added to our membership. Tampa is building. The chapel to our new structure will be complete in a few days. It will be adequate for our needs for some time, and as compared to our present quarters, seems to us a dream of beauty.

The nursing mother of this Florida work is the A. C. M. S. Without the support received from this source we could not live. Last year Florida churches gave so little in return for fostering care that I am ashamed to print the amount. Now an opportunity is offered to redeem our credit, and I am confident that our offerings for home missions will this year be far in advance of any previous offering.

J. P. Rowlison, Cor. Sec.

Tampa, Fla.

* *

Lexington Notes.

A party of Disciples from Lexington will attend the national convention at San Francisco. Bro. I. J. Spencer and Prof. Hall L. Calhoun will be among the number.

There are now men's clubs in seven of the Protestant churches of the city. Federation of them with a view to advancing the cause of civic righteousness, is talked of. The membership in all aggregates 275.

Campbell-Hagerman college is now soon to close its second session. Pres. B. C. Hagerman reports a prosperous year. The baccalaureate sermon will be at Central church on Sunday, May 28.

The rally for home missions, conducted by Bro. Wm. J. Wright, superintendent of evangelism, was well attended at Broadway church. Brother McGarvey asked pardon at the close of the rally for calling attention to the fact that all on the program were his "boys," excepting Brother Wright, who graduated at Bethany.

The new building of the Y. M. C. A., corner Mills and Church streets, just opened, cost, with ground, about $40,000, the furnishing $6,000 or more. It is an ornament to the city and has brought the Lexington association forward in association ranks as well as in local esteem.

Central Christian church is looking forward to renovating and repairing the building during the summer. An Easter offering amounting to $450 toward the $2,000 necessary, was made. The list of committees was recently revised in the board of officers, and interest in the plan of transacting the business of the church through committees has been revived. The congregation recently decided to give a month's trial to the individual communion system, adoption or rejection of it to be made after the trial.

Broadway church is having good audiences and in every department of work is manifesting energy. Attendance at its Sunday-school is now 350 or more, and enthusiasm prevails. There are additions to the church almost weekly. Its protracted meeting this year will be held, commencing October 15, with James Small as evangelist.

Chestnut street church has had additions almost every Sunday since its meeting last fall. Its midweek meeting is the marvel of all the brethren. The house is almost filled every Wednesday night. It participates in all good works projected by the Lexington brotherhood.

Southside church has made gratifying progress during the past six months, under the ministry of Bro. A. P. Finley. Fifty have been added to the membership. Improvements are now being made to the building. Two rooms and a baptistry are being added at a cost of nearly $500. The Sunday-school has increased. The church helpers have been especially active.

Miss Lavenia Oldham, who spent twelve years under the Foreign Christian Missionary Society at Tokio, Japan, and who was last year selected by Central church as its living link, has visited Central several times this year, coming over from her mother's home near Mt. Sterling, where she is spending her furlough. She was given a reception by Mrs. Spencer's missionary Bible class last month, and will probably be here again on children's day.

Lexington, Ky. BARCLAY MEADOR.

❁ ❁

Illinois.

I have been delighted to find a new spirit of enterprise and corresponding growth of churches in southern Illinois. The eighth district is comprised of the counties of Alexander, Franklin, Harlin, Jackson, Johnson, Massac, Perry, Pope, Pulaski, Randolph, Saline, Union, Williamson and Gallatin. In all these fourteen counties, there are churches of Christ except the last named, and in them all the state missionary board has rendered valuable assistance except in Gallatin Co. There are about 72 churches, 30 preachers, and 5,524 members. In 1893 it is said that only two churches in the district had preaching all the time, now there are at least 13 (with only occasional intervals).

The brethren now complain that the early preachers, although heroic and self-sacrificing men, themselves did not teach the members the same degree of sacrifice. That they for the most part labored on the farm for a living, and failed to teach the brethren that they that preach the gospel should live by the gospel. Many of the congregations have overcome this difficulty, and are liberally supporting the cause at home and are beginning to reach out into the larger enterprises of the church. One of the present preachers seemed a little slow to fall into line for missions, and one of the enterprising wealthy business brethren told him that if he did not preach on missions he would oppose his staying another year. This is a very hopeful sign for the great cause for which we stand. But the preachers ought not to wait to be prodded in such matters, they should lead in carrying the gospel to the ends of the earth. What is true of missions is true of the college that furnishes the men; true in looking up young men and women, and in directing them to higher Christian education and in encouraging liberal support for the college. In no part of the state have I found a more cordial welcome by both preachers and people, and I am truly grateful to them.

FOR TORPID LIVER

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate

It stimulates healthy liver activity, relieves constipation, sick headache and malaria.

In no place are signs of growth and prosperity more marked than in Carbondale. The church has come from an obscure part of the city and from a dilapidated house into a beautiful new modern building that cost about $20,000, possibly more, and is about paid for. A new parsonage is by the side of it, where the new, energetic and much-loved preacher, A. M. Growan and his family live. He is in a meeting with about 15 additions, and expects to close soon. He is late of Hamilton, Ohio, and we bid him a cordial welcome to our state, and trust that he will enter with us enthusiastically into all our state enterprises, as he does into the Carbondale work.

H. G. Bennett was his predecessor, by whose wisdom and energy much of the church's prosperity was brought about. He is spoken of in the highest terms of love and respect. He is now in Jefferson City, Mo., where we hope he will be as successful and useful as he has been at Carbondale.

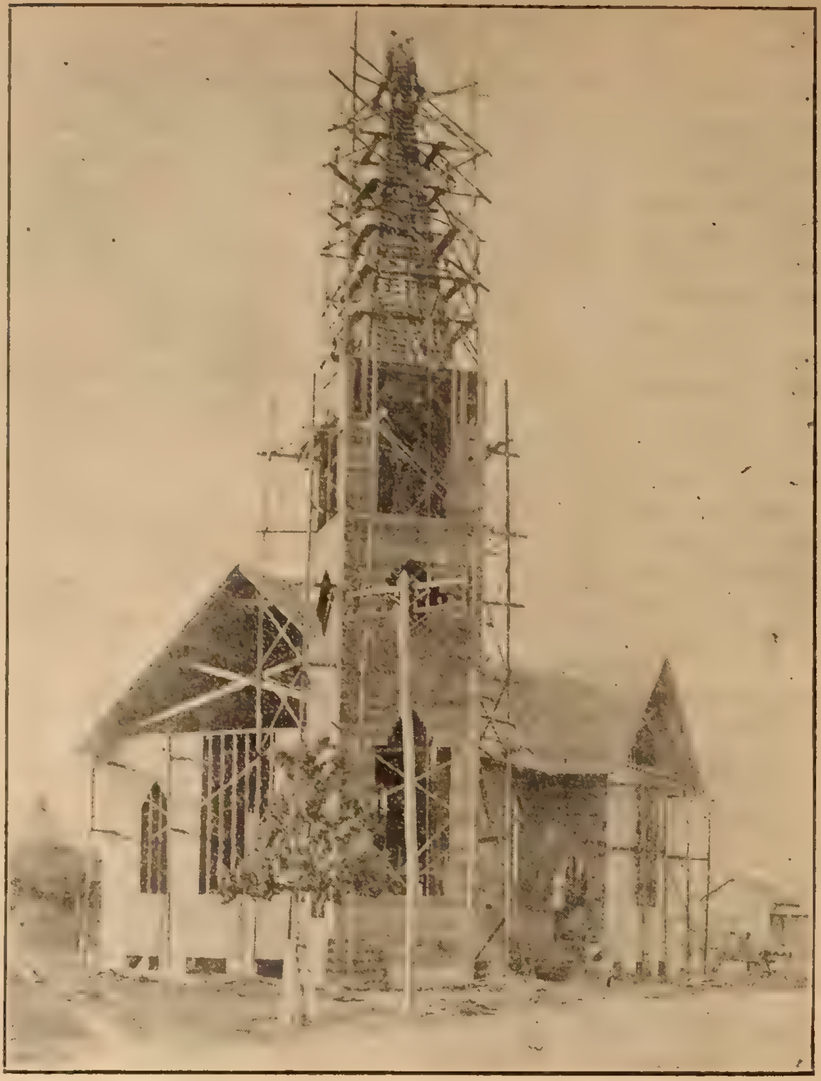
At Anna we found H. J. Reynolds, another graduate of Eureka college, pushing the work vigorously. Removals have greatly weakened the church, but its faithful few push forward. They have bargained for the Congregational church, which is comparatively new, and cost some $7,000, and Brother Reynolds has succeeded in getting nearly enough money pledged to pay for it except a small loan from the church extension fund. It is surprising what can be done by the Lord's help when his people set their heads, hearts and pocketbooks to work for him.

The church at Cobden is really two miles in the country, and is ministered to by a former Eureka student, T. J. Holloman. The membership is composed largely of substantial farmers and grows slowly, but fills a most useful place and is doing a fine work.

Preparations are being made at Eureka for a great celebration of the college jubilee, June 11-15. Due notice will be given at an early day, and all our good friends will receive a cordial welcome. J. G. WAGGONER.

Eureka, Ill.

The New Church at Kissimmee, Fla.



We give herewith an illustration of the Christian church in course of erection at Kissimmee, Fla. The first service in it was held on Easter Sunday, just a year from the date when Bro. E. H. Rayner visited first the dozen Christians at this place. "We are," writes Bro. Rayner, "still working and praying that God will send us help through his stewards in order that we may at least get the windows and doors in our church." A year ago we were not recognized in Kissimmee; now we have the best location in town, and when finished the building will be an admirable one. It must be closed in soon as the rainy season is fast approaching. Bro. Rayner says $1,000 is the sum needed by the Kissimmee brethren.

❁ ❁

Michigan.

The Michigan state convention will be held at Kalamazoo, June 5-8. Programs are distributed. A rate of one and one-third fare on the certificate plan has been granted by the railroads. We are looking for the largest attendance ever gathered in our state convention. This has been a successful year in our work. Several new churches have been organized, several great meetings have been held, nearly all the churches have been strengthened, many preachers have been located, and more money has been raised for all lines of mission work than ever before.

The brotherhood at large can scarcely appreciate how great a mission field Michigan is. Remember that Michigan contains nearly 60,000 square miles of territory. Not only so, but this territory is inhabited by more than two and one-half millions of people. Thirty-six counties have no church of Christ, and twenty others have but one church each. Two million people in Michigan do not have access to our churches. The few churches we have are nearly all very weak. But there is no field on earth that brings as large returns for money invested as Michigan. This is not a guess. It is a conclusion reached through investigation. It would be well for our mission boards to note this fact.

C. W. Clark closed a meeting at Rapid City recently, with 30 added to the church, 19 by baptism. Brother Clark is now aiding W. F. Schrontz in a meeting at Excelsior.

William Sumpter has entered upon his work as minister at Petoskey, and the church is hopeful of large results.—W. H. Hedges, of Wexford, recently organized a church at Hanover, one of his out appointments.—G. G. Horn has accepted a call to the work at Dowagiac, to begin service June 1. Brother Horn has done a splendid work at Fremont, and we shall expect good things to come to pass in his larger field.

G. M. Weimer has closed his work at Wayland.—C. J. Tannar assisted F. P. Arthur in a meeting at Grand Rapids, with 18 added to the church.—C. O. Purdy is in a meeting at West Sebewa, with a number of converts to date.

W. H. Kindred will close his work at Adrian, June 1, and enter the Michigan field as evangelist under the Clark fund. Brother Kindred is a good preacher and will be a great help in our state work. Churches desiring his services will address him at Adrian for dates and terms.

J. S. Raum, of Saginaw, is assisting J. F. Green in a meeting at Mt. Pleasant, with 30 added to date.—C. W. Gardner has located with the church at Lacata, and preaches half time at South Haven, where he recently organized a church of 26 members. He reports the outlook encouraging, and two baptisms at South Haven recently. Do not fail to attend the state convention at Kalamazoo, June 5-8. It will be our greatest convention.

C. M. KEENE.

❀ ❀

Radium

has lately proven highly successful in medicine and has cured severe cases of Eczema, Cancer, and Consumption. Its beneficial effects have been obtained in Radiozone. Sold at $1.00. Order direct or thru your druggist. Send for sample booklet. The Radium Ozone Co., Station F, Chicago.

We manufacture
CHURCH and SCHOOL
Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.
I. E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

Praises to the Prince

A Choice Collection of

SACRED SONGS

for Sunday-Schools, Young People's Societies, Evangelistic Services, and all other branches of Church Work and Worship.

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music. Handsome Appearance. Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market. : : :

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid . .	$ .30
Boards,	" " . .	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " . .	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" "	15.00

Bound with Cap and Rivet if desired.

PUBLISHED BY

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Kansas (First District) Convention.

The convention of the first district of Kansas was held in Hiawatha. W. T. Hilton, of Atchison, gave us an earnest and lofty message. Splendid papers upon live topics were presented in the Bible-school and church period, concluding with an address by W. S. Lowe. Many helpful thoughts were contributed by those who took part in the C. W. B. M. program, the session closing with a fine address on "Is it Well With the Child?" by Brother Lowe. In the evening two splendid addresses were given by Mrs. W. C. Payne, of Lawrence, and Geo. W. Muckley, of Kansas City.

Those who took part in the Christian Endeavor progam were H. A. Denton, of Missouri, R. J. Phipps, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Hiawatha, and Carl A. Polson.

In point of attendance, interest, and character of papers and addresses this was the best convention held in the district for a number of years. Throughout all that was said ran a vein of hopefulness and encouragement. Much credit is due the president, Bro. Baxter Waters, in whose church the convention was held.

The mayor of Hiawatha, who is also a presiding elder in the Evangelical church, addressed the convention. His remarks were most fraternal and revealed an unusual knowledge of the Disciples of Christ, their work and progress. Prof. G. A. Hoffman, principal of the Hiawatha academy, a Baptist institution of learning, also spoke, and in the most brotherly fashion.

The next convention will be held in Atchison. W. T. Hilton was elected president.

Oneida, Kan. CARL A. POLSON, Sec.

❀ ❀

State Bible-School Notes.

R. B. Havener sends a fine report for April—27 days in the field, 24 addresses on Bible-school work. He is now in a meeting at Sullivan.

State Bible-school Evangelist Hopkins, of Kentucky, writes: "We yield the banner to Missouri and Marshall on per cent of scholars reading the Bible every day."

He claims the banner, however, on the per cent of ministers who will preach on Bible-school work this spring. I am mailing a request to every Missouri preacher asking that a sermon be preached on this great work before our June convention.

Now, preaching brother of mine, shall it be proven that Kentucky preachers will show more interest in Bible-schools and the children than Missouri preachers?

Drop me a card saying you will preach such a sermon. Jesus took a little child as a text for a wonderful lesson. Have you ever in all your life tried it? You'll find it a most interesting study for yourself and your people.

Our county rallies are proving very helpful. A good one in your county would be a great inspiration. Why not work one up? You lead, we'll help. Start to-day.

Some one writes, "We should have one in St. Louis." Of course you ought. Set one day apart to study methods of teaching.

Joplin schools are planning an excursion for the children. They expect to take 2,000 people. Why shouldn't the city become interested in Joplin churches of Christ? They do something for the children.

Have you organized a Bible-school this spring? Do you know of a neighborhood with a dozen children and no Bible-school? Of course you do. Then you ought to get busy.

W. A. MOORE.

"The Christian Use of the Tithe System."

This tract appeared in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST in the form of a serial, and in response to a quite general demand it has now been put in convenient tract form for wide distribution. Those who believe in the principle it teaches should aid in giving it wide circulation. The adoption of this regulative principle of giving, among us, would solve more problems, cure more evils, and give a greater impetus to all our worthy enterprises than any other one thing of which we can think. It seems to be the next great forward step among us. Brother Wharton has rendered the cause of Christ great service in his treatment of this subject, and we heartily commend his tract to all who wish to honor God with their substance. J. H. GARRISON.

"The Christian Use of the Tithe System" is a tract of 24 pages, dealing in a clear, forcible, convincing manner with the subject of proportionate giving. Price, 3 cents each; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

Make Ice Cream in ten minutes
With
Jell-O Ice Cream Powder

Everything but the ice and milk in the package. Does not have to be cooked, sweetened or flavored. One package makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream you ever ate. Costs very little. Quality the highest. Pure and wholesome. Received Highest Award, GOLD MEDAL, at the St. Louis Exposition, 1904. If your grocer can't supply you send 25c. for 2 packages. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Send for new illustrated Recipe Book issued April 15th, 1905. Address, The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

NEW ONTARIO—TO THE FRONT.
Offer to Tenant Farmers.

A five acre lot, or a hundred acre farm for 25c per acre cash, the rest at 5c per acre per month.
R. A. BURRISS, Port Arthur, Ont.

Normal Bible Studies

For Teachers, Classes Institutes and Assemblies

The
Normal Instructor
By W. W. DOWLING

In Seven Parts as Follows:

I.—The Book
II.—The Christ III.—The Church
IV.—The Land V.—The Institutions
VI.—The History VII.—The People

Each Part Bound Separately In Strong Manila Covers : :

PRICE:
15c. per Copy. $1.50 per Dozen

Christian Publishing Co.
St. Louis, Missouri

Missouri Notes.

Everything is moving towards a great state meeting at Marshall, June 16-21.

Some one suggests that the annual gathering be called "the state meeting," this will include the conventions of the state missionary, state Bible-school, state C. W. B. M. and state Y. P. S. C. E. All in favor of the suggestion say "Aye." The ayes have it and it is so ordered.

H. F. Davis, of St. Louis, has been appointed special railroad secretary and is moving everything to secure the best rates. His intimate acquaintance with railroad men and interests, gives him a peculiar fitness for this work.

Each department, state missionary, C. W. B. M., Bible-school, Y. P. S. C. E., is striving to outdo the other in efforts to make the meeting the biggest in the history of the Christian church in Missouri.

Everywhere we go, both to church and convention, the enthusiasm for the "best convention ever," is manifest. A letter from E. B. Widger, pastor of the church at Kennett, Dunklin county, says, "We are coming, don't know how many, but we are coming." That is nearly the farthermost point away from Marshall, and means that all others can come, if they will.

Have you sent your name to the chairman of the entertainment committee, C. A. Knight? If not, send now or you may be in trouble.

All the churches in Marshall, except the Episcopal, have placed their houses at our disposal on the Lord's day and the committee on program, in conjunction with the pastor, B. T. Wharton, have made selections of men to fill these pulpits. It was really embarrassing to make selection from such a number of splendid men.

Every week now these "state meeting" notes will appear and if you want to keep posted you must read them.

The district conventions, in southeast Missouri at Poplar Bluff, in southwest Missouri at Monett, were by all odds the best in years, if not the best of all.

Last, but not least by any means, but placed here that it might be the last to meet your eye and leave its impress upon your mind—it has ever been our joy that we have never been compelled to report a deficit in the treasury at the state convention since the payment of the one that came with the office nearly a decade ago. The prospect now, however, is not as hopeful as we could like. We have the deficit now, a nice, smooth, up-to-date article; we have not tested its wearing qualities and have no desire to do so. What we want, and want badly, is to get rid of it at the earliest possible moment. This is one of the things that must be done.

Seriously, brethren, the situation is critical. So many of our churches failed to take the state offering in November and have found themselves so crowded with other offerings since that they have not seen the chance to "wedge the state offering in." Immediate action of the largest liberality is needed in order that we may round out the year with a good report. Will not every preacher whose church has not yet taken the offering for state missions at once lay this matter before his people and urge a large, generous offering for this work?

T. A. ABBOTT.

311 Century Building, Kansas City, Mo.

SILVER AND GOLD

Popular Songs and Standard Hymns

FOR

The Sunday-School : Christian Endeavor Society : Missionary Meeting Evangelistic Service : Other Religious Gatherings :: :: :: :: ::

A splendid book, compiled by W. E. M. Hackleman, and containing some of the best work of such writers as Excell, Towner, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel, McIntosh, Fillmore, Palmer, Bilhorn, Odgen, Hackleman, etc., etc. 176 pages.

Editions and Price List:

	Per copy Postpaid.	Per dozen Not prepaid.	Per hundred Not prepaid
Limp Cloth,	$0.25	$2.00	$15.00
Boards,	.25	2.50	20.00
Cloth	.30	3.00	25.00

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

JUBILANT VOICES

A new music book for Sunday School and Devotional Meetings. Edited by Doane, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel and Hoffman. Much new material, Orders of Service, Responsive Readings, Topical Index. 256 pages. Cloth, $25 per 100, not prepaid. Returnable Sample mailed free.
HOPE PUBLISHING COMPANY, CHICAGO.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited

Church Supplies

Church Register and Record

With special rulings, headings and an alphabetical register. Printed on good paper and substantially bound. Size, 9x14 inches; cloth sides with leather back and corners.
160 pages, - $2.00 300 pages, - $3.50

Concise Church Record

A cheap and convenient book in which to record names of members, date of admission, how admitted, and remarks. Space for 960 names. Printed on good paper and strongly bound. Price, - - $1.00

Contribution Record

For use in connection with the envelope system. Designed expressly for keeping systematic account of weekly contributions. The most convenient record published.
Half leather, quarto, 40 pages, - - $1.00
Half leather, quarto, 80 pages, - - 1.50

Collection Envelopes

Made of good, strong manila paper. Neatly printed; 2 1-2x4 1-2 inches; satisfactory in every particular.
Per thousand by express, not prepaid, $1.00
Per thousand by mail, - - - 1.50

Church Letters

Bound in book form with stub for memorandum. The neatest and most convenient published.
No. 1, Fifty Letter Blanks, - - $0.50
No. 2, One Hundred Letter Blanks, 1.00

Baptismal Pants

We handle only the best grade. They are made in regulation sizes, based on the size of the foot. If an exceptional size is needed it can be made to order. In ordering send size of shoe worn. Prices quoted on application.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

If you purchase a
PIANO OR ORGAN
with the name
ESTEY
upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.

THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

AN ADDRESS
By
Frederick D. Power

In Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds, on Disciples of Christ Day

ENTITLED

History and Doctrines of the Disciples of Christ

A clear and concise statement of the purpose and progress of the restoration.

Published in tract form, 3 cents per copy; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

A few dollars' worth of these tracts distributed in your community will give the cause a wonderful impetus. Try it.

Christian Publishing Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.

POPULAR HYMNS No. 2

By C. C. CLINE

Now used by
Thousands of Churches Everywhere
in the land.

The Popular Song Book
with the People.

PRICES:

SINGLE COPIES, POSTPAID.
Limp cloth, - 25 cents Boards, - 25 cents
Cloth, - 30 cents
PER DOZEN, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $2.00 Boards, - - $2.50
Cloth, - $3.00
PER HUNDRED, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $15.00 Boards, - $20.00
Cloth, - $25.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

Have you read the startling truths contained in the book entitled
FROM THE BALL ROOM TO HELL?
A Dancing Master's Experience. 25 cents, postpaid. Agents write for rates. G. W. NOBLE, Lakeside Building, CHICAGO.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

South Bend, Ind., May 14.—Thirty added to-day; 70 this week, 167 to date. Continuing. Brother Rice filled Metropolitan pulpit.—Chas. Reign Scoville and De Loss Smith.

CALIFORNIA.

Pasadena, May 8.—We entered upon the second week yesterday. In all 31 added—13 yesterday—nearly all confessions. Congregations are large and interest good. F. M. Dowling is the beloved minister. His poor health continues, and he is able to be present only on Sunday mornings. I look for 100 or more added here before we close. The Sunday-school attendance yesterday was 287—the largest in its history.—Sumner T. Martin.

COLORADO.

Denver, May 9.—Four persons confessed Christ in the Central church Lord's day, May 7, and one in the South Broadway church.—B. B. Tyler.

FLORIDA.

Jacksonville, May 9.—One baptism at the Church street Christian church, one restored and one to be baptized this week.—T. Henry Blenus.

IDAHO.

Viola, May 3.—I am a meeting here; two confessions to date. I will hold a debate with Rev. C. T. Cook, pastor of the M. E. church of Rockford, Wash., at Fairfield, Wash., beginning Monday, May 15.—M. H. Wood, evangelist.

ILLINOIS.

Rossville, May 8.—Three additions at Rossville, May 7.—H. H. Peters.

Marine, May 8.—Geo. L. Snively, general secretary National Benevolent Association, preached here yesterday morning and evening. There were four additions, one by letter and the others by confession and baptism.—A. W. Jeffress, elder.

Bement, May 9.—At Bement Sunday morning I preached on our benevolences and in the evening seven confessed Christ. Monday evening these were baptized and the mortgage of the church was burned, with great rejoicing.—J. A. Clemens, Illinois field secretary N. B. A.

Sterling, May 11.—Seven additions by letter and statement not before reported. Brother Green, of Rock Falls, is using our baptistry freely. We are indeed gratified at his success in the Falls. J. W. Johnson, the minister at this place' has been used twice recently in addressing the Y. M. C. A. We have converts regularly from the meetings and Bible classes of the association.

Mason City, May 10.—I have been in this new field but six weeks. The congregation is not large but has a fine missionary and fraternal spirit. During this brief time we have contributed $41.10 to outside benevolence and missions, $5 to Fannie Crosby, $16.35 to our Benevolent Association, $29.75 to home missions. We have a splendid Sunday-school and prayer-meeting and expect to reorganize the Christian Endeavor society later. We have already commenced to plan a series of revival meetings to begin in October with home forces. —O. C. Bolman.

INDIANA.

Indianapolis, May 12.—Our meeting at Sandborn closed at the end of the second week with 19 additions—16 baptisms, three by fellowship. J. G. Elstun of this place sang for us.—L. E. Murray.

Terre Haute, May 8.—Yesterday there were four additions to the College avenue church—one by confession and baptism, one from the United Brethren church and two by statement. The house was crowded last night.—Leonard V. Barbre, pastor.

New Salem, May 8.—We began our meeting yesterday with home mission offering of $121.82, and four confessions. H. H. Saunders is leading the song service. Fine prospects.—Frank B. Thomas.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Weleetka, May 8.—We are in a meeting assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Williamson, song evangelists. It was necessary to go to the opera house last night, and our audience was the largest ever assembled in this town.—F. Hooker Groom.

Muskogee, May 9.—The church here is getting along very well under the circumstances. Others here are building splendid churches and elegant parsonages, and we labor under the great disadvantage of no parsonage and a very small church house. But we hope to arouse an interest on the subject of building in the near future. We have additions nearly every Lord's day; two are to be baptized Wednesday evening after services. In the last 15 months we have received into the membership 114. Have raised, outside of regular expenses, from $900 to $1,100. And since the weather has somewhat settled, there seems to be an increase of interest in all departments of work.—J. H. Crutcher.

Stillwell, May 5.—Five months ago when I came here there was no organization, although there had been, but it had all been torn to pieces. Six of us met at the house of one of our good brethren and observed the Lord's supper, and we continued to meet at our homes for about two months. We then secured Bro. D. W. Campbell to hold us a meeting, the result being that we organized with about 20 members. We organized a Bible-school, and the second Lord's day we had more than 50 present. The church gave $12.10 for foreign missions before we had employed a minister. One week ago there were 45 present at prayer-meeting. We have a minister employed all the time, but he lives 30 miles from here. We will soon commence on our new house of worship, which will cost about $2,500. We raised $1,000 in two days. We had 10 additions one Lord's day, nine the next, and two last Lord's day. We feel greatly encouraged.—Geo. E. Gilmore.

IOWA.

Oelwein, May 9.—We are in a good work here; 100 additions in the last eight months. Sunday-school enrollment 331. Large audiences attend our services; 800 people attended our Easter services.—J. T. Shreve.

Cherokee, May 9.—Our meeting is one week old yesterday. Prof. G. A. Butler, of Missouri, is leading the song service. The interest is fine; eight accessions to date. One confession at Larrabee, April 30.—C. A. Reynolds, pastor.

JAPAN.

Tokyo, April 17.—Baptized three men yesterday, making 50 baptisms (47 men and three women) since Nov. 1. Begin special meetings this week.—W. D. Cunningham.

KANSAS.

Lawrence, May 8.—We had a fine day yesterday for home missions at North Side church. More contributed than ever before. The cause of missions is growing in the congregation. At the morning service three took membership with the congregation. In the evening our pastor preached a strong sermon on temperance celebrating the anniversary of the prohibition movement in Kansas.—W. T. Clarkson.

La Harp, May 8.—Two were added here yesterday, one by letter and one by statement, making 21 since coming here. We are planning a great meeting with Richard S. Martin next September.—M. G. Miller.

Altamont, May 3.—I visited the Sunday-school here, the result of the recent revival. There were 60 in attendance at the second meeting and the interest was fine.—Mrs. T. W. McComb.

Garnett, May 9.—I had the pleasure of baptizing the clerk of the district court last Lord's day evening. At the morning service we raised more than our apportionment for home missions. The work is flourishing in every department.—Melancthon Moore, pastor.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Worcester, May 13.—The new church building of the Highland street church of Christ of this city was opened for public worship last Lord's day (May 7), Bro. B. Q. Denham, of New York city, preaching the dedicatory sermon. Evangelistic services followed the dedication, Brother Denham preaching four week-day evenings, and Bro. Wm. C. Crerie, of Lexington, Ky., one evening, and we had additions either by confession or baptism at every service, a total of 17, making 27 added to the church in the past four weeks.—Newton Knox.

MISSOURI.

Monett, May 11.—Two confessions last Lord's day—one from the Quakers. The work is in fine shape.—Robert Simons.

Stockton, May 12.—We are in a meeting here. It is 12 days old. There are four additions by commendation and seven candidates for baptism. We expect to continue another week.—Simpson Ely.

Brunswick, May 9.—We raised last week $65 for missions to be divided between the state, home and campaign work. We expect to begin a protracted meeting next Lord's day. Our congregations are larger than last year. Bible-school numbers 92. More of the Christian Evangelists are read by our people here now than ever before.—E. G. Merrill.

Doniphan, May 11.—W. A. Haynes, of Skidmore, closed a successful two weeks' meeting here last night. The total increase in the membership of the local congregation was 25, 17 of whom were baptized, two were from the Methodists, one from the Baptists, one from the Catholics and one from the Holiness people. Brother Haynes' preaching was so well received that the plea of the Disciples of Christ is better understood and more kindly thought of here than ever before.—J. P. Campbell.

Lamar, May 8.—One confession yesterday and six added by letter.—S. W. Crutcher.

Lathrop, May 8.—One addition by letter last night. Our offering for home missions is $45, with more to come. Hope to reach $50.—J. G. Creason.

Springfield, May 8.—Six additions Sunday; three by confession and baptism, two by statement, and one by letter.—D. W. Moore.

Jonesburg, May 9.—Six by baptism at last appointment at Price's Branch, and offering for benevolent work of church.—D. Millar.

Grant City, May 8.—Red letter day here yesterday. Three added to church and $550 raised to liquidate our church debt. Everybody happy.—W. L. Harris, minister.

Sweet Springs, May 9.—I am assisting Brother Elmore in a short meeting; six additions to date. I go to Bartlesville, I. T., next for a meeting with Brother Omer.—L. D. Sprague, gospel singer.

St. Louis, May 8.—One addition yesterday at one of my regular appointments and a great audience.—W. H. Kern.

Sedalia, May 8.—Six additions yesterday at Grand Pass—one by baptism, one by letter, four by statement.—J. I. Orrison.

Canton, May 6.—A visit with the Elvins and Flat River churches, April 30, resulted in one by confession and baptism, three from the Baptists, one by statement. Two others were baptized who had previously made the confession under the preaching of Bro. H. F. Davis, of St. Louis. I expect to be with these churches regularly after this school year.—C. E. Dunkleberger.

Chillicothe, May 14.—Our gospel meetings closed to-night, after being in progress twenty-two days. There were 102 additions to the church. Of this number 65 were by confession and baptism; 59 were grown people. We had eight rainy nights out of twenty-two. There was but one service without additions. I did the preaching, assisted in the singing by Bro. Clarence E. Wagner, pastor of the church at Shelbyville, Mo. Our Endeavor society has trebled its membership, the Sunday-school has grown one hundred and fifty per cent. Practical organization, hard work and personal preaching have brought results. We feel encouraged.—James N. Crutcher.

NEW YORK.

Syracuse.—The Allen-Wilson meeting at Jefferson streeet, Buffalo, resulted in 170 additions. D. H. Patterson, Auburn, reports eight added recently. It looks as though the 52 churches in New York would report 1,000 additions this year. I am in a meeting with New Rowland street church here. Eight added so far. I go to Third, Brooklyn, next. R. H. Miller is holding a meeting at Columbia avenue, Rochester.—S. J. Corey, secretary-evangelist.

OHIO.

Alliance, May 11.—Our meeting here of 22 days with A. B. Moore closed last night with 71 additions. There were 11 the last night, and 32 the last four days. All regretted the meeting could not be continued longer. We begin next Sunday at Bartlesville, I. T.—R. A. Omer.

Youngstown, May 11.—At the Davis memorial church there were three baptisms last night; four added to the church in the past two weeks, 56 since January.—L. J. McConnel, pastor.

OREGON.

Salem, May 8.—Our meeting is starting out with great crowds. After having only two services in the church we were compelled to go to a tent to accommodate the people. S. M. Martin is the evangelist, and D. Errett is pastor. My address is now 354 High St., Salem, Ore.—Charles E. McVay, singing evangelist.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Pittsburg, May 12.—Closed a three weeks' meeting with the Herron Hill church last night. Eight were added—seven by baptism and one by statement. Bro. J. D. Dabney is pastor here. I begin at Second church, Washington, Pa., May 14.—F. A. Bright, evangelist of western Pennsylvania.

TEXAS.

McKinney, May 10.—Our meeting in this city is 10 days old; 37 additions to date.—G. L. Bush, pastor; H. A. Northcutt, evangelist.

Dallas, May 12.—The work at the East Dallas church moves along as well as could be expected. Bad weather has hindered much since January. The offering for foreign missions was $183. Last Lord's day we finished the amount sufficient to continue the employment of "our own home missionary." The church has not unanimously adopted the tithing system, as you stated in a recent issue. Would to God that such were true of the church! All the official board give a tenth to the Lord's cause. About 40 members out of 200 of this church are tithing for the Lord. About 30 have united with the church since Jan. 1. Scoville and Smith will begin with us June 1.—H. R. Ford, minister.

Amarillo, May 8.—On our return from Tucson, Ariz., to Amarillo we stopped over in Artesia, N. M., and held a two weeks' meeting, which resulted in 21 additions to the church, 6 of which were by confession and baptism. The Artesia church has never had a pastor but now they have more than 70 members; and by aid of church extension have been able to build a very neat church home in which to worship, and which was occupied for the first time during the meeting. Artesia is a new town situated in the Pecos valley, half way between Roswell and Carlsbad, and is so named because of the numerous artesian wells there. It is but little more than a year old and has about 2,000 inhabitants. On nearly every farm an artesian well is being sunk which will be used for irrigation purposes. The soil is very fertile and the prospects are most flattering for a highly developed country in a few years. Our church is there on the ground floor and will no doubt develop with the community. Artesia is but an illustration of what could be done in all rapidly growing western towns by the brotherhood if we had a plentitude of home missionary and church extension funds. There were two additions to the church here yesterday. After an absence of almost three months we are glad to be home again. The work has been successfully carried on in my absence by Brother Edwards, one of the elders and a superannuated preacher.—W. A. Fite.

A Gift to Texas Christian University.

A few weeks ago I wrote to Bro. T. W. Phillips, of Newcastle, Pa., setting forth the needs and possibilities of Texas Christian university. I have just received an answer in which Brother Phillips sets forth his views of the value of ministerial loan funds. I quote one sentence which I know will be an inspiration to our entire brotherhood: "I have concluded to meet your request and promise you a contribution of $5,000, $1,500 or $2,500 to be paid on or before the opening of your fall session and the balance as may be required during the year." To say that this letter makes us all happy feebly expresses the situation. I have been shedding tears of gratitude and joy at intervals ever since I received the letter. We are glad, not simply for what the donation is, although that is sufficient to make us glad, but for the prophetic meaning of such a gift as this. Brother Phillips received a vision of the wonderful possibilities of this institution from a previous letter addressed to him. What will not the men in our own state see in this growing institution as they come in contact with it and understand the possibilities of the wonderful state in which this institution is planted?

This gift comes at a critical moment to an institution planted in a strategic position in this great country. Within five years the population of Texas will probably be doubled; in twenty-five years it may and probably will have 10,000,000 people within its borders. This state, as large as five of the greatest states in our union, has agricultural possibilities that are almost unlimited. Texas could feed the entire United States. It has untold mineral wealth; it has forests that rival the forests of Michigan and its oil fields rival the oil fields of Pennsylvania. When the Isthmian canal is finished great railroad trunk lines will converge to some point on our southern coasts and will open up and develop this state in a marvelous way. What this vast population becomes religiously will be determined in large measure by what the Disciples of Christ become in this state; what the Disciples of Christ in this state become will be measured vary largely by what Texas Christian university becomes. This institution has possibilities for good that are simply boundless. It is planted in a strategic point and now is the crisis moment. A dollar given now means more than $10 given 10 years from now. We value Brother Phillips' gift as much for its quickening power upon the minds and hearts of our own people as for its intrinsic value.

E. V. Zollars,
Pres. Texas Christian University.

Campaigning in Texas.

For five weeks I have been campaigning in the state of Texas in the interest of home missions. Everywhere I have been cordially greeted by splendid audiences who heard gladly and responsively the messages.

This is very hard, trying work, but I feel fully compensated by coming in contact with so many of God's workmen, who are the embodiment of the spirit of Christ and deeply interested in the evangelization of America and the world. If the missionary spirit of the Texas preachers and churches which I have visited is an indication of the general conditions throughout the brotherhood, this year shall witness the greatest home missionary offering ever made by our people.

Texas is one of the fruitful mission fields in our nation, and our home board has been and is demonstrating in a most substantial way the effectualness of organized missionary endeavor until the opposition to our work (by some called "anti-ism") is gradually dissolving and being assimilated by the great body of the church which is marching on in obedience to the great commission. It appears to me that our home board could, if its resources would allow, do much toward enlisting our non-co-operating churches in every enterprise of the kingdom by supporting men in their midst, and thus demonstrate before their eyes this work.

Since leaving Chattanooga for this campaign my wife has suffered the loss of her father, Mr. Riley Wilson, of Tullahoma, Tenn. Brother Wilson has for many years been a most zealous Disciple of Christ. He leaves a wife, four daughters and three sons, all of whom he lived to see obey the gospel. None knew him but to love him, and none spoke of him but to praise his virtues. It is a sore trial to be separated from Mrs. Taylor in this, the greatest sorrow of her life, but realizing the great importance of home missions, I feel that I can best honor the dead and comfort the sorrowing by keeping right on in the work.

I wish for the Christian-Evangelist, its editors and patrons, a most happy, prosperous and blessed career and a most splendid fellowship in saving America to Christ and the church. May no cloud ever overshadow your "Easy Chair" that does not shower upon you heaven's richest benedictions.

W. M. Taylor.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both
in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

People's Forum.

Baptists and Disciples.

References were made in my recent "Illinois" notes to the discussion of the "Union of Baptists and Disciples" at the Disciples' banquet in Chicago. At the county meeting held in Sterling some time ago Bro. W. E. Spicer arranged with the Baptist minister to give the meeting an address on the things of agreement of Baptists and Disciples. It was an admirable address. That such things are becoming common is most encouraging. The spirit of investigation in the debates by our fathers was not always the best, but the investigation must still go on and is coming in a better spirit. I would like to say a thing or two on this subject:

1. There seems to be great dread and anticipation with sorrow for the things that must be given up. I believe with us and others this is largely imaginary and will be the smallest thing of difficulty when we get to the right place and spirit.

2. The matter of largest concern ought to be, what contribution shall we have to make to the mighty conquering body when the union comes? I fear the best of our possessions are leaking out, or are being thrown away by men who see and feel but lightly the magnitude of the problem and our part in it. The religious names of individuals and churches have attained scripture place after the most persistent effort for nearly a century. Luther did not desire his church or members to wear his name, but the pressure was too strong, and they surrendeied. The same is measurably true of Baptists and Methodists. People good and bad combined to compel us to do the same thing and be "Campbellites." Thanks to our good Master and the heroic fathers, this one contribution we will have to make to the holy consummation. No body of people on this earth and no individuals will be quite their best [that do not wear the name that is above every name, reinforced by all the holy qualities so richly contained in other scripture names. Little people want to single out just one name, and some even pervert these. "Disciples' church" is neither true nor scriptural. And many such like things ought not to be.

3. If I recall properly, our good Baptist brother at the Chicago banquet said that he could see but one natural line of cleavage to separate God's people, and that is that of the formalist and the realist. These represent extremes, into one of which we are likely to fall. This, too, has been a hard matter to hold in right position both by us and the Baptists. The truth is, and to it we must all come, that the religion of Jesus Christ has both forms and facts which we must accept, or be disloyal to him. But both forms and facts are full of great spiritual truths and power. Study them, preach them.

4. Many seem to decry doctrine and insist on love. We ought to be large enough to include and preach both. Dr. Henson once said that doctrine is the fiber of the gospel tree, love is the sap. The tree without sap is dead, the sap without the fiber of the tree must perish.

These may not be very good Illinois notes. It is difficult not to break over state lines. While we believe in state sovereignty, we also believe in national union. And Christian union will come, not by everybody flattening out into nothings, but by all people bringing into the one fellowship the best things that have been won by the hard battles of life. I wish I had space to mention some more things that we have that will always make the world's faith and hope richer. And I would like to mention some good things that others have to contribute to the great common fund that is to be, for which we all will be grateful.

J. G. WAGGONER.

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF

SACRED SONGS

FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS, YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES, EVANGELISTIC SERVICES, AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF CHURCH WORK AND WORSHIP, ENTITLED :

Praises to the Prince

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music.
Handsome Appearance.
Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market.

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid	$ .30
Boards,	" " "	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " "	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" " " "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" " " "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	15.00

PUBLISHED BY

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

❁ ❁

MARRIAGES.

STEVENS—WHITE.—At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Lincoln White, at Burlington, Col., Arthur J. Stevens and Miss Minnie White, April 23, C. A. Yersin officiating.

HEEFNER—NEIGHBOR.—George D. Heefner and Edna M. Neighbor, on April 19, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Neighbor, of Lafayette, Ia., B. F. Shoemaker officiating.

❁

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

HEWITT.

Mary R. Hewitt was born June 21, 1831, and died April 13, 1905. She was united in marriage to Wm. T. Hewitt in 1860, to which union were born three children, two of whom are living, Lee D. Hewitt and O. B. Hewitt, both of Taylorville, Ill. She became a Christian when only sixteen years of age and remained a faithful member until death. She has cared, wholly, or in part, for about twenty orphan children during her life. Rev. Preston Wood, of the M. E. church, preached the funeral sermon. ZWINGLIUS MOORE.

Taylorville, Ill.

HOBBS.

Mrs. Emma Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Skirvin, formerly of Kansas, and earlier in life from Plattsmouth, Neb., died at the home of her parents at Marquam, Ore., April 9, 1905, at the age of 46 years. She was a faithful, untiring worker in the church, a kind, helpful companion, a most dutiful mother. May the everlasting arms be around her two orphan children and the sorrowing family. MARTIN C. MCKNIGHT.

Blackwell, O. T.

JOHNSON.

Adamantine Johnson, born in Lincoln county, Ky., May 17, 1824, passed to his eternal rest Monday morning, April 14, 1905. His family removed to Missouri in 1835, and he was prominent in religious and financial circles in Missouri for half a century. For a number of years he was in business in St. Louis, and an elder in the First Christian church of that city. He failed in business there just after the war, assumed personally the large debt of his firm, moved his family to a farm in Chariton county, and saw every dollar of the indebtedness paid, and his large family well educated. For a number of years he has made his home in Chillicothe. He was known by our leading preachers of long ago in Kentucky, and in more recent years in Missouri. He was a man of firm faith, in shadow as well as in sunshine, of indomitable energy, of sane piety, of gentleness and worth. He leaves a widow and seven children, one child having preceded him to the heavenly home. The funeral was conducted by the writer.

JAMES NORVEL CRUTCHER.

KING.

After a long illness, Hezekiah H. King passed away at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. K. Pendleton, at Eustis, Fla., April 21. Mr. King was born in Warren county, O., nearly seventy-six years ago, and was for more than twenty years clerk of the United States circuit and district courts at Savannah. About three years ago he had a stroke of paralysis, from the effects of which he never recovered. He became interested in property in Eustis nearly twenty years ago, and a goodly part of his time was spent there. The funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Pendleton, and were conducted by Carey E. Morgan, pastor of the Christian church at Paris, Ky. The interment was in Eustis cemetery.

MILLER.

At the home of her daughters, in Corning, Ia., Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, age 61, died in full faith in her Savior, Jesus Christ. A great crowd of friends gathered at the church to pay a last tribute of love. The writer took the confession and baptized Sister Miller at the last service held at Corning in closing a five years' pastorate five years ago, and was called to help bury her. W. B. CREWDSON

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

May 24, 1905.

PRACTICAL HUMILITY.

But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.—Jas. 4:6.

More Grace. This is what we all feel the need of. Only God can give it. But he can give it only to those who are prepared to receive it. The proud cannot receive it. God resisteth such. Only the humble are in the proper attitude toward God to receive additional grace from him. Mr. Moody once said that one reason why God doesn't bless the labors of ministers more, is that, if he gives them some success they become so proud and think so highly of themselves, that he is compelled to withhold it from them. The same is true of learning, wisdom and every high achievement.

Who Are the Humble? (1) Those who do not exalt themselves (Luke 14:10, 11). (2) Those who esteem others better than themselves (Phil. 2:3). (3) Those who are willing to serve others (Matt. 23:11). (4) Those who guard against an overestimate of their ability (Rom. 12:3). (5) Jesus its highest example. He came "not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

Reward of Humility. (1) Increased grace (James 4:6). (2) True greatness (Matt. 23:10). (3) Exaltation (Phil. 2:8, 9). In addition to these specified promises, we know how we all admire humility in others, and how we dislike its opposite. Humility puts us in favor with God and man. There is no garment a Christian can wear that is more becoming than that of true humility.

How to Obtain It. Live much in the company of Christ. Compare your life with his, and see your character in the light of his perfect character. Seek the spirit of Christ, without which we are none of his. (Rom. 8:9.)

Prayer. Our Father in heaven, we thank Thee for the perfect example Thou hast given us in Thy Son, who "humbled himself and became obedient unto death," that he might redeem us from sin. Grant, we pray Thee, that this same mind may be in us, and that we may so humble ourselves that Thou canst give us more grace and so use us more in Thy service. For Christ's sake. Amen.

❀ ❀

CALENDAR LOGIC.

A Practical Calendar That Advertises Judiciously.

Substantial as the house it represents, the new Calendar of Lord & Thomas, Chicago, is both unique and educational. The background of the pad is a rich design in harmonius coloring which represents some eight or nine impressions. The Calendar pad is of good size and clear, and at the foot of the monthly sheets are business themes which are well worth a frame on the wall of every up-to-date dusiness office.

These themes are practical, based on sound business logic, and are the outgrowth of a rich experience during which this well-known advertising agency has safely piloted some of the greatest advertising campaigns the world has ever known.

Here is a specimen of Lord & Thomas logic—there are others just as good:

"Which is the wiser way—to flash a name or fix the facts in the public mind? People do not buy goods, through advertising, from mere memory of a trade name or brand, but because they are influenced and convinced by sound, intelligent reasoning."

These arguments are good food for reflection and are appropriately placed upon the business man's daily guide.

A Complete Line of

BAPTISMAL SUITS

Guaranteed Best Quality.

Write to us for Prices.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

May 28, 1905.

MISSIONS IN ROMAN CATHOLIC COUNTRIES.—Ps. 67:1-7.

For the Leader.

We have for our study to-night, the subject of missions. While our topic confines us to missions in Catholic countries, it seems that it will be fitting for us to give the meeting a broader scope than that. Why not missions in all countries? We are near the great mission days of our church. The foreign offering has not long been taken. The general home offering is but a few Sundays past. We are now within one Lord's day of children's day for foreign missions. Our thoughts have been dwelling with profit and delight upon the victories of the cross in all lands. Why not rejoice to-night in discussing the conditions in mission lands?

For the Members.

1. Missions is not a word that expresses a thought new to the Christian world. It is as old as the giving of the great commission. There is no place for one to stand as a Christian and yet not in favor of missions. It is not one thing to be a Christian and another thing to be a missionary Christian. One embraces the other. It has not been left optional to man to be a missionary Christian or not as he chooses. In the very nature of the case one must either believe in and work at missions, or to that extent fall short of the model given in Jesus and Christian duty as set forth in the gospel.

2. Missions in Catholic countries involve a process of thought painful to the true Christian. Such a subject is only possible on the presumption that the church has either departed from the truth or is not putting it into practice, or, it may be, both. It is with no desire to be considered narrow, or to be sectarian, that one here admits that the above is true in many Roman Catholic lands. It is not, however, in the same degree in all lands. In America, Catholicism is one thing; in Spain, it is quite another thing. This is not—while Roman Catholicism has a strong hold upon the people—a Catholic country. Spain is; the Philippines are Catholic; Porto Rico is Catholic. Missions in these lands means the simple gospel ministry of the apostolic age put into practice anew. Missions in this sense is just beginning in Catholic countries.

3. The Disciples are not least in missions. Our own C. W. B. M. is starting in South America. The first missionary will soon sail. In Old Mexico a good start has been made. The other day I saw in one of our missionary papers the picture of the grave of A. G. Alderman, that man of God who gave up his life in order to remain at his post of duty. In the picture the grave was covered with flowers, the sweet, simple beauties of God's out-of-doors. In every direction one could see the crosses marking the graves of the benighted Mexicans. This one rose-covered grave in the midst of so many symbols of Romanism, is the hope of Mexico, for it represents the spirit that goes marching on in all lands, Catholic and pagan alike.

4. The land of Buddhism; the land of Confucius; the land of the fetish; the land of the Sunrise Kingdom—these, with many islands of the sea, are rejoicing in the saving power of Jesus. The peoples are turning from wood and stone and earth to serve the living God. They have found a friend in Jesus. "No other such a friend or brother," the poet has sung. The chorus is taken up in every land concerning Jesus. Hill answers to hill; deep answers to deep; island answers to island, continent to continent, and the united anthem of all is to Jesus the Prince of Peace. Why not, then, more Endeavorers interested in missions? Why not more societies sharing in the missionary offerings? Why not more young men and women in preparation for the mission fields? Let there be a crusade of missions.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Am I in deed and in truth a missionary for the Lord?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	By divine covenant.	Matt. 28:18-20.
T.	Demanded by the Spirit.	Acts 13:1-3.
W.	Commanded by angels.	Acts 8:26.
T.	The duty seen in visions.	Acts 16:9,10.
F.	The gospel only binding.	Acts 15:6-21.
S.	Results of gospel missions.	Rev. 10:1-9.
S.	Missions in Catholic countries.	Ps. 67:1-7.

OUR line of pianos embraces the old and well-known makes of pianos. Why take any chances on unknown makes when for a few dollars more you can secure a

WEBER, KRELL-FRENCH, IVERS & POND, McPHAIL, O. K. HOUCK or NORWOOD

Cash or terms to suit.

New pianos for rent, one year's rent to apply on purchase. Write for catalogue—a postal card will save you many dollars. Write for Booklet A.

O. K. Houck Piano Co.

1118 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

H. A. PHIPPS, Mgr.

St. Louis, Memphis, Little Rock, Nashville.

Living Praise

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Sacred Songs Suitable for All Occasions

267 Sacred Songs; a very large proportion of them new. The best collection of high class music ever produced among our people.

Three Styles of Binding.

PRICES:

$15.00, $20.00, $25.00 per hundred

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

❀ ❀

A Fine Kidney Cure.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn., (the Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder troubles will write him, he will, without charge, direct them to the perfect home cure he used.

Sunday-School.

May 28, 1905.

THE CRUCIFIXION.—John 19:17-30.

Memory verses, 25-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Christ died for our sins, according to the scriptures.—1 Cor. 15:3.

Even after Pilate had delivered Jesus to the soldiers to be scourged, he repeated several times his conviction of his innocence and feebly tried to save him. Perhaps he supposed that the scourging would satisfy the hatred of his enemies. After the scourging and mockery by the soldiers, Pilate said: "Behold I bring him out to you that ye may know that I find no crime in him" (John 19:4). Again: "Take him yourselves and crucify him, for I find no crime in him" (John 19:6). Yet again it is said that, after a further conference with Jesus, "Pilate sought to release him" (John 19:12).

The record of the crucifixion is wonderfully free from any trace of the emotions which the event must have stirred in the hearts of the evangelists—especially those of them who were followers of Jesus at the time. They seemed to have felt with one accord that the simplest story of the event would be the most impressive, and that any reflection of their own sorrow would obscure rather than fortify the record. It was a true literary instinct which led them to choose this course. In a group of narratives which, like these four narratives of the crucifixion, were to convey to the world through all the centuries the story of the most sacred event in history, and were to furnish the central part of the whole world's religious heritage, no temporary and individual emotions should be introduced. The world would weary of hearing how Matthew felt about the crucifixion and how John was shocked and grieved by it, but the simple story of the event never loses its freshness and power.

The place of the crucifixion is probably lost beyond recovery. Varying traditions point to different spots as the true Golgotha.

It was customary to place above the victim's head a placard stating his offense. Pilate wrote, "Jesus of Nazareth, the king of the Jews." Perhaps it was half in mockery at the absurdity of the claim, and half in unconscious recognition of an underlying truth in the statement. He was not being punished under a Roman sentence for treason, because he claimed to be king of the Jews, for Pilate openly proclaimed him guiltless after he had confessed that he was a king. But having yielded to the clamor of the Jewish mob and given over to death a man whom he himself declared to be innocent, Pilate was quite willing to have a fling at the Jews, whom he despised even while he yielded to them. And the placard was in any case a thrust at the Jews. If Jesus were a fraud and a criminal, it accused them of having such a person for their king; if he were in some true sense their king, then it accused them of treating their king like a criminal.

The reference to the division of the garments by the soldiers (verses 23, 24) and the allusion to the language of Psalm 22:19, which is said to have been fulfilled in this incident, affords a good opportunity to the general question as to those passages in which a given saying of the Old Testament scripture is said to be fulfilled in some detail in the life of Christ. Matthew furnishes the largest number of such allusions. Note the following, with the corresponding Old Testament quotations which are said to be fulfilled:

Matthew—
1:23—Is. 7:14—Virgin shall conceive.
2.6—Mic. 5:2—And thou, Bethlehem.
2:15—Hos. 11:1—Out of Egypt.
2:18—Jer. 31:15—Voice in Ramah.
2:23—Is. 11:1—Called Nazarene.
3:3—Is. 40:3—Voice in Wilderness.
4:15,16—Is. 9:1,2—Land of Zebulun.
8:17—Is. 53:4—Took our infirmities.
12:18-21—Is. 42:1-4—Behold my servant!
13:14,15—Is. 6:9,10—Hearing, ye shall hear.
13:35—Ps. 78:2—I will open my mouth in parables.
15:8,9—Is. 29:13—This people honoreth.
21:5—Zech. 9:9—Riding on ass.
26:31—Zech. 13:7—I will smite.
27:9—Zech. 11:12,13—Thirty pieces of silver.

Each of these, and the similar passages in the other gospels, suggests such questions as these: Does the evangelist mean that the prophet or psalmist in each case consciously predicted the event to which the words are applied? Do the prophetic words have a legitimate double meaning, one referring to the prophet's own experience, and the other to some future event perhaps unknown to him? What bearing would it have on our theory of inspiration if we should decide (a) that the evangelist's statement about the "fulfillment" of these scriptures, was the result of a current Jewish method of interpretation, which we are not under obligation to accept, or (b) that the prophets were so guided in their writings that they could predict events of which they themselves were ignorant? In any case the quotation should be studied in its original setting, and its obvious meaning in that connection, taken into account.

The meaning of the death of Christ is one of God's deepest mysteries. How did he make atonement for the sins of men? It is easy to reject inadequate theories, but harder to frame an adequate statement. It was not to pay a ransom to the devil, as the Christian world for centuries believed. It was not to appease an angry God, for God is love. It was not alone to satisfy the divine justice which demanded that there be punishment where there had been sin, for justice desires not only that sin be followed by punishment, but that the punishment be administered to the real culprit. But we believe that the death of Jesus was much more than a martyr's death, or the inevitable suffering of innocence in a world of sin. And we know that, however great the mystery, the cross of Christ has been the heart of Christianity and the secret of its winning and its saving power.

WE WANT YOU
TO SELL OUR
ORIENTAL MASSAGE CREAM
and ORIENTAL SHAMPOO.
They have a national reputation and will bring you in a large income. Full size samples and terms free.
THE ORIENTAL MFG. CO., Station C, Cleveland, O.

The Christ in Modern English Literature

By GEO. H. COMBS.

Purple Silk Cloth Binding; Title in White; 257 Pages.

$1.00, Postpaid.

This book, written in the best of literary style, traces in a careful and interesting way the influence of Christ upon the thought and consequent productions of makers of literature since his time.

One can not read it without being more thoroughly convinced than ever that the influence of Christ's life is the power that produces civilization and advancement in the world. The book is one of the most attractive ever issued by us.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

DIVINITY SCHOOL
—OF—
HARVARD UNIVERSITY
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
AN UNDENOMINATIONAL SCHOOL
OF THEOLOGY.
Announcement for 1905-06, Now Ready.

❀ ❀

SCALP HUMOR WITH LOSS OF HAIR.
Merciless Itching Made Him Wild.
Speedy Cure by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"For two years my neck was covered with humor, spreading to my hair, which fell out, leaving an unsightly bald spot, and the soreness, inflammation and merciless itching made me wild. Friends advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after a few applications the torment subsided, to my great joy. The soreness soon disappeared, and my hair grew again as thick as ever. I shall always recommend Cuticura." (Signed) H. J. Spalding, 104 W. 104th St., N. Y. City.

A Modern Plea
for Ancient Truth
By J. H. GARRISON
An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.
94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.
Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. St Louis. Mo.

AULT & WIBORG
COMPANY
Manufacturers of Printing Inks,
CINCINNATI, NEW YORK,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.
This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

MILLENNIAL HARBINGERS—Write J. F. Callahan, Noble, Ohio, for lot of M. Harbingers—cheap.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

WANTED—A capable minister with experience. Married man preferred. Good church building. Town of 4,000 people. Address, with recommendations, Church of Christ, Jennings, Louisiana.

INVEST your surplus money in St. Louis REAL ESTATE. We have some good paying apartments, paying as much as 10, 12 1-2 and 15 per cent, on made streets and 20 minutes ride to P. O. Olive through cars. We will attend to collecting rents for you. Reference furnished. R. H. W. Godwin, 4071 Delmar, St. Louis.

Family Circle

The Hero-Reformer of Scotland.

BY HUGH BLACK, M. A.
Associate Pastor St. George's United Free Church, Edinburgh.

[On May 21, will be celebrated the four hundredth anniversary of Knox's birth.]

In the square of Parliament House in Edinburgh, behind St. Giles cathedral, the church where Knox used to preach, there is on the street a little brass plate set into the common causeway with the letters "I. K. 1572," marking Knox's grave. Till recently there was no monument to the work and memory of the great reformer, except that humble mark. But really he did not need any; for his work was so well done that it is indelible in Scottish history, and is imprinted even in Scottish character. We feel, however, as if something of the same appearance of neglect rules over his life as over his grave, when we try to imagine the man as he was. He is strangely illusive, and in some respects almost enigmatic from the point of view of modern realism that would like to give a definite picture which would explain at a glance all that he was and did.

VARIOUSLY ESTIMATED BY FRIENDS AND ENEMIES.

His personal influence was something that is almost beyond our imagination today—a preacher of the gospel, bearding queen and nobles, the virtual king of the realm, holding in his hands the threads of politics in more countries than one. His work, too, remains in the whole subsequent history of this country, and had effect in larger spheres still; for though it is true that but for Luther's great reformation in Germany, there would have been no reformation in Scotland, it is almost equally true that but for Knox's root-and-branch reformation in Scotland, the German reformation would probably have been stamped out. Knox's influence on England, too, is usually underestimated, but at any estimation it was very great. And yet there is a curious difficulty in picturing the man. It is comparatively easy to show how truly Knox was the maker of modern Scotland, and to deal with him as a reformer, and to trace his influence in Europe and even in America; but it is difficult to get a consistent view of the great figure as he was, and to see the man as separate from his work.

This is partly because his work was so impersonal and was done on such a large scale. He had no time or thought to make any kind of self-revelation, and the opinions of others on him largely reflect their political and religious views. He was more a man of action than Luther, and left no delightful "Table Talk" which gives glimpses of his tastes and character. There was no Melancthon among his immediate associates, who, like himself, were too deeply immersed in the practical problems of the day to have much time or talent for literature. Besides, Scotland was more or less out of the great tide of continental life and interest.

We have, of course, the views of friends and enemies about him, which can by no means be reconciled. He cut too deep into treasured tradition, and stirred the prejudices of his generation too keenly, and his work was too closely mixed up with politics, for us to expect a fair and adequate opinion about him. We have varied portraits in words as in pictures, so varied that we cannot believe the same man sat for them. We are not even quite sure of the date of his birth, some recent authorities dating it from eight to ten years later than the usual date. This will affect many a judgment passed on some events, and might to some extent take the sting out of many a sneer, such as his late marriage, if we are ten years out in our calculation. We do not know exactly where he was born, though it was certainly either in or near Haddington.

No great writer has made the man live again in the magic of literature, though we have some excellent histories of him and his times. His countryman, Carlyle, often dreamed of doing for him what he did for Oliver Cromwell, but beyond an article on "The Portraits of Knox," and a place in the lecture on "The Hero as Priest," he has left us nothing. R. L. Stevenson, another countryman, wrote two entertaining "Essays on Knox" and his relation to wonen, which only showed how dimly the reformer appears to our day. Then again, Knox gave himself heart and soul to preaching, which he was so convinced was his real vocation that he refrained from writing books. Yet our idea of his preaching has to be gathered by the way from references and reports, as he published only one sermon, and that for a special reason. We know that it was largely expository preaching. The first mention we have of his preaching was his opening up the gospel of St. John to the students of St. Andrew's.

DESCRIBED IN A CONTEMPORARY LETTER.

As to the outward appearance of the man, a few years ago a Latin letter was unearthed, written by Sir Peter Young, who was tutor to King James VI., to Theodore Beza in 1579, describing how Knox looked. "In stature he was slightly under the middle height, of well-knit and graceful figure, with shoulders somewhat broad, longish fingers, head of moderate size, hair black, complexion somewhat dark, and general appearance not unpleasing. In his stern and severe countenance there was a natural dignity and majesty not without a certain grace, and in anger there was an air of command on his brow. Under a somewhat narrow forehead, his brows stood out in a slsght ridge over his ruddy and slightly swelling cheek, so that his eyes seemed to retreat into his head. The color of his eyes was bluish grey, their glance keen and animated. His face was rather long, his nose of more than ordinary length, the mouth large, the lips full, the upper a little thicker than the lower, his beard black mingled with gray, a span and a half long and moderately thick."

In this graphic description, as in the current opinion, the chief thing we think of in connection with the reformer's work and character, is the quality of sternness and severity. We think of his fiery denunciations, his unflinching adherence to the cause to which he gave his life, his uncompromising attitude displayed in his interviews with Queen Mary at Holyrood palace, of which so much is made; and we conclude that he was almost fanatical in his severity. Well, for one thing, the times demanded more than the kid-glove handling of men and affairs that some of his critics would like to have seen in him. The times needed a man of tireless energy and indomitable faith and unbreakable courage—all forged into the steel of character—and such Scotland found in Knox. It was not a smooth business he had to put through, and as Carlyle says, it was cheap at the price, even although it had been much rougher than it was. He made his country a nation of self-respecting, liberty-loving men out of the most unpromising material at the time. His character and work put backbone into the movement which secured political and religious freedom; and the result of his work lives not only in Scotland, but in the Puritanism which saved England later on, and which made New England across the seas.

DISCIPLINED BY SUFFERING AND CONFLICT.

When we speak of severity, either of character or of the stern cast of face, we cannot forget how he was hardened by his life of hardship and constant danger and almost intolerable oppression—a prisoner in a French galley, then five years of exile in England and other five years of exile on the continent, and afterwards in Scotland,

A CHILD Can Use the QUICK MEAL

with perfect safety—it's proof against forgetfulness, ignorance, hired girls—the Insurance Companies have tested it to their full satisfaction every way they could think of. The Quick Meal is simplicity itself—no wearing parts—nothing to clog or get out of order—nothing to burnout. It is made from heavy sheet steel and brass, and will last almost a lifetime—and it will do as good work the last year as it did the first. Kitchen work is a delight when you have a for you never have to wait, even a minute, for your fire—it's always piping hot, but your kitchen is cool, for the heat is under the kettles, where it ought to be. And there are no kindlings—no ashes—no dirt—no bother—just convenience, economy and safety, and your dishes done and the kitchen cleaned up before you know it. The Quick Meal is a city convenience you can have and ought to have. If your dealer doesn't carry it—ask us—we'll sell you.

QUICK MEAL (Evaporator) GASOLINE RANGE

TRADE MARK

WOULD YOU LIKE A PRESENT?—We will send you something useful—something you'll like if you'll simply tell us your dealer's name and say whether he carries Quick Meal. Sign your name plainly so it will reach you safely.

Ringen Stove Co. Div., Makers, 408 N. 6th Street. St. Louis, Mo.

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

The first ten who clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and send to

DRAUGHON'S

PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.

COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mai FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

living most of the time with a price on his head, with more than one attack made on his life. If he had severity and vehemence, and the stern adherence to principle which politicians of the time called "willfulness," because he would not bend to their schemes, we may be thankful that God raised up in Scotland at a time of crisis a man who was above all time-serving and sycophancy and venal selfishness; for among all the other prominent figures of his time, we can hardly find one man who stood above these vices but Knox.

It was his misfortune that so much of his public life was spent in controversy, that the qualities for which he was best known, are the hard and virile ones, those of the doughty fighter who received and gave shrewd blows. We think of his energy and courage and zeal, but there were many tender spots in the heart of the iron-fronted reformer. There was a tender and gentle nature, and an almost clinging dependence in this man, as we see from his letters to his women correspondents. R. L. Stevenson well says: "It does not consist with common acceptation of his character to fancy him much moved except with anger. And yet the language of passion came to his pen as readily whether it was a passion of denunciation against some of the abuses that vexed his righteous spirit, or of yearning for the society of an absent friend. He was vehement in affection as in doctrine." In that correspondence there are many signs of deep sympathy, and tenderness, and patience, and a wonderful understanding of the difficulties and temptations of weak human nature. His writings also display that flavor of humor which is always associated with wide sympathy, and the two combined gave him great insight into the human heart. In the first letter he sent to Scotland, written when he was chained in the French galley, he wrote, "Consider, brethren, it is no speculative theologue which desireth to give you courage, but even your brother in affliction."

A common idea of Knox is that he was of granite type in speech as in character—that he was of rude, uncultured speech. This is due to the prevalent ignorance of his books, which have been kept unpopular from the archaic spelling of the period, in which they are usually printed. It is rather a surprise to find a Roman Catholic writer taking him to task for forgetting "that auld plain Scots which his mother learned him," and for being Anglified in his style, speaking in the "southern" dialect. Knox was a man of wide culture for his time, knowing Latin, French, Italian and English as well as his mother tongue. In mind, too, in many ways his residence in England and France for so many years made him cosmopolitan and anything but the narrow, bigoted person so often imagined. His "History of the Reformation in Scotland" is full of vivid descriptions with streaks of humor and touches of grim irony and sometimes a tender pity. We can easily discern why he should be a great leader of men also from his grasp of principles and clear-cut judgments.

SAVED BY GREAT CONVICTIONS FROM NATURAL COWARDICE.

His courage was undoubted, with no truckling with the worldly-wise policy that is ever tremulous to be on the safe side. That type of man is always common enough, Scotland swarmed with them, but that type of man could not have saved Scotland. His courage was born of his faith, the sincerity of which is written on every word that he spoke. How the kid-glove critic can see, as he says he does, only boorishness and overbearing vulgarity in the famous interviews with Queen Mary, passes my comprehension. He had too much political sagacity and was too keen a reader of character ever to be deceived, as so many contemporaries were, as to Mary's character and purposes; and so neither her beauty nor her talents nor all her blandishments ever veiled his eyes. He was not in any case cut out for a pliant courtier with soft speeches, but he never really forgot that he was speaking to a queen, though nothing would make him move an inch from the principles of the reformation. The interviews that have been made so much of, certainly reveal his courage, the courage of deep thinking and of true principles. When the Queen asked him who he was that he should interfere in the affairs of Scotland, he replied with dignity, "Madam, a subject born within the same." The Regent Moray's words at his grave sum up this side of the man, "Here lies one who never feared the face of man." Yet Knox said on his deathbed that he was naturally a weak and fearful man; and in his letters we can trace some things that suggest that his estimate of himself was right. There is often a diffidence and a self-questioning we would hardly look for in so confident and brave a life. This makes his life work all the more remarkable as that of a man who in pursuit of a divine calling has hardened his brows like brass. Reading back into his history we see other things that confirm the self-judgment, as for example his reticence about his own religious life. He never tells us anything about his own spiritual experience, and how he came to the light; only on his deathbed he said, "Go read where I first cast anchor," and so, we are told, his wife read to him the seventeenth chapter of John's evangel. We know nothing of what storms he encountered and what spiritual straits he came through, before he at last cast anchor. His life and character, all that he was and did, are due to the fact that he cast anchor so securely in the deep things of God.—The Interior.

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Agents Wanted

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

❖ ❖

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing ou City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Oliv Sts., St. Louis.

YOUNG FOLKS

The Leading Paper for Christian Young People.

W. W. DOWLING, Editor.

Our Young Folks, A Large Sixteen Page, Illustrated Weekly, contains the Scripture Text with full Analytical, Illustrative and Practical Notes on the

Midweek Prayer-Meeting Topics

which have been in use in hundreds of the Leading Churches for the last seven years. The Best Prayer-Meetings are in those Churches where these Uniform Topics are followed and Our Young Folks used.

In addition to these Topics, the Journal contains full Expositions of the Sunday-school Lessons, the Y. P. S. C. E. Topics, and much other useful matter along all lines of Christian Work. No Minister, Teacher, Senior Pupil, Christian Endeavorer or other Christian Worker can afford to be without this Weekly.

☞ TERMS: Single copy, 75 cents per year; in clubs of five, 65 cents; in clubs of ten and upwards, 50 cents each per year.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., ST. LOUIS.

A Shoot of Goodness.

By Edith Eaton.

(Continued from last week.)

"Come in," I called in response to a peculiar low rapping, and Wan Loo, "childlike and bland," entered.

"What brings you here, young man?" was my greeting.

"I feel too bad to say."

He hesitated, the smile still on his face, provoking an answering smile on mine.

"You certainly don't look as if you felt bad," I remarked.

"I so shame. My brother make me so shame."

I sat back in my chair and waited for more.

"Mister Laymond, my blother not good man; he take money not his own."

"How do you know that your brother has taken money that does not belong to him?"

"Because I have ploof. Ho Suey, he say he put tlee hundled dollars in box seven months gone by. Four days now pass he go look in box and the tlee hundled dollars he not can see therein. All the man that work for Ho Suey, they not have any dollars—my blother only he have fifty dollars. I see him put fifty dollars in his sleeve. Now, where he get the fifty dollars? He poor man—no much pay; he keep me and he keep him. Just now I learn to work, and Ho Suey not pay me till I work without learn. I count the cost to keep me and my blother, and I cannot see how my blother can save fifty dollars. I cannot see how he save money to send to bling me to Amelica when he get but seventy-five cent for one day work. So for sure I conclude he steal. One, two, tlee night at twelve o'clock I go for to see him in his bunk, and what you think, I find him not there! One night I watch and wait till thes un it begin to make light—then I see my blother come in look much weary. He fall down on his bunk and sleep tight. I not tell him I see him, but I tell you, for to show that I have ploof that he go out at night to be thief."

"To whom besides myself have you told this tale?" I sternly demanded.

"Now that I come to speak to you concerning my blother, I be velly solly my blother be thief. I velly much shame; but I go to Sunday-school and learn that it is not well to hide the evil deed of the evil man, so I go tell Ho Suey and my Sunday-school teacher what my blother do. My Sunday-school teacher, she say, maybe my blother be thief and maybe not, and not say no more about it till she speak to him, and maybe his heart turn and he confess and bling the money back. She says she velly solly for me, also she velly solly when I say to her that I tell Ho Suey, and that Ho Suey have my blother allest and put him into plison."

"And you mean to say that your brother is in prison because of what you have said?"

"I not tell what not be true. It is true, I say what put my blother into prison, but what for then my blother he have money he not can 'count for, and how you think he make enough to bling me to Amelica if he not steal some?"

Loo's little eyes looked straight into mine, and the pathetic truth was borne in upon me that a loving, unselfish nature had been misunderstood by a shallow one, a great heart had come to grief through a small one.

When Wan Lin was dismissed from custody, Ho Suey's money having been found where he had placed it, but not where he had made the mistake of thinking it should be, Wan Loo smiled a relieved smile.

"I happy my blother not found guilty," he said to me; then added in an aggrieved tone, "But he do not light not to tell me he work at night. What for he keep it from me?"

No thought that his brother had kept this knowledge from him out of kindness; no thought that his suspicions of that brother had not done him credit, crossed his complacent mind. Indeed, when his teacher came over to shake hands with Wan Lin, Loo, with the air of a martyr, said:

"Teacher, you teach, no matter how hard, the Chinaman must do his duty. My duty make me suffer much; but I do it. Now I satisfy."

"But I am not," replied Miss Bagg. "What you need to help you to see your duty rightly is a changed heart. The Bible, Loo, says that 'charity thinketh no evil.'"

Whilst they were talking, Wan Lin stood by silent, a stricken look in his eyes. I could see that his brother's suspicions had hurt him far more than any verdict of "Guilty" from strangers' lips could have done.

* * * * * * * *

About a year after the above events took place, I was retuning from a trip to Alaska. It was about three o'clock in the morning. The steward had called me early, so that I might have an opportunity to see the Columbia glacier and also the capturing of small icebergs by some of the crew of the steamer. A small boat was lowered over the vessel's side and, manned by three hardy sailors, made towards the glacier whose gleaming mass of ice lay piled between the mountains. Its summit was invisible, being enveloped in the mists of the early morning, but where the edge pushed out and overhung the water, we coud see the pieces of ice breaking off and floating away as miniature icebergs. It was in pursuit of some of these that the men from the "Excelsior" were venturing so early upon the bitter waters, and it was great sport—the capturing of those wonderful green and white creations of the "ice king." The tiny boat rolled on the waves, the captain on the bridge of the "Excelsior" shouted his orders through the mate. One man lurched forward with a long-handled hatchet, and after several efforts thought he had a prize. But it was not to be. The slippery thing he had attached got away from him and calmly floated away, aggravatingly cool and serene. Not to be daunted, he tried another and another, and perseverance and courage were at last rewarded. The task of hauling the ice into the hold was the next experience. It was almost as lively after capture as before, and seeing that it wieghed a thousand pounds or more and was almost invulnerable to blows, one man in order to get it into better position for the hauling net, jumped upon it, while holding with his hands the side of the boat. This unfair proceeding the captured ice resented, and rolled so rebelliously that the man with some difficulty was drawn, dripping wet, by his companion into the almost submerged boat. However, the ropes of the hauling net were at last adjusted and knotted, and the machinery set to work, the prize secured, and I was just turning into my berth, secure in the con-

"THE ONLY WAY."
ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.
4—PERFECT TRAINS—4
MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.
CHICAGO & ALTON RY.
Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to
D. BOWES, ASST. GEN'L PASS. AGENT, ST. LOUIS, MO.

For Over 60 Years
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.
An Old and Well-tried Remedy

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.
SEASON 1905.
HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.
ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily to May 15th, also Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.
WEST BADEN SPRINGS, IND.
Decoration Day. One fare for the round trip to points within radius of 150 miles. Tickets will be sold May 29-30. Return limit May 31st.
ASBURY PARK, N. J.
National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.
DENVER, COLO.
National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.
National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.
National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.
BALTIMORE, MD.
United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.
For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—
F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

sciousness that there would be ice cream for dinner that day, when I heard a familiar voice outside my deck stateroom, saying:

"I think that man that go into the water, he be very damp."

"Wan Lin!" I exclaimed, with my head out of the port hole.

And Wan Lin it surely was. There he stood beside the mate, looking better in health than I had ever seen him before, and with a bright and cheerful expression on his countenance. He was as glad and surprised to see me as I him, and I learned that he, with a number of his countrymen, who had finished their season's work at one of the coast canneries not far from Valdez, had been taken onto the steamer during the night. I inquired after his brother, and was told that he, Wan Lin, had spent his last saved dollar in sending that young man to New York, where a merchant uncle had promised to bring him up in his buisness, Wan Loo having become discontented with the humble life they were living in Seattle.

Hearing this, I could not refrain from remarking that it seemed that all the pretty plans he had made for his brother and himself had failed, which he quietly acknowledged to be true.

"How then is it," I questioned, "that you are not altogether cast down and embittered by disappointment? If it had not been for what your brother cost you, you might now be an independent Chinaman. As it is, you have nothing but what you earn from day to day. And worse—your sacrifice has not even been appreciated, and you receive no thanks therefor."

Wan looked over the sea as if to find an answer there.

"Tell me, Wan," I persisted, "the secret of your contentment."

Wan turned his eyes upon me.

"I think you not quite understand, Mr. Laymond," said he. "All tlue what you say about my blother, and it much hurt my heart that he not can feel any thankyou to me; but he not can help be him—and some day perhaps he be not him, and undelstand diffelent. But now, see, the first leason I bling him out—the first leason is not for him to help me and to be with me and to give thank unto me. The first leason is that it be the lite thing to do—to bling my blother to this country. Now, when I do what I think be light thing to help my blother—no matter what tubble come—my mind it be at ease and content."

As I turned my head on my pillow a few minutes later, there came to my remembrance Carlyle's noble words:

"It is a calumny on men to say that they are aroused to heroic action by ease, hope of pleasure, recompense—sugar plums of any kind—in this world or the next. In the meanest mortal there lies something nobler. Difficulty, abnegation, martyrdom, are the allurements that act on the heart of man."—The Interior.

❀ ❀

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

Every Large City in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory is Located on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.

This is a reason why you should travel and ship your freight via "The Katy" to Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Waco, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Shawnee, South McAlester and Muskogee.

Particulars about rates, time of trains, business chances in the Southwest or any other information you want will be cheerfully furnished on request.

GEORGE MORTON, General Passenger and Ticket Agent.
W. B. GROSECLOSE, General Freight Agent.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE

Two Trains Daily from each city

Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars

For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

What You Put In It.

Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of the Battle Creek sanitarium, has been making a unique investigation for the last two years, one never before undertaken. The doctor has made an examination of 16,000 stomachs for the purpose of determining the relations of food to indigestion. He took the different kinds of stomach germs, placed them in different kinds of foods, put them in tubes and watched the results. The two important facts discovered were: That the germs that infest the stomach could not be made to grow in fruit juice; that fruit juice could not support germ life. No germs could be found alive in the juices after a few hours. They would grow in the extract of grains, though not very vigorously, but in beef tea the most deadly and virulent germs flourished luxuriantly. The fact that meat furnishes good nourishment for bacteria which cannot live in fruit juice, makes a strong argument for the more liberal use of fruits as a diet in order to insure perfect health.

WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

BEST THING ON WHEELS.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS
ON THE
Henderson Route
(ALL TRAINS)
BETWEEN
ST. LOUIS
LOUISVILLE
AND KENTUCKY POINTS.
SPECIAL RATES.
One-Way Colonist
AND
Round-Trip Homeseekers

When you travel, why not be comfortable? The up-to-date equipment, the safe and convenient train schedules offered by the HENDERSON ROUTE and the direct connections made in St. Louis Union Station with all trains from the West and Southwest solves the problem.

If you contemplate a trip, take the time to write us.

Insist on your ticket reading via St. Louis and the Henderson Route. This will insure you comfort in travel.

ASK US FOR RATES.

F. G. CUNNINGHAM, - - T. P. Agt.
W. C. LINDSAY, - - - G. Agent.
206 N. Broadway, ST. LOUIS.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD NIGHT.

As soon as they had stepped down from the front walk into the yard, Mr. Woodney knew the way as well as anybody. He told Mace to carry the gasoline to the front door while he conducted the blacksmith and the strange boy to the back parlor. Throwing open the door, he cordially invited them to enter; but as the room was intensely dark Worth Acre hesitated. "Do you mind if I strike a match?" he asked.

"Isn't the lamp here?" exclaimed Mr. Woodney. "Certainly, strike a match, and we will go right out to the kitchen. You will excuse the wild condition of everything, remembering that we have just moved and can't find half our things. There is only one lamp unearthed so far. Let us go to it."

Mr. Acre lit his match and holding it above his head followed through the middle room into the kitchen. By this time, Mace had warned the others of the blacksmith's coming, and old Mrs. Woodney had in her teeth, while a lofty and rather severe expression seemed to challenge any one to say she had ever had them out. Mr. Woodney introduced the blacksmith. "Come right in," said Mrs. Woodney, "there is only one lamp and we must rally around it wherever it is."

"Let me fill your stove," said Worth Acre. He took the gasoline from her and poured it into the little tank. "Now, shall I light it?" He pushed the rod to the left and waited till there was a strong odor of gasoline in the room, then lit the escaped fluid in order to generate the gas. A great blaze sprang up, and all stood around it expectantly, while their faces were brought out in ruddy tints against the kitchen background. "It always seems so friendly," remarked Mr. Worth Acre, "when you have somebody with you to watch a blaze. There's nothing like it. You see it dance, and your heart feels like dancing, too—don't you know what I mean?" Then he stopped abruptly, remembering that Mr. Woodney was blind and could not see the blaze.

"Never mind me," said Mr. Woodney who understood his sudden silence, "I can smell it as well as the best of you." The blacksmith laughed and laid his heavy hand upon the other's shoulder. "You've got to come down to Horseshoe House, and right away! There's an old gentleman there—my grandfather—that I'd like for you to see. He's a remarkably preserved old gentleman—ninety-eight; think of it! Ninety-eight, sir, and walks as spry as I do, and eats his three meals a day. There's no reason why he shouldn't live to be a hundred and ten."

"Remarkable!" cried Mr. Woodney. "Remarkable! Few of us can hope to reach that age and preserve a sound mind and body."

"I should think so!" cried the blacksmith. "Grandpa's mind is as strong as his body. It's on a wrong track, but it's swift traveler."

"Mr. Acre," said old Mrs. Woodney, "are you any kin to the Kentucky Acres—old Colonel Acre, that fought with Morgan, or Senator Acre that lived in Lexington?"

"I guess not," said Mr. Worth Acre. "I think my family has just got started, for I never heard of any of them doing anything much, one way or another."

The blacksmith spoke humorously, but the old lady did not consider this a fit subject for jest. "The Kentucky Acres," she remarked, "were very fine people. One of them married a Woodney."

"Well, we are just Missouri Acres," the other answered, "so you won't expect to find the best grade of bluegrass in our family."

"We may expect," said Mr. Woodney, "to discover very rich ore, at all events; and I believe it is pretty near the surface."

At this unexpected turn, Mr. Worth Acre burst out into a roar of laughter and clapped the other upon the back. "You must certainly come to Horseshoe House!" he cried. All this time he had been secretly examining the ragged little musician, who stood apart from the family. The flaring light had brought out distinctly the thin form and face, the weary droop of the arms, the sad expression about the mouth. It had shown the golden brown eyes turning from one speaker to the other, scarcely following the conversation, but wistfully reading the expressions of kindliness which were painted there. When the others smiled, and when the blacksmith laughed, the boy remained grave, even melancholy, as if the sight of their good humor reminded him of the void in his own life. In spite of his rags and his untidy condition, there was a spiritual look upon the thin, long face, oddly out of keeping with the unkempt hair and soiled cheeks and hands. Moreover, his quaint attitude, always erect with bare heels together like a little soldier waiting for misfortune to cry, "Forward!" and the sensitive little chin, and the high, dreamy forehead, all rendered him very different from the ordinary waif. Worth Acre saw all this, and a fellow feeling for the wanderer grew strong within his great breast. The light died out and the blue blaze of the stove settled to steady work. In the silence that followed, the attention of all was turned upon the boy.

"I think," said Mrs. Woodney, "that we will first follow Mr. Dick's suggestion when David Copperfield ran away to his aunt Betsy."

"My dear," objected her husband, "as the young man does not expect to stay here, it would be too great a liberty to make the suggestion."

"Let's feed him first," said Mr. Acre; "luxuries after necessities." Mrs. Woodney was surprised and pleased to find that the blacksmith understood her allusion. The boy did not understand, and an anxious expression came upon his face. "Were you wanting me to play first, before supper?" he asked timidly.

"My young friend," said the blacksmith, "wouldn't you be more comfortable if you washed before you eat?" The boy turned scarlet and his lips quivered. "If you please," he whispered.

"Ha!" cried the blacksmith. "I was sure there was right stuff in the lad. Come over here into the corner and I'll superintend the affair." Mrs. Woodney sliced up the boiled potatoes and put them on to fry; then, mixing the cornmeal with the water which she had heated, she spread out a hoecake on the griddle. Mace cleared away the books which always swarmed upon the table after mealtime, as if they had been so many huge flies looking for crumbs. She put out two plates, hoping Mr. Worth Acre would eat with the boy. She was very much pleased with the bachelor, not only on account of the romance she had woven about him and Miss Lizzie Day, but on account of his open, jovial disposition. Old Mrs. Woodney, who had never been able to impress the family with the true dignity of their origin, looked with discontent upon the beggar—thus she regarded the lad washing himself in the corner, while the towering form of the blacksmith interposed itself between him and the Woodneys. Her sharp ear caught gruff whisperings from the blacksmith to this effect: "A little more on this ear, my lad. . . Bear heavier, son. . . Soap—more soap, old man."

"The bread is now done," called Mrs. Woodney at last, "and the potatoes are burnt, so supper is ready."

"Give me that rag," said Mr. Acre to the boy. "I don't see how you managed to get over so much territory and accomplish so little. Close your eyes, old man; I'll fix you." He took the wanderer's head in his powerful arm and tucked it against his breast, then with the other hand laid on so vigorously and to such purpose that the youth writhed and the man panted. "There! Now we are ready." They came forward, the lad polished till he shone, and the other in a state of fatigue. "But give me a horse to shoe!" he exclaimed. "Never mind, son," clapping the stranger upon the back, "you and I will eat with better appetites!"

"Now I take that extremely neighborly of you, to eat with the boy!" cried Mr. Woodney. The musician and the bachelor seated themselves. There was for a moment an awkward silence, then the man bowed his head and said quite simply, "May some of the strength derived from this food be used in Thy service, Our Father." After that there was a deeper pause, then the blacksmith said, "Now, Mr. Woodney, you sit down here, even if you can't eat, and Mace, here's a chair at the head."

"Now you mustn't mind me," said Mrs.

Individual Communion Cups
Why permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? Individual Communion Cups are sanitary. Let us send you a list of nearly 3,000 churches where they are in use. Send for Free Book.
We offer a Trial Outfit free to any church.
Sanitary Communion Outfit Co. 15th St. Rochester, N.Y.

NORTHFIELD HYMNAL
By Geo. C. Stebbins.
30c. a copy, postpaid. $25 per 100.
Returnable Sample free to Pastors, etc.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., Chicago-New York

WONDERFUL STOVE—BIG MONEY MAKER!
BURNS 90% AIR—ONLY 10% OIL-GAS. 7200 sold one month. Customers delighted with Harrison Valveless Oil-gas Stove. Splendid for cooking; also heating rooms, stores, offices, etc., with Radiator Attch. No wick, dirt, or ashes—no coal bills or drudgery—cheap, safe fuel, 15c to 30c a week should furnish fuel-gas for cooking for small family. Easily operated — absolutely safe—all sizes, $3 up. Write—Catalog FREE and Special Prices. AGENTS WANTED—$40 Weekly. Address World Mfg. Co., 5790 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Woodney who, as a last act, had put her dishwater on to heat. Book in hand, she seated herself where the lamplight could fall upon the page. "Go on talking—it never disturbs me," she assured them, "and if anything important develops, just call my name." Old Mrs. Woodney, accepting the inevitable, got her knitting, and her needles clicked briskly.

"Now, my lad," said the blacksmith, "your age, if you please, your name and your occupation!"

"I am sixteen," said the stranger shyly. "My name is Arthur Lowell."

"I was sixteen—just last week," said Mace.

"So was I," said Arthur, looking up at her wonderingly. The blacksmith, who was not hungry, slowly minced at the burnt potatoes.

"Where are your parents, my lad?" he asked.

"Dead. There is nobody—" The boy waved his hand expressively, and ate with an appetite. "I was in an orphan home," he continued, "till I was eight. Then I was taken into a home in Wisconsin. I learned music there. Oh—" He laid down his knife and fork and put his hands together ecstatically. "It was like heaven, all the time! Music—music, from morning till night—the piano—the violin—duets—the orchestra—concerts—two years! Then they could not keep me any longer because they were so very poor. Oh, so very poor! I was ten, then."

He resumed his eating. "Very well," said Mr. Acre, gently, "then what happened?"

"Nobody knew what to do with me!" said Arthur simply. "I was kept at one house and another in the town till a place might be found. So I went back to the orphan home. But they didn't want me to play my violin there. It disturbed the sick children, and kept others from studying. It was no place for me. I went away."

"Where did you go?"

"Oh, I just went out into the world."

"Dear me!" cried old Mrs. Woodney. "Do you mean that you ran away?"

"They could not have me playing my violin there," Arthur explained. "They were very kind to me, but I disturbed them. So I left one night. I had a little money, and I got on the cars and rode as long as the money lasted."

"Weren't you afraid?" asked Mace, deeply interested.

"Geraldine," called her husband, "I think you'd better be listening."

"What is it?" asked Mace's mother, holding the last word with her finger, and peeping over the page.

"I was not afraid," said the youth, "for I carried my violin with me, and I am never lonesome with it. A farmer heard me playing on the street in Keokuk and he liked me, and I liked him, and went to live with him. He was a very kind man, and I lived there till he had to sell his farm to pay off the mortgage."

"Ah," said Mr. Woodney, "poor man! Do you know what has become of him?"

"No, but when I am grown I will find him, and live with him, and play for him all the time."

"You had much better buy him his farm back," suggested old Mrs. Woodney.

"Of course I will do that," returned Arthur. "I didn't think it was worth while to say I'd do that. You can't think how he loved to hear me play! He was all alone but for me. His wife had died and his three daughters, one after the other, as soon as they were grown. He used to say my violin was like their voices. Every evening when the work was done he sat till bedtime, in the dark, while I played. So when the mortgage had to be paid, and there was nothing to be done, oh, nothing at all—" cried Arthur, laying down his knife and fork and looking at Mr. Worth Acre. Then he added impulsively, "I wish you had been there, sir!"

"Well, never you mind!" cried the blacksmith, highly gratified by this unconscious compliment, "I'm here, at any rate, I assure you of that!"

"So he would have sent me back to that orphan home, where they were so kind to me, and where there were so many I loved—the matron and the others. But I couldn't go there where they wouldn't let me play. Because I have to play, you know," he added, looking appealingly toward old Mrs. Woodney.

"So you ran off again?" spoke up that lady in an inflexible voice.

"I left," said Arthur. "But I explained to him in a letter. I was fourteen, then. So I reached Galesburg. I found work in a store. I despise stores. The man was kind to me and I slept in the store. A few months ago he married, and then I went to their house to sleep. His wife does not like music and she could not bear for me to play. There were six weeks that I never got out my bow."

"Those six weeks, now," said Mr. Worth Acre, "did you find yourself thinking about your tunes? Did you want to play as bad at the end of them as at the beginning?" He gazed upon Arthur with an eye of scientific curiosity.

"The tunes just crowded in my brain," said Arthur, "till I felt like I must let them out or they would smother me. I tried as hard as I could to keep them in, but I was so miserable, it didn't seem worth while to keep on trying. So I—I just left and came here."

"And where are you going, Arthur?" asked Mr. Woodney gently. "You are too young to be roaming the world at this rate."

"I do not care to live," said the boy, "if I can't have my music, so I'll just keep going and going till I reach a place where I may play. Sometimes during this last trip it looked like there was no place in the world for me. I nearly starved once." He lifted his face and cried out triumphantly, "But I just played anyway!"

"For my part," said old Mrs. Woodney, "I think there are many things more to the purpose than fiddling. Do you not want to get an education, child? And do you think it grateful always to be running away from the people who are kind to you? You know there is work in the world to be done; you see others toiling; don't you think you have a part to do? Suppose all of us went around with fiddles in our hands—who'd do the cooking and plowing and scrubbing and—and blacksmithing? Now, you just imagine me," she cried, warming up with her theme, "with a fiddle tucked under my chin, strolling about the country looking for a place to play because my family didn't like music!"

Mr. Worth Acre, who had been listening to this lecture with a bright, intelligent eye, was so amused by the picture conjured up by old Mrs. Woodney, and saw so vividly the old lady setting forth with her imaginary violin, that he found himself upon the eve of boisterous laughter. The consciousness that she might take an expression of mirth in ill part restrained him till his face purpled. He pressed his lips together, while his cheeks began to swell, and his body to shake. Mace, seeing his agony, began to laugh, and her father, who of course saw nothing, was inclined to think her disrespectful to her grandmother. The next moment Mr. Worth Acre, pushed over the verge of the precipice by the breath of Mace's rippling tones, burst into an explosive peal which he sokght in vain to check. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" he cried between the peals, the tears showing in his eyes. "I don't know what's the matter, I'm sure. . . . Mace, it's your fault, and you know it!"

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Woodney, again deserting the page of her novel. Old Mrs. Woodney, who had expressed her mind, and who thought the laughter a tribute to her graphic description, began to laugh too, which so astonished and pleased the blacksmith that his peals were redoubled. Mrs. Geraldine began to laugh from sympathy, and the fact that she did not know what she was laughing about, added the crown to the blacksmith's merriment. The room rang with his loud "Ha! ha! ha!" and before he could stop, all were in a delightful frame of mind, pleased with each other and with themselves. The little musician did not know what to make of such high spirits, and he remained grave, thinking they were laughing at him, but content for them to laugh, so long as he could read sympathetic kindness upon their faces.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

CANCER CURED

WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.

Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address

DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

❀ ❀

A Reliable Heart Cure.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison,	President
W. W. Dowling,	Vice-President
W. D. Cree,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann,	General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Not to have a Home Department now is to be "way back." We have all the needed equipment and gladly answer questions.

Do you need a good Sunday-school map for either class or school? We have them on either or both the Testaments at prices from $1.00 to $10.

The Attendance and Offering Cards, on which spaces are punched for punctuality and amount, are in good demand at one cent each. Try them.

All ministers are given 25 per cent off on our own publications, whether they take stock or not, and we have the books of "our brotherhood."

The circulation of the Christian-Evangelist is moving right along at a rate that indicates appreciation of the excellent work it does for our homes and the cause of Christ.

Are you using neat baskets in taking your morning and evening offerings, or are you still "passing the hat"? We have a full supply of baskets from 30 cents up, not prepaid.

That 128 page catalogue gives you a full list and description of our new stock of Reward Cards, which are being so generally used by "down to date" superintendents and teachers.

We hope to have within a few days a good supply of circulars with a full explanation of the Christian Workers' New Testament. This excellent work sells at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25.

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

We are hurrying "Gloria in Excelsis," but it must be the very best Church Hymnal on the market, so we are hastening to do the work right and are booking all inquiries for sample pages, which will be sent to those requesting them as soon as possible.

More Y. P. S. C. E. supplies have gone out this spring than in years, manifesting quite an activity for a "craze" that some brethren thought, twenty years ago, would "soon die out." Model constitutions, topic cards, pledge cards and all are moving as if the young people meant business for the Master and betterment for themselves. Write us for samples and prices.

One of the best books in stock is not appreciated because the title does not commend it to you, namely, "Whether Common or Not." It is full of the best of things, put in such humorous manner as holds the interest throughout. It sells for $1, but we will send out a few at 75 cents that you may test our judgment of a most interesting and humorous and beneficial work.

Have you gotten that Cradle Roll? We have all the supplies at prices that will surprise you; for we allow no one to undersell us.

We have just from the press a very pretty "Certificate of Graduation" from the primary to the main school at 50 cents per dozen.

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or Scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

The advance orders for J. H. Garrison's new book on the Holy Spirit are coming in quite freely and will be given the preference in sending out this excellent work. Price $1.00.

We have an excellent cantata for Children's Day, "The First Children's Day," and the few copies in stock will be sent out at 35 cents each, or $3.00 per dozen, postpaid. This is one of W. L. Mason's best. No samples.

Have you tried the Lesson Commentary? One of the best commentaries on the International Bible-school Lessons, and in fine cloth binding at only $1, but trial orders will be filled at 75 cents, letting you see its merits for yourself. Supply is limited.

We have a cloth bound commentary on the Gospel of Matthew, put out by the Oxford University press, prepared by Peloubet, priced at $1.25, which we will sell for 50 cents while they last, but you'll "have to hurry," for such a book by that author will not drag.

Dr Price's
CREAM BAKING POWDER

Improves the flavor and adds to the healthfulness of the food.

"The Christian's Use of the Tithe System" is a good pamphlet to introduce where you want a "revival" of faithfulness in meeting our obligations to the Lord, as many cheerfully testify after using them. They are mailed at three cents each, 25 cents per dozen, $1.50 per 100.

Have you a Glass Birthday Globe in use in your school, or are you still trying to get along as "our fathers did"? The glass enables the children to see the pennies as they are dropped in, and it is a constant reminder of the goodness of the Lord in giving them the many pleasant and happy birthdays and of our obligations to him. We have them in three sizes at 35 cents, 50 cents and $1.35 postpaid; the last being very handsome and so protected as to guarantee it against breakage.

Burlington Route

OFFICIAL ROUTE
—TO—
CALIFORNIA

"Christian-Evangelist" Special
LEAVING ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY
—AUGUST 9th, 1905.—

FOR PARTICULARS AND RESERVATIONS WRITE
G. A. HOFFMANN, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis,
—OR—
J. G. DELAPLAINE, Broadway & Olive, St. Louis.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 21. May 25, 1905. $1.50 A Year

NEVER was the Church, in any age, confronted with greater tasks than the Church of to-day. These tasks may be broadly stated as the evangelization of the heathen world, and the Christianization of the civilization of professedly Christian lands. This involves the Christianization of our business, of our politics, of our laws and institutions, of our educational processes, of our system of preventing crime and of punishing criminals, and all that goes to make up the private and public life of a people. These tasks, in which the Church must at least lead if they are ever to be accomplished, require at least two things on the part of the church, namely: a deeper spiritual life which shall bring it into closer fellowship with God, and the healing of its divisions, so as to present a united front against the forces of evil. The first of these is essential to the realization of the other. We can never have the unification of a divided Church until it gets a clearer vision and a stronger grasp of spiritual realities, and rises out of the region of the carnal into a higher faith and a purer worship. And never can the Church achieve the victory over the world and accomplish its sublime mission until it closes up its divided ranks.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER,
W. DURBAN, } Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. GARRISON.

CONTENTS.

CURRENT EVENTS 659

EDITORIAL:
- The Solution Not Accepted 661
- A Peep Into Hoosierdom 661
- Union Among Baptists 662
- Questions and Answers 662
- Editor's Easy Chair 663

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLES:
- The Hypnotist Factor in Revivalism. William Durban 664
- A Practical Problem. S. C. Slayton 665
- As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 666
- Young Men and the Ministry. E. H. Kellar 667
- What We Need. Ernest Mobley 667
- The Blind and the Ditch. J. S. Hughes 668

OUR BUDGET 669
NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS 674
EVANGELISTIC 677
MARRIAGES, OBITUARIES 679
MIDWEEK PRAYER-MEETING 680
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR 680
SUNDAY-SCHOOL 681
PEOPLE'S FORUM 682
FAMILY CIRCLE 682
Woman's Missions and Woman's Clubs. 683
WITH THE CHILDREN 686

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO,
NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

A Superb New Church Hymnal

A CREDIT TO THE CHURCH

More Than 600 Pages
—CONTAINING—
Orders of Service, Opening Sentences, Invocations, Responsive Readings and
Over 800 Standard Hymns, Spiritual Songs and Anthems.
One Inch Thick, Six and One-Fourth Inches Wide and Eight and Three-Fourths Inches Long.
A Variety of Bindings.
Also an Abridged Edition, about one-half size.
Strictly First Class in Both Music and Workmanship.

AN UPLIFT TO THE SERVICES

Gloria in Excelsis

THE VERY BEST OF SACRED MUSIC

EDITED BY
20th CENTURY COMMITTEE.

F. D. Power
S. M. Cooper
B. A. Jenkins
B. J. Radford
W. F. Richardson
S. T. Willis
A. B. Philputt
A. C. Smither
J. H. Garrison
T. E. Cramblett
C. C. Rowlison
D. R. Dungan
H. O. Breeden
A. W. Conner
E. B. Wakefield
O. W. Stewart
B. B. Tyler
W. J. Russell
E. V. Zollars
A. M. Harvuot
J. V. Coombs
W. E. M. Hackleman

Sample Pages & Prices of the Hymnal sent upon request

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF SPIRITUAL SONGS

PUBLISHED BY
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. May 25, 1905 No. 21

Current Events.

Philadelphia's Gas Scandal.

The city council of Philadelphia, protected from a mob of indignant citizens by an encircling guard of policemen with drawn revolvers, passed the "gas steal" bill, leasing the municipal gas plant for seventy-five years for $25,000,000, and permitting the company meanwhile to charge an unreasonably high rate for gas. Mayor Weaver is expected to veto the bill and, when it has been passed over his veto, to lead the fight against it in the courts. The lease on these unfavorable terms was voted through although a banking company, representing investors, offered to give the city $20,000,000 payable in 1907, an annual rental of $1,250,000 during the life of the lease, 33 1-3 per cent of the profits during the first ten years and 50 per cent thereafter, the city to have one-third representation in the management, and the property to revert to the city at the expiration of the lease. The choice of the other proposition can mean only that the council was bought, and this may be proved in the courts. Meanwhile the city has been in a fever of excitement, and the indignation has almost reached the point of riot and lynching.

⁂

The Strike.

At the time of writing (Saturday) the Chicago strike seems upon the verge of settlement. President Shea representing the teamsters and Attorney Mayer representing the employers have agreed upon peace terms, and it only remains for these to be ratified by the union, as there is every prospect that they will be. The question of delivery to boycotted firms will be arbitrated and the employers will take back union men who have not violated the law or their agreements. The influence of Mr. Gompers, who spent most of the week in Chicago, wins a the right direction, as it nearly always is. Mr. Shea's utterances have been of an irresponsible and incendiary character and have tended to stir up the worst passions of the strikers. There was need of every sobering influence. One of the most painful incidents of the strike was the unearthing of a regime of systematic homicide under the auspices of one of the unions. Under pressure of a police examination following the murder of a non-union man, Carlstrom, a confession was made by Charles Casey, business agent, and H. J. Newman, secretary of the Carriage and Wagon Workers' local union No. 4, who admitted hiring men to do the deed. One of the men who did the "slugging" and who received $15 for it has also confessed. Inspector Lavin, whose investigation revealed these facts, declares that a number of similar cases have been discovered, involving various unions. The details are not yet ready for publication and the investigation is being pushed. It is impossible to doubt that this employment of hired assassins is strongly disapproved by the great body of union men. The vast majority of them are law-abiding men, except when a strike is involved, and most of them are capable of some degree of self-control under wise leadership even then. A great many of them believe in mob procedure, intimidation and violence and assert, as Mr. Shea says, "the right to attack strikebreakers wherever found." But they do not believe in paying thugs to murder the people whom they do not like. There is grave danger that the odium of this awful discovery will attach to the innocent as well as the guilty, and it is up to the unions to disclaim, by word and deed, any sympathy with those who, as the ostensible friends of labor or as its paid agents, resort to violent deeds or give counsel of violence.

⁂

Incorporation of Unions.

Mr. T. V. Powderly, former grand master of the Knights of Labor, urges the incorporation of the labor unions. The suggestion was made in a speech before the national gathering of the Switchmen's Union last week. For many years one standing accusation against the unions has been that they were afraid to make themselves accountable before the law by filing articles of incorporation. A union cannot sue or be sued. Their individual members can sue the corporations by which they are employed for breach of contract or other cause, but a union cannot be legally compelled to abide by its contracts. There have been legal decisions to the contrary in England within the past year, but in this country the law does not recognize the unions. The late Senator Hanna, himself a large employer of labor, asserted not long before his death that he thought the unions could be safely trusted to abide by their contracts and that incorporation was unnecessary, but this flattering opinion is not shared by all capitalists. Mr. Powderly thinks it would help the unions by removing this reproach, and that it would do no harm because the individuals would not be liable any more than they are now. To our mind, the progress of consolidation, which has already given us the union, must give some sort of organization of labor with which employers can deal in a business way. Corporate capital must be matched by corporate labor, both alike amenable to the laws in such a way that contracts shall be legally enforceable. It is no distrust of labor to say this. Business men who make contracts with other perfectly honorable business men, make them legally binding and the relations of labor and capital must be put on the same basis. Mr. Powderly says: "The labor question is never to be settled so long as one man works for another." That would be to make the problem hopeless, for it would mean either a socialistic state in which every man would be an employe or a return to a state of industrial anarchy in which no man is an employe.

⁂

A Book on Witchcraft.

Among the charges brought against a minister in the district court of the Evangelical Synod in Indiana was one that would hardly be expected to have weight in this day. It was a curiously elaborate and varied set of accusations upon which Rev. William Schulz was tried, convicted and dismissed from the ministry. They included "fraud in making a will and being appointed administrator of his mother-in-law's estate, leaving $300 unaccounted for; swindles in horse trading; manufacturing lies to suit his purpose; quarrel with neighbors; failure to keep within the teaching of the church; telling immoral stories; possessing a book on witchcraft; calumniating other pastors of the synod; gross neglect of pastoral duties; devoting too much time to business outside of the pastorate and doing violence and threatening himself and others with bodily harm." As every one of these charges seems to have been proven to the satisfaction of the court evidently the minister can have no complaint at being regarded as unworthy of his high calling. But one wonders what the "possession of a book on witchcraft" has to do with the case. We remember reading of the days when some one's mother's great-grandmother was strangled on Witch Hill, with a text from the Old Testament for her halter, to quote Holmes. But though it has been computed that as many as nine million of people have suffered death since the famous bull of Pope Innocent one rather wonders why the possession of a book on the subject should be more criminal in these days than possessing a copy of the celebrated Summis Desiderantes.

◆

Publicity and Morals.

It would be well if our legislatures would turn their attention to a consideration of the question as to whether it be not advisable to prohibit by law the exploitation of certain kinds of sensationalism in the public press. The case of Nan Patterson is in point. If that woman was guilty, she is a common murderess; if she was not guilty of the shooting, for her own sake and that of her sex, the less publicity the better. The idea of "featuring" a woman of her character before the public is debasing, is not justified by the demand for "news" and ought to make any newspaper man lose his own self-respect. Conditions are such, however, that a conscienceless editor can often dissenimate a lot of dirty stuff under the guise of news. But printing the news and "featuring" a wrongdoer are two different things. The former may be a powerful deterrent from evil practices; the latter practice does a great deal of actual harm.

◆

Later Strike Developments.

Since the paragraph elsewhere on strikes was written there came a hitch in the proceedings which threatened to widen the strike instead of ending it. The attorney for the employers was premature in his announcement of the settlement, and also unwise, we think, in the spirit in which the announcement was made. The stumbling-block in the negotiations was the statement by the express companies that they would not receive back, under any consideration, any of their striking drivers. All the other terms submitted were satisfactory. On learning of this there was a decision on the part of the strikers to continue the strike, and it looked as if it might take on larger dimensions than heretofore. In view of this fact, Sheriff Barrett and Mayor Dunne both expressed their purpose to use troops promptly, if necessary, in preventing violence, and maintaining order. At this writing, however, Tuesday morning, as we go to press, there is a prospect that agreement may be reached. The express companies have now declared that while they would not re-employ any of their former drivers, they had no intention of keeping a "blacklist" and any driver who could secure a position in any other company than that in which he was employed, had the privilege of doing so. It is believed that this opens up the way of settlement, and both President Shea, of the teamsters' union, and Attorney Mayer for the employers have expressed their opinion that a settlement is in sight. We trust that this will prove to be true.

◆

The Transvaal Constitution.

The British Crown has given a new constitution to the Transvaal which, while it will doubtless not be all that the burghers want, is perhaps as much as a conquered people could expect so soon after the war. The Transvaal, under this constitution, is to be divided into from 30 to 35 equal electoral districts, the size of each constituency being determined by the number of electors, not by the population. The London Economist thus summarizes the main features of the constitution:

> The Transvaal is to have a legislative assembly of from 30 to 35 elected members, with from six to nine official members nominated by the Crown, and holding their seats during pleasure. The persons qualified to vote for these elected members will be all male white British subjects who: (1) have been "enrolled on the latest list of burghers of the late South African republic, and entitled to vote for members of the First Volksraad"; or (2) are occupiers of premises of the value of £100, or of the annual value of £10; or (3) are in receipt of salary or wages bona fide earned within the colony of £100 a year. It will be seen that as regards the Dutch this is a very liberal measure. The ex-burghers of the South African republic are allowed to exercise the franchise without pecuniary qualification, in order to "confirm in their electoral privileges a class which the misfortunes of war have, it is hoped, only temporarily impoverished."

But the point which the burghers will protest against is that while the powers of the legislative assembly will include the making of laws, it will not be lawful for it to appropriate any of the colonial revenue or to impose any rate, tax, or duty unless it has been recommended by a message from the lieutenant-governor. If the assembly could vote or refuse taxes it would then have the powers of a self governing colony, which the King's ministers will not yet concede.

◆

"Tainted Money."

Like a famous ghost the question of the churches receiving "tainted money" will not down. The bishop of Rhode Island, who recognizes "the difficulty of drawing a line," has expressed a wish that the time may come when the churches shall "decline, not offensively, but quietly and firmly, to accept money which carries with it the honoring of men or methods which are 'below standard.'" Few will dissent from this wish, but there are two things in it about which there will be differences of opinion. First, what is "below standard," and second, does the acceptance of money necessarily honor the donors or the methods by which they acquired their money? There has been a great deal of recklessly sweeping language used about Mr. Rockefeller's gift. For instance some of the protestants say: "The courts can be bought, the legislatures can be bought, the churches can be bought, but the American people cannot be bought." We have a wholesome respect for the American people, but it occurs to us that if the above charge against courts, legislatures and churches be true, upon the American people falls the responsibility. The trouble rather is in the use of the definite article in this statement. That there are courts and legislatures that are corrupt has been proven; that there are churches that are swayed by the greed of gold, or are at least under the influence of the money power, will hardly be questioned. But it is a mistaken indictment which would include too much. Nor does the receiver of a gift for religious or charitable purposes necessarily "enter into an alliance with the donor or become a yoke-fellow with him in wrong practices."

◆

Ethical Culture Languishing.

The growth in numbers during the thirty years in which the organized work of ethical societies has been going on in the United States can not be regarded as encouraging. The inculcation of pure ethics, apart from the work and the inspiration of definitely Christian organizations, is accomplishing little. The tenth convention of the American ethical culture societies has been held. The Philadelphia society, which in honor of its twentieth birthday entertained the convention, has in an entire generation, enrolled only a total of 600 members, with 175 active members at the present time, and this is the largest society outside of New York. It is in the work abroad where the culturists receive most encouragement, and the probabilities are that there may be an international congress held next September in London. When there is no real manifestation of Christian life and culture there may be fine scope for a system that on intellectual lines may seek to inspire to noble living. But Christianity, with its regenerative power over the hearts of men, is of so much more vital value, even for those ends which the ethical culturists profess to strive after, that when there are Christian churches in the land we do not wonder that the ethical societies have comparatively little influence.

The Solution Not Accepted.

"Your editorial on 'Problems Solved and Unsolved,' was suggestive," writes a correspondent, "but the solution you point out as having been given to the problem of combining union and liberty in the sphere of missionary co-operation has not yet been accepted by a large part of the brotherhood. What bearing does this fact have upon its practicability?"

None whatever. The practicability of the solution is demonstrated by those actually engaged in co-operation for general purposes without any loss of congregational liberty, but with great gain in the strength of union and in spiritual development. The practicability of churches getting on with no other creed than that of the New Testament is not disproved by the number of those who have not tried it, but is proven by the success of those that are trying it.

Besides, we believe the number of our churches objecting to co-operation in mission work through a missionary society, on principle, has been much exaggerated. The plan which some have followed of counting all our churches which do not make offerings to mission work through these societies in any given year, as opposed to missionary societies, is absurd on its face. From this number of delinquents must be subtracted those churches which have not yet had a missionary conscience developed. They are o-missionary rather than anti-missionary. Then there are hundreds of pastorless and homeless churches that easily persuade themselves that their poverty justifies them in passing by the missionary offerings. When you have counted out these two classes of churches the number remaining that are conscientiously opposed to organized missionary work is not large, compared with the whole number of churches in the brotherhood.

And, we believe it safe to say that nine-tenths of these remaining churches are opposed to missionary organizations through a misconception of the method, spirit and purpose of their brethren who are co-operating through men chosen by themselves to manage this work. They imagine their congregational or individual liberty is endangered by the existence of mission boards to receive and disburse missionary funds! This seems absurd to those of us who are in such co-operation and know how foreign that is to our purpose, and how utterly impossible it would be to encroach upon the liberty of the churches if anybody desired to do so. Just as fast as these brethren who have been misguided learn the real truth, they come right into the missionary work.

And so we must be patient with those who do not yet see their way to exercise this freedom which they have in Christ. In so far as this results from misinformation, and not from the spirit of faction and strife, it is curable, and hence the anti-missionary society brethren are bound to be a "disappearing brotherhood." If we think it strange that they should fear so impossible a thing among us as ecclesiastical despotism, through missionary boards and conventions, let us remember that many of us who work through missionary organizations are inclined to see the same sort of ghost, when any plan of supervision is mentioned, looking to the better care of our weak and pastorless churches. We are bound to say that as between missionary organizations and conventions, covering the whole country, and a local committee or single godly evangelist to visit and encourage weak and discouraged congregations in a given locality and assist them in securing pastoral care and oversight, the former furnish a far more reasonable and plausible ground of fear than the latter. This fact ought to make us more patient with our anti society brethren.

As a matter of fact the danger among us has always been in exactly the contrary direction, namely extreme independence bordering on religious anarchy. The specter of ecclesiastical tyranny has kept us from adopting many helpful measures for strengthening the weak and husbanding our numbers and resources for united aggressive work. But we are learning something by experience, and just as we have been forced to co-operate through missionary organizations to save ourselves from spiritual and numerical shrinkage, so we will be compelled to adopt some measures to secure a better oversight for the weak and dependent churches, and to utilize our unemployed ministers. But we may be sure that nothing will be done that will endanger the liberty which we have in Christ, an important part of which is the liberty of the strong to help the weak.

A Peep Into Hoosierdom.

Combining a visit to the President of Butler college, Indianapolis, with a look in upon the Indiana state convention at Bedford, the Editor of the Christian-Evangelist had the pleasure during the past week of glimpsing things educational and religious in the Hoosier state. Butler college is approaching its semi centennial, which it celebrates next year. The institution has held to high educational ideals throughout its history. The members of the faculty have all had the advantages of the best American or European universities. The trustees are making a strenuous effort to increase its endowment from $200,000 to $450,000. Joseph Irwin, of Columbus, Ind., one of the trustees and steadfast friends of the college for many years, a man of liberal means and ideas, has offered $100,000 to the endowment fund on condition that $150,000 additional be raised, thus increasing the endowment by a quarter of a million dollars. Some progress has already been made in securing this additional sum necessary to make good the liberal offer of Brother Irwin, and friends of the college feel sanguine that the brotherhood in Indiana will not allow this opportunity to fail for greatly enhancing the usefulness of the institution. It is about a half century ago that several of our existing colleges were founded. There is evidence that we are now about to enter the era of college endowment. Nothing can be clearer than that if we fail to do this we shall suffer irreparable loss, as a religious movement.

We had the pleasure of visiting a number of the class rooms. Prof. Rogers was steering his class through ethics, as relates to temperance; Prof. Brown was instructing his class in the characteristics of Greek art; Prof. Butler's students were reading Latin. Prof. Jabez Hall was giving the ministerial students the first lesson in the Johannine gospel, dealing with the profundities of the prologue; and Profs. Jenkins and Bruner pointed out to us some of the mysteries of the chemical and biological departments. We could not find time to get around to all the departments, but the institution seemed to be a great workshop in which truth is being used as the instrument for mental and spiritual discipline. We had the pivilege of conducting the devotional exercises for the students on two mornings, and making short addresses. The location of the college buildings in the beautiful suburb of Irvington, with its winding streets, its broad green lawns and abundance of shade trees, is well-nigh ideal, and student life there is under the best conditions.

In company with W. E. Garrison, the President of Butler college, we visited the state convention at Bedford. We found a strong body of ministers and other Christian workers, animated by a spirit of unity and fraternity. They even changed the constitution without any discussion—about the highest test of unity of mind that we know of! A.B. Philputt makes a model presiding officer. So the convention thought and continued him in that capacity. T. J. Legg, a veteran in Indiana state evangelism, and J. O. Rose, the recently appointed corresponding secretary, both pointed out the open doors of opportunity with fine effect. The amount raised for state missions is altogether too small, but the hopeful feature is that things are starting upward in Indiana, and we may confidently look for larger things in the future.

The Editor acknowledges with pleasure the privilege accorded him of addressing the convention, and many other kindly courtesies from the delegates, and especially from the pastor of the church at Bedford, J. Richard Edwards, who made the whole convention his debtors by his attention to their comfort and pleasure, not the least of which was the free excursion out to the far-famed Bedford quarry. In one of these quarries alone, which we visited, 2,000 men and an immense amount of machinery are employed. It is a sight well worth seeing. Brother Edwards has recently entered upon the fourth year of his pastorate with this old church, which numbers about 1,200 members, and has a splendid $30,000 stone building. Brother Edwards is a New York city boy, and was brought up under B. B. Tyler's ministry, from whom he received his impulse and encouragement to become a preacher.

As already indicated, Indiana has its face turned to the future. It has a larger element of the extremely conservative brethren who oppose organized missionary work than any other state, but in spite of that fact there are signs of progress on the sky. The plan to start a monthly paper to represent the missionary interests of the state, under the control of the state board, the newly-awakening interest in Butler college, the division of labor by the appointment of a corresponding secretary, and the growing spirit of co-operation, are all prophetic of a brighter day for the great state of Indiana. See report of convention elsewhere by the corresponding secretary.

Union Among Baptists.

The union of the northern and southern wings of the Baptist church has not yet been really consummated. The meeting last week in St. Louis of these two divisions, and the action which was taken, do not necessarily imply that a final union of the two bodies will be effected. But it cannot be denied that what has been accomplished is in the right direction, and certainly it is in line with a general tendency toward Christian union. It has long been our conviction that the union of religious families closely related is the first and perhaps most important step towards the consummation of a union of all religious bodies. The two main differences which divide the great parties of Christendom relate to ecclesiastical politics and the church ordinances. In some cases both of these enter into the problem. All other differences are really of minor importance, so far as Christian union is concerned. Now if the whole controversy could be reduced to the question of ordinances it would be possible to bring about practical union within the near future.

The Baptist movement will do much to accentuate both the possibility and importance of a union of all the denominations belonging to the great Baptist family. Already there have been overtures of a very decided character with respect to a union of the Disciples of Christ and the Free Baptist and local wooings between the Disciples and the Southern Baptists. In all these meetings the very best of spirit prevailed, and it was generally conceded that the time had come for a practical union of all who believe in the "one Lord, one faith and one baptism." Surely there is no good reason why the Baptists and Disciples should not unite. There is really a wider difference of opinion with respect to certain vital points between the Northern and Southern Baptists than between the average Baptist, north or south, and the Disciple of Christ. In other words, there is probably between the extreme wings of the Baptists themselves a greater gulf than is between the moderate Baptists and Disciples. The same may be said of the Disciples. They differ among themselves as regards some important questions, but they do not make these differences causes for cleavage or tests of fellowship. From their point of view, seeing that they do not make opinions vital, where faith is triumphant, a union with the Baptists ought not to be attended with much difficulty.

Now, if all the pædobaptist bodies could unite, as well as the Baptist bodies, the cleavage then would be confined wholly to the ordinances. No one ought to expect that this cleavage could be removed without prayerful consideration and patient forbearance. Nevertheless, when the question of baptism is practically the only question which separates the followers of Christ it cannot be doubted that an irenicon can be found in some way so that this difficulty may be bridged over. Let us hope that the Baptist movement may mean more than it seems to mean as it appears on the surface.

Questions and Answers.

Did Peter, on the day of Pentecost, use the term, "remission of sins," in its new, gospel sense of cleansing, or purifying the heart, or moral nature, or did he use it in its old, human sense of the pardon, or forgiveness of the offenses that one man gives to another?

INVESTIGATOR.

He used it in the sense of forgiveness, as we use it in respect to wrongs that we do to each other. God forgives our sins "as we forgive those who trespass against us." This is the "new, gospel sense" of forgiveness. The cleansing of the heart through faith in Christ—a living, obedient faith—is the condition of forgiveness, or remission of sins. It means that God will treat us as if we had not sinned. This is justification by faith.

1. Does not Paul have in mind the Jewish Christians on the one hand and the Gentile Christians on the other, in the words, "I bow my knees unto the Father from whom every family in heaven and on earth is named"?

2. Does not the figure perhaps refer to Israel as the father of the Israelites?

California, Pa. H. L. ATKINSON.

1. Paul says, I bow my knee to the patera from whom every patria in heaven and on earth is named. We think it probable that the apostle does refer to the fact that both Jews and Gentiles, who are now being united in one church, have descended from one common Father. Indeed, he would say, not only Jews and Gentiles, but every family, on earth and in heaven, is named from him. The old rendering, "the whole family," does no violence, in our judgment, to the Greek, in spite of the absence of the article, for the apostle seems to embrace them all in one patria, or family, from one pater, or father.

2. We hardly think so, unless it be in a negative way. As if he would say, Not Jacob, but God, is your father, and the father of every family, or the whole family, as we would prefer it.

1. John 3:22 reads, "After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea; and there he tarried with them and baptized," but John 4:2 reads, "Although Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples." How do you account for this?

2. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John seem to write from different standpoints, one relating some events that the others leave untold. Would it not be wise to arrange these four books into one, relating all events as near as possible in their exact order, also using modern language?

3. During our last convention and for some time following there was much enthusiasm over the prospects of union between Baptists and Disciples, but this feeling seems to be abating somewhat. Why is this? C. F. ELLIS.

Chicago, Ill.

1. Jesus did the teaching leading to baptism, but his disciples did the baptizing; that is, he baptized through the hands of his disciples. Paul ordinarily pursued the same course, having those with him do the baptizing.

2. It has often been done. See any good harmony of the gospels, or the "Interwoven Gospel."

3. The union question is not dead, and not even sleeping, though it is hardly so prominent just now as it was immediately after the convention, naturally enough. We must sow the seed and then give it time to grow. The growing process is quite as essential as the sowing, and that is going silently on.

Does the Bible teach that a man's soul conscious after death?—W. F. M.

The Bible clearly teaches the continuity of life and of conscious existence after death. The appearance of Moses and Elijah on the Mount of Transfiguration; the resurrection of Christ from the dead, and his appearance to his disciples, and numerous passages showing that to be "absent from the body" is to be "present with the Lord" are proof of this fact.

Is it right to call the Lord's supper, the "communion" or the "Lord's supper"? A preacher here once said it was wrong to call it the Lord's supper. L. H. BARNUM.

Caldwell, Kan.

"The Lord's supper" is the name applied to the institution commemorating our Lord's death, and it is rightly so-called now. "Communion" is a broader term. We may commune in singing, contributing, etc., as well as in the Lord's supper.

Editor's Easy Chair.

If you have time now, watch the birds building their nests. In this, as in many other respects, man can learn from his little feathered friends of the air. We watched two sparrows the other morning building their nest under the eave of the house. We say their nest, because it was no doubt a partnership enterprise. They were mates. "Male and female created he them"—applies to birds also. And so, on this beautiful May morning, or earlier, they had a little wooing, in their nice little bird way of courting, and she was won by his gay feathers and fine singing, and perhaps by his pledge to help build the home and to be a faithful husband. And now, before the honeymoon was over, they had gone to work to prepare the nest. Down they would fly into the grass beneath a window and gathering a straw or string in their little beaks, they would fly up with it, generally by way of the limb of an apple tree, that their flight might not be too perpendicular. Sometimes the straw or string would become wound about a twig of the tree, and if they could not release it, they would abandon it and go in search of another. They seemed to make play out of work, for many a merry little chirp was passed between them as they flew up and down in their common task. Happy birds! No untimely disaster, there will soon be a cosey nest, some tiny eggs, brooding love and then some little birdlets to try their young wings in the summer air.

⁂

The greatest teacher the world has ever known drew a lesson from the birds: "Behold the birds of the heaven, that they sow not, neither do they reap nor gather into barns; and your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are not ye of much more value than they?" Did you think it was beneath your dignity to watch the birds? Jesus says: "Behold them, study them, and learn a lesson from them!" And then "your heavenly Father" takes time and pains to feed them! Surely, if our heavenly Father thinks it worth while to spread a table for them, and if Jesus admired them and drew a lesson of trust from them, they are worthy of our consideration. The dear little creatures we heard singing so sweetly at the dawn of day, had not yet had their breakfast, but never a doubt or fear about where it was to come from hindered the joyousness of their song. Somewhere a seed or a worm would be found and that would suffice. How simple their wants! Is not that the secret of their freedom from worry? If man, who is worth much more in the sight of God, could only be content with such plain, simple food, and in such quantities as are necessary, and could simplify all his other wants and reduce them to such as are needful, it would work a revolution in people's health and happiness, and they, too, could trust in God and be joyful like the birds of the air. "Easy Chair" readers, let us learn a lesson from our little feathered, tuneful neighbors, and resolve to live more frugally, more simply, more trustfully, more joyously. Thus shall our lives be more pleasing to our heavenly Father.

⁂

About the best illustration of ceremonialism versus morality and true religion is furnished in the incident recorded in the Sunday-school lesson of last Lord's day. "And they themselves entered not into the prætorium, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover." Think of it! These high priests and rulers were about to imbrue their hands in the innocent blood of Jesus, and were trampling under their unhallowed feet justice and mercy and truth. And yet, they would not "defile themselves," ceremonially, by entering into the court of the Gentiles! And this, too, that they might be able to partake of the passover—an institution whose highest meaning related to Christ whom they were seeking to have crucified! The incident throws a flashlight on the kind of morality and of religion which prevailed among the Jews at the time of Jesus. It was largely a matter of forms, ceremonies and traditions. They had lost sight of the essential principles of truth and of righteousness. There is constant danger of a reversion to that type of religion. Punctiliousness about the observance of outward forms is often associated with a very loose idea of morality and the absence of any profound piety.

⁂

The Atlantic Monthly for May has a suggestive article on "New Varieties of Sin," growing out of modern conditions. The characteristic of these new varieties of sin is that the sinners seem to be unconscious of any wrong doing and even the public extends a toleration to them which would not be thought of in case of the old-fashioned sins. The people "do not see that boodling is treason, that blackmail is piracy, that embezzlement is theft, that speculation is gambling, that tax-dodging is larceny, that railroad discrimination is treachery, that the factory labor of children is slavery, that deleterious adulteration is murder. It has not come home to them that the fraudulent promoter 'destroys widows' houses,' that the monopolist 'grinds the faces of the poor,' that mercenary editors and spell-binders, 'put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter.' The cloven hoof hides in patent leather; and to-day, as in Hosea's time, the people 'are destroyed for lack of knowledge.'" Because of these new-fashioned sins the gospel must be so preached as to search them out and show them in their true character. It is the business of the gospel to make the swindling of the public by watered stock as dishonorable as highway robbery, and to classify food adulteration as a species of murder.

⁂

"Let well enough alone," is one of those popular sayings which requires to be examined carefully before accepting. It is often used to prevent needed improvement and progress. We can imagine all the trusts and monopolies in the country reciting the well-known saw, as against any proposed legislation to curb their power. It is often used against proposed changes in outgrown creeds and inadequate methods of work. We ought to improve, let us say, some of our missionary methods, readjust our days and our offerings to give all our interests "a square deal." The objection is as sure to be raised as the sun is to rise to-morrow—"Better let well enough alone"! But what is "well enough"? Just there lurks the fallacy. Nothing is "well enough" that can be made better. "The good is the enemy of the best." If there be a better way of managing trusts, of regulating railroad rates, of stating our beliefs, of doing our work, of financing the kingdom, let us have the courage to find it and adopt it. We have reached perfection in nothing. Growth involves changes, readjustments. Petrification can dispense with changes, but they are a necessity of all life.

⁂

"What do you think is going to come of this reformation when a few of us old fellows die?" said a venerable saint to us recently. "It will go right on growing in depth and height and width," we replied; "we have only seen it in its infancy, when it has been hampered by its swaddling bands. Those who come after us at the close of the present century or in the twenty-first century, will see it in its glorious manhood." "But," the old man asked, anxiously, "do you know of any young men coming on that can take our places?" "Why, bless you," we answered, "the woods are full of them! And they are a splendid type of young men, with far better equipment for their work than you and I have had. Don't you lose any sleep about that, brother." And so we feel. The Lord will look after the right succession of leaders if we will do our duty in the matter of Christian education. One thing is sure: the Lord never calls an ignorant man to leadership in a cause requiring a trained intellect. Nor will he honor any people with leadership in the world's advance movements, unless they build and endow institutions of learning where the best minds of the age may receive the best learning—institutions, too, whose very atmosphere is electric with religious enthusiasm and with the highest Christian ideals. Are we giving this matter the attention which its supreme importance demands?

The Hypnotic Factor in Revivalism

By William Durban

It is impossible narrowly and sympathetically to mark the characteristics of the most successful evangelistic movements of the day without being impressed with the fact that temperamental influences are very largely concerned in the processes and the results. I recollect that in my childhood, whenever a new popular religious campaign was set going, it depended simply on the ordinary means that had always been associated with Christian efforts, excepting that new personalities were introduced, and these were looked to for any striking fresh impressions that might be produced on the souls of the people. Although that happened before even my earliest recollections, Alexander Campbell came to England on a memorable visit. He did a noble work, but he depended simply and solely on the preaching of the gospel. There were no adventitious aids. There was no singing evangelist to help to stir a new sensation. It was so with Finney and Peter Cartwright in America. It had been so long before with Wesley, Toplady and Whitefield in England. But all was changed by the method adopted by Moody and Sankey. From the time when they innovated in their special direction the public taste was entirely modified. To-day in England a man must be a first-class pulpit genius if he is to touch the people with any great effect by preaching only on the original plan of gospel propagation.

Very Complicated Revivalism.

There are many sides to the new methods, such as those adopted by Evan Roberts in Wales, and Torrey and Alexander in any country that they visit. One thing ought frankly to be admitted. I do not know whether all my readers will have patience with me for stating it, but I write it deliberately because I am persuaded of the truth of what I assert. Some of our own preachers occasionally go around here and there to help other preachers in different churches by holding protracted meetings, which are, of course, intended to be revival services. The results are always sound and very acceptable; but are also very limited indeed. The preacher is never rewarded in anything like the proportion due to his ability and his earnest and indefatigable exertions. I have in mind several occasions when most able brethren came along to help me in this fashion, in several successive pastoral spheres where, during a long ministerial life, I labored. All these preachers gave forth sermons of far greater value, so far as gospel truth is concerned, than the evangelists who are drawing thousands are capable of delivering. For the ordinary popular evangelist who preaches to thousands, gathered together by the united organized efforts of all the churches of some great district, would never dare to utter the whole truth, and nothing but the whole truth, as the apostles proclaimed it. He would scatter at once large numbers of those who patronize him if he did not hold in reserve some things which Peter, Paul and John placed in the very forefront of their preaching. I have myself in various places and at various times given great offence by dwelling on this important distinction. But, strange to say, no intelligent worldling has ever manifested offence for this cause; only intelligent religious people have in many cases been dreadfully ruffled at the simple suggestion that, if the apostles appeared on the scene, they would preach in very different accents from those adopted by most modern revivalists. Now, a person who is unattached to any particular church or denomination will listen with interest to such an observation, but it is not so with the average church member in any denomination. Therefore I say that popular evangelism now holds up another banner instead of the apostolic flag. But at this point it is needful to show how, instead of the exact New Testament gospel, a popular substitute is being largely used. Of course it is now resorted to by men of commanding genius, for they command success and attract crowds, apart from their docrtinal theology, by their vast ability.

"The Idol of Wales."

A noted Welsh minister said to me last week, "Although Mr. Evan Roberts is at this moment the idol of Wales, I maintain that he is a most expert pulpit hypnotist." I asked my friend from Wales to prove his proposition, and he eagerly proceeded to do so. Said he, "I have carefully watched Mr. Roberts and was confirmed in my conviction that much which I had heard as to his special studies of hypnotism under a very accomplished professor of that science must be true. For hypnotism consists, according to its expert writers, of three mental processes. The first is Intention. The mind of the subject must be fixed with the utmost intensity in some one direction. The second stage is Extension. After the intense concentration of the mental faculties they are to be directed to a wider view, according to the will of the operator. The third stage is Anticipation. The subject is induced to look eagerly for some desired object or result, which is then brought out with immense force. Now, the famous young Welsh revivalist is a most skillful adept in the employment of this threefold mode of commanding the mind of the multitude. I watched him in the pulpit at Chatham street where for two hours he kept over 2,000 people gazing intently, hundreds straining on tiptoe, while prayer and praise went on, in order if possible to catch a clear view of his striking and handsome face. Well, all that time he was leaning over the Bible, kneeling on the floor, with his features contorted as if agonizing in prayer. The people wondered if he would speak all the evening. At last he rose and looked heavenward and quoted texts about Jesus looking up to the Father. This was the second stage. It produced immense excitement. Then of course there was a spirit of ardent anticipation on the part of the people. They expected some wonderful manifestation, or revelation. There was no teaching of any kind, but only a strange proclamation that, somewhere in the direction to which he pointed with outstretched hand and excited features, somebody was hindering the Spirit by failing to confess sin. And strange to say, on another occasion during the same week, Mr. Roberts loudly accused a brother preacher who was present of trying to hypnotize him. He is a master pulpit mesmerist. And in Liverpool he had no success. The campaign fell flat. The English temperament is not so emotional as the Welsh."

Why This Age of Emotion?

I listened to the above exposition from my friend, who is an eloquent and popular preacher, with a crowded church every time he preaches, and is a most spiritually minded man, with all the more respect, because he is of the same nationality as Mr. Evan Roberts, and, strange to say, was also in his early youth a miner. Let it be understood that immense good has been done and is being done, in Wales. But this Welsh revival will not bring about any reformation. The doctrines preached before will be preached still. The sects will not in the slightest manner modify their sectism. The moral effect is magnificent, and all Christians are most thankful for this. But what I want to make understood is this, that from the efforts of Evan Roberts or of Torrey and Alexander, no "new movement" whatever will proceed. It was so with the Moody and Sankey campaigns. They stirred emotion. They changed many a heart and many a life. But they left Protestantism as imperfect and divided as they found it. They did not in any degree clarify the popular view of the Bible. We must thank God that religious revivals do occur, but we must not imagine that the usual commotions of this kind are to be compared to Pentecost, or even to those marvelous reformations which have changed the faith of whole nations. For the most part the evangelists of modern times are neither prophets nor martyrs. Theirs is all popularity. There is no traversing of popular errors. No odium is incurred. There is no persecution. On the contrary, music and pictures, mesmeric methods of working on the emotions rather than on the higher reasoning faculties, make these campaigns a popular sensation pleasing to the multitude in no slight degree. Of course where the conscience is reached the most blessed effects follow, and it is the aim of these evangelists of every school to touch the sinful conscience. But conscience is quickly dulled again unless the intellect is also affected by a conviction of the folly of evil. The great defect of the modern revival is that it captivates the imagination, and reaches the conscience through that avenue, instead of traveling to the domain of conscience as the early Christian preachers did by the way of the intellect. Solomon asked for "an understanding heart." In fashionable Christianity to-day there is plenty of heart, but not a proportionate degree of understanding. I am well aware that these observations will not meet with universal approbation, but as my conclusions are the result of long observation I beg for them a dispassionate consideration. It must surely be manifest to every thoughtful mind that something more is needed than is witnessed in these popular campaigns, which will leave the churches and the world very much in the same position as before, when the excitement is over. There will be room and need for a revival of a much more scriptural kind. Anyone who literally accepts the New Testament must admit this.

London, England.

A Practical Problem

By S. C. Slayton

The Disciples of Christ constitute the religious prodigy of the age. Our plea is matchless and our growth unprecedented, but, paradoxical as it may seem, our strength has become our weakness. We are not prepared to take care of the fruits of our prosperity, because we lack the system necessary to hold and develop it.

Fifty years ago one hundred members were regarded as a large congregation and nearly every one would do to count, while a plain 20x30 house of worship was a great acquisition. Our sole business was to convince the religious and irreligious world that we had found the "old paths"; every man's hand was against us, and while the war was on every recruit became a valiant soldier and we were held firmly together by outside pressure and planning for self-defense and conquest. There are many sections in which this is still true, and doubtless there always will be, but we now have a vast field which is past this stage—the outside pressure is gone and a problem arises for which we have not provided. Now congregations of three hundred to five hundred persons are numerous, those with five hundred to one thousand are not at all surprising, and we will soon pass the two thousand mark. We think less of counting the cost of church buildings in thousands than we did then in hundreds. A host of men on land worth from $50 to $500 an acre are paying little if any more for the spread of the gospel than when the same land, in the same hands, was worth only $15.00.

In numbers, in wealth, in influence, and in everything but systematic work, we hold a front rank. Each of our splendid churches is looking after its own affairs in its own peculiar way and, when harmony and good business judgment, together with sufficient spirituality, are found, all is well, as far as we go. But the country is dotted with churches and groups of brethren that are inactive or dead, because local conditions have not been so fortunate and there is no strong hand to guide and assist them, while very few of our strong churches are developing their resources in a proportionate measure.

Is there a good business man under the sun who would run his business in a fifty year rut, in the face of such changes in conditions? Evangelism must ever be the business of the church, but let us not, in our holy zeal for this divine purpose, overlook the practical foundations upon which it must rest to reach its greatest results. We run everything on evangelistic lines.

Our conventions are very properly called missionary conventions, for they consider little else: the planning is done by the preachers, whose lives and work are cast in that mold, thinking only of the land yet to be possessed and letting our rich possessions look after themselves in very haphazard fashion.

In our departure from ecclesiasticism, we went to the other extreme, and our lax methods—amounting almost to entire lack of method, well enough in early stages—do not meet present requirements.

The place to apply a remedy in Iowa, and doubtless in other states, is in adapting our state work to the situation. All honor to our fathers for wise planning and splendid execution, but we cannot meet modern complications with ancient machinery. We are still planning, manning and working solely on the evangelistic idea; if anything is wrong, whether a fuss in the choir, a troublesome elder, a business breakdown, a lot of stingy rich members, or what not, a meeting is the invariable prescription. If a lot of new members are added it is only making a larger difficulty of a smaller one. An impracticable effort is made to cover the needs of a vast field by the efforts of one man, whose strength is so dissipated by over spreading that it produces little result and calls out little support.

It does not seem to occur to any one to begin at the bottom, work out a system for all the details of orderly, active church work, get them before all our people, put large men in small fields, so they can work out practical results under the eyes of the people who are expected to support them, set things in order, arouse an interest and develop our strength, instead of sending our corresponding secretary flying back and forth over the state in a hopeless effort to settle things and—get some one to hold them a meeting.

Perhaps the following scheme is visionary, but it will do to think about. Let the state corresponding secretary be a business man and a corresponding secretary in deed, as well as in name, spending his time in a central office, studying, and gathering from all possible sources, the best methods for everything, down to the smallest details of the work of the churches and all their auxiliaries, and disseminating to the churches everything approved by his board. Let the field work be done by district men and the districts be of such size that each man may be able to make his presence and his work known and felt and to become fairly well acquainted with the needs in his district.

Let the county conventions be held first and be made very practical, to bring out conditions and needs in the country and to report them, with recommendations, to the district convention. Let the district conventions follow and their object be equally practical—to gather reports from the counties, devise ways and means for meeting the needs and report to the state convention, which should also be devoted chiefly to practical planning for the care of all our interests in the state, through the active agency of the district and county organizations, all, of course, under the general direction of the state board.

We have the greatest plea in the world, and have made the greatest success in the world in its advocacy, but we have the weakest system for the care and development of a great body of people and our present proportions and conditions indicate that it is high time to apply ourselves very earnestly to the solution of the problem.

Des Moines, Iowa.

[Our correspondent touches not only a practical, but a pressing problem—the care of our weak churches and, he might have added, our unemployed preachers. A little plain, sanctified business sense is all that is necessary to see that our neglect of this problem is very wasteful, not to say wicked. We must face it and solve it like men.—Editor.]

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

That the bridge between the present and past, after all, is not a long one we are constantly reminded. From the things of yesterday we are not so far away as we sometimes think. A short while ago the widow of N. P. Willis died in this city. Most of us older folks remember how in our childhood we used to read the poems of Nathaniel Parker Willis. He was a witty, graceful and graphic writer—a journalist and a poet, and some of his religious poetry still lives. Born in Maine in 1807, he died in 1867, and his widow at four score closes her pilgrimage in Washington.

One of my young friends in this city was the first lady of the land way back in the forties. She was John Tyler's daughter and celebrated May 11 her eighty-fifth birthday. When her father was president she, for a time, was mistress of the White House. She is still young, only what people once called "dimples" they now call "wrinkles." She delights to dwell upon those times which to her happened only a little while ago. She talks freely of Daniel Webster, whom, of all great men of the period, she best liked. She recounts the old Whig and Democratic struggles of those days. John C. Calhoun and Henry Clay were then the great figures at the Capital. Inauguration was too much for Harrison, who wore neither hat nor overcoat when he delivered his address, and office seekers crazed him, and the old gentleman fell a victim in one month to pneumonia and spoilsmen; and Tyler came to the presidency. Two things belong to his administration that will be remembered: the electric telegraph and the struggle in Texas, with its Alamo and Sam Houston.

The dedication of Bunker Hill monument and Webster's great speech are among the incidents. Lafayette laid the corner stone of this memorial in 1835, just half a century after the battle, when Webster delivered the oration; and June 17, 1843, the work was completed, and the godlike Daniel, then in all the majesty of his matured powers which made him the greatest of orators, is again called upon, and pronounces the most impressive and thrilling address of ancient or modern times. Many of his auditors had fought in the battle. The enthralled multitude so crowded against the platform that it was in danger of being carried away and causing a fatal accident. Webster appealed to the people to stand back. They tried in vain. "It is impossible," they replied. "Impossible!" thundered Webster. "You are on Bunker Hill where nothing is impossible!" And the throng surged backward like the recoil of a vast ocean billow. This was 68 years after Bunker Hill, and men listened to the great orator who had stood with the embattled farmers on that day; and there is one among us who as she looks out of the window of the Louise Home, sees in the little park the bronze effigy of the great man with whom she could claim close friendship and to whose majestic eloquence she had often listened. We can almost touch the beginnings of things through such a channel. But the D. A. R. have one aged dame, 103 years of age, who is a single link between to-day and that dim yesterday.

Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple was born at the Tyler homestead, Greenway, Charles City Co., Va., May 11, 1821, in the same house in which her distinguished father was born. When nine years old the family removed to Gloucester, on the York river, where she resided until she became a bride at 19. When her father was elected vice-president on the Whig ticket, following the famous hard cider campaign of 1840, she came to Washington for the first time and her husband was appointed paymaster in the navy. At the death of her mother in the executive mansion, which occurred in '42, she became head of the household, antedating Mrs. Roosevelt more than sixty years. She was then regarded as a beautiful woman and one still sees in the old lady of the Louise Home, with the snowy hair and gracious manner, the social queen of the old school.

She was one of the party expected to go on the pleasure trip down the Potomac on the ill-fated Princeton. That was in the spring of '43. She had made preparation to return to her home in Virginia. "I was urged to go on the warship, but could not postpone my return to my husband," she said. "It was fortunate that I did not, for an explosion occurred on the Princeton and Mr. Upshaw, the Secretary of State, Mr. Gilman, Secretary of the Treasury, and about six others were killed. Had I been one of the party I would have lost my life, in all probability. This sad event cast a gloom over Washington. It was a terrible calamity." Mrs. Semple lived quietly on her husband's plantation until the civil war. The close of the conflict saw them impoverished, and she opened a school for girls in Baltimore. Her husband died in the seventies and Mr. Corcoran invited her to the Louise Home.

All this seems to bridge over the years with great facility. It is when we think of the history crowded into this period that the "far cry" back to the forties will appear. Take the telegraph. Morse had Annie Elsworth send that first public message to Baltimore, May 29, 1844. To-day the telegraph lines in the states stretched in a single line would girdle the earth forty times; and what of the ocean cable, duplex and multiplex telegraphy, the telephone, and the wireless marconigraph, and the infinite applications of electricity?

Most of all, in the progress of her own sex, this good woman can mark the world's growth. In those old days there were just three things for a woman to do—marry, teach school, or live like the lotus eaters careless of mankind. Take the figures of the last census as to the employment of women. Here they are in part only. Farmers and planters, 307,706; gardeners and florists, 2,860; lumbermen, 100; stock raisers and herders, 1,932; wood choppers, 113; turpentine farmers, 281; actors and showmen, 13,251; architects and draughtsmen, 1,041; artists and teachers of art, 11,021; clergymen, 3,373; dentists, 807; electricians and engineers, 493; journalists, 2,193; lawyers, 1,010; musicians and teachers of music, 52,359; government officials, 8,119; physicians and surgeons, 7,387; teachers and professors, 327,614; veterinary surgeons, 14; barbers and hairdressers, 5,574; boarding house keepers, 59,455; hotel keepers, 8,533; janitors and sextons, 8,033; laundresses, 335,282; nurses, 108,591; saloon keepers—Heaven save the mark!—2,086; bartenders, 440; servants, 1,283,763; soldiers, sailors and marines, none; watchmen, policemen and firemen, 879; agents—Heaven help us!—10,556; bankers and brokers, 293; boatmen and sailors, 153; clerks, book keepers, stenographers and typewriters, 245,517; commercial travelers, 611; draymen and teamsters, 904; hostlers, 22; merchants, 34,084; salesmen, 149,230; steam railroad employees, 1,688; undertakers, 323; auctioneers, 3; carpenters, 545; masons, 167; painters, 1,759; plasterers, 45; plumbers, 126; roofers and slaters, 2; brickmakers, 478; potters, 2,940; fishermen and oystermen, 462; miners, 989; bakers, 4,328; butchers, 378; blacksmiths, 193; iron workers, 3,297; wheelwrights, 10; boot and shoe makers, 39,510; brewers, 275. And so on ad infinitum. Lovely woman to-day is everything but a soldier, sailor, or marine.

These are the figures as I find them in the census. Who says woman's sphere is limited? Who denies that she has a varied work? Who will claim the old times were better than these? It is a great world in which we live, and woman is always the conundrum of the centuries. We can not guess her but we will not give her up. Whether the first lady of the land or the hindmost, she is forever interesting. Whether the madonna of the East Room, the madonna of the needle, the madonna of the tub, or the madonna of the skillet, she commands our respectful attention and our unfailing reverence. Whether sweet sixteen or a century, she is to us perennially young. We could almost adore her if she would but shorten her walking skirts and take a reef in her bonnet.

Young Men and the Ministry

By E. H. Kellar

We recently received the following letter from a young man, concerning which it occurs to us that some observations might be timely and profitable:

"I owe you an explanation for having, without apparent reason, rejected your able and generous assistance in starting me in the work as a preacher.

"In the first place I probably would have made a very poor one and thus have done more harm than good.

"It has always been my earnest desire to preach and if I ever do enter the work it will give me the most satisfaction of anything I can do, but I have reasons that I know to many earnest workers would seem wrong and I hardly know what you will think of them.

"I feel that if ever I am able to live to preach instead of preaching to live I will then be not only willing but glad to enter the work for the rest of my life.

"I have tried hard to think differently, but I could not conscientiously preach when every penny wrung from the church would be of vital importance to me and when I would of necessity have to look as much to the financial part as to the religious.

"It would handicap me in going as far and being of as much use as I would want to be, and I honestly believe there are too many poor preachers to-day who have not the education or the chance to lead the people of today. The world is becoming more educated and intelligent and it of necessity requires men who are able to keep abreast of the times to lead in this, the greatest of all work.

"This is only my opinion and has many faults and many examples to the contrary, but I cannot think differently."

The foregoing letter is intensely interesting, and doubtless expresses the reasons that are deterring many a noble soul from entering the ministry.

Notice first the fine spirit of this letter: here is humility, here is a willingness to serve Christ; yes, and a desire to do so and at one's own charges. Here is a proper appreciation of the spiritual character of the work and a realization of the necessity for adequate preparation therefor. A young Christian of fine spirit feels intensely the possibility of misjudgment when necessity compels him "to look as much to the financial part as to the religious."

The financial handicap is a serious one; there are too many poor preachers who sadly need education, but the reproach and shame is on the churches and on us older preachers who are not considerate enough of these conditions. It is a fact that "the Lord hath ordained that they who preach the gospel should live by the gospel." He intends us to preach to live as well as live to preach.

Far too many of our churches have been well-nigh ruined because no money has been "wrung from them."

A dollar is awfully big in the eyes of a poor boy; he would rather work a week and dig it out of the ground than ask a congregation for it. When they give so meagerly, he actually thinks it is wrung from them; he wonders if all people are not as poor as he is. Fifty dollars with his efforts would give him a year at college, but fifty dollars is as far from him as a gold mine.

The boy wants to be a good preacher—he wants a good education, and that is right, too—but there is a great gulf fixed—what shall he do?

This fallacy has gained currency somehow: "Oh, if he is any good he will get there somehow, and if you help him you spoil him." This is hard-shellism; in it we forget that we are brothers, we act more like sharks.

What shall we do? Let us have a fund of $200,000 in Missouri to help these noble young men.

Is there any well-to-do man or woman reading these lines? Perhaps you would like to be parent to some noble preacher. You want to know how? Write at once to J. B. Jones at Fulton, Mo., chairman of the recently incorporated board of ministerial education, tell him you have—God grant that it may be—many thousands for this grand purpose.

Carrollton, Mo.

What We Need

By Ernest Mobley

Like every other great movement ours had to pass through the crucible of direct persecution. As when the man under provision of congress complied with the laws for land grants, and established his corner and ran his lines on the acquired tract of land in the new western reserve, then returned to his home in the east. After the lapse of many years the report came that this western country was fast becoming settled and that property was rapidly advancing in price. This eastern owner visited the west to dispose of his property, but to his amazement found that particular section thickly settled and could not find his corner stone in order to establish his rightful claims. But by the assistance of an old gentleman who was on the site at his first visit he began a search for the corner stone. They found a clump of mixed growth, and tore away the thick bushes, the wild briers, to find standing a stone. Was that the stone? Did it have the three marks required by law? The moss was brushed aside and there on the eastern corner were the three marks. He told those who had each established corners and run off tracts, that theirs were too recent, and that he possessed legal title to the entire tract. They raised a howl of denunciation — applied opprobrious epithets. They called him an interloper, a destroyer of the peace. He went to court and established his claims. So in the establishment of the New Testament church, the Jerusalem trunk had placed upon it by divine authority three marks—faith, repentance and baptism, with other marked characteristics. But as the centuries passed other corners were established, lines run and claims made. Soon tracts were divided and subdivided, until the original claims were largely forgotten in the multiplicity of contentions for the individual rights. Mr. Campbell began to trace original lines by use of the New Testament and found that all these bodies were too recent in origin, and by the assistance of his coadjutors he tore away the brush of denominationalism, the briers of sectarianism, and brushed off the moss of ecclesiasticism to re-establish the old "landmark" with the divine assurance through faith, repentance and baptism. A howl was precipitated. But with New Testament accuracy in doctrine and practice, the movement, like a mighty spiritual avalanche, has presented a chapter unparalleled in the history of religious bodies. As propagandist in the union movement our influence can only be measured by the cycles of eternity. The magic charms have penetrated every other religious body with revolutionary effect. The spirit of union has surcharged the very atmosphere.

Again the emphasis is being put upon the revival of a genuine evangelism, giving new force and splendor to the world's divine pronunciamento, "Go, preach the gospel to every creature." "Disciple all nations," when realized to its fullest possible extent, will reproduce some pentecostal ingatherings. We need more faith, zeal and consecration, and the world will hear the thunderous tread of our mighty army and stand in awe and admiration as we march on with our unfurled banners to ultimate victory.

Weatherford, Texas.

Consecration.

Entire consecration embraces three things,—being, doing and suffering. We must be willing to be, to do, and to suffer, all that God requires. This embraces reputation, friends; property and time. It covers body, mind and soul. These are to be used when, where and as God requires; and only as he requires.

* *

There is no greater door of opportunity open for consecrated young men to-day than the Christian ministry.

The Blind and the Ditch

By J. S. Hughes

The Christian church is now upon a wave of a vast career, but there are some destructive influences eating at its vitals that have attacked other religious bodies before us.

Against the very worst of these I would warn it. It lies at the very foundation. I assail that error in the name of Christ. We call the world back to the Bible, "the whole Bible," but we do not mean the last book, which is the crowning glory of the whole. We leave that out. It is only a riddle.

We proclaim that "where the Bible speaks we speak, and where the Bible is silent, we are silent." But it is not so in truth, for where the Bible is loudest, there we are most silent. We admit the New Testament is higher than the old and the later revelations higher than the earlier, until we come to the last and highest, and that we virtually reject. We exalt the revelations of Paul and the apostles more than "the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him to show unto his servants." We preach more from Paul's special letters than from Christ's own letters to all the churches.

The method of treating the Bible which has resulted in this state of mind, is a wrong and ruinous one, working destruction to faith and hope.

The Christian church assaulted many errors of the older bodies, but accepted their worst one—the practical rejection of Christ's own revelation of himself. Ernest Renan has fairly expressed the situation in the following words: "The Revelation of John, the first canonical book of the New Testament, being too explicitly infected with the idea of an immediate catastrophe, is degraded to a secondary position; considered unintelligible; tortured in a thousand ways and almost rejected." This very interesting agnostic expresses the orthodox and accepted verdict so far as its working results to the church can be seen.

In the first place Renan asserts that the Revelation was written in the year 68 A. D., as coolly as Robert Ingersoll would discourse on "the mistakes of Moses" and with as little discernment, and this date of its production, which takes all the sense out of it, is now proclaimed by teachers standing high in the Christian church, as is the case in other evangelical bodies. This is one of the boldest and most unfounded assertions ever palmed off on the churches. In saying this I am prepared for all comers, from whatever source, who think otherwise.

That the Revelation contemplated an "immediate catastrophe'" such as was generally expected by the Christian churches in Paul's time, is also an unsupported assertion; but the other part of what Renan says is true and too true; "'tis a pity," that this last and greatest book has been "tortured in a thousand ways and almost rejected." With equal certainty do I reject the common method or manner of regarding the Revelation as foretelling events.

To search the book with these events in mind, is to forever boggle and blunder, for it foretells no events as events are understood, and to search for such events to prove the divine origin of the book or the divinity of Christ, is to forever go blindly on. It is as weak and futile as it would be to judge a man by his outward appearance and be blind to the fruits of his life. It deals with the philosophy, rather the wisdom, concerning the conflict between God and the enemy called Satan, and it calls upon us for understanding and wisdom, not that we may reason and believe, but that we may know and discern the workings of God in the ages, and be sealed unto him by a distinct and clear vision that no one can take from us, exactly as taught in John's gospel: "If ye believe, ye shall know of the teaching, whether it be of God." It is out of these powers in conflict that great events occur, but the Revelation continues to direct our attention immediately to their origin, their characteristics and their final outcome, and in this way we can see all great events by all that we need to know of their nature; but to try to read the Revelation through history, is like holding a candle to see the sun.

It was written long after the Neronian persecution and the destruction of Jerusalem, and makes no direct reference to either of those events.

If it is in truth "the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him to show unto his servants, and which he commanded to seal not up," how can we, it is asked, account to ourselves for the fact that it has been tortured a thousand ways and never understood, but nearly rejected like its author?

The question does not stand alone; there are parallels. How does it happen that the Jews have been reading their scriptures for near two thousand years since Christ came, and even yet can not find him in all their scriptures? And again, how comes it that a Romanist can live in a Protestant country, and even in a Protestant family, a lifetime and never understand it nor feel its vast superiority; or whence comes it that the most enlightened heathen nations interpret nature so differently? No less is the wonder that Protestants are equally blinded to the last and highest and mightiest of the books of God's revealed wisdom, the very gospel of all the gospels—the New Testament of the New Testament. The answer is, we have been trained in the scholastic, the western, method.

Renan said truly enough that "in the third century Christianity fell into the hands of the arguing races, insane for dialectics and metaphysics, and the fever of distinctions commenced," and that it was here that "dogmatic power began," till then unknown to the church.

Such distinctions, the product of the insane dialectical and metaphysical methods of the arguing races of the west, constitute that veil which Isaac Newton and Renan had over their faces, as well as the expositors in general. The atomistic or microscopic method is dirt in the eyes when it comes to reading the Revelation.

It is far better I should be set right than that we should be on the side of Straus and Renan and Ingersoll and Hume, and see our own teachers blundering along in their footsteps in a matter so important to the world's destiny.

I am prepared to show that the Revelation of Jesus Christ is in truth all that it claims to be, and that is wonderful indeed. It is Christ's own self-revelation. I can teach others how to read it and understand it, and be blessed even according to all its precious promises to those who read and keep the things written therein.

❁ ❁

Dame Nature Hints

When Food Is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit the old coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum Coffee and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice. I began using them three months ago.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum Coffee is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in each pkg.

Our Budget

—Children's day June 4.

—We are glad to learn that the Sunday-schools everywhere are making preparations for a great offering on the first Lord's day in June. There should be a larger number of schools enlisted this year than ever before.

—The month of May among us is a busy time. The churches are busy with collecting and forwarding the May offering for home missions, and the Sunday-schools in getting ready for children's day. Neither of these duties should be neglected. We are hearing good reports of the May offering, thus far, and we trust it may be kept up until the national convention in San Francisco in August.

—The Baptist ministers filled the pulpits of our St. Louis churches, generally, on last Lord's day. We hear good reports of the sermons, which were neither latitudinarian nor sectarian, but broadly evangelical. Deep regret was expressed, however, that the good brethren who preached these sermons did not feel at liberty to participate in the Lord's supper with their baptized brethren of the Disciples. No doubt they acted conscientiously, but it is a pity that one's conscience should be bound by tradition or custom, where the Lord has left it free.

[Telegram.]

Louisville, Ky., May 18.—Madison meeting closed last night; 110 in 24 days. Begin Madisonville, Ky., to-morrow evening.—BROOKS BROS.

—F. E. Violett has taken charge of the work at Shelbyville, Tenn., for one year.

—Hugh Wayt, of North Fairfield, O., has given fifteen special addresses during the past year.

—E. W. Allen contemplates a tent campaign to establish a third mission at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

—Howard T. Cree has been preaching in a revival at Valdosta, Ga., where Richard W. Wallace is pastor.

—Guy L. Zerby has received a call to Bellmont, Ill., where Brother Anderson recently held a fine meeting.

—Many friends will sympathize with Bro. W. A. Chapman, pastor at Rosendale, Mo., in the loss of a good mother.

—Plans are made for a new building at Okmulgee, I. T., whence comes good news of a successful work, led by Bro. Frank Van Voorhis.

—Cards are out announcing the wedding, on June 6, of L. B. Haskins, our preacher at Erlanger, Ky., to Miss May Carpenter, at Wilson, N. C.

—A. M. Growden of Carbondale, Ill., will represent the cause of church extension in an address at the convention at Carterville, Ill., June 6 9.

—W. B. Taylor of Ionia, Mich., has been elected vice-president of Bethany college, and professor of biblical history. It is understood that he will accept.

—Mrs. Mabel Carlock, wife of the late Judge Layman Carlock, gave a lecture, which is well spoken of, at the Christian church, Buffalo, Ill. She is a graduate of Eureka and lives at Mechanicsburg.

—Charles E. McVay, of Benkelman, Nebraska, will be the song leader and soloist at the Oregon state convention, beginning June 23 and lasting ten days. He is now in a meeting at Salem, Oregon.

—Guy Hoover, who has been for two years pastor of the First Christian church at Chicago, has tendered his resignation, taking effect Aug. 1. He will study at the University of Chicago during the coming year.

—M. J. Nicoson has just held a very good missionary rally at Memphis, Mo., several well-known speakers representing the varied interests.

—International Sunday school convention convenes at Toronto, Can., June 23-27. It will be a great gathering of great spirits. Go, if you can.

—Benj. L. Smith spent several days in St. Louis last week, seeking to learn what he might from the home mission workers attending the Baptist anniversaries.

—Philip Johnson, for several years professor of Latin in Bethany college, graduates in the divinity school of Yale university next month. He will return to Bethany and fill one of the chairs in the Bible department.

—G. F. Assiter has just had the pleasure of marrying his oldest daughter to Charles F. Clarke, who was one of Brother Assiter's best helpers at Martin's Ferry, Ohio. The young couple will reside at Parkersburg, W. Va.

—The Central Christian church, Marion, Ind., O. D. Maple, pastor, is going to have a new church building. Plans have been adopted, liberal subscriptions have already been made, sufficient to insure the success of the enterprise.

—The Hamilton avenue Christian church of this city is about to break ground for a new building on the splendid lot, one block north of their present site, which was presented to the church recently by Brother R. H. Stockton.

—Bro. W. C. Morro, who preaches for our church at Haverhill, Mass., has been granted the Williams fellowship, the highest in the Divinity school at Harvard. This was also won by Prof. H. L. Calhoun, when he was at that university.

—Dean Haggard, of Drake university, writes that it is desired to locate many of the graduating class of pastoral helpers. Among them are two or three especially well qualified. Those churches interested should address Brother Haggard at once.

—T. J. O'Connor, pastor at New Sharon, Iowa, has received a unanimous call to remain with the church at an increased salary. He has recently been at work raising the indebtedness of the church in which he has been successful. But little remains to be done.

—The new church at Bloomington, Neb., was dedicated by Mrs. Clara H. Hazelrigg, on May 7, who held a meeting for two weeks, with fifty added, half by confession. The building will seat over 250, is valued at $4,000 and was dedicated with all debts provided for.

—As M. C. Hutchinson goes to Panora, Ill., this month, Coon Rapids, Ia., will need a pastor. The membership there is 125, with a fine new church and all the organizations in good working order. Particulars may be had from Mr. Frank Bough, Coon Rapids, Ia.

—John G. Dollman, of Pennsylvania, is the first individual Disciple to become a life liner in the provision made by our National Benevolent Association constituting any church, Bible school, society or individual a life line member of the association on payment of $100 for its ministries before the first of October of each year.

—Hillsboro, the county seat of Montgomery county, Ill., is a beautiful little city of 3,000 and has never had a Christian church. Edward O. Sharpe, the fifth llinois district evangelist, is there building a tabernacle and Lawrence and Edward Wright began a meeting May 12. Brethren are asked to pray for this meeting and send an offering and some good tracts setting forth our plea concisely.

—Improvements in the way of a heating plant, lights, etc., have been made in the church at Loami, Ill. Under the leadership of the pastor there, J. W. Larimore, the brethren have organized a church at Oak Ridge schoolhouse nearby, where services are held every two weeks. Bro. W. O. Withrow reports that the spirit of union is manifest in the neighborhood. Brother Larimore can hold a few meetings this summer.

—Bro. J. H. Smart, Danville, Ill., is always able to give a good report of his work. The following is very fine: "I closed my first year with the First church of Christ, Danville, the last Lord's day in April. There were 101 additions during the year. The old indebtedness found at the beginning of the year was paid off, all expenses for the year were met and the church gave more for missions than any other year in its history. The outlook for the coming year is hopeful."

—Bro. J. T. T. Hundley, of Norfolk, Va., has been having a series of sermons in his church in the interest of Christian unity, preached by representatives of various religious bodies, and closing with one by J. J. Haley, of Richmond, on a recent Sunday evening. Brother Haley spoke to a splendid audience, and repeated the substance of his address to his own church on the following Sunday morning, creating a good deal of interest on the subject of unity. He has been asked to have the address published in a tract, and we hope he will agree to do so.

—We desire to call the special attention of our Missouri readers to the state missionary convention which meets at Marshall, June 16-21. This, it will be remembered, embraces the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, Christian Endeavor, the Bible-school and our state missionary society. The program, which we had intended to publish this week, we are compelled to hold over until our next issue. Be sure to plan to go to the convention. Other states are planning larger things, and Missouri, which excels all others in its numerical strength, must not be behind the foremost. Let us go up to Marshall with our minds made up for an advance movement.

—The article in this number by our English correspondent on "The Hypnotic Factor in Revivalism" will be read with interest. At our last Monday morning's ministers' meeting, the question of hypnotism in revivals came up and was discussed at some length. It was stated as a fact that a few of our evangelists had studied hypnotism with a view of increasing their success as evangelists. The conclusion was that hypnotism is a very cheap and fictitious substitute for the Holy Spirit, and that preachers would be more successful in studying the New Testament and in seeking the Spirit's help than in familiarizing themselves with the methods of modern hypnotism.

—Herbert L. Yeuell's resignation has been accepted by the Central church, Uniontown, Pa., and J. W. Carpenter, of Indianapolis, Ind., has been elected his successor. Brother Yeuell will take up evangelistic work starting with a tabernacle meeting under the Virginia state board and Brother Carpenter will take charge then. He was a student at Hiram and graduated at Butler, we believe. The end of this month he will take a Yale degree. Brother Yeuell has done a fine work at Uniontown and we do not wonder that the congregation did not wish to part from him. He tendered his resignation three weeks ago, but the matter has been kept quiet until his successor could be selected.

—Bro. D. E, Bast, of Tampa, Fla., writes concerning our brother, Dr. J. M. Breaker, of Kissimmee, Fla., that he is a good preacher, has labored as evangelist in many southern states, and that he is anxious to devote himself to evangelistic work in Florida. There is no state in the union where it is more needed, and Brother Breaker needs the employment. He will devote his whole time to the work of evangelizing for $50 per month. Why could not some church or some able brother put Dr. Breaker at work in that needy field and support him? Brother Bast writes that though Brother Breaker is 78 years of age he can preach as well now as he ever could. Let those who would help a good cause and a good man at the same time, write him as above, or write to us concerning the matter.

—Bro. S. R. Maxwell, our St. Louis city missionary, assisted by Bro. E. T. McFarland of the Fourth church, has begun a new work at O'Fallon park, in a tent, where it is proposed to establish a mission. Brother Brandt of the First church, has secured and equipped a "gospel wagon" which is to begin missionary work in different parts of the city at once. There will be singers and instrumental music, and Brother Brandt will preach to the people. Thus we shall try in St. Louis the effect of the gospel under canvas and the gospel on wheels.

—R. H. Fife, of Kansas City, will begin his general evangelistic work July 2, in Marion, Indiana, where he is to conduct a simultaneous evangelistic campaign. W. S. Buchanan, pastor of the Tabernacle church, is chairman of the committee on arrangements and the indications are for a great revival. The regular meetings will be held in three large tents erected in the most accessible parts of the city, and cottage prayer-meetings and other special services will be held daily in various communities. The other evangelists will be T. J. Legg, of Indianapolis, and J. M. Elam, of Rensselaer, Indiana. The singers are to be H. H. Sanders, Noblesville, Indiana, Edward McKinney, Dorsey, Illinois, and Claude and Bert Gardiner, of Marion, Indiana. Brother Fife can make a few more dates for the summer and fall campaigns, particularly for the month of August. Churches and pastors desiring his assistance may address him at 3740 Wyandotte street, Kansas City, Missouri.

—Dr. J. M. Philputt completed his first year's service with the Union avenue Christian church on last Lord's day. It has been a remarkable record in many ways. There have been over one hundred additions to the membership of the church; a large increase in all the offerings of the church for missionary and benevolent interests; a deepening of the spiritual life of the members, and a fusing together of the membership of the two churches which were combined to form the Union avenue church, in a most delightful unity and fellowship. The results of his labors for the past year have exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the church. Both he and his good wife, whose splendid musical ability has been placed at the service of the church, have won a warm place in the affections of the members. Our hearty congratulations are extended to them and to the church whose interests they have served so well.

—Our National Benevolent Association has just issued Bond No. 94 to Mrs. Mildred Mason, of California, for $1,000. Information concerning the ministries of the association and the annuity method will be furnished on application to Sec. Geo. L. Snively, St. Louis, Mo. The association has just been informed of a bequest of $5,000 made to it by Grandison Crawford, of Oklahoma, lately deceased. Geo. L. Snively.

903 Aubert Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

—Texas had a great missionary convention. We shall give fuller report next week, but meantime the following from a letter just received from J. C. Mason, corresponding secretary, will give some idea of the spirit of the convention: "One of the most hopeful features of our Texas mission work is that we are getting some larger individual offerings than ever before. Two members in Texas now support their own state missionary, giving, respectively, $400 and $600 each. We ought to multiply this number by ten this year, and I hope this will be done. Two churches support their own Texas missionary also; five counties support their own missionary. A great-hearted brother gave to the state board work a few days ago a splendid tent with the statement that when that wears out let him know and he will present another. All these are hopeful indications of the growing interest in our work. This is perhaps the finest convention in spirit known to the brotherhood of Texas. Not one point of controversy in the entire session, yet the interest was good and abiding. Thursday was the greatest day for Texas missions ever known to us. On that day we raised $30,000 in good pledges for Texas Christian university, our school, and as the Bible-school is so intimately associated with our mission work we regard the work as one. We rejoice, yea we praise God from whom all blessings flow, and with all our souls thank him for this glorious victory. When we had reached the $30,000 the scene was indescribable; the whole convention was shouting happy, strong men embraced each other, tears of joy suffused every eye; let all the brotherhood rejoice with us."

—Program of Kentucky university reunion in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the removal to Lexington:

Thursday, June 1, 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Phileusebian Literary Society.

Friday, June 2, 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Cornelia Literary Society.

Saturday, June 3, 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Alethea Literary Society.

Sunday, June 4, 4.00 p. m., Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. Geo. H. Combs.

Monday, June 5, Field day; 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Philothean Literary Society.

Tuesday, June 6, 10:00 a. m., Commencement Exercises of the College of the Bible; Address, S. T. Willis, New York City, 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Periclean Literary Society.

Wednesday, June 7, 10:30 a. m., Anniversary Exercises: The Story of this Institution, Prof. Alexander R. Milligan; Personal Reminiscences, Hon. Zachary F. Smith; Present Status of the University, Dr. Edward L. Powell; The Outlook, Rev. Hugh McLellan; 1:00 p. m., Dinner on the College Lawn; 4:00 p. m., Class Day Exercises; 8:00 p. m., Exhibition of the Cecropian Literary Society; 9:30 p. m., Junior Promenade.

Thursday, June 8, 10:30 a. m., Commencement of the College of Liberal Arts; Address by President Edwin A. Alderman; 1:00 p. m., Alumni Dinner in the Gymnasium.

Missouri Convention Notes.

Do you see the call in this issue from the brethren at Marshall asking you to send your name if you are going to the state convention? This is not a hard task; your name now will assist them greatly in their hospitable purpose.

By the generosity of the Hackleman Music Co. we are to have our programs printed in pamphlet form together with songs and music. This certainly is a favor for which we are especially grateful to our Brother Hackleman, to whom we are already deeply indebted for many favors in the past.

A great literary light whose name is often taken in vain by people who don't "cuss" wrote, "Great Expectations." We rather think he must have been a prophet and had the state board of Missouri missions and the state secretary in mind, for certainly no body of men ever had greater expectations than our board has for the present month. Are they to be realized or are we to be disappointed?

This is the seventeenth day of the month and there is not the slightest indication that our prayers are to be answered.

T. A. Abbott.

311 Century Building, Kansas City, Mo.

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, Sa Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightfu scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, b way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to Christian-Evangelist Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

Children's Day Notes.

A few years ago the offerings on children's day were not expected to exceed 10 cents each. Last year 10,000 children gave one dollar each or more. Many gave five dollars each. Sixty-two schools gave $100. Three gave $600 or more, and two more gave $500 or more. Already there is a demand for a five-dollar league. In a few years these givers will be the men and women of wealth and influence and leadership in the churches. They will give on a scale worthy of their vastly increased resources. This gain in the offerings is one of the most significant and gratifying facts of our time. It promises much for the future.

The offerings made on children's day have built chapels, hospitals, schools, homes; they have supported evangelists and teachers and other helpers. They have sustained missionaries from this land. The gospel has been preached near and far. God only can know all the good that has been done because the Bible-schools have been helping in the work. About one-fourth of the entire receipts come from the young people and their leaders.

The matter of chiefest importance is not to get the pennies from the children, but to implant an interest in missions, and to form the habit of missionary giving in those who will be the backbone of the churches in the next generation.

North Idaho Camp Meeting.

The north Idaho district will hold its annual camp meeting at Juliaetta, Idaho, June 1-11. Bro. Morton L. Rose, of North Yakima, Wash., will be the principal speaker. He will be assisted by the resident ministers of the district. We are planning greater things for this district. E. F. Beaudreau, Cor. Sec.

Victory at South Bend.

We are in a splendid meeting here at South Bend, Indiana, with the pastor, Rev. P. J. Rice. I promised Brother Rice to assist him some time between Sundays but when I got on the field, and saw this beautiful city of 50,000 inhabitants growing so rapidly, with more miles of paved streets than any city of its size in the United States, with its great sewing-machine factory, the Oliver plow factory and the Studebaker wagon factory, which are the largest of their kind in the whole world, so many fine residences and great business blocks, and then saw our church, a small old building, while others have put up mighty fine brick and stone buildings, it seemed to me that I just must heed the invitation of these brethren and stay with them a few days longer; hence Wednesday of last week, which was the second week, Brother Smith came; and we had 25 added a week ago Sunday and 30 added last Sunday; 70 added this last week; 170 in all to date. Last night Bro Arthur C. McHenry, a very bright young minister of the Methodist church stepped away from the creed to the word of God. Standing for

> "No book but the Bible,
> No creed but the Christ,
> No plea but the Gospel,
> No name but the Divine."

He is a married man with three lovely children. He won in several oratorical contests in his college work and is ready for a permanent field. A letter addressed to him here at South Bend will reach him. Our time is limited, and hence will close Tuesday. Brother Rice filled my pulpit last Sunday for me, but I will return to Chicago next Sunday and fill my own pulpit and will come back and close the meeting Monday or Tuesday night. Bro. A. W. Fortune, in whose home I lived for two years while studying at Hiram college, has been selected as assistant pastor of the Metropolitan church. Brother Fortune is a graduate of Hiram college and has held successful pastorates at Chagrin Falls, Ohio, and Rochester, New York, and will receive his B. D. degree at Chicago university next week. He will continue his studies in Chicago and have charge of the local work of the Metropolitan church this coming year. Brother Smith and myself will continue in the evangelistic field and work toward the completion of our institutional church building. The Lord has blessed us marvelously in this great church work in Chicago, and the success of the building is assured. Many friends from far and near have made handsome gifts for this work. The church has had a wonderful growth.

I will dedicate the new church at Saunemin, Ill., on May 28, and dedicate at Beaumont on June 4. Will continue at Beaumont about 10 days and then go to Dallas, Texas, to hold a meeting. CHAS. REIGN SCOVILLE.

South Bend, Ind., May 16.

The Buffalo Meeting.

Tuesday of last week the Jefferson street church of this city closed what is conceded to be the greatest meeting held here by any religious body for some years. Allen Wilson, of Indianapolis, did the preaching—for 38 nights holding forth to congregations that filled the auditorium and oftentimes every available corner of every room adjacent to it. There were 172 to respond to the gospel invitation, all but 19 coming for Christian baptism. Brother Wilson has certainly not mistaken his calling. He is a gatling gun of religious fervor and convincing power and all his services carry with them an atmosphere that braces and encourages the discouraged and convicts and converts the unbelieving. When you hear him once you will wish to return. He has the faculty of making his auditors love the old Book, which is so essential in securing the best permanent results. Several whole families came to render obedience to the Prince of Peace. A big union meeting under the leadership of Evangelist Calhoun, of Pittsburg, and several other revivals within a few blocks neither affected our attendance nor the intense interest in the great themes being considered nightly. Several of our pastors and those of other religious bodies in and adjacent to the city looked in upon the meetings from time to time. The Jefferson street church did some good preparation work and dedicated much of their time to the meeting. Let no one say that the east affords few opportunities for the Disciples of Christ. The east is yet to witness our greatest victories for apostolic Christianity. These large cities contain multitudes who are ready to accept "the creed that needs no revision" and "wear a name that honors the Christ." B. S. FERRALL, pastor.

International Sunday-School Affairs.

The next international Sunday-school convention will be held in Toronto, Canada, June 23-27. The international Sunday-school lesson committee will meet in Toronto Wednesday, June 21, at 10 a. m. The Toronto convention promises to be the greatest convention in the interest of systematic Bible study ever held at any time or in any place. In 1895 there were, in Boston, 1,063 delegates. In Atlanta, in 1899, there were 844 delegates present. In 1902, in Denver, the number of delegates was 1,168. The indications now are that there will be more than 2,000 delegates in the Toronto convention.

Bishops Vincent, McDowell and McCabe, of the Methodist church, are on the program. Bishop Vincent is the father of this great movement for uniform and systematic Bible study. Mr. B. F. Jacobs was his right hand man in this enterprise. The first time I ever saw Mr. Jacobs was in a great Sunday-school convention in Toronto in 1881. The first words I ever heard him utter were, "It is good enough in this place to be simply a Christian!" Bishop McDowell is the president of the National Religious Education Association. The Hon. John Wanamaker will be one of the speakers in the Toronto convention. The Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, member of President Roosevelt's cabinet and former governor of Iowa, is on the program. The Rev. Carey Bonner, general secretary of the London Sunday-school union, is expected to be present. The Rev. George B. Stewart, D. D., president of the Auburn, N. Y., theological seminary and secretary-elect of the Presbyterian board of publication and Sunday-school work, will give an address. Frank K. Sanders, Ph. D., dean of Yale divinity school, New Haven, Conn., and secretary-elect of the Congregational Sunday-school and publishing society, will attend the convention as one of the chief speakers. The Rev. M. Douglas McKenzie, D. D., Hartford, Conn., president of the Hartford theological seminary and Hartford school of religious pedagogy, is on the program. The Rev. Chauncey Murch, D. D., Luxor, Egypt, a recognized authority on Egyptology, will be one of the speakers in this great convention. You cannot afford to miss the Toronto convention. The following are some of the topics that will be discussed:

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Home."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to Reforms."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Science and Art of Pedagogy."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Civil Government."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Theological Seminary."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Public School."

"The Relation of the Sunday-school to Home and Foreign Missions."

"The Sunday school as a Factor in Civilization."

This will be a great convention. You cannot afford to miss it.

Sunday, June 25, has been designated as Sunday-school day. It is desired that an address in the interest of our Bible school work will be delivered in every church in the United States and Canada. Do you object to preaching that day on "How to Win a Generation to Christ"?

For full information about the program and conduct of the convention, address, Mr. W. N. Hartshorn, chairman of the international Sunday school executive committee, 120 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

In what I have written you have only a hint of the treat which is in store for those who will attend the international Sunday-school convention in Toronto, Canada, June 23-27.

Denver, Col. B. B. TYLER.

Home Mission Offerings.

Watseka, Ill. (David J. Elsen, pastor), $73, being $23 advance over previous year; hope to make it $100 and Iroquois a Living Link county.

Ludlow, Ill. (Lew D. Hill), $15.51. Work progressing.

Winchester, Ky. (Cecil P. Armstrong), $322, being $70 more than same day last year; expect $400.

Riverside, Cal. (Geo. Ringo), leads the Pacific slope and becomes a Living Link with a margin.

East St. Louis (L. W. McCreary), apportionment $30, offering $200.

Norwalk, Col. (J. R. Jolly), $30; hope to increase it.

Lewisville, Minn. (Claris Yeuell), this church and that at Willow Creek more than doubled last year's offering.

Maryville, Mo. (H. A. Denton). Will be $300.

Liberty, Mo. (R. G. Frank). Although this church has just raised $17,000 for the new building, its home mission offering was the largest it has ever made.

Oxford, Kan. (B. F. Stallings.) Apportionment $10; raised over $25.

An Evangelistic Campaign.

The churches of California are planning an evangelistic campaign to follow the national convention at San Francisco, August 17-24. We are trying to get every church in the northern and central part of the state to hold a meeting at that time. Arrangements are already well under way. The churches are beginning to ask for suitable men. We want to enlist the best talent in the brotherhood in this work. If you will be available for one of these meetings, send your name at once, stating terms. We must have representative men.

D. A. RUSSELL,
Pres. State Board Northern California.
Red Bluff, Cal.

For the Busy Minister

A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE

Minister's Pastoral Record and Memorandum.

FITS VEST-POCKET.
Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

A Man Worth Knowing.

Nothing is so inspirational as a deed. A life-sermon is worth far more than a word-sermon. It is worth our while then to know the men of performance. As a people we have been greatly heartened by such familiarity of acquaintance with princely men among us who by largeness of giving have raised the standard of beneficence and inspired us to attempt greater things. Lovingly and gratefully we call over the names of the Drakes, the Coops, the Cooleys whom God has raised up in our midst to mightily forward his cause.

It is my desire in these brief words to acquaint our brotherhood with yet another of our epoch making men whose sheer modesty has kept him in the background, believing that a word concerning him will not only quicken our admiration of a genuinely noble character but, and what is far more important, stimulate others to kindred aims and commendable emulation. I write of R. A. Long, of this city, and it is needless to say without his knowledge. No man is more averse than he to exploitation of personal benevolences. To a request of several weeks ago for an outline list of his benefactions he characteristically replied, "What I have given has been for the sake of the cause and not for personal advertisement. Many who have given far less than I, have given as much in proportion to their ability and are quite as deserving of praise. No, no; don't say anything about what I have done." And yet for the sake of the cause and not the man I feel that something OUGHT to be said. For here is a man who has given more in the past year than any other man in our ranks.

His largest gift was to a local cause. For years he has felt that as a people we were not worthily represented by our church buildings in Kansas City and that our work lacked in impressiveness and efficiency thereby. This certainty of conviction prompted him to give over seventy thousand dollars towards the erection of a magnificent building on the corner of Gladstone and Independence boulevards—a church costing, exclusive of memorial windows, something over one hundred and twenty thousand dollars. This is one of the largest and most complete buildings owned by our people. And this, if I mistake not, is the largest individual contribution that has ever been made to such a cause west of the Mississippi river. But our brother's interests are not bounded by the needs of a local church. Within the past year he has given five thousand dollars for the creation of a permanent fund for state evangelistic work, five thousand dollars to the support of the girl's school in Japan, thirty thousand dollars to our various colleges. In addition, known to the writer, he has given thousands of dollars to causes of which no public announcement has ever been made. A reporter on one of our city papers told me a few weeks ago that Mr. Long had given thousands of dollars to benevolences in this city which only by accidental probing had become known.

Immersed in the conduct of one of the largest businesses in the country our brother has consideration even for the smallest things, and many are the times when at his request I have furnished him with lists of our poor and sick to be followed by the gracious gifts of provisions, of coal, of flowers. This certainly is no usual record. Among the matters to which my personal knowledge extends is the gift of at least one hundred and thirty thousand dollars within but little more than a year. Nor is this all. Brother Long is yet a young man; the greater part of his fortune and he has made every dollar of it unaided) has been made within the last fifteen years. Possessing at least in some degree his confidence, I may say that yet larger things he has in intention and if God shall spare his life for ten years it is a confident and safe prediction that he will have given far more largely than any other man whom God has yet given to the Disciples.

I should like to go on and tell of other sides of a rare nature, but I must confine myself to a single aspect—our brother as a giver. Three added words:

Brother Long gives intelligently. First of all he satisfies himself of the worth of the cause appealing to him, and then acts. Warmly sympathetic in temperament, his beneficences are yet never the children of impulse.

He gives provocatively—conditionally. His gift must produce other gifts. His dollars must bring out other dollars. This, too, is wise.

He gives modestly. This has already been adverted to. The photograph from which this "cut" was made was secured only through a pardonable stratagem.

R. A. Long.

To this colorless statement the writer would add one personal word. I have known Bro. R. A. Long intimately during a ministry now extending into the thirteenth year and as one of the elders of a church it has been my privilege to serve. I have found him not only a courageous and aggressive leader, ever sounding a forward call, but a sincere and dependable friend and brother to whom any and all might go for counsel and help with hope and with confidence. I close as I began, it is worth our while to know such a man.

George H. Combs.

Kansas City, Mo.

Z. T. Sweeney and Benj. L. Smith in Accidents.

Z. T. Sweeney came very near to being asphyxiated by gas or drowned last week. He had planned to attend the Indiana state convention, and before his departure was taking a bath. Gas escaping from the heater overcame him, and had it not been for the fact that two young ladies in the house heard a strange noise like one gargling and called to him, Brother Sweeney might have died. On getting no response, they ran for help, and the colored man employed at the Irwin home, forced open the bath room door. Brother Sweeney was lying in the tub unconscious, and the water, still running, was nearly to his mouth. Medical assistance was soon at hand and several hours later Brother Sweeney was sufficiently recovered to walk to his room near by, but the doctors had to work with him some time before they would offer any encouragement whatever, and he was unconscious for nearly two hours. He is now able to get about, but is still weak. Those who had intended to go to Bedford with him, gave up the trip, as it was not known by train time whether he would recover.

Benjamin L. Smith, of the Home Society, was in a wreck on the Big Four, while traveling from Indianapolis to Chicago, last week. Brother Smith escaped from any injury.

Echoes from the May Offering.

The following are the new living links of the American Christian Missionary Society:

Joplin, Mo.—First church, W. F. Turner, pastor.

Des Moines, Iowa.—University Place church, C. S. Medbury, pastor.

Riverside, Cal.—Geo. Ringo, pastor.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Third church, C. B. Newnan, pastor.

Maryville, Mo.—H. A. Denton, pastor.

St. Louis, Mo.—Compton Heights, F. N. Calvin, pastor.

East St. Louis, Ill., and Fourth church, St. Louis, Mo., combined. L. W. McCreary, pastor of the former church, and E. T. McFarland of the latter.

We take pleasure in stating that the churches mentioned below have renewed their living links for 1905.

Bellaire, Ohio.—J. P. Allison, pastor.

East Dallas, Texas.—H. R. Ford, pastor.

Winchester, Ky.—C. J. Armstrong, pastor.

It is early for replies, and there are many more to hear from.

The list of churches given below send the following good news:

Granville, Mo.—Enclosed find $20.00 from Granville, Mo., church for home missions. This church gave nothing last year.—R. M. Dungan.

Sadieville, Ky.—Enclosed find check for $53.00 contributed by our congregation for home missions. We gave $23.60 last year.—Wm. W. Hinton.

North Fairfield, Ohio.—Find enclosed check for $70.50—$22.10 last year.—C. D. Harvey.

Fulton, Mo.—Enclosed find check for $101.89.—M. A. Hart.

Spencer, S. D.—Find enclosed May offering from the church of Christ at Spencer for home missions. This church gave nothing last year.—Mrs. A. J. Matkins.

Baltimore, Md.—Enclosed find post office order for $26.57, being the amount collected on account of home missions. This church gave nothing last year.—Jas. T. Kelly.

Madisonville, Ky.—Enclosed find check for $72.75, the amount raised by the Christian church here for home missions.—E. C. McLeod.

Blythedale, Mo.—I took an offering, the first, from the Blythedale Christian church for home missions. Find draft enclosed.—H. W. B. Myrick.

Bethany, Mo.—Enclosed find our offering for home missions, $44.50. This church gave $10.00 last year.—Oren Orahood.

Anderson, Ind.—Pledges amount to $100.00. Hope when the offering is in it may be larger. —T. W. Grafton.

Rushville, Ind.—Offering $115.00. Almost twice as many individual offerings as two years ago.—Wm. W. Sniff.

Charleston, Ill.—Offering $70.00—apportionment $50.00.—W. F. Shaw.

Dixon, Ill.—Offering $48.00. This is more

I Will Sell At Public Auction
On JUNE 1, 1905,
Two Ten Acre Tracts
—AND—
Seven Five Acre Tracts land near Cotner University and the new interurban car line.
C. H. PIERCE, Bethany, Neb.

han our apportionment, and equals our foreign offering,—J. F. Stone.

Arrowsmith, Ill.—Total offering $35.25; last year $5.85.—Chas. A. Lockhart.

Lincoln, Ill.—Apportionment $15.00; offering about $35.00. This is the best we have ever done, and I hope is the beginning of better things.—W. H Cannon.

Bloomington, Ill.—First church. Offering will amount to about $200.00.—J. D. Holcomb.

Pekin, Ill.—Offering $26.00; apportionment $12.00.—J. A. Barnett.

Springfield, Ill.—It is with great pleasure that I report to you that our home missionary offering is double that of last year, and equals, if not surpasses, the offering for foreign missions.—F. M. Rogers.

Lancaster, Ky.—Apportionment $75.00. Will send you check for more than $100. Our church is making splendid growth.—F. M. Tinder.

Lexington, Ky.—Chestnut street church. Offering $75. This far exceeds any previous year's record in history of this congregation.—W. H. Allen.

Leesburg, Ky.—Home offering $55. I think this is more than twice as much as they have been in the habit of giving.—Chas. E. Powell.

New Antioch, O—Offering $30. The church gave more than twice as much as it did last year.—H. M. Garn.

Toledo, O.—Central church. Offering $55. Finest collection in history of church.—J. O. Shelburne.

N. Fairfield, O.—Offering $68.50 this year for home missions. We more than trebled last year's offering.—Hugh Wyat.

Jacksonville, Fla.—First church. Apportionment $30; offering $48.—J. T. Boone.

Sandersville, Ga.—We had a good offering from our church for home missions. Hope to secure more.—J. E. Spiegel.

Adel, Ia.—Apportionment $12.50; offering over $36. We are growing in grace also.—S. A. Fisher.

Lake Charles, La.—First church. Offering $83; apportionment $75.—Roy Linton Porter.

Garnett, Kan.—Offering $35. This is $10 more than last year, and much the largest offering that has come from this church.

Richmond, Mo.—Offering $54.10. We exceeded last year's offering.—J. H. Hardin.

The missions supported by the American Christian Missionary Society have done splendidly in their offerings for home missions this year. Read the following notes from a few of our missions:

New Orleans, La.—Soniat avenue church. "One hundred and twenty-three dollars and fifty cents."—R. M. Denholme.

This church is but a year old, and is one of our home mission babies. Marcellus Ely is the pastor.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Fourth street church. Offering for home missions $17.00. This means an average of fifty cents for those present that could give.—Henry F. Lutz, pastor.

Swampscott, Mass.—Apportionment $10.00. We will send you $40.00 for home missions the last of the week.—W. H. Rogers, pastor.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Grand avenue church. Offering for home missions $60.00; last year $22.71.—Fred Kline, pastor.

It is gratifying to note that of the more than three hundred churches remitting to date, one hundred and fifty-one did not make an offering last year. This is a clear gain. Nearly one-third of the churches contributing during these first ten days since the offerings were taken, have made a splendid gain over last year.

It is hoped that every church in our brotherhood has taken, or will take, an offering this year for home missions. Let us do all in our power to reach the $200,000 mark, that we may not only cheer the hearts of our missionaries in the field, but be enabled to open up new work in the many waiting fields.

Remit all offerings by check, draft, post office, money order, express order or registered letter, to Benj. L. Smith, Cor. Sec.
Y. M. C. A. Building, Cincinnati, O.

Children's Day

FOR HEATHEN MISSIONS

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society will furnish Children's Day supplies, free of charge, to Sunday-schools observing the day in the interest of Heathen Missions, as follows:

1. Children's Day exercise, Brightening the World, by Prof. P. H. Duncan, sixteen pages, new and stirring songs, recitations, dialogues, drills, etc. It will meet the demands of the most exacting schools of all grades.
2. Missionary Boxes. They are a new design, printed in red.
3. The Children's Day number of the Missionary Voice ranks high. It is prepared especially for children.

Please give local name of school. Give average attendance. Order at once. Address,

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Secy.,
Box No. 884. CINCINNATI, O.

* *

The Meeting Places of the San Francisco Convention.

The "1905 committee" feel that they have been very successful in solving the problem of meeting places. Our daytime sessions will be held in the N. S. G. W. hall on Mason St., between Geary and Post. This hall is the property of California's own fraternal order, known as the Native Sons of the Golden West, members of which must have been born in the Golden State. This hall is 75x100 feet in size, with gallery around three sides, and seats all told 1,100 people. There are large committee rooms, parlors, rest rooms, etc., in this building. Below the auditorium is a banquet hall of the same size, which is to be reserved for exhibits only. Here will be found the headquarters of our missionary and publishing interests, the results of the work of our committees on religious and state exhibits, and the remainder of the space will be taken up by the boards of trade and chambers of commerce of the various cities and counties of California for exhibits of fruits, flowers, minerals and the wonders of the Pacific Coast in general. This hall will no doubt be one of the most popular features of the convention. Here friends will meet friends from all parts of the world, and the air will be heavy with the perfume of roses, and the ripening of fruits of California's wonderful gardens and orchards.

The evening sessions of the convention will be held in the historic First Congregational church. This building is a landmark in San Francisco. The congregation was organized July 29, 1849, by the Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, who became the first permanently located minister in the state of California. The present building was erected in 1872, since which time its tall spire, piercing the blue to a height of 95 feet, has looked down on many changes in the great city lying below. Within its sacred walls many notable gatherings having to do with the religious interests of the Pacific Coast have been held, but the writer begs leave to prophesy that none will equal in religious significance to this whole western country, the convention, which is to meet there Aug. 17-24, 1905. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 1,600. Its acoustic properties are perfect; the view of the pulpit is unobstructed from every seat, and the scene within the church is an impressive one from every point within the vast building. It is built in English Gothic style, its groined arches, sprung so boldly over the heads of the worshipers at a distance of 85 feet from the floor, giving a cathedral-like effect that is very impressive. The organ is one of the finest on the coast, and was installed but a few years ago. It is presided over by Mr. Samuel D. Mayer, who has furnished the music to this congregation faithfully for 33 years. The church is amply supplied with lecture rooms, parlors, committee rooms, making it adapted to all the needs of our convention. The best part of the story is told, however, only when it is explained that these two splendidly equipped meeting places are not in different parts of the city, but are directly contiguous to each other. From the front door of one to the rear entrance of the church is but a step; thus, overflow meetings are easily arranged for without the loss of the mass effect of one of our great conventions. The two halls together give a seating capacity of about 3,000, and in case the number swells beyond that, the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, seating 1,000 more, is at our dispsoal.

* *

Changes.

F. A. Wight, 641 W. 9th to 1014 Cherry St., Erie, Pa.
Wm. A. Ward, New Albany, Ind., to Henderson, Ky.
Wren J. Grinstead, York, Neb., to Box 121 A, South McAlester, I. T.
Charles Laycock, Canton, Mo., to Ursa, Ill.
W. M. Forrest, Charlottesville, Va., to Mt. Sterling, Ky.
John Young, Lodi, Cal., to Reno, Nevada.
J. E. Sturdivant, Grove, I. T., to Springdale, Ark.
E. H. Kellar, Carrollton, Mo., to Covina, Cal.
B. L. Allen, Harriman, Tenn., to 388 Downey Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.
G. W. Woodbury, Hazel Green, Ky., to Rogers, O.

* *

Ministerial Exchange.

There is a good paying laundry for sale here (town 12,000) Member of the Christian church preferred. J. L. Thompson, Peru, Indiana.

H. H. Saunders, singing evangelist, Noblesville, Ind., will be open for two or three weeks' meeting immediately after May 21. Tent or church.

Wanted.—A good chorus leader; one capable of teaching music, especially voice culture, to locate in Danville, Ill. Danville is a city of 30,000 population. The right person can find a good chorus to lead and a fine location for teaching music. For particulars address, J. H. Smart, pastor First church of Christ, 309 W. Seminary St., Danville, Ill.

POND'S EXTRACT
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
INFLAMMATION
is quickly reduced by applying cloths wet with hot Pond's Extract to the inflamed parts.
Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of seventy samples of Witch Hazel—so often offered as "just as good"—fifty two were found to contain wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both. To avoid danger of poisoning insist on having
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
POND'S EXTRACT

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

Illinois.

The Murphysboro church has had a varied history and has suffered many losses by removals and deaths, but there is a faithful few undaunted and persevering. E. W. Brickert had just closed a short meeting with a few additions and the propriety of employing him as regular minister was being considered. The Sunday-school was active and a small but faithful C. W. B. M. auxiliary is doing a good business. By harmonious, persistent work, with sacrifice by all the members, a strong church will be built up in Murphysboro.

The Pulaski church is about two miles in the county and is known as "Christian chapel" congregation. It was organized by I. A. J. Parker, one of our venerable ministers, who never grows old, of Vienna, Ill. The work is about seven years old and Brother Parker is still the minister, with no talk of change. The membership is composed of substantial country people.

The Cairo church is still in its old house, but the building fund is growing and it will not be long until this faithful company will be in an elegant new house. The much loved young minister, Frank Wieland, has for some time been in very poor health, and much concern is felt about his recovery. He has been taken to his parents' home in Oklahoma for a rest. The little church justly and generously continues his salary. Such a church deserves to prosper and it will. A brother Sickels, who came to us recently from the Baptists, serves at present as supply, he is also a business man and is highly spoken of both as a man and minister.

By oversight I failed to mention that Cobden is the home of C. S. Towne, a venerable man of God whose writings especially have been of much value. His mind is still clear but his natural strength is much abated and he waits for the change to come. May the grace of God be with him.

The church at Grand Chain is without regular preaching but observes the Lord's supper regularly every Lord's day and keeps upon an enthusiastic Sunday-school. It is unusually blessed with efficient men to help in social services. The venerable James Bartleson is a kind of spiritual father to the church and while he is competent to instruct the church makes no pretentions to preaching. Often a church makes a serious mistake not to have the gospel preached, simply because it can get along, in a fashion, without a preacher. This is a good little church and can have great power in all that country.

The church at Metropolis has had many trials. Its early efforts, during the war seemed to be entirely lost, but along about '70 the work was renewed until now it is one of strongest churches in southern Illinois. J. F. McCartney, a consecrated business man, has put much time, thought, prayer and money into it. His influence has been felt all over the district and beyond. The church numbers, all told, about 150 members. H. M. Polsgrove, late of Kentucky, is doing a most excellent work in the church and town. The whole town seems to be his parish and everybody looks to him as a most devoted and valuable friend. The Sunday-school is full of life, the C. W. B. M. auxiliary and the Christian Endeavor are weak but faithful. Metropolis is a most delightful little city of 5,000 people on the Ohio river.

Brookport is a smaller town, ten miles up the river from Metropolis. The church is comparatively new but strong and has many of the leading people of the town in it. It also is sampling for a preacher which it very much needs. The field is ripe for the harvest and the right man will doubtless do a fine work there. J. G. Waggoner.

Northern California Notes.

The work in northern California keeps going apace. Many meetings are in progress and more are planned.

J. V. Updike closed a good meeting at Ukiah recently and is now in a meeting at Lakeport.—R. E. McKnight, of Saratoga, has been in a meeting at Elk Creek where T. F. Rawlins labors. Sister M. M. Shields is assisting.—G. A. Ragan, of Winters, has just closed a good meeting with home forces.

Our Christian colony is growing apace. Over $80,000 worth of full bearing orchard lots have been sold. We have as much more yet to be had. Purchases closed before June 1 get this year's crop, which will net in six months more than the cash payment required. Bro. W. M. White, of San Francisco West Side church, was out here some days ago. Ask him about it. There are 25 members in the colony now and as many more represented in families who have purchased but are not yet on the ground.

Our national convention at San Francisco, August 17-24, offers a great opportunity to visit California, the Christian colony, our first great convention west of the Rocky Mountains and the Portland exposition. San Fransisco is the metropolis of the Pacific coast, the great port for oriental trade. Here are found the finest harbors in the world. The city is noted for its beauty, its bays, its parks and its climate, only six degrees difference between the mean annual summer and winter temperatures. The greatest range of temperature between the hottest day in summer and the coldest night in winter is only about 50 degrees or what might be found in 24 hours often in the east.

The committee on arrangements is working hard to make the convention a success. We are now working to have California fresh fruits in season for free distribution. It is certain that you good people who come from the east to our convention this year will carry home indelible memories of California. You will miss a great opportunity if you miss this great convention. J. P. Dargitz.

Acampo, Cal.

Lexington Notes.

The local auxiliaries of the C. W. B. M. are working to meet their portion of the $2,000 which the auxiliaries of the state must this year raise in order to support their missionaries, namely, Miss Jane Adams in Deoghur, India, and Miss Nora Collins in Porto Rico, and keep up the scholarships in the normal schools at Hazel Green and Morehead, Ky. The effort these noble women of Kentucky made last year to raise money and build and equip a girls' dormitory at Hazel Green at a cost of about $7,000 was crowned with success. The building was dedicated last month, but no sooner occupied than it was found that the attendance at the school demanded further enlargement. The auxiliary of Broadway church furnished a room in the new dormitory at a cost of $200 and named the room in honor of Pres. J. W. McGarvey. The auxiliary of the Central church did the same and named the room in honor of Mrs. Lizzie Bradley, who has been treasurer of the state C. W. B. M. board since it was first organized more than 20 years ago.

The mission points under the Lexington Christian mission board were never so flourishing. Forest Hill heads the list R. E. Alexander, of St. Louis, is in charge, and all services are well attended, while the Sunday-school is a prodigy. The attendance has gone up and up until it has reached over 200. The building, which is 28x30 feet, is filled to its full capacity and classes overlap one another while being taught. The mission board has bargained for the property and improvements will be made to the building. Arlington mission comes next. M. A. Cassaboom is in charge. A Sunday-school and prayer-meeting are kept up. The mission board has raised $1,000 to build a chapel at this point. The school house is now the meeting place. The mission long known as "Irishtown mission," but now changed to "Willard street" has been sustained for four years by College of the Bible Students. It is now under the care of the mission board. The house was recently bought by the Christian Endeavor societies of our Lexington churches and turned over to the board, which has repaired it and put up a bell. Alley Rector is in charge. There is other mission work carried on by College of the Bible students in the northeast suburbs of the city, which has not come under the direct care of the mission board but which is fostered by it. C. W. Famuliner is now leading the forces there and Sunday-school is held in a school house, while prayer-meeting and preaching is held in homes.

Lexington, Ky. Barclay Meador.

The Cause in Reno, Nevada.

Last October Brother R. L. McHatton held a meeting here in a tent, and organized a church, the only one of our people in the state. He enrolled 32 names. They meet in a hall, and the elders conduct services. Bro. M. Marks, one of the elders, had preached some in Oregon, and he labored in word and doctrine here.

They maintained weekly communion and Sunday-school and midweek prayer-meeting from the start. The Santa Rosa church, California, and the C. W. B. M. agreed to help them financially. Through them, I was asked to come up and care for the mission until a suitable man could be found to take the work permanently. I told them that, while I thought I could preach just as well as ever—a common idea with old preachers—I could not wear out as much sole leather as I used to do. But I went, and have labored there two months. I first visited all the members and encouraged them to attend services and help financially. I then visited all I could hear of who had been members elsewhere, and exhorted them to renew their vows to serve the Lord. Then, where I could hear of any who had Christian parents, brothers or sisters, but were not professed Christians, I called on them. After this, where I saw a new house going up I learned who were going to live there, and when they moved in, I visited them and invited them to attend worship with us. So we began with a handful, but have grown in attendance constantly. We have had six added in the two months I have been laboring for them; five others have sent for letters. We now number 37, and our Sunday-school about 25. We have midweek prayer-meeting from house to house, and have 15 to 20 in attendance. My wife was with me the last five weeks, and helped very much. Through her a ladies' aid society was organized of eight members, which has increased to 12. Some good sister of Cleveland, Ohio, made the church a present of a communion set, pitcher, four goblets and four plates. The ladies' aid bought table linen in good taste. So we now have the table well furnished.

Brother McHatton has had a constant care of this church ever since he held his meeting, and it was through his solicitation the communion set was given. Through him I came. I thank God for such men as have a care for the people they bring into the church, and do all they can to help them. Through him and Bro. Peter Colvin, of the Santa Rosa church, and the C. W. B. M., we have a man, Bro. John Young, late of Albany, Mo., who will become their settled pastor. He begins his labors Sunday, May 14. We have raised by subscription $52 per month to run until $500 is raised, toward buying a lot on which to build a house of worship. A house is the great need. All the halls are occupied by fraternal societies, so I could not get any place to preach Sunday evenings. Reno is a city of 10,000 and growing at the rate of 1,000 a year. It is a genuine missionary field. We have no other church in the state. We ought to build up here, and make this a strong church, and then go out into other cities and villages and start other churches.

The great U. S. irrigating enterprise is now opening for homesteaders. There will be 250,000 acres of land to be settled; very productive when it gets water on it. The land is free under the homestead law, but the homesteader will have to pay $2.60 per acre annually for water for ten years. After that water will be free. A splendid chance for a young man to get a home, if he will remember the old adage, "The oyster grows fat sticking to the rock," and just stay by it ten years. He can take up 40, 80, 120, or 160, but no more. Choice land and near town, is limited to 40 acres. The Christian brotherhood ought to join in and help establish a good church in Reno. J. H. McCollough.

❖ ❖

Ohio Letter.

J. G. Slayter will leave High street, Akron, Aug. 1, for the East End church, Pittsburg. This is a great source of regret to all Ohio Disciples and to the High street church. It is quite hard to submit gracefully, but if "what can't be cured must be endured," we will reluctantly acquiesce and bid a hearty Godspeed to Brother Slayter and congralulate East End church and western Pennsylvania. The annual banquet of the men's organization, the brotherhood, of High street, Akron, was held Monday night, May 8. Plates were laid for 130 men. The Ohio man made the address of the evening and counted it a great privilege to be in such a delightful fellowship.

While in Akron it was learned that Albert Stahl has had a very successful year at Wabash avenue, adding 56 to the church roll and raising $2,300 in cash, $900 of which went on the church debt.

C. A. McDonald closed a three weeks' meeting at the Fourth church on Easter in which 25 were added. This work is going encouragingly and has a bright future.

R. A. McCorkle, who graduates this year at Hiram, will become bishop at Cambridge May 14. This is a new church and has a field and force that promises a successful future.

The Euclid avenue church, Cleveland, will bid farewell to the old walls of the church May 28. The new structure will be begun at once and pushed as rapidly as possible.

WE WANT YOU
TO SELL OUR ORIENTAL MASSAGE CREAM
and ORIENTAL SHAMPOO.
They have a national reputation and will bring you in a large income. Full size samples and terms free.
THE ORIENTAL MFG. CO., Station C, Cleveland, O.

Popping of lamp-chimneys is music to grocers.
MACBETH.

If you use a wrong chimney, you lose a good deal of both light and comfort, and waste a dollar or two a year a lamp on chimneys.

Do you want the Index? Write me.

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

John Munro has closed his pastorate at Rudolph, Wood county. On May 7 he preached for the church at Millersburg.

C. A. Freer will occupy the "Auld Manse" at Painesville, June 1, and begin to break the bread of life to that people June 4.

Wesley Hatcher has done a remarkable work at Chicago avenue, Columbus. He began four years ago with about 25 people. Now they have a well appointed church property worth $7,000 and between 300 and 400 members. Sunday, May 14, was farewell day, Brother Hatcher having accepted a call to Hamilton, O. Chicago avenue did her best to have him reconsider his resignation, but he thought it best to go. Hamilton will find in him a genuine Christian man and an efficient preacher and leader.

R. A. Omer has been assisting A. B. Moore in a successful meeting at Alliance.

The state Sunday-school convention will meet at Canton, June 6-8. It will be a great convention. The state Christian Endeavor convention will be held at Dayton, June 27-29.

It now seems inevitable that Mr. Herrick will be renominated for governor by the Republican party May 25. It also seems as certain that he will be defeated at the polls. The church will be on trial as never before in Ohio this fall. Let every Christian voter beware of the tricks of the politician. All the pressure possible of all kinds ever known to political history will be used to whip men into line. Let the voice of the church be united, and victory will be ours. C. A. Freer.

Collinwood, Ohio.

❖ ❖

Missouri Bible-school Notes.

Have you organized a Bible-school yet this spring? Go out, my brother, to that school house. Call the people together. Lead them in the selection of needed officers and set them to work. It's easy.

J. N. Crutcher, of Chillicothe, says, "Bible-school increased from 98 to 257," and in the next sentence says, "75 additions since April 10." That is the way it goes. A successful Bible-school means baptisms. A poor one or none—and very few baptisms.

Some one says, "Do you find objections to Bible-schools?" How could anyone object to people meeting together to study the word of God?

W. T. Spainhower says that the school has doubled and wants more buttons. He also asks for a Bible-school institute. Look out for a revival up there this fall. That's the road.

Jasper county rally was fine; 50 teachers were present at the day session. W. F. Turner said it was as "good as a session of the state convention."

Livingston, Carroll, Randolph, Monroe and some others know a good thing and will have rallies soon.

One school reports a baby day in the school. There were 38 babies in their mothers' arms on the choir platform.

B. H. Hickok, of Eldon, says, "We are proud of our Bible-school and want you to visit us."

Mexico and Platte City have each just ordered "Teachers and Teaching" by Trumbull for their teachers to read. It is $1.25. Get it.

Remember the convention is at Marshall, June 16-21. Plan to go. Every school should send their superintendent. Let the school pay the fare and the superintendent give the time, and it will be even.

Have you sent your offering for this work this year? W. A. Moore.

Mexico.

❖ ❖

West Virginia.

The general home offering has been taking the attention of our pastors. They have prepared sermons and the congregations have learned something of the needs of our great home field. B. L. Smith has put commendable zeal into the work of the general home field. His work in this state is a monument of what he has done for the cause of the Master in West Virginia.

The June offering in our Sunday-schools is receiving a good share of attention in all parts of our state. The foreign offering has made a great increase in our churches; several congregations that never took up an offering for foreign missions did so this year. We believe this will be true of our Sunday-schools and we urge all our superintendents to look after the offering in June. See that your school takes up the offering.

In my next letter I want to have something to say about the work in the Great Kanawha valley. One preacher has gone up and down this valley for over 20 years preaching Christ. It has required the patience of Job to contend against anti-ism and the indifference that has grown out of the narrowness of its teachings. But this man of God has kept along the line of duty and now God is showing him the results of his labors. There are a number of good pastors in this section of our state.

A. Linkletter.

❖ ❖

Wanted Agents.

Men and women living at home to act as agents selling Radiozone. Good money easily made. Write for particulars to The Radium Ozone Co., 1140 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago.

Living Praise
By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling
Sacred Songs Suitable for All Occasions
267 Sacred Songs; a very large proportion of them new. The best collection of high class music ever produced among our people.
Three Styles of Binding.
PRICES:
$15.00, $20.00, $25.00 per hundred
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

A GAS RANGE in the COUNTRY

You can have a Gas Range and be as cool and comfortable in your kitchen as your city sister is in hers. The Quick Meal makes its own gas—you can use it anywhere without connections—and it's safe, simple, economical, durable—it is cleanliness itself and gives less trouble than a kerosene lamp. We've looked after that. A child or an untrained hired girl can use it safely. Fuel only costs 4c or 6c a day—no kindling, ashes, soot or dirt when you use a

QUICK MEAL (Evaporator) GASOLINE RANGE

—and it's made to last, too—thick, heavy sheet steel and brass—nothing complicated—nothing which can wear out. Has drop end, shelf, nickeled teapot shelves and a spacious warming closet (right-hand door), which will keep the food warm till the "men folks" come, without drying it up. Your kitchen work is done in half the time when you have a Quick Meal, for you never have to wait for your fire—it's always piping hot. You ought to have a Quick Meal this minute. If your dealer hasn't got them on hand, ask us; we have.

TRADE MARK

Would You Like a Present? We will send you something useful—something you'll like—if you'll simply tell us your dealer's name and say whether or not he carries Quick Meal. Sign your name plainly, so the present will be sure to reach you safely.

Ringen Stove Co. Div., Makers, 408 N. 6th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Indiana Missionary Convention.

The sixty-sixth year of the missionary society of churches of Christ in Indiana closed its best annual convention at Bedford, May 18. While the attendance was not as large as at some former conventions, because the place was not so central, yet it was conceded to be the most enthusiastic convention for Indiana missions within the memory of those present.

The program was planned to emphasize, above all else, state missions. With but few exceptions the speakers were present and all were well prepared. The great church at Bedford, under the masterly leadership of their efficient and consecrated pastor, Bro. E. Richard Edwards, had made every detail of the entertainment ready to serve the highest interests of the convention.

From the organization in 1839 to last September, the society has had a money spending department, but during all those 65 years it has not had a systematic money raising department. To this long neglected work J. O. Rose was called, last September, as corresponding or financial secretary. During these eight months he has been busily engaged reducing chaos to order in his new department, and at the same time endeavoring to increase "the sinews of war." In his arduous labors he has had the hearty support of all who understand the opportunities and needs of the work, and this number is rapidly growing. There has been increase in all departments. The report of the corresponding secretary showed about 15 per cent gain in finances in eight months and gave for the first time a complete alphabetical list of all the 964 churches in the state, with the amounts given from each to foreign, American and state missions. A copy of this report ought to be in the hands of every Disciple in the state. Four hundred and ninety churches gave to missions, 474 did not give. Only 133 gave to state missions, but there was an increase over last year.

The state evangelist, T. J. Legg, in his report showed that the work done had exceeded that of the past year. Twenty-six meetings had been held by the state evangelist, long and short, with 392 accessions to the churches; 33 meetings had been held by assistant evangelists. The total accessions in all these meetings, under direction of the state board, were 1,326.

Thus Indiana has maintained her marvelous record for the soul winning power of each missionary dollar. (Only $3,445.74 were raised for all purposes.) Assistant evangelists and missionaries employed, whole or part time, were 27; standing missions supported, 14; churches organized, 32; weak churches helped, 50; Sunday-schools organized, 33; churches dedicated, 5; sermons preached, 391; Sunday-school (institute) and other addresses, 280; counseled with churches, settling difficulties, 36; correspondence resulting in locating preachers, 136. Besides this, there is much detail of valuable service which we have not space to record. If the tree can be judged by its fruits, Indiana has one of the greatest evangelists in America. The saddest feature of the report is the utter neglect of state missions by so many, even of the missionary churches.

It is believed by all present, however, that all that is necessary to arouse interest and enlist support of state work is to tell the brethren the facts. To this end The Indiana Christian is to be again published. Henceforth it is to be the state mission paper, owned and controlled by the state board. It will be monthly and subscription rates 25 cents a year. This, it is hoped, will be a connecting link between the work and the supporters of the work.

DIVINITY SCHOOL
—OF—
HARVARD UNIVERSITY
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
AN UNDENOMINATIONAL SCHOOL
OF THEOLOGY.
Announcement for 1905-06, Now Ready.

Every address on the program is worthy of special mention, but lack of space forbids. In view of the growing importance of our educational work, its fundamental necessity to continued progress, it is proper to mention the two great addresses by two of our leading educators. Pres. L. M. Sniff, of the Tri-state normal college, at Angola, on "The Christian Religion, All Sufficient and All Conquering," thrilled and inspired his audience with his logical support and lofty ideals of the Christian religion in all the affairs of life, but especially in the relations of the church and the school. Pres. W. E. Garrison, of Butler university, presented in a masterly way the subject, "Men and the Arms," and with clear analysis and a teacher's vision showed how the solution of all problems in the church must at last be found in the solution of the preacher problem as the well equipped college only can prepare the way.

The convention was delighted to hear Bro. J. H. Garrison, editor of the Christian-Evangelist, in an address on "The origin and Growth of the C. W. B. M.," in the absence of the speaker on that theme. It was a most delightful and helpful address and will long be remembered as a great uplift. The writer reluctantly refrains from further mention of speakers and program. With expressions of gratitude to our heavenly Father for victories won, with earnest resolutions to enter the many open doors of opportunity in Indiana with increased offerings, and with joyful notes of hope for the year to come, the convention adjourned to meet in their sixty-seventh annual convention twelve months hence with the church at La Fayette. J. O. Rose.

Indianapolis, Ind.

* *

Kentucky.

The ninth district Sunday school and C. W. B. M. convention, which was held at Nicholasville, May 4, 5, was quite a success. The attendance was large, the interest good and the reports of the work of the past year in this district were gratifying. The convention next year will be held with the church at Frankfort.—The church at Versailles is taking on new life under the faithful ministry of R. J. Bamber. An "old people's service" was recently held there which was quite helpful.—C. R. Hudson is getting well established in his work at Frankfort, and is held in highest esteem by all in our little capital city.—W. N. Briney, of Warrensburg, Mo., has accepted the call recently extended him by the Broadway church, Louisville, and will begin his work in that field about July 1. We are glad to welcome him back to "old Kentucky," where he is so well and favorably known.—E. L. Powell, of Louisville, will deliver the address to the graduating class of the Kentucky female orphan school, Midway, at their commencement on May 23. Brother Powell was recently tendered a "testimonial banquet" by about 400 of the business men of Louisville, at which time he and his wife were presented with a handsome silver pitcher.

A very successful meeting has just been closed at the Forest Hill mission, Lexington, which resulted in 61 additions. The preaching was done by J. B. Hunley, a former pastor of the South Side church, Lexington.—G. A. Miller, of Covington, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Hazel Green academy, on May 14, and I. J. Spencer, of Lexington, delivered the annual address on May 17.—J. W. Ligon, of Corydon, recently closed a meeting there with home forces, which resulted in 10 baptisms.—J. M. Helm, of Hillsboro, O., recently assisted W. A. Oaks in a splendid meeting at Greenup, which resulted in 41 additions.—We are glad to report two more confessions at our regular service here on last Sunday night. Geo. W. Kemper.

Midway, Ky.

"The Witness of Jesus"

—BY—

ALEXANDER PROCTER

A cloth-bound volume of 404 pages.

Every Christian, particularly preachers of the Word should have it on their book shelves.

Price, $1.25.

Christian Publishing Company

St. Louis, Mo.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—Good home convenient to College, Eureka, Ill. Address, 620 Hillyer, St., Pekin, Ill.

AN opportunity for stock of Hardware, Harness Maker, Stock of Furniture, Physician, Carpenter, Cotton Gin. address, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ter.

FOR SALE—Timber lands of 80 to 5,000 acres, farms and city property. Great opportunities. W. H. Bell, Real Estate Agency, Jonesboro, Arkansas.

WE have farms, ranches and city homes located near good churches, which we can sell at reasonable prices. Write us for particulars. P. H. GUY & CO., Winfield, Kansas.

FOR SALE—One set Spurgeon's Treasury of David; one set Puritan Fathers Sermons; Butler's Bible Commentary; also seventy-five good evangelistic song books, Hackleman & Houston, all cheap for cash. S. J. Corey, 2 Lloyd St., Rochester, N. Y.

INVEST your surplus money in St. Louis REAL ESTATE. We have some good paying apartments, paying as much as 10, 12 1-2 and 15 per cent, on made streets and 20 minutes ride to P. O. Olive through cars. We will attend to collecting rents for you. Reference furnished. R. H. W. Godwin, 4971 Delmar, St. Louis.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

South Bend, Ind., May 19.—Fourteen, fifteen, seventeen, thirty, additions here in four days this week. Two hundred and eighteen added to date and meeting continues.—Charles Reign Scoville.

ARKANSAS.

Paragould, May 14.—Commenced a meeting here April 2, and closed to-night, with 57 additions. R. O. Rogers is the minister in charge, having served this church six years. Excessive rainfall interfered greatly with the meeting.—Evangelist E. E. Davidson, 421 Altman Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

CALIFORNIA.

Pasadena, May 15.—Yesterday we entered upon the third week of our meeting with 47 added. I am told that the Sunday-school attendance yesterday—350—was probably the largest in the church history. We will continue our meeting another week. I have been called as minister here, till Brother Dowling is able to return. I may accept.—Sumner T. Martin.

COLORADO.

Denver, May 15.—Three persons confessed Christ in the South Broadway church Lord's day, May 14, and four were baptized.—B. B. Tyler.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington, May 16.—Took offering for home missions first Lord's day in May. Also received $100 for building fund. Two received into fellowship. All departments of work in a flourishing condition. Recently gave my lecture on "The Book of Books," at Downsville, Maryland, to a large and an appreciative audience. Am getting ready for San Francisco.—J. Murray Taylor.

Washington, May 16.—Just closed a three weeks' meeting at 34th street church with 19 additions—14 by confession and baptism and five by letter and statement. Preaching by pastor. Music led by W. R. D. Winters, assistant pastor 9th street church. A great interest was aroused, congregations large, and a permanent good done.—Claude C. Jones, pastor.

Washington, May 16.—Ministers' meeting yesterday held on board Steamer Macalester. Present: J. Murray Taylor, F. D. Power, J. E. Stuart, E. B. Bagby, Chas. Jarrett, Walter F. Smith, W. T. Laprade and the writer. Additions reported: Ninth street (E. B. Bagby), three by confession and one by letter; Whitney avenue (Walter F. Smith), one by letter; 15th street (S. E. Stuart), six by confession and seven by letter or statement; 34th street (Claude C. Jones), 11 by confession and three by statement. Total 32—20 by confession and baptism and 12 by letter or statement. Corner stone of new Whitney avenue building to be laid on May 26.—Claude C. Jones, secretary.

ILLINOIS.

Athens, May 15.—Two baptisms here yesterday and three others not yet reported.

Pekin, May 15.—One young lady made the good confession at the regular services last evening. Four other confessions recently at regular services, not reported.—J. A. Barnett.

Watseka, May 7.—We have had six additions to the church since last report; two by letter, one by statement, and three by confession. Work is moving along nicely.—David J. Elsea, pastor.

Chicago, May 15.—A notable occasion in the twenty-five years' history of the Englewood Christian church was decision day, May 7, when 34 of our Sunday-school pupils definitely decided for Christ. Bro. W. C. Pearce, one of our elders, was foremost in planning for and securing this success. Our midweek prayer-meeting was in this interest, and on the next evening a teachers' and officers' prayer-meeting was held. The Sunday-school exercises on decision day—the Lord's day following—was largely a service of prayer, song and testimony by Christians, Brother Pearce being in charge of the service. The boys, and afterwards the girls, were asked to indicate their desire to begin the Christian life, by rising to their feet, the leader assuring them that he in no wise purposed to urge or over-persuade. They arose in different parts of the room, the minister, Brother Kindred, then taking the service. At the close, those who had stood, tarried for a conference with the minister, who arranged with the 34 who had thus declared themselves, to come to the church service the next Lord's day and there make the "good confession." The ages of the children range from 9 to 16. At yesterday morning's church service 22 of these boys and girls went forward and confessed their Savior. The baptisms were attended to at a special three o'clock service in the afternoon. We look for the remaining 13 of the number to follow soon.—W. P. Keeler.

INDIANA.

Covington, May 15.—One added yesterday, making 32 since January 1.—P. W. Walthall, minister.

Indianapolis, May 15.—Yesterday at Lynn a husband and wife made the good confession.—Willis M. Cunningham.

Huntington.—Cephas Shelburne reports five baptisms on Wednesday last. It is the exception when additions are not had in this church every Sunday; and the building will not accommodate the audiences.

Ft. Wayne, May 15.—Four additions to W. Jefferson street yesterday, two the week before, and every week additions is the rule. In June I begin a tent campaign in north part of city to establish our third mission.—E. W. Allen.

New Salem, May 17.—Thirty additions in ten days at Little Flat Rock—28 confessions and more to follow. Frank B. Thomas is young but strenuous in his presentation of the truth. Fine congregations in spite of bad weather.—Herbert H. Saunders, singing evangelist, Noblesville.

New Albany.—Three accessions by confession and baptism.—Wm. A. Ward, Park church.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Weleetka, May 17.—Twenty-six additions in meeting here, conducted by Pastor F. Hooker Groom, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Williamson, singers.

Okmulgee, May 15.—Our meeting has come to a close with seventy-eight accessions, making ninety-three since we came here Aug. 1, 1904, a gain in membership of one hundred and sixteen per cent. This work was done in a tabernacle through most unfavorable weather for the most part, and by hard work, in proclaiming the word of God, and perseverance in persuading men and women to accept the Christ. We feel that we have reason to rejoice from every standpoint. But few thought we could do it, now we think we can do anything, and you may expect greater things from this splendid congregation in the future. We have the plans for our new building, and will go forward with its erection soon. We are developing a wonderful field here, it seems to me. This can be done in many places down here, but not as the result of a summer vacation or a trip for the health. It requires work as well as ability, and the sacrifice necessary is not the least phase to consider. The Lord will bless the faithful servant who will come here and labor faithfully. I have only words of commendation to offer for Ray E. Dew, my co-worker in this meeting. He is a good singer, but, best of all, an exemplary young man, willing to do anything to save souls.—Frank L. Van Voorhis.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Koot, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis Christian-Evangelist. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Garden City, May 19.—At our last appointment at Santa Fe we had 14 confessions and baptisms. Many of the best people in the county are accepting the "old plea." Since our meeting of last month we have had 38 additions.—Victor Goodrich.

IOWA.

Oelwein, May 15.—Three more baptisms yesterday. This makes 100 additions in the last few months. Three hundred and thirty in our Sunday-school. Begin our fifth year with this people June 1, under exceedingly favorable circumstances.—J. T. Shreve.

Cherokee, May 15.—Our meeting is two weeks old. Twenty accessions. Fourteen conversions. Six by letter and statement. Church in fine shape. People are stirred. Continue.—G. A. Butler, singing evangelist, S. R. Reynolds, pastor.

KANSAS.

Isabel, May 12.—Meeting continues with interest. Twenty-two addditions to date. Will close Sunday, May 14, and begin at Carmen, I. T., May 16.—A. E. Wrentmore, evangelist, Bert I. Bentley, singer.

Atlanta, May 15.—Began here Saturday. Two additions yesterday. The pastor is P. H. Guy. Collection for home missions yesterday, was $5. We hope for a great meeting here. This is an excellent church. Brother Guy has been here five years.—N. A. Stull, evangelist.

Eureka, May 19.—Thirteen added at our regular services last Sunday. The prospect never was so bright for the Christian church in Eureka. Our Sunday evening audiences are the largest in the history of the church.—G. F. Bradford.

KENTUCKY.

Owensboro, May 16.—W. E. Harlow and LeRoy St. John were with us fifteen days; results, 80 additions—45 baptisms and 35 by relation and from the denominations.—R. H. Crossfield.

MISSOURI.

Fredericktown, May 16.—April 30 at Mountain Oak church of Christ, one addition (membership now 44); May 7 at Knob Lick, 5 additions (membership now 20). T. J. Head, former state evangelist, is now holding meeting.—S. P. Gross, pastor.

Crisp, May 15.—I am in a meeting here for the Dade county missionary board. The meeting is one week old. Twenty-two additions, with good prospects for more; interest deepening; house could not hold the people.—E. W. Yocum.

St. Louis, May 16.—One addition yesterday at one of my regular appointments.—W. H. Kern.

Frankford, May 15.—Work moving well; one added Lord's day and more to follow. We are planning a meeting in October with J. M. Elam as preacher.—J. M. Bailey.

Liberty.—One confession.—R. S. Frank.

Bogard, May 16.—We had four additions at Hale Sunday: two by letter, one by statement, one from Baptists.—C. C. Taylor.

Braymer, May 15.—Two additions at regular service yesterday. All departments of the church work moving along well.—C. E. Hunt.

Laddonia, May 19.—We have recently held a union meeting here which resulted in eleven baptisms at the Christian church and six otherwise. Our work is growing here. B. Marion Harris was the evangelist in our meeting.—J. D. Greer.

Sweet Springs, May 20.—We have been in a short meeting at this place with home forces. We have had the best attendance and interest this town has given in years; 20 additions to date, 15 by baptism.—F. B. Elmore.

OKLAHOMA.

Chandler, May 15.—Eleven additions since last report. Our Bible-school has increased each Lord's day for six weeks. We sent $50 to relieve the sufferers at Snyder, Oklahoma.—J. E. Dinger, pastor.

Lawton, May 16—Our meeting here continued five weeks and one day. Immediate results, 60 additions. The church and community at large considers this the most successful meeting ever held in Lawton. Cold evenings in the beginning, heavy rains frequently, and muddy streets nearly all the time, constantly depleted our audiences, and a number of times prevented our having any meeting at all. Brother and Sister Stephens did excellent work and greatly endeared themselves to the church and community. They started for their home in Portland, Oregon, yesterday. The church here has been greatly strengthened spiritually by the meeting, and I believe is now on the road to a splendid success. They now have the best house of worship and a stronger membership than any church in Lawton.—H. T. Morrison, pastor.

Hennessey, May 16.—Three additions last night, two by letter and one by statement.—Thomas H. Popplewell.

OREGON.

Portland, May 15.—Since Jan. 1, 1905, there have been 77 accessions to the First Christian church of Portland, Ore., 31 of these by primary obedience, as against 72 during the whole of 1904, 15 of whom were by primary obedience. The church was never in better financial condition. Missionary offerings largest in history of the church, over $75 each for foreign and home missions.—E. S. Muckley.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Erie, May 15.—Six additions by baptism since last report. We reached our apportionment in home missions.—F. A. Wight.

TENNESSEE.

Shelbyville, May 17.—In a short meeting here, which closed May 12, we had 32 additions, 5 Baptists, 4 Methodists, 4 Presbyterians, 2 reclaimed and 17 by primary obedience from the world. I took charge of the work here for one year commencing last Lord's day. There were 4 added—2 by letter, 1 from Presbyterians by baptism, 1 from world.—E. E. Violett.

TEXAS.

McKinney, May 18.—Our meeting has been in progress two weeks; sixty-seven additions to date.—H. A. Northcutt, evangelist; G. L. Bush, pastor.

VIRGINIA.

Danville, May 10.—We have recently had six additions to our congregation here, three were by obedience, two by statement, and one by letter. The congregation here gave us a severe pounding not long ago, for which we are truly thankful. T. R. Campbell and family moved from here to Nances Mill, N. C. They and others in the community are very anxious to build a church. Brother Campbell is selling nice contribution plates, which he makes, in order to raise funds with which to build a house. They sell at $1 per pair. Will not the church in need of contribution plates send him a dollar for a set of plates? Address T. R. Campbell, Leaksville, N. C. Dr. B. T. Bitting and myself expect to preach there in a school house monthly, and will hold a meeting there soon.—J. A. Spencer.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
Christian Workers' New Testament
With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter
Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices: - - - 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - - St. Louis, Mo.

$50 POSITION
PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED
The first ten who clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and send to
DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
St. Louis, 10th and Olive, Kansas City, Ft. Scott, Little Rock or Fort Worth, may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured, If not secured no pay required.
COURSE BY MAIL FREE
If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mal FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co. has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors, and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

For the Spiritual and Financial Improvement of the Church.
A New Tract of 24 Pages
The Christian Use of the Tithe System
By G. L. WHARTON
Fresh From Our Press.
3 cents each. 25 cents per dozen.
$1.50 per hundred.
Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Normal Bible Studies
For Teachers, Classes Institutes and Assemblies
The
Normal Instructor
By W. W. DOWLING
In Seven Parts as Follows:
I.—The Book
II.—The Christ III.—The Church
IV.—The Land V.—The Institutions
VI.—The History VII.—The People
Each Part Bound Separately In Strong Manila Covers : :
PRICE:
15c. per Copy. $1.50 per Dozen
Christian Publishing Co.
St. Louis, Missouri

MARRIAGES.

LIGHT—LIGHT.—At Plattsburg, Mo., May 10, 1905, by J. W. Perkins, Samuel Light and Miss Belle Light, both of Clinton county, Mo.

SAGER — WALKER. — On May 1, 1905, at Muskogee, I. T., Henry P. Sager and Miss Eliza N. Walker, J. H. Crutcher officiating.

❖

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

CLARK.

Mr. Harry Clark, an elder of the church of Christ, Cato, N. Y., died May 6, 1905, aged 79 years. S. B. BRADEN.

INFIELD.

At La Fayette, Ind., April 6, a touching home funeral service was conducted by Will F. Shaw, of Charleston, Ill., assisted by Brother Conner, of La Fayette, in memory of Mrs. Anna Belle Infield, wife of Bro. George W. Infield. Sister Infield's maiden name was Borland. She was born in Pennsylvania, Jan. 21, 1859. After their marriage in 1878, both husband and wife came into the church at Milburn, Ia., in 1887. They labored at Osceola, Ia., Princeton and Chicago, Ill., and La Fayette, Ind. The church has lost in her death one of its most tireless workers; the home has lost one of the gentlest of wives and mothers; La Fayette has lost a friend alike to rich and poor, to saint and seeker. At her funeral service Catholics mingled their tears with Protestants—a kindred touch of loss made all one for that moment. It takes the kindness of Jesus Christ to fuse all hearts in one. Sister Infield had that kindness in her church relations, in her home life, in her circle of friendship. Brother Hackleman and his helpers sang their sweetest that day, and her favorite hymn was touchingly appropriate: "'Tis so Sweet to Trust in Jesus." So peaceful her face looked in that silent sleep—the symbol of a peaceful, holy, Christian life with all its benediction on husband, daughter, son, sister, brothers and friends. La Fayette will always mean more to many because her last deeds of love were there, and because under its soil and flowers awaits the resurrection morn the form of this faithful one lain down in Christian service.

JOHNSON.

Adamantine Johnson departed this life at his residence in Chillicothe, Mo., May 3, in his eighty-first year. He was born near Stanford, Ky., May 17, 1825. In his eleventh year he came with his parents to Fayette, Mo., where he grew to manhood. Here he was educated and here he became a member of the Christian church and was baptized by Dr. Hopson. At his majority he entered the mercantile business with an older brother in Chillicothe. Here they prospered, and the firm removed to Brunswick, Mo., where they did a wholesale and retail business. Here he was married to Miss Pocahontas R. Cabell, of a prominent Virginia family. To them were born eight children—three daughters and five sons—all of whom survive him save one son. Three of his sons are physicians and one a farmer. Two daughters are married—Mrs. J. B. Morrison and Mrs. B. C. Dulany, of Kansas City. Mrs. Johnson died in 1880, and in 1884 he was married to Mrs. M. L. Seaman, who survives him. During the civil war he removed to St. Louis and became the head of a wholesale dry goods house. After the war he returned to Chariton county and settled on his large farm near Rothville. Here he remained for eleven years, farming and merchandizing. He then organized a bank at Cunningham and one at Hale, Mo. He then returned to Chillicothe, became the president of the Farmers' Bank, in which he continued till health failed and he retired from business. He was always active and prominent in church life. He was an elder in the church at Brunswick from its organization till his removal. During his stay in St. Louis he was an elder in the First church. He was chiefly instrumental in building up the church at Rothville and was again an elder in the church at Chillicothe. Few men have served the church so faithfully and so long. Wise in counsel, kind and gentle in manner, liberal and generous, he was ever a favorite with his brethren. He was a devoted husband, a good father, a public spirited citizen, a faithful friend. "A good man and full of the Holy Spirit." When a good man dies the world has lost the best gift that God has to give. After a long life—a most active life—he is gone home to rest. His wife and children and a host of friends mourn his departure. He was my friend for more than half a century and I loved him. T. P. HALEY.

Kansas City, Mo.

MATHES.

William Henderson Mathes died in Stockton, Mo., May 4, 1905, aged 77 years, 11 months and 18 days. He became a Christian when 11 years old, and died with his armor on. When 27 years old he was married to Mary E. Myrick, and nine children were born to them. His native place was Owen county, Ind., but in 1866 he located in Gentry country, Mo., where he lived 12 years. After a brief stay in Rice county, Kan., he returned to Missouri and located in Stockton. Here he lived until his death. His end was peace. He was a man of good mind and excellent character. He has been justice of the peace about 15 years. He was a brother to the lamented J. M. Mathes, of Bedford, Ind., who for a long time edited the Christian Record, and which afterwards was united with the Evangelist under the name, Record and Evangelist. The writer conducted the funeral services. SIMPSON ELY.

PENNINGTON.

James M. Pennington departed this life near Alburnett, Ia., April 21, 1905, after an illness of several months. The deceased was born in Ohio in 1830 and came to Iowa in 1853. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn. He accepted Christ 46 years ago and a few years afterward united with the church of Christ at Lafayette, Ia., but later became a charter member of the Alburnett church. The funeral services were conducted by the writer. He was ready to depart. B. F. SHOEMAKER.

The Bethany Books

Christian Endeavor Reading Course

——SUBJECTS——

(1) The Plea and History of the Disciples of Christ
(2) The English Bible : (3) Christian Missions
Three Cloth-Bound Books on each Subject.

This course of study if followed as outlined by the authors will give the student a thorough and most helpful knowledge of the people who are pleading for simple, primitive Christianity, and of the Bible which they exalt as the Book of books. Note the titles and authors below:

Concerning the Disciples.—B. B. Tyler.
Bible Doctrine for Young Disciples.—F. D. Power.
Life and Teachings of Jesus.—H. L. Willett.
A Hand-book of Missions.—A. McLean.
Sketches of Our Pioneers.—F. D. Power.
A Guide to Bible Study.—J. W. McGarvey.
Prophets of Israel.—H. L. Willett.
Heroes of Modern Missions.—W. J. Lhamon.
Missionary Fields and Forces.—W. J. Lhamon.

PRICES:
Any one book prepaid, 35 cents : Three books, $1.00
The entire course of nine books, $3.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 PINE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville
Railroad
FROM Cincinnati and Louisville
TO KNOXVILLE

Two Trains Daily
from each city

Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars

For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.

SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

WEST BADEN SPRINGS, IND.
Decoration Day. One fare for the round trip to points within radius of 150 miles. Tickets will be sold May 29-30. Return limit May 31st.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.
National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.
National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.
United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—
F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
—— ST. LOUIS, MO. ——
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

May 31, 1905.

THE VALUE OF TROUBLE.

And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope; and hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us. Rom. 5:3-5. (Read also Rev. 7:13-17.)

A Secret of Success. One who learns how to convert the common things of life into something valuable is on the road to both fame and fortune. Some of the by-products in manufacturing which used to be considered worthless have been found to be exceedingly valuable, and have greatly enhanced the wealth of manufacturers. One of the most common and undesirable things in the world is trouble. If Chrisianity has any divine alchemy by which trouble may be transmuted into graces of enduring value, it ought to be welcomed by all, for sooner or later trouble comes to all.

Accumulative Value. Paul glories in tribulation, because it works patience. Patience is a virtue of such great value in achieving a high character, or in accomplishing any great work in life, that one may well glory in whatever produces it. It is easy to see how tribulation or trouble will develop patience. As the old tribulum, or thrashing flail, separated the chaff from the wheat, so trouble or tribulation separates the true from the false in our nature, and throws us back on God, when our cherished plans are thwarted, and teaches us to wait and trust. So, also, experience, which patience works, is often very valuable, and it, in turn, works hope, which "maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit." See what a sublime culmination may come out of our trouble, if we have faith!

Coming Up Through Tribulation. When John was given a glimpse into the future (Rev. 7:9) he saw a vision of saints robed in white concerning whom it was said, "These are they which are come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb" (v. 14). What matters the tribulation now, when they have reached the land of everlasting consolation? What care we for the storms and the billows when we have reached the haven and home?

The Reward. Read Rev. 7:16, 17. Isn't that worth suffering for?

How to Overcome. "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33). We can overcome through Christ. He has gone before us and showed us the way.

Prayer. Our Father, we thank Thee that since Thou hast placed us in a world of trouble and tribulation, Thou dost make even these to promote our good through faith in Thy Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Help us, then, to bear our troubles cheerfully, and to submit unmurmuringly to Thy chastening rod, to the end that we may come victoriously out of all our tribulation to reign with Thee at last, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

◆ ◆

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS
Speedily Removed by Baths with Cuticura Soap and Gentle Applications of Cuticura.

Gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, but do not rub. Wash off the Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat morning and evening. At other times use Cuticura Soap for bathing the face as often as agreeable.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

June 4, 1905.

THE MAKING OF A CHRISTIAN: HELPING ONE ANOTHER.—Eph. 4:1-6; Heb. 10:24, 25.

For the Leader.

We come this evening to look into the beauties of the world God has made, and in which he has placed us; the mutual relationships of human life. Indeed, this principle does not end with the human life, but is seen all along the line of the ascent of God's creative work. Out of this principle grows the possibility of happiness; yea, more, of usefulness. Out of it grows the whole plan of work one for the other. We can help our fellows. Not only can we help our fellows, but we must help them. And one who properly realizes his place in this world, and who has caught a glimpse of the beauties of the normal human life, will not need a law to compel him to render this service. He will not even like the wording of the obligation, "law," and he will not think of it so much as an obligation, but a privilege, an opportunity.

In the making of a Christian is not simply considered the work of his new birth and adoption into the new life, but the completion of his character into the fullness of Christ. Going on to perfection is the thought. And we are to remember that the making of a Christian has to do with the help he is to receive from his fellows as well as from God, and as well as his own personal exertions.

For the Members.

1. Union is the groundwork of successful mutual helpfulness. It is the surest way to place the people of God in a position to help one another, to unite them into one loving family as far reaching as the sons of men who believe in and worship God. Then we see our mission and our opportunity in the state of divided Christendom to-day; we must work to bring about the union of God's people for which our Lord prayed. One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism.

2. In order to help one another, we must know one another. How can we help, in the true sense of help, those we do not know in their sorrows and trials? We can not. How are we to know those who sorrow? Will they come to us in their sorrows? Not often. The most worthy will suffer in silence. Can we send out a mandate that all who need our sympathy are to report at once for help? Who ever heard of such a way of dispensing the tender ministrations of the Lord of mercy? No, we can not do this way. How then? We can only get into the secrets of the hearts of those who suffer through the key of sympathy; of fellowship in trouble; of a life together in the Lord that walks in sweet social converse; of household visitation; of a complete restoration of the close relationship of the early Christian church. Those who are members one of another, will reveal to each other their hearts. Only such will.

3. Now we come to the art of helping one another. How shall this be done? There are so many who want to follow the plan of the state. An institution where application is made, and where it is given, so to speak, in an official and perfunctory way is their ideal. They would want to examine and smell and disinfect all who are to share in their ministrations. There is a place for this kind of work, but it is not contemplated in the lesson we have to-night. The tender helpfulness; the ministrations; the helping of one another in trouble; the helping of one another in the making of a full Christian, is no such formal thing as this. If we have lived together as the family of the Lord, when the time for help has arrived we will not need to investigate, for we will have long ago found out the brother or sister from the closeness of our daily walk in the fellowship. There can be no machine for dispensing Christian comfort and help and love. It is not mechanics; it is fine art.

4. Aside from the helpfulness that has been under discussion—benevolence—there is a helpfulness that is as much needed—advice, comfort, example, instruction, that we may help our fellows in a spiritual way. And they will be as averse to letting us into their heart of hearts to know these weaknesses, as they were to letting us into the secrets of their wants in things temporal. We can only get into these hearts through companionship and daily living together and working together in the church. I should help others by my example. I should help others by my teaching and counsel. When temptation comes, I should rescue my brother from the tempter. When his good name is assailed, I am to defend it. I am not to take up reproach against him. He must know that at home among his brethren, and in the fellowship of his society, he has an asylum until he is proven to be unworthy. Let us take time to condemn our brother. There is no need of a hurry. We can find the facts soon enough if he is unworthy. Let us try, not to get rid of, but to save him for whom Christ died.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Oh, Lord, help me that I may be a real help to my fellow workers in the Christian Endeavor fellowship!

DAILY READINGS.

M.	Helping by example.	Phil. 3:17-19.
T.	By prayer.	John 17:13-19.
W.	By money.	1 Cor. 16:1-6.
T.	By sympathy.	Eph. 4:30-32.
F.	By instruction.	Gal. 6:1-10.
S.	By encouragement.	Isa. 35:3-10.
S.	Topic—The making of a Christian; helping one another. Eph. 4:1-6; Heb. 10:24, 25. (Consecration meeting.)

◆ ◆

$50

$50

The American $50 Typewriter will place your correspondence, editorial and miscellany work on an up-to-date, business-like basis.

In this age you can't afford to "scribble" your work.

The American is the first standard machine offered at less than $100.00. Standard keyboard, ball-bearing carriage, highest speed.

Sold on Easy Payments.

AMERICAN TYPEWRITER CO.

Established fourteen years.

260½ Broadway, New York.

NERVOUS WOMEN

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Quiets the nerves, relieves nausea and sick headache and induces refreshing sleep.

Sunday-School.

June 4, 1905.

THE RESURRECTION.—John 20:11-23.

Memory verses, 19-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept.—1 Cor. 15:20.

The record of the resurrection of Jesus, the supreme and fundamental fact in the historical basis of Christianity, is attested by all four of the evangelists. Their records are sufficiently varied to render it highly improbable that the story was deliberately invented for deception. Writers less certain of the historical character of the event would have been more solicitous about superficial agreement among themselves.

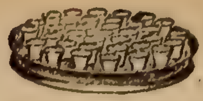
Each of the four gospels represents that certain women came to the tomb early on the morning of the first day of the week, though John mentions only Mary Magdalene. Matthew, Mark and Luke give the impression that these women were definitely informed of the fact of the resurrection before they left the tomb and before the disciples were summoned. Matthew mentions an earthquake and an angel who rolled away the stone. Matthew and Mark say that the stone was already rolled away when the women arrived. In Luke there are two angels instead of one. In all these accounts the statement is made definitely by an angelic visitor that Jesus has risen from the dead. There are certain further variations of detail, as may be seen by comparing Matt. 28:1-10, Mark 16:1-11, and Luke 24:1-12.

John's narrative differs somewhat from those of the three synoptists in that it represents a longer time elapsing and more events transpiring between the first arrival of the women at the tomb and the discovery that Jesus had been raised from the dead. Mary finds the tomb open and at once goes to find the disciples, supposing that the Lord's body had been stolen. They return together to the empty tomb, examine it, and the disciples went away to their own homes, having received as yet no intimation of the fact of the resurrection. Mary, lingering at the tomb in tears, presently saw two angels and then the Lord himself.

These variations of detail and order of incidents are of no consequence as weakening the force of the testimony, but they show how through the generation which elapsed between the event and the earliest of these written records of it, certain features persisted in spite of the natural tendency to variation in oral narrative. No record loses any essential element of the event, and none adds any mythological element such as is wont to accumulate about human records of great religious events.

The fact of the resurrection, not its details, is the important thing. Is Christ alive? May we safely and surely believe that our faith in immortality is not based upon one who went the way of all flesh? This, the supreme miracle of Christianity, has been hard for many men to believe. It should be the easiest of all miracles to accept. If one should admit, with Hume, that no conceivable evidence would be sufficient to convince one that the laws of nature had suffered interruption in a matter of no moral or spiritual importance, still it ought to be possible to believe on a fair amount of evidence that God had wrought a miracle involving results of such transcendent consequence.

Whatever one may say about the evidence, this is confessedly true, and no unfriendly critic can deny it—that within a very brief time after the death of Jesus, his disciples, who had no previous expectation of a resurrection and whose Jewish training was wholly against such an idea, became convinced that Jesus had risen from the dead and was alive. To this fact they bore testimony at peril of their lives and upon it they hinged their arguments for Christianity.



Individual Communion Service
Made of several materials and in many designs including self-collecting
Send for full particulars and catalogue No. 27. Give the number of communicants
"The Lord's Supper takes on a new dignity and beauty by the use of the individual Cup."—J. K. W
GEO. H. SPRINGER, Manager, 256-258 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Bright, Interesting, Enjoyable
A BOOK OF
Chinese Illustrations and Stories
A Chinese Story-Teller
Written by WM. REMFRY HUNT
Missionary to China.
167 Pages in Yellow Cloth Binding.
The Young Folks Enjoy Reading It.
75 Cents Postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

A TRIO
of devotional books which have aided thousands of readers.
Alone With God
The Heavenward Way
Half Hour Studies at the Cross
Written by J. H. Garrison,
Editor of THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.
They are similar in size and binding, and being all written for the purpose of comfort and spiritual strength, they constitute what may properly be called
A Devotional Library.
PRICE,
Seventy-Five Cents a Volume, or Two Dollars for the Set of Three Volumes, Postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

The Christ in Modern English Literature
By GEO. H. COMBS.
Purple Silk Cloth Binding; Title in White; 257 Pages.
$1.00, Postpaid.
This book, written in the best of literary style, traces in a careful and interesting way the influence of Christ upon the thought and consequent productions of makers of literature since his time.
One can not read it without being more thoroughly convinced than ever that the influence of Christ's life is the power that produces civilization and advancement in the world. The book is one of the most attractive ever issued by us.
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

AN ADDRESS
By
Frederick D. Power
In Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds, on Disciples of Christ Day
ENTITLED
History and Doctrines of the Disciples of Christ
A clear and concise statement of the purpose and progress of the restoration.
Published in tract form, 3 cents per copy; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.
A few dollars' worth of these tracts distributed in your community will give the cause a wonderful impetus. Try it.
Christian Publishing Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

People's Forum.

Is it Bondage to Formalism?

The Editor, Christian Evangelist:—Suffer just a few words on "Not of Equal Importance."

1. You say, "the highest possible proof that any man can furnish us that he is a Christian is that he lives a Christian life, and manifests a Christian character." If that is true then the formal putting on of Christ and the formal connection with his church counts for nothing, and we must conclude that the very many persons who never make a profession of religion at all and are never identified with any church, but who in character and life do furnish us with exemplary conduct, are going to heaven. For example, the man who exemplifies in his life and conduct the principles of Free Masonry is therefore a Free Mason, is he?

2. No, Brother Garrison, we do not wish to be in bondage to formalism only in as far as formalism is obedience to Christ's form of doctrine. Paul said, "But thanks be to God, that, whereas ye were servants of sin, ye became obedient from the heart to that form of teaching whereunto ye were delivered; and being made free from sin ye became the servants of righteousness."

3. The Apostle seems to place some importance in form, so much indeed as to say that we are delivered from sin by obeying this form.

4. Again you say, "Let us not limit God's love and grace to these or to any other external requirements." We are not limiting God's love and grace. God is doing that himself by placing our forgiveness and acceptance with him upon conditions, and one of the conditions is certainly baptism. Again we are not tying down the Almighty, the Almighty is doing that. "For as many as are led by the Spirit [word] of God, these are the sons of God."

5. You say that "we know from many passages that the Holy Spirit imparts the new life, through faith in Christ." What do you mean by faith in this connection? If you mean the assent of the mind simply, we do not know it, but if you mean faith that is acting, obedient, then we do know it, for that faith exercised, obedient, acting, results in the impartation of life through the Holy Spirit.

Yours truly,

Fort Collins, Col. A. E. Dubber.

[1. Is it good logic, or good hard sense, to say that if living a Christian life and manifesting a Christian character is the highest possible proof that one is a Christian, therefore "the formal putting on of Christ and formal connection with his church count for nothing"? They count for so much that one who knows these things to be requirements of Christ and refuses obedience to them is not "living a Christian life or manifesting a Christian character." Why did Jesus submit to baptism? He had no sins to be forgiven. It became him to "fulfill all righteousness." So it does every one who would honor God.

2. We are sure, Brother Dubber, you do not desire to be in "bondage to formalism," but your well-meaning argument leads you inevitably into such bondage. The "form of doctrine" to which Paul refers is not baptism, but the whole of Christian teaching, to which their lives were conformed, as the metal to the mold.

3. "The Apostle seems to place some importance in form." So he does. So do we. We shall need a few simple forms so long as we are in the body and have need of a church. But let us keep them in subordination to the Spirit, whose servants they are.

4. "We are not limiting God's love and grace. God is doing that himself by placing our forgiveness on conditions, one of which is baptism." God has indeed offered us salvation on conditions, but we are not to look upon these conditions as limitations of God's grace, but as helps to us in coming to him, and therefore as expressions of his love. That is what makes it so wrong and ungrateful to neglect them. We all fall short, here and there, in doing his will, but if he sees we have made an honest effort and have done the best we could, he accepts us in spite of our shortcomings just as Brother Dubber would his own children. He tells us this. "It is accepted of a man according to what he hath, and not according to what he hath not." To ignore this fundamental principle in the matter of human accountability, is what we called limiting God's grace to conditions to which only those will be held who know them and have the power to obey them.

5. "What do you mean by faith in this connection?" What the New Testament always means by the faith that saves—the faith which unites the soul to Christ in obedience and self surrender. "The assent of the mind" is not faith. Faith is the assent of the mind, plus the consent of the heart, and plus the intent of the will. It is, in its highest sense, the trust which commits one unreservedly to God as revealed in Christ.

We are sure that when Brother Dubber thinks this matter through right carefully again, he will find that we have not compromised any truth, but, on the contrary, that the position we have taken is the only one with which we can defend the character of God as Jesus revealed him.—Editor.]

◆ ◆

The Editor, Christian-Evangelist:—In the Christian-Evangelist of last week in your article "Not of Equal Importance," you say that there are many thousands of persons who are born of the Spirit, that have not been baptized in any way that we call baptism.

Now it seems to me that you make baptism a nonessential, because if a person is born of the Spirit he is in Christ; if in Christ he is a new creature; if a new creature he is pardoned, or has received remission of sins.

Upon what ground do you refuse to take into the church and fellowship the pious unbaptized? Your brother in Christ,

G. C. Ardrey.

[1. What we said was that "many thousands of persons who have never been baptized in any way that we call baptism, do manifest the spirit, temper and character of Christians." Does our brother call that fact in question?

2. Yes, we make nothing essential but the death of Christ, but we do not make unimportant any divine requirement.

3. "Upon what ground do you refuse to take into the church * * * the pious unbaptized?" On the ground that we are seeking to restore the New Testament conditions of church membership, and that only baptized believers entered into the churches of the New Testament. Christ will hold us to obedience to his will concerning the church, as we understand it. If we modify the conditions of church membership so as to receive all whom we think will be saved, we must ignore, not baptism alone, but faith in Christ, repentance and outward confession, for infants, idiots and probably many pious heathen will be saved.—Editor.]

No Dealer Can Duplicate Our Factory Price

SAVE 1/3

Our high grade carriages are made in our own factory, and sold exclusively by mail order at a saving of from $15 to $30 to the buyer. We warrant every vehicle to be just as represented or refund money and pay freight both ways. Send for free catalogue. It tells the advantage of buying from factory.

THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE AND HARNESS CO., Columbus, Ohio.

For Convenience

always have a supply of Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk on hand. Suitable for all household purposes. For puddings, cake and all kinds of desserts. Send for Recipe Book, 108 Hudson Street, New York.

NEW ONTARIO—TO THE FRONT.

Offer to Tenant Farmers.

A five acre lot, or a hundred acre farm for 25c per acre cash, the rest at 5c per acre per month.

R. A. BURRISS, Port Arthur, Ont.

CAME IN HANDY

Said a successful business man: "The best investment I ever made was an endowment Life Insurance Policy. It matured at the beginning of the last panic and carried my business through the dark times."

May we send pamphlet explaining our endowment policies?

PENN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., PHILADELPHIA.

EVERYBODY IS LAUGHING HEARTILY
—AT—
REUBEN
—AND—
HIS EXPERIENCES AT COLLEGE AND ABROAD.
Send One Dollar for "Reuben: His Book" to
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

Woman's Mission and Woman's Clubs

A Reply to Ex-President Cleveland

By ALICE CURTICE MOYER

In answer to Mr. Cleveland's prelude to his "Woman's Mission and Woman's Clubs" in the May number of the Ladies' Home Journal, I have nothing to say except to heartily endorse the following: "Honesty, good faith, charity, patriotism and belief in God are among the things that can never, without defiance to divine purposes, be submerged by human progress or supplanted by any substitutes contrived by the wit of man," etc.

"The Scope and Character of Woman's Mission," is the first topic. I have always noticed the first thing a man does when he undertakes to define and confine "the scope and character of woman's mission" is to quote scripture. Very good. We are willing this shall be, but we do not want it from one point of view only. Mr. Cleveland speaks of "seeking to protect the old and natural order of things as they relate to women" and of reverently appealing to "the division of divine purpose clearly shown when Adam was put in the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it, and Eve was given to him as an helpmeet." It is not so easy to see "division" here as incompleteness—the need of each for the other—and to understand that there can not easily be a prescribed sphere for either sex. This view is in accordance with Adam's words when he said: "This is now bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh. . . . Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother and shall cleave unto his wife. And they shall be one flesh." This was the natural and divine relation of man and woman before the fall and there is not a single sentence to hint that man was given the right to say, "Thus far shalt thou go." Woman was not made in man's image, neither was the dominion of the world committed to him alone. On the contrary, the record plainly states: "In the image of God created he him. Male and female created he them." And God blessed them and gave them dominion over the earth.

Mr. Cleveland speaks approvingly of the "homely definition which describes a good wife as 'a woman who loves her husband and her country, with no desire to run either.' " In the ideal state there can be no "running" of either husband or wife—no one-sided authority. "But," one may say, "listen to the curse pronounced because of the fall. Is it not plainly stated to the woman, 'Thy desire shall be to thy husband and he shall rule over thee'?" It is. But is it not equally true that this declaration is due to sin and does not belong at all to the account of her original creation? It is a strange fact that this is repeatedly quoted as the divine declaration of the ideal state of the sexes and we are constantly told that any attempt to change it is a violation of the divine constitution. As well might one declare that the thorns and briers which God said the earth should bring forth on account of man's sin, are expressions of the ideal attitude of nature toward men and that they violate the divine constitution in tilling the soil and improving its products.

Again, Christ, the emancipator of women, came to restore to mankind that which was lost in Adam. "For as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive." Therefore, if Christianity is to completely restore that which was lost in Adam, and we are constantly told that this is true, how can it stop short of leading us back to that Edenic proclamation, Let them have dominion over all the earth?

"The Question of Woman's Vote" is the next phase of the subject as treated by Mr. Cleveland. He says: "The restlessness and discontent to which I have referred is most strongly manifested in a movement which has, for a long time, been on foot for securing to women the right to vote and otherwise participate in public affairs. Let it here be distinctly understood that no sensible man has fears of injury to the country on account of such participation. It is its dangerous, undermining effect on the characters of the wives and mothers of our land that we fear."

What a fearful indictment is this of the voters and of the participators in public affairs! If the ballot is such a menace to good morals, surely we have no right to submit to the enfranchisement of our sons. And as the ballot is responsible for our law makers, how can we hope for good laws to emanate from such a fearful source? His argument lacks reason.

Quoting further from Mr. Cleveland on "The Question of Woman's Vote": "This particular movement is so aggressive and so extreme in its insistence that those whom it has fully enlisted may well be considered as incorrigible." This is almost amusing when we remember the great number of superior and good women in America and other countries who are "fully enlisted" in this cause, to say nothing of the men who have advocated it all along the way—such men as Abraham Lincoln, Charles Sumner, Henry W. Longfellow, Ralph Waldo Emerson, J. G. Whittier, Wendell Phillips, Phillips Brooks, John Quincy Adams, Charles Kingsley, Bishop Simpson, Henry Ward Beecher, William Lloyd Garrison, and hosts of others.

Mr. Cleveland then declares that "the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." Do not let us be misled by any such sentimentality. It means nothing. It is the flimsiest of flattery that calls women angels, while treating them as idiots. Mr. Cleveland knows and all the world knows that the hand that casts the ballot is the hand that rules the world. No class of women appreciates real chivalry of men more than the women of America, but it is poor chivalry that withholds from us that privilege which they consider the greatest given to American citizens—the privilege of the ballot.

The best mothers I have ever known desired the ballot because they were good mothers, and it is a matter of wonder that men dare to say to these loyal, unselfish, patriotic women, "You shall be only half citizens. We will permit you to pay the tax rates we may vote upon you and to obey the laws we make for you, and with this you must be satisfied." But God said, Let them have dominion over the earth.

Then Mr. Cleveland rather nervously approaches the club question and asks, "Are women retaliating on men?"

Before replying to this we wish to quote his closing paragraph:

"I am in favor of according to women the utmost social enjoyment; and I am profoundly thankful that this, in generous and sufficient measure, is within their reach

THE BEST
Sunday-School Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary, The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people.
The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

POPULAR HYMNS No. 2

By C. C. CLINE

Now used by
Thousands of Churches Everywhere
in the land.

The Popular Song Book
with the People.

PRICES:

SINGLE COPIES, POSTPAID.
Limp cloth, - 25 cents Boards, - 25 cents
Cloth, - 30 cents
PER DOZEN, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $2.00 Boards, - - $2.50
Cloth, - $3.00
PER HUNDRED, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $15.00 Boards, - $20.00
Cloth, - $25.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

without encountering the temptations or untoward influences so often found in the surroundings of woman's clubs. For the sake of our country, for the sake of our homes and for the sake of our children, I would have our wives and mothers loving and devoted, though all others may be sordid and heedless; I would have them disinterested and trusting, though all others be selfish and cunning; I would have them happy and contented in following the divinely appointed path of true womanhood, though all others may grope in the darkness of their own devices."

Most women are willing to be all this, but does it not impose a good deal upon them to expect it, even though all others be "sordid and heedless," "selfish and cunning," or "groping in the darkness of their own devices"? Is it fair? Is it any wonder that there are pitiable failures along the way in spite of the fact that woman's "do or die" motto covers many an aching heart under a smiling countenance, and keeps up appearances where imagination is the only fabric she has to build upon? Perhaps Mr. Cleveland does not know of the hundreds and thousands of wives and mothers of the great middle class who toil in their homes every day, all day, and, finding their first leisure moments in the evening, after the little ones are in bed, are uncheered by the companionship of the one whose duty and good pleasure it ought to be, to lend her inspiration for the routine of to-morrow by his presence and sympathy. It may never have occurred to Mr. Cleveland that the wives and mothers of this great home-making class are really the proper ones to enter a plea for home life, for they are the great sufferers, be the cause what it may—business, clubs, unions, lodges, or questionable indulgences. Considering that this has been the case for many years, it ought not to seem strange if women should seek to retaliate, but they do not. Retaliate is not the word. It is not in a "get even" spirit that the woman of means or leisure takes up club work. Of course it must be admitted that the "club habit" may be formed to a harmful extent in some cases, but these are the exceptions. The normal woman—and I believe women are more normal than otherwise—associates herself with a well-conducted club, consisting of well-balanced women, because she sees in it the social enjoyment which Mr. Cleveland accords to us, and because she sees in a literary club an opportunity for cultivating and broadening her intellect. It might be surprising to know that she hopes to add some charm to herself in this way, that she may please her husband; or if she is an unmarried woman, to please the man who might become her husband. For she knows that the best men no longer want dolls for wives; they want intelligent women.

That there are extreme clubs and extreme club lovers and club habits, is not sufficient excuse for an indictment of clubs in general. In spite of the well-intentioned in any organization, there will creep in the objectionable—the radical—element. We see it in charitable, fraternal and religious organizations—even in churches. But we never think of condemning any of these because of their misfortunes in membership.

All of Mr. Cleveland's arguments are simply old, threadbare prejudices dressed up somewhat in new garb. When woman began a plea for the education of her sex, there were plenty of men and women—some of them seemingly representative men and women—to hold up their hands in holy horror. They feared a "dangerous undermining effect" and declared that an educated woman could not be a good wife and mother. Somebody is always ready to make set and fast rules for women, thereby denying that every human being has a right to work out his or her own destiny, subject, of course, to those restraints of society which are applicable to all alike. This right is a fundamental principle of the freedom of the individual and it rests back upon the fundamental principles of the Bible and divine government.

Buffalo, Mo.

* * *

More Than One Kind of Dyspepsia.

Dyspeptics frequently criticise the cook, or the table service, or something in the dining room, instead of acknowledging the reason for their inability to relish the food set before them. It is often a sign of spiritual dyspepsia to criticise the minister, the church service, or something in connection with the church building instead of partaking of the spiritual food provided for the nourishment of all.

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF
SACRED SONGS
FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS, YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES, EVANGELISTIC SERVICES, AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF CHURCH WORK AND WORSHIP, ENTITLED :

Praises to the Prince

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music.
Handsome Appearance.
Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market.

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid	$ .30
Boards,	" " "	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " "	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" " " "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" " " "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	15.00

PUBLISHED BY
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

UNEQUALLED
FOR USE IN
EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.
NEW SONGS OF THE GOSPEL No. 2.
$8.00 the Hundred.
Contains nearly all the great gospel songs now in use in America and England, including "Tell Mother I'll Be There," "As the Day Breaks," "Never Known To Fail," etc. Send for returnable sample. . . . We pay the postage.
Hall-Mack Co., 1018-1020 Arch St., Phila.
156 Fifth Av., N. Y.

YOUNG FOLKS
The Leading Paper for Christian Young People.
W. W. DOWLING, Editor.
Our Young Folks, A Large Sixteen Page, Illustrated Weekly, contains the Scripture Text with full Analytical, Illustrative and Practical Notes on the Midweek Prayer-Meeting Topics
which have been in use in hundreds of the Leading Churches for the last seven years. The Best Prayer-Meetings are in those Churches where these Uniform Topics are followed and Our Young Folks used.
In addition to these Topics, the Journal contains full Expositions of the Sunday-school Lessons, the Y. P. S. C. E. Topics, and much other useful matter along all lines of Christian Work. No Minister, Teacher, Senior Pupil, Christian Endeavorer or other Christian Worker can afford to be without this Weekly.
☞ TERMS: Single copy, 75 cents per year; in clubs of five, 65 cents; in clubs of ten and upwards, 50 cents each per year.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., ST. LOUIS.

BOWLDEN BELLS
CHURCH AND SCHOOL
FREE CATALOGUE
AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY CO. NORTHVILLE, MICH

Work Your Way.

Joe was a blacksmith's son, one of seven children, going to school in a little town of northern Iowa, and doing odd jobs about the shop in the village for the advantage of the family. Joe would have stayed in the village always but for the minister in the little Congregational church where he went to Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor society. The minister said to Joe: "Don't be content to be a horse-boy in N———. Go to college."

"But where's the money coming from?" said Joe.

"Work your way," said the minister. So Joe got together his things and packed them in a canvas telescope, and spent about all the money he had to get to Iowa college.

He arrived in the evening and tried to find a place to work for his board and room, but in vain. That night, without money to go to a hotel, he lay down, like Jacob of old, with his meagre baggage for a pillow, upon the stone porch of the church; there was no ladder let down, and no angels ascending and descending, but God's voice gave him courage and rest. In the morning he was up early. Before night he was enrolled in the academy, with a place where he could earn his own way.

For five years he washed dishes, mowed lawns, tended furnaces, and studied, and sang in the glee club. He had his fun in the gymnasium; worked hard to get on the football team, and, though he was light, he made the team in the last year, and in the last critical game got the ball and ran down the field for a winning touchdown. No wonder that when he came up for a contest with twenty-two young men for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship he won the prize, and is the first man to represent his state at Oxford.

No wonder that when the people in the little town of his birth heard of his splendid victory, won entirely by character and scholarship and grit, they rang the church bells and came down in a body to the train to meet him. And when he goes to the ancient university which sent out John Wycliffe, Thomas Arnold and W. E. Gladstone there will be no man there more worthy to succeed those heroes than Joseph Garfield Walleser of Iowa college.—President Bradley, in Grinnell (Ia.) Christian Endeavor World.

◆ ◆

Inflammable Thoughts.

No absolutely fireproof office building has ever been erected, experts say. In a tempest fire, a real conflagration, any building may yield if its contents are inflammable. The fireproof building, if its rooms are stored with things that will burn, is left a twisted wreck. Is not that same thing true in the moral world? No man's life is proof against great, sudden fires of temptation unless he has cast out from the inner rooms those inflammable thoughts and desires which are the food of temptation.—Forward.

◆ ◆

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.

Communion Sets

Quadruple Silver Plate

This Communion Ware is manufactured by one of the largest and most reliable establishments in the United States. We will be pleased to give prices. Write us, stating how many of each piece will be wanted. Address,

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Why Experiment?

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT TRADE MARK REGISTERED

The Favorite "Effervescent"

Sold on merit more than 60 years.

Does away with CONSTIPATION and BILIOUSNESS; Stops HEADACHES and INDIGESTION; Expels Rheumatic and Gouty poisons; Relieves Morning Sickness; in so satisfying a way as to make it

THE IDEAL FAMILY REMEDY

At Druggists, 50c and $1, or by mail from
THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

Tell Everybody.

A distinguished London oculist once took a poor blind man sitting on the curbstone and restored his sight. Overwhelmed with joy and gratitude, the man exclaimed, "Doctor, I haven't a farthing in the world with which to pay you."

Said the doctor, "There is just one thing I want you to do to repay me; it is very simple. Tell it. Tell everybody whom you meet that you were blind; that you see; who healed you."

The restored man willingly made this return, and in a little while the oculist had more patients than he could attend to. Suppose that we all repaid Christ in this way?—Exchange.

◆ ◆

Many curious reasons are given for absence from school. Here is one taken from The Schoolmistress. "Dear Sir—Samuel cannot come to school this afternoon, as he has glued his head to the dresser, and we have not been able to separate him yet."

The People's New Testament With Notes

: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :

A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.

The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.

PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT
PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT
JOHNSON VOL. I.
JOHNSON VOL. II.

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

A Complete Line of

BAPTISMAL SUITS

Guaranteed Best Quality.

Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE THIRD NIGHT (CONTINUED).

"Well, now that supper is over," observed Mr. Worth Acre, discovering that the little musician had eaten all the potatoes and bread, "let's have a tune!" They rose from the table.

"We'll all go into the parlor," said Mrs. Woodney taking up the lamp.

"But, Geraldine," objected old Mrs. Woodney, "your dishwater is boiling hot and I have just turned off the blaze."

"Oh, we'll leave the dishes till morning," returned her daughter-in-law. "We'll take the light away and nobody can see them. Come on!" They went to the parlor and Arthur took his violin from the organ and stood, bow in hand, looking down. The family seated themselves and he began to play. No longer straight and motionless like an Indian, he bent over the violin, swaying himself in order to reach the g-string to produce the best effect. He began with long, heavy tones, which seemed to fall with a thud into a pool of melody, sending laughing ripples flying up the scale. Mrs. Woodney interrupted at the fifth measure, "Now, what is this piece?"

"It is one I have made up," said Arthur poising his bow, then taking a firmer grip on the g-string. "I make up most of my music." The piece ran almost at once into a merry little air, which caused the blacksmith to begin patting his knee to mark the time; but suddenly it changed into one of those passages where five or six scales seem to have been mixed up in a railroad accident. Mr. Worth Acre held his broad palm over his knee to resume the patting, but the composition never came back to anything that permitted patting. Presently he ruefully put his hand into his pocket and stared at the ceiling. For a time profound silence was accorded the wanderer, who was pouring forth all his soul in wonderful successions of chords and arpeggios. Suddenly Mrs. Woodney cried, "Where is mother?"

"Wait a minute, son," said Mr. Acre to Arthur.

"I hear dishes clinking," exclaimed Mr. Woodney.

"She's cleaning up the dishes in the dark!" cried Mace, impatiently. "Grandmother never would wait!"

Mrs. Woodney rose with a sigh, "If it must be done," she cried, "I will do it." She took the lamp from the organ.

"My lad," said the blacksmith to Arthur, "I believe you'd have come to something, if you'd had time." The ragged wanderer drooped his head. All the glow of feeling and delight in his art died away.

"We will return to the kitchen," said Mr. Woodney, "and he shall play for us some more."

"Look here, my boy," said Worth Acre on the way back, "do you know 'Leather Breeches,' or 'Jordan is a Hard Road,' or 'Speed the Plow,' or 'Old Zip Coon,' or any of those old classics?"

Arthur Lowell shook his head despondently.

The blacksmith laid his hand on the delicate shoulder and said in an insinuating voice, "Come now, old man! Surely you can play 'Money Musk' or 'Fisher's Hornpipe,' or at least, 'Pop Goes the Weazel'?"

"No sir; I never learned those pieces," said Arthur.

"How long did you say you lived with those musicians that played from morning till night—till they got too poor to keep you?"

"Two years—but they wouldn't let me play that kind," said Arthur diffidently.

They reached the kitchen. "Now, mother!" cried Mrs. Woodney.

The old lady handed her the dishrag, not without some triumph. "I was afraid company might come and see all these things out on the table," she said. "I thought I'd clean them up, though in the dark, while you-all were listening to the fiddling."

Mrs. Woodney took the lamp to the table, her lips compressed, for she did not want to say anything she might regret. The next moment she exclaimed, "Oh, mother, what have you done! Here is the bowl of molasses upside down in the dish-water!"

"That is what made it so thick," said old Mrs. Woodney apologetically. "I couldn't imagine! Well, Geraldine, the molasses-stand should have been unpacked. Bowls are not the things to keep one's molasses in."

"So it seems," remarked the other, stirring at the bowl with a fork. "Let the young musician begin to play by all means."

"For my part," said Mr. Woodney, "I am glad that the molasses is reduced to such a state that nobody can expect us to eat any more, even on the plea of economy. We bought it for maple syrup," he explained to the blacksmith, "but we ate it for—glucose."

"The molasses," persisted old Mrs. Woodney, "should not have been in a bowl."

"Mother," cried her daughter-in-law, "it had better have been in the bowl than on you. Do turn around! Your dress is a sight to behold! You have that molasses on you almost from head to foot!"

"Well, well, well!" cried the old lady, feeling her skirt and then holding out her fingers in distress.

"Get a wet cloth, Mace," said her mother, "and rub your grandmother down. Let's have some music, do!"

Arthur Lowell, with a dispirited air, held his violin to his throat. "Now, look here, son," said the blacksmith, "can't you give us something we can take hold of? Do you know 'Old Kentucky Home,' or 'Suwannee River,' or 'Dixie,' or any of those first principles?"

Arthur's face brightened with pleasure, and his eyes sparkled. "I know 'Home, Sweet Home' with variations!" he exclaimed.

"You play the tune first, and the variations to morrow," said Mr. Acre. "Now, we're all home folks, and we don't want any dressing up for us. Can't you give us 'Home, Sweet Home' in its shirtsleeves?"

"Stand a little more to the light, grandmother," said Mace, rubbing with her wet cloth.

"The fact is, Arthur," said Mr. Woodney, "none of us appreciates the finer music. We like just the plain sort, because we can understand that."

Arthur began to play, but he did not

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

ONE HUNDRED

copies of a letter, piece of music, drawing, or any writing can be easily made on a Lawton Simplex Printer. No washing. No wetting paper. Send for circulars and samples of work. Agents wanted.

LAWTON & CO., 30 Vesey Street, New York.
59 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

CANCER CURED

WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.

Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address

DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

The Scriptural Foundation for Christian Liberality

A Cloth-bound book of 139 pages

By R. H. LAMPKIN

Dealing with the Vital Problem of

"The Financiering of the Kingdom of God on Earth."

"I commend this little book to the careful consideration of all who wish to meet the full measure of their obligation to the kingdom of God." J. H. Garrison.

Price, 75 cents, Postpaid

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

sway his lithe form and bend over the g-string as he had in the parlor. During the performance, the blacksmith nudged Mr. Woodney and took him aside. "Do you think he can play?" he asked doubtfully. "What was that he gave us in the parlor, music or just scratching? Looked like it was hard to do, but what was it after it was done?"

Mr. Woodney shook his head. "I don't know," he said. "Mace, come here! Arthur, just go ahead playing."

"What we want to know is this," the blacksmith whispered to Mace, keeping one eye cocked on the little musician and boring at the girl with the other. "Can he play? Now listen to that 'Home, Sweet Home.' He can't go from one note to another without throwing in all the strings of that fiddle for good measure, and it distracts my mind from what he's trying to do. What do you think of it?"

"I believe he is a splendid player," said Mace, "but I'm not sure, because I know so little about the higher music. If it is music, it's the higher music."

"I guess there's no way for us to rise to it," remarked Mr. Acre "unless we sit on the roof and put him to play in the cellar. Well, Mace, go back to your grandmother, for she's getting stiff."

As soon as Arthur had brought the piece to a conclusion, the blacksmith said abruptly, "We must be going, now. Bring your bundle along, Arthur."

"He must come here for breakfast," said Mr. Woodney, following them to the yard.

"Now, I know it'll be inconvenient for you," said the blacksmith regretfully, "for I understand you begin building your porch to-morrow, and when Tumbleton is on the place, there can't much work go on except watching him. But the fact is, I can't entertain the lad at my table, and you'd understand, if you knew my grandfather. He's hale and hearty, and ninety-eight, as I told you, but he has queer premises. His conclusions are all right, as straight as sticks; but some of his premises are erroneous. For instance, he thinks himself the king of France; so of course, nobody can eat at the table with him but me; I'm the dauphin, you'll understand," added Mr. Acre ruefully. "At the second table is our old colored woman, and she wouldn't let anybody come between her and us; she about owns us, soul and body, king and dauphin though we be." The blacksmith departed with the little musician, old Mrs. Woodney was rubbed dry, Mrs. Geraldine finished cleaning the dishes, and the day came to a peaceful close.

The next day Mr. Tumbleton, with his sons A and D, began work upon the porch before the back parlor. Arthur Lowell came to breakfast, but did not seem at his ease. Old Mrs. Woodney delivered a long lecture, in an impersonal manner, but too apparently for the wanderer's benefit, on the duty and the blessed independence of manual toil. Mrs. Geraldine Woodney was too deeply occupied by her own thoughts and the contemplation of a projected work of fiction, to give the lad much attention. Mr. Woodney tried to keep in touch with the three Tumbletons, and Mace had a great deal of work to do in the way of unpacking and straightening what was already unpacked. Moreover, she was eager to arrange her side of the middle room—she was always given half of the sitting-room to arrange for her own peculiar retreat—and besides that, she had an excited idea of fitting up part of the barn for herself, to be used until cold weather. The sooner she got done with the unpacking and arranging, the sooner she could take up the plan of the barn-room, so she hardly looked out of the house till dinner time. Then she asked her father where Arthur Lowell was. "Isn't he here?" returned her father. "I thought he was watching the building."

"Now, it's this way," spoke up Mr. Tumbleton, hammering hard between every three words, "I'll tell you . . . he went away . . . just about half . . . an hour ago . . . with his bundle . . . going out east." Having finished his sentence, he burst into a storm of blows, which was a signal for A and D to begin hammering with the utmost madness, producing a deafening effect.

"He has run off," cried Mr. Woodney in distress, "because we didn't appreciate his music. Mace, I wonder if you couldn't find him?"

"Why should I?" returned Mace indignantly. "He isn't going to live with us, and if he is that ungrateful, he might as well go now as to-morrow!"

"My dear, I beg of you to hurry after him!" exclaimed Mr. Woodney. "The lad needs a protector. That delicately sensitive nature can not endure, out in the hard world. Run and find him, Mace!"

Mace, still indignant at Arthur for slipping away, but always ready to obey her parents, snatched up her sunbonnet and hurried down the road in the direction indicated by Mr. Tumbleton.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR

that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER

gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

Agents Wanted

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

NOTICE!

The Woolley Sanatorium, the only institution in the United States where the Opium, Cocaine and Whisky habits can be cured without exposure, and with so much ease for the patient. Only 30 days' time required. Describe your case and I will write you an opinion as to what I can accomplish for you. Ask your family physician to investigate. Dr. B. M. Woolley, 106 N. Pryor Street, Atlanta, Ga.

WILL OPERATE

Through Sleeping Cars

From ST. LOUIS To

Northern Michigan Summer Resorts

This Season as Usual

C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Fistula, Fissure, Bleeding, Itching, Ulceration, Constipation and all Rectal Diseases a Specialty. Cures Guaranteed. Send for Booklet. DR. M. NEY SMITH, Specialist, 800 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo. Established in St. Louis in 1888.

The Editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST knows of his personal knowledge a number of persons who were severely afflicted with rectal troubles whom Dr. Smith has cured. He is personally acquainted with the Doctor, and has no hesitation in commending any sufferer thus afflicted to him.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

I. H. GARRISON,	President
W. W. DOWLING,	Vice-President
W. D. CREE,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. CROW,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. HOFFMANN,	General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Not to have a Home Department now is to be "way back." We have all the needed equipment and gladly answer questions.

We have just received a pretty "Cradle Roll" reception card, and will guarantee its good effects in your school; 25 cents per dozen.

Do you need a good Sunday-school map for either class or school? We have them on either or both the Testaments at prices from $1.00 to $10.

The Attendance and Offering Cards, on which spaces are punched for punctuality and amount, are in good demand at one cent each. Try them.

All ministers are given 25 per cent off on our own publications, whether they take stock or not, and we have the books of "our brotherhood."

We are offering the Lesson Commentary to those not using it at 75 cents for a while, as the present stock will end the issue for this year. Try it.

The circulation of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is moving right along at a rate that indicates appreciation of the excellent work it does for our homes and the cause of Christ.

Are you using neat baskets in taking your morning and evening offerings, or are you still "passing the hat"? We have a full supply of baskets from 30 cents up, not prepaid.

That 128 page catalogue gives you a full list and description of our new stock of Reward Cards, which are being so generally used by "down to date" superintendents and teachers.

We hope to have within a few days a good supply of circulars with a full explanation of the Christian Workers' New Testament. This excellent work sells at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25.

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

The "one dime" album is a great means of raising funds by the children. Spacing for ten dimes on the cards; also names of the donors, all of which is then sealed and handed in by the pupil. Five cents each.

The Gospel of Matthew by Peloubet, at 50 cents (former price $1.25), is bringing us many orders, as it should, and the supply will soon be exhausted unless we can make similar arrangements for another lot.

We have just from the press a very pretty "Certificate of Graduation" from the primary to the main school at 50 cents per dozen.

Burlington Route

OFFICIAL ROUTE

—TO—

CALIFORNIA

"CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST" Special

LEAVING ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY

—AUGUST 9th, 1905.—

FOR PARTICULARS AND RESERVATIONS WRITE

G. A. HOFFMANN, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis,

—OR—

J. G. DELAPLAINE, Broadway & Olive, St. Louis.

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or Scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

We are hurrying "Gloria in Excelsis," but it must be the very best Church Hymnal on the market, so we are hastening to do the work right and are booking all inquiries for sample pages, which will be sent to those requesting them as soon as possible.

We are now helping many of the "preaching brethren" on the "installment plan," giving them the privilege of ordering any books desired, paying one-fifth down, and the balance as may suit you best. Write us; you are welcome to the offer.

Do not forget the "sweet girl graduate," nor the youth "filled with ambition's aims"; and nothing is better than a nice copy of the word of God, given them on "Commencement Day." Many did this last year with much pleasure to both the giver and receiver.

More Y. P. S. C. E. supplies have gone out this spring than in years, manifesting quite an activity for a "craze" that some brethren thought, twenty years ago, would "soon die out." Model constitutions, topic cards, pledge cards and all are moving as if the young people meant business for the Master and betterment for themselves. Write us for samples and prices.

One of the best books in stock is not appreciated because the title does not commend it to you, namely, "Whether Common or Not." It is full of the best of things, put in such humorous manner as holds the interest throughout. It sells for $1, but we will send out a few at 75 cents that you may test our judgment of a most interesting and humorous and beneficial work.

By the time these notes are read, we hope to be up on all our books, but our friends must bear with us in this age of prosperity, for we are running our presses and pushing the bindery as much as possible, and still we are far behind on much of our work. Brother Garrison's book on the Holy Spirit will be sent to those ordering just as soon as possible. Our warning is, "first come, first served." Send us $1 and your book will come to you as soon as we get it from the bindery; but bear with us.

So many new and good things are coming up constantly that you must watch these Notes if you would keep to the front. We have just received two very pretty little devices, one a private post-card to be sent to the absent pupil, with gentle reminder of how such an one was missed, while the other is a private post-card inviting the baby member of the Cradle Roll to a "reception" at the church for members of the Primary Department, including the Cradle Roll. Both of these cards have very attractive pictures which are sure to please the little ones and their mammas. Two cents each, postpaid, is the price.

Have you a Glass Birthday Globe in use in your school, or are you still trying to get along as "our fathers did"? The glass enables the children to see the pennies as they are dropped in, and it is a constant reminder of the goodness of the Lord in giving them the many pleasant and happy birthdays and of our obligations to him. We have them in three sizes at 35 cents, 50 cents and $1.35 postpaid; the last being very handsome and so protected as to guarantee it against breakage.

A Modern Plea
for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

THE

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 22. June 1, 1905. $1.50 A Year

LAKE TAHOE ON THE CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA STATE LINE

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist.

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER, } Staff Correspondents.
W. DURBAN,

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. GARRISON.

CONTENTS.

CURRENT EVENTS 691

EDITORIAL:

Christian Science in Christian Churches 693
A Practical Illustration of Unity......... 693
A Notable Event........ 694
Notes and Comments........ 694
Editor's Easy Chair........ 695

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLES:

The Breathings of the Spirit. G. N. Stevenson 696
Poem—A Vision of Peace........ 696
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 697
Our National Malady and One Remedy for It. David H. Shields........ 698
A Phase of the Union Question. J. H. Hardin 698
Why Baptizo was Never Translated. H. C. Patterson........ 699
OUR BUDGET........ 700

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS:

Ohio State Convention........ 705
Texas " " 706
About Some Points in Texas........ 706
Kentucky University Letter 707
C. W. B. M. in Missouri 707
Arkansas State Convention........ 708
Nebraska News........ 709
EVANGELISTIC........ 710
OBITUARIES........ 711
SUNDAY-SCHOOL........ 712
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR........ 712
MIDWEEK PRAYER-MEETING........ 713
CURRENT LITERATURE........ 713
PEOPLE'S FORUM........ 714
FAMILY CIRCLE........ 715
WITH THE CHILDREN........ 718

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO,
NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Church Convention

California

The Christian Church will hold its International Convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 24

The Santa Fe is the best way there

Santa Fe

It's the shortest line to Southern California and a direct route to San Francisco—the time is fast—the weather is cool in summer—the track is oil-sprinkled and practically dustless—the mountain scenery is magnificent—one management all the way insures satisfactory service, start to finish—and Harvey serves the meals, the best in the West.

Tickets on Sale August 6 to 14, good to return in 90 days, from Middle-West states—on sale a day earlier in the East.

Round-trip Ticket rate via direct routes, $62.50 from Chicago, $57.50 from St. Louis, $50 from Kansas City, with stop-overs in Colorado and West.

Regular Service

The Santa Fe runs four trains to California. The California Limited is fastest and most luxurious—equipped with compartment, observation and drawing-room Pullmans, buffet-smoker and dining car. The California Fast Mail is almost as swift; the other two are called the Los Angeles and San Francisco Expresses; all three carry standard and tourist Pullmans and chair cars.

Special Excursion

Christian Church Special (equipped with standard and tourist Pullmans) leaves Dearborn Station, Chicago, via the Santa Fe, 10 p. m., Monday, August 7, leaves Kansas City 11 a. m., August 8, and arrives Los Angeles 6:00 p. m., August 12, stopping several hours at Albuquerque, N. M., Redlands, Cal., and Riverside, Cal.; also one day at Grand Canyon of Arizona. Personally conducted by a representative of the Santa Fe. Mr. G. W. Muckley, Corresponding Secretary, Board of Church Extension, American Christian Missionary Society, Mr. R. H. Waggener, National Superintendent, Christian Church Y. P. S. C. E., and Mr. Chas. A. Young, of the "Christian Century," will be in charge.

Grand Canyon Side Ride will cost $6.50 extra for railroad ticket, $1 extra for Pullman, and reasonable amount for accommodations at El Tovar hotel. The most wonderful scenic spectacle in the whole world, worth going thousands of miles to see. No extra charge for Redlands and Riverside side-rides through California orange groves.

Not room here to give full particulars. Won't you write to me for all the facts?

A. Andrews, G. A., 209 No. Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. June 1, 1905 No. 22

Current Events.

The Government as a Buyer.

The Panama Canal commission, acting through its executive committee, has decided to buy the necessary supplies, which will be needed in vast quantity for the construction of the canal, in foreign markets if they can be secured there more cheaply than at home. This decision has caused some complaint on the part of those who make much of the duty of patronizing home industry, and especially on the part of those who have American-made goods to sell at prices considerably above European prices. The anti-protectionists have taken great joy in the decision. It seems to them a reductio adabsurdum of the tariff principle. The government has been entirely willing that the general public should pay "protection" prices for all commodities and has, by the tariff wall, prevented access to cheaper foreign markets. But when its own business is involved on a large scale it hastens to disregard national boundaries and buy where it can buy to best advantage, just as every sensible man would do if he were permitted to and as the government ought to allow every man to do—so the free-traders are saying. The argument is not without a degree of cogency. To be sure the government is not importing these supplies into strictly American territory, but they are to be used in a strictly American enterprise. If the legitimate protection which the tariff gives to the American producer is worth what it costs to the American consumer, this would have been an excellent opportunity to exhibit faith in that proposition. The commissioners have acted as wise business men but not as shrewd politicians if the support of the protection doctrine is a matter of any interest to them.

* * *

More Polygamy.

An "open letter" has been issued by the interdenominational council of women to the people of America. It expresses the fear that the importance of the last annual conference of the Mormon church is not popularly appreciated. It is stated that prior to the meeting of this conference, on April 6, Senator Smoot, in order to fortify himself better in the Senate, demanded that the two members of the quorum of the twelve apostles who had taken plural wives since the manifesto prohibiting polygamy should not be presented for re-election to their high office. But these men declined to be sacrificed, and President Smith, who at first leaned to Smoot's plan, thinking it a good one to get public opinion "off the scent," found himself in danger of a very serious rebellion. He hastily abandoned his previous intention to have it revealed to him that other candidates should take the place of Taylor and Cowley, who were reelected, Smoot finding important business to take him away. The council points out that the net result was to mark out the polygamous party as completely dominant in Mormonism, and to put a complete end to all pretenses at making the church monogamic. And this trouble in the inner ring is not the only thing that is letting slip facts inimical to all the open professions of the Mormons.

* * *

The Need of Economy.

The cry for economy in government is doubtless almost as old as government itself—but that is only because extravagance with public funds is practically coeval with the beginnings of organized political society. There are enough petty grafts and ridiculous extravagances in connection with our own government to call for serious attention. One of them is the printing graft. The United States government owns and operates the largest printing office in the world. The amount of printed matter which it turns out is almost incalculable. The various departments seem to be afflicted with a perfect passion for publication. Long and needless reports, many of them full of expensive maps, tables and colored plates, are printed and bound by the thousands. Every department seems to fear that it will not get its share. An investigation of the bureau of printing is on foot and we shall have an interesting report and a much-needed reform.

Congressional junketing would be another fruitful field for profitable economy. The government can perfectly well afford to pay the expenses of the men sent to represent it at all reasonable functions and in all needed investigations, but there is no reason why the absurd extravagances of useless junkets should be perpetuated. The last Congress appropriated $10,000 to pay the expenses of a congressional party of twenty-five to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, at Portland, Ore. The amount would seem to be ample. Four hundred dollars ought to pay the expense of transporting one congressman to and from Portland and maintaining him while there in comfort and dignity. But when the Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, who is charged with the dispersion of this sum, announced that he would not expend a cent more, it was deemed an almost revolutionary position. The common practice on such occasions has been to swell the party by the addition of relatives and friends, all hands spend money with ingenious prodigality, and turn up with a deficit several times as large as the original appropriation, to be met in due time by another appropriation.

The vice president's $500 ink-well, to be made by Tiffany at the expense of the government for the vice-president's room in the capitol and to be carried away as a souvenir by that gentleman at the end of his term of office, is perhaps another illustration of the foolish extravagances which we permit for fear of being called niggardly. We are told that such an inkstand is needed to harmonize with the other furnishings of the vice-president's room. Besides, we are told it is the custom to give the vice-president a several hundred dollar inkstand and that Vice-president Hobart's cost $800. In the face of this, perhaps Mr. Fairbanks ought to be praised for his economy rather than upbraided for extravagance. But it would be cheaper to give him a fountain-pen.

* * *

Foolish Heroism.

It has often occurred to us that there is something to be said in defense of the railway engineer who jumps when he sees an impending collision—always providing, of course, that he does everything possible to prevent the collision before jumping—and we are glad that a champion has arisen to defend him. The trade paper, Locomotive Engineering, had this comment, which has been quoted several times recently:

> The man who goes down with his engine in a wreck is considered worthy of great commendation, when the truth is, as all railway men are aware, that the unfortunate in such cases lost his nerve at the critical moment and hesitated to jump. When an accident is impending, the cool and collected engineer shuts off steam, applies the brakes and opens the valves, all of the actions taking a few seconds. Then he looks out for his own safety. Another man becomes so frightened in the presence of great danger that he does nothing, not even the possible, and he is the person likely to wear a martyr's crown.

We would hate to believe that the engineer who sticks to his post until the crash has merely "lost his nerve." We would rather think that he is a real hero at heart and has deliberately chosen death rather than dishonor. But the question at issue is not as to the heroism of the man who sticks, but as to the good sense and good morals of the man who jumps after he has done all that he can do, and on this point we are inclined to side with the jumper. There is a world of difference morally between jumping the moment before the last valve is turned and jumping the moment after. The only value in staying to give oneself as a needless sacrifice lies in the worth of such an example of unselfish heroism —and even that will fade away under the teaching that the engineer hero is simply a man who has "lost his nerve."

* * *

The Ocean Yacht Race.

On May 17, eleven sailing yachts of various size and rig, started from Sandy Hook on a trans-Atlantic race. The boats range in size from less than a hundred feet to nearly three hundred, and in rig from a yawl to a full-rigged ship. There are no time allowances and practically no rules for the race. The boats all crossed the line as nearly together as possible, and the first one at the goal wins the race. This disposes of those subtleties by which in the international yacht races for the America's cup, the apparent winner often becomes the real loser when all the time allowances have been made. The race will also escape the criticism which has often fallen upon the other yacht races —namely, that they neither encourage the building nor test the efficiency of real boats built for real service, but only of racing machines. The typical racing yacht may be called an egg-shell suspended between an acre of canvas and a hundred tons of lead. It can carry neither freight nor passengers. It is built neither for business nor for comfort, but only for speed. But this trans-Atlantic race calls for sterner qualities, and it should be a test of all round seaworthiness as well as speed. So far it is all very well. The drawback is that in a race under such conditions the element of luck is very large. The vessels will get far enough apart to encounter different sorts of wind and weather, and it would require a large number of trials to eliminate this factor by the law of averages and give fair certainty that the best boat or the best crew had won. However that may be, the enterprise has a wholesome and hearty flavor which is more to our taste than a race between mere racing machines. The race is under the patronage of Emperor William, who offers the cup. Eight of the eleven entries are from the United States, two from England and one from Germany. An American yacht won, in 12 days and 4 hours.

* * *

Decoration Day

It is too late to give any exhortation as to the proper observance of Decoration Day and too early to give any report of its observance. It may, nevertheless, be appropriate to express the hope and the conviction that this day will more and more be made a time for remembering the honored and heroic dead of both north and south. Judge W. H. Brawley, of South Carolina, in an address on Confederate Memorial Day, May 10, expressed the sentiment that men died for their country on both sides of the Civil War, and that the patriots of both armies should be honored together and alike. Certainly there are few left who would use the day to "make treason odious" in the sense of tearing open the old sores. The surviving ex-Confederates are reconstructed almost to the last man. Is it not just to assume that those who fell in battle would if they had lived have wholly renewed their allegiance to the Federal government by this time as their brothers have done? Indeed, one may freely believe that, freed from some of the limitations and prejudices which are the accompaniments of mortality, and gaining wider vision from their higher standpoint, the Confederate dead were the first of all to take, in spirit, the oath of renewed allegiance to their country and its government.

* * *

Bribery vs. Boodle.

The situation in Philadelphia grows more and more interesting. Mayor Weaver has shown himself the right sort and is fighting the gas grab with all his power. The measure passed by the council will be returned with his veto at the next session, this week. The question is whether enough honest councilmen can be found, or enough be made honest by external pressure, to prevent the passage of the bill over the mayor's veto. Some men are born honest, some achieve honesty and some Philadelphia councilmen are having honesty fairly forced upon them by sheer compulsion. The latter feature is somewhat unusual. So intense is the popular feeling against the gas lease bill, that a boycott has been organized, or has spontaneously organized itself, against the members of the council who support it. As business men, they find their shops and offices deserted. Their former patrons will not do business with them. Orders are being withheld, and contracts given to competitors, and they are threatened with ruin unless they will support the mayor and vote against the gas steal. Their neighbors will not call on their wives and their children's playmates point the finger of scorn at them. Several who before voted for the bill have been brought over to the right side by these convincing arguments. One man who keeps a saloon found his establishment constantly empty, and even the thirstiest of his former patrons would not so much as buy a beer over his bar. Surely the depths are stirred when the guzzling public will forego its guzzle (or change the place of its guzzlement) in the interest of honest government. Of course this boycott is really a sort of indirect and negative bribe, in theory at least, but perhaps in a critical moment compulsory or purchased honesty is better than none. The gas company has backed out, and Weaver controls the situation.

* * *

Atmospheric Foolishness.

Spring seems to have been sidetracked this year. Genial sunshine and balmy air have brightened our hopes by flitting visits, but winds, rains and chilliness have been so prevalent during the past few weeks that the most loyal of us in the Mississippi valley will have to admit that there is really something in Mark Twain's way of putting it.

* * *

The End of the War.

Nothing could be more decisive than the defeat which the Japanese have put upon their opponents. The great Russian armada has been destroyed. As we write the number of Russian ships that were sunk or captured by Admiral Togo in the long expected naval engagement, which began on Saturday evening, stands at nineteen, but it is quite possible that other vessels went down that are not yet reported. The Japanese victory is a remarkable one in that they do not seem to have lost a single ship other than some dozen small vessels of the torpedo and destroyer class. No doubt, to the bravery of the men who manned these lost little vessels is due the greatness in a very signal manner of the Japanese victory. The torpedo boats led the attack just at dusk, after the two fleets had been firing at one another for some hours. The sacrifice of the torpedo boat and its crew was nothing in the eyes of the Japanese if thereby they could destroy a Russian battleship, and their plan of attack was entirely successful, for two Russian battleships, five cruisers, and other less important vessels were soon at the bottom of the sea, and consternation was created in the ranks of the Russians, who began a running sea fight in an effort to get away from the Japanese, who with fleeter vessels hung on until they almost wiped out the armada on which the Russian hopes have for months past been depending. It was the greatest sea fight in history, and perhaps the most remarkable in its results. That it is the beginning of peace is almost certain.

Christian Science in Christian Churches.

A Denver daily paper which has been forwarded to us, contains in flaming headlines the announcement that "faith healing is to be introduced in the Central Christian church [of that city] by the Rev. Bayard Craig, a prominent pastor." We know nothing of the matter except what this article states, and we have learned to make allowances for the large liberties which reporters sometimes take with a meager amount of data. It seems from this article that a prominent Episcopal church had previously introduced the same innovation. B. B. Tyler, our staff correspondent from Denver, recently reported the same fact.

In a reported interview with Brother Craig he is quoted as saying:

> "I firmly believe in the faith cure. Just as the mind, wearied after a day of sorrow, can find consolation in the contemplation of spiritual things, there is no reason why the body cannot be rested in the comtemplation of the sweets of religion and of the teachings of the Master. People of all religions concede from scripture that Christ healed the sick, asking of them only faith in him. He intended his work to live after him, and to-day, if we believe, we can be healed. There is nothing in that simple doctrine which is antagonistic to religion. It is essentially spiritual. Adopting that belief need not include the taking in of all of Mrs. Eddy's teachings. There are some which are too radical for any other denomination and which could not consistently be adopted by any creed. But in the matter of faith cure, which will be the only feature of Christian Science which we will consider, her work must appeal to persons of all denominations.
>
> "My idea of the faith cure is just this: It was a part of the life and teachings of the Master. It was the religion of the people of that day. Could it not be revived? If electricity, the greatest force in the universe to-day, were to be lost to us for hundreds of years and then perhaps rediscovered, it would be just as potent a force once more as it is to-day, and no one would have the temerity to deny this just because the secret of its mission had been buried for so many generations. That is the way I regard the faith cure. That is how I have always regarded it.
>
> "There are people prominent in my church, pillars of the church, in fact, who claim they have been healed by Christian Science. It has not weakened their faith or their interest in the Christian church, of which they are avowed members, but it has given them an appreciation of the one vital principle of Christian Science, which must appeal to us all, namely, the healing by faith. Those people will welcome the movement to bring healers into our church. Gradually all our people will see this. They will see that I am not trying to thrust upon them the doctrine of Mrs. Eddy, but that it is a revival of the teachings of the Master in regard to what faith can do. . . . . There are things about Christian Science which are compatible with the beliefs of any one. I say now that in time I expect my people to drift into this way of thinking and then we shall have our healers, too, and they shall work under the fostering care of the church."

The proper attitude for the church to maintain toward all alleged new discoveries of truth is to "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." It is unwise for Christians to set themselves in opposition to everything that is new, because it is new. There are plenty of things which none of us have yet found out. As we have often had occasion to say, Christian Science, with all its palpable absurdities in philosophy and its negations in religion, has some things in its teaching which are worthy of our approbation and acceptance. It is certainly unwise to make an indiscriminate onslaught upon it, entirely disregarding this fact. We do not think Mrs. Eddy would call the cures effected by Christian Science "faith cures"; but, however this may be, no one can question the fact that through its teaching many people have been materially improved in health. Some of these are members of our churches. What attitude ought the church to assume toward those of its members who claim to have been healed through the principles taught by Christian Science? Our answer would be that so long as they do not permit the teaching of Christian Science to interfere with their faith in Christ, and with their religious duties and obligations in the church, they should not be disturbed in their fellowship nor be put under suspicion. They are acting within the limits of their Christian liberty.

It cannot be denied, however, that in many instances this alleged new philosophy, which is passing into a sort of religion, has usurped the place of the church, and has drawn its votaries away from the church to an organization of its own kind which dispenses with the ordinances of Christ, and with many of the fundamental doctrines of Christ relating to sin, salvation, and even to Jesus Christ himself, as "God manifest in the flesh." This phase of Christian Science and of its pratical workings cannot be ignored. Whatever approval we may extend to its doctrine of healing, through the influence of mind over matter, and by its reliance upon mental conditions rather than upon drugs, we must not fail to discriminate sharply between this method of healing and Christian Science regarded as a philosophy and as a religion. In this last element lies its danger. There are many things which are true and worthy of our approbation as individual Christians, to which we cannot wisely extend the recognition of the church. One school of medicine may be preferable to another, but the church cannot make any distinction between them. No doubt they all effect cures. If an osteopath in the church can heal people, let him do so by all means; if there are faith-healers who can heal people from their sickness through faith or through the power of mind over matter, let them do so; but in neither the one case nor in the other ought we to make the acceptance of these methods of healing a condition of fellowship, or an essential part of our Christianity.

We know Brother Craig too well to believe that he would permit the church of which he has oversight to become so identified with any theory of physical healing as to obscure its sublime mission in proclaiming the gospel of salvation from sin to the world.

The word "drift" is unfortunate, and we are sure on reflection he would repudiate it, if he used it. Things general "drift" downward. They must struggle, or grow, upward, and we are convinced that both the Central Christian church of Denver and its pastor have their hearts set on an upgrade rather than a downgrade movement.

* *

A Practical Illustration of Unity.

In Monroe, Wis., the Baptists and Disciples of Christ had each a weak church. J. H. Berkey had held the Christian church together for some time, cultivating friendly relations with the Baptists. He resigned and moved to southwest Missouri. While he was absent the members of the two churches got together and agreed to work together, provided Brother Berkey would come back and be their pastor. He went back and the union was consummated. The Monroe Sentinel, a local paper, reports how it was done, as follows:

PREAMBLE.

At a joint meeting of the two committees, one representing the Baptists and the other the Disciples of Monroe, Wisconsin, we the undersigned were appointed a committee to draft resolutions embodying their instructions relative to a basis for united Christian worship and work in Monroe. We beg leave to submit the following:

> "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus; for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:26-28.
>
> "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us; THAT THE WORLD MAY BELIEVE THAT THOU HAST SENT ME."—John 17:20, 21.

In view of the foregoing scriptures and many others of a similar import, which we believe to be an expression of the Holy Spirit of God calling on his children to unite their powers with him for the overcoming of sin and the establishment of his everlasting kingdom, Therefore be it resolved:

1. That we lay down at the feet of Jesus, everything that will tend to separate us as God's children, and take as our only rule and guide of faith and practice the gospel of Christ as revealed in the New Testament.
2. The only test of membership in this society shall be faith, repentance, confession and baptism, as taught in the New Testament.
3. This society shall be known as the "Union church in Christ."
4. The Union church in Christ shall, if possible, lease for its use the property belonging to the Christian church for a term of five years, consideration being the keeping of the church property in repair and paying all taxes and insurance on said property during the time of the lease referred to.
5. That all offerings aside from those taken for local purposes shall be divided equally pe-tween the Baptists and Disciples, except when otherwise designated.

6. The Union church in Christ shall elect delegates to attend all denominational conventions of both Christian and Baptist churches.

7. The regular communion services shall be held on the first Lord's day of each month.

8. Those entering into this labor of love shall, as soon as possible, elect a full complement of officers, that the said Union church in Christ be enabled to do all things "decently and in order."

We respectfully submit this report for your consideration in the fear of God and in the name of our Master and Savior, Jesus Christ.

J. H. Berkey,
Hannah M. Gill, } Committee.
L. Kittie Lyman,

The foregoing preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted, after which deacons, elders, trustees, treasurer and clerk were elected. The Sentinel adds: "After the proceedings of organization were concluded, hearty congratulations were in order, and a joyful, hopeful expression was heard on every hand. No doubts or misgivings were voiced or felt. 'Out of two there shall be one.' From the divided and weakened congregations of two denominations cometh forth a strong united body, with spirit to work together for the divine Master—for the good of the community and spiritual welfare of its membership. As this message of loving brotherhood and sisterhood goes forth to the world, it is hoped that it may extend and widen an influence for church good—for unity and harmony, and bring together other Christian bodies—to worship and work for the common good of humanity."

How long will it be before all churches will be willing to "lay down at the feet of Jesus everything that will tend to separate us as God's children," and study the things that make for peace and unity.

We congratulate these brethren on this manifestation of the spirit of unity. Whatever may be lacking in order to a full and perfect representation of a New Testament church will no doubt be supplied, just as they grow in the knowledge of Christ, and their unity will become permanent and indissoluble.

A Notable Event.

The dedication of the new building of the Missouri Bible College at Columbia, on the evening of the 24th ult., was an occasion of more than ordinary significance. This enterprise of establishing a Bible college contiguous to the State University, where its students could enjoy the benefits of the courses in the university, and the students of the university could receive free tuition in the Bible college, was begun about ten years ago. It had its origin after the failure of an earnest effort to secure a sufficient amount of funds to establish, on an enduring basis, an institution of learning under our own auspices which would be able, to some extent at least, to cope with the State University. It then dawned upon some minds that, since the university belonged to the people of the state, and since the Disciples of Christ, with their actual membership and those committed more or less to their view of things, constitute, perhaps, one-fifth of the population of the state, it would be a wise and economic policy to locate an institution at Columbia devoted solely to Biblical instruction, and to the preparation of young men for the ministry, where its students could have free access to all the courses of the university.

Like all new ideas, this new educational idea had a struggle to gain recognition. But it has won its way, gradually, over much opposition, has conquered prejudice, and is at last in a position to give still more convincing proof of the feasibility and wisdom of the movement. One of the great needs of the work from the beginning has been a building, close to the university buildings, for the use of the Bible College. This was made possible during the past year by an annuity gift of $15,000 from B. F. Lowry and his sister, of Columbia, which was supplemented by other donations amounting to $10,000, nearly all of which was secured in Columbia and Boone county. The building erected thus at a cost of a little over $25,000, is the handsomest structure, from an architectural point of view, in the whole group of buildings on the university grounds. It is built of stone and consists of recitation rooms and offices on the first floor, with two upper stories devoted to the purposes of a dormitory, with rooms handsomely finished and furnished for use by the students of the institution and of the university.

A large company of people turned out on the evening mentioned above and inspected the building. Bro. T. P. Haley presided and delivered an appropriate introductory address, which was followed by another address by the Editor of the Christian-Evangelist. Dr. J. C. Jones, acting president of the university, made a happy speech, expressing in a most cordial way, his appreciation of the wisdom of the enterprise, and the value that it would prove to be, both to the university and to the religious body which had established the school. Dean W. J. Lhamon then expressed thanks to various donors and helpers in the building enterprise, read a brief dedicatory statement, and an impressive dedicatory prayer was made by Dr. W. T. Moore. The exercises closed with the benediction from Professor Sharpe.

The occasion was altogether a delightful one, and one of great rejoicing on the part of the friends of the enterprise. D. O. Smart, president of the board of trustees, and a steadfast friend of this enterprise from its beginning, was present, but it is to be regretted that so few of the business men of the church, outside of Columbia, were present on so important an occasion. The faculty of the school for the present consists of Dean W. J. Lhamon and Prof. C. M. Sharpe, who are giving their whole time to the work, assisted by Dr. W. T. Moore, dean emeritus, who gave a splendid course of lectures during the past term.

This institution has a field of its own, and does not interfere with that of any other institution in the state. Our brotherhood in Missouri is dependent upon that, and Christian University, at Canton, for the training of our young men for the ministry, so far as our state institutions are concerned, and they are both worthy of the support of the brotherhood of the state.

The Bible College, which has an endowment of $50,000, ought to have at least $100,000, in order to enable it to double its faculty, and this it will have, no doubt, in the near future. A still larger sum than this is of course needed by Christian University to enable it to do the work that it desires to do. Nothing before the Missouri brotherhood is more important than the better endowment of these institutions of learning.

Notes and Comments.

We are receiving some inquiries from persons who desire to attend the national convention in San Francisco as to which of the several advertised routes or special trains they should patronize. We would like for our readers to understand that it is a matter of no financial interest whatever to us whether they go by one route or the other. No matter where the convention is held, the Christian-Evangelist seeks to secure a large attendance and to awaken a general interest in such gatherings. Our object now is to get the brethren to attend our convention in San Francisco. No one acquainted with the different lines of travel will question the fact that the Christian-Evangelist Special will travel over the most scenic route to San Francisco. We suppose, too, that we will have as choice a company of men and women as ever traveled across the continent. It remains, however, for our readers to study the map, examine our itinerary, pay their money and take their choice. But be sure to go.

* * *

The state conventions which are being held now, and the national convention which is to follow in August, will furnish evidence in an affirmative or negative way of the influence of our national and local business men's associations, the object of which is to enlist the business men of our churches more actively in the local and general interests of the church. No organization among us will deserve more of our gratitude than this, if it shall succeed in arousing the men of business capacity and means in our churches to a sense of their obligation in pushing forward the interests of the kingdom of God.

Editor's Easy Chair.

Saturday night has one advantage over all the other nights of the week. A week's toil lies behind it, and the day of rest is just ahead. A day of rest, we say, but not necessarily of inactivity. It is a good time, as the week is closing, to sit down and look back over the six days, and think over what has engaged our time and thought, and whether we have made the best use of the opportunities which have come to us. Have we been wholly absorbed in material interests? Have there come into our daily lives no gleams of light from the world above? Have we been in bondage to our daily tasks, or have we used them as means to our higher development? These questions will do to ponder in the deepening twilight of Saturday evening. The sun went down, this evening, in a rose-red sky, giving promise of a fair day to morrow. May it be a day of rest, not alone from daily toil, but from the burden of sin and worry and care! This is the rest which Jesus promises to those who come to him. How many hearts are sad and weary to-night! The battle has gone hard with them, and disappointment and defeat have brought despondency and gloom. May the holy day bring calm and peace to all these troubled hearts!

◆

The prophecy of the red sky in the west has been fulfilled in a glorious Lord's day. It has been a day of varied activities with many, and yet, we fear, a day of sleepy indolence and wearisome ease to many others. But those who have been busy in doing good are more rested in spirit to-night than those who have sought selfish ease and idleness. It fell to the lot of the Editor of the Easy Chair to serve one of the churches of a neighboring religious body, in the absence of its pastor, at the morning worship. The heartiness with which his message was accepted impressed him anew with the fact that we have a great common Christianity with which, if we were contented, we might all be one. The tendency of good people, who have heard but little preaching outside their own body, to identify these fundamental Christian truths with their denominational beliefs, was illustrated by a remark of a member to one of the officers, who reported it to the Editor, that she "did not think it would take long to bring that preacher into our church!" We have all had the experience, doubtless, of being told, after preaching, that "that was a good Presbyterian sermon," or "a good Baptist sermon," or "a good Methodist sermon," as the case might be; the hearers in each instance identifying all that they believe to be true with their particular type of denominationalism! Such a remark does not argue that the preacher has preached any "ism" whatever, but that he has preached that fundamental gospel that appeals to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

◆

The call of the strawberry man, on the street, this (Monday) morning reminds us that our native homegrown strawberry, with all its luscious sweetness, has arrived on the scene. Those which were shipped to us months ago were only feeble imitations of the genuine article. Strawberries are not seen at their best in crates or boxes, or even stemmed and piled up in dishes on the table. To be appreciated in all their exquisite loveliness, they must be seen on the vine, where they have grown, gleaming out from under the green leaves and the green grass. These tame cultivated strawberries may be larger and more valuable in the market than the native wild strawberries that grow out in the woodlands, or in shady dells, but they lack that flavor and romance which charmed us when we were boys and girls. Have you forgotten that strawberrying on that glorious May or June day, of the long ago? Perhaps it was your mother or your sister that was with you, and perhaps it was an oldtime girl sweetheart with whom you strolled through the woods in that glorious springtime. You sought out the largest and ripest ones and gave them to her, whose lips and whose cheeks vied in color with the ripened berry. You cannot see the wild strawberry growing to-day, nor breathe its odor, without calling up those memories of the long past. And that is why the tame cultivated strawberry, though larger, is no match to us for the old-fashioned wild strawberry that we plucked from the vines in the beautiful springtime of the long ago.

◆

At this writing the world is in a fever of excitement over the results of the great naval conflict in the East. No doubt the result of that battle will influence the map of at least three nations, and indirectly have an important bearing on the advancement of the kingdom of God. But we are wont to attach undue importance to external conflicts between opposing nations, and far too little to the great moral conflicts that are continually going on between the forces of righteousness and of evil. These battles are going on all about us and they seldom attract much attention. That was a great victory won in Philadelphia, a few days since, by Mayor Weaver and the people over the gang of city officials who had the city under their feet and were trampling on it. It illustrates what an aroused public sentiment can accomplish. The fact that a city like Philadelphia could be brought under the domination of such a corrupt and conscienceless ring illustrates, too, to what depths of corruption a city may allow itself to sink by the indifference of its citizens to civic righteousness. This battle has to be fought in all our cities, and the outcome of these conflicts means far more to our American civilization than the issue of the naval conflict in the east. We have only begun the fight in St. Louis, and there is not wanting evidence of an alliance between all the forces of evil to neutralize the good already accomplished, and to bring in once more the rule of lawlessness and of corruption. Eternal vigilance, we are learning anew, is the price, not only of liberty, but of civic righteousness as well.

◆

The Easy Chair recently heard a lecture on "The Art of Thinking." The lecturer said that very few people do any thinking at all. They simply repeat other people's thoughts. The lecture set us to wondering if there were not a good deal of truth in this. We have observed that when a cry is raised, in certain quarters, political or religious, no matter how unreasonable it may be, or how it is lacking in any basis of fact, it is likely to be taken up and repeated by many others who have never stopped to even raise the question, "Is this true, and just, and right?" Another proof that the art of thinking is altogether too rare an art is the lack of clearness of thought manifest in so much that we hear and read. No one can state a thing clearly to others that does not exist very clearly in his own mind. Accurate thinking lies behind clear writing, and clear speaking. If our impressions are confused, our expressions will likewise be confused. Is there not too much careless thinking, and careless writing? It is hard work, we know, to think on a subject until we see it clearly, and then to write on it until we write our thoughts clearly, but it is well worth while, both for the sake of the reader and the writer.

◆

We have just entered on the glorious month of June—month of roses, of picnics, of college commencements, and of religious conventions. The roses and the picnics will take care of themselves, for the roses can't help blooming and looking beautiful, nor can the children of our Sunday-schools be very well kept away from the woods and the picnic grounds. But we speak a word in behalf of our colleges, and religious conventions. These are great interests that need our thought, our presence, our encouragement, our help. As far as lies in you, attend the college commencements, and encourage the faithful teachers that at no little sacrifice are training our boys and girls for their life-work. And then do not fail to attend the religious conventions. Subordinate your business engagements for a few days to the interests of the kingdom. Let us make June a month of splendid religious activity, for July and August cometh on when the people who dwell in the cities will flee to the mountains and to the seaside and lakeside.

The Breathings of the Spirit

By G. N. Stevenson

A wonderful wave of religious revival is in motion among the churches at the present time which, if I mistake not the signs of the times, threatens to become universal. Australia, New Zealand, India, England, Wales and the United States have already been affected by it, and now in Canada we are praying for it and looking toward the heavens for some sign that our land too will tremble under the influence of a mighty spiritual upheaval. And why should not this twentieth century beginning mark an epoch in the history of religion, an advance in the work of the Spirit among men? The time and general conditions are favorable to a great revival of religion. The church is passing through a period of worldliness, and scepticism, materialism, and rationalism, and by those forces spiritual life has been almost crushed out and a belief in a supernatural guidance weak indeed. During such times all great religious awakenings have taken place and Christianity itself was born during such a time. The simple faith in the supernatural of the Greeks, however crude and imperfect in conception, had been undermined by the sophists who taught that divinity had no special interest in individuals, that it was useless for men to pray, as everything occurred according to the unchangeable law of an endless cycle. The Roman religion fared no better under such teaching. The gods no longer commanded allegiance and authority, virtue was trampled under foot, and immortality vigorously denied.

Among the Jews themselves religion had degenerated into rites and ceremonies, legalism and traditionalism, the canon of revelation had been long closed and the Bath Iol was no longer heard. At such a time of scepticism and sin the heavenly voice was once more heard anointing the man of Galilee as the Savior of men, a messenger once more came with a message, better than that of Moses or Elijah, from the supernatural world, arousing the dormant religious sensibilities and reviving more emphatically and more clearly the belief in the supernatural. This belief became so decided and manifest that the infant church was endued with a wonderful power of miracle working such as had been most strikingly manifest in the times of the greatest lawgiver and the greatest prophet. Inspired by such a faith and endued with such a power the early disciples went everywhere preaching the gospel and in an incredibly short time the whole Roman world was aflame with this spiritual conflagration.

Very similar were the conditions at the outbreak of the Lutheran Reformation. Religion had been reduced to a system of forms, ceremonies and works and seemed at least to have lost a vital connection with an omnipresent God. The clergy themselves were dissolute and immoral, and in many cases were avowed atheists and skeptics, so that there remained but a dead body of ecclesiasticism from which the spirit had departed. Into such a religious world the Spirit of God descended, and Huss and Melancthon and Calvin and Luther preached and prophesied. Then came an age of faith in God, in Christ, in the Holy Spirit; then followed a period of wonderful expressions of religious enthusiasm and power, in many cases, if the histories be true, the equivalent of what took place in the early days of the church, the dreams of Huss, the prophesyings of Luther, the healings and answers to prayer and discernments of spirits of the Scots worthies and the hunted Huguenots, all of which, whether true or false, serving to strengthen their faith in God and his work that we now know they were doing. As a result of these labors the tide of Romanism was rolled back to the Mediterranean and half of Europe was elevated to a higher sense of the all-abiding and ever-living presence of God in the human soul.

Scarcely had two centuries passed away than the mighty spiritual impulse given religion by Luther, Calvin and Knox had weakened, especially in England, to as dead a faith as had characterized Rome at the time of the great reformation. Faith in God, in Christianity, in the supernatural, was being undermined by enemies both within and without the church. Within, the formal, spiritless worship and the lack of piety and morals in the bishops and clergy; without, the attack of the deists, the denial of miracles, rejection of prophecy and in general the tendency to deny the supernatural in life and experience by such men as Lord Herbert, Hobbes, Collins, Woolston, Voltaire and Rousseau. With these as powerfully working causes it is easy to foresee that as a result religion would be shorn of its power and God's presence would not be experienced or believed as an ever wonder working guide into all truth. Again there came a descent of the Spirit of power, a quickening of the religious conscience, an earnest clearing of the soul, a seeking after true faith and repentance in the work of Whitefield and the Wesleys in England and of others in America, followed by spiritual and physical phenomena of striking significance.

Nearly two centuries have passed by since the Wesleyan reformation was inaugurated and during that time Christianity has again lapsed into a lifeless condition. It came to be interpreted in terms of intellect and system, of opinion and form, resulting in a lamentable multiplication of sects and theological systems, each claiming for itself the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. This naturally led to a propaganda of sect and creed, the conception that Christianity is a supernatural result, a life, a real force ever coming into the lives of men being overlooked or forgotten. Thus truly now, as in the age of Christ and his humble fishermen, of Luther and the peasants of Germany and the humble fugitives of France, of Wesley and the miners of England and Wales, there is great need of a sudden and powerful descent of the Spirit into the bosom of the church, into the lives and hearts of men. There are unmistakable signs that this awakening is at hand. The increasing realization of the inability of the churches to reach the masses of mankind; the ever deepening dissatisfaction with the divided condition of the Christian world, and the cry for union growing louder and louder; the strengthening consciousness of God's nearness to us and his presence in us to energize and regenerate, and finally the intermittent yet deepening spiritual revivals in different parts of the world, all point to a manifestation of the power of God such as will usher in a new age in the history of his redemptive work.

A Vision of Peace.

By Thomas Curtis Clark.

As I mused upon the nations
In the demon War's embrace,
Vision of the future held me,
Vision of a love-filled race:
As I peered into the ages,
O'er the earth one flag unfurled,
Emblem of the everlasting
Federation of the World.

War had ceased; no more the roaring
Of the cannon's giant throat
Mingled with the loud alarm
Of the bugle's brazen note;
For the nations of the earth land
From all greed at last were free,
And in friendship, strong and lasting,
Joined their hands across the sea.

As I wondered, rapt and silent,
Suddenly upon the breeze
Rang an anthem, loud and glorious,
Floating out o'er all the seas:
Not a discord marred the music,
With its God-inspired increase;
This the anthem they were singing,
"Peace on earth, eternal peace."

And behold as I, in rapture,
Gazed and marveled at the sight,
Saw I, 'mid the thronging people,
Set a throne of radiant light:
And unto that throne of glory,
Tribute did the nations bring;
There the Christ reigned, love His scepter,
Christ, the everlasting King.

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

There are a good many troubled people in this world. There are a great many people who are Christians, who have obeyed the gospel and are living godly lives, that for some reason are exceedingly unhappy and disturbed all the time. This seems all wrong and surely would not be possible if people only understood the blessed realities of religion. Why should a human mind find no satisfaction for its craving for beauty and go day after day without the enjoyment of the beautiful flooding it like the glad waters that sing and play, and rush and quiver and clap their hands with delight between the banks of a swollen stream, when all that is needed is to open the eyes and drink in the glories of nature that surround every man? Why should the body hunger and grow weak for food, waste away and come to death at last for lack of nourishment, when there are cattle on a thousand hills, and fields are burdened with their wealth of grain, and tables are crowned with the unstinted bounty of an all provident God, and it is only necessary to put forth the effort necessary to appropriate this abundance? Why? There must be some mental obtuseness in the man craving beauty who looks down always upon the dust and sees none. There must be some physical inaction on the part of a body starving for food under these circumstances of plenty, and finding none.

A voice from heaven says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find." "Let not your heart be troubled." "Peace I leave with you: my peace give I unto you." "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace." "Being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." "The peace of God that passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

Why then unrest? We do not have to go far to find the cause. An English paper I have been reading has its "Mental Troubles Column" and it is amazing to see how week after week it is crowded, and how in every case the difficulties are either purely fancied, or distresses growing out of a morbid study of self. Worry, worry, worry, seems to be at the bottom of nine-tenths of these mournful experiences. And when men and women are prone to brood, and look on the dark side of things, and contemplate night and day themselves, and search for consolation and grace in their own strength, they are obliged to be miserable, and we may say, ought to be miserable. Such a condition is to say the least a selfish one. What a poor thing to sit down and with the microscope of reflection take up your own heart's troubles and scrutinize them, pore over them, revel in them, make them your meat and drink and dessert, get absolutely in love with them! What a sorry employment, to take up the ills of others and the general sins of society, and without any thought of correcting them, put them under the glass and subject them every day to most critical and searching analysis, and glory in the cross only, not that it heals and saves poor miserable humanity, but that humanity was so poor and wretched as to need the cross!

What now is the remedy? For all our difficulties within and without, the first thing to do is to get away from ourselves. How much misery and even madness comes from revery, from dawdling over unhealthy books, from idle self-indulgence of mind contemplating its own ailments or its own gratifications! Then we must care for the things of others. Christianity constantly warns against selfishness. Knowing the calamities resulting from it, not alone to individuals, but to nations, Christ gave example and precept against it. Hosts of Christ's followers that grieve and mourn would sing and be glad if they would walk for a day in his steps. How many, when depressed with their own sins, or with the iniquities of others, think what peace ineffable it would be to spend one day near the Prince of Peace, and yet the way is open to us to find his company by walking as he walked and we are so blinded by our selfishness that we never see it! "In me you shall have peace," not in yourselves, but in me. "Let not the world vex and burden you. Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Christ is the good shepherd. He calls his sheep. The privileges of the fold are pasturage, care, security. Once sheltered here, there is no necessity that you should wander off on the hills and perish. The soul that keeps close to the Shepherd, close to the center of the fold, close in fellowship with the sheep, need never fear. And nearness to Christ is found in cultivating the spirit of Christ and doing the work of Christ and serving the people of Christ. All the unhappiness of Christian life comes from getting out of harmony with Christ and being indifferent to his service. Christ does not forsake us, we forsake him. And the remedy for your unhappiness as a Christian is stronger faith in Christ and greater zeal for the things of Christ.

You are wanted among the helpers. You have done your part as a receiver; begin to do someting as a giver. You have served your time perhaps among the critics and the sponges; come over among the workers and burden bearers. Critics are a drug on the market; helpers are at a premium. Idling, receiving, dissipating, criticising, brooding over self, bring dyspepsia, jaundice, paralysis, astigmatism and every evil work. You see things crookedly. You hear the roaring and buzzing of wheels in your head. You are getting so you have to be carried on a stretcher. You need exercise. Keep up your end.

The fellow in the lumbering region who won't hold up his end of the log, but lets its weight sag on the others, is looked upon with contempt by all in the camp. The world is full of people who won't keep up their end. Here is a father toiling to give his son an education, and the boy is yawning over his books, tricking his teachers, smoking cigarettes, hanging around the street corners with other boys, carrying, it may be, a big headed cane and a single eye glass. For the sake of his own soul he needs to grip his end of the log and hold it up. Here is a man working hard every day and too tired when evening comes to sleep, while his wife reads novels, embroiders and gossips, wanders from door to door carrying bits of pasteboard, or is led about by a dog tied to the end of a string. She doesn't hold up her end. Or oftener, here is a woman stinting and saving, wearing herself out for her children, until her life is as barren and bare as a dusty road at noon, while the man spends his time in saloons, over cards, around pool rooms, and his money on worthless associates. What has become of his end of the log? Here are Christian people by the score who come once a month, or once in six months, to the house of God, who pass upon the preaching with disfavor, and think the music much below par, and complain that the house is too cold or too hot, and think things generally ought to be far different from what they are, and never give a penny, or pull a peg, or put a shoulder to the wheel; and there is the sadder class who love the church and its work and its people, and say, "our church," "our work," "our people," but have little peace and assurance and joy in their religion. What is the remedy?

Keep up your end of the log. Don't shirk. Live for others. Do your part. Take hold. You want the peace of Christ, the company of Christ, the riches of Christ. Follow him. You have got to be a busy soul if you keep up with the Christ. He is going about doing good. See, he hurries along to some sick one, some sorrowing one, some outcast, some weary and heavy laden one, some poor and needy one. You must keep moving, and move where he moves, if you would always feel the touch of his hand and hear the music of his voice. And walking with the Master there will be no time, no place, no experience, in which you will not hear him saying, "Be of good cheer."

Our National Malady and the One Remedy for It

By David H. Shields

I have a profound faith in the permanence and ultimate righteousness of American institutions. I believe that the wrongs that shame us will be finally righted. I believe that the problems that vex shall find a solution. I believe that American capital is as unselfish, to say the least, as any capital in any country or age. I believe that American labor is the best on the earth. I believe that on American soil the human race is destined to reach its highest development. In educational advantages, religious and political freedom, America stands first among the nations of the earth. No nation offers such opportunities to its young men, and affords such incentives to make the best of these advantages, as America.

Yet in spite of these facts, every thoughtful man acknowledges that there are grave dangers threatening the permanency of our institutions, and the very foundation of our republic. When cities are sold for a price by the very men elected to promote the people's welfare; when the voice of the people is silenced by the jingle of gold or the thug's club; when cash is valued higher than honor by a United States senator; when a lieutenant governor and whole state legislatures can be bought like fish in the market; when trusts and labor unions defy the laws of the land; when there is such an inordinate desire for wealth, such greed for place, such fondness for display at any cost, something is wrong.

But let us not forget for a moment that these, and all kindred things, are simply symptoms, not the malady. No intelligent physician would call a rapid pulse, high temperature, and a parched skin, a disease. They are simply "sign boards" to him, pointing to something deeper, deadlier, that calls for heroic treatment.

Men are unanimous in calling this deadly malady that is poisoning the whole American system, "the commercial spirit." It is greed for gold. It is placing cash above every other interest. It is love for money. "Sell votes; sell cities; sell a state; sell laws; sell vice; sell men; sell boys and girls; sell conscience; sell character; sell your option on heaven; sell anything that will bring the cash," is the cry of a multitude of men to-day.

This malady is not confined to any one city, county, state; nor to any one political party; nor to the rich, nor to the poor. Some people imagine that the rich are the only lovers of money, but the contrary would come nearer the truth. Ninety-nine out of every hundred men who rail against the rich would step into a rich man's shoes, and never even so much as hint, "corns." Love of money is a spiritual defect, and does not depend on the amount of money a man may or may not have.

But I venture to assert that even the "commercial spirit" is not our national malady, it is only a symptom of the real malady, which is spiritual decay. When a man places money first, he has degenerated. The commercial spirit can dominate our life only when we shut God out of it. The bigger a dollar looks to us the smaller God becomes to us. A man can hold a dollar so close to his heart that God cannot enter it. We ought to learn, in the words of Mr. Taft, that "there are bigger things in this world than money."

How can we stay the progress of this fatal malady, and eradicate it from our national life? Many quack nostrums have been prescribed, which only defraud the people and aggravate the disease. The one remedy for our national malady is Christ. The way to learn to love money less is to love Christ more. Christ, therefore all men, must be valued higher than cash, or the days of this republic are numbered.

We have faith in America because we believe in the ability of Christ to save it. Christ alone is able to illuminate the mind, quicken the conscience, and lift the ideals of the American people, Our people need to be brought face to face with Christ through the preaching of the gospel. Our country needs a vigorous, persistent, common sense application of the gospel. Men need to hear this gospel that calls for repentance and righteous living. America needs the New Testament gospel which demands a re-united church and the evangelization of the world. This gospel places Jesus Christ first, who alone is able to cure our national malady, which threatens death to the mightiest republic that ever sprung from heroic blood. In the face of these facts we ought to break all records in the offering for home missions. The American Christian Missionary Society has proven itself to be a most efficient force to preach Christ, therefore we ought to place far larger sums in its hands for this purpose.

Salina, Kansas.

A Phase of the Union Question

By J. H. HARDIN

Those churches of Christ engaged in the current restoration movement, though engaged in a union movement, seem to be involved in serious difficulty in regard to union with several of the leading Christian bodies of the world. These bodies are "churches" in the sense of being ecclesiastical bodies. There is the Methodist Episcopal church, the Presbyterian church, the Roman Catholic church, etc., etc. There is no church of Christ or Christian church in the world in the sense in which these bodies are churches. There never was such a body, and there never can be such a one. The moment these congregations of Christ referred to become bound together into a "church" with an ecclesiastical creed, head, etc., they become a sect and the whole purpose and identity of their present movement will be changed, perverted, lost. We (using the pronoun as commonly, to designate this union movement,) cannot go into an ecclesiasticism even for the sake of bringing about union. If union were brought about in this way it would not be Christian union. Two groups of churches, neither one of which is an ecclesiasticism, may form a union as did the adherents of Stone and those of Campbell in Kentucky in 1830; or two ecclesiastical bodies may unite as is now on foot between the Presbyterians and the Cumberland Presbyterians, but a church of Christ cannot unite with a Presbyterian or Methodist church without ceasing to be a church of Christ pure and simple. It would be possible for one of these ecclesiastical bodies to abandon those bonds and practices which render it an ecclesiasticism, and its congregations become simply churches of Christ; indeed this has been several times done; but no union can be effected nor considered, the effect of which would be to carry the independent congregations of Christ into organic connection with ecclesiastical machinery. It would be as impossible to do this as it would be to add together five dollars and two bushels of potatoes.

This much has been said not so much to argue its truth, every one must see at once that it is true, but the purpose is to clear our minds as to what we may seek and hope for in the matter of Christian union. It would seem that enough has been said, sung and written upon this matter for people to have reached clearness of thought respecting it; but this does not, after all, appear to be so. The average use of the expression, Christian union, means some kind of co-operation, federation or coalition of denominations, to perpetuate present denominational autonomy, or at best to form, not churches of Christ, simply, but new denominations. It is plain that this is not Christian union. But it is what is called Christian union by the average preacher and writer. Anything more radical than this will meet with bitter opposition from most of the ecclesiastical bodies.

Now the matter that most deeply affects our union movement is the fact that the ecclesiastical bodies do not seem to be intending to abandon their ecclesiastical bases. Small modifications take place occasionally, but they do not seem to be turning away from these forms of corporate existence. What transformations another century may bring to pass we, of course, can not foresee. Seeing that for the present, then, they will not abandon their ecclesiasticisms, and seeing that our independent churches of Christ can not consider uniting with them till they do, what course are we to pursue? In another short piece I may tell what I think on this point.

Richmond, Mo.

Why Baptizo Was Never Translated

By H. C. PATTERSON

The masses of the people are utterly astonished at the declaration that the word baptizo stands alone in the New Testament scriptures, as we have them to-day, untranslated. Those who have been informed of this fact have, doubtless, often wondered why such is true. There has been more discussion and wrangling over the true meaning of this word than any other in the Bible. Believers in God, Christ, the Holy Spirit and the Bible walk unitedly up to this word and there part company, and their contentions over its meaning have divided husband and wife, communities and churches, and have filled the religious world with much unnecessary bitterness. Had the translators, whom King James appointed to this work, been as loyal to God as to the king, all this confusion would have been avoided and the religious world would have been well on the way toward that unity for which our Savior prayed so earnestly. That the readers of the Christian-Evangelist may be informed as to why baptizo was not translated, I will here state the historical facts. The need for a new and better translation was apparent to all scholars. The wisdom in the selection of the men, from a point of eminent scholarship, was unquestionable. All thinking people must concede that any restrictions thrown around such men in the prosecution of the work to which they had been called, other than that their call was the call of God, were uncalled for and positively wrong.

His Majesty, the king, thought otherwise and accordingly presented them with the following rules:

"1. The ordinary Bible read in the church, commonly called the Bishop's Bible, to be followed, and as little altered as the truth of the original will permit.

"2. The names of the prophets and the holy writers, with the other names of the text, to be retained, as nigh as they may be, accordingly as they were vulgarly used.

"3. The old ecclesiastical words to be kept videlicit, the word church not to be translated congregation, etc.

"4. When a word hath divers significations, that to be kept which hath been most commonly used by the most of the ancient fathers, being agreeable to the propriety of the place and the analogy of the faith."

Then follow eleven other rules.

"A copy of these orders or instructions being sent to Mr. Lively at Cambridge, and other copies to Dr. Harding, the king's reader of Hebrew at Oxford, and Dr. Andrews, Dean of Westminster, it seems as if, some other doubts arising concerning them, application was made by the vice-chancellor of the Bishop of London for the resolution of them, to which his lordship replied that 'to be sure, if he had not signified so much unto them already, it was his Majesty's pleasure that, besides the learned persons employed with them for the Hebrew and Greek, there should be three or four of the most eminent and grave divines of the university, assigned by the vice-chancellor, upon conference with the rest of the heads, to be overseers of the translation, as well Hebrew as Greek, for the better observation of the rules appointed by His Highness, and especially concerning the third and fourth rule.'" See Lewis' history of the English translation of the Bible.

From this conclusive evidence we see that the translators were fettered by King James and were not permitted to change or "translate" "the old ecclesiastical words," of which the king gives "church," "etc.," as a specimen, and in his following suggestions he insists especially upon the observance of this rule.

Why was the king so careful to see that these special words to which he refers should not be translated? The reason is not far to seek. Common honesty, to say nothing of religious integrity, would have demanded a translation that would have been diametrically opposed to the universal practice of the church of England whose teaching and practice the king had taken solemn oath to defend. The perpetuity of the church called forth this pious fraud in order to justify their unscriptural practice. They were divided as to the proper way to dispose of it and finally agreed to leave it unchanged, save to give it an English ending and then say to the world that it means the three acts, viz.: "immerse, sprinkle and pour." That was a fraud of the blackest type and is unequaled save in the pious frauds perpetrated by the Catholic priests in the display of nails and wood from the cross of Jesus, and the coats at Paris and Treves that Jesus wore before his death. The true scholars of to-day certainly know better and the majority of preachers, being only repeaters, go forth to echo the deception, and thus the people move on under the delusion that in being sprinkled they have been baptized, by the authority of Jesus Christ, instead of by the authority of the king of England.

❀ ❀

FROM SAME BOX

Where the Foods Come From.

"Look here waiter, honest now, don't you dip every one of these flaked breakfast foods out of the same box?" "Well yes, boss, we duz, all 'cept Grape-Nuts, cause they don't look like the others and people know 'zackly what Grape-Nuts looks like. But there's 'bout a dozen different ones named on the bill of fare and they are all thin rolled flakes so it don't make any difference which one a man calls for we just take out the order from one box."

This talk led to an investigation. Dozens of factories sprung up about three years ago, making various kinds of breakfast foods, seeking to take the business of the original prepared breakfast food—Grape-Nuts. These concerns after a precarious existence, nearly all failed, leaving thousands of boxes of their foods in mills and warehouses. These were in several instances bought up for a song by speculators and sold out to grocers and hotels for little or nothing. The process of working off this old stock has been slow. One will see the names on menus of flaked foods that went out of business a year and a half or two years ago. In a few cases where the abandoned factories have been bought up, there is an effort to resuscitate the defunct, and by copying the style of advertising of Grape-Nuts, seek to influence people to purchase. But the public has been educated to the fact that all these thin flaked foods are simply soaked wheat or oats rolled thin and dried out and packed. They are not prepared like Grape-Nuts, in which the thorough baking and other operations which turn the starch part of the wheat and barley into sugar, occupy many hours and result in a food so digestible that small infants thrive on it, while it also contains the selected elements of Phosphate of Potash and Albumen that unite in the body to produce the soft gray substance in brain and nerve centres. There's a reason for Grape-Nuts, and there have been many imitations, a few of the article itself, but many more of the kind and character of the advertising. Imitators are always counterfeiters and their printed and written statements cannot be expected to be different than their goods.

This article is published by the Postum Co. at Battle Creek. Additional evidence of the truth can be supplied in quantities.

Our Budget

—Let the children have the floor all day Sunday, June 4.

—What the children do on children's day is a sure prophecy of what may be expected of our people in years to come.

—Let no Sunday-school fail to reach its full apportionment and receive a Roll of Honor Certificate from the Foreign Society.

—It is important that pains be taken to have thousands enrolled in the One Dollar League. Everyone giving $1 or more becomes a member of the league and receives a copy of "Mission Scenes in China" free of charge. This is a beautiful souvenir.

—Work has begun on a new church at Marion, O.

—Clutter and McVay will hold a revival at Cook, Neb., starting May 28.

—A Methodist Episcopal minister has united with our church at Grant City, Mo.

—T. A. Abbott will dedicate the Mt. Carmel church in Carroll county, Mo., next Lord's day.

—Hugh Morrison, pastor at Lawton, Okla., has accepted a call to Wellington, New Zealand.

—W. S. Priest, of Columbus, Ohio, has received a preacher of the United Brethren church into his membership.

—O. R. Rogers has decided to make a change from Paragould, Ark., to the surprise of his congregation there. He will be open for a time for evangelistic work.

—The first cottage of the National Benevolent Association at Loveland, Col., was dedicated May 23. Brother Tyler will give us a report of the event in our next issue.

—Both passenger associations give in Missouri one fare plus fifty cents for round trip to the state convention; selling dates from June 15 to June 20; good for returning till June 22.

—The annual banquet of the Christian business men's association, Chicago, will be held at the Palmer house, June 6. S. M. Cooper and H. L. Willett are the announced speakers.

—In Christian university's program, there will be the baccalaureate sermon by H. A. Denton, June 4, and the commencement address by T. A. Abbott, June 8. There will be 13 graduates.

—S. M. Bernard, of Boulder, Col., has been delivering two addresses to the students and faculty of the State university, the themes being "The Demand for Men" and "Why so Few Ministerial Students?"

—That is cheering news that comes from the Texas state convention, which, in a tide of high enthusiasm, raised $30,000 for the Texas Christian university. That looks as if the Texas brethren really believed in Christian education.

—The congregation of the Hamilton avenue church, St. Louis, which is planning the erection of a commodious new building, will begin a meeting on the second Sunday in June, with S. R. Maxwell, the new city missionary, leading it.

—The work on "The Holy Spirit," by the editor of this paper, is now on our shelves, but is being rapidly distributed to those who have ordered it. It is handsome volume, whatever else may be said of it, but we do not think this is its chief recommendation.

—Edward Owers has accepted a call to labor with the church at Farmington, Mo. He will commence on his new field the first Lord's day in July. During his eight months' labor at Osceola, 30 were added to the church, a parsonage was purchased, and all departments of work are in a healthy condition. The church is looking for his successor. Address A. A. Cleveland, Osceola, Mo.

—W. B. Clemmer is holding meetings at the former Danish church in Council Bluffs, Ia., the purpose being to start a mission in this neighborhood, where some years ago, under the ministry of E. W. Allen and R. W. Abberly, we had a flourishing Sunday-school.

—In the terrible tornado that struck Snyder, O. T., the Christian church building was destroyed. In our next issue will be found a statement as to what the brethren plan. The latest storm in Texas destroyed our church building at Red Oak, but we have no particulars yet.

—"The Glory of Young Men and Women is Their Strength" was the theme of the baccalaureate seamon preached by W. J. Russell to the graduating class of the High school at Frankfort, Ind. The Frankfort News, which prints the address, speaks of it in high terms.

—The annual camp meeting in northwest Texas will be held near Jom, sixteen miles southeast of Throckmorton, beginning August 2. That of the Christian church, Rockford, Washington, will be June 16-25. H. S. McClure is president, C. L. Dean, pastor, and J. N. McConnell, evangelist.

—Philadelphia is having a taste of "social union." Recently G. P. Rutledge exchanged pulpits with Rev. Geo. D. Gray, pastor of the 43rd street Methodist church, and on a later Sunday evening the choir of our Third church rendered the sacred cantata, "The Nazarene" at the Drainwood street Baptist church.

—Mrs. Maude Buxton, wife of Dr. Albert Buxton, president of Dexter Christian college, has just been taken to her home from the hospital in St. Louis, where she has been for a month recovering from the removal of a dangerous tumor on her neck. She will probably spend the summer in the Rocky mountains.

—H. H. Hubbell, of Leon, Ia., has closed three years of successful work with the church at that place. He proposes to go into the northwest, and Bro. C. M. Ketcham, an elder of the church which he leaves, commends him as a young man of ability and consecration to any church desiring to locate such a preacher.

—Sister Jemima E. Scott, who died at her home in Alexandria, Ind., April 16, always held out a liberal hand to every good work. In her will she deeded a home for aged and dependent preachers, under the care of the board of ministerial relief. Further particulars of this and of Sister Scott we hope to publish in an early issue.

—The "hot ends" of the two pieces of iron to be welded, of which Dr. Ball speaks, as reported elsewhere, must be raised several degrees Fahrenheit, yet, before the welding can prove permanent. But the temperature will rise as prejudice and ignorance subside. Let us be patient. It is God's work and he will hasten it in his own way.

—Cotner commencement will be held from June 1 to June 7. All departments of the university work will be represented in the exercises of the week. June 4, at 11 A. M., the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by A. Mc Lean, of Cincinnati, O. He will also address the mission classes in the evening. The commencement address will be given by R. W. Abberly, of Minneapolis, Minn., June 7, at 11 A. M.

—Prof. Sherman Kirk, of Drake university, Des Moines, Ia., writes that they have two young women of the School of Christian Workers who will graduate at the commencement in June, who have proved themselves very capable students in all the work which they have done, and are prepared to assist pastors as amanuenses in office work; visitors in the homes of the people; leaders of prayer-meetings; teachers in the Bible-school, etc. It is desired to find positions for these young ladies who have been at pains to fit themselves for service in the church, and those desiring information concerning them should write to Prof. Sherman Kirk, 2830 University Ave., Des Moines.

—The organization of the church at Grand Rapids, of which we will give a report in our next issue, is quite a victory. It is a credit to all engaged in that work, that the new congregation has invited the state society to meet with them for the annual convention. This just shows what can be done when people like Brother and Sister Eggert feel the necessity of having in a district a church that pleads for New Testament Christianity.

—The Mississippi avenue Christian church, Memphis, Tenn., has just organized a business men's asssociation, which already enrolls about thirty-five members, and will, it is expected, soon embrace the entire male membership of the congregation. The organization is giving a new impetus to the work there, and Louis D. Riddell, the pastor, says it promises a happy solution to many of the local church's problems.

—Dr. B. B. Tyler, pastor of South Broadway Christian church, of Denver, is to take another trip to the Orient, which will be the second within a period of three years. The invitation was extended to him recently to become a member of the Bible students' oriental cruise, and he has decided to accept the same. He will not, however, leave before the early part of next year, and will visit Palestine and other Bible lands.

—The resolution passed by the Ohio convention favoring the union of our state and general home missionary collections, we believe to be wise. Greater simplification of machinery is always desirable when it can be effected without loss of efficiency, as we believe it can be in this case. Not only so, but the consolidation would generate enough additional enthusiasm to insure a much larger offering for each of these now separate interests.

—"I intend reading the paper while I stay in this world," writes a subscriber, in renewing for another year. That is really as long as we could undertake to supply the Christian-Evangelist to any one, and perhaps as long as it will be needed. No doubt there will be some better medium of communication beyond this life, but here "in this world" the religious journal is quite indispensable to one who wishes to keep up with the religious procession.

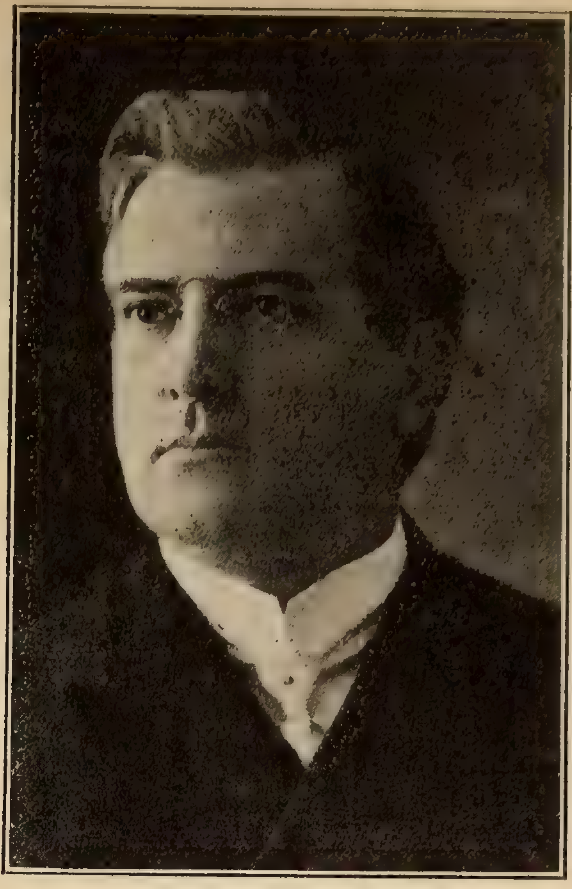
—Herbert Yeuell, who has just resigned at Uniontown, Pa., will conduct a big tent meeting at Portsmonth, Va., under the state board, looking towards the organization of a church and the erection of a building. This meeting is to begin June 18. Brother Yeuell, as already announced, is to take up regular evangelistic work, and can be had for a tent or tabernacle meeting the latter part of July. He has many engagements before him, but can arrange for one or two special dates.

—Our readers have been informed of the fact that we are putting into type a series of twenty sermons from E. L. Powell, pastor of the Fourth and Walnut Christian church in Louisville, Ky. It has been a long time since we have read anything in the way of sermons that equals these discourses and addresses of Brother Powell for vigor of thought, clearness of expression, and soundness of judgment. The book, we are sure, will be a strong tonic for our ministry. Be on the lookout for it!

—Bro. T. R. Hodkinson has decided to close his work at Sloan, Iowa, and to seek another field of labor offering more favorable opportunities than his present location which has been seriously injured by a succession of floods which has driven many people away. Brother

THREE MEMBERS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CONVENTION COMMITTEE.

FRANK M. FORD,
Reception and Entertainment.



WALTER M. WHITE,
Chairman of the General Committee.

E. W. DARST,
Pulpit Supply.

Hodkinson is known to many of our readers as a preacher and pastor of both experience and ability, whose services might well be coveted by any church in need of a minister. Those who desire to communicate with him may address him as above.

—The Virginia Christian ministerial assembly will be held at Lynchburg, Va., June 19-23, when lectures will be given by J. J. Haley and Pres. J. W. McGarvey. One of the items on the program is a discussion of the twentieth century attitude of Baptists and Disciples. Dr. W. L. Pickard will present the Baptist view, and J. J. Haley will present our view. By special arrangement with President Hopwood, accommodation may be had at the Virginia Christian college, so that the expenses will be only five dollars apiece for the whole time of the assembly.

—S. R. Hawkins, corresponding secretary of our missionary work in the Indian Territory, was at Columbus, Ind., last week, and addressed the members of the Tabernacle Christian church, where he raised $750 for the work. In his missionary work in the territory during the past 17 months Brother Hawkins has conducted 36 revivals, resulting in 760 additions; has organized 19 churches, all except two of which are located in railroad towns. Brother Hawkins subsequently left for Lexington, Ky., to attend the commencement exercises of the University, of which he is an alumnus.

—The second annual meeting of the Christian churches of Woods county, O. T., met this year at Cherokee. Eleven churches were represented, and the attendance was good, there being 34 preachers present, 35 delegates from our churches and quite a number of visitors. Among those from outside present were Brother Brown from Harper, Kan., and W. B. Young, of Missouri, who was employed to take charge of the county work. The reports indicated progress, and the speeches were full of inspiration. The convention is to meet at Cleo on November 1. A resolution was unanimously adopted that Oklahoma territory be admitted as a prohibition state. C. V. Vaughan is president, Grace Calloway secretary and treasurer, L. Z. Lasley, corresponding secretary.

—T. J. O'Connor has received a unanimous call to remain another year with the church at New Sharon, Ia. He has been busily engaged in an effort to raise the balance of the church debt, which amounts to $439, and he has practically succeeded. Brother O'Connor writes: "I like the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST well. Some things you say do not always seem to be scriptural, but I am discovering weekly that I am mistaken. At any rate, the paper has been a wonderful help to me. I enjoy reading and studying the articles, especially those in the editorial columns." We do not expect that our readers will always agree with everything that appears in the editorial or the other columns of the paper, but it is by publishing ideas and allowing them to come into conflict with other ideas that we reach the truth. We are glad that our brother is open-minded and willing to listen to and examine what does not at first appear to be true, according to his understanding of things.

—Rev. Sidney C. Kendall is engaged in seeking to stir up a national crusade in behalf of social purity. As national field secretary for the northwestern purity association, his work during the next six months will have especial reference to the national convention, which will be held at LaCrosse on October 14, of the present year, in the interest of this cause. He will first make a tour among the cities of California, and spend the summer in the cities of the central and eastern states, delivering a course of lectures which are the combined result of years of study of the social problem. He is right in his position that this victory over the social evil can be obtained only through the co-operation of the church and the stirring up of religious enthusiasm. Mr. Kendall is delivering his lectures under the auspices of ministerial unions. He recently visited St. Louis, but it appears that the churches did not rally to his support with any sort of enthusiasm. His heart was stirred within him at what he saw in our city, but a sort of paralysis seems to have fallen upon the churches, so far as any co-operative effort is concerned to overcome this terrible evil, or even to enforce existing laws. Has the church really lost faith in the power of the gospel to overcome all forms of evil? If so, she needs a trumpet-appeal from this earnest advocate of social purity, to call her to her mission in the world.

—C. H. Winders has just celebrated his tenth anniversary as pastor of the church at Columbia, Mo. It was a coincidence that he was asked to deliver the baccalaureate sermon of Christian College on the same Lord's day. Brother Winders spoke of the church work in the morning, and gave a very inspiring address to the college and its many friends in the evening. In speaking of his own work he said that two things had made him hesitate to come to Columbia in the inexperience of his youth. One was that there were a number of preachers there; the other, that there were so many old people; but ten years' experience had proved that these had been his best friends and warmest supporters. When he heard that Dr. W. T. Moore was to locate in Columbia to inaugurate the Bible College he had at first a feeling that he did not want a man so experienced, and of such reputation, to sit under his ministrations as a pastor, but he soon got over that feeling, for he had found Brother Moore one of his most helpful friends and sympathizers. During the ten years of his pastorate there had been, he said, nearly 1,200 additions, all but about 125 having come under the preaching of the pastor. Of these about 707 were by confession and obedience. More letters had been granted by the church than had been received. As a result of meetings held by the pastor, something over 600 had been added to the church. Ten years ago the church was in debt to the amount of about thirteen or fourteen thousand dollars. All this was paid off several years ago, besides which the church members had largely assisted other causes, Christian College, and the Bible College among them. The church gives now more to the foreign mission work than it gave to all the mission work ten years ago. Every department had developed in efficiency, more people are enlisted and more thoroughly enlisted than ever before. "To get the people right with God," Brother Winders said had always been his aim in his pastoral work. He believed that Jesus Christ is the solution for all the world's problems when he started out, and that conviction has grown on him. Brother Winders has the love of the members of his church and the esteem of the whole community.

The Missouri Convention.

At Marshall, Mo., we are making arrangements to entertain the largest state convention our brotherhood ever held in Missouri. We expect you, brethren and sisters, and it will be our greatest pleasure to entertain you. Come, but don't fail, if it is possible, to let us know by the first week in June that you are coming. Send your name to C. A. Knight, Marshall, Mo., chairman of entertainment committee.

We will entertain you according to the rules of the convention, giving lodging and breakfast free. Dinner and supper will be served in several places convenient to the convention at a cost not to exceed 25 cents per meal. To those who prefer to go to a hotel all our hotels make a rate of $1.00 per day.

But our homes are open and we will be glad to have your fellowship in them. We expect your presence to be a benediction to every house wherein you stay.

One more request. If you are going to visit relatives or friends here and so will desire to be entertained with your friends, send them and us word immediately that we may not assign others in your place, and afterward have to change and disarrange our assignments or disappoint you. Without delay write us. We want you to come and we want to take care of you right when you do come.

MARSHALL CHRISTIAN CHURCH,
B. T. WHARTON, minister.

* *

Program of Minnesota Convention June 12-15.

The annual state convention of the Minnesota Christian missionary society will be held with the church at Mankato, beginning Monday evening, June 12, and closing Thursday evening, June 15. We are compelled to meet a week earlier than usual on account of the summer school in Mankato. We hope every church in the state will send representatives. Of course, all our Minnesota preachers will be there. From outside we expect, G. W. Muckley of Kansas City, B. L. Smith of the Home Board, and either F. M. Rains or A. McLean, and possibly Dr. W. E. Macklin of China of the Foreign Society. The C. W. B. M. will have Wednesday afternoon and evening of the convention. We want the biggest and best convention ever held in Minnesota. Bro. E. A. Orr and the Mankato church extend a hearty invitation to everybody to come up to the convention and enjoy the inspiring addresses and the royal fellowship of the workers, and help plan great things for Minnesota and the kingdom of our God. The program will include addresses by R. V. Abberley, D. H. Knotts, S. C. Nicholson, C. R. Neel, P. R. Atkins, A. D. Harmon, T. M. Dixon, Fred Kline, Frank Marshall, of Texas, F. M. Rains, B. L. Smith, G. W. Muckley, etc.

* *

A New Building at Jacksonville, Ill.

The corner stone of the Central Christian church of Jacksonville, Ill., was laid in the presence of a vast assemblage and with appropriate ceremony on Thursday, May 25. A procession headed by the board marched from the old church to the new site on the corner of West College avenue and Church street. Addresses were delivered by Russell F. Thrapp, pastor of the church, Dr. W. F. Short, representing the ministerial union, Samuel B. Moore, of St. Louis, pastor of the church for eight years, and C. A. Burton. The stone was laid by the Grand Lodge of Illinois A. F. & A. M. The prayer was offered by a Jacksonville boy, W. W. Wharton, of Winchester, Ill. The church will be completed in February at a cost of about $52,000, exclusive of the lot. It will be one of the most imposing edifices in the brotherhood.

The brethren at Jacksonville are making many sacrifices to erect a house worthy of the Lord and his glorious work.

Jacksonville, Ill. RUSSELL F. THRAPP.

* *

Bible College of Missouri—Annual Board Meeting.

The treasurer, Bro. J. T. Mitchell, of Centralia, reported a total income to the current fund of $3,866.39, including a balance of $432.32 from the previous year. The year closed with a balance in the current fund of $347.33. The board feels confident of a sufficient income from endowments and rentals for the expenses of the coming year. This is especially gratifying in view of the fact that the Bible college has no income whatever from its students. It offers free tuition.

The dean reported classes conducted in the following courses: The Bible as Literature, Evidences of Christianity, New Testament Introduction, Homiletics, Comparative Religions, New Testament Greek, Life of Jesus and New Testament History, Elements of Hebrew, History of the Hebrews, The Hebrew Psalter, Prophecy, and Old Testament Introduction. In addition to this Dean Lhamon delivered a series of general lectures each semester on Sunday mornings in the church auditorium to classes ranging from a hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty.

A total class enrollment of two hundred and seventy is reported. This includes a re-enrollment in several classes of the ministerial students, but does not include the enrollment of the Sunday morning class named above. Twelve ministerial students have been in regular attendance, and a number of other young men are expecting to enter as ministerial students next September.

It was reported by the faculty that there is more general inquiry about the work on the part of ministerial students than ever before. Several good men, and men of some years of experience in the ministry, are anxious to take work in the Bible college and in the University of Missouri if they can secure supporting churches. The churches within reach of Columbia that are without preachers should note this, and correspond with Dean W. J. Lhamon at once.

* *

Entertainment at San Francisco, 1905.

We are rejoicing in the increasingly bright prospects for a great convention. Every mail brings to us from all parts of the east communications from parties of from one to thirty, advising that they are coming to the convention. In fact, up to date, we have heard of but one person who says that he cannot come. This is a good preacher out in Kansas, and we have written the brother explaining his loneliness, and requesting him to try and make it unanimous.

The entertainment committee, under the able chairman, F. S. Ford, pastor of the First church of San Francisco, is making a thorough canvass of the neighborhood adjacent to the convention halls, with the object of putting as many delegates as possible in private families. It is obvious that this will open the way for more good missionary work.

Rooms can be had from 25 cents per day for individuals up to $2.50 per day, which latter figure is for first-class hotels. The city abounds in eating places where the best of meals can be had at reasonable figures. Arrangements can be made at first-class hotels for the entertainment of whole delegations, including rooms and board. Such delegations should communicate immediately with the chairman, that reservations may be made for them.

Negotiations are in progress with the transfer companies, which will make it possible to handle promptly all baggage. Guides and reception committees will meet all incoming trains and furnish the necessary information.

Write to W. M. White, 2520 Bush street, San Francisco, Cal., for folder and any additional information wanted.

* *

Christian-Evangelist Special.

This train will leave on the Burlington, August 9 at 9.00 p. m. for the great west. It will take in Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Manitou Springs, the magnificent scenery of Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, the new San Pedro R.R., Los Angeles, Sa Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the delightfu scenes along the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington, through Idaho, Montana, b way of Yellowstone National Park and finally through Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska home. In fact this trip takes in every state west of the Missouri river except North Dakota. To travel 6,000 miles among such scenes in company with the best Christian people is the opportunity of a lifetime. Do you wish to make this trip at our expense? If so write us at once for full particulars.

The R. R. fare for the round trip will be from Kansas City, $56; St. Louis, $63.50; Chicago, $67.50. To this for double sleeping berth in tourist car add about $7.00 for the round trip. Meals will cost you from 50 to 75 cents on train. In California meals may be secured for 25 cents. The cost of lunches is much lower. The stops will be one day Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak. One day in Salt Lake City, two days in Los Angeles, six days at San Francisco at the convention, two days in Portland at exposition, and one day in Helena. In addition to this you may stop as long as you will at any place you wish within the 90 day limit of your ticket. Do not fail to write at once to CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special, 2712 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

How to Send the Children's Day Offering.

The children's day offering should be sent promptly Monday morning, June 5, to F. M. Rains, Corresponding Secretary, Box No. 884, Cincinnati, Ohio. Send by bank draft, P. O. money order, express order, or registered letter. Be careful to give the local name of the Sunday-school, as Mt. Pleasant, Corinth, Sixth street, etc., when different from the post office.

* *

A Magnificent Showing.

Though returns are not yet all in, the Easter receipts of our National Benevolent Association are already more than 45 per cent in excess of those of any previous year in its history. This is well, for the money is greatly needed, and it is earnestly hoped there will be an offering from every Bible-school of the brotherhood to this worthy and testimony bearing ministry.

* *

Dedication at Cunningham, Kansas.

I assisted my brother, A. M. McLain in the dedication of a new church here, Sunday May 14. The brethren at this place now own a very beautiful house of worship—a house that is a great credit to the church and the town. My brother is doing a good work here. I started it nine years ago. It was a great pleasure to meet with the brethren here once more. W. T. MCLAIN.

Wichita, Kas.

Program of Missouri State Convention, Marshall, June 16-21.

C. W. B. M. PERIOD.

Friday evening, June 16.—Address, Argentina, W. J. Burner, Illinois; Address, The Medicine plus the Missionary, Dr. Ada McNeil, India; Appointment of Committees.

Saturday morning, June 17.—Address by President, Mrs. M. M. Goode, St. Joseph; Address, "Our Mountain Missions," Mrs. Bessie Bennett, Kahoka; "Were I Auxiliary President," Mrs. May B. Ross, Warrensburg; Reports of Managers; Messages from the Field; "Upward—Onward," Mrs. E. J. Lampton, Bowling Green; Pledges for Special Work for New Year; Reports of Committees. Afternoon.—Junior Hour; A Missionary Exercise, Children of Marshall; Address, "Through the Eye-gate and Ear-gate to the City of Child-soul," Mrs. C. O. McFarland, King City; "India's Little Ones," Dr. Ada McNeil, India; Business Hour, Address, "Consecration," Mrs. H. A. Denton, Maryville.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PERIOD.

Saturday evening.—Superintendent's Report; Address, "For Christ and the Church," J. C. Todd, Monroe City; Address, "The Pastor and Christian Endeavor," J. E. Davis, Stanberry; Reunion of Christian Endeavor Convention-Goers League.

STATE MISSION PERIOD.

Lord's day, June 18, 1905, morning and evening, preaching in all offered pulpits.—Christian, evening, S. J. White, Trenton; C. P., morning, C. M. Sharpe, Columbia; C. P., evening, E. B. Widger, Kennett; M. E. South, morning, J. H. Garrison, St. Louis; M. E. South, evening, D. R. Dungan, Canton; Baptist, morning, D. W. Moore, Springfield; Baptist, evening, J. R. Perkins, Huntsville; Presbyterian, morning, C. H. Winders, Columbia; Presbyterian, Evening, J. M. Rudy, Sedalia; M. E., morning, L. S. Cupp, Platte City.—Afternoon.—Praise and devotional service; Communion Service, F. W. Allen, Columbia, presiding; Sermon, J. M. Philputt, St. Louis. — Evening. — Christian Endeavor; Sermon, S. J. White, Trenton.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PERIOD.

Monday morning, June 19.— Symposium on the Pledge, four ten minute addresses by Frances Pearl Haley, Marceline; Inez Terry, Lamonte; Sophia Settle, Kansas City; Mrs. H. H. Hodgen, St. Louis; Address, "The Increase Campaign," Alice Orcutt, Maryville; Christian Endeavor business.

STATE MISSION PERIOD.

Monday morning, June 19.—President's Address, J. B. Jones, Fulton. Announcement of Committees.—Afternoon service.—Report of Board; Report of Treasurer; Home Missions, W. J. Wright, Cincinnati; Report of Committee on Benevolent Association; Address, J. E. Holley, Springfield; Echo Meeting, led by J. H. Hardin, participated in by Alfred Munyon, H. G. Bennett, A. Buxton, Jos. Gaylor, D, B. Warren, G. E. Ireland, and others; Christian Education, H. G. Hill.—Evening session.—Report of Committee on Permanent Fund; Address, S. H. Bartlett, Ohio.

Tuesday morning, June 20.—Reports of Committees: Ways and Means, W. F. Richardson, Kansas City; State Missions, G. A. Hoffmann, St. Louis; State of the Cause, J. H. Garrison, St. Louis; Nominations, H. F. Davis, St. Louis; Students' Aid, J. B. Jones, Fulton; Education, W. J. Lhamon, Columbia; Christian Endeavor, H. A. Denton, Maryville, Unfinished business. Sermon, M. A. Hart, Fulton.

BIBLE-SCHOOL PERIOD.

Tuesday afternoon, June 20.—President's Address and Appointment of Committees, G. A. Hoffmann, St. Louis; Primary Session, in charge of State Superintendent of Primary Work, Mrs. J. H. King, St. Louis; The Message of the Year, by the Superintendent; A Primary Lesson with Class, Mrs. J. H. Fisher, Marshall; Conference on Primary Work, (1) The Cradle Roll, Mrs. Duckworth, St. Louis; (2) Subdivided Classes, Mrs. A. A. Buxton, Kansas City; (3) Teachers' Training Course, Miss N. Hopper, St. Louis; Address, "Primary Work," J. L. Brandt, St. Louis; Question Box on Primary Work.

Tuesday night.—Address, T. J. Legg, State Secretary, Indiana.

Wednesday morning.—Report of Board, Treasurer and Field Men; Conference on "What Work Should the Missouri Bible-School Co-operation Seek to Do?" Conducted by J. W. Baker, Joplin; Address, "Children's Day," G. W. Thompson, Kirksville; Address, "Boys' and Girls' Rally Day," W. J. Wright, Cincinnati, O.; Address, L. J. Marshall, Independence; Business.—Wednesday afternoon.—A Study, led by Pres. A. Buxton, Dexter; Subject, "The Bible-School Problem": I. Statement of Problem; II. The Product Sought, III. The Factors; (1) The Church; Its Pastor and Church Board, J. T. McGarvey, Carthage; (2) The Parents, W. F. Ragland, Monroe City; (3) The Children, Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant, St. Louis; (4) The Bible School Officers, J. H. Coil, Higginsville; (5) The Teachers, John Young, Albany; (6) Bible School Equipments or Helps, R. H. Helser, Fayette; Round Table, "Bible-School Specialties," led by A. W. Kokendoffer, Mexico. Eight people tell the specialty of their school in five minutes each; General Question Box, conducted by H. A. Denton, Maryville.—Wednesday night.—Address, "The Boy Problem," W. A. Moore, Mexico; Closing Events.—Final Adjournment.

The Bethany Books

Christian Endeavor Reading Course

——SUBJECTS——

(1) The Plea and History of the Disciples of Christ
(2) The English Bible : (3) Christian Missions
Three Cloth-Bound Books on each Subject.

This course of study if followed as outlined by the authors will give the student a thorough and most helpful knowledge of the people who are pleading for simple, primitive Christianity, and of the Bible which they exalt as the Book of books. Note the titles and authors below:

Concerning the Disciples.—B. B. Tyler.
Bible Doctrine for Young Disciples.—F. D. Power.
Life and Teachings of Jesus.—H. L. Willett.
A Hand-book of Missions.—A. McLean.
Sketches of Our Pioneers.—F. D. Power.
A Guide to Bible Study.—J. W. McGarvey.
Prophets of Israel.—H. L Willett.
Heroes of Modern Missions.—W. J. Lhamon.
Missionary Fields and Forces.—W. J. Lhamon.

PRICES:
Any one book prepaid, 35 cents : Three books, $1.00
The entire course of nine books, $3.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 PINE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

"The Christian Use of the Tithe System."

This tract appeared in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST in the form of a serial, and in response to a quite general demand it has now been put in convenient tract form for wide distribution. Those who believe in the principle it teaches should aid in giving it wide circulation. The adoption of this regulative principle of giving, among us, would solve more problems, cure more evils, and give a greater impetus to all our worthy enterprises than any other one thing of which we can think. It seems to be the next great forward step among us. Brother Wharton has rendered the cause of Christ great service in his treatment of this subject, and we heartily commend his tract to all who wish to honor God with their substance. J. H. GARRISON.

"The Christian Use of the Tithe System" is a tract of 24 pages, dealing in a clear, forcible, convincing manner with the subject of proportionate giving. Price, 3 cents each; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
—— ST. LOUIS, MO. ——
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
Christian Workers' New Testament
With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter
Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices: - - - 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - - St. Louis, Mo.

The Mission to Argentine.

The proposed mission to Argentine, to which I have been appointed by the C. W. B. M., is one which comes to us with a strong appeal. The church should enter upon the work with a knowledge of what is needed to make it a success. My information is not very extensive, but there are certain needs about which I can speak with confidence.

1. A man trained for city work is needed. Two cities contain more than one-fifth of the people of Argentine. The problems are those of evangelism and pastoral work in the cities. Buenos Ayres is the New York of South America. There is the same mingling of peoples, the same difficulty in gathering a congregation from inharmonious elements, putting it in a suitable building and training it for effective work.

2. An evangelist is needed. It is possible to hold revivals in Argentine. Methodists and the church missionary society have done so. The people believe the Bible to be the word of God, though they know little or nothing of what it contains. They believe in Christ, though the only Christ they know is one hanging on a brass cross. The message and methods of a wise evangelist will produce results in Argentine as they do in the United States. A man can secure a hall, fill it night after night for weeks, and preach to people who believe in the Bible and are able to read. This is our opportunity.

3 A third need is the preaching of the gospel by means of the press. In no part of the world has the press been more helpful in mission work than in South America. Argentine has a compulsory school law. Each of her fourteen provinces has its normal college. Her system of common schools dates back to the Yankee school teachers which President Sarmiento secured more than thirty years ago. It is evident that the mission needs a born editor.

4. A fourth need is ministerial education. This need may seem somewhat remote, since it may be years before we have anyone to educate. It has sometimes happened that the first converts were the best material for the ministry. This was the case with Duff and Mackay of Formosa. But however long the time, our objective is a native church with a native ministry. The Argentines are vigorously patriotic. They admire Uncle Sam greatly, but they do not love his Monroe doctrine and his huge navy. The church that we promote in Argentine must not offend a national spirit that has done great things, and expects to do greater things. An Argentine church requires an Argentine ministry.

5. The ordinary patient, plodding missionary is needed. There is plenty of room. He may follow the example of Mr. Grubb and locate in the Chaco, among people who are very indifferent to clothes on state occasions, and who occasionally eat their enemies. Or he may choose the Gaucho, with whom the charming tales of William Bulfin have made us acquainted, who love horses and hate any kind of labor that cannot be performed in the saddle. Or he may live in the "Boca" of Buenos Ayres and set gospel traps for the sailor men. Traps of a certain kind are plentiful enough. A knowledge of thirty or forty languages would be a great help in a work of this kind. There are new railroad towns and beautiful provincial capitals, old cities just awakening to modern activity, and new seaports with great expectations and much real estate for sale. Everywhere are people as sheep without a shepherd. From the snows of the Neuquen to the eternal summer of Misiones, from the great metropolis to the vineyards of Mendoza, there is need of this gospel with which we have been entrusted.

W. J. Burner.

The Llano Estacado.

"Llano estacado?" "It seems to me that I have seen that word; oh, yes; it's the name for that cactus desert away out there in New Mexico and northwest Texas. The region is uninhabitable, of course, except for antelope, coyotes, lizards and such like." And so I imagine some reader to run on, as his or her eye catches the words, at the beginning of these lines, which, being translated, mean "Staked Plains."

These beautiful prairies are not spoken of as "staked" on account of cactus stems or sage bush, for there is hardly a cactus stem or a respectable sage bush on the whole tableland. Let me take your breath away at once, and imperil my standing with you as a truthful preacher of the gospel, perhaps, by telling you soberly that I am living here at Hereford, a town of 2,000 in the center of the "Plains," in the midst of the richest and most uninterrupted and level body of farming land mine eyes have ever seen—and my home was in California and Missouri, too! I was "shown" a year or two ago, and without any seeking of such a region as this was supposed to be. "But," you say, "how can anything grow in such a dry place?" Listen: The weather bureau records an average rainfall for this vicinity of over 20 inches per annum, three-fourths of this falling in the summer. There has not been a single failure of crops suited to the country. The writer has not seen such abundance of fine vegetables. Fruits of many kinds succeed well. Good water in inexhaustible quantities is found from 20 to 175 feet below the surface.

Brother Editor, allow me to again surprise your good readers. Not in America is found a population superior to this in morals, temperance and religion. Hard to believe? From where this is written, to the east and south, a territory, six counties one way by seven the other, stretches away, and in it there is not a single saloon! "What! In a land of cowboys!" Yes, and more than that: the Disciples of Christ are on the ground first, for once, at least. Here is located Panhandle Christian college, with splendid buildings and a fine outlook.

The writer will take pleasure in answering the inquiries of any Disciples who might desire to come here and help us to build up this country to the glory of the Lord.

Speaking of the morals of the cowboy country, I should like to relate a little tale of the famous XIT ranch. This ranch is 180 miles long, extending through nine counties. The general manager for many years, Captain Boyce, is an ardent Prohibitionist. Here are some of his rules: No work on Sunday, except the absolutely essential; no whiskey drinking; no gambling; no carrying of pistols; no swearing. How is that for the wild and wooly west? This ranch is no rare exception. See?

Hereford, Tex. Jesse B. Haston.

Wanted Agents.

Men and women living at home to act as agents selling Radiozone. Good money easily made. Write for particulars to The Radium Ozone Co., 1140 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago.

India Notes.

This is the season when missionaries are leaving for their furlough. A week ago, Miss Kingsbury spent a day in Jubbulpore, as she was on her way to Bombay to take ship for America. Miss Kingsbury has been out this last time for seven and a half years. Her special work has been the management of the girls' orphanage at Bilaspur. The character of her work in this capacity is attested by the fact that other missions are most anxious to obtain the girls trained in this orphanage as wives for their young men, and also by the fact that a large number of girls, not only from our own but also from other missions, are attending the institution as boarders. This is very remarkable, as there is a prejudice in India against sending children to orphanages to be cared for—unjust, we know, but it is as much a prejudice here as it is in America. It is now about twenty-two years since Miss Kingsbury first came to India, and she has well earned her furlough.

This week Dr. Drummond and his family were with us two days—one of them Sunday—as they were on their way to Calcutta to embark. They hope to see some of the work in China and Japan on their way home. They have been in India seven and a half years, spending the whole time in Harda. Dr. Drummond has had charge of two hospitals and dispensaries and a leper asylum all the time, and a part of the time preached for the little English congregation in Harda. He came to India in time to do a great deal of work in the famine. He also was in Harda during the terrible epidemic of plague which ravaged the place. Every year in these hospitals and dispensaries from 15,000 to 18,000 cases were treated, while large numbers of people were visited in their homes. When he left Harda, each of the several communities there—the Hindus proper, the Parsis, the native Christians, and the English community—had a farewell meeting and presented him and Mrs. Drummond with some token of their affection. To us, who had labored for four years in the same station with Dr. and Mrs. Drummond, it was as the departure of our own brother and sister.

A short time ago Brother Rioch took his boys away for an outing to Hatta, some twenty miles from Damoh. About two hundred of the orphanage boys were with him—quite a crowd of youngsters to take on a week's picnic. They had been promised a holiday for good conduct. While in Hatta, two of the boys were baptized.

Rath is expecting to have a new school building soon. Mrs. Gerould has given $1,000 for this purpose, and $500 more will be granted by the C. W. B. M. Rath is a new station, but in every way the work seems to be flourishing under the administration of Brother and Sister Menzies. Lately a home for widows has been opened there. Already several widows and their children have sought and obtained admission there, and two or three have given their hearts to the Lord.

News comes from Bina that there have lately been three baptisms in that station and two more in Jhansi, which is visited some by Bina missionaries, as we have some members there. In Jubbulpore our work is doing well. We have our class of eighteen young men who are studying to be evangelists, and some of them go out, usually in company with Brother Wharton, nearly every day for bazar preaching. Two or three hundred thus hear the gospel nearly every day.

Geo. W. Brown.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

Ohio State Convention.

The good women of Ohio met for the thirtieth time in annual convention May 22, 23, at Newark. It was the "best yet" convention of the Ohio C. W. B. M. The figures tell the greatest story of the years. The national treasurer wrote receipts for $14,638.50 from Ohio auxiliaries the past 12 months; $2,542.01 were given for the work in Ohio, making a grand total of $17,480.51. This is the largest report ever submitted. There are now 227 auxiliaries that enroll 5,543 members who read 1,757 copies of the Tidings each month. There are a dozen young ladies' auxiliaries. Ninety-six auxiliaries were on the honor roll. Warren has the largest—145 members. The program of the women's part of the convention was of a very high order. The address on Monday night by I. J. Spencer was a great uplift and was in all ways worthy of the man and the place.

All addresses are worthy of special mention. Mrs. Gerould was fresh from her trip from India, and while she had not had time for a rest, yet she brought a very enthusiastic message from the work and workers in India. Mrs. Nettie McCorkle gave a delightful paper on "The Two Sisters of Bethany." Mrs. N. E. Atkinson gave us new inspiration in her address on "The Aim and Purpose of the C. W. B. M." Professor Paul, of Hiram, spoke on "The Dignity and Grandeur of Missions." The remark was made that it was easy for a man to make a great address when he knew things. Professor Paul knows missionary history and science. It was a great address. Mrs. M. J. Grable, of Cleveland, was re-elected president; Mrs. S. E. Roof, Cleveland, vice-president; Miss Lyons, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robbins, Cleveland, treasurer, and Miss Bertha Peckman, of Hiram, superintendent of Junior work. The sessions of the O. C. M. S. opened Tuesday night. A. M. Harvuot, president, was unable to be present. First Vice-President P. H. Welsheimer presided. The report of the board was submitted by Secretary S. H. Bartlett.

The financial exhibit was as follows:

Receipts: Collections from churches and individuals for general work $9,802.75; interest on trust funds for general work, $531.22; interest on McDonald fund, $522.52; interest on Lathrop Cooley fund, $300; annuity, $300; total collections, $12,658 43; borrowed funds, $1,825; total receipts, $14,483.43.

The total amount reported in the trust funds was $51,892.61. The printed report did not give the detailed account of the disbursement of the funds, which was a disappointment to many, but this will likely be given yet in the final report that includes the report of the convention.

Summary of labor: Number of men employed, 45; number of days of service, 8,318; number of sermons, 2,983; number of conversions, 410; number of other additions, 388; number of churches assisted, 63; number of churches organized, 4; number of conventions held, 24; four new churches were established under the direction of our board, and sixty-three places were helped. Eight points became self-supporting the past year.

In the absence of A. M. Harvuot Tuesday night B. F. Doty, attorney of the anti-saloon league, from Columbus, made an address that was well received.

The session Wednesday forenoon was as good as any national convention. John B. Dickson, of Glouster, spoke thoughtfully and pointedly of "The Missionary Spirit of our Plea." Bruce Brown, of Mansfield, spoke with enthusiasm on "A Missionary Conscience." "Not Retreat but Advance" by Walter Mansel, of Salem, showed very careful preparation, and was one of the most complete and dignified addresses of the convention. Charles Darsie, of Uhrichsville asked "Is Ohio Worth Saving?" It was a meaty and well clothed speech. After a business session J. E. Lynn, of Warren, gave a pleasing and helpful address on "The Reflex Influence of the Living Link Idea."

Wednesday afternoon T. J. White, one of our most successful state missionaries, spoke on "The Opportunities of the State Missionary." President Rowlison made a pleasing and winning address on "Education." B. L. Smith was never more eloquent on "Home Missions." The increased offering so far made was no doubt the source of his new enthusiasm.

A special commissioner on temperance reported at the close of the afternoon session and resolved to let the women vote at local option elections and also to help defeat Gov. Herrick. This brought more fun than anything in the convention. The man was there who said we had no business to resolve; the man with a temperance oration; the man that wanted nothing adopted but the Prohibition party platform. But the resolution ran the gauntlet and landed safely. But it was fun. W. R. Warren, of Pittsburg, never fails to say something when he talks. "The mission work nearest home and our duty to it" was the theme and the parable of the pounds his text for his great address of Wednesday night. This address was heard by 1,000 people. Thursday forenoon was a Sunday-school session with Taubman, Welsheimer, Harp, Moninger and Kleeberger as talkers. Thursday afternoon W. A. Roush spoke for the Benevolent Association in his usual earnest and sincere way. Brother Roush always makes a dignified speech. The people heard A. McLean tell of "The Bible a Missionary Book"—they heard him gladly. C. A. Finch, of Topeka, Kan., was a visitor and spoke in the interest of church extension. His message was heard with interest and profit.

It was too bad that many had to leave before the final session on Thursday night, when that great veteran, Dr. Geo. H. Ball, of the Free Baptists, made the closing address. Dr. Ball set forth in a very clear and emphatic way his reasons for favoring the union of, as he put it, "the Free Baptist churches of Christ and churches of Christ of the Disciples of Christ." There was a keen interest in both Dr. Ball and his address. None were disappointed. "The heart of the Disciples," said Dr. Ball, "is in Ohio." "In joining two pieces of iron we must put the hot ends together." Ohio is the hot end of the Disciples, while New England and New York is the hot end of the Free Baptists. Dr. Ball suggests, therefore, that we of Ohio need to go as evangelists into the Free Baptist churches of New England and New York, and the result will be phenomenal. Dr. Ball's last thought was pathetic but practical—"Let us all pray for this union." Do so, brethren, everywhere.

THINGS PICKED UP BY THE WAY.

H. F. Keltch, of Bethany, has been called to the Second church at Dayton and is there. S. B. Norviel, of the South church, Toledo, goes July 1 to Hubbard.

Doty told us that 980 of the 1,371 townships in Ohio are without saloons, and four whole counties are "dry."

Some new faces among the preachers were present. Among them were, Bruce Brown, Mansfield; B. C. Piatt, Ashland; M. S. Spear, Martin's Ferry; J. A. Jackson, Shelby; John Dickson, Glouster; O. D. Maple, Marion; Hugh Wayt, North Fairfield; C. H. Bass, Findlay.

President Cramblett came over from Bethany to shake hands and look after the interest of old Bethany.

The committee on ways and means offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted after remarks by Bartlett, B. L. Smith, et. al.: "We beg leave to suggest to the brotherhood of the nation that the time is near when we should take a step in advance in national and state missions. We believe the offerings for these causes could be united, 50 per cent given to the national board and 50 per cent returned to the state board whence it comes and the cry be raised for half a million dollars for national and state missions and that the autumn should be given to reach this result." This will be presented at San Francisco.

Hiram Vankirk tried to induce all to go to California, and of course we wanted to go.

The Newark church entertained royally and surely have a right to be proud of their magnificent building. Judge A. R. Webber, of Elyria, will preside at the next convention.

J. Herman Dodd and C. M. Fillmore wielded the baton.

The enrollment was over 500. This will insure half fare next year.

Ohio never had a better convention. The spirit was fine. Everything was hopeful. Uhrichsville will welcome the hosts next May. It has been 13 years since the convention has been in that part of the state.

Several business men were in the convention, but we ought to see many more.

The missionary exhibit was patronized by many people.

Two of our Ohio preachers with their worthy wives go this fall to the foreign field. They are D. O. Cunningham and wife, of Findlay, and H. C. Saum and wife, of Prairie Depot.

One or two speeches lacked the dignity that ought to attend a convention address.

E. P. Wise, of Cleveland, takes the place of C. A. Freer on the advisory committee on pulpit supply. The convention voted to increase the apportionments 40 per cent the coming year. The churches as churches ought to give $15,000 for Ohio missions next November.

The elegant house and hospitable congregation at Newark, was a sufficient answer to Chas. Darsie's question, "Is Ohio worth saving?" Newark was one of our state missions not a half dozen years ago.

We had an example of Christian union—the Presbyterian ladies furnished the dinner and supper and our delegates ate it.

Robert Moffett was greatly missed, but sent a fraternal message, and the convention sent one in return to the man whom we all love so much.

S. H. Bartlett, Robert Moffett and E. B. Wakefield were fraternal delegates to the state gathering of Free Baptists.

Hiram commencement will be June 22. A large class will be graduated. C. A. Freer.

* *

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Cures Headache

caused by summer heat, overwork, nervous disorders or impaired digestion. Relieves quickly.

The Texas State Convention.

The Texas Christian missionary society held its annual meeting at Waco, in the chapel of the university, beginning May 15. The first session was that of the C. W. B. M. Frank L. Jewett, the incumbent of the Bible chair at the state university, made the principal address. He is a young man of high scholarship, and made a very clear presentation of the Bible chair work. Jasper Moses, superintendent of the educational work at Montery, Mexico, also made an interesting address. The C. W. B. M. raised $17,000 last year. J. C. Mason, corresponding secretary of the state missionary society, made a report showing splendid results,—$20,000 in cash was raised in 10 months. W. J. Wright represented the A. C. M. S., G. W. Muckley the Church Extension Society, A. J. Bush the Benevolent Association and F. M. Rains the Foreign Society. While Texas has not done her duty toward these great causes, intense interest was shown in all the work.

Education day was the climax of the convention. J. B. Briney, of Louisville, and President Zollars each made a great address on Christian education. Granville Jones, the golden-tongued (our Chrysostom), followed with an appeal, and just $30,000 was raised for Texas Christian university. President Zollars also announced the gift of T. M. Phillips, New Castle, Penn., of $5,000, and the gift of citizens of Waco of $5,000, all made within the last month. The enthusiasm ran high over this added financial strength. Reports were made from Carleton and Jarvis colleges, and $500 or $600, pledged toward the latter. Panhandle Christian college, a part of T.C. U., though 500 miles away, was also represented. The board of trustees are planning for large things. They are determined to have a well equipped university at Waco, with a number of smaller colleges at strategic points in Texas, all operating under one management, and the convention adopted resolutions to that end. The report of T. C. U. showed 470 different students at Waco, with 41 preparing for the ministry. One-third of the latter are volunteers for the foreign field. Next year 60 students for the ministry are expected, and an enrollment of 600 at least. The brethren have a vision of a great school in the next few years.

F. M. Rains closed the convention with a splendid rally, and gave a stereopticon address on China and Japan in the evening. Among the visitors who were on the program were Jno. T, Brown, of Louisville, and J. W. McGarvey, of Carthage, Mo. Time would fail to write of able addresses by ladies of C. W. B. M., the convention sermon by Pres. Addison Clark, the broad lines discussed by S. K. Hallam, president of the convention, and many other good things. The attendance was excellent; the spirit of the best; the enthusiasm unequaled. Our great men fell on each others' necks and wept, while the student body made the welkin ring with college yells. Such a convention was never before held by our people in Texas. FRANK H. MARSHALL.

From another report received later, we give some additional particulars:

Those who stand in the forefront of the Texas work are men of large vision, rich faith and devotion. It would not be detracting from the work done by other state secretaries to say that J. C. Mason stands without a peer among the men who are devoting their time to this special line of work. The man of largest brain and biggest heart should be called to this important position—men who could easily be bishops if they belonged to an ecclesiasticism. This is what Texas has always sought to do and the work shows the wisdom of such a program.

Perhaps there has been no more important incident of progress in the C. W. B. M. work than the calling of Dr. F. L. Jewett to the Bible chair work at Austin, the seat of the State university. Brother Jewett is a man of culture and training, well disciplined in heart and mind and we bespeak for him a wide field of usefulness.

The address of Pres. S. K. Hallam, of Denton, gave a broad and comprehensive view of the work to which we have committed ourselves as Disciples of Christ. It was worthy of the man and of the occasion. This was followed with an enthusiastic address by C. D. Meigs, superintendent of interdenominational Sunday-school work for Texas. Perhaps no speaker challenged the attention of the audience more closely than did he. Brother Meigs had many complimentary things to say of the "plain" Christians.

The day sessions of Wednesday were largely given up to reports of missionary pastors and evangelists and the report of the state secretary. The total cash received by Brother Mason during the ten months closing March 31 was $5,109.84; pledges taken, $4,441, making a totol in cash and pledges of $9,550.94. There were thirty-two men engaged for all or part of their time in the field. Total cash by and for these missionaries $14,571.10, for houses, lots, local ministers, etc., $4,956.52. Cash for all purposes, $19,527.62, pledges, $7,657,25, making a total of cash and pledges $27,184.87. Number of baptisms, 539. Total additions, 1,307. Churches planted 16, Sunday-schools 12, houses built eight.

* *

About Some Points in Texas.

The fascination produced by the vast possibilities evident in this great state grows upon us as our vision of the field broadens. This commonwealth furnishes an inviting arena in which primitive Christianity should acquire rightful supremacy. Extinguish ultra-literalism from the divine organism and within ten years Texas will keep company with those states in which our brotherhood is strongest. The names of a half dozen towns could be given where the construction of splendid new church houses are under consideration.

Again, Texas Christian university is destined to rank with the oldest and best institutions of learning in the south within a short time. Numerous fine district meetings indicate a strong advance movement all along the line. That great exponent of the scriptural plea and efficient state evangelist, B. B. Sanders, will have rolled up an inspiring report. The beloved, untiring corresponding secretary, J. C. Mason, has marshaled the forces in the graces of Christian giving. He recently conducted a successful meeting at Oak Cliff church, Dallas, where B. H. Morrison ministers.

The First and Tabernacle churches of Fort Worth, with their leaders, R. R. Hamlin and Guy Inman, have been engaged with the Protestant churches of the city in a union campaign.

W. M. Taylor, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been touring Texas under the auspices of the American Christian Missionary Society and received a hearty reception. He was with us at the Central church.

That veteran nobleman of God, M. M. Davis, assisted by several able preachers, has held a great missionary rally at the Central church, Dallas. The East Dallas church, with H. R. Ford as undershepherd, is one of the monumental works of home missions.

The orphans' home, under the supervision of A. J. Bush, is doing nicely and is certain to become the one unanswerable argument in behalf of applied Christianity.

The writer preached four nights recently at Mineral Wells, the famous health resort of this section. There are 4,000 souls here and they expect 75,000 visitors this season. We have a beautiful brick church centrally located. They are trying to locate W. G. Jacks there. We trust they may succeed. A Chautauqua building, under the management of Homer T. Wilson, is nearing completion.

Our work here prospers well. Our Sunday-school, under the superintendency of W. M. Hemphill, is good. Our ladies' aid society, under the presidency of Mrs. R. L. Stennis, is splendid. Our C. W. B. M. auxiliary, conducted by Sister Rider, is observing the week of prayer. Our Junior Endeavor, under the care of Miss Isby, is fast becoming the potent spiritual factor in our work.

Weatherford, Tex. ERNEST C. MOBLEY.

Individual Communion Cups

Why permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? Individual Communion Cups are sanitary. Let us send you a list of nearly 3,000 churches where they are in use. Send for Free Book.

We offer a Trial Outfit free to any church.

Sanitary Communion Outfit Co. 1st St. Rochester, N.Y.

THE BEST

Sunday-School Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary, The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people. The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Kentucky University Letter.

Arrangements for the great reunion of old Kentucky university students to be held during commencement week have been about completed. The speakers for the different occasions have been selected and arrangements for the entertainment of the many who will attend are now being made. The people of the city will throw open their doors to all who may attend.

Warren B. Davis, who represented Kentucky university in the state and southern oratorical contests, won second place in both contests. John A. Shishmanian, a former Kentucky university student, but now at the University of Virginia, won first place in the southern contest.

Prof. Clarence C. Freeman has resigned as professor of English, much to the regret of all Kentucky university friends. He will take the chair of English at Georgetown college next fall. Professor Freeman will be succeeded by Dr. H. G. Shearin, of Ripon college, Ripon, Wis. Doctor Shearin is an old Centre college graduate and a Kentuckian. He is also a Ph.D. from Yale and has studied abroad. He is said to be a fine instructor and has a very prepossessing appearance.

John Fox, Jr., the noted Kentucky novelist, was in the city for several days recently. He was entertained at a stag dinner by President Jenkins while here. Mr. Fox is one of many famous Kentucky university men who will attend the reunion.

Frederick D. Kershner, an old Kentucky university man, but now dean of Kee Mar college in Maryland, delivered three lectures in Morrison chapel, May 1, 2 and 3. His subjects were: "Othello," "Robert Browning" and "King Lear." His lectures were greatly enjoyed.

President Jenkins was one of the speakers at the banquet given to Dr. E. L. Powell in Louisville, May 8, by the business men of that city.

A. McLean, of Cincinnati, made one of his characteristic talks in chapel a few days ago. Mr. McLean is always enjoyed at Kentucky university. E. B. B.

Lexington, Ky.

* *

C. W. B. M. in Missouri.

It is time to be astir as to the closing up of the reports for the state year which will end with June. The convention opens on the evening of June 16, and it is important that all work that has been done shall be reported in full. If it is, all reports must be in St. Louis on or before June 10. This is not an arbitrary calling fos them, but is necessary in order that they may be in print in time for the meeting. I hope that we shall have the earnest co-operation of the whole state in this matter. You ought to mail your reports not later than the night of June 8. This gives all a chance to have their meetings for June, and the blanks have been in the hands of your officers several days, so that preparations for the best collections may be made. My letter with special request should be considered at your executive meeting and preparations for the fulfilling of it be attended to early.

I repeat the conditions for place on the honor roll:

1. Auxiliaries must report every quarter to state secretary.
2. They must observe C. W. B. M. day.
3. They must send at least ten cents per member a month to the national treasury.
4. They must send, at least, five cents per member a month to state treasury.

You know whether or not your auxiliary has fulfilled these conditions, so can report to me accordingly.

Sisters, we are going to have the best convention that we ever had, and that is saying much, for Missouri has had some that were equal to the national conventions. You cannot afford to miss it, for the sake of your future growth. Every good convention gives uplift to the most consecrated; how much, then, do we need the help, who are living so far from what the Master wants of us! As well as receiving we can give. We can never tell where our influence may end. One of the best and most devoted officers of a sister state was won for Christian service by an encouraging remark of the matron of the Christian orphans' home. Only one sentence for Christ turned the current of this girl's life, and the influence she has and will have, can be known only by him who knoweth all things. So come praying. I want every auxiliary who reads this to promise as she reads, to pray every day specially for this convention, and that our men and women of means may see their way to larger giving for the cause of missions. Our board is about to open a new field in Argentine, and how we all rejoice! But, this is expensive work. So was it expensive to provide a Savior for the world. Shall we hesitate for a few dollars that must soon be relinquished altogether, when Christ counted not the cost, in his sacrifice for these same people that it is our duty to help, and now? Our newly appointed missionary to Argentine, W. J. Burner, will be in the convention to tell us something of this new and fascinating field. Come and learn. We need $2,000 to begin the work.

Why not auxiliaries send their president, paying the railroad fare for her?

Mrs. L. G. Bantz.

If you purchase a

PIANO OR ORGAN

with the name

ESTEY

upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.

THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

For Over 60 Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.

An Old and Well-tried Remedy

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—Good home convenient to College, Eureka, Ill. Address, 620 Hillyer, St., Pekin, Ill.

FOR SALE—Two tools in one. Sanitary cake tester, with pick attached for removing corks, cleaning food choppers, picking nuts, etc. Net proceeds to go toward building a new church in Independence, Kansas. Send 25 cents and get this useful kitchen tool. Read Exodus 35:5. Mrs. J. W. Ferrell, 207 N. 11th St. Independence, Kansas.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

Ready for Delivery

A New Book by J. H. GARRISON,
Editor of The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
-ENTITLED-

THE HOLY SPIRIT:

HIS PERSONALITY, MISSION AND MODES OF ACTIVITY.

Contains 211 pages.
Printed on Best Heavy Book Paper.
Wide margins. Large, clear type.
Substantially bound in cloth.
Gilt title, side and back.

Like the other works of the author this book is written in dignified yet plain and simple language and is readily comprehended by the great body of the people for whom it is intended.

A Very Thorough Treatment
—of a—
Very Interesting Subject

It embraces twelve chapters which form a splendid analysis of the subject and are as follows:

1. The Tri-Personality of God.
2. Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.
3. Function of the Spirit in Conversion.
4. Relation of the Holy Spirit to Christians.
5. Blessings from the Holy Spirit.
6. Jesus and the Holy Spirit.
7. Significance of Pentecost.
8. Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit.
9. Spiritual Gifts.
10. Perfecting Holiness.
11. Christian Union and the Holy Spirit.
12. Perpetuity of the Spirit's Guidance.

Student, Pastor and People

will alike find a very great help in the reading of this latest work of Brother Garrison.

A Popular Book at a Popular Price.
Only One Dollar, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis,

Toledo, St. Louis & Western R. R. Co.

"CLOVER LEAF ROUTE."

The Short Line St. Louis to Lake Erie and the North-eastern Summer Resorts.

ASK ABOUT OUR NET-SHAPED TOUR.

Lake { HURON
ERIE
CHAUTAUQUA

City Office 104 N. 4th Street, St. Louis.
R. J. McKay, D. P. A.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Arkansas State Convention.

The convention opened Thursday night with a good sermon by Bro. N. M. Ragland, of Fayetteville. Brother Ragland has for more than twenty years faithfully served the Fayetteville church, which bears testimony to his ability as a pastor.

Things moved about right Friday, for the good women had charge of them under the caption of C. W. B. M. While the C. W. B. M. was transacting business in the parlor at the parsonage, J. N. Jessup, of Little Rock, called together the ministerial association and an improvised program was carried out. Brothers Ragland, Cross, Allen and Richardson made good talks in behalf of this institution.

Bro. McCarty, of Stuttgart, delivered a very fine sermon to us at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon the C. W. B. M. met in regular business session in convention, and a very beautiful memorial to Mrs. J. M. Critz, the late recording secretary, was read by Mrs. J. N. Jessup, of Little Rock. The president's address and reports of corresponding secretary and treasurer showed that foundations had been laid during the past year for greater work in the C. W. B. M. than Arkansas has before done, and it is hoped that they will build well for the coming year. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Stephens, of Newport, Friday evening, then Mrs. M. L. Yantis, of Paragould, read an earnest letter from Miss Lackey, Deoghur, India. All hearts were touched and tears of sympathy and loving fellowship could be seen in every eye. A free will offering was taken to help support this special missionary. Prayer and thanksgiving went to the throne of God in her behalf.

Then a very pleasant hour followed in which the preachers in attendance gave words of encouragement and approval of the C. W. B. M., thus making the sisters feel that the Arkansas preachers would not leave them to fight their C. W. B. M. battles alone. This was an hour of true fellowship.

Saturday morning a very helpful Bible lesson was given by J. N. Jessup. Brother Jessup has an easy way of reaching the hearts of all who hear him; and to know him is to love him. Brother Jessup was chosen president of the convention and filled the office with grace.

We missed Brothers Bullard and Kincaid, who were absent on account of sickness. A. J. Bush, of Grand Prairie, Texas, was present and delivered a splendid address in behalf of the Texas Christian orphanage. The report of the state mission board was read by E. C. Browning. The principles of the co-operative mission work and the needs of the Arkansas field were prominent features of the splendid report. Brother Browning presented a large map of Arkansas before the audience which spoke eloquently under the pointer guided by the hand of Brother Jessup and the voice of the speaker Saturday afternoon Dr. Albert Buxton, of Dexter, Mo., presented the plan of the F. C. M. S. and was followed by W. J. Wright, who brought sunshine into our hearts, as he so lovingly represented the A. C. M. S., and the hearts who were sacrificing all for the cause of Christ.

Brothers Allen, Cross, Berry, Johns and a person from Paragould gave encouraging reports of their respective fields of labor. Brother Cross is doing great things at Pine Bluff. Brother Allen is also doing a good work in his Master's kingdom. W. B. Mason's report was read by Brother Browning, as Brother Mason had to leave for an appointment before these voices were heard. Brother Mason is doing a grand work for the Lord in the mountains of Arkansas, and should be better supported. Saturday night N. M. Ragland presented the plan and work of the Church Extension Board. He was followed again by W. J. Wright in a strong sermon, the "Golden Rule," which was very effective, and was very appropriately applied to missions. In conclusion he called for pledges to state missions, and $1,000 was raised and partly collected in a very short time.

Good feeling and a fine spirit prevailed throughout the convention. In the conclusion our "state song" was sung with due appreciation.

The pulpits of our city were filled by our good ministers Sunday, and the people are loud in their praise. The convention has done us lasting good, and has made a fine impression on the community in general. We proposed to establish a Bible chair at the seat of the state university, and Brother Ragland was asked to secure an option on the lots. The Bible chair at Fayetteville means better things for Arkansas, better work and better workers.

The next convention goes to Russellville.

R. O. Rogers.

❀ ❀

Washington State Notes.

B. H. Lingenfelter has closed his work with the First church, Seattle, after about five years of effective service. He will probably continue to live in the city and take up work with one of the other congregations.

F. B. Huffman, recently from Cleveland, Ohio, is happy in his work in Palouse.

The church in Walla Walla under the leadership of Morton Gregory, secured a lot in the very center of the city at a cost of $6,500, and will erect a fine church edifice, to cost about $30,000.

The state Sunday-school association met in Spokane, April 25-27. The sessions were all held in the Central Christian church. The cordial welcome extended by the churches and city was worthy of the cause. Brother Utz and his church exert a large influence in the central part of the city and by the missions they have started. They are reaching the outlying portions.

Dean avenue church on the north side of the river is happily and faithfully caring for that part of the field. J. W. Allen, so well known throughout the brotherhood, is carrying the work of this church forward.

Davenport church and O. J. Gist get along splendidly. The brethren there know a good preacher and are inclined to keep him now that they have him.

E. Morton Flynn, of Cœur D'Alene, Idaho, came over to Spokane to attend the meeting of the association. Other Christian preachers present were Brother Dean from Rockford, Wash., and Brother Lucky, of Tekoa, and the writer of these notes.

The new church building at Pullman is nearing completion and will be opened the second Lord's day in June. Z. T. Sweeney is engaged to conduct the dedicatory services and is expected to remain through the state convention which meets at Pullman June 13 to 15. Ralph Sargent has done splendid work in leading the church in this school center to see visions of future greatness.

Prosser church is planning to take all of M. A. Thompson's time the coming year and Zillah church expects to provide a preacher for full time. They are building a parsonage and have called a man to the pastorate. The work at Ellensburg and N. Yakima moves forward splendidly, and new houses of worship are much needed at both places.

The writer enjoyed a brief visit to-day from F. Walden, Pres. of the state board and R. E. Dunlap, of Seattle, who was in the city arranging an appointment for Oliver W. Stewart, the great temperance orator.

North Yakima. Morton W. Rose.

❀ ❀

A Fine Kidney Cure.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn., (the Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder troubles will write him, he will, without charge, direct them to the perfect home cure he used.

CANCER CURED

WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.

Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address

DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

NEW INVENTION!

Write for new booklet, Special Offer this month. Our new Quaker Folding Vapor Bath Cabinets, finest produced. Everybody delighted. Enjoy at home for 3c each all the marvelous cleansing invigorating, curative effects of the famous Turkish Baths. Open the 5,000,000 skin pores, purifies the entire system. Beats Hot Springs. Prevents disease. Saves Dr. bills. Cured thousands. Nature's drugless remedy for colds, grip, rheumatism, aches, pains, blood and skin diseases, Kidney trouble children's diseases and female ills. Guaranteed. Sent on 30 days' trial. $100 to $800 a month. salesmen, managers, general agents. 100% profit.

WORLD MFG. CO., 82 World Building, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

EVERYBODY IS LAUGHING HEARTILY

—AT—

REUBEN

—AND—

HIS EXPERIENCES AT COLLEGE AND ABROAD.

Send One Dollar for "Reuben: His Book" to

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

Nebraska News.

Chancellor Aylsworth supplied at Peru on May 7 and reports three confessions. A Bible-school was organized with 65 present. The outlook for work at Peru is excellent if we can get the right man to take the work.

The secretary preached at Minden on May 7. Two added by statement at the morning service. This work is in good condition for forward work now. Here too, the location of a good man is a prime and immediate necessity.

Would it not be a good thing for the prayer-meetings in the churches to appoint a Wednesday evening of the month to praying for the Lord to send more laborers into his harvest?

District No. 5 convention was limited in the number of delegates in attendance. The program was good and very well sustained throughout. The interest was good, though lacking in the depth that comes with larger numbers. F. S. White was re-elected corresponding secretary for the year.

W. H. Waggoner was at Beaver City in an institute May 11-17. Brother Waggoner has been in the state some time, and will remain for a good many more weeks. His work will tell for missions.

Conventions of districts Nos. 7 and 8 will be past when this is read.

Virgil E. Shirley, pastor at Harvard, went to Mississippi with the body of a little child for interment at the home of its parents.

Frank R. Janes and wife began a meeting at Olin, Iowa, on May 14. He delivered the doctorate sermon at Cotner medical graduation exercises at the Oliver theatre, Lincoln, on May 10. Brother Janes and wife are open for meetings on acceptable terms. Permanent address, Fremont, Neb.

Melvin Putman preached at Lincoln First church on May 14. It is expected that Brother Haynes will be at home again ready for work by the time these lines are in print. He is reported very much improved in health by his short rest.

Cotner medical college graduated a good sized class. The work done by the graduates of this school is generally very acceptable and compares favorably with that done by those of other schools. The school seems to be in a thriving condition.

Chancellor Aylsworth will supply at Minden on May 14.

E. M. Johnson of the Geneva church, reports two confessions at the Girls' industrial school on May 7.

This month home missions has the right of way in our churches. The fact that the board of home missions finds itself in debt, while still endeavoring to avoid a contraction of the work, ought to inspire our preachers and churches to more than ordinary efforts to make a suitable and generous offering for the work. Nebraska work with other states is waiting for its April appropriation until the money comes in from the offerings this month. Do not let this matter pass without attention. If we will all join together in the work it can be very much forwarded by the efforts of Nebraska churches.

Are you thinking of taking the trip to San Francisco to the national convention in August? If so, write me regarding it. I am anxious to get the names of as many as contemplate taking the trip. The fare will be $50 round trip for San Francisco and Los Angeles; $56.00 round trip for these places and include Portland. It is an opportunity to see this great country of ours in its western half in congenial company; 90 days' time given, with stop over privileges going and coming.

W. A. BALDWIN.

NEW ONTARIO—TO THE FRONT.
Offer to Tenant Farmers.

A five acre lot, or a hundred acre farm for 25c per acre cash, the rest at 5c per acre per month.
R. A. BURRISS, Port Arthur, Ont.

Michigan Summer Resorts

The land of summer pleasures.
The cost is small for a stay of a week or a month at any of the resorts in the

Famous Michigan Fruit Belt

There is splendid fishing.
The bathing is unsurpassed.
Sailing or canoeing is a pleasure.
Golf and Tennis grounds everywhere.
The hotels are justly famed for first-class entertainment.
In fact—but the many attractions are best set forth in the booklets issued by the

Pere Marquette Railroad

A request addressed to
H. F. MOELLER, G. P. A.,
Union Station, Detroit, Mich.
Will bring you this literature free.

POPULAR HYMNS No. 2
By C. C. CLINE
Now used by
Thousands of Churches Everywhere
in the land.

The Popular Song Book
with the People.

PRICES:
SINGLE COPIES, POSTPAID.
Limp cloth, - 25 cents Boards, - 25 cents
Cloth, - 30 cents
PER DOZEN, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $2.00 Boards, - - $2.50
Cloth, - $3.00
PER HUNDRED, NOT PREPAID.
Limp cloth, - $15.00 Boards, - $20.00
Cloth, - $25.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

NORTHFIELD
HYMNAL
BY GEO. C. STEBBINS.
30c. a copy, postpaid. $25 per 100.
Returnable Sample free to Pastors, etc.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., Chicago-New York

Living Praise
By Chas. H. Gabriel
and W. W. Dowling
Sacred Songs Suitable for All Occasions
267 Sacred Songs; a very large proportion of them new. The best collection of high class music ever produced among our people.
Three Styles of Binding.
PRICES:
$15.00, $20.00, $25.00 per hundred
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

"The Witness of Jesus"
—BY—
ALEXANDER PROCTER
A cloth-bound volume of 404 pages.
Every Christian, particularly preachers of the Word nould have it on their book shelves.
Price, $1.25.
Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

Bessemer, Ala., May 29.—O. P. Spiegel, general evangelist, and D. P. Taylor, minister, have just held the greatest meeting in our history, with 29 additions. City thoroughly stirred.—Mrs. Willis Stuart.

[Telegram.]

Clarksville, Tenn., May 29.—Continue here with 70 added to date; 10 yesterday; crowds increased so that we were obliged to accept offer of large Methodist church. Robert Lord Cave has made fine preparations for splendid meeting.—Small and Hackleman.

CALIFORNIA.

Escondido, May 17.—Bro. W. E. Crabtree, pastor of the Christian church at San Diego, assisted by Prof. A. J. Carroll and wife, of Acampo, as singers, lately closed a meeting at this place with 14 additions. The church here was once quite strong, but the valley had incurred a large bonded debt in building a reservoir and irrigation system and many members either left or joined other churches and the membership had dwindled to about 10. Lately a compromise was effected and every dollar of indebtedness was paid. It was then certain that the valley had a great future. Brother Crabtreee and the San Diego church, realizing the importance of planting the cause here firmly, proposed to hold a two weeks' meeting free if we could pay for a singer. The meeting was a grand success. At its close money was pledged to secure a preacher for three-fourths of the time, the other fourth to be given to Oceanside and San Luis Rey work, congregations about 20 miles distant. There is only one other Christian church within 80 miles and that is at San Diego. On account of our having almost the best climate on earth and our water system paid for, we expect to become an important point. Three Christian families lately located here from Kentucky and one from Missouri and these have much encouraged the little band.—W. L. Sears.

COLORADO.

Boulder, May 22.—Two by letter and one by contession yesterday.—S. M. Bernard.

Trinidad.—One confession May 7, one May 14, one May 21, and two others by statement, not previously reported.

Denver, May 22.—One confession in South Broadway church yesterday. Three received hand of fellowship who were baptized a week ago. One was received who was baptized Easter Sunday. One came in by letter.—B. B. Tyler.

ILLINOIS.

Eureka, May 23.—Two confessions last Lord's day at Mt. Olivet church, Clarence, Ill. Have had splendid audiences at every service this spring; 64 in attendance at the Sunday-school last Sunday.—Lewis P. Fisher, minister.

Chicago Heights, May 21.—We had our large tent filled last evening and an entire family confessed Christ. Sectarianism has been unbridled for years and it does not set well that the simple gospel is preached. Shearer and Altheide are the evangelists.—Harry E. Tucker, minister.

Hillsboro, May 22.—We have erected a large tabernacle here and are just starting in for a siege. This is a new point. We have no congregation here, but we expect a good live one before this meeting closes. Remember us in your prayers.—Lawrence and Edward Wright.

Saybrook, May 22.—There have been three additions lately to the church here: one reclaimed, one by letter and one confession.—James N. Thomas.

Loami, May 24.—Two confessions last Sunday. At the baptismal service Tuesday evening the husband of one of the candidates made the good confession and was baptized the same hour of the night.—J. W. Larimore.

Forrest, May 27.—Held a special series of meetings during five days of this week. Had five accessions to the church—one by statement, four by confession. This is encouraging, since a four weeks' union meeting here last winter resulted, so far as we know, in no conversions. We dedicate our new church building here May 28 with Chas. Reign Scoville. It will be a great day for the Disciples of Christ in this place, for they have had a struggle to build.—Rochester Irwin.

INDIANA.

New Salem, May 22.—Closed two weeks' meeting with 44 additions: 36 confessions, 8 by statement. H. H. Saunders was our singing evangelist.—Frank B. Thomas.

Covington, May 22.—One more added yesterday at "West Liberty"—P. W. Walthall, minister.

Charleston, May 24.—Meeting at Milltown closed with 15 baptisms and 7 by statement added—one more last Lord's day from denominations.—Fred R. Davies.

Sandborn.—In a meeting with 10 additions the first week. S. E. Stein, of Indianapolis, is the singer.—L. E. Murray.

Francesville, May 24.—At the morning service a young married woman from the M. E. church took her stand, with her husband, with us.—I. G. Shaw.

Indianapolis, May 22—One more added yesterday at Lynn.—Willis M. Cunningham.

IOWA.

Stanhope, May 22.—Work moves nicely in Stanhope; two additions yesterday, six at regular services in the past month. Our Christian Endeavor and Sunday-school are both doing good work.—W. C. Cole.

Cherokee, May 22.—Closed our revival Sunday, with great interest and 25 accessions—14 by confession and 11 by letter and statement. Church greatly strengthened. Prof. G. A. Butler, of Mound City, Mo., did the singing. —G. A. Butler, singing evangelist, S. R. Reynolds, pastor.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Weleetka, May 24.—Our revival meeting which closed last Sunday night has been a blessing to us all and is the most successful ever held here. There were in all 39 added—32 by confession, three from denominations, three by letter and one reclaimed. The attendance was remarkable even from the first. Brother and Sister Williamson are splendid helpers. Less than a year ago the writer located with this congregation, having at that time 33 members, and has added since June 25 64 members. To the loyal, consecrated membership is due much of the credit. The territorial convention meets with us in August.—F. Hooker Groom.

KANSAS.

Pratt, May 22.—Two by letter here yesterday.—W. C. German.

Eureka, May 22.—We are not in a revival meeting at Eureka, but are having additions every Sunday. One confession last Sunday and two baptisms not previously reported. The writer preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the high school Sunday, May 21.—G. F. Bradford.

Atlanta, May 26.—One young man made the confession last night. Fine audiences and interest. Who wants a July meeting? Continue here indefinitely.—N. A. Stull, evangelist.

MISSOURI.

Wilcox, May 21.—Two confessions and one from the Methodists.—Homer L. Lewis, minister.

Gallatin, May 22.—Two additions last night—a man and wife—by letter and statement.—C. W. Comstock.

Stockton, May 22.—Our meetings here closed yesterday, after running 22 days. There were 20 added to the church; 11 previously reported. There were 11 baptisms. For a time I may be addressed at 220 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Col.—Simpson Ely.

Grant City, May 22.—Three more additions yesterday, one an M. E. preacher. Also a fine young man took his stand with us at prayer-meeting.—W. L. Harris, pastor.

Sheldon, May 26.—We had six additions at our regular services at Carbon Center May 21—two by letter, one reclaimed, three confessions, all adults.—H. E. Carpenter.

St. Louis, May 24.—Two baptisms to-day at a little meeting with one of the Monroe county churches.—W. H. Kern.

La Monte, May 23.—Work in good shape here. Prayer meetings and Christian Endeavor fine.—J. H. Fuller.

Dexter.—We have just had a big union meeting of 10 weeks with 450 additions to the churches—one-third the adult population. The Christian church had about one-fifth of these. —Albert Buxton.

Bonne Terre, May 27.—One confession last Lord's dav. Arrangements have been made to raise funds to remodel and enlarge the church house. We have doubled the Sunday-school, and much interest is manifested in every line of our work. The attendance is on a steady increase and the interest demands enlargement in every department. This is a beautifully located town in southeast Missouri, with over 6,000 inhabitants. It has excellent schools, is the headquarters of the St. Joseph Lead Mine, has no municipal government, best forms of regulations exist. This company pays "good wages," believes in liberality, permits no saloons on its premises and encour-

For the Spiritual and Financial Improvement of the Church.

A New Tract of 24 Pages

The Christian Use of the Tithe System

By G. L. WHARTON

Fresh From Our Press.

3 cents each. 25 cents per dozen.
$1.50 per hundred.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

ages and supports Christianity and education. We have an excellent band of Disciples in this town and expect to do great work for the Master.—Jno. G. M. Luttenberger, St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK.

Buffalo, May 23.—There were four confessions at the close of the Sunday evening service and three baptisms. Twenty new active members were added to our Senior Christian Endeavor society to-night—giving us the second place in the city union from the standpoint of numbers.—B. S. Ferrall, pastor.

OHIO.

Marion, May 22.—Sunday, May 21, two added to the church and $30 for home missions; $25 were given last year. There will be a new church; the work is begun.—O. D. Maple.

Dayton, May 25.—Two accessions last Lord's day at the West Side church. Every department in good work. — Henry F. Keltch.

OKLAHOMA.

Chandler, May 22.—Ten more additions this week; all confessions, except one reclaimed. We are at work here in earnest.—J. E. Dinger, pastor.

OREGON.

Salem, May 21.—Twenty-three confessions in our meeting to date. Our tent is not large enough to accommodate the people. It is raining every day, but the people are used to that in Oregon. S. M. Martin is the evangelist, Davis Errett is pastor.—Charles E. McVay, singing evangelist.

Elmira, May 24.—The meeting closed at Lawton, Okla., with 60 added. Bro. H. T. Morrison, the faithful minister, took the work there at a time when wise council and true leadership were needed to steer the church to success. The splendid result has proved the wisdom of his selection. The Lawton church has a noble membership and a good church building, well appointed for aggressive work, located in the best part of the city. This was the second meeting we have held with Brother Morrison. At Dayton, Wash., there were 161 additions, reviving the church until they have decided to send their own evangelist into the field; furnishing his support, besides carrying on the home work. Our next work will be in Washington. — L. F. Stephens and wife, evangelists.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Ellwood, May 22.—We had a very good day yesterday; a Bible-school attendance of 92, with great preparations being made for children's day; we will exceed our apportionment. One confession and baptism at the evening service; fully 200 people present.—Ferd F. Schultz, minister.

Uniontown.—Our meeting with James Small and Leonard Daugherty, lasting three weeks, resulted in 75 additions. We gave them the opera house three Sunday nights and Small's sermons gave our plea a great hearing.—Herbert Yeuell.

TENNESSEE.

Memphis, May 22.—We have just closed a successful three weeks' meeting at the Mississippi avenue church. Bro. J. E. Gorsuch, pastor of the Third church in this city, did the preaching. The meeting resulted in 12 additions to the congregation—11 were by primary obedience and one reclaimed.—Louis D. Riddell, pastor.

TEXAS.

McKinney, May 25.—Our meeting has been in progress 22 days, 90 additions to date. Expect to close next Sunday.—H. A. Northcutt, evangelist; G. L. Bush, pastor.

WISCONSIN.

Ladysmith, May 25.—Three baptisms here within the last week.—H. F. Barstow, Cor. Sec.

VIRGINIA.

Newport News, May 22.—Seven added at regular services yesterday.—Milo Atkinson.

❁ ❁

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

CHAPMAN.

On April 24, 1905, the spirit of my mother, Margaret Chapman, passed into the presence of its Maker, from the home of my brother in Savannah, Mo. Mother was born in Knox county, O. Her maiden name was Spry. She was made a member of the M. E. church when a child, and something more than half a century ago was buried with Christ in baptism and has been a faithful member of the Christian church. She has been a widow over 20 years. She lacked but one day of being 84.

W. A. Chapman.

DEWEESE.

Mrs. Mary E. Deweese, one of our most faithful members, died at her home in Jacksonville, Ill., April 23, 1905. Her maiden name was Goodwin. She was born in Tennessee in 1831 and married to Cornelius Deweese, an elder of this congregation, in 1856. She united with the Christian church under the preaching of D. Pat Henderson in 1864 and took the Christian-Evangelist and its predecessor over 40 years. Four children, Mrs. Jas. Powell, of Kansas City, Ernest, Mary and Cora, with the husband, survive her. She was a faithful mother, a devoted wife and one of the Lord's choicest spirits. Always in life helping the cause of the Master, she has now entered upon the deathless existence of which the Savior speaks. We shall miss her much in the work of the church, but know that we will see her face in our Father's house. "We sorrow not as those who have no hope."

Russell F. Thrapp.

Jacksonville, Ill.

PASCHAL.

Mary A. Paschal was born in Bourbon county, Ky., Oct. 18, 1816, and died near Mt. Zion in Marion county, Mo., on May 9, 1905, in her eighty-ninth year. She was married to Volney Whaley in 1834 and in the same year they removed to this state—to the place which continued to be her home until her death. Those were the early days of this region and when her husband died in 1849 she was left with her three children to brave the hardships of pioneer life. Later she was married to Thos. Paschal. When the civil strife arose in '81 Mr. Paschal was seized by the military authorities who terrorized this region at that time and as a result of confinement in a loathsome prison he died in 1862. More than sixty years ago Sister Paschal confessed her Lord, being baptized by Bro. Jacob Creath. When Mt. Zion church was organized, early in the '50's, she was a charter member, and was the last of that original congregation to remain on earth. In the highest and truest sense, she was a Disciple of Christ. She loved the church. She was never elsewhere so happy as in the house of the Lord, and even in her last days was one of the most faithful attendants at all our services. Of that rare type of noble Christly women who contributed so much to the making of our country she lived a long and beautiful life, rich in love and service, and died in the triumph of an unfaltering faith. She leaves one son and one daughter—both strong in Christ's service. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Mt. Zion.

Canton, Mo. Chester A. Baird.

"An Endeavorer's Working Journey Around the World,"

By John F. Anderson

$1.50 Postpaid.

Hon. Champ Clark says it is:

"The most interesting book of travels published since Mark Twain wrote 'Innocents Abroad.'"

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis. Mo.

The People's New Testament With Notes

: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :

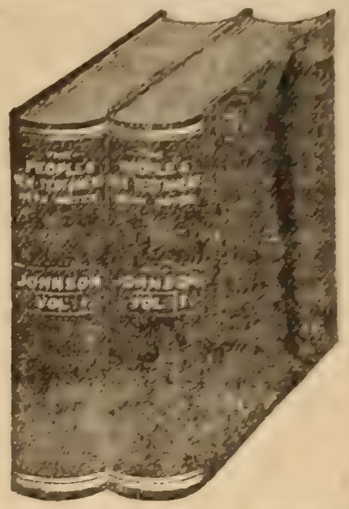
A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.

The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.



Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

The Christ in Modern English Literature

By GEO. H. COMBS.

Purple Silk Cloth Binding; Title in White; 257 Pages.

$1.00, Postpaid.

This book, written in the best of literary style, traces in a careful and interesting way the influence of Christ upon the thought and consequent productions of makers of literature since his time.

One can not read it without being more thoroughly convinced than ever that the influence of Christ's life is the power that produces civilization and advancement in the world. The book is one of the most attractive ever issued by us.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Sunday-School.

June 11, 1905.

THE BLESSING OF THE RISEN CHRIST. REV. 1:9-20

Memory verses, 17,18.

Golden Text.—I am he that liveth and was dead: and behold I am alive for evermore.—Rev 1:18.

The book of Revelation or the Apocalypse of John, is one of the most mysterious books in the Bible. In style and manner it is closely akin to some of the apocryphal books of later Judaism which were written a century or two before the birth of Christ. After the decline of both the political and the spiritual life of Israel, when the world powers seemed hopelessly in the ascendant and when the hardening of formal Pharisaism seemed to the more spiritual to eliminate the last possibility of a glorious religious triumph for Israel through any ordinary means, there were still those who, possessed by something of the enthusiasm of the old prophets and their dauntless faith in the triumph of right, predicted a victory of a wider and more wondrous sort. It was not near so much a struggle between Israel and her enemies as between the forces of light and darkness throughout the world, and the triumph of the latter was to come not through human agents used by Jehovah but through obvious and spectacular supernaturalism. The prediction of this struggle of worldly and heavenly powers was cast into the form of visions; it was embellished with vivid and elaborate symbolism, including symbolic beasts and numbers, it was often given a fictitious authority by being put forth pseudonymously under the name of Moses or Enoch, or other ancien saint.

In the situation of Christianity at the end of the first century, beset by fierce persecution, without means of defense against external dangers and already threatened by dangers of internal corruption, there was something to call for the same sort of treatment. And so the aged John, living now in Ephesus, adopted the literary form, the symbolism and the terminology of this already existing body of apocalyptic literature, and records in the from of apocalypse his deepest spiritual convictions as to the outcome of Christianity.

In the passage assigned for this lesson the author records the vision in which he received the call to his mission as a writer of warnings and encouragement to the churches. The outstanding feature of it is the appearance of one "like unto a son of man," who gave him the message. It was a vision of Christ. It was meant to convey the highest assurance that he was really alive. "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore." This was the great fact upon which was based the hope of the church, and from which proceeded all the prospect of a glorious messianic triumph.

❀ ❀

BABY SLEEPS, MOTHER RESTS
After a Warm Bath with Cuticura Soap and a Single Application of Cuticura
Ointment, the great Skin Cure, and purest and sweetest of emollients. This treatment means instant relief, refreshing sleep and speedy cure for skin-tortured, disfigured, itching and burning babies, and rest for tired, fretted mothers, in the severest forms of skin and scalp humors, eczemas, rashes and chafings, with loss of hair, when all else fails.

BUSINESS EDUCATION
—135— SCHOLARSHIPS FREE
Clip this notice from the Christian-Evangelist. St. Louis, and present or send it to
DRAUGHON'S
Practical Business College
ST. LOUIS, 10th & Olive; KANSAS CITY, PADUCAH, LITTLE ROCK, WACO, or OKLAHOMA CITY, and you will receive booklet containing almost 100 mis-spelled words explaining that we give away, ABSOLUTELY FREE 135 scholarships, Personal or Home Study, to those finding most mis-spelled words in booklet. Most instructive contest ever conducted. Booklet contains letters from bankers and business men giving reasons why you should attend one of D. P. B. C. Those who fail to get free scholarship will as explained in booklet get 10 cents for each mis-spelled word found. Let us tell you all about our great educational contest and our GREAT SUMMER DISCOUNT.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

June 11, 1905.

NOT ASHAMED OF THE GOSPEL.—Rom. 1:13-17.

For the Leader.

The gospel is the story of the most wonderful life ever lived in the world. The person who makes up a large part of the gospel is the most wonderful person who ever lived in the flesh. The will of God is revealed in the life of Jesus and as declared under the inspiration of the Spirit by the apostles is the most wonderful story ever told. It is like the way of the spiritual man, it is suited to the uncorrupted man, it is the normal life, but very unlike the controlling spirit that ruled in the world up to the advent of Jesus. And the ruling spirit to-day that is termed "the world" reverses the way as it is set forth in Jesus. The gospel, then, cmoes to us in these ways as a unique thing. As we assemble to-night to study the gospel and why we should not be ashamed of it, let us get a lesson that will bring us in from the dangerous places upon which many stand in their views of the gospel. We should not be ashamed of it. We should rejoice in it, and be glad of the opportunity to make known its message to men. Let us see.

For the Members.

1. The statement that furnishes a foundation for the topic of the evening, "not ashamed of the gospel," was made by Paul. He was writing to the brethren at Rome. Long had he desired to preach to them and to enjoy the experience of seeing his children in the Lord in the great and wicked city of Rome. He would have them know how long he had wanted to preach to them. He is now writing a letter to tell them. In this letter he answers any thought that any one might have that he was not anxious to preach the gospel. He was not ashamed of the gospel. He was proud of the same glorious message.

2. Paul's first reason for being proud of the gospel was in the fact that it had led him to such salvation as made him another man to himself and God's most fearless and most useful man to all the world. He was a Pharisee. He was proud of anything but the things that the gospel teaches us to value. How much he was mistaken! That splendid life could not have a future such as would give it scope while laboring under so fundamental a mistake as to the main issue of life as controlled him when a strict Jew. Though at first a hater of the way, he was brought to see his mistake. He accepted the truth as it is in Jesus, and from that day his life began to bear fruit. Proud of the gospel because it saved him.

3. Paul's second reason for being proud of the gospel was that he had seen in the wide world its triumph over sinful men. Everywhere he preached it was the same powerful gospel. It was the same powerful word of life. The wise were instructed by it. The foolish and simple could see in it a message of comfort to them. The poor were shown how in Jesus they might become rich. The rich were shown how in the Lord of glory they might find the true riches. The widow found one who would plead her cause. The orphan in him found a friend. The cold and cheerless night of the toiling world was turned into a glorious and fruitful day. Many a one who had upon him the mark of sin Paul had seen obey the gospel, and the stains washed away and the life come new and fresh again. Need Paul fear to try the word of power like this anywhere?

4. We should be admonished by these lessons from Paul's experience. There is no more wonderful story to-day than the story of the cross. Not only in the day of Paul, but in our day, will the gospel lead men to the way, the truth, the life. Have you not persons in mind now who owe all to the story of the gospel? Yes, on every side we see them. What would we be were it not for the influence of the old gospel, yet ever new? We sometimes hear people speak as if they thought the gospel had become an old song to the people; as though something new would have to come in to take the place once filled by the gospel; that the preacher would have to give more history, more literature, more science in his sermons. But when it is given in place of the word the people soon get hungry and cry for the bread of life. In our societies we sometimes come to the conclusion that we must try some new thing as the main feature of our work, but our society comes to grief if we get far from the side of him who was bruised for our iniquities and by whose stripes we are healed.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Am I ever ashamed of the gospel when before those who are not believers in its healing power?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	The word of God.	1 Tim.1:11-16.
T.	Is powerful.	Heb. 4:2-12.
W.	Enlightening.	Ps. 119:105 112.
T.	Cleansing.	John 15:1 8.
F.	Sustaining.	Luke 5:1-4.
S.	Penalty of shame.	Luke 9:23-26.
S.	Topic.—Not ashamed of the gospel. Rom. 1:13 17.

We Pay Cash for Newspaper Clippings, Names and Addresses. Write, enclosing stamp for particulars. The E. M. Smith Co., 114 E. 23d St., N. Y. City.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance
When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.
LIVING PRAISE
By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling
Is that kind of a Song Book.
Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.
Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

June 7, 1905.

THE GUEST AT THE DOOR.

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me."—Rev. 3:20.

Oriental Hospitality. One of the virtues persistently inculcated and practiced by orientals is hospitality to strangers. To turn a stranger, asking hospitality, away from the door, would have been esteemed a crime against the highest social law. This fact adds significance to the above text.

The Divine Initiative. It is God who is seeking us, and not we seeking God. It is God who, in Christ Jesus, has come to us, and asks admission into our hearts, and homes, and lives. Jesus represents himself as standing at the door, and knocking. What infinite condescension! Here is one who received adoration and worship from angels, stooping down to the lowly conditions of human life, and pleading for admission as a guest into our hearts! Can anything be more tender than this appeal? He is knocking at the door of our lives! All the tender appeals of the gospel; all the sweet wooings of the Spirit; all the gracious providences which have blessed us, and all the afflictions which have humbled us, are but so many knockings of Jesus at the door of our hearts, asking to be admitted!

How We May Admit Him. "If any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him." Notice, he does not break down the door; he does not force our will. He simply reminds us that he desires to come in, and then it depends upon us whether we will admit him or not. We must not only hear his voice, but we must open the door, saying by that act, "Come in, dear Lord, a welcome guest in my heart, and in my life!" Without this invitation from you, he will not come in, and after a while, when he sees the refusal is final, he will turn sorrowfully away.

A Guest of Christ. Not only does the Lord promise to enter into our hearts and sup with us, but he promises also that we shall sup with him. We shall be his guests, and he will satisfy our hearts' deepest hunger by the food and the drink which he alone can supply. Oh, to sit at the Master's table, and to be fed by him! What honor could be greater than that! This is divine reciprocity.

Some Questions. Have you invited the Lord Jesus into your heart? Have you offered him the best that you have? Are you treating him as a royal guest? Do you grieve him by sordid and selfish lives, or by unholy thoughts and acts? Have you found it sweet to sit as a guest at the Lord's table, to be fed by him?

Prayer. Dear Lord, we bless the day that Thou didst ever come knocking at the door of our hearts! We bless the day and the hour in which we heard Thy voice, and opened the door of our hearts, and bade Thee come in! If we have been forgetful of Thy presence, and have failed to trust Thee as an honored guest, forgive us our sin and neglect. Accept, we pray Thee, the purest and sincerest affection our hearts can offer, and bestow upon us, in turn, unworthy though we be, the riches of Thy grace, and the joy of fellowship with Thee, for Thy Name's sake! Amen.

◆ ◆

A Reliable Heart Cure.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

Current Literature

Any book reviewed in these columns (except "net" books) will be sent postpaid by the Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, on receipt of the published price. For "net" books, add ten per cent for postage.

REAL SALVATION AND WHOLE-HEARTED SERVICE. By R. A. Torrey. Fleming H. Revell Company. Price $1.00 net.

A volume of sermons delivered by Mr. Torrey during his evangelistic work in England. They are by no means models of scriptural exegesis, nor of systematic theology. They are not intended to be anything of that kind. They are pervaded, however, by an earnest evangelistic spirit, deal with practical questions relating to sin and salvation, and abound in homely but effective illustrations. Mr. Torrey, like Mr. Moody, has had large experience in evangelistic work, and his sermons abound in personal illustrations which are always interesting and which serve well to enforce the truth. If one cannot always agree with the author's scriptural expositions he can but admire the evident sincerity and earnest zeal for the salvation of men which are manifest throughout the work. Any evangelical preacher will find vastly more to commend in the book than to reject, and no one is likely to read the book without feeling himself spiritually quickened by these sermons which have been blessed of God to the salvation of many.

◆

BIENNIAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF FISHERIES AND GAME FOR INDIANA. By Z. T. Sweeney, Commissioner. 1903-4.

This is a handsomely bound and printed and beautifully illustrated volume of over 700 pages, embracing a very thorough discussion of the fish, game and birds of the state of Indiana. It is the second volume issued by Fish Commissioner Sweeney. We thought the first one had reached the summit of perfection in that line, but the second volume seems to exceed it. Any one interested in the subject of fish, game or birds will find much to interest him in this handsome volume. The author is doing much in these volumes and by his other duties as fish commissioner to awaken a deep interest on the part of the people of his state in the subject of fish, game and birds. Many of the splendid illustrations of outings, exhibiting the fisherman in the act of drawing the prize from the water, are enough to make an old fisherman feel like forsaking his office, and flying to the lakes or streams for a good day's fishing. We congratulate the author on the splendid volumes he has issued, unequaled by anything of the kind we have seen, and the state of Indiana on having one so competent to look after this great interest of the commonwealth, who can do so con amore.

◆

WHO MADE THE WORLD? By Louis Wm. Klinker, with introduction by Professor Clinton Lockhart, LL.D. Perry, Ia. C. Durant Jones & Co. Price 25cts.

We supposed this momentous question was answered sufficiently in Genesis 1:1, but our author has undertaken to prove "the harmony of science with the Bible." In the performance of this task he resorts to poetry as well as prose. We have no doubt the reader will conclude after finishing this work that there is no reason to doubt the statement of Genesis concerning the author of the world, nor the conclusion of science as to how he brought it into being.

SUMMER EXCURSIONS
-VIA-
BIG FOUR
From St. Louis
$ 7.65 INDIANAPOLIS AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale June 20, 21, 22, 23
$ 18.50 NIAGARA FALLS AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale June 18, 19, 20
$ 19.85 TORONTO, ONT. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale June 19, 20, 22, 23
$24.35 Asbury Park, N.J. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale June 29, 30, July 1, 2
$ 9.25 HAMILTON, O. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale June 30, July 1
$ 21.25 BALTIMORE, MD. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale July 2 3, 4
$ 19.25 Chautauqua, N.Y. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale July 7, 28
$ 18.50 BUFFALO, N. Y. AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale July 8, 9, 10
$15.00 PITTSBURG, PA. AND RETUNN
Tickets on sale August 18 and 19
$22.00 PHILADELPHIA AND RETURN
Tickets on Sale Sept. 13, 14, 15
For particulars call at City Ticket Office.
BROADWAY AND CHESTNUT
or Address C. L. HILLEARY, A. G. P. A.
St. Louis, Mo.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE
Two Trains Daily from each city
Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars
For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt. Louisville, Ky.

The Only Strictly First-Class Church Hymnal
Published by the Disciples of Christ
Gloria in Excelsis
The superior of any hymnal now in the market. A postal card will bring full information.
Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

People's Forum.

A Wider Ministry.

Editor, Christian-Evangelist: It has occurred to me that with the growing intellectual and spiritual demands of our people, it will be more and more necessary to have a widely equipped ministry and that this can be best secured by those who feel so drawn, to enter into lines of specialism. We could in this way greatly strengthen our work.

The regular church service should be kept free from themes that are merely educational and be devoted to the preaching of the wondrous gospel.

There are questions of history, psychology, science, sociology and art, to name no more, that ought to be discussed, ably, before our churches, and it seems that there will be a growing demand for them.

J. M. Caldwell.

[When we come to the idea, as we will sooner or later, that the church is not a Sunday affair, but a divine enterprise doing business seven days in the week, with its buildings thrown open continually for various kinds of meetings relating to and seeking to promote the welfare of the community, then we can have lectures and teaching on the various topics named, and others, and we shall have men equipped for these different kinds of a wider ministry.—Editor.]

❁ ❁

Organization Before Union.

The Editor, Christian-Evangelist: All seem to agree that we should merge with our Baptist brethren; that such action would accord with both revelation and reason, and greatly promote the cause of Christ. But how is this to be accomplished? Neither order has any general organization, or authority, which can "unite" with any body, or bind the local churches to do so. It is obvious that some kind of organization among ourselves, which shall include a majority of our churches, is essential as a first step toward union.

Much has been accomplished along this line. We have many city, county and state organizations. Our various "boards" could be consolidated. An efficient organization, both local and general, could soon be evolved. This must be done before we can serve as a "holding company," which shall absorb other religious bodies.

Note well that this question of "union" deals with churches, or groups of churches, and not with individuals. Spiritually all Christians are united. Every baptized believer is a member of the church of Christ. As its object is greater efficiency in the practical work of converting the world, it deals mostly with material things; with ways and means of doing the best work.

The only "Article of Faith" acceptable to all is, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The individual Christian, standing firmly "on this rock" of the faith, must have absolute freedom of belief, and speech, on all other questions. And the local congregation must have freedom of action in all purely local affairs. "Union" will never be possible on any other basis.

The lords of the world, spiritual and temporal, tried for centuries, with fire and sword, to achieve doctrinal unity. They failed utterly. It is worse than useless to waste effort along that line.

The belief that kings, or priests, rule by "divine right" is no longer current among enlightened people. The day of autocracy is nearly done. The czar and the pope belong to "a disappearing brotherhood." Authority in church government, as in political rule, is "justly derived from the consent of the governed." But it is none the less necessary in the practical work of the church. We must consent to some form of government or the result is anarchy.

It is plain that the Christian world can never be merged on the extreme congregational plan. The idea of "uniting" many thousands of independent congregations, with great educational and property interests, into "one body," which shall have neither head, hands nor feet, no authority, legislative or executive, anywhere, must have originated in Dublin or Cork. Perhaps some Irish brother can explain how this can be done.

The first thing in order to the much discussed and desired "Christian union" is to pull the "anti-organization" beam out of our own eye, and get our own churches together. We are open to the charge, "They would unite others, themselves they can not unite."

F. M. Wiley.

Indianapolis, Ind.

[The Editor is neither from Cork nor Dublin, but being the grandson of an Irishman he ventures to "explain":

1. That governmental unity, by an ecclesiasticism, has failed quite as distinctly as efforts to "achieve doctrinal unity."

2. We know of no "anti-organization beam" in the eyes of any of us who believe in and are seeking to promote Christian union. If our brother refers to the anti-missionary society brethren, the exhortation is all right, but it does not reach them through this medium.

3. We need no ecclesiastical organizations in order to union. They are the greatest hindrances to union. They mean heresy trials and lording over God's heritage. The congregational polity is the only one, so far as we can see, that makes Christian union practicable. There are no "educational and property interests" that can not be cared for by religious bodies using the congregational polity.—Editor.]

❁ ❁

Remission of Sins.

There is a ridiculous side to these debates about the remission of sins. One says they were all forgiven when Christ died; another that they are not forgiven until one is immersed; another thinks they are forgiven when one surrenders the heart to God. Just think of the magnitude of the issues involved! The eternal welfare of a human soul is at stake and then men are left to guess about the conditions of salvation!

Christ is said to be living, almighty, Head of the church and Savior of men. One Christian editor contends that he is present in the church. Is it not marvelous that he does not set this all important matter at rest by furnishing the correct interpretation to the scriptures? These preachers and editors are trying hard to supply this neglect on the part of the Head of the church.

Brethren, there are theories of religon which do not harmonize with the facts of human nature and experience. One of these misfit theories is that the New Testament contains a system of theology and a code of religious regulations furnished by God and to be handed down as an infallible authority to all men in all ages since the New Testament was written. The New Testament contains a record of a certain phase of religious development, with many important facts and spiritual truths.

This record shows that even apostles were not uniform in the words with which they set forth the great fact of God's forgiving the sins of men. The Acts and the Appendix to Mark do connect the remission of sins with baptism, but it is certain that Paul held to the great doctrine of justification by faith. It is the error of regarding the Bible as a code that has split the Protestant world into innumerable debating clubs.

F. M. Cummings.

Sedan, Kansas.

[1. Our critic first thinks it strange and "ridiculous" that some of our readers do not agree in the statements as to when remission of sins is obtained, and winds up by saying the apostles differed on the same subject!

2. He speaks of "the magnitude of the issues involved"—that is, the precise time when God grants remission! It isn't whether God forgives, or whether justification is by faith, that is being discussed; but whether pardon, or the assurance of it, precedes or succeeds baptism. That doesn't involve "the eternal welfare of a human soul." God doesn't make our salvation rest on a correct theology.

3. He thinks it "marvelous" that if Christ is in the church he does not settle these theological questions. Isn't he in the church, and has he seen proper to settle all of these questions so as to avoid human investigation and difference of opinion? He is leading his followers into clearer views of truth, by his Spirit, but he does not guarantee infallibility in our judgments.

4. We are not surprised that our brother finds conflicting views among the apostles after reading this sentence:

"The Acts and the Appendix to Mark do connect the remission of sins with baptism, but it is certain that Paul held to the great doctrine of justification by faith." One who has not learned that connecting remission of sins with baptism is in perfect harmony with "the great doctrine of justification by faith" is liable to find confusion in the New Testament teaching. The harmonization consists simply in the recognition of baptism as an expression of faith and not as a work of law.—Editor]

❁ ❁

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

DIVINITY SCHOOL
—OF—
HARVARD UNIVERSITY
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
AN UNDENOMINATIONAL SCHOOL
OF THEOLOGY.
Announcement for 1905-06, Now Ready.

The Gold and the Years.

By MAY GRIGGS VAN VOORHIS.

YES, John, I'm back from my wild west days,
Thank God, I'm here fer to stay;
An' a snug little fortune in yellow gold
In my wallet is tucked away.
I grubbed it out in those ten long years
'Neath the moan o' the western pine;
But I bartered the gold o' the years that are fled
While I hunted the gold o' the mine.

How I longed fer a sight o' my babies sweet—
Little Lizzie was three years old;
An' Jim but a babe in the cradle there
When I went on my search fer gold.
I'm mighty proud o' my sweet young lass,
An' the boy is sturdy an' fine;
But I lost the gold from my babies' heads
While I hunted the gold o' the mine.

How often I looked at that picture there
O' my wife with her fair young face;
An' thought o' the time when I'd see again
Her smile an' her winsome grace;
But sorrow has furrowed her girlish bloom
With many a careworn line;
Ah, the light was stole from my young wife's eyes
That shines in the gold o' the mine!

But, John, I've brought her a fortune grand,
An' I'll use it in years to come,
To buy her robes that a queen might wear,
An' to build her a mansion home.
But would that the wealth that we have to-day,
The clothes an' the mansion fine,
Could bring us the gold o' the years that are fled,
That we lost for the gold o' the mine.

❀ ❀

"For Bread, a Stone"

The Longing for the Gospel Sometimes Meets a Strange Response

[By ELSIE DUNCAN YALE]

"What a friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!"

"For the land sakes, Naomi, ain't you done yet?"

Naomi wrung out her mop, and again applied it vigorously to the unpainted floor of the kitchen.

"Pretty near, mother," she called cheerily. "Bobby, you get out from under foot, child. Go out and sit on the doorstep, there's a good boy, and I'll give you a doughnut. No, I said when I got through, not now. If you pester me, you won't get it at all."

"Naomi," quavered the voice from the adjoining room, "you don't think it'll rain termorrer, do you?"

Naomi rested on her mop handle a moment, and wiped her flushed face with her blue checked apron.

"No, indeed," she answered with conviction. "The sky's as clear as a bell. It'll be reg'lar hayin' weather termorrer. I shouldn't be surprised if John Simmons finished his hayin', instid of goin' ter church. 'Twouldn't be the first time. So don't you do any frettin' about the weather, for it'll be a fine day. Now, when I git done this floor, I'm goin' to press your dress. The irons are on heatin' now."

She resumed her work and her song:

"Are we weak and heavy laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?
Precious Saviour, still our refuge,
Take it to the Lord in prayer."

At length she finished her work, and wrung her mop out, and hung it in the woodshed.

"You've been a good boy, Bobby," she said approvingly, as she patted his tow head, "an' I'll get your doughnut for you, but mind, you're to eat it out there, an' not make crumbs on the floor here."

The doughnut duly produced, she opened the door into the bedroom.

"Now, mother," she said to the bent little woman in the chintz covered rocker, "I'm goin' to tackle your bunnit first. I always said I'd make a good milliner, an' you won't know your hat when I get done with it."

She unlocked the closet door, and took down a bandbox, from which she carefully lifted a black bonnet. Holding it in one hand, she critically surveyed it.

"That ain't so bad," she observed hopefully. "The poppies do look kinder limp, an' the ribbon is a mite stringy, but I'll have a fash'nable hat out of it yet. I think," she continued, still scrutinizing the dejected bonnet, "I'll take the ribbon off mine for strings."

The old woman raised her thin hands in vehement protest.

"No! no," she said earnestly. "I ain't goin' ter have you spoil your hat."

Naomi laughed as she picked up the scissors. "Who's talkin' about spoilin' hats? I ain't goin' ter church termorrer in a fine carriage with two horses, an' you are. I'm goin' to press this ribbon an' cut it in two for strings. Then I can easy rip it off again, an' sew it on mine, an' it'll never show a mite. There you are. That's good ribbon, if it is a bit mussed. Now, do you want to know how I'm goin' to fix the neck of your dress? Well, look here." She opened the bureau drawer and took out a little drees of sheer material, the only fine article which Bobby's scanty ette had boasted. "I'm goin' to rip the lace off this an' sew it in the neck of your black dress. It'll sorter trim it up. Now I'll go press your strings, for I know the irons are hot."

Presently from the kitchen came the sound of cheerful song, accompanied by the thud of an iron:

"Have we trials and temptations,
Is there trouble anywhere?
We should never be discouraged;
Take it to the Lord in prayer."

The old woman in the bedroom closed her eyes to listen, and then opened them to glance anxiously out of the window.

"O Lord, please don't let it rain termorrer, the first time I've been to church for ten years," she breathed fervently.

In the sultry August afternoon already the hills across the river were growing purple, and the shadows over the meadows were lengthening. A drove of cattle leisurely passed, pausing to browse by the roadside. In the afternoon stillness the calls of the haymakers could be distinctly heard, and the fragrance of new-mown hay floated in. The old woman's gaze anxiously wandered from the clear, cloudless sky, across the fields dotted with haystacks, to the simmering green river at the foot of the range of hills.

She drew a breath of relief. "Thank the Lord, it's goin' to be clear," she murmured devoutly.

"Now, mother," exclaimed Naomi, as she entered the room with the black ribbon in her hand. "That looks just as fresh as if it had just come out of the store, don't it? Now you see what a stylish-looking bunnit I'll fix you. That straw is so faded, I've a notion to shoe-black it to freshen it up."

She threaded a needle and went to work. The old woman watched her with interest, and after a while her gaze again wandered out of the window.

The sun had begun to sink behind a gorgeous bank of red and gold. The creaking hay wagons passed slowly up the road, and the cattle lowed in the barnyard.

She leaned back in her chair with a happy smile. "I've dreamed about goin' ter church so long, an' now it's really comin' true. Ain't the Lord good to us, Naomi?"

As the first rays of the morning sun streamed into the little bedroom, they rested upon a wrinkled face suffused with smiles.

"Oh, Naomi," called a voice tremulous with joy, "it's clear, an' I can go!"

Naomi paused a moment in her struggles with the kitchen fire, coughing as the smoke puffed in her face.

"Ain't that what I've been sayin' all along? Of course it's clear!" she replied gayly. "Now you just lie still there, till I get breakfast, an' then I'll come an' dress you. You must eat a good breakfast, an' I'll make some coffee an' fry some bacon for you."

She bustled about, her clean, stiffly starched wrapper rustling with every movement, and her voice upraised in her wonted cheerful song:

"Are we weak and heavy laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?
Precious Saviour, still our refuge,
Take it to the Lord in prayer."

"Now, mother," she exclaimed later, when breakfast was over, and the dishes washed, "I'll get your things out, and then I'll dress you."

She first laid the well-worn black cashmere on the bed, then the shabby bonnet with its shoe-blacked crown and ironed strings.

"They look pretty good, don't they, mother? It's great what a little bit of pressin' will do for things. That cashmere looks fine, an' you'd think the bunnit strings was new. I'll lend you my gold pin for your neck, an' I've even got cologne for your handkerchief. Don't you remember the bottle I got a year ago Christmas, on the tree at the church? Now we'll go easy, so you won't get tired, an' I'll fix you up as fine as any lady there."

It was not an easy task, for the old woman's limbs were stiff and cramped, but at last the labor of dressing her was accomplished, and Naomi in triumph set her in the chintz rocker.

"Bobby," she called enthusiastically, "come see grandma, how fine she looks! My, mother, it just does my heart good to see you! Pa used to say you were the best looking girl anywhere round, an' you ain't lost it all yet, by a good sight." She smoothed out the black dress, and re-tied the bonnet strings. "Now don't you worry about takin' the ribbon from my hat, for I can sew it together as good as new. Let me button your glove for you. It's tight, ain't it? Well, we'll leave the last button undone, it'll never show. Don't forget your handkerchief. Just smell it! Ain't that good? Oh, here comes your carriage now."

The carriage with its two horses drew up at the gate, and the young girl who sat alone upon the back seat waved her fluffy white parasol at Naomi.

"Is your mother ready," she called, "or am I too early?"

"Oh, she's all ready," replied Naomi with alacrity, "I didn't want to keep you waitin' a moment. It's so good of you to take her. The Lord'll thank you for it; I can't."

The young girl smiled. "Oh, I'll enjoy taking her as much as she'll enjoy going," she answered cordially. "Now, if she's ready John can bring her out. I'll hold the reins while he goes."

It was a light task to carry the slight, shrunken little woman down the narrow path and set her gently on the carriage cushions. The coachman sprang in, lightly touched the horses with the whip, and they were off, Naomi waving a farewell with her apron, while the cologne-scented handkerchief signaled a reply.

Naomi turned from the doorway as the carriage receded from sight. "My, but she was pleased!" she said to herself. "Now I'm goin' to get a good dinner for her. Mebbe it was extravagant, but this is what you call a regular red-letter day."

Two hours later as she carefully basted the chicken she heard the sound of wheels, and hurried out to meet the carriage.

"I'm afraid your mother's very tired," said Miss Lloyd, in some concern, "for it was warm in church and we had a long service."

"I guess not," replied the daughter, at the same time anxiously scanning the tired, drawn face. "I'll put her right to bed and she'll get rested up all right, won't you, mother?"

The burly coachman again carried the frail little woman in and carefully laid her upon the sitting-room lounge. Naomi hurried to the gate again.

"Here's a bunch of sweet peas I picked for you while you was gone, an' I want to thank you so much for takin' mother. I know it's done her lots of good, for she's been lottin' on it ever since you said you'd take her," she said gratefully.

The carriage drove away, and Naomi returned to the house, from the open door of which came the aroma of roasting chicken.

Vitalize Your HAIR!

Don't let your hair fall out! Don't let Dandruff, scalp poisons and germs eat into the vitals of the roots which give it life! Don't let the coloring pigments lose their vitality for want of proper nourisment and no longer feed the hair with coloring fluids. DON'T BE BALD! DON'T BE GRAY!

Agents Wanted

NEGLECT IS THE THIEF OF THE HAIR that steals away its beauty ere you are aware. Take time by the forelock before he robs you of yours. Don't wait until you need a wig or toupee to cover the bald spots; don't wait until you must use a switch or a false front to hide the gaps neglect has caused. Don't wait until you require a filthy and injurious dye to secure a semblance to its own natural color.

SWISS HAIR VITALIZER gives new life, energy and vitality to the scalp and hair roots, as we give strength and health to the blood and body, by direct nourishment. It is meat and drink to the starving, suffering roots, feeding them through the pores, the thousand tiny mouths of the scalp, and is digested in the thousands of little hair follicles, the stomachs of the roots, each supporting its individual life-cell. Swiss Hair Vitalizer is a food rich in that natural life and color-giving oil which the hair roots demand and crave, which is to them as the gastric juices are to the stomach and without which

THE HAIR DECAYS AND DIES.

Swiss Hair Vitalizer prevents and stops the hair from falling out, cures baldness where there is still a spark of life in the hair-cells, cures and prevents Dandruff and scalp diseases which destroy its life, makes the hair long, thick, luxuriant, soft, glossy and of a natural color, no matter how thin, straggly and wiry it was before using. It does not stain the scalp and is guaranteed to contain nothing that can in any way injure the finest head of hair or the tenderest scalp. It is NOT a DYE or stain, but restores color by a restoration of full vitality.

FULL SIZE $1.00 BOTTLE SENT FREE FOR TRIAL.

We want you to try it, to learn for yourself that in this wonderful Swiss hair treatment has been found that which has been the desire of the people for ages and we will pay the cost of the trial. A fair test for four weeks' time and a just verdict is all we ask. If you like it and find it does the work we claim, order more and thereby give us our chance for profit. If not, no harm is done. We know the hair, know its diseases, know our treatment and will take this chance. We do not send a small vial, containing about a thimble-full and of no practical value, but a full size ten-ounce bottle, enough for four weeks' use, selling regularly at the drug stores for One Dollar Each. It is too heavy to go by mail and must go by Express. Send us 25 cents, to guarantee express charges, and this full size bottle will be promptly sent you free, Express Charges PREPAID. Nothing to pay on receipt or later. No other hair treatment has been or can be so offered. Don't wait until the roots are dead or dying or the coloring pigments dry or drying, but send to-day for this one dollar bottle free on trial. Only one free bottle sent to a family and only to those who have never before used this remedy. Address, immediately,

SWISS REMEDY CO., 67 Lincoln Ave., CHICAGO

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

"Well, mother," she exclaimed radiantly, as she entered the house, "I guess you had a fine time, didn't you?"

There was a moment's pause, and then a hesitating "Yes."

Naomi, who had stooped to untie the bonnet strings, stopped short in surprise.

"Why, mother," she said in alarm, "what has happened? Did the horses go too fast and frighten you, or what? Let me get you to bed as quick as I can, for you're worn out. I oughtn't to have let you go," she added in self-reproach.

Taking her mother in her strong arms, she tenderly lifted her from the lounge and carried her into the bedroom. There she quickly made her ready for bed, and when at length the gray head was laid upon the pillow, the old woman buried her face in the pillows, and gave way to uncontrollable weeping.

Naomi in surprise dropped the black dress upon the floor, and sprang to the bedside.

"Mother," she cried in dismay, "mother, speak to me! Tell me what's the matter!" She took the wasted form in her arms, and soothed her and petted her, as if the old woman were but a child. "Don't cry, mother," she entreated, the tears rising to her own eyes, "but tell me what happened."

Gradually the sobs ceased, and Naomi, holding fast to the thin hand, listened to the pitiable story.

It had been the Rev. J. Forsyth Blair's first sermon in the church. He was a young man and a clever one, and as he arranged his necktie that morning before the mirror, prior to starting for church, he had set forth his views to his young wife. "You see, Edith," he explained, as he laid down the military brushes, "it's my first Sunday here, as regular minister, and I want to make a good impression. It isn't like an ordinary country place, but there are lots of summer residents from the city. If I should take with them, it might lead to another call, who knows?" And his bride was greatly impressed with the force of his remarks.

His sermon, that August Sunday morning, was a brilliant dissertation upon the relation of capital and labor. He viewed the subject impartially from either side, and displayed a remarkable knowledge of political economy, which had been one of his favorite studies at college. His manner was pleasing, his words well-chosen, and his ideas original. The "summer residents" whom he had especially in mind, listened with approbation and interest.

Normal Bible Studies

For Teachers, Classes Institutes and Assemblies

The
Normal Instructor
By W. W. DOWLING

In Seven Parts as Follows:
I.—The Book
II.—The Christ III.—The Church
IV.—The Land V.—The Institutions
VI.—The History VII.—The People

Each Part Bound Separately In Strong Manila Covers : :

PRICE:
15c. per Copy. $1.50 per Dozen

Christian Publishing Co.
St. Louis, Missouri

But in one of the rear pews, by the side of a fair-haired girl in white, sat a shabby, bent figure in black, who gazed at him with an air of bewilderment. Her eye had brightened as he announced a familiar hymn before the sermon, but the tune was new and strange, and she tried in vain to follow it. She listened in wonderment to the stories of strikes and syndicates, and her eyes were fixed upon the preacher in a dumb despair. It had been ten long, weary years, full of pain and hardship, since she had sat in the church, and over and over during that time she had said to herself: "Oh, if I only could git to church and hear a real good sermon, it'd do me lots of good." And when the young girl by her side had offered to take her, she could scarcely realize that the dream of ten years was really to come true.

"I hope I'll hear somethin' real good," she said to herself, "somethin' that'll chirk me up and help me bear the pain." As she had listened to the discourse in bewilderment, she cheered herself with the thought that it was just a preamble. "I guess he'll work in some good gospel at the end," she thought hopefully, but gradually the hope faded, and as she bowed her head for the benediction, great tears rolled down her wrinkled cheeks.

"Oh, Naomi," she sobbed, as her tears flowed afresh, "I'd been lottin' on it so! To go to church again an' hear a good gospel sermon, so I'd just get help to bear all the aches and pains. I stayed awake last night prayin' that it wouldn't rain to-day, so's I could go. And then to think I couldn't understand the sermon—all about strikes an' things. He meant well, I know, but I guess church isn't for poor old women like me any more."

Naomi's eyes were wet as she smoothed back the scanty gray hair and tenderly kissed the wrinkled forehead.

"There, there, mother, don't cry!" she said gently, as if soothing a child. "I'm goin' to get your dinner now, an' I've got a surprise for you. Nice roast chicken! Now, you lie still an' rest, an' don't you cry no more."

The old woman obediently dried her eyes and lay back upon her pillows. She could in imagination again see the church and hear the dear old familiar hymns, sung to the new tunes which she could not follow. Then came the incomprehensible sermon, which she had tried in vain to understand.

The tears welled up in her eyes again, but at that moment she heard Naomi's voice in the kitchen, mingled with the hissing of gravy in the roasting pan:

"What a friend we have in Jesus,
  All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry—

Bobby, you mustn't touch any of that. Go stay by grandma till I get dinner—

"Everything to God in prayer!

"O, what peace we often forfeit,
  O, what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
  Everything to God in prayer!"

The old woman wiped her eyes, and a smile once more came over her wrinkled face.

"That's true, anyway," she said aloud; "and thank the Lord for that."—Congregationalist.

For the Busy Minister
A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE
Minister's Pastoral Record and Memorandum.
FITS VEST-POCKET.
Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

The Round Table

A NEW WEEKLY FOR GIRLS AND BOYS

EDITORS { W. W. DOWLING, Editor Our Young Folks.
METTA A. DOWLING, Editor The Young Evangelist.

This New Paper is issued weekly and consists of eight pages of three columns each, printed on fine book paper, bran-new type, in the best style of the art, and as far as appearance is concerned, will not suffer in comparison with any similar paper in the land.

For Whom Intended. THE ROUND TABLE is a paper for wide-awake, bright-eyed Boys and Girls in their "early teens," who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist and not quite far enough along in years and in their tastes and acquirements to be greatly interested in the material which goes into the columns of Our Young Folks, which is intended for young men and women who are engaged in Bible Study and Christian Work, especially along Sunday-school and Endeavor lines.

Its Contents. THE ROUND TABLE is quite distinctly a "Story Paper," five of its eight pages will usually be occupied with Serial and Shorter Stories, always pure in tone and instructive in character, with fine illustrations. The remaining pages will be filled with Table Talks on a great variety of themes; Odds and Ends of useful information; Outlines of the Sunday-school Lessons and Endeavor Topics; A Puzzle Drawer full of Riddles, Charades and Problems, to exercise the wits of young readers, and in each issue a sufficient amount of Pepper and Spice to keep its readers awake and smooth out any wrinkles that may have a tendency to gather in their faces.

Subscription Price. One copy, one year, 50 cents; in clubs of five, to one address, 40 cents each; in clubs of ten or more to one address, 36 cents each. Quarterly subscriptions at proportional rates.

Address, Christian Publishing Company,
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.
SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.
National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.
National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.
United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—
F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

BEST THING ON WHEELS.
FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS
ON THE
Henderson Route
(ALL TRAINS)
BETWEEN
ST. LOUIS
LOUISVILLE
AND KENTUCKY POINTS.
SPECIAL RATES.
One=Way Colonist
AND
Round=Trip Homeseekers

When you travel, why not be comfortable? The up-to-date equipment, the safe and convenient train schedules offered by the HENDERSON ROUTE and the direct connections made in St. Louis Union Station with all trains from the West and Southwest solves the problem.

If you contemplate a trip, take the time to write us.

Insist on your ticket reading via St. Louis and the Henderson Route. This will insure you comfort in travel.

ASK US FOR RATES.

F. G. CUNNINGHAM, - - T. P. Agt.
W. C. LINDSAY, - - - G. Agent.
206 N. Broadway, ST. LOUIS.

We manufacture
CHURCH and SCHOOL
Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.
I. E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

The Advance Society.

The other day I was sitting out on the porch with Felix. I was thinking about the Advance Society, and Felix was rubbing some of his hairs off on my legs, for he always has more hair than he wants to keep. I am nearly always keeping some for him. I want to tell you something strange: One day last summer I received a letter from a lady who said I ought not to refer to dogs in such a way as to show whether they were gentlemen or ladies, but they should be regarded as pure dog, at least in literature. She said if she showed the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST to a friend to represent our religious belief, and that friend turned to "With the Children" and saw some reference to a dog as if it were not a flower, or a stick of candy, what impression would that friend get of our religion? Last summer I felt a little bad about the letter, because nobody likes to be criticised. But I've waited all this time, and that lady who was so particular about dogs, has never sent a penny to our orphan or our missionary, so I am taking courage to say that Felix is no lady cat. It would be impossible to have the least acquaintance with Felix—I care not how slight your knowledge of the animal kingdom may be—and think of him as other than a self-respecting, dignified, old-gold gentleman with rings on his tail, a fair show of whiskers and full of hair.

Well, as I said, I was with Felix, thinking about the Advance Society. I got to wondering what states had helped most on our orphan and our missionary. Of course I knew Missouri led both lists. I went to get my book to see about it, and while I went, I got to thinking of something else. It was this: All the money that is sent for Charlie and Drusie is sent just because boys and girls want to send it. Do you ever think of that? Nobody is pledged to give anything; nobody has promised a certain amount. Nobody has to get up before you and say, "Brethren, if we are not very careful, we will not meet our apportionment this year!" Nobody writes to me to say, "Sorry I couldn't help in the work, but there were so many other causes to contribute to that—that—"

No, sir! People send money for Charlie and Drusie because they want to; if they don't want to, they are not driven and harassed and dragged and dredged to send. And they don't send, bless their hearts! But how many people do you think have voluntarily forwarded contributions to the Av. S. for our orphan and our missionary—people that did it from choice, because that was what they wanted to do, just as you would take somebody for a drive because you felt it an actual pleasure? Would you think 100 persons could be found who just sat down and sent money to a cause, when there was no one personally to ask them to do it? Well, would you think persons would have the cause of orphans and missions that much at heart? As a matter of fact, I have received, in all, for Charlie and for Drusie, 347 different contributions! It is true that some are as low as two cents. But one person actually sent five dollars! I have letters from little children who have earned what they sent by hard work. I have letters from women who are poor and wish they had more to give, from invalids, from day laborers, from wash-women, from "drummers," from business men, from preachers, from Sunday-school classes, from a basket-dinner collection, from Japan and Canada, and, what is about as sweet as anything I know, from orphans!

So I got my book, and took it out to Felix, and turned to the names of those who had contributed. As I supposed, Missouri has given most to both causes. You say, that's because the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is printed in Missouri. Maybe that's so, although it's pretty hard to beat Missouri. Taking up our missionary cause, I find a tie between Illinois and Kansas for the second place; then comes Kentucky; then a tie between Colorado, Tennessee, Indiana, Arkansas and Florida; then a tie between Iowa and Nebraska; then come Michigan, Oklahoma, Idaho, Ohio, New York and Mississippi. Let us now turn to our orphan list. Not counting grand old Missouri (I was born in Missouri), the first on the list is Kansas. Mighty close to Kansas comes Illinois, and close to it follows Iowa; then a tie between Kentucky and Michigan, with Oklahoma almost treading on their heels; a tie between Indiana and Oregon; Washington; a tie between Colorado, Tennessee, South Dakota, Ohio and Arkansas; a tie between Indian Territory and Idaho; a tie between Texas, California, England, Montana and New York; then Canada, Japan, and Florida.

I have recently heard from Charlie. He doesn't want to spend all summer on a vacation. He would enjoy country life very much, but he wants to work at something and be able to earn some money. I think about a month on the farm and with me is all he will be willing to spend just visiting. I like that, don't you? It shows that there's something in our boy—something to build on; not many boys of 13, with ever so many legs, who want to be working in the summer time, when they could have a holiday till school comes. What I'm afraid is, that he won't find anything to do. Of course with only one leg, there are not many hard-work jobs that he can undertake. I hope somebody may find some mental work for him. If you don't think mental work is hard, just sit down and write like I am writing now.

Heard from our missionary: "South Chih-li Mission, Tientsin, North China: I have acknowledged the $10.50 Mexican (since then I've sent her $10.85), but it does take a very long time for letters to pass between us and the homeland; usually it is eight weeks before an answer can be received. I do appreciate the draft from the dear members of the Advance Society. God bless them and reward them! And he will, I am sure. Their kind wishes and gifts touch my heart very deeply. I praise God for raising up such dear helpers for me in this work in dark South Chih-li, and I trust they pray for me daily. May they find it blessed to be 'Jehovah's Remembrancers.' The Advance Society can never know how much their messages of good cheer mean to me out here. Last week I received, all at the same time, your letter and one from mother, and one from my old Louisville Sunday-school class; my room-mate also received several letters. Our hearts were so full of praise, as we read the words of cheer, and heard of the revivals in both our home cities, that we just had to get on our knees and praise the Lord out loud. Our weather has been delightful. All winter I took my half hour's exercise around the mission (the compound) twice every day, except when we had one big snow, and a few rainy days. Since we came, there has been only one rain worth speaking of; the rainy season of the year is now beginning. Our daily life is so crowded that sometimes we can hardly find time to write to the loved ones in our immediate families."

I am glad to announce that I am ena-

Make Ice Cream in ten minutes
With
Jell-O
Ice Cream Powder
Everything but the ice and milk in the package Does not have to be cooked, sweetened or flavored. One package makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream you ever ate. Costs very little. Quality the highest. Pure and wholesome. Received Highest Award, GOLD MEDAL, at the St Louis Exposition, 1904. If your grocer can't supply you send 25c. for 2 packages. Four kinds, Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Send for new illustrated Recipe Book issued April 15th, 1905 Address, The Genesee Pure Food Co, Le Roy, N Y.

Man Preparing for Other Worlds
By WM. T. MOORE, M. A., LL. D.
Or the Spiritual Man's Conflict and Final Victory : :
A Story of Man in the Light of the Bible, Science and Experience : : : :
Cloth, 500 Pages, $2.00
VERDICTS OF THOSE WHO HAVE READ THIS GREAT BOOK
His best book . . . It is the book of the gospel—the gospel for the man in the street.—DR. JAS. HASTINGS, Editor of Dictionary of the Bible.
All who read the book will be benefited thereby. It breathes a sweet, pure spirit and will certainly do much good.—D. R. DUNGAN.
It is a book for the age, by one who is alive to the needs of the age and the great problems that confront the leaders of the church.—J. J. MORGAN.
It is the ripest thought and matured conviction of a veteran whose ministry as a preacher and writer among the churches of Christ has been conspicuous. It bears the unmistakable marks of wide reading, earnest thinking and catholic sympathies.—CHRISTIAN STANDARD.
It has been quite a help to me. It abounds in good suggestions and new applications.—WM. ROSS LLOYD.
It is a book of wide compass, depicting the spiritual history of man from his origin to his final destiny.—J. W. MCGARVEY.
It is the greatest book ever published by our brotherhood. At every reading it has had fresh charm for me. . . Send for it now! Now!! Not by and by, and you will thank me for ten years to come.—JAS. SMALL.
Dr. Moore is the most picturesque figure of this present religious reformation, one of its profoundest theologians and most charming writers. Of all his numerous and valuable contributions to church literature this is his masterpiece.—GEO. L. SNIVELY.
Published by
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

bled to send Drusie another draft this week; my friend, Geo. W. Dawson, handed me $3, which I divided between her and Charlie; my friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marstellar, of Albany, Mo., sent me a dollar along time ago, and a Plattsburg lady, another dollar, just lately. Bro. Simpson Ely, another personal friend, writes: "I herewith hand you draft for $2; twenty-five cents for Charlie, the rest for Drusie. Heaven bless the good work of the Advance Society. When my Stockton meeting closes, I expect to join Mrs. Ely and Lois at Colorado Springs. I trust Lois is faithfully keeping up the Advance Society rules." (Lois is one of our Honor Listers. I have received the eighth and ninth quarterly reports of some one near Rich Hill; no name in the document. Whose is it?)

Here comes Harry Buckley again. He was among the first to help when our orphan was "little Joe." Still from Lawrenceburg, Ky., he writes: "Enclosed find $2, one each for our missionary and orphan. Also my first quarterly report, but it is not the first attempt, by any means. It is easy to keep the five rules when you get in the habit, but, etc.! I persuaded three girls in the Sunday-school to begin with me. They started out bravely, but fell by the wayside." (I trust the fowls of the air will not devour them!) Mrs. Stokes, Carthage, Ill.: "I have read The Christian more than thirty years. I am very much interested in the Advance Society, and especially in its mascots, Charlie and Drusie. I send $2 for their respective needs. I have in mind the wonderful good that is being done by Dr. Shepardson, the 'wheelcar evangelist' and so think Charlie might be a mighty man for the cause of the Master." (Dr. Shepardson cannot walk, and travels in a wheel-chair. I wonder if Charlie ever thinks of being a preacher? Like Mrs. Stokes, I think there might be a great work for him in that field.) M. J. O'Dell, Lebanon, Mo., has just sent fifty cents for our orphan. I wish I could print all the names of gift-senders (the Latin for that is donors, but the "donor" always reminded me of something to eat), but if I printed all your names with the amount opposite, it would make such a dry page that nobody would care to read it, and they might skip the page next week, thinking the drought had continued. I can only repeat that, in time, every name will appear. People who sent before Christmas are still unpublished. There's a disadvantage about that, too. When their names come out, you may think all this money just rolled in and is jingling in my pocket, whereas it has been dribbling in for months. Flossie Davis, Des Moines, writes: "I have just finished reading 'A Week With the Woodneys,' and it stopped where somebody came and knocked on the door. Really, I don't feel in an angelic mood at all, for it to stop in such a place. I will have to wait a whole week to find out who came to call. Here is my third report. I've started in to win 'Adnah' sure." Nellie Sallee, Rutledge, Mo.: "Has 'The Runaways' ever come out in book form, and if so, where can I get it?" ("The Red Box Clew" is the only Advance Society story that has appeared in book form.) Mrs. Paulenia Aley, Coal City, Ind.: "Here is fifty cents for Charlie and fifty cents for Drusie. I love to read 'With the Children.' I am 63; I have an interest in children." Ethel Wallace, Hill City, Kansas: "I wish to join the Advance Society. I am interested in Charlie. I send twenty-five cents for Drusie; I am glad you have taken up the missionary work. I hope to be a missionary myself some day." Our faithful member, Bertha Beesley, invites Charlie to spend two or three weeks with her this summer; but if he finds work, I am afraid he won't have the pleasure of her acquaintance. I should be very proud for a real Advance Society member to spend a little time with the Advance Society orphan. Did I tell you that Bertha sent me her picture? I know you would all like to see it. Come around and I'll show it with pleasure. Dorothy M. Brown, Medaryville, Ind., planted a garden in April. "We thought it was spring here," she says, "but now it has snowed!" Emma S. Bland, Gower, Mo., presents me with a graduation card of Prairie Point school; her name is on the list. By the way, people keep thinking I am a preacher. Well, I'm not; never was. It makes me feel queer to get my envelopes addressed "Rev." I'm not "Rev." Now, that lady that wrote to me about dogs (see how it rankles!) may think I'm objecting to preachers. I like preachers and sometimes I like to hear them preach, and twice a week I hear them whether I like it or not, and say nothing about it; but as I was never a preacher, and don't know how it feels, I must request "kind friends" (by the way, did you ever notice how cold and unfriendly it sounds when a man speaks of "kind friends"?) I say, I wish kind friends would save "Rev." for those who like it. Honor List next month; and we have a good one to report. Hurrah for the boys and girls who are so manfully standing by history and poetry and quotations, to say nothing of reading the Bible every day!

Plattsburg, Mo.

WE WANT YOU
TO SELL OUR ORIENTAL MASSAGE CREAM
and ORIENTAL SHAMPOO.
They have a national reputation and will bring you in a large income. Full size samples and terms free.
THE ORIENTAL MFG. CO., Station C, Cleveland, O.

Every Large City in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory is Located on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.

This is a reason why you should travel and ship your freight via "The Katy" to Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Waco, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Shawnee, South McAlester and Muskogee.

Particulars about rates, time of trains, business chances in the Southwest or any other information you want will be cheerfully furnished on request.

GEORGE MORTON, General Passenger and Ticket Agent
W. B. GROSECLOSE, General Freight Agent
ST LOUIS, MO.

"THE ONLY WAY."
ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.
4—PERFECT TRAINS—4
MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.

CHICAGO & ALTON RY.
Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to
D. BOWES, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

❀ ❀

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

AULT & WIBORG
COMPANY
Manufacturers of Printing Inks,
CINCINNATI, NEW YORK,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.
This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison,	President
W. W. Dowling,	Vice-President
W. D. Cree,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann,	General Superintendent

Business Notes.

Not to have a Home Department now is to be "way back." We have all the needed equipment and gladly answer questions.

We have just received a pretty "Cradle Roll" reception card, and will guarantee its good effects in your school; 25 cents per dozen.

Do you need a good Sunday-school map for either class or school? We have them on either or both the Testaments at prices from $1.00 to $10.

The Attendance and Offering Cards, on which spaces are punched for punctuality and amount, are in good demand at one cent each. Try them.

We are offering the Lesson Commentary to those not using it at 75 cents for a while, as the present stock will end the issue for this year. Try it.

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

The circulation of the Christian-Evangelist is moving right along at a rate that indicates appreciation of the excellent work it does for our homes and the cause of Christ.

Are you using neat baskets in taking your morning and evening offerings, or are you still "passing the hat"? We have a full supply of baskets from 30 cents up, not prepaid.

The ladies of Knobnoster have just made a good order for a Bible-school Library, toward which we have "lent a hand," and we will take pleasure in doing the same for other schools.

That 128 page catalogue gives you a full list and description of our new stock of Reward Cards, which are being so generally used by "down to date" superintendents and teachers.

We hope to have within a few days a good supply of circulars with a full explanation of the Christian Workers' New Testament. This excellent work sells at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25.

The Certificates of Graduation to be used in connection with the transfer of children from the primary to the main school are now ready at fifty cents per dozen, and are the things to continue interest.

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

One of the best books in stock is not appreciated because the title does not commend it to you, namely, "Whether Common or Not." It is full of the best of things, put in such humorous manner as holds the interest throughout. It sells for $1, but we will send out a few at 75 cents that you may test our judgment of a most interesting and humorous and beneficial work.

The "one dime" album is a great means of raising funds by the children. Spacing for ten dimes on the cards; also names of the donors, all of which is then sealed and handed in by the pupil. Five cents each.

If your copy of "The Holy Spirit," by J. H. Garrison, has not come to hand, write us, as we have sent them out this last week and they should be in the hands of all who ordered by the time this is read. $1.00 postpaid.

The Gospel of Matthew by Peloubet, at 50 cents (former price $1.25), is bringing us many orders, as it should, and the supply will soon be exhausted unless we can make similar arrangements for another lot.

Have you a glass globe for your birthday offerings or are you still following the "old plan"? Get into the newer habit and see how the pupils will appreciate it. In price, 35 cents, 50 cents, and $1.35, postpaid. Try them.

We are hurrying "Gloria in Excelsis," but it must be the very best Church Hymnal on the market, so we are hastening to do the work right and are booking all inquiries for sample pages, which will be sent to those requesting them as soon as possible.

More Y. P. S. C. E. supplies have gone out this spring than in years, manifesting quite an activity for a "craze" that some brethren thought, twenty years ago, would "soon die out." Model constitutions, topic cards, pledge cards and all are moving as if the young people meant business for the Master and betterment for themselves. Write us for samples and prices.

We are now helping many of the "preaching brethren" on the "installment plan," giving them the privilege of ordering any books desired, paying one-fifth down, and the balance as may suit you best. Write us; you are welcome to the offer.

Do not forget the "sweet girl graduate." nor the youth "filled with ambition's aims"; and nothing is better than a nice copy of the word of God, given them on "Commencement Day." Many did this last year with much pleasure to both the giver and receiver.

Let ministers remember that we are not asking for "baits" of any sort; but we take pleasure in giving you 25 per cent off on any of the books of our own publication, and do the best we can for you on other books, no matter, whether you "bite" at any other proposition or not.

Burlington Route

OFFICIAL ROUTE

—TO—

CALIFORNIA

"Christian-Evangelist" Special

LEAVING ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY

—AUGUST 9th, 1905.—

FOR PARTICULARS AND RESERVATIONS WRITE

G. A. HOFFMANN, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis,

—OR—

J. G. DELAPLAINE, Broadway & Olive, St. Louis.

AN ADDRESS

By

Frederick D. Power

In Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds, on Disciples of Christ Day

ENTITLED

History and Doctrines of the Disciples of Christ

A clear and concise statement of the purpose and progress of the restoration.

Published in tract form, 3 cents per copy; 25 cents per dozen; $1.50 per hundred.

A few dollars' worth of these tracts distributed in your community will give the cause a wonderful impetus. Try it.

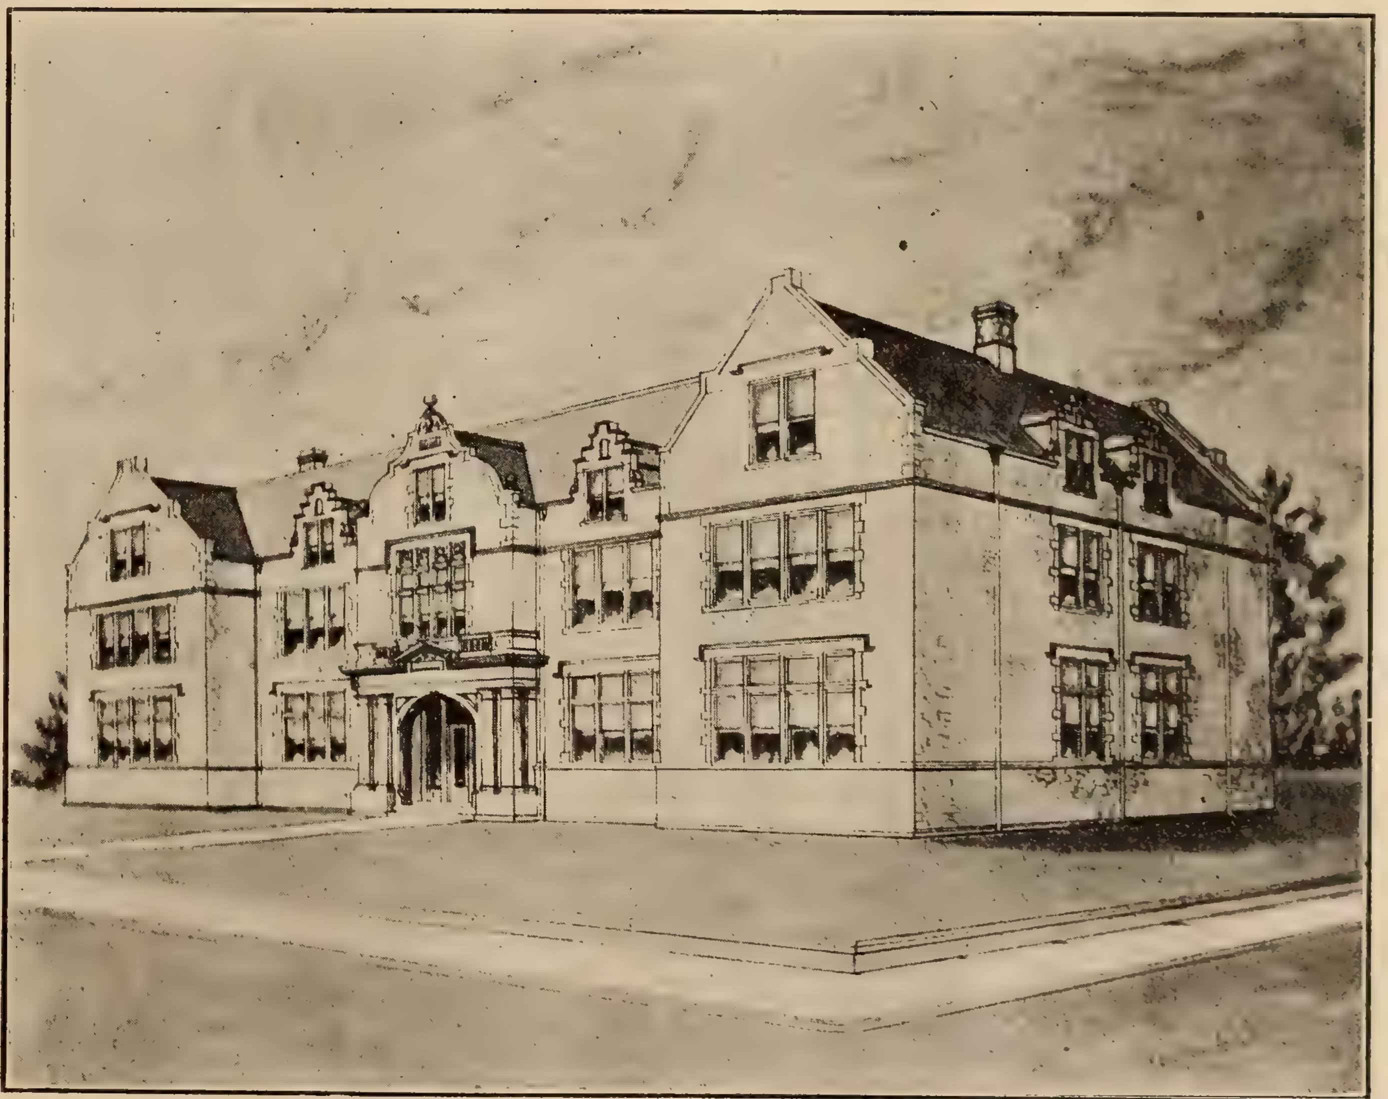
Christian Publishing Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.

THE

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 23. June 8, 1905. $1.50 A Year



Lowry Hall, the New Building of the Bible College at Columbia, Mo.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST.LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor
PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor
F. D. POWER, B. B. TYLER, W. DURBAN, } Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year
For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 723
Editorial:
A Word to the Missouri Brotherhood.. 725
Prayer and Poultice 725
Notes and Comments 725
Editor's Easy Chair 727
Contributed Articles:
The Bible in Education. J. H. Garrison 728
The Secret of Power. John L. Brandt. 729
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 730
Four Hundred Years of John Knox. William Durban 731
Our Budget 732
News From Many Fields:
The St. Louis Letter 738
Letter from W. F. Richardson 738
Cincinnati Notes 738
Illinois 739
Missouri Bible-school Notes 739
A Great Meeting at South Bend 740
Southeast Missouri Notes 741
Washington 741
Christian College Commencement 741
Evangelistic 742
Sunday-School 743
Christian Endeavor 743
Midweek Prayer-Meeting 744
Marriages, Obituaries 745
Family Circle 746
With the Children 749

Michigan Summer Resorts

The land of summer pleasures.
The cost is small for a stay of a week or a month at any of the resorts in the

Famous Michigan Fruit Belt

There is splendid fishing.
The bathing is unsurpassed.
Sailing or canoeing is a pleasure.
Golf and Tennis grounds everywhere.
The hotels are justly famed for first-class entertainment.
In fact—but the many attractions are best set forth in the booklets issued by the

Pere Marquette Railroad

A request addressed to
H. F. MOELLER, G. P. A.,
Union Station, Detroit, Mich.
Will bring you this literature free.

SILVER AND GOLD

Popular Songs and Standard Hymns

FOR

The Sunday-School : Christian Endeavor Society : Missionary Meeting Evangelistic Service : Other Religious Gatherings :: :: :: :: ::

A splendid book, compiled by W. E. M. Hackleman, and containing some of the best work of such writers as Excell, Towner, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel, McIntosh, Fillmore, Palmer, Bilhorn, Odgen, Hackleman, etc., etc. 176 pages.

Editions and Price List:

	Per copy Postpaid.	Per dozen Not prepaid.	Per hundred Not prepaid
Limp Cloth,	$0.25	$2.00	$15.00
Boards,	.25	2.50	20.00
Cloth	.30	3.00	25.00

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

For the Spiritual and Financial Improvement of the Church.

A New Tract of 24 Pages

The Christian Use of the Tithe System

By G. L. WHARTON

Fresh From Our Press.

3 cents each. 25 cents per dozen. $1.50 per hundred.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. June 8, 1905 No. 23

Current Events.

The Portland Exposition. The Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Oregon, was opened last Thursday afternoon. President Roosevelt at Washington pressed the gold key which started the machinery, and Vice-President Fairbanks was present at Portland and delivered an address. The exposition will doubtless be an interesting and notable affair and, whatever may be its merits or demerits as a show, it will justify itself if it induces a large number of Americans to cross the continent and see the West. The St. Louis Exposition celebrated the acquisition of the Louisiana Territory, but it was an unmapped and untrodden wilderness when it was acquired. Its explorers, one might almost say its discoverers, were Captain Meriwether Lewis, private secretary and confidential friend of Thomas Jefferson, and William Clark, younger brother of General George Rogers Clark, the Revolutionary hero of the middle west. Their famous expedition from St. Louis to the Pacific not only revealed the extent and something of the nature of the newly acquired territory, but laid the foundation for the future acquisition of the Oregon country. The west still needs to be discovered by many thousands of our intelligent citizens of the eastern fringe, who cherish the belief that the Harlem river divides the United States into two approximately equal parts and whose western horizon is bounded by the Palisades of the Hudson. The west will of course derive some benefit from the exposition, but the east will derive still more if the people of the east will attend it and travel thoughtfully through the vast domain which Lewis and Clark explored.

❁

Demoralizing Literature. Mr. Israel Zangwill has published some criticisms upon the contemporary stage, especially light comedy, which are not only true within the field of their first application but equally true of a good deal of current literature. The most demoralizing feature of modern comedy, says Mr. Zangwill, is not its indecency, in the ordinary sense. "Sex is not the whole of life, or the whole of vulgarity." The worst vulgarity and the most insidiously corrupting influence is involved in the habitual representation and encouragement of a complacent attitude toward sordid ideals, a cynical acceptance of meanness and selfishness and unfaithfulness as permissible because inevitable under the circumstances, a "sniggering acquiescence in a human nature infinitely below the best standards of our race." He is right. This sort of thing is even more degrading than indecency of utterance. There are some great writers, "realists," we call them, whose works one cannot read aloud and who speak boldly about things which most of us think had better be left unmentioned, yet whose attitude toward life is one of intense moral earnestness. They may be indecent, but not immoral. Far worse are those who, under cloak of a studied avoidance of every impropriety of phrase or situation, present a flippant attitude toward the essential moralities and employ the frailties of men as an object of genial amusement.

❁

The Scotch Church Report. The Royal Commission appointed by the British Parliament to inquire into the situation produced by the legal decision of the House of Lords in the dispute between the Free and the United Free churches of Scotland, has published its report. The important part of this is the opinion rendered that under the judgment of the House of Lords the title of the Free church to many of the properties is "dependent upon their capacity to execute the trust," and the declaration that the present Free church—or, the "Wee Frees"—is not able to execute many of the trusts according to their terms. The Elgin commission considers the judicial decree as final and that any opening of that phase of the question would be unwise. This, however, is the crux of the question so far as other churches are concerned. The commission apportions blame on both sides for the state in which the church finds itself. The absurd decision of the House of Lords may have been according to law, though we do not believe it was according to equity. It is along this line that the Elgin commission proceeds. The commissioners say that this is a case necessitating parliamentary interference, and they recommend that all the properties in dispute be vested in a commission clothed with both administrative and executive powers; that where it shall appear to the commission that the Free Church is not competent to administer any particular trust, it shall have power to make such trust over to somebody that can use it; and they add that the United Free Church, by its history, its experience, and its material and moral resources, should be preferred. They also add that the Free Church should be adequately endowed, and that, so far as it is able to use them, it should receive a full share of all common funds. This is a reasonable practical solution of a difficulty rising both from the folly of church creed-makers and the conservatism of lawyers.

❁

Is Tipping Bribery? The Wisconsin legislature has passed a bill against the giving or receiving, offering or soliciting, of "tips" or gratuities such as are commonly given to quasi-public servants to secure or reward services which are supposed to be otherwise compensated. So it is to be unlawful to tip a waiter or a bell-boy, or—no, surely they would not include the Pullman porter in the list. We have not read the law, but this last item seems scarcely thinkable. The theory of the law is that these functionaries, who are the agents through whom certain public institutions serve the public, owe the same sort of service to every patron of their establishments, and that a tip is only a polite name for a bribe by which one patron gets better service while, as a necessary consequence, the non-tipping patron gets less than his due. This theory is perfectly consistent if we take the ground that the employe of a common carrier becomes, in effect, a public official who has no right to discriminate among those who are entitled to his services. If this is true, of course tipping is bribery and is a proper subject for prohibitory legislation. But there is another theory about tipping, the theory held by the defenders of the system. It is that the hotel-keeper, for example, bargains to provide for his patron certain lodgings and food but does not agree to furnish service; that he keeps servants in the house not as his own employes but as suitable and convenient employes of the patron; and that the relation between patron and waiter is the direct relation of master and servant, the tip being simply the wages paid by the former to the latter. On this theory, which is the one actually held where tipping is most prevalent, the man who prides himself on going through Europe without giving tips puts himself in much the same light as a man who boasts of running off without paying his bootblack or slipping out without paying his barber. Of course tipping is a nuisance, but the strongest objection to it is from the standpoint of the servants who, in the long run, generally get no more than they would on a wage basis and get it irregularly and precariously at the will of a fickle and fastidious public. If the Wisconsin law proves effective, the waiters and porters ought to be grateful.

* * *

"Tainted Money" in 1812.

The question as to what to do with "tainted money" is not so new as we may think it to be. A correspondent of Harper's Weekly cites a case which occurred during the war of 1812. The Quakers—always opposed to war—were especially opposed to this particular war, and Quaker merchants refused to handle goods which had been captured as "prizes" at sea, on the ground that they were really stolen goods. The captain of a vessel, who owed a debt to a Quaker, tried to escape payment by playing upon this well-known conscientious scruple. He offered cash in payment of the debt saying that he had received it as "prize money," and expecting the Quaker would refuse it. Instead he accepted it, and said: "Friend, I come by this money honestly and feel no concern whatever. If thee did not, thee will have to settle with thy Maker." Wise Quaker!

* * *

Sweden and Norway.

Again there has arisen the threat of war and separation between Sweden and Norway. The relations of the two parts of this dual kingdom are somewhat similar to those which existed between England and Scotland after the union of the crowns under James I. and before the parliamentary union under Queen Anne. Each has its separate parliament, treasury, army, postal system and machinery for internal administration, but there is one king over both. There is also a joint consular system and this is the chief occasion of friction, for the Norwegians firmly believe that the consuls (nearly all of whom are Swedes) who are appointed to represent Sweden and Norway in foreign cities, sacrifice the commercial interests of Norway to those of Sweden. As the Norwegians are predominately a sea-faring people and have a large commerce in proportion to population, this is a serious matter. In addition to this specific grievance, there is a vague but very deep-seated feeling on the part of Norway that, being the smaller and weaker member of the combination, she is sure to get the worst of it whenever there are conflicting interests. Norway has recently raised a loan of $10,000,000—rather a considerable sum for a small and economical government—which was not at all needed to meet ordinary demands upon the treasury, and it is suspected that it is a step toward war. It may be only a step toward making Sweden think that she is preparing for war.

* * *

Bonparte for the Cabinet.

It has been announced that Paul Morton, secretary of the navy, will retire from the Cabinet on July 1, and that he will be succeeded by Mr. Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore. Mr. Morton has not made an altogether favorable impression upon the country. He has been unable to live down the suspicion of a too intimate interest in the welfare of the railroads at points where the interests of the public came in conflict. Whatever may have been his personal merits—and we are sure he would not have been chosen without them—he seemed an inharmonious element in a cabinet of a trust-smashing administration. He will doubtless go to the management of one of the large corporations with which his name has been connected, and in which he will be more at home. Mr. Bonaparte is a public-spirited citizen, of a type too rare in this country, more common perhaps in England—a man who, free from the engrossing demands of private business and without ambition for office, has devoted his time and abilities to the public service. He has been prominent in the Civil Service Reform League and the Indian Rights Association, and has otherwise shown an unselfish devotion to good government and reform. It is a familiar story (one of the stock American romances, in fact) how Jerome Bonaparte, the brother of the emperor, came to America and married Miss Patterson, against the will of the great Napoleon. The new cabinet-member is a grandson of this marriage.

* * *

The Russian Disaster.

Later reports have fully confirmed the first report of the overwhelming Japanese naval victory. As a fighting force, the Russian fleet has simply vanished. Two or three small vessels got to Vladivostok and three have limped in crippled condition into Manila Bay, where they may probably be dismantled and remain till the close of the war. The rest are divided between the victorious Japanese and the bottom of the sea. Admiral Rojestvensky was severely wounded and Admiral Nebogatoff is a prisoner. The Russians lost approximately ten thousand men. There seems to be no explanation for the sweeping victory of the Japanese except their superior skill as sailors and gunners. There was no trick about it and, while the Japanese fleet was dextrously maneuvered, it was not essentially a victory of tactics. Neither fleet greatly exceeded the other in tonnage or armament. As the Russians attempted to pass through the Korean strait, Togo issued from the base which he had established on the coast of Korea and blockaded the way. The Russians were apparently not expecting an attack just there, having completely lost track of the enemy, but they must certainly have known that no other point offered such favorable conditions for attack. When the fleets came together it was simply a stand-up fight in which the Japanese by superior skill in handling their guns and greater daring in the use of their torpedo boats soon gained a very decided advantage. When the Russians attempted to run away they were surrounded and either sunk or captured. Some of the reports indicate that certain of the Russian vessels surrendered without much of a struggle and Admiral Nebogatoff may find himself confronted with serious charges when he gets home. The Japanese have shown themselves masters of tactics, gunnery and courage both by land and by sea and have exhibited an unprecedented degree of genius in the art of getting ready and keeping ready.

* * *

War or Peace?

It was assumed, on receipt of the first news of the naval battle, that the end of the war must be at hand. But the Russian government has as yet taken no steps toward peace. The czar, unwilling to sue for peace and afraid to bear the responsibility of refusing to do so, was about to issue a call for a national assembly, so it is reported, to decide between peace and war. There is but little doubt as to the decision of such an assembly if it was truly representative, for there appears to be no popular sentiment in favor of continuing the war. Indeed, to do so is sheer stubbornness, which sometimes bears a superficial resemblance to honor but is really of very different substance. International opinion is strongly in favor of peace. President Roosevelt, in a conversation with the Russian ambassador, strongly urged peace and offered the good offices of our government to that end. It is not improbable that Russia's financial friends, who have lately refused to lend more money for carrying on the war, would make a loan for the payment of an indemnity if the terms of peace should require it. But the latest news is the least hopeful of any. It indicates that there is dissension in the Czar's cabinet, with Trepoff to take the helm and all of Pobedonostseff's influence again in control. The latter is the head of the church and he is a reactionary of the worst kind. The Zemstvo Congress at Moscow, where 280 delegates had assembled, has been prohibited. If an explosion follows no one will be surprised. The fact that a meeting of Russian journalists has passed a resolution demanding a constituent assembly and hailing the advent of revolution is significant, while the probability of another general strike is not remote.

A Word to the Missouri Brotherhood.

The Disciples of Christ have grown to be a great brotherhood in Missouri. However we may account for the fact, it remains true that the Disciples have had a more rapid numerical increase in Missouri than in most of the other states, and that they now number a larger force than is found in any other state. This membership, too, embraces a large amount of the wealth and intelligence of the state. These facts carry with them a tremendous responsibility. Do the brethren of Missouri realize this fact?

We propose to state here a few propositions which we think will not be called in question by anyone acquainted with the condition of things in Missouri:

1. Considering our numbers and wealth, we are not doing more than a tithe of what we ought to do in all the lines of missionary work, including that in our own state. We are raising less money through our state missionary organization now than we did many years ago. We are able to raise vastly more now than we were then. The amounts given by the churches of the state to foreign and home missions are far below what they ought to be.

2. A large number of our churches are not enlisted actively in any branch of our missionary work and are doing little or nothing for the extension of the kingdom of God in the world.

3. Our educational interests, though advancing through dint of hard labor, have not received the encouragement which they deserve from the churches of the state, nor the financial assistance which they sorely need. This cannot be attributed to a lack of ability. Let us not deceive ourselves.

4. We are not sending into the ministry enough trained and educated young men to fill the vacancies occasioned by death or removal, and by the organization of new churches.

5. A large per cent of our churches are without regular preaching and pastoral care, and some are without any. This fact accounts for several of the other facts mentioned above.

Our annual convention meets in Marshall from June 16 to 21, to hear reports from the field, and to plan for future work. It ought to face and consider the facts which we have stated above. There is nothing to be gained by shutting our eyes and ears to the actual conditions which require attention. It is the part of wisdom to look facts squarely in the face, and seek to remedy existing evils.

There is nothing in the situation in Missouri to dishearten anybody. They are conditions which have grown up quite naturally out of a rapid numerical increase, unaccompanied by a corresponding zeal in educational processes and a proper care for the weak. They are conditions which challenge our faith, our courage, our Christian heroism. The facts are such as appeal to us to ask ourselves where the weakness lies, and how we may remedy it.

There are many things to encourage us in the outlook for the cause in Missouri. Our educational facilities are improving in spite of the slowness of the people to respond to the needs of our institutions. The spirit of unity prevails in our churches, and the spirit of hopefulness. There is a feeling, too, that we must gird ourselves anew, and go forward to larger tasks and worthier achievements. There is a divine dissatisfaction with present conditions. This convention at Marshall ought to mark the beginning of a new era of progress. It may do so, if the brethren of the state who love the cause will go to the convention, and go in the determination that we must do larger things in Missouri than we have done in the past.

We appeal, therefore, to the brethren of the state—business men and preachers—that, laying aside all excuses, they with one accord gather in the state convention at Marshall in the spirit of prayer and of work. It is in our power, with the blessing of God and his guidance, to make this convention memorable in the annals of our state for the wisdom of its plans, for its unity of purpose, and for the consecration of its members to the work of Christ in our state. Shall we not make it such?

Prayer and Poultice.

It is a noteworthy coincidence that the text which we quoted last week in reference to the attitude our churches should sustain toward Christian Science, in the editorial, "Christian Science in Christian Churches," namely, "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," was the very text from which Brother Craig preached a sermon on the subject before our article appeared. We have a report of that sermon in the Rocky Mountain News, in which he states, about as we stated it in our article, the liberty which we have in Christ to hold our opinions concerning faith cures so long as we maintain our allegiance to Christ. Defining his own position in this sermon, he says:

> "As to my own personal views—first, I am well satisfied that the healing wrought by Christ and enjoined upon the apostles as part of their commission is the manifestation of a force not limited to the personal ministry of Jesus or his apostles. As long as the Christ dwells in his church and in the hearts of his disciples this healing power is available.
>
> "The law in regard to it was stated by the Christ, and is as good to-day as then: 'According to your faith be it unto thee.'
>
> "Christ healed without reference to Mrs. Eddy's peculiar philosophy and vocabulary. He thus heals to-day."

No one, we think, will call in question the statement that the power of being healed through faith continues to-day under the law stated—"according to your faith, so be it unto you." Two errors are to be guarded against, however, in reference to this matter of healing. It does not follow that, if some cures are wrought through faith, we may expect all ills of the human body to be thus cured. Broken limbs, smallpox, diphtheria, etc., yield more readily to medical or surgical skill.

Again: It is a fanatical extreme to oppose all medical treatment and surgery as contrary to the principle of faith. Faith does not dispense with means. This fanaticism has led to the loss of many lives which could have been saved by medical skill had a physician been summoned in time. The fact that Christian Science does so antagonize modern science and surgery, in the treatment of human ills, is proof, itself, of its unscientific spirit, and of a serious defect in the philosophy which underlies it. There is no more antagonism between faith and the use of anti-toxine, to-day, than there was between prayer and a poultice of figs, in the case of Hezekiah, the good king of Israel. In physical healing as in spiritual healing faith requires conformity to the laws of God so far as these laws are known. To arraign faith against science, whether medical or moral, is to turn back the hands on the dial of progress.

Nothing in the sermon referred to is in antagonism to what is here said, and these statements are not made for Brother Craig's benefit but for the sake of some who have been led into dangerous and hurtful extremes on this subject.

Notes and Comments.

The Missouri branch of the National German-American Alliance has taken action protesting against the existing Sunday closing law, and forwarded the same to Governor Folk, with an appeal to the people of Missouri to join in such protest. The St. Louis ministerial alliance at its last meeting resolved:

> "That this alliance put itself on record as unalterably opposed to any repeal of the present Sunday closing law, or any other law on the statutes restricting the liquor traffic of the state.
>
> "That we hereby petition Governor Folk not to grant any petition from any source asking for the calling of a special session of the legislature for the repeal of said laws.
>
> "That this alliance hereby commend the action of Governor Folk in his endeavor to enforce the laws against the liquor traffic, and also commend our city officials in their hearty co-operation with said purpose and endeavor.
>
> "That we hereby appeal to every ministerial alliance of the state to take similar action and forward same to Governor Folk."

This action of our German-American citizens to continentalize our Sunday, ought to be met by the vigorous action of all who believe in our American rest day, and who would preserve the sanctity of the Lord's day. The enforcement of the Sunday law is in the interest of all citizens, without regard to creed or nationality, because it is in the interest of good government and social order, in which all are benefited.

◆

The humiliation of Russia is not without its lesson, both to her and to other nations. For a long time Russia has been the bully among nations, grasping, oppressive, haughty, despotic. In her pride she disdained the propositions for an amicable settlement proposed by Japan, and in violation of her own solemn promise, maintained her hold on Manchuria, actuated by motives of national greed and selfish ambition. But to-day she lies prostrate in the dust, with none so poor as to do her reverence! Has not the Almighty, who sitteth upon the circuit of the heavens, used little Japan for punishing Russia, as he used the nations of old for the punishment of Israel? No doubt Russia in the long run will be benefited by this chastisement. She is compelled now to give attention to internal administration, to the rights of her subjects, to the establishment of a constitutional government, and to a more humane treatment of her people. Meantime the lesson ought to be learned by all other nations that pride, oppression, greed and violation of national pledges lead to inevitable defeat and humiliation.

◆

What about Japan? Has it sufficient discipline and self-control to stand success? Victory puts a nation to a severer test, perhaps, than defeat. Russia is bound to be benefited by her humiliating defeat, but can Japan maintain her remarkable self-poise in the face of her phenomenal triumph? These are questions many people are asking to-day, and most of them in a hopeful, optimistic mood. These believe that Japan will show herself as magnanimous in making peace as she has been brave and skillful in making war. But there are others who doubt, and who express the fear that the nation of little yellow men may be so inflated with the sense of its military and naval power, that it may enter upon a career of aggression. We do not anticipate such a course. We do expect a mighty awakening in China, under Japan's leadership, and such a coalition between these two nations as shall control the east and put an end forever to all the talk we have had in the past few years about carving up China and dividing it among the European nations. And against this policy neither our government nor people will enter any protest.

◆

The optimistic spirit which prevails among us is illustrated by a quotation from a letter from one of our most thoughtful readers, who in renewing his subscription says: "As a religious body we have come to the stage in our development that calls for men of broader vision than that of any through which we have yet passed, but I am confident that Jehovah, who has brought us safely thus far, will not forsake us, if we, as Israel of old, cleave unto him with our whole heart." We like the idea that we are to adjust ourselves to the new demands that are to be made upon us, and the new questions that shall arise, by cleaving to Jehovah with our whole heart. That is our only hope for the future—that Jesus Christ himself shall lead his church out of the wilderness of its denominationalism, sectarianism and carnalism, into the unity and spiritual power necessary to the achievement of its high mission in the world.

◆

Our Methodist brethren are discussing the subject of "a supreme court in Methodism." The existence of lower courts in a religious body other than the local congregation is sure to suggest higher courts, and these a supreme court. This seems to be a sort of fatal tendency of episcopacy in its modern sense. A writer in the Northwestern Christian Advocate says, in writing on this subject: "There is no place in our system for a supreme court that shall sit upon the constitutionality of the acts of this body—this body that can make or unmake bishops, that is big enough to receive any vision that the coming years of God shall give." As a matter of fact, church courts are not much given to receiving visions from God. They are more concerned in preserving the statu quo, a part of which is their official position and their official decisions. But this is one of the future battles that our Methodist brethren will have to fight out. An amendment has already been proposed, and will be discussed at some future general conference. Once this court is established it will have power to decide the constitutionality of any action of the general conference. Whoever, therefore, could control the constituency of such a court would have the future of Methodism in his hands, no matter whether he be called pope or bishop!

◆

A Denver paper contains the report of a sermon by Rev. W. A. Hunter of the First avenue Presbyterian church in that city on the subject, "Is Church Federation a Dream?" After explaining that church federation does not mean "any interference with the autonomy of any Christian church." Dr. Hunter points out what is being done in Christian Endeavor and other methods of co-operation among the churches, and closes with this statement with which our readers will heartily agree:

> All the churches are aiming at short creeds, to take the place of the long creeds of bygone centuries. Back to Christ is the cry in every denomination.
>
> In his life and teaching which centers around the great truths of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, there is a platform on which all can stand and present such a solid front to the foe and make such aggressive warfare against worldiness and sin that infidelity would not dare to lift its head.

◆

Now and then a reader who calls himself a "socialist" or a "labor unionist" finds fault with the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST because he thinks he discovers something in the paper that is not in sympathy with the "laboring class." A letter of that character is just received in which the writer refers to a number of things in the paper to which he objects, closing with reference to what was said in a recent issue concerning Mr. Shea and the Chicago strike. As we have often said, it is no part of our plan to try to please everybody; that is quite impossible. We are quite sure, however, that any one who fancies he sees any lack of sympathy with honest labor in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is reading the paper with jaundiced eyes. The Editor of this paper is working more hours per day than the "union" to which our critic belongs, would allow him or any of its members to work, and there is no reason why we should not feel in perfect sympathy with those who toil for their daily bread. We have denounced, and must denounce, violence, broken faith, and the abuse of power, whether among employers or employes, and this, we presume, is the head and front of our offending.

◆

Referring to the alleged interview between a reporter and Bro. Bayard Craig, of the Central Christian church, Denver, re Christian Science, we are in receipt of a personal communication from Brother Craig which confirms the opinion expressed in our prelude to the interview, that the reporter had drawn largely on his imagination for the facts and words. It was part of our object in reporting this interview to call out a public denial of its truthfulness, seeing that the daily paper had given it wide publicity. Brother Craig writes that the alleged interview is "off color in its whole spirit and wording." He writes: "I am not inclined in the least to follow sidetracks. I have no new ideas or inclinations in regard to mental healing. I simply claim the liberty to study and investigate phenomena, which I am satisfied have some real merit. My position is in complete harmony with the liberty we claim and actually enjoy."

Before receiving the letter from which we have made these extracts, we already copied, elsewhere, from a sermon by Brother Craig, an extract which sets forth in his own words his attitude to this question of Christian Science. We feel sure, as we expressed it in our editorial comment, that Brother Craig is not the man to run off on a side issue, or to allow any theory of healing to obscure the real mission of the church.

Editor's Easy Chair.

Nothing could please the Easy Chair better than to be present at all the college commencements that will occur this week and next. Nothing is more delightful and refreshing to us than to witness these graduating exercises, and to see and hear the young men and women in their graduating addresses and essays. In them, and in their thoughts, hopes and aspirations, we see life as it looked to us once upon a time under similar conditions. We cannot agree with many that this is the best period of life, and one to which memory always reverts with regret that it is passed, for we think the joy of achievement and conquest in years that follow is even a greater joy than that of anticipation. Nevertheless it is a most interesting and inspiring period of life, and one can scarcely find a better remedy for any tendency toward pessimism which he may discover in himself than to attend these commencement exercises, and to hear these young people paint the future in glowing colors, and tell how Wrong is to go down in ignominious defeat before the Right.

◆

When one listens to that essay on "Ad Astra per Aspera" from one of the sweet girl graduates, he feels sure that there are stars to be won, and that difficulties are only incentives or stepping stones to the glowing summits that shine out from the future. And after one has heard the oration on "The Destiny of the Republic," he can scarcely entertain any fears that our nation, warned by the example of Babylon, Greece and Rome, will allow her glory to be dimmed by ambition, greed or absorption in materialism. We are quite sure that the more young men and women we can get to pursue college courses, and graduate, the less danger will there be of that bondage to commercialism which so many far-seeing people among us now fear. Education reveals other objects of life than mere material possessions, and if it be an education worthy of the name, it has shown how the material things of life should be subordinated to higher and nobler ends. We rejoice in the optimism of the college graduate, and believe it to be better grounded than the pessimism of the sage. In youth we see visions; in age we dream dreams. The Easy Chair extends its hearty greetings to all the graduates from all the colleges, and wishes that life may prove to be even more beautiful and better worth living than it seems to them to-day.

◆

One of the changes that has come over our modern life is the place which we are giving to play in our scheme of life. Time was when to take a vacation was regarded as an idle waste of time, and a sort of sinful indulgence which even good poeple sometimes permitted themselves to enjoy, at the expense of a good conscience! Even yet, you will find here and there a belated saint who reminds us that "the devil takes no vacation," as if his satanic majesty were an example for us in that respect more than in any other! A better understanding of human nature has brought us to see that play has as legitimate a place in our human nature and in our human life as either work or worship. How many bright intellects have been obscured at the very noontime of life when they should have been shining brightest, because they had not learned this law of life. If the Easy Chair is insistent upon this point, it is because the Editor was very near too late himself in learning the necessity of play, or change of activity, in the normal human life. This mistake cost him ten years of struggle with ill health, and came perilously near costing him his life. The vacation is more essential with some than with others, but with none is it a waste of time, but rather an opportunity for accumulation of energy, vitality and power, for better work. The recognition of this fact is doing much to modify our life-plans, lessen doctors' bills and promote human longevity.

◆

But where shall we go? That is now the vexing problem which troubles a great many people, every year, who seek this resort or that, changing their summer habitat every season. To avoid this vexing question, it is better, in our judgment, as a rule, to have a permanent resort. The question of where being then out of the way, the minor questions of when and how are easily settled. Tastes differ as to the kind of resort to be selected, as they do on every other subject. Some long for the mountains, some for the seaside or the lakeside, and others prefer some quiet country retreat, where, in a modest farm house, they can find board and lodging, far from the city's maddening crowd and the tumultuous roar of ocean waves. Each of these has its charms and its advantages. Questions of healthfulness, comfort, and convenience of access have much to do in determining one's choice. The Easy Chair likes water, and the more of it, the better. A resort without water would be to it like "Hamlet," with Hamlet omitted. It likes the expansiveness of view furnished by the ocean or our great inland lakes, and it likes the pure, fresh air that sweeps over them. It likes the music of the waves, and the majesty of the deep, when its bosom is torn by the black wing of the storm-cloud. It likes the lights and shadows that play over its surface in its calmer moods, and the crimson paths that run out across its surface at evening time, when the sun goes down in his glory. But if you like better the sublimity of the mountains, or the ripple of pearly streams in the hill country, go thither, but lay aside your tools for awhile and rest and play somewhere.

◆

There is no state in the union that surpasses Missouri in the size and the enthusiasm of its state conventions. To look upon one of these assemblies where there is a full complement of its representative men and women from all parts of the state, is to recognize at once the cause of our past success, and the pledge of our future growth. There is in these annual gatherings that intermingling of gray heads with the young and robust life, which insures both wisdom and enthusiasm in its proceedings. June is a delightful month for the representatives of our churches in Missouri to meet in council, to plan for a forward movement. Marshall, the place of meeting, is in one of the fairest sections of Missouri, and a journey by rail thither from any part of the state will be a delightful one at this season of the year. We have been hearing about each other, and reading about and from each other. Let us go up to Marshall and meet each other, face to face, while we join hands and hearts for the promotion of our common work. Let those who cannot go, as well as those who go, pray for the blessing of God upon this convention, that it may rise to the demands which are upon it, as representing one of the largest factors, if not the largest, in the religious life of the state.

◆

One of the most gratifying evidences of our future prosperity and power as a religious body is the unmistakable increase in the emphasis which most of our speakers and writers are laying upon the spiritual nature of Christianity. With not a whit less loyalty to New Testament ordinances, and to necessary organization for carrying forward the work of the church, there is everywhere among us manifest a higher appreciation of the spiritual content of the ordinances, and of certain forms of sound words and phrases which have often been too lightly used. We are indebted largely to our greater interest in mission work, and in the great problems of education and of benevolence, for lifting us out of former contentions over small questions. Now and then there is a writer that manifests anxious concern about the heresy of a capital letter or a wrong name applied to some official in the church, or the legitimacy of missionary organizations, or whether we should kneel or stand in prayer, or some equally momentous question, but, as a rule, we are wrestling with far more vital problems. The chief concern of the most thoughtful among us is that we get a deeper insight into the "mind of Christ"; that we have more of his spirit; that we enter into "the fellowship of his sufferings," and come to "know the power of his resurrection." This is indeed hopeful.

The Bible in Education[*]

By J. H. Garrison

It is an occasion of no small significance that has called us together at this hour. We have met to dedicate this beautiful structure to the sacred use of biblical instruction and Christian learning. Its location here by the side of this great and growing university, founded and fostered by the state of Missouri, and yet having no organic connection with it, is a phenomenon in the educational world so unusual as to justify a brief statement of its meaning and significance.

First of all, it is a declaration in stone, fashioned by human skill into a building of rare beauty and symmetry, that those who are responsible for its erection believe the Bible to be no obsolete volume which the world in its onward progress has swept by and left lagging superfluous on the stage, but that it is the world's true text book on the highest of all themes—man's relation and duties to God—and that its teaching constitutes an essential part of all education. I do not say, an essential part of religious education, for that would be a truism; but of education, for no education is worthy of the name that does not include the knowledge of God, and of man's relations and duties to him, and the knowledge of the splendid and unique literature which is largely the record of the sacred experiences of those who have come into fellowship with God. To say that religion, which has to do with man's relation to the infinite, and which most powerfully affects human character and human happiness, should be the chief concern of man would be to utter a statement so trite as scarcely to challenge anyone's attention, much less his opposition; that the book which we call the Bible gives us the highest conception of God and of religion, and that it therefore exerts the most powerful influence in the formation of character is a truth which would also be almost universally acknowledged. But out of these generally, not to say universally, accepted propositions there would seem to flow, inevitably, the conclusion that since the highest aim of education is the development of character and the bringing of man to his highest estate, the Bible has not only a legitimate but a pre-eminent and essential place in any rational scheme of education.

Does it need to be argued in any intelligent assembly that the pregnant statements and inimitable narratives of Genesis, the jurisprudence of Moses in the Pentateuch, the statesmanship, high morality, and lofty ideals of the prophets, the sublime poetry in the Psalms and in the book of Job, the crystallized experience of ages in the wisdom literature, the sublime morality of the Sermon on the Mount, and the picture of the marvelous life and character of Him who preached that sermon, possess an educational value and are worthy of a place beside the classics of Greece and Rome for mental and moral discipline? This is not the time or the place to discuss the difficult problem of how far an institution under state patronage and control may use the Bible as a text book in its curriculum. Your speaker is in thorough sympathy with the separation between church and state which prevails in this country, and with the principle that sectarianism or denominational interpretations of the Bible have no legitimate place in our public schools or state universities. But the time has come when we ought to discriminate between the Bible, studied as history and literature for mental and moral discipline and for fundamental religious ideas, and the Bible as a text-book for theological systems. All that I am contending for here and now is that students of our state institutions, no more than students of other schools, should be deprived of the benefit of the Bible taught and studied as history and as literature; that they should have time and opportunity for such studies, and should receive credit therefor on passing approved examinations.

Furthermore, the location of this Bible college contiguous to this university signifies that in the thought of those establishing it there is no necessary conflict between the Bible and the highest learning; between faith and science; between religion and the liberal arts. Happily, we are passing out of the era of the supposed antagonism between Genesis and geology, or between revelation and science. We are learning that this is, indeed, a universe in which we live, over which presides the one God who is speaking to men through his works, and through his words, and that there can be no conflict between the two records when they are rightly understood and interpreted. The Bible and the cause of religion have suffered no little harm from the false conception of an essential antagonism between the book of nature, as interpreted by science, and the book of revelation as interpreted in the light of history and of reason. The bringing together, in close juxtaposition, of buildings dedicated to Bible study and those dedicated to the different branches of science, and the intermingling of students pursuing these different studies, will do much to remove this false conception and to establish the essential unity and harmony of all truth and of all knowledge.

It is this unity of knowledge—this harmony of all truth—that makes it possible for a Bible college which would have its students equipped with the widest and most liberal culture to avail itself of the benefit of the full course of the university, while it concentrates its limited means and the best talent it can command on biblical instruction and on the special training of young men for the ministry. This is the economic reason that underlies this enterprise and makes it both feasible and desirable. There is no Presbyterian geology, Methodist mathematics, Baptist English, Episcopal astronomy, Lutheran Latin, or Roman Catholic Greek. Science is undenominational, and philosophy and the languages are nonsectarian. The church that is not afraid of science nor of learning in any department can say to the university, "You teach our students science, philosophy and general history and the languages, and we will teach yours a knowledge of the Bible." This would seem to be a very sensible sort of reciprocity between a Bible college and a state university located contiguously. Each needs the other in order to give completeness to its teachings.

The phenomenon of a Bible college located by the side of a state university with the deliberate purpose that the students of the university shall be its students, and its students shall be also students of the university, signifies another fact worth mentioning on this occasion, namely: that there is such a thing, in the judgment of the promoters of the enterprise, as a common Christianity, or, as Jude styles it, "the common salvation." To a casual observer, judging only from external religious phenomena, it might seem that Christianity had been parceled out among the various denominations, each of which had its consignment of religious truths over which it exercised a sort of monopoly. According to this view each of the tribes of spiritual Israel is expected to remain on its own reservation, not using the theological scalping knife and tomahawk, as of old, but maintaining a sort of "armed neutrality" based on the understanding that truth has been permanently denominationalized.

Contrary to this view the people who have erected this building on this commanding site overlooking these university grounds and buildings, believe that underneath all superficial differences among the professed disciples of the Nazarene there are certain great fundamental truths, held in common, to teach and proclaim which, and to seek their embodiment in individual lives and in organic church forms, is essential to the unification of the church and the triumph of God's kingdom in the world. They believe in—and this structure embodies and externalizes that faith—the statement made by Paul to the Corinthian church when its peace and unity were disturbed by incipient divisions over human leaders—one saying "I am of Paul," another, "I am of Cephas," and still another, "I of Apollos"—that, "All things are yours." As if he would say, "In so far as these different leaders speak God's message, they are all yours. Why do you impoverish your minds and hearts by refusing any truth spoken by any man?" No more suitable motto could be written above the door of this Bible college than this statement of the apostle, "All things are yours"! That is, all truth from from whatever source, belongs to you as a birthright, as free, untrammeled sons of God. If we did not believe in this principle—in the unity of all truth and in our freedom to accept it no matter where it comes from—what business would we have here in the atmosphere of a university where are gathered representatives of all religious beliefs and where truth, for truth's sake, is sought and taught in every department of human knowledge?

---

[*] An address delivered at the dedication of Bible college, Columbia, Mo.

Finally, this establishment of a Bible college under the shadow of a great and growing university is an expression of sublime confidence on the part of the friends of the enterprise in the ability of the Bible to hold its own, and to maintain its pre-eminence among the literatures of the world when brought into immediate contact with them in the highest seats of learning. There is a fear, sometimes expressed, but more often implied, in the utterances of men, that the Bible cannot endure the searching scrutiny of scientific historical investigation, and that to bring it into such a crucible of criticism is to endanger its authority over the consciences and conduct of men. It is safe to say that men entertaining such a fear as that would never have favored the location of a Bible college where this building stands. But the men who have stood back of this enterprise and who have been its friends from the beginning, believe so thoroughly in the literary value, the historical integrity, and the religious supremacy of the Bible, that they are willing to bring it into the very arena of investigation, and under the most searching light of modern scientific criticism, without a fear that it will be unable to vindicate its claims to the faith and allegiance of men. On its every page shines "the light that never shone on sea or land," and within it is imbedded the record of One whose "life is the light of men." With a confidence born of its divine origin and its supreme worth, we dare bring the sacred Volume into the precincts of this university and to maintain that it holds an essential and pre-eminent place in the education of mankind. And to the inculcation of its sublime teaching in the hearts and minds of those who shall gather here for instruction in the generations to come, this building is now dedicated, and upon those who shall teach herein, and upon those who shall be taught, we invoke the blessing and gracious favor of Almighty God!

The Secret of Power*

By John L. Brandt

"Ye shall receive power when the Holy Spirit is come upon you."

The Greek word that is here translated "power" is the same from which we get the word dynamite, and means energy, strength, ability, etc. When it refers to persons it may be defined as the ability to bring things to pass. Men are anxious to learn the secret of power that will bring success in business, politics, literature, etc. Surely, then, in the kingdom of heaven, men should, with a greater zeal, endeavor to learn and obtain that secret power that will enable them to save souls and build up the kingdom of heaven.

Some ascribe this power to psychic force, such as hypnotism, personal magnetism, etc. A minister in Ohio, thinking a knowledge of this force would make him an eminent success in the ministry, went to New York and studied in a school of hypnotism, and on his return he endeavored to hypnotize the people in order to bring them to church, to obey the gospel, to increase his salary, etc. I happened to be in the town about the time he was trying to exercise this hypnotic influence, and some of the leading members of the church were, at the same time, considering the best way to terminate his ministry.

In a recent issue of the Literary Digest an account is given of a professor in one of the eastern universities who endeavored to analyze the secret power of the evangelist over his congregation; he ascribes it to psychic force exerted on the minds of certain individuals who are quite emotional, impressionable, susceptible, etc. Poor man! He may possess all the phenomena of psychic force and yet fall short of that secret power that the evangelist possesses in winning souls.

Man's methods of obtaining this power are a poor substitute for the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God to save souls and the power of the Holy Spirit to convert the sinner and sanctify the saint.

Others claim that we shall have the power after we have a better educated ministry. All hail a ministry educated in heart and head; but too frequently the discourse, though profound in learning, is lacking in heart power. I have known men who met with success in their earlier ministry, and, thinking a university education would make their preaching irresistible, after much toil and sacrifice, obtained the long desired education, only to find their ministry less fruitful than before. One minister filled with the spirit of Christ and an ardent love for lost souls will win more people to Christ than a half dozen ministers lacking in this love and spirit. We need more education in the pulpit, but we are more sadly in need of more of the Holy Spirit in the minister's heart to win souls to God.

Another erroneous idea is that we shall receive the power after we are more sociable. More sociability is needed and nothing will take its place. Give us consecrated sociability, but the church that depends upon this magnet only to draw people to Christ will be lacking in spiritual power and ability to extend the kingdom of Christ in human hearts and homes. Let us have sociability, but let us not substitute it for the power of the Holy Spirit.

Another erroneous idea is that power will be received after we have become stronger in wealth and numbers. Alas, alas! If our present wealth and numbers were consecrated to God, we would win the world to Christ within the next century. If this secret power is found neither in psychic force nor in a better educated ministry, nor in sociability, nor in an increase in wealth and numbers, where shall we look, and to whom shall we go, to obtain it?

Jesus said, "All power in heaven and in earth is given unto me," and to his apostles he said, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you." Let us then look at some of these elements of power conferred by the Holy Spirit. It was given on the day of Pentecost, as we read in the second chapter of Acts. It was to the disciples a spirit of divine eloquence, of illuminating truth, of powerful demonstration and of immortal words of light and life. On the first day of his descent he laid the foundation of the new kingdom; convicted the Jews of the crucifixion of Christ; pierced their hearts until they cried out for deliverance and proclaimed to them the conditions of salvation and the gift of the Holy Spirit. The effect upon the apostles was remarkable. Before they received the Spirit they were carnal, now, they are spiritual. Before, they forsook Jesus in time of danger, now, all the power of the Sanhedrin cannot overcome their moral force. Before, they went to catch fish, now, they go forth to catch men. Before, Jesus upbraided them because of their lack of faith, now, they have full assurance of faith. Before, they feared men, now, they fear neither men, nor prisons, nor scourgings, nor death. Before, they were impotent to deal with evil, now, they are mighty to the tearing down of the strongholds of Satan. Before, the bravest one denied his Master in the presence of a servant girl, now, he accuses the San-

(Continued on page 732.)

---

*Extract from paper read before the Christian Ministers' Meeting at St. Louis.

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

One of my best friends in the ministry at the capital during my three decades was Dr. J. E. Rankin, pastor of the First Congregational church, and later president of Howard university. Probably all men knew him best as the author of the hymn, "God be with you till we meet again." A man of fine literary culture, of broad sympathies, of positive character, he had a large influence in the city. He and Dr. John P. Newman were more in the public eye at that time than any other men in the Washington pulpit, and though a young man, with an obscure little church, they both honored me early with their friendship. I remember that much needed kindness in the first years of my ministry here with sincere gratitude. It means much every way to the young preacher. During the remaining years of Dr. Rankin's pastorate, and while associated with the university, it was my privilege to come into close touch with him. He was a Christian preacher, and yet an American citizen; a graceful poet, and yet a hard fighter; a lover of men, and yet a good hater; with the gentleness of Melancthon, and yet with the severity of Calvin—a strong preacher, a charming writer, a true man.

He was of good New England stock, born in Thornton, N. H., Jan. 2, 1828. He was trained at Middlebury college, Vt., which conferred upon him the degrees of D. D. and LL. D. His parents were Rev. Andrew and Louis Eames Rankin, and his great-grandfather, James Rankin, was born in Paisley, Scotland, and came in 1776 to Salem, Mass., and afterwards moved to New Hampshire. This grandfather exerted a large influence over his young mind, and no doubt, by his peculiarity of speech, inspired him with his love for the Scotch people, and their dialect, of which he was such a master. Many of his best productions are in the language of Robert Burns, and for the poet he had the warmest admiration. His first volume was Auld Scotch Mither and Other Poems, the first being a story told in sweet measure of a mother who, in spite of years of separation, never forgot the little things which made her son different from other sons, even the curious twirling of a fork at the table becoming the key of recognition. Burns was the subject of his lectures and he read his Cotter's Saturday Night or Lines to a Mouse, or Tam O'Shanter with keen appreciation and fine effect.

Other books which he wrote were Ingleside Rhymes, Subduing Kingdoms, The Hotel of God, Atheism of the Heart, Christ His own Interpreter, Elective Affinity, Broken Cadences, Hymns Pro Patria, Word and Song, volume of hymns and tunes, The Cup the Father Giveth, and many articles for the Bibliotheca Sacra and independent translations he made from the German of German-English Lyrics, The Dance of the Martyr, Aversion of Young People to Christianity, etc. Some of these were volumes of sermons, and when preached or read they were never dull. Brevity, literary finish, apt illustration, warmth, clearness of purpose, strength and positiveness characterized these productions. His writing was dramatic, pictorial, vivid. He would go straight to the heart of things and there was never any uncertainty as to his meaning. On all questions of religion and morals decision of character was pre-eminently shown. In the old days we had the pastors' union, and used to meet in Lincoln hall at stated times to set things to rights, and sometimes had our field days, and Dr. Rankin loved always to be on the firing line, and his was a keen blade in the ready hand of a brave man. His attitude on public questions was not always the popular one, but no one failed to credit him with sincerity and candor, courage and conscientiousness. After fifteen years he retired from the pastorate here. He had held pastorates in Potsdam, New York., St. Albans, Vt., Lowell and Boston, Mass., before coming to Washington. He felt that he needed rest, and went abroad. General Howard tells of meeting him in London with a companion. The two men seemed like youngsters just out of college, so free and happy were they. With them there was no possible dissipation, yet they had just purchased some peanuts and candy, and the three sat down on some benches to enjoy the feast together. "Why did you retire from Washington?" asked the General. "Oh, I needed rest and recreation," was the answer, "and I am having it." For several years he was settled in Orange, N. J., and had a happy home, a good church, and everything to make life desirable, but he was not contented there. He wanted to share in the solution of sterner problems, to bear a hand where the battle was thickest, to have a part in lifting up the lowliest—a service he felt he was not rendering in his ideal situation at Orange, so at 62 years of age he accepted the call to become president of Howard university and for thirteen years he labored to uplift the black man in this honored and useful institution. There were heavy burdens to be borne, strong prejudices to be contended with, severe and exhausting labors and responsibilities in this service for the physical, intellectual, moral, and spiritual betterment of the thousands of young men and women who came under his care. He did his work well. He deserves to stand with General Armstrong who made possible a Booker Washington. He was enthusiastic, untiring, courageous, faithful to the end. His students, filling positions of usefulness all over the land, helpers and leaders of their people, Christians, citizens, workers, constitute his monument. The words he spoke of another famous teacher might well be applied to him: "The men that have the largest dimensions after they are dead, are the earth's great educators. They still teach in what they taught—transmitting themselves through memory, through heredity, through printed books. They sow not the seed that shall be, but bare grain. This is specially true, if their pupils also shall have become teachers and preachers."

Sweetest, tenderest, and possibly most enduring of Dr. Rankin's work will be his hymns. It were enough glory for any one life to have written: "How Can I But Love Him?" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Feeling the infirmities of age and failing health he resigned his work at the university and went to Cleveland, where he passed from earth Nov. 28, 1904. We were members of a clerical club, Theta Sigma. One of the last times I met him was when he read before the club a paper on Professor Clark of Andover. Two sonnets written by him and read to the Professor on his ninety-first birthday seem to fit their author:

Day unto day, and night to jewelled night
Keeps reck'ning of His chariot's long delay;
How slow the days appointed pass away.
How slow allotted time completes its flight,
The silent stars their radiant march fulfill
My long-dimmed orbs to mark them half extinct,
They burn o'er my benighted pathway still,
As day to day, and night to night is linked.
Blind Homer chanted to the Ægean Sea.
Blind Milton turned to God his sightless eyes,
And sang of nightly-sapphired paradise;
Attuned their souls to sep'rate harmony.
What time I wait, what time night's hours I chide,
I muse on Him, on Calvary who died.

He knows I am but dust, who man became!
The burden of the years that weigh me down,
Until He come, His grace in me to crown:
He knows it all, who took my death of shame.—
No longer now do I forgotten lie,
The very depths of being in me stir,
From ivory palaces he passes by,
His garments smell of cassia and of myrrh;
The sun, the light, the moon and stars are dark,
But, oh, such radiance floods my humble room,
And fragrance rare, as from that garden-tomb,
And Easter music, as the mounting lark;
This, from the cadence of His dying woes,
This comforts me, and brings at length repose.

❀ ❀

The main condition is that the spiritual ear shall be open to overhear and patiently take in, and the will be ready to obey, that testimony which, I believe, God bears in every human heart, however dull, to those great truths which the Bible reveals. This, and not logic, is the way to growin religious knowledge, to know the truths of religion are not shadows but deep realities.—J. C. Shairp.

Four Hundred Years of John Knox

By WILLIAM DURBAN

This is the four hundredth anniversary year of the birth of John Knox, the greatest and most influential of English-speaking Presbyterians, and the Scotch Presbyterian bodies have for many months been making arrangements for services of commemoration and thanksgiving. The exact day of his birth is not known, but Sunday, May 21, was agreed on by the promoters of the celebration as a convenient time. Throughout America the anniversary is to be observed. The occasion joins on to another chapter of ecclesiastical history, inasmuch as this is also the three hundredth anniversary of the death of Theodore Beza, the colleague and successor of Calvin, and writer of the famous Latin version of the New Testament. In these three names, Calvin, Knox and Beza, is written much of the history of that formative period of the reformation which followed its genesis under the activities of Luther, Melancthon, Erasmus and Zuinglius.

The career of Knox was one of the most wonderful of the realistic romances of religious life. A man who was author, preacher, reformer, exile, galley-slave and statesman, and who actually transformed the thought of a whole nation, must surely be reckoned one of the phenomenally great characters of history. And Knox lived in a terrible period, a time of constant and frightful popular passion, civil, political and ecclesiastical. He himself left vivid memorials of that tempestuous age in his "History of the Reformation within the Realm of Scotland," a book much less familiar to Englishmen than it deserves to be. The work is extolled by Milton in his immortal "Areopagitica," and it abounds in pathos, in dramatic interest and in rugged humor, while it scintillates with sensational and thrilling facts. Dr. Kuyper, the famous Dutch statesman and professor, refers to Knox's book as "above all that Great Britain can show of an earlier date in prose literature." Such a testimony amply proves the genius of Knox.

Like Luther, John Knox was the child of very humble parents. He owed nothing to adventitious circumstances. Notwithstanding his extraordinary powers, he only very narrowly escaped obscurity, for nothing was heard of him till he was over forty. Knox does not count among the young men who, according to some theorists, are the only makers of history. It may truly be said that if Knox made history, he was also made by it. For he was emphatically the product of his time. The boyhood of this medieval Scot was an appropriate preparation for his rough and strenuous after-experiences. He was born at Haddington, then a little city of only 2,000 people, but a center of splendid churches and magnificent monasteries. One of its churches was indeed so lovely a specimen of architecture that it was styled "The Lamp of Lothian." Young Knox was sent to the school where several famous Scotchmen were educated before he was born. The daily life of a lad at school, in those days, was a sort of earthly purgatory. A public school consisted of a single room without benches, the scholars squatting on the straw with which the floor was littered. Holes in the wall served as windows, these being open in good weather and stopped with straw or cloths in severe seasons. Therefore, especially as the teaching commenced at a very early hour, the pupils all brought little lamps to enable them to read in the dark. Humane treatment of children was in those crude, coarse days utterly unknown, and a contemporary of Knox tells us that if you happened to pass a school at any time, you could hear nothing but the wailing of children undergoing punishment and the shouts of the infuriated master.

The Scotch public schools had one great advantage in those days. French was well taught, as many boys were afterwards sent across to France to study at the colleges, while Latin was a main subject of study, as indeed it was in every land where there was any system of education at all. Knox undoubtedly both spoke and wrote scholastic Latin well when he left school, and we know that he must have been an excellent French scholar also, for in after years he was able to preach to French congregations in their own language with ease and power.

We know that John Knox was sent to continue his studies at St. Andrew's, and that from the university he returned to his native town, but from this point his biographers are left in baffling ignorance of his life for many years. He seems to have employed himself in private tuition. He emerges suddenly into view in connection with the famous martyr, George Wishart. On the memorable night in 1547 when that reformer, after stirring East Lothian with his preaching, was arrested, Knox, who had carried a two-handed sword in front of Wishart for his protection, offered to go with him to prison. But the older man would not agree. "Go back to your bairns, one is sufficient for the sacrifice," said he. And the gentle but eloquent Wishart went on to the flames, while back to his home went Knox, hitherto grim and silent, but soon to break his silence and to astonish all Scotland with his fiery declamation. From this time everything about Knox was demonstrative. Henceforth for him there was no rest, no peace. Crisis followed crisis. Entering a sanctuary as an ordinary worshipper, he was suddenly called, in the name of the assembled congregation, to become their minister. Overwhelmed and bursting into tears, he rushed away and fought out the battle within his soul in solitude.

Knox commenced his ministry in St. Andrew's castle, where only the Protestants could find safety. But it

A SURPRISE PARTY

How the Authoress Turned the Tables on Her Friends.

A distinguished authoress with her husband moved to a California fruit ranch to get free from stomach and nervous troubles. She tells her food story as follows:

"The change to outdoor life, abundance of fresh fruit, etc., did help us some, but as the necessity of cutting out all indigestible foods and thus striking at the root of the trouble, had not sufficiently impressed itself on our minds, we continued to indulge our appetites, till at last I was prostrated for a long time with a serious illness, during which I was simply starved on 'gruel and things.' One day while in this condition I demanded Grape-Nuts, merely because I wanted something I could chew. My wish was complied with, under protest at first, however, and then as no bad results followed, the crisp, nutty grains were allowed me in the way of humoring a harmless whim.

"To the surprise of everyone, the stomach which had persistently refused to retain the sloppy messes usually fed to sick folks, readily assimilated the Grape-Nuts, and I was soon able to take two spoonfuls three times a day, and when I got to that point my health and strength came back to me rapidly. On recovery, and taking up my work again, I adhered to Grape-Nuts food for breakfast and supper, eating a good plain dinner at noon. In four weeks I gained 10 pounds in weight. I have constantly used Grape-Nuts food ever since and greatly to my advantage.

"My faith in Grape-Nuts was a matter of much jesting to my family, and once when my birthday came around, I was told that a special dinner would be prepared to honor the anniversary. When I entered the dining room I was surprised to find it decorated with Grape-Nuts boxes, some empty, some full, and some filled with flowers, etc., etc., and the joke was hilariously enjoyed. My time came, however, when I returned the surprise by producing a delicious Grape-Nuts pudding, and dates stuffed with rolled Grape-Nuts and cream. Then 'those who came to scoff remained to gorge themselves,' if I may be pardoned the expression. It has not been difficult since that day to win converts to Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial is proof.

was cut short in two months by the capture of the castle by the French, who had been called in to crush this "rebellion." Knox and many other Protestants were carried off and condemned to labor at the oars of the galley "Notre Dame." There, for nineteen months, through winter's cold and summer's heat, the captive toiled at his oar. After his release by the French king, through the intervention of the English government, he settled for ten years in England, as one condition of his freedom was that he should not return to Scotland. The result of this long exile was that he became an English as well as a Scottish reformer. He learned to love England and Englishmen, as he makes us understand in his writings. Of this section of his life he spent five years in preaching in England, and five in preaching on the continent to English people scattered there. He married an English wife, his two sons were educated in England, and he was blamed for writing more like an Englishman than a Scotchman. Knox was one of the largest-minded and broadest-hearted and broadest-minded of men. And he wandered over England between Berwick and London, drawing large crowds to listen wherever he went. Most of the latter five years of his exile he spent at Geneva, preaching in English and French, and associating much with John Calvin. He was chosen minister of the English exiles who had settled in Geneva when driven out by the persecution under Queen Mary Tudor.

The final and greatest work of Knox's life began when, on May 2, 1559, he arrived in Edinburgh. The Regent Arran had been succeeded by Mary of Lorraine, mother of Mary, Queen of Scots. Nothing so powerfully contributed to precipitate the reformation in Scotland as the policy of Mary of Lorraine, whose darling aim was to convert Scotland into an appanage of France. She filled her court with French statesmen and officials, and brought to Scotland as many French soldiers as possible. But she forgot the fiery patriotism of the Scots, both Protestant and Catholic. The men who had joined constantly to defend their country from the English kings, were just as ready to save it from becoming the slave of the king of France. Knox arrived at a critical juncture, and he at once faced it. His action led to the civil conflict known as "The War of the Congregation." The outcome of this was the establishment of Protestantism. But Mary of Lorraine, the pro-French regent, died during the momentous struggle, and her beautiful daughter Mary, who had been for nineteen years living in France, returned to her native land to become queen. The young sovereign showed ample ability, great vivacity and boundless imprudence. Four times Knox, now continually thundering from the pulpit of St. Giles's, was commanded to appear before her. The more the two knew of each other, the more they hated each other's aims and views. But political complications with England were added to the religious and civil difficulties at home. Mary, the subject of conspiracies amongst her own nobles, was at length exiled, and then imprisoned in England. Scotland was for some years rent between two contending factions. The closing period of Knox's wonderful life was clouded and embittered by the scenes enacted, yet he had done his work well, and more than any other man had helped to make Scotland a nation. King James and his party triumphed. The reformation was secured. The end of the great reformer's life was peaceful. He died amongst his own family and people and was buried in his own beloved Edinburgh.

London, England.

◆ ◆

The Secret of Power.

(Continued from page 729.)

hedrists of crucifying Christ and there is no relaxtion in the energy and zeal of these men who are inspired by the Holy Spirit. No matter where they go, no matter what perils they encounter, they continue to be animated with this holy spirit, this heroic courage, this determined purpose to preach Christ and him crucified. Their activities continue till they seal their testimony with their blood.

The advent of the Holy Spirit on the day of pentecost was not merely a transient prodigy to meet an emergency but the coming of the Comforter to abide permanently with the church; to take up his abode in the heart of its members and to call them into the service of the Lord. The work of the Spirit may readily be traced step by step through the New Testament in the work of the apostles and disciples of the Master. The Acts of the Apostles may appropriately be called "the gospel of the Holy Spirit." In the epistles we find the same persuasive presence and agency of the Holy Spirit. These letters of the apostles abound with recognition of his presence in the churches and the individual members of the churches, comforting the sorrowing, strengthening the weak, inspiring them with love, joy and peace and sealing them unto the day of redemption. It was the secret power of the early church and its members.

Christ promised to send the Holy Spirit to abide with the church to the end of time. He has never withdrawn that promise. The Spirit came and he is still here. He blessed the advocates of the gospel in the early churches and he will now bless all who faithfully preach the word of God. It is better to have the power of the Holy Spirit than all the power of eloquence and learning and psychic force of the world. The early church was continually replenished with this power and to-day we need to be continually replenished with this power. We may have this power at one time and find it lacking at another time. Therefore, we must daily bring our weak vessels to God's fountain to have them filled with the Spirit. Has he not promised to give the Spirit to them that ask him?

◆ ◆

I am heartily glad to witness your veneration for a Book which, to say nothing of its holiness or authority, contains more specimens of genius and taste than any other volume in existence.—W. S. Landor.

◆ ◆

BOOK OF BOOKS
Over 30,000,000 Published.

An Oakland lady who has a taste for good literature, tells what a happy time she had on "The Road to Wellville." She says:

"I drank coffee freely for eight years before I began to perceive any evil effects from it. Then I noticed that I was becoming very nervous, and that my stomach was gradually losing the power to properly assimilate my food. In time I got so weak that I dreaded to leave the house—for no reason whatever but because of the miserable condition of my nerves and stomach. I attributed the trouble to anything in the world but coffee, of course. I dosed myself with medicines, which in the end would leave me in a worse condition than at first. I was most wretched and discouraged—not 30 years old and feeling that life was a failure!

"I had given up all hope of ever enjoying myself like other people, till one day I read the little book "The Road to Wellville." It opened my eyes, and taught me a lesson I shall never forget and cannot value too highly. I immediately quit the use of the old kind of coffee and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. I noticed the beginning of an improvement in the whole tone of my system, after only two days use of the new drink, and in a very short time realized that I could go about like other people without the least return of the nervous dread that formerly gave me so much trouble. In fact my nervousness disappeared entirely and has never returned, although it is now a year that I have been drinking Postum Food Coffee. And my stomach is now like iron—nothing can upset it!

"Last week, during the big Conclave in San Francisco, I was on the go day and night without the slightest fatigue; and as I stood in the immense crowd watching the great parade that lasted for hours, I thought to myself, 'This strength is what Postum Food Coffee has given me!'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

The little book "The Road to Wellville" may be found in every pkg.

Our Budget

—Missouri Christian convention, Marshall, June 16 21!

—Let us make it a great rally of Missouri Disciples—representing our Sunday-school, our Christian Endeavor, our Christian Woman's Board of Missions and our state missionary co-operation.

—The Lord's day at our Missouri conventions is becoming a great day, with its communion service in the afternoon and all the pulpits of the town filled with our ministers. It is a day of fellowship and of worship to fit us for the business of the convention.

—If you are a business man, with important business engagements on hand, you are a man that is needed in the convention. Subordinate your business for a few days to your Father's business. Let us plan large things for God, and expect great blessings from him.

—The Herald and Presbyter, quoting a remark from a contemporary that the Westminster Confession of Faith has passed its usefulness and is no longer in demand, says: "We have the confession in our Special Offer list, and it sells right along. If nobody cared for it, it would not sell." Our Cincinnati neighbor seems to forget that we are a nation of relic hunters. This confession will be valuable after a while as an ecclesiastical curiosity! But, seriously, does anybody in the Presbyterian church believe the old, unrevised confession?

[Telegram.]

—Chas. Reign Scoville and De Loss Smith are in Beaumont, Tex.; came last night; dedicated $21,000 dollar church to-day. Raised more than asked for; all provided; nine confessions first day; house crowded and overflowing.

June 4. J. HOLMES, pastor.

—A. B. Hibner has been preaching for the brethren at Elk City, Okla.

—We hear a very good account of the work that A. L. West is doing at Williamsport, Ind.

—Commencement at Hiram college is June 18-22. We will give an outline program in our next issue.

—Sansom D. Brown, of Fairfield, Illl., has accepted a call to the Central Christian church at Evansville, Ind.

—J. E. Chase, from indications that we have received, is evidently giving satisfaction to the citizens of Valparaiso, Neb.

—The Easter receipts for the National Benevolent Association amount to 47½ per cent more than those of any previous year.

—Paul McReynolds, son of J. C. McReynolds, formerly of Berkeley, Cal., is now taking a special course at Oxford university, England.

—The Sunday-school at Hopkinsville, Ky., observed children's day, May 28, and raised $420, or $125 more than last year. This is a fine start.

—The Chinese mission in Portland, Ore., sustained by the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, has had eight conversions in the last two months.

—H. O. Breeden is to preach the sermon at the dedication next Lord's day of a $30,000 church at Fort Smith, Ark., where E. T. Edmonds is pastor.

—John A. Stevens has been elected state evangelist and corresponding secretary of Louisiana. All his mail should be addressed to Alexandria, La.

—We notice that our young friend, F. M. Green, of Kent, O., whom the Editor of this paper first met something less than 40 years ago, is about to lead to the altar of matrimony a Mrs. Wright, of Hiram, we believe. We extend to the young couple our hearty congratulations.

—J. Cronenberger has resigned the work at Athens, Ga., and is now ministering for the First church at Falls City, Neb , where the work goes on well.

—Chas. R. Scoville dedicated the new building at Forrest, Ill., and the full amount of indebtedness was provided for. We hope to publish further particulars.

—W. N. Briney goes to Louisville, Ky., July 1, and J. T. McGarvey, of Carthage, will succeed him at Warrensburg, Mo., on or before Sept. 1.

—The Iowa state convention will meet at Des Moines, June 23-28. The program, which we will present next week, gives promise of a profitable meeting.

—The Foreign Society has received $1,000 on the annuity plan from a friend in Indiana. This is the fourth gift from this friend since January 1, and the four gifts aggregate $6,000.

—We learn from the office of the Foreign Society that more orders for children's day supplies were received this year than ever before in the twenty five years' history of our children's day.

—The brethren at Blue Mound are heartily co operating with their new preacher, W. H. Harding. A fine brick building, to cost about $10,000, is being erected, and will be completed about the first of November.

—They are being added to the membership at Payson, Okla. J. K. Kensler reports that plans are being formulated to build a house of worship soon, and an early visit from A. B. Carpenter, pastor at Apache, is expected.

—C. G. Manley, of Stone City, Kan., has been called to Mount Valley for half time. The church there has been badly shattered by dissensions between the progressive and conservative elements, but we understand that things are going along smoothly now.

—H. C. Boblitt and wife, who have just entered upon the work at Leipsic, Ohio, have received encouragement and the support of the other ministers of the town in a reception that was publicly tendered the new pastor and his wife. Everything points to a successful year's work at Leipsic.

—The offering for home missions last week showed a gain of more than $1,000 over the corresponding week last year. Our 280 churches have made an increased offering this year and more than 340 churches have wheeled into line that were not on the list last year. This is cheering news indeed.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burner, Barry, Ill., will go to the Argentine republic, South America, to open mission work under the direction of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions. Mr. Burner will be supported by the Union avenue church, St. Louis, Mo., of which J. M. Philputt is the pastor.

—The Board of Church Extension cannot report the collection at the national convention because the convention meets a month before the offering. We cordially endorse the effort of the board, as outlined on another page, for securing 2,000 promises, prior to the convention, from churches that will agree to take the offering.

—W. Bayard Craig preached the memorial sermon to the G. A. R. at the Central Christian church, Denver, on Lord's day, May 28. The papers report a great audience, and a great sermon. He has had 12 additions the past two weeks, six by baptism.

—In another place will be found an obituary of the wife of our veteran brother, Allen Hickey, of Iowa. All who know Brother Hickey will sympathize with him in the loss of the companion who has walked by his side for so many years in loving companionship in the service of a common Master. But it will not be long till these earthly separations will be followed by heavenly reunions.

—Brother Z. T. Sweeney's secretary writes that the doctor has ordered Brother S. to "cancel his engagements for the next several weeks. He is not suffering much, but is very weak and nervous from the effects of his accident, and will have to be as quiet as possible for some little time."

—W. T. Adams reports the work at Waitsburg, Wash., as being satisfactory. A new building, to cost not less than $8,000, and possibly $10,000, will be erected this summer. The first amount is already secured in good pledges. The new building will seat not less than 500 people and is to be modern in every particular.

—Bro. Earle M. Todd has just arrived in Boston, accompanied by his mother and sister. Brother Todd will want to find work with some church and we know that wherever he locates he will prove a worker. We can cordially commend him as one of the most consecrated pastors we know. Any communications sent in our care will reach him.

—"I am very glad you called my attention to the expiration of my paper, for I would so much dislike to miss a copy. The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is a great paper. It has been so much strength to me. The Editor's Easy Chair is worth the price of the paper or more. I wish every man in this town read the paper."—J. B. CHAPMAN, East Prairie, Mo.

—W. H. Kern reports that the Salt River Sunday-school, Missouri, raised $20.35 for children's day. Their apportionment was $5. —The offering of the Sunday-school at Sanger, Cal., was over $13. The apportionment was $5.—The Broadway Sunday-school, Lexington, Ky., raised $100 for heathen missions. This is a substantial increase over last year.

—Two important conventions for Christian workers will be held within the near future. The international Sunday-school convention at Toronto, June 23, and the Christian Endeavor convention at Baltimore, Md., July 5. Fine programs have been arranged for each of these international gatherings, and it is to be hoped that all Disciples of Christ who can do so will endeavor to be present at them.

—A. N. Glover has closed his first year's labor with the church at Orange, Cal., and it has been a pleasant and profitable one. The church property has been improved, the missionary offerings have nearly doubled those of any preceding year, while 71 additions and the increased spiritual life of the membership indicate that real work has been done. Harmony prevails, and the pastor several months ago received a unanimous call to remain indefinitely.

—We believe it would prove profitable for many congregations if the preachers would read from their pulpits the article we published a few weeks ago from the pen of Brother McLean on the subject of "Behavior Becoming the House of God." It is a subject that very many church members need to consider. T. H.

POND'S EXTRACT
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
Rough Red Skin
can be brought back to its normal condition by bathing with Pond's Extract.
Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of seventy samples of Witch Hazel—so often offered as "just as good" —fifty-two were found to contain wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both. To avoid danger of poisoning insist on having
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
POND'S EXTRACT

Blenus, of Jacksonville, Fla., has just done this at his regular morning service prior to the delivery of his sermon; not because he felt that his own congregation, as a whole, needed it, but as a matter of such importance that it was worth while.

—Up to June 1 the receipts of the Foreign Society amounted to $134,193.64, an increase over the corresponding eight months of last year of $31,976.33. A gain of $6,705.07 must be made between this and September 30 to insure the quarter of a million dollars. We have no doubt that the Sunday-schools during June will do their full part in making the gain necessary. It would be a real calamity if we fail to reach the quarter of a million now that it is clearly in sight.

—George Darsie has resigned his work at Massillon, Ohio, to accept a call from the First Christian church of Akron. The church at Akron is one of our strongest churches, and Brother Darsie is to be congratulated on his call to this responsible position. Bro. John G. Slater, who is at present pastor of the Frst Christian church of Akron, will, in September next, go to the East End church of Pittsburg, Pa. Brother Darsie has been very successful in his work in Massillon, having been there three years, in which time the church has lifted a heavy debt, and rebuilt its church building and added largely to the membership of the church.

—Two summer schools of evangelism will be held under the direction of our standing committee on evangelism. The first will be at Chautauqua July 8-19. F. D. Power, H. O. Breeden, C. S. Medbury, and A. B. Philputt will deliver a dozen or more addresses, while other speakers will take part in the discussions. A rate of one fare plus $1.00 for the round trip will prevail on all the railroads running to Chautauqua, and will be in effect July 7. The second school will be at Bethany Park, Ind., July 31 to August 10, inclusive. Chas. R. Scoville, James Small, John E. Pounds, A. McLean and A. B. Philputt are among the speakers.

—A great many of the preachers of the Christian churches have been chosen to deliver baccalaureate, memorial, and special sermons during the past and the next few weeks. So many, indeed, that we cannot attempt to single out individual ones unless they are of more than local interest. We would gladly do this had we space, but the rush of impo.tant news just now is very great, and we know our brethren would rather know what is happening in the way of souls won, and progressive development of our churches and colleges than to see their names in print, as having delivered a memorial sermon for the G. A. R. or a high school class address.

—The new church at Seneca, Mo., is to be dedicated next Lord's day by T. A. Abbott and Joseph Gaylor. The building is of pressed brick, 32x48 feet, with art steel ceiling, inclined floor, and it will be tastefully decorated; the seating capacity will be about 250, and the cost $3,000. About $900 is yet to be provided. The membership now numbers 75 workers who are faithful, but nearly all of whom are poor in this world's goods. A dollar apiece from 500 brethren of the state would materially help the situation at Seneca. Joseph Gaylor and F. M. O'Neal are now conducting a meeting which in three weeks has resulted in 15 additions.

—Our readers will be glad to learn from the letter from Brother Richardson which appears elsewhere, of his return to Kansas City, and to his work, and that he has made substantial progress toward the complete recovery of his voice. We call special attention to the closing paragraph of his letter in which he urges the brethren of Missouri, and especially "our leading business men," to attend the Marshall convention. There is a feeling quite general throughout the state that this convention should set a pace for our co-operalive work in Missouri. To this end, it is important that the attendance be large and representative. Let each important church in the state see that it is represented by its pastor, and a few of its leading men.

—An affecting incident occurred at the Union avenue Christian church in this city on a recent Lord's day morning service. Of the thirteen who came forward at the invitation, seven were from the Christian orphans' home. The pastor, Brother Philputt, said he had talked with all of them and that he believed they could make the confession intelligently, without any question from him. With that, they began, and, one by one, said, clearly and distinctly, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and I wish to take him as my Savior." There were not many dry eyes in that audience when these little ones had finished confessing their Lord, and publicly accepting him as their personal Savior. It is said the pastor had difficulty in distinct articulation in speaking a few words following their confession.

—Someone has sent us a tract on "Baptism for the Remission of Sins," by one George K. Raymond, Brighton Beach, Seattle, Wash. The author of the tract lays great stress upon the importance of baptism, even speaking of "baptism for the remission of sins" as "that greatest of all subjects"—an exaggeration which is only excelled by the remark which immediately follows it. We quote as follows: "The Christian church (so-called) professes to baptize 'for the remission of sins'; they boast much of it, but they seem to be entirely ignorant of the wiles of the devil, who has led them to utterly ignore the operation of the Spirit of God, hence they cannot have faith in the operation of God when they are 'buried with Christ in baptism.' . . . So their whole work is a failure; they have water, but 'no Spirit'; the other churcues have all Spirit, but 'no water'; the devil is not particular as to which side of the track he gets them off on, so that he causes them to disbelieve God's plan," etc. We venture to suggest one subject which we think is even more essential to salvation than a correct understanding of the doctrine of "baptism for the remission of sins," and that is truthfulness. We commend this subject to Mr. Raymond, whose statement, as quoted above, is absolutely and unqualifiedly false. If he does not know it to be false, he is altogether too ignorant to be writing a tract. No people have accentuated faith as a condition of baptism more than those whom he slanderously represents as "ignoring the operation of the Spirit of God." They believe and teach, too, that such faith comes only through the testimony of the Spirit of God, through whom men are convicted of sin and made proper subjects for baptism.

❖ ❖

Iowa Bible-School Work.

Our fourth year's work will close with the convention in June. We will have twenty-one months of field work to report. Besides the institutes held and Bible-school addresses made, we will be able to report about 175 additions made to the church.

We are now urging our schools to send in their offerings for the work before the state convention and insisting that they remember that the state Sunday-school work stands at the head of the list and should not be passed by for any other interest. We are glad to report that our offerings this year for benevolences and American and foreign missions promise to be the best in the history of the state. We are to have a fine program at the state convention on Saturday, June 24, at Des Moines. Yours from Iowa,

J. H. Ryan, State Sup't.

Des Moines, Ia.

DEMAND FACTS
About What You Eat.

When it comes to food, demand to know the facts about what goes into your stomach.

Not only that it is pure but that you are not deceived in the description of its contents and condition. Some flaked breakfast foods that have thus far failed, are now being advertised in close imitation of the Grape-Nuts advertising, thinking in that way to finally make a success of the failure.

But false statements of the merits of human food will never on earth build up a business. These flaked foods are not pre-digested. They are not fully cooked and the starch in them is starch still, and has not been turned to sugar as claimed.

Chemical analysis tells the truth and the analysis of the famous chemists of the world show Grape-Nuts the only prepared breakfast food in which the starch part of the wheat and barley has been transformed into sugar and therefore ready for immediate digestion. Why is this true? All the thin rolled flake foods are made by soaking the grains of wheat or oats in water, then rolling, drying and packing. These operations do not cook or predigest the starch.

Contrasted with this pretense, observe the care, method and skill in making Grape-Nuts.

The barley is soaked about one hundred hours, then it is slowly warmed for some days and sprouted, the diastase being developed and part of the starch turned to sugar, (and later on all of it), then the grains are baked and the sprouts are stripped off. Then comes grinding, sifting and mixing with the creamy colored flour made from white and macaroni wheat. This mixture must be skillfully made in right proportions. This blended flour contains just the ingredients demanded by nature to rebuild the soft gray substance in the nerve centers and brain, but how to make the food easy to digest, that was the question.

It certainly would not do to mix in drugs, for there is a certain failure sure to come to the person depending on drugs to digest food. They may do for a temporary expedient, but pure food and digestible food is the only final resort and safe way. So to change the remaining starch part and prepare the other elements in this blended flour it is made up into massive loaves like bread, the inside being dark cream color and quite sticky to the touch; These loaves are sliced and again go through long cooking at certain temperatures. Then the rock-hard slices are each one carefully inspected and ground ready for packing and use, having gone through 10 or 12 hours in the different operations.

When finished, each little granule will show a sparkling substance on its surface. A magnifying glass will bring it out clearer and develop little pieces of pure dextrose sugar, not put on "or poured over" (as the head of a large Sanitarium once stated in his paper, thus exposing his appalling ignorance of food processes) but this sugar exudes from the interior of each as the starch is slowly turned to sugar in the process of manufacture. This kind of sugar is exactly like what is found in the human intestines, provided the starch of the grains, potatoes, bread, rice, cake, etc., etc., has been perfectly digested. But many are weak in that form of digestion and yet need the starches, so Grape-Nuts supplies them pre-digested and ready to go quickly into the blood.

Visitors are shown freely through the works and can follow the steps of making Grape-Nuts from the grain to the finished product. The proportions of different kinds of flour, and the temperatures are not disclosed, and it seems impossible for others to steal these secrets of the makers. But purity, cleanliness and skill are shown in every corner of the immense pure food factories. People who care for results from choicely selected food, those who want the food to rebuild the soft gray substance in brain and nerves that give the go, the vigor, the life, will understand why the imitators who try to copy the announcements about Grape-Nuts have failed in the past.

There's a reason for Grape-Nuts and a profound one.

Missouri State Meeting Notes.

Entertainment.—The entertainment will be on the usual plan, lodging and breakfast free and you will pay 25 cents each for dinner and supper; all hotels and restaurants in Marshall have made this rate for our delegates during the sittings of the convention.

Names.—Bro. C. A. Knight is very anxious that you precede your coming at least a few days by your name; this will help him very much indeed in his large task of assignment.

Railroad Rates.—One fare plus 50 cents for the round trip to Marshall and return from any Missouri point. Tickets on sale June 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, good to return until and including June 22. You don't need any certificate, you get a round trip ticket, paying for it one first class rate and 50 cents additional. See your agent a few days before hand and find if he has his instructions. If not he can get them. Don't neglect this.

Connection.—You can make good connection with the Missouri Pacific at Boonville from the M. K. & T., either by the morning or afternoon trains from Hannibal and Moberly. The train that leaves Hannibal at 2:40 a. m. makes immediate connection at Boonville and puts you in Marshall at 8:43 a. m. The afternoon train puts you there at 6:30. There is good connection via Wabash to Salisbury and Glasgow providing you can get to Salisbury by 11 a. m. Delegates to whom it is convenient can take the Santa Fe to North Lexington at 8:30 a. m., cross the river and make the Missouri Pacific for Marshall, but the return trip is not good. Get your agent to look up your connection.

Finally.—Unless the tardy churches either send us their offerings before the convention or bring them to the convention we shall have the shame of reporting a deficit.

T. A. Abbott.

311 Century Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

A New Secretary for the Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

Stephen J. Corey, of Rochester, N. Y., has been appointed secietary of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, with headquarters at Cincinnati, O. He joins the president and corresponding secretary in their varied duties in advancing the claims of the work. He enters upon his work July 1. This step has been unanimously recommended by the national convention more than once, and has been urged persistently by many friends of the society for years.

Mr. Corey was born in Missouri in 1873, graduated from the Nebraska state university in 1898, and completed the course in the Baptist theological seminary, Rochester, N. Y., 1901. He served the new church in Rochester while a student, and after his graduation until he was elected secretary of the New York Christian missionary society, in 1903, which position he has filled with great efficiency and to the satisfaction of the churches. He was married to Miss Webster, of Rochester, in 1901.

Mr. Corey is partial to the pastorate, in which he has been so useful and popular, but he yields to the call of the Foreign Society to give the work one or two years' trial, and, if it proves congenial and seems to be the work to which God has called him, it is understood that he will give his life to it.

The growth of the work of the Foreign Society demands more force. Increased power in the power-house is required. More than one-half of our brotherhood is yet asleep. All must be aroused. Stephen J. Corey has a consuming missionary enthusiasm. He is scholarly, a clear and forceful writer, a strong and popular speaker, genial and pleasant, a hard worker, and his characteristic good judgment and poise make him especially fitted for his new duties. We congratulate the brotherhood upon their good fortune in securing his services.

A. McLean,
F. M. Rains.

A New Spanish-American Mission.

The home board has appointed me to take up the work as superintendent of Spanish missions in the southwest, with headquarters in San Antonio, Texas, and Mrs. Taylor and I expect to take up the work about June 1.

It is our ambition to establish and maintain Spanish missions clear around the border of Mexico from the gulf to the Pacific, but as this enlargement must be gradual, on account of the lack of funds and equipment, I shall devote some of my time in evangelistic work among the Americans. There are scores of splendid towns in this southwest district where we have "scattered Disciples," but no churches, and aside from the Spanish work which is of much importance I know of no more important mission field in the world than this district.

We are badly in need of a chapel for our Spanish mission in San Antonio. Our home board owns one of the nicest corner lots in the city for this mission, but we have no chapel.

In entering this important mission field we covet the prayers and help of the entire brotherhood. But let all offerings for this work be sent to Benj. L. Smith, Y. M. C. A. building, Cincinnati, O.

W. M. Taylor.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Campaign for Two Thousand.

Our national convention meets this year in San Francisco, in August. The annual offering for church extension cannot, therefore, be reported at this convention, since our offering does not come until the month of September. All the other societies can report their offerings as they will be practically over on June 30.

To give enthusiasm to the church extension report, the board is beginning a campaign on June 1, to secure a large number of churches that will promise to take the offering in September or some time before the close of 1905, in order to help reach the half-million for church extension. The campaign will extend through June and July, and all promises must be in by July 31, so that the church extension report may go to press August 1. We ought to have at least 2,000 churches promise to take the offering, which would be an increase of 700 over last year. This would certainly be an inspiration to our church extension report and to the national convention, since this year our brotherhood is anxious to complete our first half million dollars for church extension.

The different missionary societies will make reports for ten months and then complete their usual annual reports on September 30.

The Board of Church Extension requests that our preachers enter heartily into this effort, appreciating its value fully. Our pastors should bring the matter to the attention of their official boards at once and report by postal card to G. W. Muckley, Cor. Sec., 600 Waterworks Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. Supplies should be ordered at once.

Echoes from the May Offering.

Moberly, Mo.—Central church: Offering, $100. We had a fine audience and an enthusiastic meeting. I gave the people the facts, and they took them in as if hungry for them.—W. B. Taylor.

Hagerstown, Md.—Our offering yesterday was the largest in the history of this splendid church. We have already passed apportionment mark of $125.—H. C. Kendrick.

Arlington, S. D.—Apportionment $50; offering will reach about $63.70 when pledges are paid.—A. H. Seymour.

Stillwater, Okla.—Offering, $31.25; apportionment, $15 —Virtes Williams.

St. Paul, Minn.—Central church: Apportionment, $25; offering, $58.—A. L. Winship.

Oxford, Kan.—Offering for home missions, $25.75. Hope to add some to it. Apportionment, $10.—B. F. Stallings.

Corydon, Ia.—Apportionment, $10. We will more than double it. I think every church in the county will take the offering this month.—Robt. W. Lilly.

Cleveland, O.—Miles avenue church: Offering taken, largest church has ever given. Still more to come in. More than double former offering.—T. A. Fleming.

McComb City, Miss.—Our home offering will reach about $25; apportionment, $10.—W. W. Phares.

Beaver Creek, Md.—Offering, $100. Will remit by check in a few days.—W. S. Hoye.

St. Paul, Minn.—First church: Our offering for home missions will be over $50. This is a fine showing for this church. The people give gladly.—C. R. Neel.

Johnstown, Pa.—Yesterday was the beginning of the largest offering we have ever taken for missions. You can depend upon us.—C. A. Hibler.

New Cumberland, W. Va.—Expect offering to reach $25; apportionment, $15. No offering last year.—Chas. E. Cowgill.

McMinnville, Ore.—Enclosed find order for $17.10 from the McMinnville church. We gave $4.05 last year.—D. M. Caldwell.

Portland, Me.—Our offering will reach at least $13. This, I know, will cheer you, coming from only a handful, and none of us rich in this world's goods.—H. H. Cushing.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—You can depend upon at least $100 from this church.—T. W. Pinkerton.

Atchison, Kan.—Offering, $32. This is the best offering for home missions in the history of this church.—W. T. Hilton.

Lathrop, Mo.—Apportionment, $35; offering, $50.—J. G. Creason.

Vincennes, Ind.—A great day; apportionment doubled.—Wm. Oeschger.

Lenox, Ia.—Offering, $23; and we reach out to greater things in every department.—W. F. McCormick.

Our Snyder Church.

Every day since the awful cyclone at Snyder, O. T., has added horror to its sickening details. Being on the ground the next day I can bear witness that language cannot describe the awfulness of the scenes of the hospital and morgue.

Our little congregation there was scarcely one month old at the time of the storm. They had been refused the use of denominational churches and so met in an unused store building. They had the best Sunday-school in town. But our organization was small and a number, who had been members elsewhere, refused to take their stand with us for business or social reasons. Now God has spared every one of the little band, though most of them have lost everything they had but the clothes on their backs. It certainly was pitiable to see some of them vainly searching over the places where their homes had stood for some memento of their once happy homes, but all was gone.

Now these heroes of faith, as they have emerged from the ruins, with no roof to shelter them, say, We are going to gather together the fragments of our Sunday-school the first Sunday in June. Their first thought is of the kingdom of God. Some of them heard the dying cry and lament that they did not obey God while they had the opportunity. Now they are determined that the living shall not go untaught or unwarned.

These brethren need a place to meet and if we do not provide it for them I do not know what they can do. We were about to obtain a lot on which to build when the storm came. Now our brethren cannot help themselves. Brethren, will you help them? Snyder will build better than ever. Shall not one of the buildings be a Christian church? Snyder is an important point, and then the church is composed of the material of which heroes are made.

May I hear from you? What will you do for Snyder? Address,

C. M. BARNES,
C. W. B. M. evangelist.

Lawton, O. T.

Christian Industrial School, Baldwin, Ga.

Some few years ago the woman's society of Georgia missions sought to establish a school at this place, forty-five acres of land were donated by the Baker family, which included the school house property belonging to the town. The school was placed in charge of Miss Bunnie Love, of Atlanta, who has been connected with it up to the present. From the first it failed to receive the hearty financial support of the churches, and the burden fell on the members of the society. Last year it was deemed advisable to tender the property and school to the Georgia state missionary society. This was done at their annual meeting held in Savannah in November. It was voted to leave the matter of acceptance with the new executive board. At a meeting held in Atlanta in February it was voted to accept and tender the same to one of our national societies. Dr. C. G. Stockard, Rev. J. W. Cocke, state evangelist, and E. L. Shelnutt, editor of the Southern Evangelist, were appointed a committee with power to act. The offer was made and duly presented to the National Benevolent Association of St. Louis. At their meeting held May 9 the matter was officially presented by the writer on behalf of the state board and our people of the south. A committee of three was appointed with power to act. The prospects are that Georgia and our southeastern states are to have a branch of our Natiomal Benevolent Association in their midst. Our people are rejoicing that we can become a part of this blessed ministry to the orphaned and homeless ones. If consummated, which we hope will be soon, the south, now prosperous and united in the bonds of blessed union and fellowship, will rise to her privilege and extend a hearty sympathy and support to this movement. Baldwin is situated 76 miles north of Atlanta on the main line of the Southern railroad to Washington; it is an incorporated town and the property is inside the corporate limits. It is 1,700 feet above the sea level, beautiful for situation, and unexcelled for healthfulness. From it can be viewed the Blue Ridge mountains, with Mount Yonah in front, making it one of the finest bits of scenery in all our southland. In the near future it should become a summer resort for our people, for it is just the place to center for a Bible conference like Northfield.

WILLIAM B. SHAW,
Missionary to the northeast Georgia Christian churches.

Baldwin, Habersham county, Ga.

UNEQUALLED
FOR USE IN
EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.
NEW SONGS OF THE GOSPEL No. 2.
$8 00 the Hundred.
Contains nearly all the great gospel songs now in use in America and England, including "Tell Mother I'll Be There," "As the Day Breaks," "Never Known To Fail," etc Send for returnable sample. . . . We pay the postage.
Hall-Mack Co., 1018-1020 Arch St., Phila.
156 Fifth Av., N. Y.

Eureka College Semicentennial.

The 45th annual commencement and semicentennial celebration of Eureka college will be celebrated at Eureka, Ill., from June 11-16. An elaborate program has been arranged in honor of this special event. Charles A. Young will preach the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning next. There will be a special service in the evening. Intersociety contest will take place on Tuesday evening. Class dav exercises will be Wednesday afternoon, and the alumni banquet in the evening. The Editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST has been asked to make the annual address. Among those who will take part on alumni day will be: Elijah Dickinson, J. H. Smart, Miss Elmira Dickinson, J. G. Waggoner, Finis Idleman, B. J. Radford, Silas Jones, F. W. Burnham, S. E. Fisher, Dr. H. B. Boone, J. W. Kern, H. T. Swift, R. F. Thrapp, A. W. Taylor, C. A. Young, and A. McLean. Prof. Edgar O. Lovett, of Princeton, will make the commencement address on Thursday evening. Friday morning the semicentennial will be celebrated, when greetings from representatives of different institutions will be followed by an address, "Democracy and Culture," by C. C. Morrison, of Springfield. After a basket dinner on the campus there will be greetings from the colleges of Illinois and the Disciples of Christ. B. J. Radford will present the jubilee poem.

Bethany College Commencement.

The sixty-fourth annual commencement of Bethany college will begin Lord's day, June 11, with the baccalaureate sermon by Peter Ainslie, of Baltimore, Md. The annual meeting of the board of trustees will be held on Tuesday. Tuesday evening, President and Mrs. Cramblet will give a reception. On Wednesday the class day exercises will be held. In the evening the musical department will give its exhibition. On Thursday at 9:30 a. m., the graduating exercises proper will be held. There are thirty-six graduates this year. On Thursday evening arrangements have been made for holding a contest between the four literary societies of the college. W. B. Taylor, recently elected to the vice-presidency of the college, will deliver an address at the commencement exercises. W. R. Warren, of Pittsburg, the president of the alumni association, will have charge of the alumni reunion.

Changes.

J. G. Shaw, Kewanna to Francisville, Ind.
W. H. Sewell, Colorado to Merkel, Texas.
Randolph Cook, Vinita to Afton, I. T.
F. C. Lake, Wychwood Park, Ont., to Box 412 West Mansfield, Ohio.
Sumner T. Martin, Riverside to 140 N. Pasadena ave., Pasadena, Cal.
R. H. Ingram, Creston, to Allerton, Ia.
J. G. Slick, Yates Center, to Arapahoe, Neb.
Wesley Hatcher, Columbus to 719 Campbell avenue, Hamilton, Ohio.
W. W. Pew, Porterville to Fowler, Cal.
J. F. Ryan, Malvern to Quaker City, Ohio.
J. D. Stephens, Whitehall, Mont., to West Lake, Ont. (for June), to Winger, Ont., beginning July.

Ready for Delivery
A New Book by J. H. GARRISON,
Editor of The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
-ENTITLED-
THE HOLY SPIRIT:
HIS PERSONALITY, MISSION AND MODES OF ACTIVITY.
Contains 211 pages.
Printed on Best Heavy Book Paper.
Wide margins. Large, clear type.
Substantially bound in cloth.
Gilt title, side and back.
Like the other works of the author this book is written in dignified yet plain and simple language and is readily comprehended by the great body of the people for whom it is intended.
A Very Thorough Treatment
—of a—
Very Interesting Subject
It embraces twelve chapters which form a splendid analysis of the subject and are as follows:
1. The Tri-Personality of God.
2. Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.
3. Function of the Spirit in Conversion.
4. Relation of the Holy Spirit to Christians.
5. Blessings from the Holy Spirit.
6. Jesus and the Holy Spirit.
7. Significance of Pentecost.
8. Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit.
9. Spiritual Gifts.
10. Perfecting Holiness.
11. Christian Union and the Holy Spirit.
12. Perpetuity of the Spirit's Guidance.
Student, Pastor and People
will alike find a very great help in the reading of this latest work of Brother Garrison.
A Popular Book at a Popular Price.
Only One Dollar, Postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

New York Convention.

Owing to the fact that Elmira is not able to finish their new church in time, the state convention will be held at Auburn, N. Y. A splendid program, an enthusiastic church, and a central location, insures a great meeting. Get certificates when you buy tickets so to insure fare and a third. Remember the date, June 27-30.

S. J. COREY, Cor. Sec.

Our Orphans' Home in Colorado.

Some time ago Brother and Sister J. W. Warren, of Loveland, Colorado, gave to "The National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church," St. Louis, more than two hundred acres of land, valued at $10,000, about one mile distant from the Loveland (Col.) railroad station. This is a fine body of land, admirably located and well watered. In this region you are to remember that water is king.

It was the desire of the donors that on this property should be located a home for orphan children, to be managed, directed, controlled, supported, by the Christian church. It was for this reason that the land was deeded to "The National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church." It is probable that this place will be known as "The Colorado Christian Orphans' Home."

The thought is to erect a group of cottages for the accommodation of fatherless and motherless children where will be furnished, and enjoyed, the comforts and blessings of a real home. The word home in all statements concerning this philanthropic enterprise should be made emphatic.

The first cottage was dedicated Tuesday afternoon, May 23, 1905.

The building is of brick. It is modern in construction, furnishings, arrangement. The cottage is homelike. The boys and the matron at present occupy it. They constitute a happy family. There are eight rooms and bath in the building. There is not one dollar of debt on the property. The cost of the building was $3,100. A gentleman who knows the cost of such a building, in other places, said in my presence, that it would cost almost twice $3,100 to erect such a building in St. Louis.

From fifty to a hundred people were present to rejoice in the formal opening of this home and to participate in the simple dedication services.

George L. Snively, the general secretary of the National Benevolent Association, St. Louis, was present as an active, joyous participant. Mrs. Shedd, of St. Louis, a member of the central board of the National Benevolent Association, added to the interest of the occasion by her presence and words. Leonard G. Thompson, corresponding secretacy of the Colorado Christian missionary society, offered the prayer of dedication, J. H. Mohorter, of the Central Christian church, Pueblo, presided. F. D. Macy, of Greeley, A. E. Dubber, of Fort Collins, and A. O. Walker, pastor of the Loveland Christian church, with their helpmates, were present. Each of the brethren spoke tenderly, beautifully, appropriately, eloquently. E. F. Harris, of "The Society of Applied Christianity," Longmont, Colorado, was also on the ground and participated in the services. The pastor of the Presbyterian church in Loveland, Mr. Jameson, uttered words of sympathy, fraternity, congratulation, hope. Of course Judge Miles and wife, from Fort Collins, were there, happy, sympathetic, hearty. The management has been fortunate in securing the services of Miss Carrie F. Payson as matron of this Christian home. After you have read this letter write to Miss Payson, and ask her what you or your church can do to assist her Christlike work.

Do not fail, please, to do this; you will not regret it. It will be to your interest to do so. You want to be a partner in this benevolent enterprise.

The Diciples of Christ are endeavoring to restore primitive, apostolic, New Testament, Christianity—its creed, its ordinances, its life, "The Colorado Christian Orphans' Home," and the work of "The National Benevolent Asssociation of the Christian Church" come under the head of "Life." The life of the New Testament church moved along the philanthropic line. Read the first chapters of the Book of Acts. Read the epistles. Our Lord's brother James said:

"Pure religion and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world."

The founding of this home for the homeless, is another feature of "Primitive Christianity revived."

The happiest persons on the ground, on the occasion of which I am giving an account, were J. W. Warren and wife. They are humble, modest, timid, reserved, silent, earnest souls. Brother Warren spoke a few words. Sister Warren said, "I am not a talker." They are better than talkers; they are doers, they know the truth, by experience, of the words of Christ: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The number of such persons increases year by year. B. B. TYLER.

❖ ❖

The Scott Home for Aged Ministers.

We are called to record the going home of our good sister, Mrs. D. M. Scott, of Alexandria, Indiana. Sister Scott was amomg those whom the Lord had entrusted with much of this world's goods, and who faithfully kept her stewardship. She always held out a liberal hand to every good work, and, while her active, useful, Christlike life has closed on earth, her good deeds still bear her testimony. She has provided a home for aged and dependent preachers of the Christian church, deeding to the Board of Ministerial Relief, the old homestead adjoining the city of Alexandria, Indiana. This is a beautiful sixteen acre tract of land on which is a large ten-room house, large barn and other out-buildings, a fine orchard, beautiful shade trees; a stream of living water flows just across the corner; also there is a flowing well of splendid water. This is the homestead out of the D. M. Scott farm, the balance of which has been made into the beautiful town of River Side. Some beautiful homes are in this suburb. The property is estimated at from $12,000 to $15,000. The condition of this gift is that it is to be known and used as "The Scott Home for Aged Ministers." Here is a splendid home in the midst of surroundings most beautiful, and it is the purpose to put it into operation just as soon as the necessary means are in hand with which to install the work.

SCOTT HOME, ALEXANDRIA, IND.

Simply to state what Sister Scott has done is plainly to indicate what the brotherhood ought to do. About $3,000 will be necessary to make some outside repairs and furnish this home for operation. The amount ought to be forthcoming at once. In remitting simply say, "to furnish the Scott home," and you will receive proper credit and receipt for same. Bear in mind, this is a special fund and should in no way interfere with the regular offerings to the work of ministerial relief.

Send all communications and make all money payable to Board of Ministerial Relief, 120 East Market street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

❖ ❖

An Advance at Kinston, N. C.

The "Martin family" was here fifteen days, and one hundred and forty-seven came forward to confess faith in Christ or to take membership in the Christian church by letter or statement. There were one hundred and thirteen baptisms. This may be rightly called a great meeting for North Carolina. He began on Lord's day, April 16. Richard S. Martin is a fine evangelist.

At no time in the history of Kinston has a deeper impression been left on the minds of the citizens. Many hundreds heard our plea who had never cared to hear it, and false impressions were erased. From the start to the finish the crowds were greater than any building in the town could accommodate. We began in the Christian church, with a capacity of six hundred, then we obtained the Baptist church. Into this house we crowded 1,400, but many had to be turned away for want of even standing room. A very attractive and helpful feature of the meeting was the music. The success of this meeting was in no small degree due to the fact that the church was prepared for it, and had prepared the people to expect a great meeting. Also the members were themselves interested and personally interested themselves in their friends. When a reasonable person once heard the music and the evangelist they desired to hear again, and thus the interest spread. "It was the Lord's doing and was marvelous in our eyes." The church in Kinston leads the state in every good work. It is foremost in missions, has the best C. W. B. M., the best Sunday-school, and the little builders society was credited as the banner society in the state by the national secretary, having raised over ninety dollars. The board of officers is composed of the very best men in the town; the mayor and two of the aldermen being on the board. They are all good business and professional men, and withal good Christians. The church has been steadily growing in strength and efficiency, and there are great possibilities for this church in this community. Steps will at once be taken to make arrangements for enlarging the church house, and building a modern Sunday-school room. PRESTON BELL HALL.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

The St. Louis Letter.

Martha-like, the St. Louis letter-writer has been cumbered with so many cares that he has neglected to report for St. Louis for some weeks. He spent a part of last week in Columbia where he went to deliver an address to the graduating class of Christian College. To say the visit was delightful is to put it very mildly. Dr. and Mrs. Moore are a royal host and hostess, and know just how to make every one have a pleasant time. Mrs. Moore was suffering from a very badly sprained ankle which kept her from the activity of the commencement exercises. There were 18 graduates in the regular literary department and quite a number of specialists. The whole of the exercise passed off smoothly, and every one seemed happy.

I never quite realized before just what an institution we have in Christian College. It is one of the biggest things in this country, and our people have reason to be proud of it and its record. The spacious buildings, the beautiful campus, and the up-to-date equipment make it a very paradise for the young lady who desires to attend school away from home under the fatherly and motherly care of such people as Dr. and Mrs. Moore—people whose extended travels and liberal culture make them the peers of any of the educators of this country. Then, too, they have called about them the very best talent that can be had for the different departments of instruction, so that the young lady who goes to Christian College has home instruction, cheerful surroundings, moral influence and Christian culture, all at once. Only two things would ever induce the writer to want to be a girl—one is that he would never have to go to war, and the other is, that he could attend Christian College.

On Wednesday evening the Missouri Bible College—our Bible college—in connection with the State university, was dedicated. It is a beautiful building, well constructed, completed and furnished at a cost of about $26,000. One beauty about the treasurer's report was, it showed all bills paid, and a deficit of only $57. We regard this as a most remarkable piece of financiering. I have seen many churches which cost about $26,000, but I never saw one yet that had anything like the amount of material in it that this college building has. Bro. T. P. Haley was master of ceremonies, Brother Garrison made the principal address, Professor Jones, of the state university, made a short address, Brother Lhamon had charge of the dedication, and Bro. W. T. Moore made the dedicatory prayer. Refreshments were served, and the people were asked to visit through the building. The peofessors, and indeed all of the university people so far as we heard, welcome our Bible work and are proud of our building.

This really seems more of a Columbia letter than a St. Louis letter, but from the abundance of the heart, etc.

St. Louis is all right in every way. It is the only city in the world that ever had a great World's Fair (the greatest in the world) and followed it with a boom. St. Louis is nearer in a boom right now than ever before. New buildings are going up by the thousands. Whole sections are being built up as if by magic. I walked along one street last week and counted sixteen fine large houses going up within five blocks, and I was not in the boom-district.

Our churches are all very busy, and so far as I hear the work was never more encouraging. Good reports come in from all of the ministers at every preachers' meeting. As for Compton Heights, it was never in better condition. In spite of all of our losses from deaths and removals, we have run our membership up from three hundred to five hundred and two in one year and eight months. Our home Bible school now numbers over 500 with an attendance of over 300. Our missions are in a healthy condition and the workers are enthusiastic. We had six additions to the home church last Lord's day; three by commendation and three by confession and baptism.

The greatest battle the Christian people of St. Louis have to fight just now is with the law-breaking element who are determined if possible to force Sunday opening. We must have the help of all good people outside of the city. There is a movement on foot now to get the governor to call an extra session of the legislature to repeal the Sunday closing law. A large per cent of the non-Christian foreign element is backing the movement to kill the law at any cost. The saloon keepers are again opening their saloons on Sunday in defiance of law, and unless the good people of the state rise up and teach a lesson that cannot be misunderstood, it will be but a short time till law-breaking will be as common as it was before Governor Folk was elected. F. N. Calvin.

* * *

Letter From W. F. Richardson.

Dear Brother Garrison:—I have at last returned from my prolonged absence, to my work in this city, and in accordance with your personal request, send you a brief account of myself. First, let me say, in answer to the inquiries of many kind friends, that the absolute rest from public speaking for three months has resulted in great improvement to my vocal cords, and my physician gives me assurance of final and complete recovery, if I am careful for a few months longer in the use of my voice. My brethren in the First church here are unstinted in their generosity and thoughtfulness, and if human kindness can bring about its object, I shall soon be well. Never did a congregation show a more loving and unselfish regard for its pastor than has this church for its unworthy but grateful minister. I trust that coming years may afford opportunity to prove my appreciation. Pardon these personal werds, but I felt that I must thus explicitly declare what this dear people have done for me.

During the first two months of my absence the pulpit was filled by Bro. C. M. Sharpe, of our Bible college at Columbia. Brother Sharpe is a favorite with our people here, and his sermons edified and inspired them. During May we had the pleasure of welcoming to our pulpit some of the representatives of our missionary interests. Brethren G. W. Muckley, W. E. Rambo and B. L. Smith occupied three Sundays with their earnest appeals for the spread of the kingdom of Christ, and the fourth Sunday in the month we took our annual offering for general missions. Despite the fact of my absence for three months, only returning in time to take the offering, the indications now are that it will be equally as large as in former years, which we had hardly dared to hope.

Two months of my vacation were spent on the Pacific coast, mainly in southern California. The cause of primitive Christianity seems to be prospering everywhere. All our churches are growing in numbers, and I believe in spirituality as well. It was my pleasure to hear Brethren Smither, of Los Angeles, Shepherd, of Pomona, and Crabtree, of San Diego, in discourses of clearness and power. Many of our preachers whom I wanted to see I did not, owing to the necessity of rest and silence, that my vocal cords might recuperate their strength. I trust my brethren will accept this apology for seeming lack of courtesy on my part. The beloved F. M. Dowling, of Pasadena, whose failing health has been a source of great anxiety to all his brethren, is rusticating among the foothills of the Sierras, and is hopeful of final recovery.

The last three weeks of my vacation were spent with my son Clement at Roswell, New Mexico, where he has spent the past three years in search of health. I rejoice to say that his lungs have healed, and there is every indication that he will become strong again in the near future. Bro. C. C. Hill, the pastor of the Roswell church, is loved by his people, as he has always been in his Missouri pastorates. I am glad to say that he is getting well and strong, and is doing a great work in that important field. The church is growing under his ministry, and he and his devoted wife are leaders in every good work in the community. The Pecos valley is destined to be one of the most fertile spots on the American continent. With unlimited supply of water, from never-failing rivers that burst out from the bosom of the valley, and artesian wells accessible to all who will bore a few hundred feet in the earth, and a climate that is almost semitropical, it is possible to raise such a variety of grains and fruits as to support a vast population for the limited territory embraced within the valley. Many Disciple families are moving in, and our home mission board ought to receive such generous offerings as to enable it to at once occupy the most important points and establish congregations. Brother Hill is doing all in his power to lay hold of his opportunities thronghout the valley, but one man cannot hope to accomplish more than a fraction of what ought to be done.

I hope that our coming state convention at Marshall will have the presence and counsel of many of the Christian business men of our state. Greater things must be attempted and achieved in Missouri than we have yet seen, or the Disciples of Christ will miss their supreme opportunity. Why cannot two hundred of our leading business men leave their offices and stores for a few days, and meet with their preaching brethren, and other Christian workers, June 16 21, at Marshall? God grant that they may, and that the divine blessing may rest upon our counsels and labors. W. F. Richardson.

* * *

Cincinnati Notes.

Justin N. Green has purchased a home at North Side and settled down to a life work.

The corner stone of the new church at Columbia was to be laid, with appropriate exercises, June 3. Brother Durfee reports 10 added in his first week of meetings there.

Brother Allen, of Lexington, Ky., has been assisting Brother Salyer two weeks at Madisonville with 15 added.

The tenth district will hold its quarterly meeting with the Norwood church June 4. Bro. I. J. Cahill will address the preachers on "The Preacher as an Artist."

Ten not before reported have united with the Richmond street church.

Camp Washington has purchased a lot and are planning a new building. Americus.

* * *

Cures Indigestion

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Nature's remedy for obstinate indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, headache and depression.

Illinois.

With all the struggles through which southern Illinois has passed in its religious life many splendid young men have come to Eureka college and have readily come to the front in intellectual and moral strength and have become able preachers of the gospel, and still more are coming.

The church at Metropolis has been particularly active in selecting and helping poor young men in the ministry. J. T. Alouf, now an able minister in Missouri, and R. L. Beshears, of El Paso, Ill., are noble specimens of what a church and college can do for purposeful young men. David Husband, now of the Pacific Coast, grew to manhoood near Murphysboro. K. C. Ventress, late of Hamilton, Ill., came from Carmi. H. H. Peters, who graduates in June in Eureka college, is from Mt. Carmel and has bright prospects. Mr. Burgess, in school this year from America, and Mr. Huff, from Cairo, are promising young men. W. A. Parker, our able minister of Salina, Kan., came to Eureka from Vienna. Many more might be mentioned. I recall these from memory. I am convinced from what I see that there are scores of young men now in southern Illinois who, with a little encouragement and financial aid in college, would make able ministers of the gospel. It is the duty of churches to look out and push out such into the great work of saving men. The young men themselves should make every effort to make their own way through college into the noblest work committed to men.

The church at Vienna is among our older congregations. This is the residence of I. A. J. Parker, who preached for the church about seven years ago. He has two sons in the ministry doing excellent work and he himself still preaches regularly at points accessible to Vienna. The church keeps up its Sunday-school and social services, but is silent so far as the proclamation of the gospel is concerned. It is hoped that this state will not long continue.

At Carterville we found one of our Eureka boys doing fine work. I do not like to be personal, but here is a fine example of what can be done in nearly all the churches that consider themselves weak. Carterville had been having some one visit them every other Sunday, and were raising for all purposes about $300 a year and felt that this was about the limit of their ability. Gilbert Jones, then district evangelist, visited them and preached some and suggested locating a man and raised the subscription to a living salary and called F. L. Davis nearly two years ago. The brethren are very happy in the new life that has come to the church in all its departments. Offerings for all our great enterprises are taken and more than half as much is raised as the church formerly spent on itself. A new and larger house of worship, suited to the various activities of the church, is a necessity which the brethren are preparing to supply. The brethren feel that they are doing what they now are about as easily as what they did the old way. The Lord knows how to bless his people when they serve and honor him. There are frequent additions to the church and it now looks like two or three young men from the church would soon begin their preparation for the ministry. I have described this work at a little length as a sample of what could be done more or less successfully in many places.

The church at Herrin is comparatively new in a young city which has grown up on account of the immense coal interests that are being developed. D. A. Hunter is the successful and aggressive preacher who is enlarging the religious life of the place as nearly as possible in proportion to the commercial growth. The house of worship, although comparatively new, is already too small and plans are being considered either for its enlargement or an entirely new house.

Marion has one of the oldest and strongest churches in southern Illinois. It was one of the first to have preaching regularly all the time. It was fortunate in securing J. J. Harris, years ago, as its minister, whose faithful, solid building has given the church great strength. He still lives at Marion and by counsel, example and encouragement is doing much for the cause. His evangelistic services throughout southern Illinois have been invaluable. W. W. Weeden, president of the state board of missions, is the present pastor, which insures prosperity and enlargement of church life in all directions. The splendid Endeavor Society has two or three young men who seem drawn toward the ministry. This would be a most happy fruitage of Endeavor work.

The church at Benton is enjoying prosperity under the ministry of Gilbert Jones. He is a noble man with a most valuable partner in the Lord's work. The larger enterprises will have proper attention and the church grow proportionately in power, usefulness, and in its own prosperity. The church that lives for itself, in itself, must perish. The church that sows beside all waters itself enjoys the luxuries of all lands.

The Eldorado of the south has a good new organization and church building and has the potency of a splendid work before it. It is a beautiful little city, and if no stagnation possesses the church, there is a happy future.

Johnston City is a thriving little town eight miles north of Marion. A church was organized there about one year ago; it numbers 90 members, a Sunday-school of 50 and a Christian Endeavor of 25. K. A. Williams is the energetic young minister. The town has about 11 saloons to blight and curse the hopes of its people. There would come in this wonderful coal belt great prosperity and rapid development in all directions of culture, education and religion, were it not for the saloon's blighting power. It is surprising that a people as intelligent and wise as the American people usually are would tolerate the presence, and protect by law, an institution that blocks the way to the higher life, happiness and prosperity of its people. Sin is a reproach to any people, and from such a reproach must come poverty and disappointment.

Southern Illinois is an honorable counterpart of the north end of the state; perhaps hardly so well developed, but full of great possibilities; its soil not quite so generous, but its coal fields hardly surpassed in the world. It produces less corn, but has a wonderful fruit capacity which is growing into sources of wealth. It surprises one unaccustomed to the great latitude of the state to find the ripe strawberries in the south before they are in bloom in the north. In southern Illinois the visitor finds the sweet and black gum trees, the mistletoe and cane-brakes which we think of as belonging to the gulf regions. Our good Father has given to us great diversity, beauty, and possible utility. May our lives and work be as beautiful in his sight.

The time of celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Eureka college is at hand. Liberal preparations have been made for a great occasion. Old students and friends of the college are cordially invited to attend. Time, June 11-16.

Our beautiful souvenir calendar has already gone into many of the states of the union as well as into Cuba, Jamaica, Australia, Japan, China and Africa. Those desiring a copy should order at once through Miss Clara L. Davidson, or the writer. Price 50 cents postpaid.

J. G. WAGGONER.

Eureka, Ill.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER
TROUBLES PROMPTLY CURED.

A Sample Bottle Sent FREE by Mail.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in promptly curing kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles, rheumatism and pain in the back. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, liver, bladder or uric acid trouble you will find it just the remedy you need.

If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this great kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, and a book that tells all about it and its great cures, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing, be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Missouri Bible-school Notes.

Bible-school workers are planning to attend the state convention at Marshall, June 16-21.

Bible-school sessions will be on June 20 and 21. Our board has arranged to have T. J. Legg, of Indiana, present. He will deliver an address on the night of June 20. Mrs. J. H. King, primary superintendent of Missouri, will be present with her teachers' training course illustrated. Our whole list of speakers is made up from people who are doing things.

Three things are to be done during this month:

1. Every Missouri preacher should preach a sermon on "The Bible-school and the Children." F. N. Calvin, of St. Louis, has already done so and liked it so well that he will preach another. The reports coming in indicate that a large number will not neglect this matter. Drop me a card saying you will attend to it.

2. You should see to it that your school has a part in state Bible-school work. Let us have none on the delinquent list at the convention. W. H. Alexander, of Paris, sends $50, and says, "School is growing in numbers and interest." Our county secretaries are sending cheering reports on the money question. Is your school in line?

3. Every school should see to it that the superintendent attends the state convention. Let the school pay the car fare and the superintendent lose the time and it will be even.

Randolph county, with E. E. Tidings in the lead, is planning for a rally of Bible-school workers at Moberly. Our fieldman, N. B. Havener, is at Bass, a real mission point in Cole county. For nearly a year these people have been urging us to come and help. We hope to leave them with regular teaching and preaching services.

Since last notes I have visited Hustonia, Sweet Springs, Sedalia, Pleasant Hill, Adrian, Butler, Platte county convention and Memphis.

W. A. MOORE.

Mexico, Mo.

WE WANT YOU
TO SELL OUR ORIENTAL MASSAGE CREAM
and ORIENTAL SHAMPOO.

They have a national reputation and will bring you in a large income. Full size samples and terms free.
THE ORIENTAL MFG. CO., Station C, Cleveland, O.

A Great Meeting in South Bend

By Perry James Rice

Evangelists Chas. Reign Scoville and De Loss Smith have just closed a very remarkable meeting in the First Christian church of South Bend, Ind. It was one of the great meetings in the history of the Disciples, the greatest in point of numbers added ever held in this church or in this city. In 27 days, 273 names were added to the church register. Only one meeting of the same or similar duration in the phenomenal record of these evangelists has surpassed it, and, when all the conditions are considered, it may be truthfully said that it has no parallel.

During the union evangelistic campaign in Chicago in the early part of February, the writer asked Chas. R. Scoville to come to South Bend to preach for one week or between Lord's days, and he consented to do so at some convenient season. Our plan was to make the most thorough preparation possible, and we anticipated that the week when Brother Scoville could be present would be a sort of harvest from the preceding sowing. We inaugurated a program of neighborhood meetings for the members of the church. The purpose of these meetings was definite and three-fold: First, to explain and talk over in a familiar way our plan and prospects; second, to secure a list of names and addresses of individuals whom we might be able to reach for Christ and his church; third, to pray for the work and especially for the conversion of these individuals. These meetings continued four nights each week for about six weeks. The week before Easter, meetings were held each evening at the church, some department of the Sunday-school forming the chorus for each service, and the pastor delivering a brief message. This was followed by a conference of workers, wherein the more than two hundred names previously secured were given out to members of the church who promised to use their influence to secure their attendance at the services to be conducted the next week by the evangelist, and in every way possible to seek their conversion. These meetings were signally successful. Easter Sunday was a red-letter day for us, especially in point of attendance, and Monday evening Brother Scoville was greeted by a splendid audience, so large and enthusiastic indeed, that he at once felt that he would like to remain longer than a week. The desirability of his doing so was manifest to all; but it did not seem at all possible, owing to previous engagements. But, in a very remarkable, shall I say providential, way, the whole situation with reference to dates suddenly changed; a campaign of a month was agreed upon.

Many things took place which seemed to threaten the interest of the meeting: a large Masonic fair was open every night during the first two weeks; it was housecleaning time and the women were exceptionally busy; we had an unusual number of rainy nights; but none of these things seemed to interfere with the meeting. The audiences were uniformly large, often filling the entire church building, which seats about a thousand people, and, on Sunday evenings people were turned away for want of room. There were confessions at every service except the first two. The Wednesday evening meetings seemed to be especially victorious. There were twelve additions the first Wednesday, ten the second, seventeen the third and sixteen the fourth. These were the evenings when the church at Paris, Ill., and the Metropolitan church in Chicago were holding their prayer-meetings and were especially remembering our work.

There was a large number of young people among the additions and not a few prominent men in middle life who will add materially to the strength of the church. About fifty came from the region of our West End mission, thus assuring a church in that vicinity in the near future. A number also came from the vicinity of the Indiana Avenue church, thus strengthening that work. A number of whole families united, and in several instances, families before represented by one or two of its members were made complete in the church.

We are able to add our testimony of approval to all the good things that have been said with reference to Brethren Scoville and Smith. They are worthy, consecrated, tactful leaders. They do not antagonize, they do not provoke any denominational bitterness, but, with exceptional clearness, set forth the New Testament plan of salvation and basis of Christian union. The writer has had serious misgivings with reference to the methods often employed in such meetings, but after this experience with these evangelists, he can calmly say that no church need fear any evil results following their work. They are both humble, sweet spirited, capable men of God, and when one labors with them for a season, he does not wonder at the remarkable victory for Christ which always attends their efforts.

The church at South Bend, always alive to every interest of the great brotherhood, lifts her head among the churches of this rapidly growing metropolis of Northern Indiana. She has a new vision of the field, and the opportunies which await her, and has already given evidence of a willingness to enter upon the work. The first Lord's day after the meeting closed a new list of weekly pledges was secured, resulting in a very gratifying increase over the old list. Ample preparation is being made to care for all these new members, which, through our two missions and the various departments of our First church, will not be a difficult thing to do. Rev. Arthur C McHenry, who resigned a charge in the Methodist church just out of the city, and united with us during the meeting, has received a call from the church at New Carlisle, but is also being considered by the Indiana avenue church of this city, and arrangements may be made to retain him for that work, and also to assist in caring for the West Washington street mission for the time being. The pastor of the church, P. J. Rice, who has served the church for over five years, was kindly remembered at the close of the meeting with a beautiful gold medal as a souvenir and in appreciation of the work he did, both before and during the meeting. Every possible courtesy was shown him by the evangelists, and he feels himself strengthened in the affections of his people as the result of the meeting.

The Christian Church at South Bend, Ind.

Individual Communion Service
Made of several materials and in many designs including self-collecting tray
Send for full particulars and catalogue No. 27. Give the number of communicants
"The Lord's Supper takes on a new dignity and beauty by the use of the individual Cup." —J. K. W[illegible]
GEO. H. SPRINGER, Manager, 256-258 Washington St., Boston, Mass

Southwest Missouri Notes.

New men among us are John Giddens, of Republic, and Robert Simons, of Monett. At the latter place plans are being made for a great meeting to be conducted by Evangelist W. E. Harlow. Men about to change are Geo. E. Dew, of Neosho, W. A Boggess, of Webb City, A. J. Williams, of Aurora, F. J. Yokley, of Marionville and T. F. Reavis, of Galena.

At Springfield the South street church has raised enough money to keep an evangelist at work in their own county, Greene, for a year. The churches in Barry, Lawrence and Newton are hoping to do the same. Others will likely support men. Our slogan is, "Southwest Missouri for Christ." The South street church will soon build one of the finest houses in the state. Their own "living link" volunteer is now being educated in Drury college of that city, one of the finest colleges in the west. J. E. Hooley is doing well at the First and J. M. Kersey has succeeded in securing enough money to wipe out the $2,600 debt at the Central by the first of August. Good for Springfield.

J. T. McGarvey, of Carthage, recently held a good meeting at Mt. Vernon and is helping F. M. Rains with some foreign missionary rallies in Texas. A modern building at Carthage is one of the future certainties.

J. W. Baker remains in South Joplin despite the efforts made to take him from us. That work grows like a "green bay tree." Their lately enlarged house that will seat 600 in main auditorium is full and a modern building is already needed.

At the First church, Joplin, we are rejoicing in our twin victory in reaching the "living link" column for both foreign and home missions. With other offerings we have raised about $1,000 for missions and benevolences since January 1. Two of our young people have already volunteered for the foreign field. We have a fine mission study class. Our Bible-school Easter Sunday had 641 present, the largest by 104 in our history. Altogether we are greatly encouraged.

I will add that I have been asked to serve as excursion manager for south Missouri and Arkansas to the national convention. The route selected is the Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe. As many special coaches as necessary will be brought into this section for the convenience of passengers. These coaches will go to Kansas City in time to make connection with the Santa Fe, leaving there at 11 a. m., August 8. I should be glad to correspond with any who would like to join our party.

Joplin, Mo. W. F. Turner.

❀ ❀

Washington.

The state convention will be held in Pullman, June 13-15.

The Tacoma First church expects to build a new house of worship this summer. They are reported to have secured a location at the corner of Sixth and K streets. A Brother Moore from Missouri has been engaged to take charge of the church and it is believed that he will lead them on to larger things in that great city than have ever yet been attempted there. Bro. Wm. Reeder has recently removed from Athena, Oregon, to Tacoma and his large liberality will prove a helpful factor in whatever success may be obtained there.

Bro. F. Walden has been chosen superintendent of the Yakima county exhibit at the Lewis-Clark Fair in Portland. There is no place that can surpass this wonderfully productive valley in fruits, and no man in the west is better able to represent such interests than Brother Walden, as he is a successful fruit grower and also editor of one of the leading horticultural journals of the west.

Puyallup church, under the leadership of J. T. Eshelman, will soon occupy their own new church home.

J. V. Coombs followed the union meetings in Seattle with a short meeting in the First church.

Ritzville church is making good progress under the guidance of Brother Harris. The church has had severe trials in the past, but is now free from the elements of strife and it is to be hoped they may do a good work.

Some white men might study ethics under an old Indian on the Yakima reservation. He is a Christian. A lady had bought several cords of wood of him. When the wood was measured he found that it lacked just a few pieces of full measure. The lady said, "Oh, that is all right." A few days afterward, however, he came with enough wood to fully make it up. The lady said, "Why, I told you that was all right." But the Indian replied, "Me want no short cords of wood to meet me in heaven."

The more liberal leases that are now being made of Indian lands will cause more white men to farm on the reservation. The government has extended the irrigation canals, and has made available some of the very best of lands. These lands are among the most valuable in the state and a few of the Indians are good farmers. Most of them, however, prefer their primitive modes of life and the "simple life" of their ancestors. Here is a great field for missionary endeavor and our people have scarcely touched it. Morton W. Rose.

North Yakima.

❀ ❀

Christian College Commencement.

Never before has Christian college at Columbia, Mo., had such a successful year. In point of members, in attendance, the quality of work done and the absence of any disturbing factors, such as sickness, etc., the year has been noteworthy. Further improvements have been made in the college property and others are contemplated in the near future. The commencement exercises were ushered in with the annual exhibition of the art department. A feature of the development of the college is, this year, the orchestra. A thoroughly competent leader has been secured and that a new interest has been manifested by the students was evidenced by the first-class concert given under Professor Cox's direction. The elocution department was ably represented by an evening's entertainment.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by C. H. Winders, who is president of the board of trustees. The occasion synchronized with Brother Winder's tenth anniversary in the pastorate of the Columbia church. The enlarged building could hardly accommodate the big crowd, and the preacher gave every auditor something to think about. Miss Few, who is to be in the faculty next year, sang, to the delight of all present.

A fine ensemble concert was rendered by the students on Monday evening and the class day exercises were held in the college auditorium and on the campus the following morning. Miss Thurman delivered the address of welcome, Miss Kitchin the poem, Miss Glenna Garm the essay, Miss Carter the will, Miss Barlow the prophecy, and Miss Edwards the ivy oration.

There was a burst of enthusiastic applause when the curtain went up on commencement night. Eighteen young ladies beautifully gowned in white, with their class colors in flowers, sat in a semicircle on the platform. The combination took everybody by storm. Prof. C. M. Sharpe of the Bible college delivered the invocation. Miss Effie Harris, a Columbia girl, delivered the salutatory, and F. N. Calvin, of St. Louis, gave an admirable commencement address upon the subject, "Woman, the Masterpiece." C. H. Winders conferred the degrees, dwelling on the successful work of the year and stating that a good start had been made towards securing funds for the erection of a new academic hall which is needed badly. The president, Mrs. Moore, was unable to award the medals owing to a badly sprained ankle.

❀ ❀

News from England.

Bro. Ben. N. Mitchell, of Liverpool, has been with us for a ten days' revival which resulted in about 40 decisions. It was probably the best that the church has ever had. A large hearing was secured and many people came who had not been inside the church before. This has a significance that it would not have in America. Nearly one thousand leaflets and tracts were taken from the literature table, setting forth our position. Good results are already evident from this. Bro. Mitchell has had but little experience in revival work but showed wonderful adaptability for it. He has just resigned the pastorate at Liverpool and may return to America, although strenuous efforts are being made to retain him in this country. Numerous changes are being made in our English pulpits. Bro. R. H. Newton recently returned to the U. S. after a short pastorate at Chester, and Bro. E. M. Todd leaves us after twelve years of faithful service. For the past eight years or more he has been the corresponding secretary of the Christian Association and in that capacity has been the very heart and soul of our movement in this country. Bro. T. H. Bates leaves within a few days for America after ten years in this country, occupying the pulpits at Cheltenham and Lancaster. Brother Bates has grey hairs but a young heart, and has by no means lost his power in the pulpit.

All good wishes to the Christian-Evangelist—the sanest, sweetest and best of religious periodicals. Leslie W. Morgan.

Southampton, England,

❀ ❀

Michigan Summer Resorts.

Among the lakes and rivers of the East Coast of Lake Michigan is the ideal country for a summer outing. Fishing, boating, bathing, sailing, golf, and above all, an ideal climate. Pure air and pure spring water. Health and recreation. Booklets descriptive of these resorts mailed on application to H. F. MOELLER, G. P. A., Pere Marquette Railroad, Union Station, Detroit, Mich.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—Good home convenient to College, Eureka, Ill. Address, 620 Hillyer, St., Pekin, Ill.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished ed and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

ALABAMA.

Bessemer, May 29.—The meeting closed last night; 29 additions—15 by primary obedience, two from the Baptists, 12 by statement and letter. O. G. Spiegel preached. Mrs. O. P. Spiegel assisted.—D. P. Taylor.

ARKANSAS.

Fort Smith, June 3.—We have recently received about 30 persons into our church.—E. T. Edwards.

CALIFORNIA.

Pasadena, May 22.—Sixty added in meeting which closed yesterday.—Sumner T. Martin.

COLORADO.

Denver, May 29.—One baptism in the South Broadway church yesterday.—B. B. Tyler.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington, May 30.—Present at ministers' meeting yesterday: Chas. B. Richards, W. T. Laprade, J. Murray Taylor, J. E. Stuart, E. B. Bagby, F. D. Power and the writer. Additions reported: Fifteenth street (J. E. Stuart), three, two by confession and one by letter; Nineth street (E. B. Bagby), one confessioe; Thirty-fourth street (Claude C. Jones), two confessions; Petersburg, Va. (Chas. B. Richards), seven, two reclaimed and five by letter or statement. Total, thirteen—five by confession and baptism, six by letter or statement and two reclaimed.—Claude C. Jones, secretary.

ILLINOIS.

Rossville, May 29.—Six additions at Rossville, since last report, making 13 for April and May.—H. H. Peters.

Ludlow.—On May 28 Mrs. Hill, wife of Lew D. Hill, of Ludlow, delivered the morning sermon. There were four additions.

INDIANA.

Francisville, May 29.—One baptism yesterday.—J. G. Shaw.

Wolcott, May 26.—James Bennett, evangelist, began a meeting with us last Sunday. Interest and attendance good. We are expecting results.—R. H. Lampkin.

Huntington.—Cephas Shelburne reports two accessions by confession and baptism May 28.

IOWA.

Atlantic, May 29.—Two confessions here yesterday.—W. B. Crewdson.

Creston, June 1.—J. L. Thompson, of Peru, Ind., is with us in a short meeting. During the first week, there were 19 additions—14 baptisms and five by "discovery."—D. L. Selby.

Mystic, June 3.—Five added since last report. The work is growing in all departments. —C. E. Chambers.

Sioux City, June 2.—The report of the Sioux City church for the first quarter of the present pastorate shows the following results: $2,000 paid on the lot, which clears it of indebtedness; $415 raised for local expenses; apportionments for foreign and home missions raised; received into the church by baptism, 18; received by letter, 12; letters granted, 2. A building committee has been appointed and new plans for a church will soon be adopted and a new building will probably be begun in June.—J. K. Ballou, pastor.

Primghar, May 31.—One more accession at Primghar church. Sunday-school and prayer-meeting good at both Archer and Primghar. —J. P. Childs.

KANSAS.

Neodesha, May 29.—The church at this place is taking on new life. Audiences are increasing; Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Society are growing both in numbers and interest. There have been eight accessions during the past month.—E. E. Lowe, minister.

Stone City.—At Mound Valley, Kan., we had five additions by letter the last month. At Stone City, we lately had two additions by letter which I failed to report to you. Everything is bright at both places for a large ingathering of souls in our fall meeting.—E. G. Manley.

KENTUCKY.

Jackson.—There have been 13 additions to the Jackson membership since last report. The building of the church goes steadily on and the membership is enthusiastic. We will greatly need more help before the building is completed.—W. J. Dodge.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Everett, May 27.—Since my last letter we have had four additions: one by confession, one by letter (Methodist), two by baptism and statement (Lutherans).—A. T. June.

MISSOURI.

Unionville, May 29.—All departments of church work are moving along fairly well. During April and May there have been ten added at regular appointments.—J. B. Lockhart.

Purdy, Mo., May 29.—Brother Jeans, of Springfield, having resigned at Verona, the church has given me a very urgent call to preach there twice a mouth (one-half time). We filled our first appointment there last Sunday. One made the good confesion.—Eld. J. P. Haner.

East Prairie, May 29.—A. P. Gilliam closed a meeting at Whiting about a month ago with 62 additions. We had a fine meeting and the new members are working. We had two confessions at prayer-meeting Wednesday night. We have a fine Sunday-school —about 200. Our church is doing well and brethren are working together for the conversion of sinners.—J. B. Chapman.

Richland.—D. W. Moore, of the South street church, Springfield, Mo., just closed a short meeting. He was with us a little over two weeks. There were nine accessions to the church—three confessions, two from the Baptsts, four otherwise. The congregation numbers over seven hundred. They expect to build a modern house of worship in the near future.—J. R. Blunt.

Cameron, May 28.—The good work goes on. The ladies' aid society has recently purchased a fine parsonage. The congregations fill the church. Over four hundred in the Bible-school. One hundred and sixty present in the Endeavor meeting this evening. Eight additions last Lord's day on confession. Five confessions and thirteen baptisms to-day. Everything hopeful for the future.—L. O. Bricker.

Liberty, May 29.—Our meeting at Knob Lick closed with sixteen additions to the church, eight baptisms, two from the Methodists and six by letter. Eld. S. P. Gross preaches for the church once a month. Since the first of the year, I have held four revival meetings, preached 110 sermons, raised and expended in cash for the Lord's work in southeast Missouri, $750, and in addition have given the worthy poor $150; total for all purposes, $900. Since last report have had forty-two additions. Am now in a meeting at Libertyville.—T. J. Head, Mt. View, Mo.

OHIO.

Dayton, May 29.—One addition by statement yesterday at the West Side church.—Henry F. Keltch.

Marion, May 29.—One added to the Central church last evening by confession. Our great day will be July 2. B. L. Smith will be with us to help us raise $5,000. Work here is very hopeful.—O. D. Maple, pastor.

Hillsboro, May 30.—W. P. Dorsey, of Huntington, West Virginia, closed a meeting of 12 days on May 26 with 14 additions, which makes 45 additions since September. J. M. Helm is the minister.

OKLAHOMA.

Chandler, May 28.—There have been six additions this week.—J. E. Dinger, pastor.

OREGON.

Salem, May 27.—We are having a fine meeting; 42 confessions to date. S. M. Martin evangelist; Davis Errett pastor. My address is now 410 N. Summer St., Salem, Ore.— —Charles E. McVay, singing evangelist.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Ellwood City, May 29.—Over two hundred present at the evening service. One baptism. Bible-school attendance 104. "Forward" is the word as we prepare for the battle that is to begin in October next.—Ferd F. Schultz, minister.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Charlottetown.—During May there were two additions by letter at the Central church; also three confessions and two baptisms.—Robert Pegrum, minister.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, May 25.—Two additions since last report—one by letter. Our Sunday-school has run behind 70 only once this quarter.—H. A. Blake.

TENNESSEE.

Jackson, May 29.—Six additions to-day—two baptisms and four by relation. All departments of church in flourishing condition. There have been about 40 additions during the year. E. S. Baker is the pastor.

TEXAS.

McKinney, May 30.—Our meeting of four weeks, led by H. A. Northcutt, closed last evening with 125 additions; 83 of these were by confession and baptism, 25 by statement, eight restored, five by letter and four from the Baptists. The new members would make a self-supporting congregation. We now have some 750 members, and few churches are more united and aggressive. Brother Northcutt begins at Whitesboro this evening.—G. L. Bush, minister.

VIRGINIA.

Norfolk, May 30.—A 10 days' meeting has just closed at the Second church of Christ with 19 additions, mostly by baptism. A. C. Renforth and W. C. Wade did the preaching. Our work is moving on well under the efficient leadership of Brother Wade.—E. T. Powell.

WASHINGTON.

Farmington, May 27.—Just closed a short meeting at Genesee, Idaho, where we had splendid interest and the work revived, but no additions. This is a town of about 1,500 people with a band of faithful Disciples and a nice church building, but no pastor. We would like to find some good man we can locate here. I am now in a meeting at Silver Creek near Farmington, and will continue here up to our annual camp meeting which meets June 16 at Rockford, Wash.—Morton H. Wood, evangelist.

* *

Baby's Food

can always be uniform if you use Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk. The original. Especially prepared as an infant food. Send for Baby's Diary, a valuable booklet for mothers. 108 Hudson Street, New York.

Sunday-School.

June 18, 1905.

THE HEAVENLY HOME.—Rev. 22:1-11.

Memory Verses, 3-5.

Golden Text.—To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne.—Rev. 3:21.

The apocalyptic visions of John reached their climax in a vision of the future abode of the righteous. It was in keeping with the general character of all the apocalyptic literature that a vivid contrast should be presented between the tribulation and affliction through which the righteous would have to pass and the glory of their final reward, for these writings were in general the products of periods of persecution and the chief value of the seer's message was in showing that the present suffering of God's people was to issue finally in their glorious triumph.

So such writings became both the expression and the stimulus of a most vital and helpful faith—that practical faith which believes that God is really ruling the world, that he maketh even the wrath of man to praise him, and that, in spite of apparent victories of evil, the outcome of all things must surely be a triumph for truth and righteousness and eternal joy and blessedness for the children of God.

Such encouragement was much needed at the time when the book was written. Until comparatively recent years the book has generally been given a date of 94 to 96 A. D. The weight of modern critical opinion favors an earlier date, either just before or just after the destruction of Jerusalem, which occurred in the year 70. In this case the immediate occasion for the writing was the first great persecution under Nero. Rev. 6:9, 10 points clearly to the fact of persecution and martyrdom.

However that may be, the book was written primarily as an encouragement to the church in a time of persecution and its promises were put in cryptic and symbolic language to hide their meaning from the enemies of the church. And we may well believe that the author, under divine illumination, foresaw that Christians would always need to be reminded that a blessed future is in store for the saints, however hard their present lot may be.

The verses of the present lesson contain a part of the figurative description of that city of God which is to be the habitation of the just. It is, of course, not intended to be a literal description. It may be doubted whether it was even intended to give a complete or consistent picture in figurative terms. For example, in 7:15 and 8:5 and elsewhere there are references to the temple and the altar as a part of the heavenly scene, while in 21:22 it is stated that there is no temple in the city of God.

But the value of such a piece of literature is not in its details—which are often obscure and fantastic and colored by the terminology of other apocalyptic writings, and which may easily be made to bear a burden of explicit prophecy which they were not intended to carry—but in the total impression. There is no reason to suppose that we have here an authentic "picture of heaven." But we have words of hope which have comforted the bereaved and encouraged the downcast throughout all ages. We have a philosophy of life and of history which makes it worth while to be patient in tribulation and faithful in Christian service. We have the testimony of one of God's wisest seers and purest saints to his conviction of the final triumph of righteousness and the blessed estate of the children of God.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

June 11, 1905.

MINOR MORALITIES.
—Heb. 13:1-21.

For the Leader.

Our topic to-night, "Minor Moralities," is very suggestive. The term minor is used in the sense of less important. We must not get the idea that any of the elements of the full Christian character are minor in the sense that they are not essential. There are no unnecessary moralities. Every morality is, in a sense, a section of the character of Jesus. It is an exhibit of some part of the full life to which we are called by the Gospel trumpet. While, then, dispensing with the thought of unessential moralities, there yet remains a consideration of those little things which go to make up the full life. So many of us are satisfied to console ourselves with the thought, "Oh, well, if I am deficient, it is only in the little things." In this we forget that the big thing is only the same as the little things. Let us consider this to-night.

For the Members.

1. Is it out of place to call punctuality a minor morality? I think not. That is to say, it is not out of place to call it a morality. If, then, this be so, what of the prevailing tendency to be late?There are many guilty of a new kind of morality. Not new in point of time, but new in point of naming and classification.

2. Neatness is a minor morality. Are there not those who either despise or lose the opportunity to be neat and cleanly in dress and in person? There is now in Jesus Christ no premium on the indolent and sloven mind that has no cure for these things. It is more than a matter of taste. It is a matter of souls. There are some ministers whose lack of this minor morality shuts them off from the opportunity of saving many souls. A soiled collar or cuff may drag down a soul to the depths of the sea. Have a care; it costs nothing to be clean and neat.

3. Courtesy is a minor morality in the sense in which we have been construing the term in this topic. To be kind is another way of wording it. How many have been saved by kindness? No one can ever tell. Affability is another wording of the same grace. Have we not seen persons possessed of such a wealth of affability as to be able to enter hearts on every side? We of the soberer and more reserved disposition wonder as we see them making headway at will in the good works. Was it not the approachable nature of the Master that figured eagerly in his successes in reaching the masses? No doubt it was. His face was beaming with a gentle and inviting affability, kindness, courtesy. Our society as a society may be an affable society. Courtesy, sociability, may reign where is now a solid and unyielding stiffness of manners that chills all strangers who come our way. They come once, but they come no more.

4. The minor moralities of habits and speech may be cultivated with the best of results. By so studying to show ourselves true in speech we can gain many a victory for Jesus. The habit of cutting people off with sharp words loses us many souls every year. There are those who seem proud of an ability to say things that hurt. What good does this do? What good to the person who thus vents his feelings? None. Instead, it does an injury. No one is hurt so much as the person who cultivates this habit. Kind speech, pure speech, conciliating speech, soft speech, "turneth away wrath." May not the minor morality of refraining from by-words that border upon profanity be more ardently cultivated by all Christian Endeavorers?

Quiet Hour Thought.

Am I careful before the Lord in the little things that make up the fullness of his morality?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	Hospitality.	Gen. 18: 1-8.
T.	Sympathy.	Gen. 40-1-8.
W.	Contentment.	1 Tim. 6: 6-11.
T.	Steadfastness.	Col. 2: 1-5.
F.	Thankfulness.	Ps. 92: 1-10.
S.	Kindness.	Luke 10: 29-37.
S.	Topic—Minor moralities.	Heb. 13:1 21.

BUSINESS EDUCATION
—135— SCHOLARSHIPS FREE

Clip this notice from the Christian-Evangelist. St. Louis, and present or send it to

DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

ST. LOUIS, 10th & Olive; KANSAS CITY, PADUCAH, LITTLE ROCK, WACO, or OKLAHOMA CITY, and you will receive booklet containing almost 100 mis-spelled words explaining that we give away, ABSOLUTELY FREE 135 scholarships, Personal or Home Study, to those finding most mis-spelled words in booklet. Most instructive contest ever conducted. Booklet contains letters from bankers and business men giving reasons why you should attend one of D. P. B. C. Those who fail to get free scholarship will as explained in booklet get 10 cents for each mis-spelled word found. Let us tell you all about our great educational contest and our

GREAT SUMMER DISCOUNT.

For the Busy Minister

A MOROCCO-BOUND COPY
OF THE

Minister's Pastoral Record and Memorandum.

FITS VEST-POCKET.

Price 50 Cents, Prepaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

❁ ❁

CUTICURA SOAP SHAMPOOS
And Light Dressings of Cuticura Stop Falling Hair and Dandruff when All Else Fails.

This treatment at once removes crusts, scales and dandruff, destroys hair parasites, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, loosens the scalp skin, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp, when all else fails.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

June 14, 1905.

HIS LIFTED HANDS.

"And he led them out until they were over against Bethany; and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them. And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he parted from them, and was carried up into heaven. And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy; and were continually in the temple, blessing God." Luke 24:50-53.

The Culmination. The scene described above is the sublime culmination of the earthly life of Jesus. He had overcome the world, the flesh and the devil, and in his last great struggle, had overcome death. After this, he had shown himself to his disciples during a period of forty days, giving them every opportunity of assuring themselves of the reality of his resurrection, and further instructing them in the things of the kingdom of God. At the close of this period he led his disciples out on the slope of Olivet, "over against Bethany," and there, with hands uplifted in blessing, he was parted from them and ascended to his Father and to our Father. How intently they must have watched his departing form until he was lost to vision!

His Last Earthly Act a Benediction. It is characteristic of the whole life of Jesus that at the very last moment, while he was yet with them, those gracious hands which were nailed to the cross "for us men and our salvation," were lifted in blessing his disciples. In John's gospel it is said of Jesus that "having loved his own that were in the world, he loved them unto the end" (John 13:1). So, we may also say, that having blessed his disciples during all his earthly ministry he now blesses them in his last act, as he is about to leave them in his bodily presence. It was in the act of blessing that he ascended. His last word and movement of hands were a parting benediction.

The Sequel. They worshipped, rejoiced and waited. His ascension before their eyes was a crowning proof to them, not only of the reality of his risen life, but of his divinity; therefore they worshipped him. Moreover, they rejoiced; not at his going away, but that he had conquered death and was alive for evermore, and that he had promised to come back to them, and very soon to send the Comforter. It was in expectation of the fulfillment of this promise of their Lord that they "returned to Jerusalem with great joy; and were continually in the temple, blessing God." It was this expectation that convened them in prayer-meeting in the upper room, where the promise was fulfilled to them. (Acts 1:13, 14.)

He Still Blesses. Can we suppose for a moment that he whose last act on earth was the blessing of his disciples, and who faithfully fulfilled his promise to send them the Holy Spirit, is less gracious towards his disciples to-day than to those of old? Those hands are still outstretched in blessing. He still gives his Spirit to those who ask him, and all who believe on him are waiting for a fuller revelation of his grace and truth.

Prayer. We thank Thee, O Lord, that Thou didst stoop from thy heavenly throne to our earthly life to bless and save mankind, and that a stream of blessing flowed from Thee through all the years Thou didst live in the world, and that Thy last act in ascending was one of blessing. May we, like the disciples of old, worship, rejoice, and open our hearts to Thy Spirit, and serve Thee here until Thou shalt call us to Thyself! For Thy name's sake. Amen.

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

—SPECIAL EXCURSION—

American Christian Missionary Convention

San Francisco, California,

AUGUST 17-23 1905.

WILL PASS THROUGH

Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Southern California, Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota.

The Great Excursion of

—6,250 MILES—

From ST. LOUIS.

Return Trip Will be on Different Railroads.

The route traveled will have the following advantages over all others:

First.—It takes in more important places and inspiring scenery than any other route which can be taken. On this route will be seen the city of Denver, Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, Pike's Peak, the grand mountain scenery through Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, over the new San Pedro railroad to Los Angeles, the Orange Groves of Southern California, Pacific Coast line ride to San Francisco, Mt. Shasta, Portland, the Lewis and Clark exposition, the great forests of Washington, the delightful country of Northern Idaho, a ride of sixty miles up Hell Gate River, Helena (Montana), the great Mountains of the Northwest by way of the National Park and a thousand other attractions which cannot be enumerated here.

Second—Stops will be made as follows: Denver four hours, Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak eighteen hours, Glenwood Springs four hours, Salt Lake City twelve hours, Los Angeles two days, San Francisco five days, Portland two days, and so on. All important places will have due consideration.

Third.—The itinerary has been so arranged that we will pass the important scenery in the daytime.

Fourth.—This trip includes the Central, the Southern and Northern routes, and avoids the sandy deserts of Northern Nevada. You have the mountains of Colorado and Salt Lake, the Orange Groves and Los Angeles of Southern California, and the Portland Exposition, the Northern States and the National Park. These advantages have never been offered before.

Fifth.—This excursion will not only go to the Pacific Coast and return, but will pass up the Coast—the whole Pacific Coast—for more than 1,200 miles, through the three States of California, Oregon and Washington, and will take in all the great cities of the Pacific Coast—Los Angeles, with its delightful Orange Groves; San Francisco, the great Metropolis of the Pacific; Portland, with its great fisheries and Lewis and Clark Exposition, and Seattle, with its wonderful shipping and northwestern trade.

Sixth.—We escape much of the heat and sandy deserts of other Routes.

The Christian-Evangelist Special will have these and many other advantages over all other excursions.

RAILROAD FARE.

Kansas City to San Francisco and Return—Direct	$50.00
By Way of Portland	56.00
St. Louis to San Francisco and return—Direct	57.00
By Way of Portland	63.50
Chicago to San Francisco and return—Direct	62.50
By Way of Portland	68.50

For Particulars, do not fail to address:

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST SPECIAL

2712 Pine Street, = = - = ST. LOUIS, MO.

DIVINITY SCHOOL

—OF—

HARVARD UNIVERSITY

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

AN UNDENOMINATIONAL SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Announcement for 1905-06, Now Ready.

"The Witness of Jesus"

—BY—

ALEXANDER PROCTER

A cloth-bound volume of 404 pages.

Every Christian, particularly preachers of the Word, should have it on their book shelves.

Price, $1.25.

Christian Publishing Company

St. Louis, Mo.

I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

MARRIAGES.

CORUM—MILLER.—At Plattsburg, Mo., May 21, 1995, by J. W. Perkins, Nathaniel Corum and Miss Julia Miller, both of Clinton county, Mo.

POWELL—McLAIN.—At the residence of Wm. McLain, Esq., on May 17, Miss Anna Z. McLain to Horace M. Powell, Elder J. S. Powell officating. All are of Norman, Okla.

DOWNEY—HUNT.—John Downey, of Desloge, Mo., and Miss Vena Hunt, at the bride's home at Valley Park, Mo., Jno. G. M. Luttenberger officiating.

TURLEY—HANKINS.—In Springfield, Ill., Sunday, May 14, 1905, at the First Christian church, by Rev. F. M. Rogers, pastor of the West Side Christian church, Mr. Henry Turley, of Clear Lake Township, Sangamon county, Ill., and Mrs. Louise Hankins, of Harrisonville, Ky. Brother Turley is the only charter member of the Clear Lake church, one of the oldest in Sangamon county. He is also an elder in the same church and has been its chief support in every way for some years past. He has been a constant reader of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST for the past thirty-five years. Mrs. Turley is also a devoted Christian and will join with her husband in the activities of the church. They will reside on a farm at Round Prairie.

❀

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

HICKEY.

Julia Ann Bell was born in Licking county, O., June 17, 1831, and died at her home in Des Moines, Ia., Sunday, May 21, '05, at the age of 73 years, 11 months and 4 days. In her girlhood she enjoyed the privileges of a common school education and at the age of 15 years obeyed the gospel of Christ. In view of the comparatively brief history of our people it is of interest to note a life that has stood for 60 years in the faithful advocacy of the plea for a return to New Testament Christianity. In her twentieth year she was married to our beloved brother, Allen Hickey. The young people remained in Ohio, where Brother Hickey was farming, until 1854, when they came to Iowa. They first located in Delaware county, where they remained until the spring of 1856. The next move was to Boone county, where they lived five years, and it is here that we open the sacred record of this godly man and godly woman as they give themselves unitedly to the ministry of the gospel of Christ, the one being as faithful in bearing the burdens of a pioneer preacher's home as the other was in public ministrations It should be borne in mind that Brother and Sister Hickey's public work in Iowa began in 1859. With possibly one exception their work reaches back farther in the history of Iowa Discipleship than the work of any others now living among us. It is hard for those of the younger generation to realize the burdens that were cheerfully borne by our fathers and mothers in the gospel. There were long drives and long horseback rides. At one time Brother Hickey had a preaching appointment 20 miles from their home and he and his wife would start upon the 40 mile trip at the early dawn of the Lord's day. As intimated above, the uncomplaining wives and mothers of these pioneer homes deserve equal credit before the brotherhood with their sturdy husbands who gladly sacrificed all for the privileges of preaching the gospel. There were many hours of loneliness in these homes and the meager support then granted the ministry, often but barely sufficed to meet the actual demands for food and humble raiment. Of the number of these noble spirits our dear sister was one. Such names as hers link with the catalogue of the faithful that the scripture records "of whom the world is not worthy." To Brother and Sister Hickey four daughters were born, one of whom, Virginia, the oldest, died in 1880. The others, Mrs. Libbie Dowden, of Prairie City, Ia., Mrs. Miriam Hollingshead, of Albia, Ia., and Mrs. Belle Byerlee, of Hood River, Ore., together with the aged husband and father, one sister, Mrs. Rachel Allison, of Des Moines, and one brother, Mr. Lee A. Bell, of Utica, O., survive. In addition to their own children Brother and Sister Hickey adopted and reared one grandson and two granddaughters and also gave a home to a nephew. The mere statement of this gentle ministry of unselfish love is wondrous tribute to the mother who has gone and to the rugged father who remains. If further tribute to the Christian character of this godly couple were needed it could be found in the fact that every one of the eight children of this home and the sixteen grandchildren linking with it became Christians in their youth, and not one has proved unfaithful. Brother and Sister Hickey have lived in Des Moines since the fall of 1892. While Sister Hickey has not been in good health for some time past, her death really came as a thing unlooked for. She began failing Thursday morning, but was still able to be at the table with the family Sunday morning and Sunday noon. As the Lord's day wore away the gentle spirit of our sister faced more and more away from the things of earth and toward the things of heaven, and at nine o'clock in the evening she fell asleep in the sweet hope of the gospel of her Lord. To Brother Hickey and the loved ones of the home circle few words of sympathy need be voiced. While human friends can do much to help in their hour of sorrow, still their dependence is not of earth. They know him in whom they have believed and that he is able to keep all that they have committed unto him until the holy day of heavenly reunion.

CHAS. S. MEDBURY.

JONES.

Another landmark of Eureka has been removed. The pioneers are nearly all gone, but the ranks are being nobly filled by their posterity. Mrs. Lucy Jones was one of the nine children of Ben and Lucy (Davenport) Major, born in Christian county, Ky., Dec. 19, 1831. They came to the wilds of Walnut Grove, now Eureka, in '34, where Sister Jones has since resided. She was married to Janvier Jones, Nov. 16, '52. To them were born six children, all of whom have passed away, except Anna Janvier, the wife of D. N. Wetzel, one of our able ministers in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Jones had spent the winter with her children in Baltimore and was in poor health most of the time, and was about to return home when, as the Lord's day closed, May 14, '05, she passed peacefully into the larger and better home. Her sister, Judith Grant, of Peoria, and brother, Jo Major, of Eureka, her beloved daughter and two grandchildren wait to join her later on the better shore. Sister Jones obeyed the gospel at the age of 15 years, being baptized by William Davenport. She was a Christian of the pioneer hospitable type, large hearted and generous. Her body was brought to Eureka for burial among her kindred and friends. The funeral services held at the church were conducted by Eld. A. W. Taylor, Prof. B. J. Radford, a lifelong friend, giving personal reminiscences, and the writer delivering the sermon. Her husband, who passed away May 30, '89, was a son of Eld. John T. Jones, in an early day of Jacksonville, and later of Eureka. He was a pioneer preacher of wide and noble repute and did much to cultivate the new developing state of Illinois. His daughter, Susan, opened a school for girls in Eureka about 1847, which practically grew into Eureka college. Sister Jones' father, Ben Major, is the acknowledged promoter and real founder of Eureka college proper. Thus the world has become the common heir of the fruits of the great and noble lives so rapidly gathering on the other shore. Their memory is precious and their works follow them.

Eureka, Ill. J. G. WAGGONER.

LIVE BETTER! SAVE MORE!

After all, it is these two things for which all men are striving. It is the big idea that goes to bed with us all. Most men fail in both. Our plan is simple, safe and very restful. Cannot fail to bring both results. Write us for (free) booklet.

Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co.,

921 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By CHAS. H. GABRIEL and W. W. DOWLING

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Financial Opportunity

Any reader of this publication can communicate with a prominent business man who writes of his connection with an enterprise that promises to be a very profitable investment. He says the business was started on $50.00 capital and to-day the equipment alone is worth over $50,000. The stock in this concern is not offered for public subscription, but a few shares can be had if immediate action is taken. If any reader of this publication wants to become a stockholder in this great enterprise, which promises to pay big dividends this year, write to M. L., Box 59, Brooklyn, N. Y., and say that you are a reader of this publication.

GEO. KILGEN & SON

BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE

Pipe Organs

—— ST. LOUIS, MO. ——

Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

The Only Strictly First-Class

Church Hymnal

Published by the Disciples of Christ

Gloria in Excelsis

The superior of any hymnal now in the market. A postal card will bring full information.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

Dr. Woolley's PAINLESS OPIUM AND Whiskey Cure

SENT FREE to all users of morphine, opium, laudanum, elixir of opium, cocaine or whiskey, a large book of particulars on home or sanatorium treatment. Address, Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, 106 N. Pryor St. Atlanta, Georgia.

WILL OPERATE

Through Sleeping Cars

From ST. LOUIS To

Northern Michigan Summer Resorts

This Season as Usual

C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Family Circle

Told in a Kraal.

By F. M. Colby.

Children in all lands have their tales of adventure and folklore, like our story of "Jack and the Bean Stalk," and the Legends of King Arthur. The Eskimos in the North, the Indians of North and South America, the natives of the Polynesian Islands, the negroes of Africa, all have their wonderful stories, which are strikingly alike in their general character, and closely resemble our own European nursery tales.

A common feature of these stories is the use of the magical, or superhuman, agencies. Enchanters, witches, giants, fairies, capable of working mischief, or doing good, as circumstances may require; talismans and charms, which render their possessors invulnerable or invisible; in short, all the machinery and paraphernalia of sorcery are constantly called into play, and enable the story-teller to overcome the most formidable obstacles.

Everywhere there are unearthly monsters to be slain, dragons, ogres, rakshas, or manitoes; everywhere there is conflict between the evil and the good; and everywhere, too, cunning has been given a rank above that of brute force.

The little Hottentot boys and girls in southern Africa sit, or lie, in their kraals in the hot noontime, or during the sultry nights, when scarcely a breeze stirs the foliage of the tropical trees, and when the moonlight lies like a great white mist over the landscape, and tell stories to each other, which they have heard their parents relate. These poor children have no books or newspapers, and have never been to school in their lives; but they are bright and interesting, and quite contented with their life. They think there is nothing so grand as their kraal in all the world, a collection of huts, the very best of which an American child would be ashamed to live in.

These kraals are circular enclosures, usually built on a hillside or on green meadow grounds, with a gate at one side, which is always guarded. Inside are pitched a dozen or a score of little round huts with pointed roofs, made of the long rushes that grow by the rivers, and braided together firmly with strips of mimosa bark, and covered over with fine, soft grass. The doorways are so low that they have to stoop in going in.

One of these hemisphere houses is about twelve feet in diameter, and nearly as high. The floor is of tamped mud. In the center of the hut a hole serves for a fireplace, around which the members of the family are fond of eating and smoking, and story-telling.

The stories they tell—fables, myths and legends—are handed down from father to son, and you can imagine all the young folks sitting around the campfire, and paying full attention to the story-teller.

"And now I will tell you of the elephant and the hare," says the man. And this is the story:

"There once lived in a certain forest a mighty elephant, king of a herd. They lived very comfortably and well satisfied, until one year there was a long period of drought. The pools, tanks, swamps and lakes all dried up, and the old elephant hardly knew what to do. One day, however, he went out on an exploring expedition, and many miles beyond the forest he discovered an extensive lake. On one side of the lake was a woodland, and on the other was a sandy plain, in which were innumerable hare warrens. The elephant, delighted at the prospect of having an inexhaustible supply of water, marched his herd to the lake, where they trampled the ground all over, breaking into the homes of the hares and injuring many of them.

"After the herd of elephants had retired to the forest, the hares assembled, some maimed, and all with piteous tales of destruction from the trampling herd of elephants.

" 'Alas! We are lost!' they wailed. 'The elephants will return, for there is no water elsewhere, and when they do return we shall be destroyed.'

"But the chief of them all, Master Long-Ear, told them not to worry; he would see that the elephants did not come back. He then went to the king of the elephants, and asked him how he dared to drink of the water of the lake.

" 'Why,' asked the elephant, 'should I not drink of it?'

" 'Because it is not for anything on earth to drink. The lake belongs to the moon, and if you drink of it again it will kill you. As it is, the moon is very angry.'

" 'How can I mollify his wrath?'

" 'I will show you how to do that,' answered the hare. And so he led the elephant to the brink of the lake, and showed him the reflection of the full moon in the water.

"The elephant plunged his proboscis into the water, and muttered a fervent prayer. By so doing he agitated the surface, so that the reflection of the moon was all of a quiver.

" 'See,' cried the hare, 'the moon is angry with you for stirring the water at all. Worship him quietly, and then go away.'

"The elephant bowed his great trunk to the earth, and vowed never to disturb the lake again, went away, and the hares were never afterward molested."

Another story is that of Zungo and the sun, which they tell in the kraal, when the warriors pant in the heat of the noonday, and little Shoba and Marnka dig little pits in the cool earth, to lie under the shade of the palm trees:

"A long time ago there was a man named Zungo. He lived in a hut near the banks of a great river, and was a mighty hunter. Every month he would go out and kill an elephant or a hippopotamus, the flesh of which would last him for a long time. When he was not hunting he would squat at the door of his hut and smoke all day long.

"At last the sun happened to look down and see him, and said to himself, 'This man is contented and happy, and seems to despise me. I will see if I can make him feel my power.'

"So the sun turned his hot beams upon the land and burnt up all the trees and grasses. The poor man could not find any elephants to shoot at all, and the hippopotami died in the marshes. But every day Zungo went out into the river and caught a fish. So he did not complain.

"Then the sun dried the river up also. There were only little pools left. 'Now,' said he, 'the man will get no fishes, and he will starve.'

"But Zungo did not despair. In the shallow pools he found some eels, and he had enough to eat and was as content as ever.

" 'He must be helped by the good Spirit,' said the sun. 'I can neither scorch him nor starve him. I will let him alone.' "
—New York Observer.

SAVE 1/3

No Dealer
Can Duplicate
Our Factory
Price

Our high grade carriages are made in our own factory, and sold exclusively by mail order at a saving of from $15 to $30 to the buyer. We warrant every vehicle to be just as represented or refund money and pay freight both ways. Send for free catalogue. It tells the advantage of buying from factory.

THE COLUMBUS CARRIAGE AND HARNESS CO., Columbus, Ohio.

ONE HUNDRED

copies of a letter, piece of music, drawing, or any writing can be easily made on a Lawton Simplex Printer. No washing. No wetting paper. Send for circulars and samples of work. Agents wanted.

LAWTON & CO., 30 Vesey Street, New York.
59 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

A Modern Plea
for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

CANCER CURED

WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.

Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address

DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST

Christian Workers' New Testament

With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter

Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.

Prices: - - - 75 cents to $1.25.

Write us for particulars

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - - St. Louis, Mo.

Queer Chinese Flower Foods.

The flower best suited to the Chinese palate, and the one which is served with almost every elaborate Chinese dinner, is the chrysanthemum. The flower has a peculiar flavor and requires a taste educated by many trials before it can be fully appreciated; but Chinese epicures, and a few New Yorkers who enjoy Chinese foods, frequently pay fancy prices for chrysanthemums, which they take to the Chinese chefs to have prepared for them. The old-fashioned nasturtium, the rose, and the violet seem to please the American taste, however. For a luncheon an element of interest is always added by introducing the chafing-dish at table. The flower desserts are particularly adapted for luncheons because of the blossoms' beauty and fragrance, as well as the novelty of preparing them for food. To make the dessert, or the "blossom delight," as some enthusiasts call it, first stir a thin batter of eggs and flour. This should be brought in from the kitchen already prepared. The flowers, thoroughly washed, should be arranged in a glass vase on the sideboard. Have the chafing-dish ready, half filled with oil, smoking hot. Pluck the petals from the flowers, stir briskly into the batter, then dip out in very small portions and drop into the oil. The fritters puff up immediately, and if taken out quickly they retain the color of the flower from which they are made. When removed from the oil they should be placed for a moment on absorbent paper before being dusted with powdered sugar and passed to the waiting guests, who are more than anxious to sample the new idea. The tiny wafers, which are crisp and dainty, are good substitutes for the inevitable champagne wafers in serving ices of any kind.—Hariet Quimby in Leslie's Weekly.

❀ ❀

How To Be Old and Happy and Well.

Dr. A. T. Schofield, in his new book. "Nerves in Order, or The Maintenance of Health," gives these health maxims of great men who have lived to long age:

"Moltke, when asked in his 90th year how he had maintained his health and activity, answered, 'By great moderation in all things and by regular outdoor exercise.' Crispi said that 'regularity and abstinence are the secrets of long life.' Sidney Cooper also believed in regularity. Legouve attributed his long life to regular exercise. An American nonagenarian, the Hon. Neal Dow, of Maine, laid stress on the careful avoidance of fretting, of disturbance of the digestive organs, and of exposure to sudden or protracted cold with insufficient protection against its influence. Cornaro's rule was extreme temperance in drinking; he took anything that agreed with him and nothing that did not. Chevreul was sparing in food and, like Cornaro, cultivated cheerfulness. The late Isaac Holden believed that he owed his great length of years to his habit of living mainly on fruit and avoiding all starchy articles of diet, including bread. Victor Hugo inscribed the following rule of life on a wall of Hauteville House:

" 'Lever a six, diner a dix,
Souper a six, coucher a dix,
Fait vivre l'homme dix fois dix.'

"Jewett told Dr. G. N. Pope, the well-known Tamil scholar, that 'to have a great work in progress is the way to live long.' According to Sir James Sawyer, the secret of longevity consists in 'paying attention to a number of small details.' Among these are the following: (1) Eight hours' sleep; (2) sleep on the right side; (3) keep the bedroom window open all night; (4) have a mat to the bedroom door; (5) do not have the bedstead against the wall; (6) no cold tub in the morning, but a bath at the temperature of the body; (7) exercise before breakfast; (8) eat little meat and see that it is well cooked; (9) (for adults) drink no milk; (10) eat plenty of fat, to feed the cells which destroy disease germs; (11) avoid intoxicants which destroy these cells; (12) daily exercise in the open air; (13) allow no pet animals in living rooms—they are apt to carry disease germs; (14) live in the country if possible; (15) watch the three D's—drinking, damp and drain; (16) change of occupation; (17) take frequent and short holidays; (18) limit your ambition; and (19) keep your temper.

"Abraham Lincoln's maxims were: 'Do not worry; eat three square meals a day; say your prayers; think of your wife; be courtous to your creditors; keep your digestion good; steer clear of biliousness; exercise; go slow and easy. Maybe there are other things that your especial case requires to make you happy, but, my friend, these, I reckon, will give you a good life.' Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson said: 'The would-be centenarian should never smoke nor drink—especially the latter, and he should eat very little meat. He should keep early hours and work as little as possible by artificial light. Moreover he should not make haste to be rich, and he should avoid worry and consuming ambition.' "

❀ ❀

A Marvelous Discovery.

A negro preacher down South has discovered the real cause of the recent volcanic disasters. The Lutheran Observer gives his explanation as follows:

"De earf, my friends, revolves on axles, as we all know. Somefin' is needed to keep the axels greased; so when de earf was made, petrolyum was put inside for dat purpose. De Standard Oil Comp'ny comes along and strax dat petrolyum bv boring holes in de earf. De earf stix on its axels an' won't go round no more; den dere is a hot box, just as ef de earf was a big railway train—and den, my frien', dere is trouble."

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping feeling in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neigaborhood, who know and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the whole system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made again.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 183, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS VIA B. & O. S. W.

SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

ASBURY PARK, N. J,

National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.

National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug. 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.

United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—

F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

The Popular

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

Effervescent Relief for Constipation

Biliousness, Disordered Stomach

Promptly effective. No griping or unpleasantness. Of such unusual excellence that it has been sold on merit more than 60 years.

At Druggists, 50c and $1, or by mail from
THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

The Humming Bird Babies' Feeding Time.

William Lovell Finley, the new naturalist-photographer, writes as follows in The Country Calendar for June, the new outdoor magazine published by the Review of Reviews Book Company:

"When I first crawled in among the bushes close to the nest, the little mother darted at me and poised a foot from my nose, as if to stare me out of countenance. She looked me all over from head to foot twice, then she seemed convinced that I was harmless. She whirled and sat on the nest-edge. The bantlings opened wide their hungry mouths. She spread her tail like a flicker, and braced herself against the nest-side. She craned her neck, and drew her dagger-like bill straight up above the nest. She plunged it down the baby's throat to the hilt, and started a series of gestures that seemed fashioned to puncture him to the toes. Then she stabbed the other baby until it made me shudder. It looked like the murder of the infants. But they were not mangled and bloody; they were getting a square meal after the usual humming bird method of regurgitation. They ran out their slender tongues to lick the honey from their lips. How they liked it! Then she settled down and ruffled up her breast feathers to let her babies cuddle close to her naked bosom. Occasionally, she reached under to caress them with whisperings of mother-love."

* *

A Conscientious Witness.

Frederick Trevor Hill's exciting story, The Accomplice, recently published by the Harpers, has been aptly characterized as "a story without a detective in it which ranks with the most interesting of detective tales." Mr. Hill's ability to tell a good story is not confined to the pages of his novels. He has many anecdotes culled from his legal practice in New York to relate. "Intelligent witnesses who want to tell the truth are sometimes the most difficult to handle," he said, the other day. "I once tried to get a man of this sort to describe an injury received by a horse in a trolley-car collision. He located the wound in the leg, but when I attempted to obtain more exact information he went all to pieces. He kept describing the leg as 'this leg,' and when I told him to be more definite he tried 'that leg,' 'the off leg,' 'the leg nearest me,' and every other description except the correct one. Finally he said it was 'the right-hand leg, rear,' and was indignant when the audience howled with laughter."

* *

All Invited.

A ludicrous instance of absent-mindedness was afforded by the pastor of a church in a small town of Virginia. Not long ago, one Sunday morning, this minister forgot to give the usual announcement of social events for the week. He had uttered some words of his final blessing, when a deacon, in a whisper, invited his attention to the omission. Whereupon the clergyman ceased praying and said:

"Brethren, I omitted to inform you that an oyster supper will be served at Brother Mullin's house next Friday evening, the 20th instant. All are invited to come, bringing their own bowls and spoons." Then, continuing his invocation, quite unconscious of the humor of the situation, the worthy man added:

"And may the Lord have mercy on your souls! Amen."—Harper's Weekly.

EVERYBODY IS LAUGHING HEARTILY
—AT—
REUBEN
—AND—
HIS EXPERIENCES AT COLLEGE AND ABROAD.
Send One Dollar for "Reuben: His Book" to
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE BEST
Sunday-School Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary, The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people. The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Toledo, St. Louis & Western R. R. Co.
"CLOVER LEAF ROUTE."
The Short Line St. Louis to Lake Erie and the North-eastern Summer Resorts.
ASK ABOUT OUR NET-SHAPED TOUR.
Lake { HURON / ERIE / CHAUTAUQUA
City Office 104 N. 4th Street, St. Louis.
R. J. McKay, D. P. A.

SUMMER EXCURSIONS
-VIA-
BIG FOUR
From St. Louis

$ 7.65	INDIANAPOLIS AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 20, 21, 22, 23
$ 18.50	NIAGARA FALLS AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 18, 19, 20
$ 19.85	TORONTO, ONT. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 19, 20, 22, 23
$24.35	Asbury Park, N.J. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 29, 30, July 1, 2
$ 9.25	HAMILTON, O. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 30, July 1
$ 21.25	BALTIMORE, MD. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 2 3, 4
$ 19.25	Chautauqua, N.Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 7, 28
$ 18.50	BUFFALO, N. Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 8, 9, 10
$15.00	PITTSBURG, PA. AND RETURN	Tickets on sale August 18 and 19
$22.00	PHILADELPHIA AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale Sept. 13, 14, 15

For particulars call at City Ticket Office,
BROADWAY AND CHESTNUT
or Address C. L. HILLEARY, A. G. P. A.
St. Louis, Mo.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE
Two Trains Daily from each city
Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars
For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE FOURTH DAY (CONTINUED).

Mace followed the walk on her side of the road, and as she passed the Enderthropes' she heard their clock strike twelve. The sun was hot, and a thick dust was blown in that direction by a south wind, which felt hotter than the sun. Mace was tired from a hard morning's work, and the oppressive noon heat, which surrounded her like a tide, made her head ache. Even the glaring sidewalk swam before her eyes. She was angry with Arthur Lowell because he had run away so ungratefully, and while she meant to hunt for him faithfully, because her father wished it, she hoped she would not find him. The street was deserted. As she passed the Enderthropes' she smelled their beefsteak frying, and when she passed the Winterfields' she smelled fried chicken. The home of G.C.D. Woodney was so far back in its beautiful yard that it sent forth no sign of life. Mace passed the lawn, which occupied about four acres, and found herself at the crossroads. She had reached the end of the village; beyond were fields and meadows, and no glimpse of the little musician. Surely her father would not want her to explore the country roads all by herself! Besides, her own dinner was ready, and her mother would be uneasy if she stayed away. Mace crossed the street to come back on the other side, thinking it barely possible that the boy might be hiding in the ruins of the church, or in the vacant lot between it and the schoolhouse. As she examined the churchyard, she remembered her conversation there with Miss Lizzie Day, and there came to her a great desire to bring Miss Lizzie and Mr. Worth Acre together. She wondered what it was that kept them apart, for she was sure that they loved each other, and as Worth Acre was forty and Miss Lizzie thirty-eight, it must be a very strong and a very old reason that prevented their happiness. With these thoughts, Mace stood staring at the church ruins, every brick of which seemed to glow with the August heat, when a movement on the far side convinced her that some one was there. She entered the yard and looked around the wall which had not fallen during the conflagration. Sure enough, there sat Arthur Lowell on the very window-sill which she and Miss Lizzie had occupied. His bundle was beside him, and when Mace first peeped around the corner, his face was buried in the bag. But he started up violently, and after one quick glance, turned his back upon her and sat like a statue.

For a moment Mace did not know what to say, because her mind was so full of Miss Lizzie and Mr. Acre and herself, it was hard for the little wanderer to find any place there. Besides, she was so interested in others that the ragged boy was just like a foreigner. When she did speak, her tone was not very friendly. "Dinner is ready, Arthur, and papa sent me to find you."

"I don't want any," said Arthur sullenly.

"What are you going to do?" Mace asked.

"I'm not coming to do anything."

"When are you coming back?"

"I'm not going back." All this time he had kept his back to her, which did not improve Mace's humor.

"Where are you going, then?"

"I will find some place to go to," said Arthur.

"Will you find a place where you will be treated more kindly than at our house?" cried Mace indignantly. "Will you find a place where they will cook your supper and wait on you, and find you a home to sleep in, and give you an invitation to come back—and when you run away without telling anybody good-bye, will go after you and hunt for you?"

Arthur, still with his back to her, and his head very erect, replied, "You don't understand!" And he waved his hand as if he would wave her far, far away. It was not his words but that gesture, seeming to put her a thousand miles behind him, which angered Mace more than ever.

"I understand a few things that you don't," she retorted, "and gratitude for kindness is one of them! I may not understand music, but I have learned from my father to know a gentleman when I see one!"

Arthur turned toward her quickly, and she saw at once why his back had been turned; he had been weeping, and the tears were not yet dry upon his cheeks. He answered with the same old dignity he had exhibited when standing erect with bare heels together. "Kindness—" he waved his thin bare arm, "that isn't all. You don't understand. I am grateful to all of you, even to the old lady who hates me. But I owe more to myself than to all of you, more to myself and to Anna Zuccarini. And I owe it to myself to go away from this place where none of you understand."

The sight of his tears touched her heart and the golden brown eyes, fastened so mournfully upon her face, made her forget that they were of the same age. She felt older and stronger than he, and it was with a motherly touch that she laid her hand on his ragged shoulder. "My grandmother does not hate you, Arthur, it is just that you do not know her yet. Come back with me, and we will try to understand. Will you not show us how?"

He shook his head.

"Can you not tell me?" she pleaded. "I would like to know about Anna Zuccarini and about you."

"You will laugh," he said doubtfully.

"Oh, Arthur!" cried Mace reproachfully. "It is very unkind of you to say I will laugh."

Arthur clasped and unclasped his long, thin fingers, then slowly climbed from the window sill and stood facing her, very erect, his eyes shining. "I shall one day be a great musician," he said; "I shall compose. My pieces will be printed and sold all over the country. I want them sold cheap—it is not money. I want the people to hear and love me. But how can I grow great if I do not play, and if those who listen do not understand, but want me to play what is common? I played in your house, but nobody liked it. You were kind, but you would like for me to have given you country-dances and old songs. Can I ever write a great piece if I do not try always to play my greatest?" He paused suddenly and faltered, "But you do know what I mean?"

Mace blushed. "But how do you know you play so well?" she asked. "How do you know it is real music that you invent? Those songs—like 'My Country, 'tis of Thee,' and 'Hail Columbia'—that is real music, for all the world sings them. But your pieces that nobody but you ever played—are you sure about them?"

"Oh, I am very, I am entirely sure!" said Arthur, his eyes glowing. "It was when I went to live with the musicians—the two years I lived there. They taught me. Madame Zuccarini and her husband and their daughter, the most beautiful young lady in the world. When they became so poor that I was one too many for them to feed, and Anna left to work in a milliner's store in New York, she called me to her side just before the hack came to take her away. She loved me as if—I cannot tell how much—like a mother. 'I may never see you again,' she said—her voice was like her own flute. Then she said her love would follow me wherever I went, and that I must be true to her love, and that meant always to play my best and become my greatest for her sake as well as for my own. There was never anybody as gentle and serene as Anna Zuccarini," cried Arthur, waving his hand in the helplessness of his descriptive terms. "She was a star that shows itself before real night has come on, and the world is still half light, and warm, and full of the smell of apple blossoms—like that, if you know what I mean. But do not smile," he pleaded, watching her wistfully. "It means so much, if you understood."

"I do not feel like smiling, poor little wanderer," said Mace compassionately, "I am glad you had that dear lady to comfort you."

"Yes! Wasn't it strange that I should find her!" cried Arthur with enthusiasm. "Some day I will tell you how I came upon her—it is like a novel—I mean," he of devotional books which have aided thousands of readers.

A TRIO

Alone With God

The Heavenward Way

Half Hour Studies at the Cross

Written by J. H. Garrison,
Editor of The Christian-Evangelist.

They are similar in size and binding, and being all written for the purpose of comfort and spiritual strength, they constitute what may properly be called

A Devotional Library.

PRICE,
Seventy-Five Cents a Volume, or
Two Dollars for the Set of Three Volumes, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

faltered, "if I were going to stay here, I would tell you. And then she went away and her father and mother sailed to Italy. They went in the steerage—I saw them off. And there I stood on the dock, all alone in the world, with nothing left but my violin and the wish to be worthy of Anna Zuccarini. 'I have dreamt,' she once said, 'that you are my little Mozart; you must make the dream come true.' "

"I know Mozart is a classic," said Mace, "but I have picked out some of his soprano on my organ and I could never see any music in it. It seems to wander among sharps and flats without coming to anything. I know it is my fault—I wish I could understand. Oh, Arthur! won't you stay and help me? I love music, but I don't know anything but two-steps."

"Two-steps!" cried Arthur vehemently, "Ugh! trash!"

"Then stay and teach me," cried Mace, whose enthusiasm was kindled by his own. "In our barn you shall fit you up a place all your own. We have no horse or chickens—except other people's—and there you can play and play by the hour. And you will explain the true music to me, and show me on my organ."

"How I would like that!" cried Arthur. "But the old lady—I am afraid of her."

Mace laughed. "Grandmother has the kindest heart in the world, and you will soon understand her. Do you not know that people's hearts are different? You cannot enter all of them in the same way—some have the door in front, and some hidden behind. But I have never known a heart that did not at last pay you for the time and trouble spent in hunting the way in."

Arthur loooked at her with sparkling eyes. "You have found the way into mine," he said; "I hope it will pay you for the trouble. The old lady wants me to work—work—always work! And I want to work, if I may play my own music between whiles. But to work and not to play—that is what I was running from. Mr. Acre is kind, but he wants me to play ragtime, and I cannot please him that way, so I was running from that, too."

"But now your running is over," said Mace gaily. "Let us hurry to dinner." Arthur followed her eagerly, carrying his bag. When they reached home, they found Mr. Worth Acre standing with Mr. Woodney at the gate. He had heard of the flight and was anxious to learn the sequel. Arthur dropped his head when he came up, and old Mrs. Woodney called rather sharply from the front door, "The dinner is getting stone cold!" "Well, my lad," said the blacksmith gravely, "you've put us to a good deal of trouble."

"Don't scold him, Mr. Acre," interposed Mace. "I will tell you why he ran away. He has taken music for his lifework, and he means to be a great composer and never play but the best kind, so he can one day write the best kind. He saw we didn't understand, and were trying to make him play ordinary tunes, so he was afraid if he stayed, his talent would be spoiled and he would never be the great man he hopes to be. But I told him to come back and we would learn his kind of music and not interfere with his improvement."

"Is that so?" said Worth doubtfully. "But, son, the world is most filled up with ordinary people, and if you're going to write music to sell, you'd better write ordinary music, don't you think so?"

"I will never write it to sell," said Arthur, "I will write because I feel it to be good, and believe it will be good for the world. It will be the best in me, and I will want the world to know my best, and that is why I will write my music. If it brings money, that will be a good thing. But if it doesn't—I have been poor all my life; it doesn't matter, much, after all.

"That's true!" cried Mr. Woodney, putting his arm about the other's neck. "You stick to your principles, Arthur, and be poor. That's my way!"

"The lad's right," said Mr. Worth Acre emphatically, "and he has the right stuff in him. I'm a blacksmith to-day, because my heart's in it, and I knew I could be that better than anything else. People have always wanted me to go into something that they considered a higher grade of work. They said, school-teaching. But what would I look like, sitting on a chair with a row of little fellows before me, each eyeing me to see if I was watching, and spelling out 'c-a-t, cat,' and me trying to look solemn as if I thought I was accomplishing something! When I shoe a horse or mend a wagon, there's a deed—a thing done that people can see and understand. It's something needing to be done, and it means work and skill. They said, 'Be a lawyer!' But if I tried a case and lost or won it, what would it be but words—arguments—and most likely arguments against truth and justice. And how'd I feel between the cases, sitting in my office listening to the flies buzz against the ceiling, useless to myself and to the country, waiting for a man to kill somebody or rob somebody, or die and leave a will, so I could go to work. They said, 'Then be a doctor.' But I says—"

"Mr. Acre," called the old lady, "come in to dinner, Mr. Woodney—Mace—Boy—"

"Yes, mother," said Mr. Woodney in a conciliatory tone.

"Thank you, no; I can't," called Mr. Worth Acre; then to Arthur, "So what I say is, i fyou feel those scales and queer runs calling to you, just stick to it, and we'll try to make you happy and fix you up, between us. If it would make you more at home, you sit right down there on the sidewalk and give us a high-flyer right now, and we'll listen without batting an eye."

Arthur smiled brighter than at any time since his coming to the village, for the strangeness of these people was wearing off. But if he felt any disposition to sit down on the sidewalk, the impatient eye of old Mrs. Woodney, and his wholesome fear of that old lady, overcame the temptation.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

* *

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

"An Endeavorer's Working Journey Around the World,"

By John F. Anderson

$1.50 Postpaid.

Hon. Champ Clark says it is:

"The most interesting book of travels published since Mark Twain wrote 'Innocents Abroad.'"

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,

St. Louis. Mo.

I Turned Out $301²⁷

worth of plating in two weeks, writes M. L. Smith of Pa. (used small outfit). Rev. Geo. P. Crawford writes, made $7.00 first day. J. J. S. Mills, a farmer, writes, can easily make $5.00 day plating. Thos. Parker, school teacher 21 years, writes, "I made $9.80 profit one day, $9.35 another." Plating Business easily learned. We Teach You Free—No Experience Required. Everybody has tableware, watches, jewelry and metal goods to be plated. We plate with Gold, Silver, Nickel, Bronze, Brass, Tin, Copper. Heavy Plate—latest process. No toy or humbug. Outfits all sizes. Everything guaranteed. LET US START YOU. Write for Catlog, Agency and Offer.

F. Gray & Co., Plating Works, Cincinnati, O.

BOWLDEN BELLS
CHURCH AND SCHOOL
FREE CATALOGUE
AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY CO. NORTHVILLE, MICH.

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine St.

J. H. GARRISON,	President
W. W. DOWLING,	Vice-President
W. D. CREE,	Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. CROW,	Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. HOFFMANN,	General Superintendent

Burlington Route

OFFICIAL ROUTE

—TO—

CALIFORNIA

"CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST" Special

LEAVING ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY

—AUGUST 9th, 1905.—

FOR PARTICULARS AND RESERVATIONS WRITE

G. A. HOFFMANN, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis,

—OR—

J. G. DELAPLAINE, Broadway & Olive, St. Louis.

Business Notes.

Not to have a Home Department now is to be "way back." We have all the needed equipment and gladly answer questions.

We have just received a pretty "Cradle Roll" reception card, and will guarantee its good effects in your school; 25 cents per dozen.

Do you need a good Sunday-school map for either class or school? We have them on either or both the Testaments at prices from $1.00 to $10.

The Attendance and Offering Cards, on which spaces are punched for punctuality and amount, are in good demand at one cent each. Try them.

We are offering the Lesson Commentary to those not using it at 75 cents for a while, as the present stock will end the issue for this year. Try it.

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

The circulation of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST is moving right along at a rate that indicates appreciation of the excellent work it does for our homes and the cause of Christ.

Are you using neat baskets in taking your morning and evening offerings, or are you still "passing the hat"? We have a full supply of baskets from 30 cents up, not prepaid.

The ladies of Knobnoster have just made a good order for a Bible-school Library, toward which we have "lent a hand," and we will take pleasure in doing the same for other schools.

That 128 page catalogue gives you a full list and description of our new stock of Reward Cards, which are being so generally used by "down to date" superintendents and teachers.

We hope to have within a few days a good supply of circulars with a full explanation of the Christian Workers' New Testament. This excellent work sells at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25.

The Certificates of Graduation to be used in connection with the transfer of children from the primary to the main school are now ready at fifty cents per dozen, and are the things to continue interest.

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

One of the best books in stock is not appreciated because the title does not commend it to you, namely, "Whether Common or Not." It is full of the best of things, put in such humorous manner as holds the interest throughout. It sells for $1, but we will send out a few at 75 cents that you may test our judgment of a most interesting and humorous and beneficial work.

The "one dime" album is a great means of raising funds by the children. Spacing for ten dimes on the cards; also names of the donors, all of which is then sealed and handed in by the pupil. Five cents each.

If your copy of "The Holy Spirit," by J. H. Garrison, has not come to hand, write us, as we have sent them out this last week and they should be in the hands of all who ordered by the time this is read. $1.00 postpaid.

The Gospel of Matthew by Peloubet, at 50 cents (former price $1.25), is bringing us many orders, as it should, and the supply will soon be exhausted unless we can make similar arrangements for another lot.

Have you a glass globe for your birthday offerings or are you still following the "old plan"? Get into the newer habit and see how the pupils will appreciate it. In price, 35 cents, 50 cents, and $1.35, postpaid. Try them.

We are hurrying "Gloria in Excelsis," but it must be the very best Church Hymnal on the market, so we are hastening to do the work right and are booking all inquiries for sample pages, which will be sent to those requesting them as soon as possible.

More Y. P. S. C. E. supplies have gone out this spring than in years, manifesting quite an activity for a "craze" that some brethren thought, twenty years ago, would "soon die out." Model constitutions, topic cards, pledge cards and all are moving as if the young people meant business for the Master and betterment for themselves. Write us for samples and prices.

We are now helping many of the "preaching brethren" on the "installment plan," giving them the privilege of ordering any books desired, paying one-fifth down, and the balance as may suit you best. Write us; you are welcome to the offer.

Do not forget the "sweet girl graduate," nor the youth "filled with ambition's aims"; and nothing is better than a nice copy of the word of God, given them on "Commencement Day." Many did this last year with much pleasure to both the giver and receiver.

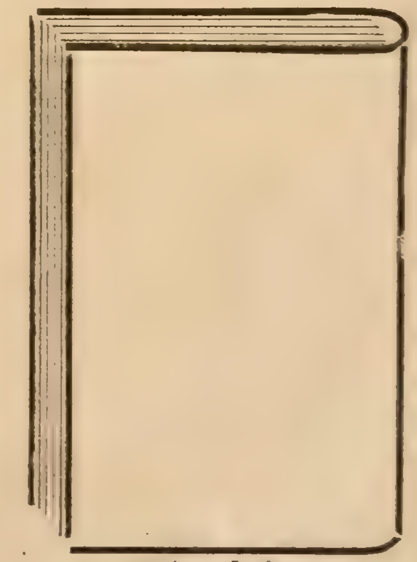
Let ministers remember that we are not asking for "baits" of any sort; but we take pleasure in giving you 25 per cent off on any of the books of our own publication, and do the best we can for you on other books, no matter whether you "bite" at any other proposition or not.

MINIATURE

BOOKS OF THE GOSPEL

Matthew, Mark, Luke, John,
In Separate Books.

JUST AS SMALL AS THIS:



1½ by 2 Inches.

Very Plain Readable Type.
Gilt Edged and Morocco Bound.
Price, fifty cents each, postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

BARRELS OF AIR BURNED AS FUEL

New, Remarkable Stove—Ohioan's Great Invention—Consumes 395 Barrels of Air to One Gallon of common Kerosene oil making oil-gas—the New Fuel that looks and burns like gas?

Wood, coal and oil all cost money. ONLY FREE FUEL IS AIR! Unlimited supply—no trust in control. Air belongs to rich and poor alike. We can't burn air alone but see here! Our wonderful stove burns air and gas—very little gas—principally air. Takes its fuel almost entirely from the atmosphere.

A miniature gas works—penny fuel for every family—save ½ to ⅓ on cost—save dirt and drudgery—no more coal or wood to carry—ashes unknown—absolute safety.

SEE HOW SIMPLE? TURN A KNOB—TOUCH A MATCH—FIRE IS ON. TURN AGAIN—FIRE IS OFF? THAT'S ALL.

Astonishing but true—time-tested—proven facts—circulars give startling details—overwhelming evidence.

NO SUCH STOVE SOLD IN STORES—UNLIKE ANYTHING YOU'VE SEEN OR HEARD OF.

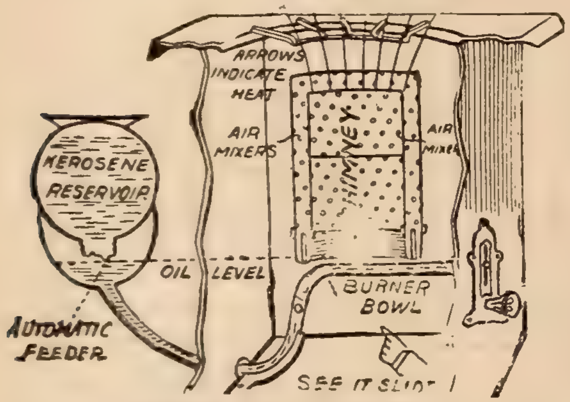
A genius of Cincinnati has invented a new, scientific oil-gas generator that is proving a blessing to women folks, enabling them to cook with gas—relieving them of drudgery. Makes cooking and housework a delight and at the same time often saves one-third to one-half in cost of fuel.

How often have many of our lady readers remarked that they would give anything to get rid of the drudgery of using the dirty coal and wood stoves—also the smoky oil wick stoves and their gasoline stoves, which are so dangerous and liable to cause explosions or fire at any time.

Well, that day has arrived and a fine substitute has been discovered and every family can now have gas fuel for cooking, baking and heating and not have their kitchens a hot, fiery furnace in summer, and be carrying coal and ashes—ruining their looks and health.

Thousands a Week.

Upon calling at the factory we found that this invention has caused a remarkable excitement all over the U. S.—that the factory is already rushed with thousands of orders and evidently the Company's representatives and agents are making big profits as they offer splendid inducements.



Sectional Cut of Generator

As will be noticed from the engraving, this OIL-GAS GENERATOR is entirely different from any other stove—although its construction is very simple—may be easily and safely operated and is built on the latest scientific principles, having no valves, which is a marked improvement, as all valves are liable to leak, carbonize, clog up or overflow.

By simply moving a knob the oil is automatically fed to a small, steel burner bowl or retort where it is instantly changed into gas, which is drawn upwards between two red hot perforated steel chimneys, thoroughly mixed with air and consumed, giving a bright blue flame—hottest gas fire, similar in color and heating power to naturagas.

This invention has been fully protected in the U. S. Patent Office and is known as the HARRISON VALVELESS, WICKLESS, AUTOMATIC OIL-GAS GENERATOR—the only one yet discovered that consumes the carbon and by-products of the oil.

The extremely small amount of Kerosene Oil that is needed to produce so large a volume of gas make it one of the most economical fuels on earth and the reason for the great success of this Generator is based on the well known fact of the enormous expansiveness of oil-gas when mixed with oxygen or common air.

Oil-gas is proving so cheap that 15c to 30c a week should furnish fuel-gas for cooking for a small family.

Kerosene oil, from which oil-gas is made, may be purchased in every grocery—is cheap and a gallon of it will furnish a hot, blue flame gas fire in the burner for about 18 hours and as a stove is only used 3 or 4 hours a day in most families for cooking, the expense of operating would be but little.

In addition to its cheapness is added the comfort, cleanliness—absence of soot, coal, dirt, ashes, etc.

What pleasure to just turn on the oil—light the gas—a hot fire ready to cook. When through, turn it off. Just think; a little kerosene oil—one match—light—a beautiful blue gas flame—hottest fire—always ready—quick meals—a gas stove in your home.

It generates the gas only as needed—Is not complicated, but simple—easily operated and another feature is its PERFECT SAFETY.

NOT DANGEROUS LIKE GASOLINE

And liable to explode and cause fire at any moment. This stove is so safe that you could drop a match in the oil tank and it would go out.

This Oil-Gas Stove does any kind of cooking that a coal or gas range will do—invaluable for the kitchen, laundry—summer cottage—washing—ironing—camping, etc. Splendid for canning fruit—with a portable oven placed over the burner splendid baking can be done.

Another Important Feature

Is the invention of a small Radiator Attachment which placed over the burner makes a desirable heating stove during the fall and winter so that the old cook stove may be done away with entirely.

While at the factory in Cincinnati the writer was shown thousands of letters from customers who were using this wonderful oil-gas stove, showing that it is not an experiment but a positive success and giving splendid satisfaction and as a few extracts may be interesting to our readers we reproduce them:

L. S. Norris, of Vt., writes: "The Harrison Oil-Gas Generators are wonderful savers of fuel—at least fifty per cent. or seventy-five per cent. over wood and coal."

Mr. H. Howe, of N. Y., writes: "I find the Harrison is the first and only perfect oil-gas stove I have ever seen—so simple anyone can safely use it. It is what I have wanted for years. Certainly, a blessing to human kind."

Mr. E. D. Arnold, of Nebr., writes: "That he saved $4.25 a month for fuel by using The Harrison Oil-Gas Stove. That his gas range cost him $5.50 per month and the Harrison only $1.25 per month."

J. A. Shafer, of Pa., writes: "The Harrison Oil Gas Stove makes an intense heat from a small quantity of oil—entirely free from smoke or smell—great improvement over any other oil stove Has a perfect arrangement for combustion—can scarcely be distinguished from a natural gas fire."

Mr. H. B. Thompson, of Ohio, writes: "I congratulate you on such a grand invention to aid the poor in this time of high fuel. The mechanism is so simple—easily operated—no danger. The color of the gas flame is a beautiful dark blue, and so hot seems almost double as powerful as gasoline."

Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, writes: "Am delighted—Oil-Gas Stoves so much nicer and cheaper than others—no wood, coal, ashes, smoke, no pipe, no wick, cannot explode."

Hon. Ira Eble. J. P., of Wis., writes: "Well pleased with the Harrison—far ahead of gasoline. No smoke or dirt—no trouble. Is perfectly safe—no danger of explosion like gasoline."

Chas. L. Bendeke, of N. Y., writes: "It is a pleasure to be the owner of your wonderful Oil-Gas Stove—no coal yard, plumbing—ashes or dust. One match lights the stove and in 10 minutes breakfast is ready. No danger from an explosion—no smoke—no dirt—simply turn it off and expense ceases. For cheapness it has no equal."

Agents are doing fine—Making big money.

WONDERFUL QUICK SELLER.

Geo. Robertson, of Me., writes: "Am delighted with Oil-Gas, so are my friends—took 12 orders in 3 days."

A. B. Slimp, of Texas, writes: "I want the agency—In a day and a half took over a dozen orders."

Edward Wilson, of Mo., writes: "The Harrison very satisfactory—Sold 5 stoves first day I had mine."

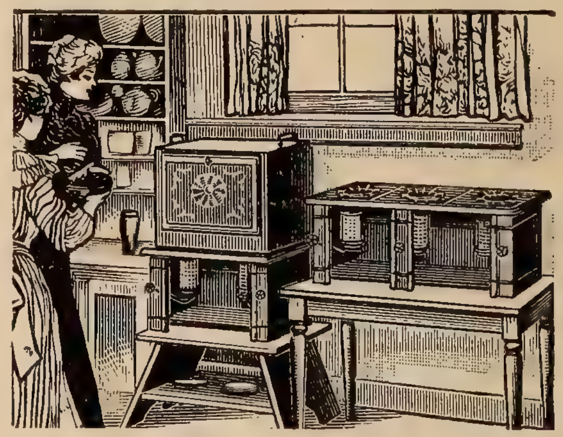
J. H. Halman, of Tenn., writes: "Already have 70 orders."

This is certainly a good chance for our readers to make money this summer.

Hundreds of other prominent people highly endorse and recommend oil-gas fuel and there certainly seems to be no doubt that it is a wonderful improvement over other stoves.

The writer personally saw these Oil-Gas Stoves in operation—in fact uses one in his own home—is delighted with its working and after a thorough investigation can say to our readers that this Harrison Oil-Gas Stove made by the Cincinnati firm is the only perfect burner of its kind.

It is made in three sizes 1, 2 or 3 generators to a stove. They are made of steel throughout—thoroughly tested before shipping—sent out complete—ready for use as soon as received—nicely finished with nickel trimmings and as there seems to be nothing about it to wear out, they should last for years. They seem to satisfy and delight every user and the makers fully guarantee them.



HOW TO GET ONE.

All our lady readers who want to enjoy the pleasures of a gas stove—the cheapest, cleanest and safest fuel—save one-third to one-half on fuel bills and do their cooking, baking, ironing and canning fruit at small expense should have one of these remarkable stoves.

Space prevents a more detailed description, but these oil-gas stoves will bear out the most exacting demand for durability and satisfactory properties.

If you will write to the only makers, The World Mfg. Co., 5959 World Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio, and ask for their illustrated pamphlet describing this invention and also letters from hundreds of delighted users you will receive much valuable information.

The price of these stoves is remarkably low, only $3.00 up. And it is indeed, difficult to imagine where that amount of money could be invested in anything else that would bring such saving in fuel bills, so much good health and satisfaction to our wives.

DON'T FAIL TO WRITE TO-DAY

For full information regarding this splendid invention.

The World Mfg. Co., is composed of prominent business men of Cincinnati, are perfectly responsible and reliable, capital $100,000.00 and will do just as they agree. The stoves are just as represented and fully warranted, and delivered promptly to any address..

Don't fail to write for catalogue.

$40.00 Weekly and Expenses.

The firm offers splendid inducements to agents and an energetic man or woman having spare time can get a good position paying big wages by writing them at once and mentioning this paper.

A wonderful wave of excitement has swept over the country, for where shown, these Oil-Gas Stoves have caused great excitement. Oil-Gas fuel is so economical and delightful that the sales of these stoves last month were enormous and the factory is rushed with thousands of orders.

Many of our readers have spare time, or are out of employment and others are not making a great deal of money, and we advise them to write to the firm and secure an agency for this invention. Exhibit this stove before 8 or 10 people and you excite their curiosity and should be able to sell 5 or 8 and make $10.00 to $15.00 a day. Why should people live in penury or suffer hardships for the want of plenty of money when an opportunity of this sort is open?

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 24. June 15, 1905. $1.50 A Year

"In politics, as we all know, the worst class of politicians, the one whose power for evil is the hardest to overcome, is the class in which corruption is coated with the whitewash of generosity—the legislative burglar with a big heart. The log-rolling which is the bane of our politics is nothing more nor less than the exchange of generosities by public servants at public expense, and a large part of bad lawmaking is the result of the unjustifiable favors which one unconscionably kindhearted statesman extends to another.

"It is, of course, a mean soul which is not warmed by generosity and benevolence and the expression through such acts of the larger humanities. In comparison with true generosity, justice seems meager and mean, as the cold working of the intellect rather than the warm pulsation of the heart. Justice, mere justice, never satisfies. Aristides the Just was killed by the Greeks, not because he was just, but because he was nothing but just. From fibre like his, heroes are not made. The natural man much prefers Robin Hood. Without generosity the moral world seems dull, gray, cold, and conventional. It lacks sap and vitality, and the imagination is not touched. But, after all, justice is the rock on which alone generosity can safely build, and when it seeks some other foundation, it is the scriptural house built on the sand, and, like it, cannot endure."—G. W. Alger, in June Atlantic Monthly.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER,
W. DURBAN,
} Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 755

Editorial:
A History-Making Epoch 757
Hypnotism in Evangelism 757
Notes and Comments 758
Editor's Easy Chair 759
Questions and Answers 759

Contributed Articles:
Broken Hearts and Blazing Stars. Alexander McLaren, D. D. 760
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 761
Caring for the Churches. G. L. Brokaw 762
Poem—At the Portals. 762
Sprinkling Decided by a Majority of One. H. C. Patterson 763
Our Greatest Problem. Wm. Ross Lloyd 763
Growing in Grace. Anson Chester.... 764

Our Budget 765

News From Many Fields:
Colorado 769
Missouri Bible-School Notes 769
Nebraska 769
District Convention, Jewell, Kan. 769
Iowa 770
The South Kentucky Annual Meeting. 770
William Woods Commencement 771
Commencement Exercises at Texas Christian University 771
Commencement at Camden Point. 771
Kansas Letter 771
James Small in Tennessee 772
The New Church at Grand Rapids, Wis 772
Dedication at Higginsville 773

Evangelistic 774
Current Literature. 775
Sunday-School 776
Midweek Prayer-Meeting 776
Christian Endeavor 777
Obituaries 777
People's Forum 778
Family Circle 779
With the Children 782

"THE ONLY WAY."

ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.

4—PERFECT TRAINS—4

MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.

CHICAGO & ALTON RY.

Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to

D. BOWES, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Christian Church Convention

California

The Christian Church will hold its International Convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 24

The Santa Fe is the best way there

Santa Fe

It's the shortest line to Southern California and a direct route to San Francisco—the time is fast—the weather is cool in summer—the track is oil-sprinkled and practically dustless—the mountain scenery is magnificent—one management all the way insures satisfactory service, start to finish—and Harvey serves the meals, the best in the West.

Tickets on Sale August 6 to 14, good to return in 90 days, from Middle-West states—on sale a day earlier in the East.

Round-trip Ticket rate via direct routes, $62.50 from Chicago, $57.50 from St. Louis, $50 from Kansas City, with stop-overs in Colorado and West.

Regular Service

The Santa Fe runs four trains to California. The California Limited is fastest and most luxurious—equipped with compartment, observation and drawing-room Pullmans, buffet-smoker and dining car. The California Fast Mail is almost as swift; the other two are called the Los Angeles and San Francisco Expresses; all three carry standard and tourist Pullmans and chair cars.

Special Excursion

Christian Church Special (equipped with standard and tourist Pullmans) leaves Dearborn Station, Chicago, via the Santa Fe, 10 p. m., Monday, August 7, leaves Kansas City 11 a. m., August 8, and arrives Los Angeles 6:00 p. m., August 12, stopping several hours at Albuquerque, N. M., Redlands, Cal., and Riverside, Cal.; also one day at Grand Canyon of Arizona. Personally conducted by a representative of the Santa Fe. Mr. G. W. Muckley, Corresponding Secretary, Board of Church Extension, American Christian Missionary Society, Mr. R. H. Waggener, National Superintendent, Christian Church Y. P. S. C. E., and Mr. Chas. A. Young, of the "Christian Century," will be in charge.

Grand Canyon Side Ride will cost $6.50 extra for railroad ticket, $1 extra for Pullman, and reasonable amount for accommodations at El Tovar hotel. The most wonderful scenic spectacle in the whole world, worth going thousands of miles to see. No extra charge for Redlands and Riverside side-rides through California orange groves.

Not room here to give full particulars. Won't you write to me for all the facts?

A. Andrews, G. A., 209 No. Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

Toledo, St. Louis & Western R. R. Co.

"CLOVER LEAF ROUTE."

The Short Line St. Louis to Lake Erie and the North-eastern Summer Resorts.

ASK ABOUT OUR NET-SHAPED TOUR.

Lake { HURON
ERIE
CHAUTAUQUA

City Office 104 N. 4th Street, St. Louis.

R. J. McKay, D. P. A.

The Only Strictly First-Class Church Hymnal

Published by the Disciples of Christ

Gloria in Excelsis

The superior of any hymnal now in the market. A postal card will bring full information.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

"IN FAITH, UNITY: IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. June 15, 1905 No. 24

Burbank the Wizard. What Edison and Tesla are in the realm of electricity, Luther Burbank is in the sphere of plant life. His estate at Santa Rosa, Cal., is one great laboratory in which he carries on experiments looking to the improvement of various useful vegetable growths. His success in originating new species, combining the best qualities of various plants and producing bigger, better and earlier products has been wonderful. The Burbank potato is already known to commerce. Recently it was announced that he had developed a type of spineless cactus with valuable qualities as an edible vegetable. And now it is published that he has, by crossing several varieties, produced a walnut tree whose wood has all the beauty and strength of the old black walnut, but which has the remarkable quality of being a very rapid grower. It is claimed that it will grow faster than any other known tree. To produce a fast growing hardwood tree is a truly extraordinary achievement. If it has really been done, the price of walnut, which has been excessively high in recent years, ought to be much reduced. Whether this report is exactly correct or not, Burbank has enough accomplishments to his credit to deserve the title of the wizard of agriculture.

◆

The President's Victory. The President's diplomacy makes up in effectiveness what it lacks in subtlety. The present probability is that he will be the intermediary through whom the representatives of Japan and Russia will come together for a peace conference. His conversation with the Japanese minister and his offer of friendly offices was followed by a similar offer to Russia, presented in an interview between Ambassador Meyer and the Czar. Both powers have apparently accepted the offer and it seems virtually decided that peace negotiations will begin in the not distant future, that they will be carried on in Washington and that our state department will be the medium of communication between the belligerent powers pending the re-establishment of direct diplomatic relations. Oriental diplomacy moves in subterranean channels and by curves rather than straight lines, so one can hazard a conjecture of the future only at imminent peril of missing it. But the reports indicate that the Czar is about convinced of the futility of continuing the war, that the Japanese are willing to enter upon negotiations without waiting to strengthen their claims by still further victories, and that an armistice will be declared as soon as plenipotentiaries have been named to draw up the treaty of peace. This may be enrolled among the already long list of recent American diplomatic victories, but it should also be admitted that Admiral Togo has had some part in persuading the Russians to make peace. We ought, however, to say that there are reports of a hitch, it being asserted in some quarters that Russia does not propose to name plenipotentiaries in the first instance, but will merely through appointed agents get the Japanese terms of peace, and that Japan will decline. But the fact that General Linievitch's army is reported to be surrounded and in a practically hopeless condition, despite his assertions, will perhaps compel Russia to accept peace. If the Czar and the Mikado will leave any ultimate decisions to President Roosevelt, both will get a "square deal."

◆

An Anti-Cigarette Decision. A decision which has been rendered by an Indiana judge in a case involving the recent anti-cigarette law of that state is worthy of attention as indicating the attitude which the courts generally are likely to assume toward such legislation. The law referred to prohibited buying, selling, exchanging, giving away, owning or using any cigarette or cigarette paper by any person within the state. It is as completely and sweepingly prohibitory as the legislature could make it. But the smokers claimed the right to import their own cigarettes, for their private use (the original package plan), on two grounds: first, that the law was intended to apply only to dealers and not to smokers; second, that the importation of an article not for sale, a single transaction which begins with the shipper outside of the state and terminates with the delivery of the goods to the consignee within the state, is interstate commerce, and is therefore protected by the federal constitution and cannot be interfered with by state legislation. In this case the court declared the first of these positions to be untenable, but supported the second. This opinion is in keeping with a decision of the United States Supreme Court in a case growing out of the Tennessee anti-cigarette law, and also with the accepted legal doctrine regarding "original packages" in Iowa and other prohibition states. In the last Congress a bill was introduced to give the state authorities jurisdiction over imported articles as soon as they cross the state line. This bill, which was strongly urged by the temperance people, was a recognition of the fact that at present state laws are not effective for the control of transactions which terminate with the delivery of an imported article to the original consignee. Such federal legislation in a sufficiently general form is much needed, to give effectiveness to state anti-liquor and anti-cigarette laws. Meanwhile the judges will have to render their decisions in accordance with the existing laws, and the enforcement of these statutes will be seriously obstructed.

◆

The Equitable Reorganization. The reorganization of the Equitable Life Assurance Society which is now in progress is such that it ought to satisfy the most exacting. James H. Hyde has sold most of his stock to the syndicate headed by Thomas F. Ryan, and this syndicate, which now holds a controlling interest in the stock of the society, has appointed three trustees to hold and vote its stock. The officers have all resigned, and Paul Morton, who is retiring from the office of Secretary of the Navy, has been appointed chairman of the board of directors with full executive power. The recent events may be briefly summarized. The trouble in the Equitable arose from charges and counter-charges made by the president, James W. Alexander, and the first vice-president, James H. Hyde. Mr. Hyde owned a controlling interest in the stock, having inherited it from his father, the late H. B. Hyde, the founder of the Equitable, but this stock was held by trustees of whom Mr. Alexander was one. Alexander accused Hyde of using his official connection with the society for his private interest to the detriment of the society. Hyde accused Alexander of using his position as one of the trustees of the Hyde stock to wrest the control of the property from those to whom it belonged. Hyde requested Alexander to resign his trusteeship, but the latter refused. Alexander proposed that the society be reorganized on a mutual basis, i. e., placing the control in the hands of the policy-holders instead of the stock-holders. Hyde did not oppose this suggestion, but a decision by Judge Maddox of the New York Supreme Court rendered it legally impossible to carry out this plan. Meanwhile other rumors and charges of shady transactions by officers and directors of the company began to get abroad. Apparently the vast resources of the society, the millions which belong to the six hundred thousand policy-holders, were being used to back private enterprises, to finance stock market deals, etc. The directors appointed an investigating committee with H. C. Frick as chairman. The committee's report recommended the retirement of President Alexander, first vice-president Hyde and second vice-president Tarbell. Hyde and Alexander, former enemies, united in war upon their critics. They refused to retire, and the members of the committee and other directors resigned from the board. Among the big financiers who resigned were H. C. Frick, E. H. Harriman, A. J. Cassatt, Jacob H. Schiff, M. E. Ingalls, T. J. Coolidge, C. N. Bliss, John Sloane and J. A. Stewart. Following these resignations a new plan of organization was adopted. The office of chairman of the board was created. The old officers resigned. Paul Morton was chosen for the head of the society. Hyde sold a majority of the stock to a syndicate. The syndicate has placed this stock in the hands of three trustees, Grover Cleveland, George Westinghouse and Judge M. J. O'Brien. By this plan the advantage of a mutual company will be gained to the extent of eliminating control by stockholders in the interest of dividends.

* * *

The Influence of the Equitable.

It is estimated that more than two million people, including policy-holders and prospective beneficiaries, have a direct financial interest in the affairs of the Equitable. But the influence of the disturbance in that company is far wider than even those large figures would indicate. The Equitable is one of the "big three" and we are accustomed to think of the great life insurance companies as embodying the perfection of financial solidity, integrity and efficiency. The disclosure, or even the suspicion, of irregularities in the administration of one of them gives a serious shock not only to the investors whose money is involved, but to the general public. Business is largely a matter of confidence, and anything which shakes public confidence in one institution which had been supposed to be reliable, disturbs the whole business world. Not but that the Equitable is perfectly solvent and substantial. In this whole episode nothing has occured to create even a suspicion that the society cannot fulfill all its obligations. But it is expected that a great insurance company shall maintain a certain standard of economy in administration, and that it shall be kept free from entanglement with speculative enterprises, and that its officers and directors shall not be getting percentages and commissions and rake-offs on the company's investments, and that investments for the company shall be chosen solely with reference to the value of the investment to the company, and not with a view to the private advantage which directors may gain by putting the funds into this or that security. In these respects public confidence in the great companies has been disturbed. The immediate result has been that the Equitable's business has been practically at a standstill for several weeks, and other companies have suffered a severe loss. Even more serious is the moral effect of any disclosure which tends to weaken faith in the integrity of the business world. There are always plenty of men who are half persuaded that righteousness in business does not pay and that to be honest is to be lonesome. They are almost convinced that the world is hopelessly corrupt and are ready to lapse into a cynical attitude toward all high ideals of commercial honor. To such men, an event of this sort is a strong argument in favor of low ideals and lax morals in business. It is hard for the little man to be straight when he thinks that the big men are all crooked.

* * *

The Wedding of Crown Prince.

The German Crown Prince Frederick William, eldest son of Emperor William, was married last Tuesday to the Duchess Cecelia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. The ceremonies antecedent to the wedding were in keeping with the importance of the event. The young prince will, in the ordinary course of things, succeed his father on the throne of the German empire, and the girl who now bears the title of duchess and the much more human and interesting title of June bride, will be empress. Many ancient formalities were observed in connection with the wedding. The German empire is of recent origin and has few traditions of its own, but the house of Hohenzollern has centuries of history behind it and enough moss-grown traditions to meet every requirement. The young crown prince is considered a decent young fellow of good morals and fair sense. The Hohenzollerns have their faults, but they are generally clean and their family life is of the good old-fashioned sort. Frederick William is fairly well liked by the people whose ruler he will some day be, but their real affection and enthusiasm are reserved for his younger brother, Eitel Fritz, who has something of his father's brilliance and a gift of friendliness and popularity which endears him to the hearts of the people. The crown prince has not yet given signs of any special ability for government or anything else, but perhaps it is enough for a prince to grow up comparatively unspoiled and pure-minded and to marry a good girl of whom he is really fond. At any rate he deserves only good wishes at present—and perhaps sympathy, for he has a mother-in-law, Anastasia, who is one of the untamed terrors of European high society.

* * *

Sweden and Norway.

A peaceful revolution is in progress in the Scandinarian peninsula. After the veto of the separate consular service bill by King Oscar, the ministry resigned and the King was unable to find anyone who would accept office in a new cabinet on that issue. The Storthing, the Norwegian Parliament, thereupon declared the throne vacant, sent King Oscar a respectful communication to that effect and requested him to co-operate in selecting some member of his family to become King of Norway. How unlike the stormy course of revolution in the Latin countries! The outcome of the matter is still undecided. It is hinted that King Oscar may reconsider his first decision and appoint one of his sons to be King of Norway. It is also rumored that the formation of a republic is probable. Against the latter suggestion, it is said that the European powers would interfere in case this course were adopted. The separation of Norway and Sweden would be an entirely natural and proper movement. They have little in common. The Swedes are a manufacturing people; the Norwegians are sailors and traders. The Swedes are protectionists; the Norwegians are free-traders. The Swedes are royalists, the Norwegians republicans by tradition and temper. The connection of the two countries dates only from 1814, when it was brought about in a forced and unnatural way. The Norwegians, a liberty-loving race of mountaineers like the Swiss, calm, intelligent and intensely partriotic, and without any considerable body of monarchical traditions, are perhaps riper for the formation of a republic than any other people in Europe.

* * *

A Noted Theologian.

We regret to record the death of Principal Stewart D. F. Salmond, senior professor and official head of the United Free church college at Aberdeen, Scotland. After a pastorate of several years he became an examiner in classics in Aberdeen university, later being called to the chair of systematic theology in the college, and in 1898 succeeding to the principalship. His "Commentary on the Epistles of Peter" gave him wide fame, and other works followed. But his magnum opus was "The Christian Doctrine of Immortality," a monumental work showing profound research into a theme that will always interest thinkers of every type.

A History-Making Epoch.

These are no ordinary days in which we are living. Events of world-wide and history-shaping importance are transpiring almost every day. There are periods in the life of the world in which are concentrated, to an unusual degree, events and movements which influence to a large extent the history of the race. The times preceding these periods are times of preparation in which the seeds of things are germinating somewhere beneath the line of public consciousness. In the fulness of time, however, when the germinal seeds are ready to spring forth, and when there is a proper conjunction of the man, or the men, and the opportunity, events begin to transpire, and movements are born, of world-wide sweep and influence. Such a period was that—not to go farther back—of the Rennaissance, and the Reformation of the 16th century. And there have been other periods between the Reformation and the present time, similarly fraught with events that have had much to do in shaping the course of subsequent history.

We are evidently living in one of these great historical epochs. The significance of the grand events of our day will not be appreciated in their full magnitude until a sufficient time has elapsed to furnish a historical perspective. Great events in time, like great objects in nature, are best appreciated when seen from a distance. The discovery of America, the invention of the art of printing, the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth Rock, the battle of Quebec, the Declaration of Independence, the Louisiana Purchase, and even so recent an event as the war for the preservation of the Union, are things of vastly greater importance, as viewed by the world today, than they seemed to be to the people at the time of their occurrence. So, no doubt, the war with Spain for the liberation of Cuba, and the present war in the east between Russia and Japan, will, in the distant future, have a fulness and distinctness of meaning which they do not possess in the thought of the world to-day.

It should be remembered, however, that these outward events are but the manifestation of potent principles and truths which are silently growing in the human mind with the process of the suns. One of these fundamental truths is the essential dignity and value of man, as taught by Jesus Christ. That all men are children of God by creation and endowment, and that they are therefore brothers, is a truth that has been working at the heart of all the monarchies and despotisms of the world. The growth of democracy and the assertion of human rights in the realm of government and religion, are but the outgrowth of this fundamental truth. It is this truth that determined the conflict between the United States and Spain, and is determining, and will determine, the conflict between Japan and Russia. It determined the issue of the struggle between the American colonies and Great Britain, and it is a potent factor in the religious movement that issued its declaration of independence against the authority of human creeds over the conscience and the mind. These events mean that God is working in history to-day, as much as he has ever done in the olden times, and that he is now, as ever, on the side of man as against autocracy, greed and oppression. Russia, with her system of oppression and persecution, with her Siberian exiles, her dungeons filled with political suspects, and with her rapacious greed, reaching out and invading the rights of weaker nations, is an anachronism—a political and governmental monstrosity that has come down out of the ages past into the light and liberty of the twentieth century, in which it cannot endure.

A part of this same great movement, although we may not recognize it as such, is this general agitation for political and industrial reform now in progress in our own and other lands. The present misgovernment, venality, and dishonesty in our great American cities, and the violation of laws, and the trampling under feet of the rights of the people, by great corporations, are as much out of place and as unendurable, in the light of our Christian civilization, as are the governmental outrages against the rights of their subjects of either Russia or Spain. Let no one persuade himself that the present agitation in behalf of civic righteousness and of equity and justice on the part of trusts and monopolies, will end, or can end, until the atmosphere is cleared, and a better and purer social order is established.

In the midst of these mighty, stirring events, the church is bearing her testimony, not as unitedly and not with as distinct and clear a note as she ought to do, but with an increasing consciousness of her duty and obligation in this respect. Surely the church ought to be the first to recognize the hand of God in these events of our day, and to work with him against all oppression and unrighteousness of every kind, and in behalf of whatever will help the progress of mankind.

"We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling;
To be living is sublime."

* * *

In a recent address in Maryland, Mr. Charles J. Bonaparte, the newly appointed secretary of the navy, gives further proof of his fitness for public office in the following wise observation:

> You have heard the saying, "We must fight the devil with fire." Its author is undoubtedly the devil himself, and, when any man acts on it, that eminent personage has him just where he wants him, for in handling fire no one of us can hold a candle to Satan.

Hypnotism in Evangelism.

We offer a few comments on the article on another page entitled "Hypnotic Evangelists," by Bro. W. E. Harlow, in the interest of clear thinking and accurate writing, as well as of a pure evangelism.

The preachers' meeting did not discuss "hypnotic evangelists," but "The Secret of Power," the topic of Brother Brandt's paper, and, incidentally, the subject of hypnotism in revivals. It was not the evangelists that were thought to be "a cheap substitute for the Holy Spirit," but hypnotism!

We are afraid Brother Harlow has a very erroneous idea of the purpose of the book on the Holy Spirit, by the Editor of this paper, from what he says about it. It has no such scope or purpose as he seems to think.

We are unable to understand why Brother Harlow thinks the St. Louis preachers are not "straight" on the subject of hypnotism, unless he takes issue with their conclusion, as we expressed it, that "hypnotism is a cheap substitute for the Holy Spirit." But apparently he does not take issue with that conclusion, as he disclaims using hypnotism in his evangelistic work. He also thinks that those who have studied it most use it least. This must be because they have discovered that it is not a legitimate power to use in evangelistic work. Otherwise, why should they not use it? It would seem, then, that the evangelists who have studied this subject most, including Brother Harlow, are in perfect accord with the St. Louis preachers in regarding hypnotism as a cheap, or false, substitute for the Holy Spirit, or the gospel.

But our correspondent goes on to argue that "hypnotism is nothing in the world but suggestion," and that, "suggestion is the presentation of such thoughts or ideas to the mind as will result in a mental, moral or physical change." He then asks, "What is preaching the gospel but suggestion?" After all, then, preaching the gospel is only a method of hypnotism, and as a matter of fact, our brother does believe in it and does use it! We leave our readers to decide which one of these two positions expresses the real attitude of our correspondent. "It all depends," we are told, "on what you suggest, and the susceptibility of your subject"; that is, the result will depend upon what is suggested, but the process is hypnotic in either case, according to our brother. But is this true? That sends us back to the question, What is hypnotism? According to a standard definition it is "an artificially induced somnambulistic state in which the mind becomes passive, acting readily upon suggestion or direction, and upon regaining normal consciousness, retaining little or no recollection of the actions or ideas dominant during the condition." Is this the method which the gospel employs for winning converts? Does the preaching of the gospel produce an abnormal consciousness in which the mind receives ideas and the person performs actions which are not remembered upon regaining "normal consciousness"? On the contrary, the gospel appeals to reason, to conscience, and to the will, with its facts, truths and motives, and asks not the passive acceptance of what is uttered, but an earnest examination of the truth of the utterances, and their acceptance only when the person is assured of their truthfulness. And these great facts and truths remain in the minds of those who are turned to the Lord, for there has been no displacement of "normal consciousness." Hypnotism, therefore, both as a process and as a result, is indeed a very cheap and illegitimate substitute for the gospel preached by those who are filled with the Spirit, and who speak in harmony with his teaching.

Referring to the great meeting in Joplin, we have no occasion to resort to the theory of hypnotism to account for the results. A godly, consecrated pastor had been sowing the seed of truth for years, and had won the confidence of the entire community by the purity of his life, and by his wholehearted and unselfish devotion to the cause of Christ and the moral and spiritual welfare of the community. We detract nothing from the credit due to the evangelist in recognizing this important factor in that great meeting. Then came the reaping time in which our brother performed an important part, and this, again, was followed by the same careful and conscientious devotion to the welfare of the converts. Hence, the splendid results, which we attribute not to hypnotism, but to the gospel preached and practiced.

While, therefore, we are inclined to regard Brother Harlow as opposed to the use of hypnotism in evangelistic work, we only regret that his entire article does not seem to be consistent with this view. No doubt, if his article had been re-written and carefully revised, he would have left out, or greatly modified, some of its statements. The subject is too vitally important to be written about in a hurried or careless manner. Hypnotism is no part of the gospel, and is no way of presenting the gospel. If it has any legitimate field at all, it lies outside Christian evangelism.

◆

In an address at Columbia, while a guest at the university, Governor Folk, in his speech referring to the enforcement of the Sunday closing law, says: "Will public sentiment support its enforcement? Is its enforcement good politics? I do not know. I do know, however, that its enforcement is right." May his tribe increase! Let us have more public officials, more editors, more preachers, and more private citizens who are willing to waive the question, "Is it good politics?" and act upon what they know to be right. We believe that to be "good politics," in the long run, and we are sure it is good morals.

Questions and Answers.

Does the gospel require an immersion in water, into the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, of a penitent believer, as a condition of his receiving the pardon of his past sins? F. M. CUMMINGS.

Sedan, Kan.

Yes, we so understand Acts 2:38;22:16 and other passages. In exact New Testament language, repentance and baptism, growing out of faith, are "unto remission of sins" (Acts 2:38). Unto in this connection, according to the best biblical scholarship, has the force of in order to. This can mean no less than that God has linked baptism along with a penitent faith as a condition of remission of sins, and this, as we believe, in order to help men to reach an assurance of such forgiveness.

◆

In the union between our brethren and the Baptists, at Monroe, Wis., it was agreed to observe the Lord's Supper only one Lord's day in each month. You endorsed that union in your issue of June 1, without a word of adverse criticism. Is not the weekly observance of the Lord's Supper of vital importance? If so, how can we set it aside for the sake of unity? SIMPSON ELY.

Colorado Springs, Col.

We should say that the weekly observance of the Lord's Supper is important, but not necessarily of "vital" importance, for if so a number of our churches would be dead—in cases where the church meets and observes the supper only monthly or semi-monthly. Not only so, but there is a large number of members in all our churches who do not observe the Lord's Supper weekly, as they are absent frequently from one cause or another. They neglect an important means of grace, when they stay away from the Lord's Supper voluntarily, but we do not cut them off from the church for so doing. It would be wrong to impose the weekly observance of the Lord's Supper as a condition of union on others whose consciences do not require it of them. There is probably no hindrance thrown in the way of those who desire to observe the Lord's Supper on each Lord's day, to do so. Is it not better that the two congregations referred to should meet and worship together every Lord's day, observing the Lord's Supper monthly, than for them to meet separately all of the time, and keep up the wall of separation between them? The Lord's Supper should not be a barrier of separation, but a bond of unity. Men are not to be forced to its observance, as a condition of union, but drawn to it by the magnetic power of the cross. In our comment on the union, we expressed the belief that "whatever may be lacking in order to a full and perfect representation of the New Testament church will no doubt be supplied, just as they grow in the knowledge of Christ, and their unity will become permanent and indissoluble." We predict that the sweet and tender fellowship enjoyed at the Lord's table will, sooner or later, win all the members to its weekly observance, and only as they are so won would its observance by them be acceptable to the Lord. Our reproof should be given to those churches among us who hold to weekly communion in theory, but in practice disregard it.

Notes and Comments.

Father Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, is going to spend some time in Russia. He says:

> "I want to learn the truth of the war news. I know the dispatches we get, or many of them, are at least exaggerations. I have been a sympathizer with Russia from the start, and I don't believe the little yellow snapping turtles of Japanese are beating them so badly as we have been told."

Now we are to have the truth at last concerning this eastern war! Father Phelan cannot understand why those ikons, or images, which the Russians carried to the front did not bring victory.

◆

The question came up recently in a group of ministers, discussing the recent anniversary of the Baptists in St. Louis, as to what was the chief point of difference between the Baptists and the Disciples of Christ. It was agreed, in view of recent developments and explanations, that the chief difference does not relate to the subject of baptism in any of its phases, nor to any other theological problem. It is the practical question of Christian union, about which the difference exists. Disciples of Christ are out-and-out advocates of Christian unity—that is, the co-operation of all congregations of obedient believers, as members of the same body, in Christian fellowship and in the work of converting the world. Many leading Baptists profess frankly that they have no great interest in this subject. True, when they come to explain, it would seem that they mean by Christian union something very different from the ideal which the Disciples have in view, but there is no doubt of a profound difference at this point, and it is one which involves the whole conception of the church, as a divine organism. We cannot help believing that when Baptists come to see that the denominational idea is foreign to the New Testament, and that the church as a whole is always conceived of as one body—the body of Christ—with its local congregations, autonomous and independent in their local affairs, but recognizing each other as parts of a common whole under the leadership of Christ, they will look upon rents, feuds and divisions, among members of that body, as we do, and labor and pray, as did our Master, for the oneness of his followers.

Editor's Easy Chair.

The past week has furnished us a series of golden days for the growing crops. The wheat is yellowing to the harvest, and the young corn has been rapidly unfolding its green blades, night and day. It is a sight to gaze upon with delight when the ripening wheat sways gently before the summer breeze, and the long rows of corn stand like soldiers on dress parade, and the scene is variegated with the meadow and other growing crops. Such days as these we have been having mean many added bushels of grain in the farmer's bins and barns, and many dollars to their bank accounts. These long summer days seem scarcely long enough to enable the busy ploughman to get over his crops before the next rain. But not in field alone, but everywhere in Nature's wide domain, these bright June days have been carrying forward the multiform processes of life and growth, clothing the earth with a richness of verdure and a beauty of decoration which can scarcely be equaled in any other month of the year. King Sol is doing his work right nobly these days in forest and field and garden, and all the world is dependent for its living upon his beneficent smiles.

◆

"But some of us," writes a reader of the Easy Chair, referring to paragraphs in our last week's issue, "can't go away from home for a vacation anywhere. What shall we do?" Well. we are sorry for them, and we are sure they outnumber, by far, those who will take a vacation at any of the resorts. The fact is, when "everybody is out of town," you can scarcely miss the absent ones as you go down the street or go any place where people gather. We have said that we are sorry for those who cannot take a vacation, away from home, and yet we sometimes almost envy them. As compared with the lot of a certain class of vacationists who visit fashionable resorts, dress several times a day, and engage in the wearisome round of social functions which are carried on at such resorts, the condition of those who stay at home and live simply, sensibly, and comfortably, is almost paradisaical. One need not be miserable, by any means, because he cannot go to a summer resort. People can turn their homes into summer resorts, and have a good time if they make up their minds to do it. The main thing, whether at home or abroad, is to adjust oneself to one's situation and make the best of it.

◆

Somebody has written a book on "How to be happy, though married." Another might be written on the no less suggestive topic, "How to be happy, though at home." There is an art in both these undertakings that might well be cultivated. The records of the divorce courts show that a large per cent of the people who get married have never learned the art of living happily together, while the disposition of many people to get away from home, and to stay away as long as possible, is proof that the art of home-making is not as well studied nor as much practiced as it deserves to be. In this country we have degraded the word "homely" to mean "ugly," whereas in "merry old England," a "homely" person is a home-loving and very desirable sort of person. Some day when we are more advanced in civilization and give attention to subjects in proportion to their importance, we are going to have a department in our colleges on home-making, and this will include such subsidiary topics as love-making, and match-making, or as one lecturer used to put it, "How to get married, and stay married." There is much need of wise instruction on these subjects which lie at the foundation of human happiness and human progress. Parents ought to be the first teachers on these subjects. The home can never be the sacred place that it is designed to be, except as it is lifted up into the light and under the solemn sanction of Christ's teaching.

◆

The three religious bodies which have been working at the problem of union, namely, Congregationalists, Methodists, Protestants, and United Brethren, seem to be making some progress, though their type of union is a little different from that usually thought of. According to the Congregetionalist and Christian-World, "the plan proposes that each denomination shall retain its name, its autonomy in respect to all local affairs, adding to its offical title, the words, 'in affiliation with the General Council of the United churches.'" This General Council is to be formed "on a basis of one representative for every 5,000 members. Its powers will be advisory, and its recommendations will be referred to the constituent bodies for approval. The purposes of the Council will be to present a realization of unity of these Christian churches, to cultivate among them a better knowledge of one another, and a closer fellowship; to bring about united action on evangelistic, educational, and missionary work; to unite weak churches, where desirable, in the same community; to prevent unnecessary multiplication of churches, and to work toward organic union, representing some form of connectionalism." This, then, is a sort of tentative union, looking to "a more perfect union," in the future. As such we hope for its success, and bid it Godspeed.

◆

Looking north from the windows of our new Pine street office, two blocks away, there are two visible symbols which stand for two of the great fundamental realities of life. On a flagstaff above a public building there floats "Old Glory"—the starry banner of our country, loved and honored at home, and respected under every sky where it floats. It stands for constitutional liberty, for the rights of man, for the union of states, and for government "of the people, for the people, and by the people." The other day it dropped to half-mast in honor of the men who fell in its defense back in the '60s. But there it floats, in sunshine or storm, every star an evangel of civil and religious liberty, and every stripe a reminder of the cost by which the liberty for which it stands has been purchased. East of it, a block distant, a graceful church spire soars above all the surrounding buildings, pointing heavenward—the symbol of religion and of our responsibility to God. Love of country and love of God—what nobler passions than these can sway the heart? Long may they remain united in those who are standing in the high places of our nation, and in the great mass of its citizens who are to discharge the obligations of citizenship in such a government as ours! The church and the state, distinct in their spheres, and yet united in their supreme end—may they work together in completest harmony, the one as the champion of the civil rights of man, and the other to emphasize his religious duties and obligations!

◆

An imperious order of the doctors, who do not wait to "rule us from their sceptered urns," but who issue their edicts while they and we are in the flesh, commands the Editor to cancel his outstanding engagements and live a less strenuous life for a season. This is not as he had hoped and planned. It is a great disappointment to be denied the privilege of meeting the graduates, students and friends of Eureka college in their jubilee exercises. It is a more bitter disappointment, if possible, to be deprived of the privilege of meeting with the brethren of Missouri in their state convention at Marshall. But who can withstand the orders of the doctor, especially when there is good reason to believe that his orders are based on a true knowledge of the situation? We yield to the inevitable, with the sincere prayer that no interest of the Master will suffer by the absence of any humble contribution which we might have been able to make towards its advancement. We hope to be able to keep in touch with our readers through this and other departments of the paper, during the summer, and by mingling a little rest and a great deal of Nature with our work, to recuperate soon our somewhat exhausted stock of nerve energy and vitality. In any event, it is comforting to know that the hand that leads us is a Father's hand, and that we cannot "drift beyond his love and care."

Broken Hearts and Blazing Stars

By Alexander McLaren, D. D.

"He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds. He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names."—Psalm 157:3, 4.

There is something very striking in the close juxtaposition of these two thoughts of the divine energy. In the first, we have God represented as the patient and tender physician, and then at a bound the psalmist passes from the narrow chamber, where the wounded in heart lie, out into the illimitable space of the heavens, and sets him before us as the shepherd of the stars, who counts his flock and knows them all by name. Each representation gains in beauty and in force from the other, for nothing is so gentle as the gentleness of power, and nothing is so strong as the strength of tenderness and love. So we have here the whole field of nature and of grace covered over in these four clauses. Of course, I can do no more than touch upon the fringe of great and blessed thoughts. But the first thing that strikes me is

I. The sad contrast presented between the two halves of God's whole.

It is only down here that hearts break; only here that there are wounds; only here that the bandages are needed, and that restorative and healing power is more wanted even than sustaining strength and infinite knowledge. But what does the psalmist mean by "broken in heart"? There are two ways of breaking hearts, one when fate breaks them, and the other when they break themselves. And for both these the divine power is all-restoring, and healing, for the one kind of heart-break includes within itself all the "ills that flesh is heir to," the weariness, the sadness, the disappointments, the pains, the solitude, the broken hopes, the hopes fulfilled and, therefore, sadly broken, and the hopes that are never fulfilled at all.

The earth seems to move through these serene heavens wrapt in an atmosphere of sighs, and shrouded with a mist of tears; and it is here, and here only, as far as we know, that men sorrow because of their pains, and ought to sorrow because of their sins. The sorrowful and the penitent belong to earth, and here and only here he "healeth the broken in heart," and that tender hand—the only hand that can bind wounds without hurting them—binds them up.

But the psalmist passes out into another region, and there he "has outsoared the shadow of our night," and finds no pain, no foiled efforts nor loneliness, no regretted pasts, no dreaded futures, but a universe, lustrous and sweet, full of beauty and order, strength and music. We look up, and we see far more than the psalmist saw in those spangled heavens. We can recognize, far more than he did, the serene and unbroken reign of a perfect law throughout all. And these two regions, the one filled with the tragedies of humanity and the other filled with the triumphant display of divine power—these two regions alike are God's. The text goes on to remind us next of

II. The double operation of the one divine hand within these two so sadly-contrasted realms.

"He healeth," "he bindeth up." What we men need most of all is the double revelation of God's power, first to comfort us in all our sorrow and weariness and pain; second, to heal us in the worse sickness which comes from sin. The healer of sorrow must be the conqueror of sin, and only he who can deal with the heart that is broken in penitence, can deal with the heart that is lacerated by sadness and care and sorrow. The one type of God's healing power is the grace that lightens our cares, that comforts our sorrows, that will never let us weep without a loving hand being laid upon our shoulder, and a gentle finger wiping away the tear-drop from our eyes, if we will only let him; the other is the grace that comes when our hearts are bowed down with a sense of failure, and our spirits agonized with more or less sharp biting of remorse, and says to us: "Thy sins be forgiven thee; go in peace."

Ah, there is no real healing of the broken heart, even when it is broken by sorrow only, unless the process goes deeper, and heals the heart that is broken because it is penitently conscious of a sinful life! The comforter must be the victor over sin; and only he is truly delivered from sorrow who is assured that his sin has passed away.

Dear friends, we all more or less, and in our turns, have to feel that life is full of ashes and disappointments—have to grope about us in the dark for some hand to lay hold of, and for some heart to which we can trust. We all of us, some time or other between the cradle and the coffin, need one who shall heal our sorrows, but we all of us always need one who shall take away that which is the worst of all sorrow, the consciousness of sin, and "restore them that are penitent." So this double healing is the divine work that God is waiting to do for every one of us.

But next the psalmist looks away from the shadowed levels of earth, up into the light of the heavens, and thinks: "Thou dost not restore there, thou dost sustain." "He telleth the number of the stars"—that means all-comprehensive knowledge, as the shepherd counts his flock, he counts the flock of the heavens. "He calleth them all by their names"—that indicates possession, for the owner imparts a name to the sheep. And it indicates knowledge of each individual, for the name is the expression of the qualities of its bearer. And so in these simple words of the psalm there lies the thought of a divine and particular care, and knowledge of each of those innumerable orbs which were numberless even in the psalmist's eyes. The bounds of the universe have been shifted backward since his day; and what were nebulous clouds when he wrote are to us galaxies of unnamed and indistinguishable stars. And yet each has a separate place in the great catalogue in the divine mind; and each individuality is known down to the very depths of its constitution, and has its name imposed upon it by him to whom it belongs. The third thing that my text suggests to us is the III. Infinite superiority of that work which seems the smaller.

What a little thing it is to comfort a poor man that lives for seventy years at the most, and then dies! What a small thing it is to soothe the sorrow of this insect of a day, compared with what it is to roll those great worlds of light upon their paths! Yes; but it is a far more wonderful and a far loftier thing, if we can speak of degrees of magnitude in God's dealings, to come to a heart that he has made in his own likeness, and to breathe his own peace into it, than to uphold the innumerable, unconscious stars. Modern science has seemed sometimes to men, by the very infinitude of the universe which it discloses, to make the scriptural teaching of the divine care of men, and especially of the divine redemption of men, almost inconceivable. But the true reading of the facts is precisely the other way about. If it be true that here are beings on whose nature there can be stamped the image of God, and whose needs are so sore because, being made like him, they have become subject to vanity and slaves of sin, and therefore open to the assaults of sorrow, then none of the magnificences that stud the heavens can be so great as the possible greatness of such souls, if they can be lifted from their darkness and restored to their place in his love. Largeness is not greatness, and length of duration is not greatness; and as far as we know, you and I and our brethren receive and, in accordance with the nature that he has given us, are capable of possessing that unique and singular gift of a restoring grace and of a redeeming love. It is far more like God, and it is a far loftier exhibition of what he is, to take away our sin, and to quiet our sorrows, than it was to sow heaven broadcast with stars that can only reflect material lustre.

"'Twas great to speak a world from nought,
'Tis greater to redeem."

And that He should stand by the bed-

(Continued on page 773.)

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

I have had two baccalaureates to preach this season, but the one that interested me most was to a graduating class of Storer College, an institution for the training of colored youth. It is a Free Baptist school at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and dates back to the close of "the late unpleasantness." Its location is ideal, and its work has been ideal. Of the Ferry I have written before. Nothing seen from this point of view is more beautiful, picturesque, and historic, than this spot where the Potomac and the Shenandoah are wedded and break through the Blue Ridge mountains on their way to the sea. It is a gorge of savage grandeur. "The scenery," said Thomas Jefferson, "is worth a voyage across the Atlantic—these movements of a war between river and mountains which must have shaken the earth itself to its center." Here are noble heights clothed with forests, and fertile fields and gardens, and singing waters whose ceaseless lullabies soothe one's tired nerves, and quaint old buildings that take you back to John Brown's time, and trains sweeping southward and eastward and westward, awakening interesting echoes among the hills, and over all, the history and incident that make the little town known throughout the world. Nature speaks here a varied language and in song and story there are voices that command our ears.

At the close of the Civil War the Free Baptists were among the first of the religious bodies to take up the work of educating the Freedmen. To them by agreement with the American Missionary Association was assigned the beautiful Shenandoah Valley. From Harper's Ferry to Lexington they opened stations and conducted schools under the management of Rev. N. C. Brackett. The need of normal instruction for the training of colored teachers and preachers led to the establishment of Storer College. John Storer, of Sanford, Maine, wished to donate $10,000 to some society which would undertake to raise an equal amount toward the founding of a school in the south for the benefit of the colored people. He was not a Free Baptist, but preferred to entrust it to that body. They undertook to carry out Mr. Storer's wish. Through the efforts of Dr. G. H. Ball the sum necessary was raised. Efforts were then made to secure certain government property at Harper's Ferry, four old brick mansions, used by the officers of the government works, which had been greatly injured during the war, and through the efforts largely of Senator Fessenden and General Garfield congress donated this property, with seven acres of land, worth about $30,000.

October 2, 1867, the college commenced its work under Mr. Brackett as principal, with one assistant, and nineteen pupils. The Home Missionary Society of the church also planted churches in this region among the negroes. In 1868 a college charter was granted by West Virginia. There was violent opposition and the act of legislation was barely won. In those days there was not always smooth sailing for northern teachers coming south to render this service to the brother in black. One of the teachers here said: "It is unusual for me to go to the post office without being hooted at, and twice I have been stoned on the streets at noonday." There were threatenings of kuklux and other discomforts. Now the people here are proud of the college and interested in its success, and no man is held in higher esteem than Mr. Brackett. The institution has had about 1,500 pupils and sent out hundreds of teachers and preachers. Fred Douglass said he was glad Storer was a Free Baptist school, for on the question of freedom and equal rights, while most of the churches had sometimes gone wrong, the Free Baptists had always been right. There can be no question as to the excellent service this institution has achieved and it is growing constantly in usefulness. Mr. Brackett is still connected with it, but its President is Henry T. McDonald. Dr. G. H. Ball is one of the directors and Dr. H. M. Ford is the general field agent. The past year 120 have been enrolled and there are twelve graduates.

The general studies found in our small colleges are taught and the Bible, domestic science, and industrial work have a large place. Cookery and the art of housekeeping are dealt with in both theory and practice. So are gardening and carpentry. An experienced gardener gives instruction as to the best methods of raising fruits and vegetables and caring for horses and cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry. A practical carpenter, an old ex-confederate soldier, trains the young men in the use of tools. A beautiful building called the "Anthony industrial building" has just been completed and dedicated at this commencement, where the industrial arts will have a handsome and permanent home. The Anthonys have been true friends of Storer, and I have not seen a more sensible, practical and beautiful purpose to which money could be put than in this new structure. The institution receives aid now from West Virginia, about $2,500 a year for the education of normal students. The state has two such institutions elsewhere, at Charleston and at Bluefield.

Nothing is more interesting than the care for the moral and religious culture of students here. The college has its church and its regular pastor, and the management is strictly Christian. One of the rules is: "No person using tobacco in any form will be admitted to the Bible department." We have known young white preachers that would have done vastly better had they been under such discipline. Some other prohibitions are wholesome. "To attend balls, dances, and other parties in the town to drink intoxicating liquors, or visit any drinking saloon, or to use profane or indecent language; to play cards, jump, dance, or scuffle in any of the buildings; to use tobacco in any of the public halls or passages, or on the street; to have or use firearms in the buildings or on the grounds; to contract debts in town." Great care is taken especially of the young women, one special restriction is in regard to expensive or showy dressing and the use of jewelry. An interesting feature here is the co-operative club plan of boarding. By doing one hour's work a day a student pays for his food, those who do not wish to do the work pay seven dollars a month, and good, wholesome food is furnished for this figure. One is struck with the good manners and intelligence and high morals of these young people. Storer College is solving many problems and doing it well. Our Free Baptist brethren have reason to be proud of their work here, and especially of such people as Dr. and Mrs. N. C. Brackett and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Lightner. May their kind increase more and more among men. The college did me the honor to elect me one of their trustees.

One of the notable things in our Washington Zion was the laying of the corner stone, Friday, May 26, of Kimmal memorial hall, an annex of the Whitney avenue church. It will greatly increase the accommodations for all departments of work. Another church was organized Sunday, June 4, with sixteen members, at Tuxedo, a suburb of the city. This colony goes out from our Ninth Street church. It has a fine nucleus and begins its career under most favorable auspices. They meet for the present in a union chapel. W. T. Laprade will serve them as pastor. A sad event in our recent history is the death of Mrs. C. B. Richards, wife of our preacher at Petersburg, Va., who was a former devoted member of the Vermont avenue church. Her funeral occurred from the church, May 26.

* *

Live for something! Do good and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love and mercy on the hearts of the thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. Your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as the stars of heaven.—Chalmers.

Caring for the Churches

By G. L. Brokaw

In the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST of May 25, S. C. Slayton states a problem that demands solution. We are in duty bound to "care for all the churches," and especially those that are weak and disorderly.

I consider the article of Brother Slayton as too much on the "blue" order. It is admitted that we have been eminently successful in gathering converts. We have not been as wise and skilful in holding them, but we are not making an inglorious failure. Dr. L. N. Rice, the Presbyterian minister who had a public discussion with Alex. Campbell, wrote a tract just before that discussion on reasons for our success." During the first ten years of our separate existence as a religious body others were writing of our success, and they have marveled at our progress in all the intervening years. The writer believes in seeking a remedy for those things in which we are weak and neglectful, but is not yet ready to write essays on our failure. Bro. A. McLean claims to have a well grounded hope that we will double our offerings for foreign missions within ten years. He is not an enthusiast without strong reasons for being one. That we are growing in all Christian graces is shown by our encouraging progress in the work of foreign missions as well as in all our other missionary and benevolent enterprises. We are growing in grace as well as in numbers.

The main trouble in Iowa is not the lack of system or organization. I do not know of a state that has a more thorough organization. We have our state divided into districts. Each district has a board of officers whose business it is to look after the general interests of the cause and especially after new and needy fields. We have our county secretaries in every county where we have churches and mission bands, and the sisters of the C.W.B.M. are not a whit behind in system and order in their work.

Brother Slayton is willing to admit that his scheme is visionary, "perhaps." I am ready to agree with him providing he leave out the "perhaps." I knew a man in Christ about fourteen years ago (most of the time he did not seem to know whether he was "in the body or out of the body"); such an one had a vision that revealed to him a solution of the temperance problem. The chosen leader was to have a great "central office" in a central city in America. He was to spend his time in this office studying, reading, writing, gathering, disseminating, ordering all organized bands of temperance workers throughout the length and breadth of the land. By the use of wires he was to be in touch with his helpers in all parts of the nation. This man sat in his room, or walked in the fields and dreamed of a glorious work to be accomplished. The system did not work. No man can make a success in temperance or religious work "spending his time in a central office." The method seemed more like a lazy man's device for getting rid of work, or the scheme of a visionary in an effort to promote a boom.

It is not a stronger "system" that is our great need, but stronger and wiser members. "Quit you like men. Be strong." We are a million strong, in membership, but do not have a million strong members. As we increase in faith and hope and love, let us also grow on to perfection in zeal and patience and perseverance and liberality—in everything that goes to make a strong spiritual community.

It is not a re-consecration or a re-baptism that we need, but a more complete consecration in the service of our Lord. The consecration of our bodies was complete in our baptism when we were buried and raised with Christ. This should be a reminder of our duty to grow into a complete consecration of all our powers of body and soul in his service.

There must be a more hearty and continuous co-operation for the conversion of the world and the care of converts. "Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem? The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough to make cakes to the queen of heaven" (Jer. 7:19). Shall abominable idolaters—men, women and children—co-operate in the worship and service of idols, and enligtened Christians neglect that full fellowship that insures fullness of joy and pleasures forevermore? Methodists and Baptists in England unite in fighting seven evils—intemperance, lust, gambling, ignorance, crime, pauperism and war. Shall not Disciples of Christ in America unite in fighting all evil and in defending all good?

Obedience to an all-around gospel binds us to an all-around service. For years and years in Iowa we have appointed a committee at our state conventions on "plan of work." It is in order for us to plan our work. We enter the vineyard of the Lord for work. But we also join the army of the Lord to "fight." And we enter upon the Christian race to "run." Have we ceased fighting? It is to be hoped we do not fight each other, or fight our religious neighbors of other churches. There are battles to be fought and won. A committee on "plan of warfare" might be in order and suggestive of the qualities of a Christian soldier needing emphasis. The use of other figures might lead to a more symmetrical development of our membership.

One may be right in doctrine and try to declare "all the counsel of God," but he may be wrong in emphasis, or wrong in the proportion of emphasis he gives to certain truths. In presenting the apostolic plea we should give due and proportionate emphasis to "all things" in that plea. It has been affirmed by leaders in religous thought among the denominations that each sect has "a divine mission, a distinctive mission," to give play to "one side of our nature." Thus each particular sect gives emphasis to a doctrine or truth that is thought to be lost sight of or almost ignored by all others. Our Lord never authorized sects, and these parties have no "divine mission" independent of other lovers of Christ.

The church of the New Testament is the church for all times—it gives due and proportionate emphasis to all God's will and man's needs and duties. It emphasized the four alls of the great commission: the all authority of Christ; all the world as the mission field; all the things that Jesus commands, and the soul-inspiring promise that he would be with us all the days. This church is ordained to touch each person in all masses and classes around the world.

We have plans that will do the needed work if we have the willing, consecrated workers, who in doctrine and life will give due emphasis to the truth that the world needs for salvation. This will insure a prosperous church, "edifyed" as well as "multiplied" (Acts 9:31) and Christ will be honored. I could name "forty less one" items that need emphasis for symmetrical spiritual power.

Des Moines, Iowa.

* * *

Every day should be distinguished by at least one particular act of love. —Lavater.

We may not substitute charity for godliness; but there is room for the divine love in the heart which has been touched by the human.—Punshon.

At the Portals.

By L. R. Hornish.

I hear the loud harps swelling;
The sweet voiced angels telling
Of the praises of the King.

I see the bright stars twinkling;
Like golden censors sprinkling
Incense from the throne of God.

The veil is but a vapor;
Life but a glowing taper
That must leap up again.

And I am but a mortal,
Yet stand I at the portal
Of the Universal Throne.

Washington, Ill.

Sprinkling Decided by a Majority of One

By H. C. Patterson

Some time ago I stated in a sermon that in an assembly of Presbyterian divines the vote was taken as to whether said church should recognize and practice immersion or sprinkling alone for baptism. I declared that the vote taken stood 24 for immersion and 24 for sprinkling when Dr. Lightfoot, the chairman, cast the deciding vote in favor of sprinkling. A minister of the Presbyterian church then present called the statement in question. Since that time I feel it my duty to give to the people the facts in the case as I have gleaned them and call upon any capable man in said church to correct me if I am not rightly informed.

"The Calvinist reformers rejected exorcism, and they allowed the validity of dipping, but they adopted a mode of pouring which they confounded with sprinkling, and which at length they actually exchanged for sprinkling. The French church at Frankfort in their liturgy ordered baptism to be performed by the minister, who, having a table and a bason of clean water before him, was directed to cast water with his hand upon the head of the child. In the liturgy of the English church at Frankfort, King Edward's service book was used, and baptism was administered by trine immersion. In the Scotch church at Geneva the minister was directed to take the water in his hand, and lay it upon the child's forehead. The same book calls this pouring. A hundred years after, in the assembly of divines, Dr. Lightfoot was the man who caused dipping to be excluded, and declared sprinkling to be sufficient. When the assembly came to the vote whether the directory should run thus, 'The minister shall take water, and sprinkle or pour it with his hand upon the face or the forehead of the child,' some were unwilling to have dipping excluded, so that the vote came to an equality within one; for the one side there being 24, and for the other 25. Next day the affair was resumed, when the doctor insisted on hearing the reasons of those who were for dipping.

"At length it was proposed that it should be expressed thus: 'That pouring on of water, or sprinkling in the administration of baptism, is lawful and sufficient.' Lightfoot excepted against the word lawful, it being the same as if it should be determined to be lawful to use bread and wine in the Lord's supper, and he moved that it be expressed thus: 'It is not only lawful, but sufficient'; and it was put down so accordingly. In some other parts of the same directory the minister is left 'to use his own liberty and godly wisdom'; but no man in the assembly knew where wisdom and godliness were not to be trusted better than Dr. Lightfoot; and he informed the House of Commons in a sermon at Saint Margaret's Westminster, that, though he 'would not go about to determine whether conscience might be bound or not, yet certainly the devil in the conscience might be, yea, must be, bound by the civil magistrate.'" (Robinson's History of Baptism, p. 403.)

Our Greatest Problem

By Wm. Ross Lloyd

Not the makers of money but the keepers of it get rich. The great church is the one that holds and develops its additions for Christ. Some denominations get not so many but they hold what they get, and so are more powerful than some others which get large numbers but are not able to keep them. The greatest problem of the Disciples was formerly to get converts, but is it not now the problem to keep them? This is a traveling age, and traveling brings also some troubles to the churches. We are enlarging our evangelistic factory but not our granaries. The Evangelistic Bureau is all right, and Brother Wright is all right. Great piles of rotting grain mountain high may move us to do something with it to avoid the shame. Over one thousand congregations are this very day without a church home, and so many are being lost for want of a home. Twelve hundred and sixty-nine churches gave to church extension last year. Add these to the one thousand which have no home, and substract from the whole number of our churches, which is eleven thousand and sixty-eight, and it leaves five thousand four hundred and nineteen which have a church home, but did not contribute to church extension to give the pleading one thousand a home. Why did they not do it? The Lord only knows. It looks pretty bad even from the most charitable point of view. I do not believe that a single one of these five thousand churches with houses of their own would have declined to give, if the church extension facts had been all properly placed before them. Do you? They might have averaged ten dollars each, and this would have been over fifty thousand dollars to house these poor, homeless congregations. If you did not try to get your church to help, were you a party to this awful, may I say criminal, negligence? And it is going on from year to year, "How long, O, Lord, how long?" Six hundred weak congregations have begged for a little assistance from our Church Extension fund within the last few years, that they might get a home, but they had to be declined for want of funds, and the want of funds was because a whole lot like you did not do their duty by the Church Extension fund and the feeble congregations.

The Church Extension fund is the only treasury at the back of our vast evangelistic spirit and multitudes of national and state missionary societies, and it asks only one offering a year. Why turn it down? While others are worrying over their losses, we are harassed on every side to care for our great gains. The best minds of Christendom endorse the church extension idea. A vast fund with which to follow up and make permanent the work of all our evangelism is the great need of the Christian church. Let every preacher among the Disciples promise for once to take an earnest offering for church extension. It would be the biggest thing to report at San Francisco that nearly every preacher had promised to do this year his very best for church extension. It is worthy the Golden Gate, and the more you think of the true golden gate the

(Continued on page 764.)

FEED YOU MONEY

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed You Money and Fame.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly.

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business.

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet.

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heart-burn and the indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased, showing that those organs had been healed, and that my nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had, not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency. Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past.

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I have begun to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in each pkg.

Our Greatest Problem.

(Continued from page 763.)

more you will feel like making the pledge, and faithfully keeping it. One of my hopes of some sweet day passing through the golden gate of heaven is the fact that every year since I graduated sixteen years ago I have taken an offering for foreign, home and state missions, and for church extension, and for the latter averaged over one hundred dollars a year. I have allowed nothing to sidetrack me, and shall continue so long as I can.

Three cheers for the preachers and churches of Illinois, for I see that last year they won second prize over forty-nine state and territorial competitors, in the number of churches contributing to church extension, third prize in the amount contributed, and second prize in the number of individuals contributing. We are a great state, and I would love to have us take first prize this year over all competitors. We can do it, brothers, what do you say? At the rate immigration is pouring in upon us we could use every dollar of the four hundred and fifty thousand now in the fund right in Chicago and over the state. Illinois put about nine thousand dollars into the Church Extension fund last year and the same year church extension promised homeless congregations in the state over eight thousand dollars. This is generous, and we ought to bring up those churches which are neglecting this work. Let us do it.

Bloomington, Ill.

Growing in Grace.

By Anson G. Chester.

The injunction, grow in grace, recorded in 2 Peter 3:18, carries with it more than its surface meaning. Considered in a strictly theological sense, the fundamental signification of grace is "favor," of course on the part of God. The statement, "By grace ye are saved," exemplifies the root-meaning of the word.

Without doubt we shall grow in favor with God as we grow in grace, but the grace-growth is the precedent process, and this is absolute and independent, rather than contingent.

It is a process which, primarily, relates to ourselves; which presupposes gratitude, ambition and desire and involves purpose, effort and persistence. It would be rather indefinite to bid us grow in the favor of God without, at the same time, pointing out the method and indicating the means. Is it not, then, perfectly fair to assume that the apostle, in the crisp injunction, "Grow in grace," designed to admonish us to grow in gracious things—in gracious qualities, traits, attributes, characteristics? Or can we do better than to assume that what is here laid upon us is the simple, straightforward, practical duty of increasing in spirituality? This, at least, is sure to be the outcome of it all, whether we consider that we are to grow directly in the favor of God, or are to grow in what is essential to secure and ensure his favor.

The injunction already discussed is, in the same verse which contains it, twinned with another—"and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." It seems to the writer that the segments of the verse might well be transposed. Certainly a knowledge of Christ is indispensable to grace-growth, and this sort of growth is the natural sequence of the knowledge. Not, of course, mere abstract and intellectual knowledge, but knowledge which resolves itself into inspiration and imitation. It is a truism that the more we know of Christ, the more we desire to become like Christ. Now, in order to keep perfecting this resemblance, we must all the time be striving to appropriate his characteristic qualities—love, kindness, forbearance, meekness, patience, submission, self-sacrifice. All these are gracious things; it is in these, and in things like them, that we are to grow; and, so growing, we shall, at the same time and in the same proportion, grow in the favor of God. This common sense view of the matter puts the actual and the contingent just where each belongs, points out a practical duty which all can comprehend and indicates a method and a process absolutely perfect in their simplicity.

Reduced to a single sentence, growing in grace is not, primarily, growing in the favor of God, but growing in qualities which constitute the prerequisites to his favor.

Buffalo, N. Y.

Olla-Podrida.

The intellectual faculties are quickened by association with cultured minds, as is the spiritual life by contact with divinely developed souls. They are also strengthened in the solitude of the hills and forests, in heart to heart communion with the spirit that pervades all things.

There is a greater greatness than is told
By monumental stone or balmed in verse—
The greatness of the still, strong life of him
Who softly treads the paths the Master trod,
Amid the silences in works that tell,
Carves out the way t' immortal fame and God.
No worldly ends nor weak ambitions sway
The humble soul; he rises to the goal
On steps his sacrificial love has built,
Content, if but his Lord is glorified.

Prince Bismarck, the greatest statesman of the nineteenth century, at the close of a life of fourscore and three years of wealth, power, fame, said: "I have not had during my whole life twenty-four hours of happiness." Why? Because of his deep-rooted distrust of human nature. The cynic is never happy. Unhappiness is the inevitable sequence of distrust. The latter is sometimes an hereditary taint; oftener the outgrowth of false principles and the reflux of false principles is disquiet, dissatisfaction, disruption. Can distrust of mankind coexist with faith in and love to God, of whom man is a part? Nay.

Mettie Crane Newton.

New York City.

"WHAT A CRIME"

To Talk Against Coffee.

To an ambitious student an ailment that interferes with school and study is very hard to bear.

A bright young girl in Detroit who had been poisoned by coffee, is now pursuing her studies in perfect health. Probably the coffee champions feel she should have continued to suffer and kept on with the coffee, but now and then there are self-willed creatures who insist on getting well by leaving off coffee, deserting the "topers' ranks" and joining the Postum army.

"From early childhood till a year ago I was in the habit of drinking three or four cups of coffee every day.

"As I grew older, the bad effects began to show themselves, although I had no idea that it was coffee that was doing the mischief. I became very nervous, and suffered so much from severe headaches that I lost much valuable time from my school and studies. The doctor could give me no relief—he probably did not suspect the coffee any more than I did.

"One day I went to visit a friend, and the coffee they had on their table tasted so good that I asked what kind it was, and they told me it was Postum Food Coffee. My friend said that her mother had been a nervous wreck from drinking the old kind of coffee, but had been restored to health by quitting it and drinking Postum. The whole family were enthusiastic about Postum and advised me to try it.

"I am glad they did, for it has given me back my health. At first we did not boil it enough and did not like it, but we soon learned how to make it, and now we all prefer it to the old kind. I have discovered that to stir a beaten egg in the warm milk we use instead of cream gives a most delicious flavor to Postum Food Coffee.

"From the first day I began to use Postum Coffee (I quit the old kind altogether) my health began to improve. My headaches ceased on the third day and have never returned, my nervousness has completely disappeared, my brain seems invigorated and strengthened, and I am now able to study from 4 to 5 hours daily, outside of school, and feel no bad effects from it.

"My aunt was sick for five years from coffee poisoning. It was hard work to get her to give up the beverage, but when she did and began to use Postum Food Coffee, she got well almost at once, and is now enjoying fine health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial proves. "There's a reason."

Our Budget

—Missouri Convention, Marshall.

—J. H. Swift has decided to remain at Hamburg, Ia.

—J. A. Tabor will take up the work at Watonga, Okla.

—Harry G. Hill has been lecturing recently at a number of places.

—Muskogee, I. T., will get F. V. Farley, of Kentucky, about July 1.

—From June 1, 1904, to June 1, 1905, Missouri gave to foreign missions $16,651.08.

—J. J. Cramer is now at his new field at Marfa, having recently left Lockhart, Tex.

—A. N. Simpson of Drake university has accepted a call to Toronto Junction, Canada.

—O. C. Bohman seems to be well pleased with his new field of work at Mason City, Ia.

—The brethren at Springfield, Mass., have purchased a lot for a church to be built during the coming year.

—J. A. Shoptaugh, who has been at Denison, Tex., will take up the work for the Broadway church, Pueblo, Col.

—Z. T. Sweeney was on the program to dedicate the new church at Pullman, but his place was taken by J. V. Coombs.

—We are glad to learn that D. S. Domer, of Beaver City, Neb., is again able to take up the work after a long and serious illness.

—A teacher in one of our colleges has just sent our National Benevolent Association $400 in exchange for annuity bond No. 96.

—Miss Alma E. Moore, of Topeka, has organized a C. W. B. M. at Lincoln, Kan., and the reports indicate that the prospects are bright.

—F. E. Robinson has found it necessary, for health reasons, to quit preaching entirely, and has resigned at Vancouver, Wash., to take effect July 1.

—The officers of the Chicago ministerial association just elected are: E. S. Ames, president; C. G. Kindred, vice-president; Guy Hoover, secretary.

—Aug. 27 is the date set for the dedication of a handsome $15,000 house of worship at Pontiac, Ill., where W. J. McColley is in his third year of ministry.

—Sumner T. Martin has accepted a call to labor with the church at Pasadena, Cal., until F. M. Dowling, the regular pastor, is able to take up the work again.

—E. L. Davidson has gone to Indian Territory for a meeting. Churches desiring an evangelist may address him at 421 Altman Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

—Southern California extends a cordial invitation to all Disciples going to the national convention, while Bro. Morton L. Rose invites them to stop off at North Yakima, Wash.

—If "D. O." will write to the Editor of this paper, personally, giving name, address, and necessary facts, he will give what advice he can in the case, and suggest method of procedure.

—Geo. Quiggin, who has for some time been a student at Hiram, and who comes to us from the church at Southport, England, will preach for the church at Collingwood, Canada, during the summer.

A choice plot of ground has been secured and paid for in Mt. Ayr, Ia., and our brethren there are contemplating erecting a $10,000 building. Brother Walker reports that all is well with the cause in that part of Iowa.

—The local chapter of the business men's association in St. Louis will hold a lawn social on the ground adjoining the Union avenue Christian church on June 27. It is expected to prove a very interesting occasion and to bring about a better unification of the work.

—The Nodaway valley district convention will meet with the church at Savannah, Mo., July 19-21. Entertainment will be free. Bro. D. W. Connor reports that the work moves along satisfactorily.

—Brethren at West Salem, Ill., have just purchased a good parsonage, and are contemplating repairing the church building in the near future. Bro. G. W. Ford, the pastor, will be open for two or three meetings after July 10.

—In a personal note from E. W. Allen from Eagleville, Mo., we learn that we now have 35 churches in Harrison county, and that Brother Allen helped to organize the first one in 1841, when this state was still a territory.

—One of our well known southern ministers has just given the National Benevolent Association $400 on the annuity plan, with a view both to helping a worthy Christian enterprise and laying up at least a little in view of old age.

—The work at Norwood, O., goes forward under Bro. J. E. Armistead. The home mission offering was $78, three times as much as last year. The children's day offering was $45. The quarterly conference of the tenth district has just been entertained by this church.

—The church at Allerton, Ia., to which R. H. Ingram has just gone, is one of the best in southern Iowa, with a fine new house of worship and a membership of about 250 excellent people. While the field is somewhat limited, Brother Ingram looks for a pleasant and successful ministry.

—During the pastorate of a little more than two years of J. G. Slick at Yates Center, Kan., over 200 were added to the church and a new building was erected. Brother Slick goes now to Arapahoe, Neb., while F. W. Emerson succeeds him.

—Raymond A. McCorkle, a member of the graduating class of Hiram college and a son of a member of Central Christian church at Warren, O., where J. E. Lynn is pastor, has just been ordained to the ministry at that place. Brother McCorkle has accepted a call to a church at Cambridge, O., and has begun his work.

—B. F. Cato, of New Albany, Ind., is no doubt happy in reporting that when he called for pledges on the new church an interested and enthusiastic audience that filled every pew responded with $6,500. Besides this, the missionary offerings are beyond the apportionments. It is only a united and happy congregation that can do these things.

—The new church recently organized at Fullerton, Cal., by Sumner T. Martin and J. Walter Wilson cost the state missionary society but $80, and in the future the church will make no demands for assistance, but will itself be a contributor to all our missionary enterprises. Bro. Chas. C. Chapman reports that the evangelists have not only done good, substantial work at Fullerton, but in other places also.

—The San Marcos river camp meeting will be held from July 7 continuing over Sunday, July 23. This is the biggest summer event our people have in Texas, and very many will be interested in knowing that this year the meeting promises to be in every way on a par with anything that has gone before. The preaching will be done by J. B. Boen and B. B. Sanders, both of whom are widely known, while E. M. Douthit will lead the singing, and be assisted by some of the best musicians in the country. This year the tabernacle will be new, covered with shingles, and seated with comfortable seats with backs to them. The location of the camp ground is near Fentress, on the San Marcos river, in Caldwell county. J. S. Brown, San Marcos, Tex., will furnish further particulars.

—A post card brings us the information that C. M. Hughes, of Muir, Ky., has just lost everything through a fire, originating in the kitchen flue. He and his family were left without even a change of clothing. As he has passed by a few years the age Dr. Osler prescribed as the limit of usefulness, we can understand that Brother Hughes might have a certain natural feeling that it would be a very difficult matter to get together again a home. We feel sure, however, that many of his brethren will want to show a ready sympathy with him in his misfortune.

—R. H. Fife paid the office of the Christian Evangelist a pleasant call on his return from the exercises at the University of Kentucky. Brother Fife described these as very enthusiastic, and said he had a delightful time. He may send his two sons to the Bible college and the university this fall. Having decided to enter upon evangelistic work, Brother Fife will be open to correspond with churches where an active and large campaign can be inaugurated. The train on which Brother Fife and Bro. J. B. Jones were returning collided with a freight, but fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

—Peter E. Hawkins, who is reported to be in every way fitted for the ministry, has just been ordained at Eureka, Kan. He has had several calls but will likely accept Agra and Kensington, for half time at each place. Brother Bradford reports that Eureka church is proud of its young men. A. P. Sherman, who was sent out by this congregation a few months ago, is making a good record. We are glad to hear that there are two or three more young men who give promise of being useful preachers, while the young ladies are not behind them in the desire to work for the Master.

—The Editor's book on "The Holy Spirit" is receiving some very commendatory notices, but they are not all or that kind. Bro. F. M. McHale, of Hoisington, Kan., writes that he has just finished reading the book, and adds: "The only thing in the book worth reading is the chapter on 'Inspiration.' Instead of making this much misunderstood subject clear to the reader the whole book obscures the subject worse than ever. . . . I pronounce this book a failure. It never should have been written nor printed and is not worth reading." It is only fair that we publish this view of the book, as a warning to prospective buyers. We thank Brother McHale for giving an honest expression of his estimate of the book. We are quite sure that many others will take a similar view of the work.

—Governor Hanly, of Indiana, in his address to the business men's Bible class of the North Park Christian church, Indianapolis, took a strong stand for the enforcement of law. Churches and schools and other good institutions, are, he said, the assets of a state, and the sources of the strength of a commonwealth. Other institutions, however, are liabilities and the sources of the weakness of a commonwealth. What we ought to do, he said, was to strengthen our assets and weaken our liabilities. "If all people lived according to the gospel principles there would be practically no need of poor houses, police courts, and prisons, and in time but little need for asylumns. Go to your homes and look around you and think, and you will find that about the whole circle of your blessings grows out of the gospel influences." He closed his address with the statement: "I would rather be a good governor of a good people for four years and forever drop out of public life than to be a bad governor of a bad people and continue in public life indefinitely." George Brewer, the teacher of the class, which has an enrollment of about 200, gave a brief address also.

—R. F. Mallott is now at work at Odin, Ill.

—A. H. Tilock will become the field agent for Bethany, Va.

—Enlargement and improvement of the church building, Shenandoah, Va., is now going on.

—L. L. Carpenter was to dedicate a beautiful new building at Harrisonburg, Va., on last Lord's day.

—B. P. Harris has gone to Atlanta, Ga., and E. C. Harris, of Shreve, Ohio, takes up the vacated pastorate at Columbia avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

—A. L. Ward has had 49 additions at the St. James street church, Boston, during the past year. The members are looking forward to the reduction of their debt.

—C. L. Vawter, of the South Meridian street Christian church, Indianapolis, has resigned. During his pastorate there was an increase of about 25 per cent in the membership, and the debt was removed.

—The First district convention of Illinois recommended that $500 be raised by the churches for the coming year, and the apportionments have been accepted. One of the features of the convention was a speech from J. A. Pierce, a Baptist minister, who pleaded for a reunion of the two great immersionist bodies.

—Miss Carmi Hostetter, who is one of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society's workers at Sendai, Japan, was married to Mr. M. M. Smyser of the Japanese government school on May 13. Mr. and Mrs. Smyser will reside at Hagi, Japan. The ceremony was performed at the American consulate, Kabe, by Clifford S. Weaver, of Osaka.

—The church at Tazewell, Va., has passed resolutions expressing their deep regret at the resignation of their minister, Robert E. Elmore, who has served them faithfully and efficiently for nearly four years. They desire to offer testimony as to his high moral character and his ability as a preacher, and pray for his success in his evangelistic work.

—The Fourth district convention of the Illinois Christian missionary society will meet at Flanagan, June 27-29. The church there is prepared to give free entertainment to all in the district who attend, and a cordial invitation is extended to congregations, Bible-schools, C. W. B. M. and Christian Endeavor societies to send their delegates. O. L. Smith is the pastor.

—The American Christian Missionary Society has prepared a special patriotic program for Lord's day, July 2, that is of interest and suggestive along the line of Christian patriotism. It is especially designed for churches that have not taken the offering for home missions, and is furnished free of cost. Sample copies may be had by writing to Benjamin L. Smith, corresponding secretary, Y. M. C. A. Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

—Notwithstanding that our brethren at Stonefort, Ill., meet in an old store room which will only accommodate about 50 people, with plain boards as seats, they are seeking to overcome their difficulties and some prejudice that is against them. E. C. Stark preaches for them once a month. J. A. Lytle, of Urbana, Ill., reports that in a short meeting recently held four were received into the church —one by statement, one from the M. E's and two by confession and baptism.

—The following dispatch we clipped from one of the daily papers just as we had closed up the paper this week. It announces the departure of one who has long been identified with our work in Missouri and who has often, with loving heart and tender voice, read in his own happy way the record of our fallen brothers and sisters in his obituary reports to our state conventions. He was greatly loved and has finished his course in peace. Our sympathies are tendered to the bereaved ones:

"Moberly, Mo., June 11.—Elder J. A. Berry of the Christian church died at his home here last night, soon after he had retired. He was over 75 years of age, having been born at Millersburg, Callaway county, March 24, 1830. He preached the first sermon ever preached in Moberly, standing on the steps of the state house, the present site of the Merchants' hotel. He was the pastor of the First Christian church here when a young man and its first pastor. He had been in the ministry fifty-two years, and is known to members of the Christian church throughout the state. The remains will be taken to Mokane, Mo., for burial."

* *

"The Holy Spirit."

The above is the simple title of a book of more than 200 pages from the active brain, gentle heart, and graceful pen of the beloved Editor of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. It is from the press of the Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis.

Dr. Garrison, in this work, treats in his usual felicitous style, the personality, the mission, both to the world and to the church, and the modes of activity, of the Holy Spirit. The volume is devotional in spirit, didactic in style, logical in form, biblical in its positions.

I read every word of the book, with pencil in hand, within a few hours after it came to me —read it with pleasure and profit. I propose to read it again and again. I may also have something to say to my brethren about some of its positions.

For some time to come this meaty, sweet-spirited, suggestive little book will be a part of my devotional reading. To call attention to and commend this book is, to me, a privilege and pleasure. B. B. TYLER.

Denver, Col.

* *

A Good Start.

The returns from children's day are encouraging. During the first eight days of June, as compared with the first eight days of June, 1904, the receipts were as follows: 1905, contributing schools, 412; total amount received, $11,300.32; 1904, contributing schools, 277; total amount received, $6,790.26, a gain of 135 schools and a gain in total receipts of $4,510.04. These are the total receipts from all sources for eight days.

The total gain for the year up to June 8, is $36,486.37. The victory of a quarter of a million dollars is now clearly in sight. Le the schools and churches make haste to forward their offerings. We must not suffer defeat when we are so near victory.

F. M. RAINS, Cor. Sec.

Cincinnati, Ohio.

* *

Hiram College Commencement.

Hiram's commencement will begin June 18 with the preparatory department's exercises. On Sunday is the baccalaureate and at 3:00 p. m. the ordination service. The literary societies have Monday. Tuesday is devoted to the conservatory of music. On Wednesday will be the annual meeting of the board of trustees, the fiftieth anniversary of the Hesperian literary society and the Hesperian banquet, and in the evening the entertainment by the Olive Branch literary society. Thursday morning will be the graduating exercises of the senior class and conferring degrees. Inauguration of President C. C. Rowlison, the alumni reunion and banquet, and the entertainment by the Hesperian literary society will follow.

ME TOO

The "Tail Enders" That Follow Genuine Articles.

It is sometimes interesting to watch the curves imitators make to get the public to buy imitations of genuine goods.

Every now and then some one will think there is a splendid opening to fix up something like Postum Coffee and advertise the same way and take some of the business.

An imitator is naturally ignorant of food values and how to skilfully make a cereal coffee, on scientific lines.

Such men first think of preparing something that looks and tastes like the original, with no knowledge of how the grains should be treated to prepare them so that the starchy part is transformed properly and the valuable nourishing elements made digestible.

Such imitations may be foisted on the public for a short time, but the people are critical and soon detect the attempt, then the imitators go out of business.

Something like 400 of these little factories have been started in various parts of this country in the past 9 years, and practically all of them have gone the "long journey." Just lately a new one has come to life and evidently hopes to insert itself in public favor by copying the style of the Postum advertising in the papers.

This is a free country and every man who makes an honest product and honestly labels it, has reason for some recognition, but the public has the right to know the facts.

Postum is the one original and genuine Cereal Coffee, made skilfully and for a definite purpose. It has stood through all the wars of the imitators, has won the approval of the Physicians and the people.

People who really seek to free themselves from the coffee habit and at the same time to rebuild the soft gray matter in the nerve centres and thus reconstruct the nervous system, broken down by coffee, can rely on Postum.

There's a reason.

* *

Maxinkuckee Assembly.

Maxinkuckee has changed owners and management. It is now a stock company, a majority of the directors being of our brotherhood. The assembly owns a beautiful oak grove on the Maxinkuckee lake. The grounds are in better shape than ever before. Surveys are being made for the platting of new lots to answer the demand for cottage sites. The greatest improvement over past years, however, is in the program that is prepared. The summer school for preachers will be a prominent feature of the forenoon work throughout the assembly season. The instructors include Dr. Jabez Hall, W. G. Smith and Chas. Underwood. Those desiring information should write to General Manager Maxinkuckee assembly, 211 Law Building, Indianapolis, Indiana.

* *

Changes.

J. L. Watson, Sewickley, to Moulton, Ala.
M. C. Hutchinson, Coon Rapids to Panora, Iowa.
P. W. Krahl, Howard, Kan., to Raton, N. M.
S. J. Corey, Rochester to Brewerton, N. Y.
J. Walter Carpenter, New Haven, Conn., to 29 Lincoln St., Uniontown, Pa.
W. H. Trainum, Ballinger, Tex., to 6033 Ellis Ave, Chicago, Ill.
H. C. Saum, Prairie Depot, to Maurertown, Va., R. F. D.
H. E. Stevens, Van Wert, to Bryan, O.
G. L. Lobdell, Eugene to Dallas, Ore.
C. A. Freer, Collinwood to 119 W. High St., Painesville, O.
S. M. Martin to 426 S. 24th St., Seattle, Wash.

DEDICATIONS.

Mt. Carmel, Mo.

We dedicated June 4 with no debt to provide for. T. A. Abbott officiated to the delight of all. C. C. TAYLOR.

Waco, Mo.

We dedicated the new church here June 5 and raised $160; $50 above all the indebtedness. We had an ideal day and a large crowd. We will continue the meeting for a week and hope to reorganize the church and raise money for preacher one-fourth time.

Windsor, Mo. R. B. HAVENER.

Radford, Va.

W. H. Book, of Martinsville, Va., has dedicated our new church. The structure is of brick and was dedicated free from debt. Brother Book conducted a short meeting which resulted in 42 confessions and an organization of about 75. The free will offerings just about paid for the meeting. Pledges were taken for a preacher who will give one-half time to the work. C. G. KEGLEY.

East Aurora, New York.

The church at East Aurora, New York, rejoices in the completion and dedication of a new and very beautiful house of worship. While the indebtedness to be provided for was large, yet the giving was so very generous that the house was offered to the Lord with all debts amply provided for. Bro. Lewis S. Cost ministers to the church in word and doctrine, and is doing great good in that cultured city. It was a great pleasure to meet several brethren from Buffalo and other surrounding cougregations. L. L. CARPENTER.

Wabash, Ind.

Terre Haute, Ind.

The Christian church at Fontanet, Ind., dedicated by the writer on Sunday, May 21, is a neat chapel, built by the sacrifices of the members and friends of the congregation. All bills had been paid as the work on the building went forward, so it was not necessary to make an appeal for money on the day of dedication, although a liberal cash offering was made by the large congregation. The work is in a prosperous condition under the ministry of Bro. J. N. Weddle. Splendid music was furnished throughout the day by a large choir from the church at Brazil. L. E. SELLERS.

Lynxville, Wis.

Our remodeled and refurnished church auditorium has been dedicated anew. A. M. Laird, the minister, had charge of the services. The expenses have all been provided for, and all departments of the church are in good condition. Following the dedication the writer, assisted by S. J. Combes, of the Chicago Metropolitan church, held a week's meeting, resulting in six confessions.

During these meetings "aunt Kate" Armstrong, for many years the only Disciple of Christ here, and the mother of the Lynxville church, went home to God. She was a faithful and devoted Christian, a true and loving wife, esteemed by all in this section, and a tower of strength in the church. Brethren from neighboring churches and "scattered Disciples" from different parts of the county attended the funeral and some remained over for the meetings. A. M. LAIRD, minister.

Kansas City.

The Ivanhoe Park Christian church of this city was dedicated May 14, T. P. Haley being master of ceremonies. The property is worth about $7,500, is well located in one of the most desirable residence districts of the city. $2,000 was needed to free the church of all indebtedness. This amount was pledged in a few minutes. A most creditable example for men possessing an abundance of this world's goods was given by Brethren R. A. Long and D. O. Smart of the Independence boulevard church by their presence and generous gifts at yesterday's service, and also by Dr. D. J. McMillen, who by repeated generous gifts, service with his own hands, and allowing himself to be made personally responsible for the payment of all bills, has made it possible for the congregation to have this beautiful house of worship at the present time. The congregation are exultant with joy and with hope for the future work.

LEWIS P. KOPP, pastor.

HAVE YOU READ THE
THIRD EDITION OF
A Christian or Church Member—Which?
Now is your chance to secure a copy at HALF-PRICE--ONLY 25 CENTS.
Order at once—this is your last opportunity to obtain this book at this low price. Address the author,
DR. JNO. G. M. LUTTENBERGER, 5104 Morgan St., ST. LOUIS.

* * *

Evangelistic Aftermath.

It is now one and one-half years since the evangelistic campaign in this city which brought into our two churches in Joplin nearly 1,000 souls.

For one full year audiences taxed the capacity of both congregations on Sunday. Both prayer-meetings were the surprise of all who saw them. A new converts' meeting at the First church filled the main auditorium on Monday evening for the 12 months. The Bible-school far outstripped all past records. While the attendance at the midweek service has fallen off some, it still remains that nearly all our departmental work as well as church attendance has been permanently doubled.

When these meetings were held both our churches were in debt. The South Side church have paid their debt and enlarged their building to nearly double its former capacity, increased the minister's salary $200 and will soon increase it again. The First church had a debt of nearly $10,000. At that time it was felt that several years would be necessary to see it paid. But with the new life infused by the great meeting it was proposed to pay it off in 33 weeks. The pledging of this amount on two memorable May days in 1904, with W. E. Harlow to lead us, and the subsequent payment almost in full and on schedule time, ending in a great rally last Christmas day, forms a chapter in heroic Christian living that is not generally known. I only wish the brethren might know how the new converts sacrificed to see this victory. Almost $14,000 were given last year in cash, from wage earners almost exclusively, practically wiping out every financial obligation. On top of this the church increased the minister's salary $500 as a new year's surprise.

Knowing the sacrifices of last year I almost hesitated to ask for large amounts for missions this year. But after much prayer I did and the people again responded by giving enough to make us a living link in both Home and Foreign societies. Such a missionary interest has been generated that two of our young people have volunteered to go to the foreign field, and I have no doubt that the First church, or at least our two Joplin churches, will support both of them.

Many of our very best workers including some of our most competent and efficient officers in the church have come from the new converts. Never were two churches more united in brotherly love, nor more free from worldliness. If there is a single serious heartburning among us, I do not know it. The enthusiasm of those memorable days when hundreds were turning to God in a few weeks seems still to be with us. Our great meetings have been a shower from heaven to the cause in this city. In a recent hard fought battle of the Anti-Saloon League the churches of Joplin carried the balance of power, and foremost in the battle were scores of these same new converts.

Why are the results so permanent? Back of the strong congregation we had to care for these new babes and back of the great effort we all made to that end is the fact that they were brought into the church as the result of conviction and not sentiment. They were taught the great principles of the gospel and told what must be given up and what must be endured and done to wear the crown. With no word of disparagement of any other evangelist, I will say that converts made under the preaching of W. E. Harlow will hold out faithful with the watch-care and love that any church can give to follow up the work.

Joplin, Mo. W. F. TURNER.

* * *

Good News From the Children's Day Offering.

Allegheny, Pa.—First church, children's day offering over $800.—Wallace Tharp.

Armington, Ill.—Offering, $35; best in the history of the school.—L. E. Chase.

Atchison, Kan.—Offering $72.50. Apportionment $25.—John L. Rose.

Bloomington, Ill.—First Sunday-school sends $100. Everyone in the school gave something.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Apportionment $200. Offering $260. Insures Living Link.—G. B. Van Arsdall.

Cuyahoga Falls, O.—Stow Sunday-school sends $79.10.

Cameron, W. Va.—Raised $100 on children's day.

Clarinda, Ia.—Send a splendid offertng, $215.61.—Wm. Orr, Supt.

East Dallas, Tex.—Send $100.—J. J. Collins, Supt.

Evansville, Ind.—Bethany went a little beyond its apportionment.—Allen T. Shaw.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Offering, $75.—E. W. Allen.

Indianapolis, Ind.—It was a great victory. We have gone about $25 beyond our apportionment, $100.—E. H. Clifford, Fourth Sunday-school.

Kansas City, Mo.—Hyde Park apportionment $10, raised $50. Great day for our school and missions.—H. H. Borgman.

Kansas City, Mo.—Independence avenue, attendance, 839. Collection, $1,235.—Eva Lemert.

Ligonier, Ind.—Offering largest in history of the church; $30.—Chas. W. Malin.

Louisville, Ky.—The Third Sunday-school raised its apportionment of $100.—V. R. Catlett.

Millersburg, O.—Raised $85 on children's day.

Maysville, Ky.—Count on school for over $200, $60 more than our apportionment.—J. T. Kackley, Sup't.

Mt. Carmel, Ill.—Apportionment $50. Send $122.40.—A. E. Smith.

Newton, Kan.—Our offering $184.26.—A. J. Duff.

Newport, Ky.—Offering of the Central Sunday-school, $85. More to follow.

New Salem, Ind.—Offering, $75. This more than doubles any previous effort.—Frank B. Thomas.

Pomona, Cal.—Offering best on coast, about $400.—Will J. Schafer, Supt.

Ravenna, Ohio.—Splendid day. Offering over $100. Our school has grown to be the largest in the town. Supt. M. J. Hubbel, M. E. Chatley, pastor.

Ransom, Kan.—More than doubled our apportionment.—Chas. J. Speltenberger.

Rushville, Ind.—Sunday-school makes church Living Link. Offering over $300.—Sniff and Nipp.

P. J. RICE,
At Whose Church in South Bend, Ind., a Great Meeting Has Just Been Held.

THE LATE MRS. D. M. SCOTT,
Who Left Her Beautiful Home at Alexandria, Ind., for the Benefit of Aged Ministers.

STEPHEN J. COREY,
The New Secretary of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

Program Iowa Christian Convention.

The following is the program of the convention to be held in Des Moines, Iowa, June 22-28, at University church:

Thursday afternoon and Friday, C. W. B. M. period.

Friday (Evening), Words of Welcome, by T. J. Dow, the Mayor of Des Moines, the Governor of Iowa, and response by D. A. Wickizer.

Saturday, Announcement of committees; Address, G. W. Muckley; Bible-school period. (Afternoon), Bible school period; Christian Endeavor period. (Evening), Christian Endeavor address; H. A. Denton; Bible school address, H. O. Breeden.

Sunday, preaching in all offered pulpits. (Afternoon), Communion service at the city auditorium; address, D. R. Dungan. (Evening), Christian Endeavor rally; addresses, at the University church, I. N. McCash, at University auditorium, D. R. Dungan.

Monday, addresses, D. R. Dungan, Geo. L. Snively, W. J. Wright; sermon, T. R. Hodkinson. (Afternoon), Ministerial Association period. (Evening), Jubilee praise service, W. B. Crewdson; Convention address, "What the World Owes Christ," J. C. Mabry.

Tuesday, Reports; presentation of I. C. C. missionaries; messages from the workers. (Afternoon), address, "Our Weak Churches," D. W. Hastings; address, "Paramount Importance of the I. C. C. Work," S. H. Zendt; discussion, A. Martin, W. T. Fisher; I. C. C. conference, led by T. F. Odenweller; report of committees. (Evening), Educational address, Chas. S. Medbury.

Wednesday, address, D. R. Dungan; business session; Drake University period. (Afternoon), address, "The Voice of the Sacred Past," J. Mad. Williams; "What has been wrought by our brethren and our God," J. H. Ragan, S. B. Ross, H. U. Dale, Allen Hickey; "Things Remembered," short talks by the old Disciples; Ministerial Association period.

One and one-third fare on the certificate plan has been granted by all railroads in Iowa. When delegates purchase tickets they should be sure to have the agent give a certificate receipt and if more than one line is used, a certificate should be secured from each.

Lodging and breakfast will be served free. Dinner and supper will be served at the church at 25 cents per meal. See that delegates are selected. Each congregation is entitled to one delegate and one additional delegate for each 100 members, or larger fraction thereof. Send your name to Walter Baker, chairman entertainment committee, University Place, Des Moines. For further information write,

Des Moines, Ia. B. S. Denny, Cor. Sec.

* *

Delegates to Inter-Church Conference.

Dr. E. B. Sanford has kindly furnished us a list of ministers and others among the Disciples of Christ who have at this writing accepted their appointment as delegates to the Inter-church conference to be held in the city of New York next November. This conference has for its object the bringing about of a closer co-operation between Christian people of different religious bodies in Christian work. No doubt others among us who have been asked to attend this gathering of representative men out of various bodies of Christendom will yet accept. A few are prevented from attending by other engagements. J. H. Garrison, St. Louis; B. B. Tyler, Denver; H. H. Willett, E. S. Ames and C. A. Young, Chicago; C. J. Scofield, Carthage, Ill.; A. B. Philputt, Indianapolis, Ind.; W. T. Moore, Columbia, Mo.; L. T. Marshall, Independence, Mo.; Dr. F. D. Power, Washington, D. C.; Pres. W. P. Alysworth, Bethany, Neb.; Prof. E. B. Wakefield, Hiram, O.; J. H. Goldner, Cleveland, O.; I. J. Spencer, Lexington, Ky.; J. E. Lynn, Warren, O.; B. Q. Denham and M. E. Harlan, New York; Pres. Hill M. Bell, Des Moines; L. G. Batman, Philadelphia; J. M. Van Horn, Worcester, Mass.; B. S. Ferrall and R. H. Miller, Buffalo, N. Y., and J. P. Lichtenberger, New York.

* *

An Important Movement.

The meeting of the University club of the University place church, at Des Moines, Ia., May 29, is, we believe, an historical event. Quietly, for a few months, hampered much by illness in the family of its secretary, Mrs. Garst, the Iowa Christian education society has been launching an educational campaign. The hope is that university clubs may be organized in many churches throughout the state, and a systematic plan of co-operation established with our educational work. C. S. Medbury, who is president of both the local organization and that of the state, gave a happy setting of the plan and hopes connected with the work. President Bell tried to help us catch a little vision of the reach of the university's work, with one man in the U. S. cabinet from Drake, doctors, lawyers, teachers, preachers, missionaries, business men, in responsible and telling work. Mrs. Mitchell—teacher of much ability, who goes out in institutional work through the summer, covering one-ninth of the state in this field of work, and who could have three institutes where she has one, so greatly in demand is her splendid service—spoke charmingly upon "Who Can Facilitate the Club Work: What They Can Do, and Why They Should Do It." Mrs. Garst gave several reasons why the university club has special claim on the workers. Dean Hulbert of the University of Chicago was present, was enthusiastic in his praise of the movement and its purport and said he was going home to tell his people about it and start a similar work there. He took membership with the club. Missionary work, home and foreign, and every activity of the church, he coincided with other speakers of the evening in claiming, would depend for their success on the progress of the educational work.

Laura DeLany Garst, Sec'y I. C. E. S.

* *

Colorado's Assembly.

The Colorado summer assembly will be held on grounds which will probably become its own permanent home, thirty six miles out of Denver on the line of the new "Moffatt" railroad. The site is in easy access to the city, yet in the heart of mountains.

The assembly will begin on August 1, and adjourn Aug. 10, to meet as the state convention, in the Central church, Denver, on the morning of Aug. 11, closing with a great all-day missionary rally on Sunday, Aug. 13, under the direction of the national secretaries.

Colorado plans to make this series of meetings the greatest missionary event in the history of our work in the state. Dean Haggard of Drake university will give Bible studies, and other men of national repute will appear on the assembly program. Brethren from the east intending to spend their vacation in Colorado, or to tarry a few days en route to San Francisco, can get information concerning the assembly facilities for camping, etc., etc., by addressing the president, J. E. Pickett, 2551 W. 34 Ave., Denver.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

Colorado.

The last meeting for the season of the Denver ministerial social union was held in the Adams hotel. More than two hundred men and women occupied seats at the banquet tables. The general topic for discussion was, "Agreements." A rabbi of the Hebrew church, a priest of the Roman Catholic church, a rector of the American branch of the Anglican church, and the pastor of a church that is simply Christian spoke on, "Wherein We Agree with the Methodist Church." Governor and Mrs. McDonald were the guests of honor. Bishop Warren and wife were present. President Barton O. Aylesworth, of the Colorado state agricultural college, formerly pastor of the Central Christian church, Denver, "said grace." The Rev. E. J. Wilcox, Methodist preacher, enthusiastic tither, millionaire mine owner, presided. Mr. Wilcox said, during the evening, that the South Broadway Christian church, Denver, has a larger proportion of tithers than any other church in the United States.

This was a great meeting. The rabbi and the priest who spoke, are unusually strong men. They are downright honest and earnest. They are outspoken and courageous, too. Their addresses were not wishy washy, namby pamby, shilly shally mouthings. The real points of agreement were brought out in a manly way. The spirit of the speakers was beyond criticism. The fact that there are important disagreements was not concealed. These two men were the heroes of the hour—and rightly so. Such meetings will do good. There is not space in this letter to give the points that were made. This meeting, and its character, are presented, in this place, that the hint may be taken and similar meetings held in other cities in which the subject will be, "Wherein We Agree with the Disciples of Christ." Try it and report results.

Are you going to the international Sunday-school convention to be held in Toronto, Canada, June 23-27? This will be a great convention in the interest of Bible study and Bible-school work. I hope to meet you there. You cannot afford to miss this great assembly and conference of Bible students and teachers.

Denver, Col. B. B. Tyler.

* *

Missouri Bible-School Notes.

Last call for the state convention at Marshall, June 16-21. It promises to be successful. Many of our most successful Bible-school workers will speak. One question already in the box is, "How can we attach a live wire to a dead superintendent?" Bring on your questions.

No church can afford to have its minister or superintendent miss the information and enthusiasm coming from such a gathering. Pay their way and send them. Rate is one-half fare plus 50 cents.

Have you preached that sermon about our children yet? A. W. Kokendoffer, W. F. Richardson, J. H. Wright, F. N. Calvin and a host of others have. Is there any subject of more vital importance than the training of our children? Would not every interest of the church be a glorious success in a very few years if the children were properly trained? Then will you not preach the sermon next Lord's day? Then come to the convention and tell us you did it.

"Not less attention to reformation but more attention to formation," says M. A. Hart. That hits it exactly. Thousands are falling over a precipice. Christians are busy caring for the dead and wounded.

Why not climb up and build a wall to keep them from falling? A good brother went to Jefferson City to try to have an old murderer's sentence changed, but, although he is a leading citizen, he does not give his influence (to say nothing of assistance) in the local Bible-school work. He gave us money for state Bible-school work, but not an hour for the children of his home town. Oh, my brother, if you but knew the good you could do! Some time a young man will be sentenced to Jefferson City and you may be to blame.

The commencement season is on, which prompted a friend to say, "We do better by our boys in the old country than here, because we teach every boy a trade." Yes; but we teach the trades in the reform schools and penitentiary. Isn't it a burning shame that a boy must commit some crime and be sentenced to such a place before we do the practical thing to make a good citizen of him? And yet the public school teachers of Missouri express a deeper interest in the problem of child training than do our Bible-school teachers. Who is to blame?

Some pledges to the state Bible-school for the year ending May 31, 1905, were made at Carrollton convention or were sent to me early in the year and have not been paid. The year is past and this matter deserves your prompt attention.

If the money is not received by the convention such schools must be on the delinquent list. This will be embarrassing for the minister and superintendent. One said, "I'll not go to the convention unless our pledge is paid." I urge you once more—bring or send the amount due to Marshall, Mo.

Personally and for our board I want to thank everyone who has helped to make this a pleasant, and, we trust the reports at Marshall will cause you to say, a profitable, year in the interest of Missouri's boys and girls.

Mexico, Mo. W. A. Moore.

* *

Nebraska.

R. F. Whiston, state evangelist, closed the McCook meeting and had a rally and election of officers on the following evening. A full board was chosen and a symposium on the practical matters relating to church management and duties of officers was conducted by the evangelist. After a short program the ladies surprised the gathering by serving refreshments. This secretary was privileged to be present. The presence of the Methodist and Baptist preachers added much to the good spirit of the occasion. The immediate results in additions were 16 added to the church, and some excellent material. A collection was taken to liquidate the balance of debt owing to a former preacher. The work at McCook, with fairly good leadership, will now go on to success.

L. Aa. Hussong, preacher at Wilber, is preparing for a meeting at that place with home forces. Brother Hussong has been in the State university the last two years.

It is reported that Mrs. Hazelrigg has had 42 additions at Bloomington in a meeting preceding and following the dedication of their new house.

Geo. W. Light is preaching at Gross and Pleasantview in Boyd county, and reports a hopeful outlook there.

District No. 8 convention, held at Edison where J. S. Miller is the preacher in charge, was a distinct success. It was well attended, being one of the largest in that respect. At night there was not room for the crowds. The program was good. The spirit of the meeting was most excellent, and the Edison people entertained in a hearty and hospitable way. The delegates went home feeling that it was good to be there, and the members at Edison were also delighted with the meeting.

The secretary spent May 21 at North Platte. This church has not had a preacher with them for almost a year. They have nevertheless kept up their meetings and Bible-school and have gone forward in soliciting funds for a new church building. They purchased a lot before Brother Swander left them. They are now getting ready to begin the building so as to have it ready for occupancy by October. This is a town of 4,000 population and is a railroad division. The town is growing and has promise of a beet sugar factory. Our brethren are of an excellent class of people and are ready for a forward movement. The near-by churches have been supplying the pulpit for some time by allowing their preachers to go without cost to the church except the car fare. This has been a great help. They meet in the court house. Brethren of means, who would like to do some personal mission work, could not do better than to assist this little band in building its house.

The state evangelist was at Minden. Will visit Maywood to look over the field and preach at Elwood. He is trying to assist in locating a preacher at Minden and Norman. His meeting at Seward will be the last for the board this season.

Earl Boyd supplied at Plainview for J. A. Beattie on May 21 and Brother Beattie at Eastside church, Lincoln. Mrs. Beattie has been and still is quite ill.

The tabernacle committee was to have a meeting on Friday, May 26, and settle the details of construction of the tabernacle. The funds are coming in but slowly. It is time to act, brethren.

Cotner university is to have new walks and the building repainted where it takes paint. This looks businesslike. The Lord prosper it. We have heard also that the interurban road is coming to life again and will soon be at work all along its line from Omaha to Lincoln. Amen!

The convention of district No. 10 will be held at Overton, June 13-15.

Lincoln, Neb. W. A. Baldwin.

* *

District Convention, Jewell, Kansas.

Never before in the sixth district of Kansas was a convention better attended and never before was a more interesting and instructive program rendered than the one at Jewell. Every department of the church work was discussed and plans made for the coming year. Among other things the convention decided to engage a district evangelist. The expenses are to be defrayed, as much as possible, by collections during the meetings, from place to place, and any deficiency in the salary is to be paid by the state board.

Prof. W. C. Payne attended the convention and increased the interest of every one present, in the theme nearest his heart, the Bible chair work.

Not only was there a number of well known church workers of the sixth district present, but also a number from other parts of the state. Among these were: Mrs. Charles Hazelrigg, Topeka; W. S. Lowe, Topeka; Miss Alma

Moore, Topeka; W. C. Payne, Lawrence; W. T. Hilton, Atchison, and E. E. Francis, Canton, Mo.

Too much praise cannot be accorded Bro. B. A. Channer, pastor of the Christian church at Jewell, and the members of his congregation. We are all looking forward to another splendid convention at Smith Center next April.

* *

Iowa.

Western Iowa presents a most interesting and important field—a magnificent country destined to be rich almost beyond imagination, in which we have as yet but a slight foothold. A few notes of a hasty visit to several places which are admirable types of American push and enterprise, where our people are actively at work, may be of interest.

Starting in Cherokee after the other churches were well established, with a small tabernacle in an undesirable location, we have the most active and growing congregation in the place. D. R. Reynolds is in great favor. Including a three weeks' meeting assisted by the singing of our genial blind brother, G. A. Butler, of Mound City, Mo., 37 have been added in Brother Reynolds' six months' pastorate and he finds himself in demand in near-by places far beyond his ability to respond.

Bro. Wm. Baier at Marcus, like most of our preachers in that region, could compare notes with a Methodist circuit rider—in fact it looks as if they were the kind of men needed.

J. K. Ballou is doing heroic work at Sioux City. The old and entirely unsuitable property has been sold, a very desirable site secured, the payment provided for and the erection of what will eventually be the lecture room will soon commence. The quarterly report of their financial secretary showed that only one per cent of the amount pledged for current expenses remained unpaid and most of that was the pledge of one person who had moved away. Thirty have been added since Brother Ballou's coming, February 1, and $1,200 raised to complete payment for the lot. The membership is now 180 and when they get a church home and the preacher gets married our people in this important center will be on the high road to larger things.

T. R. Hodkinson has about concluded that he will have to leave his pleasant field at Sloan because they are unable to support him. He raised a serious objection to the Christian-Evangelist—that he couldn't make the valuable clippings from its columns fit his filing case, because they are printed on both sides of the paper.

D. O. Thompson, of Whiting, is doing excellent work at three points but it is feared that he may be compelled to go elsewhere to support his family.

B. F. Hall, with an experience of one month at Woodbine, has already made a fine impression on the church and community. Arrangements are well advanced for building a new house of worship, to be the best in the town, and the money is largely provided for.

Mr. Shoesmith came from Hartsville, Ind., to dedicate the new church at Logan last November and remains as pastor. Twenty-five have been added since that time. This congregation, by no means strong numerically, built and paid for a $6,000 house; a year later it burned, with no insurance; they at once built another, worth $9,000, the best in the town, and there was not a cent to raise at dedication.

The church at Onawa is probably the strongest in this region and Le Grand Pace has held the longest pastorate. With a good church and parsonage, the broadest streets in Iowa, a genuine "wonder" for Sunday-school superintendent, one member who is as willing as she is able to support an Iowa evangelist and one of our foremost C. W. B. M. auxiliaries, Onawa, of course, ranks well among our Iowa churches. Brother Pace was too busy at district missionary work to give us figures for publication.

W. B. Clemmer is happy in his work at Council Bluffs. In his year and nine months with them they have paid their entire debt of $1,800 and actually acquired the strange habit of keeping the preacher paid ahead. That would doubtless suit some other preachers. Sixty-four have been added this year. They are planning for an evangelistic campaign and facing the problem of a new house of worship.

Across the big streak of mud, S. D. Dutcher is making a decided impression on the ex-convention city. June 1 completes his first year with the First church. In this time 110 have been added, $9,000 have been raised, a very neat and commodious tabernacle has been erected and paid for on their fine church site and $4,000 paid on the lot, so they are now well equipped to build up the congregation and prepare for the permanent building that the importance of the place demands.

H. J. Kirschtien has been with the North Side church one year and four months and reports 73 added, debts paid and conditions much improved. They hope this summer to get the church moved to the new site, which is paid for, eight squares northeast, in what is thought to be a much more desirable location, and so place it as to eventually become the lecture room of a better building.

At South Omaha, G. W. Burch, who still looks and talks like an Iowa man, reports encouraging conditions. They fortunately disposed of their property, whose foundations were too far down in the depths of one of those big hollows, and have a large lot paid for in the finest location in the city. They expect to commence building soon.

Brothers Reynolds, Ballou, Hall, Pace, Clemmer, Kirschtien and Burch were all Drake students, which accounts in large measure for this good record. S. C. Slayton.

* *

The South Kentucky Annual Meeting.

The place was ideal. Hopkinsville and hospitality are synonymous terms. The splendid homes of that splendid little city of 10,000 people were opened to all who might come to the convention. The folks there strove with each other for the privilege of entertaining the delegates. It is always worth the cost of a trip to Hopkinsville to enjoy the hospitality of a Hopkinsville home.

The speakers were national in reputation. Wm. Forrest made us see India with new eyes. "A great address," was the comment of all who heard him speak. Tuesday evening A. McLean inspired us to renewed interest in our foreign work by what was said to have been one of his very best efforts. When Christians grasp that high conception of duty, in evangelizing the whole world, that Brother McLean preaches to us, Gabriel will begin to polish his horn preparatory to his blast, by which he will summon the dead to come forth to join the living before the eternal throne. R. H. Crossfield, on Wednesday evening, and H. W. Elliott, on Thursday evening, emphasized the need of scriptural emphasis of the equal claims of state, home and foreign missions. These were both classics in their line. Sandwiched in between these great addresses were no less helpful ones by other brethren. S. F. Fowler, Madisonville; J. W. Graham, Louisville; W. J. Hudspeth, Hopkinsville, Sam J. Bedford, Owensboro; W. G. Eldred, Fulton; the Sycamore, of Paducah, W. H. Pinkerton; Jno. W. Ligon, Corydon, W. T. Wells, Bowling Green; Howard J. Brazelton, Earlington; Professor Evans, Marion; R. M. Hopkins, Louisville, and others were largely instrumental in making the convention so successful.

Make Your Own Ice Cream.

There has just been placed in all the grocery stores, a new preparation called which is meeting with great favor, as it enables everyone to make ice cream in their own home with very little trouble. Everything in the package for making two quarts of delicious ice cream. If your grocer can't supply you send 25c. for two pkgs. by mail. Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Address, The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N.Y.

Jell-O Ice Cream POWDER

In W. J. Hudspeth we have a great leader who is well qualified to stand at the front of our aggressive evangelism in this field of such large opportunity. He is winning his way well into the confidence of our south Kentucky brethren.

The C. W. B. M. is making creditable progress under the management of its consecrated leaders. Mrs. Yancey, of Lexington, did much to make this part of the convention uplifting.

One of the forward steps for better things was the appointment of R. M. Hopkins, of Louisville, to take charge of Sunday-school work. From this time the Sunday-school field work of the entire state will be under his care. Brother Hopkins is second to none in creating Sunday-school enthusiasm. His advent among us is assuredly a blessing that will become more valuable every year.

Brother Grant said that the most blessed thing he saw for the future of this work was the increasing number of young men who are coming into this field. The Bible college was well and ably represented by "the boys" on the program.

We had the honor of several visitors. Among these were I. M. Boswell, of Chattanooga (watch out for his red-headed book); Geo. L. Sehon, representing the children's home of Louisville; and S. R. Cotter, our colored evangelist, who made an interesting report of his efforts among the negroes. He is a good man in a great mission field.

A special offering of $600 was taken, and the convention, so long burdened with debt, is free of indebtedness and has money in the treasury. The outlook is more encouraging than for years past and we face the future with the hope that great good will be wrought at our hands by him whose servants we are. Dr. J. W. Crenshaw, of Cadiz, is our president; Roger L. Clark, first vice-president; T. T. Roberts, second vice-president; W. J. Hudspeth, corresponding secretary, treasurer and evangelist. With these men to direct affairs, we feel confident that our meeting next year at Murray will be a further step in the direction of better things for the south Kentucky missionary and Sunday-school association.

Harvey Baker Smith, Rec. Sec.

* *

SUFFERED 15 YEARS

From Itching and Painful Humor, Affecting Head and Body. Cured in a Week by Cuticura.

"For fifteen years I had eczema all over my head and body. Words cannot express how I suffered from the itching and pain. I had given up hope when a friend told me to get Cuticura. After bathing with Cuticura Soap and applying Cuticura Ointment for three days, my head was as clear as ever, and to my surprise and joy, one cake of soap and one box of ointment made a complete cure in one week." (Signed) H. B. Franklin, 717 Washington St., Allegheny, Pa.

William Woods Commencement.

The fifteenth commencement of William Woods college from May 20-25 was the most enjoyable, and closed the most prosperous year that the college has ever had.

Saturday evening, May 20, the class in vocal culture gave an operetta which would have done credit to girls of more mature years. On Lord's day the baccalaureate sermon was preached in the Christian church by Bro. R. G. Frank, of Independence; and the sermon to the undergraduates at night was given by Bro. M. A. Hart, the pastor of the Fulton church.

Monday evening the annual piano concert was given in the college chapel. Tuesday morning a match game of basket ball was played between the two college teams, and proved one of the most attractive features of the week. Tuesday evening the class in expression gave the mythological play of Pygmalion and Galatea before a large audience. Wednesday was a full day, beginning with the alumnæ reunion in their new hall. This was closely followed by the annual meeting of the board of directors, at which things most pleasant to hear were said by Dr. W. S. Woods and others. Wednesday evening came the junior prize essay contest followed by the ever welcome alumnæ banquet, with "feast of reason and flow of soul." Thursday was class day, when the girls are free to give vent to their feelings for teachers, schoolmates, and college. The drill on the lawn and the planting of the ivy form an attractive part of the program.

Thursday evening the regular graduating exercises were held, at which time Bro. G. D. Edwards, of Nevada, Mo., delivered the address to 22 graduates in the literary department, and seven in the school of expression.

Every occasion drew large crowds—more than our chapel could hold, demonstrating still further our need of a more commodious auditorium. There were more than 50 visitors who found entertainment in the college, besides many who were cared for by friends outside of the college. We praise God and begin to work for greater things for 1905-06.

J. B. JONES.

❁ ❁

Commencement Exercises at Texas Christian University.

Immediately following the Waco convention of week before last, began the closing exercises of T. C. U. Baccalaureate was Sunday, May 25. President Zollars gave the address, which was one of his best efforts. On this occasion the new Kimball pipe organ, which now adorns the chapel, was used for the first time, having arrived too late for the state convention.

The Granville Jones contest, graduating exercises of preparatory and special departments, etc., furnished a series of entertainments, lasting more than a week. All previous standards were fully maintained, and in some departments great progress was noted.

June 1 was the high day of the week. Nineteen persons received the degree of A. B., and one the degree of A. M. As a departure from the usual custom, the speaking was done by seven members of the senior class. Another innovation was the junior and senior contests, held on commencement day and the day before, in which the winner from each class received a prize. Five scholarships were awarded by the board of trustees to the students doing best class work. These scholarships are worth fifty dollars each, and will be offered every year as a stimulus to high grade work. There were fewer visitors present than usual, but this was pardonable, inasmuch as they had come in full force two weeks before and had left their $30,000 offering on the altar of T. C. U.

Our best year has just passed into history. The school gained splendidly in financial strength, power and hope. The loyal body of students is full of enthusiasm, and the administration is rejoicing. Big plans are in the minds of President Zollars and the trustees, and none doubt their early realization. All Texas seems to be entering upon an era of great prosperity and development, and T. C. U. is sharing in the good things.

FRANK H. MARSHALL.

❁ ❁

Commencement at Camden Point.

The writer had the pleasure of visiting Camden Point and preaching the baccalaureate sermon for that school, May 21. C. M. Chilton delivered the graduating address on Thursday following. I do not hesitate to say I felt shaky and quite ill at ease when I was told, upon my arrival at the school, that I was to stand in the pulpit, that morning, which Alexander Campbell, Raccoon John Smith, Moses E. Lard and others of our distinguished fathers had filled. And to make me still more uncomfortable, I found out just before entering the pulpit that I must preach to a people some of whom had heard these able preachers.

It was the fifty-sixth commencement of the school, and the close of one of the most successful years in the history of the institution. The school has passed through some queer and varied experiences. During its existence the building has been burned three times, but was each time rebuilt. The present building was erected in the nineties. One of the buildings was used as a horse stable by the Confederates during the war.

Just northwest of the school a miniature battle was fought at the opening of the war. Six Confederates were killed and lie buried just at the corner of the college campus. One Union soldier was killed not far away. My grandmother's folks on my mother's side were gathered with the southern sympathizers on that gala day when they raised the Confederate flag in Platte county, and were there when Jennison and his men swept down upon the company. One of the best horses my grandfather owned was killed that day.

The school is in a flourishing condition. It has a twenty thousand dollar endowment fund and is aggressively at work for more.

T. H. Capp, one among our very best ministers, is now in the field in the interests of the school. He is not only rapidly increasing the endowment, but is gathering up means for a new dormitory. This the school very much needs. Last year the enrollment was over one hundred. The school could accommodate no more, all the rooms being full. There were ten graduates from the regular course this year, and two completed the post graduate course.

The school is fortunate in having such a Christian man as E. L. Barham as president. It would have been hard to find a better man for the place. The whole community has the utmost confidence in him.

If I had a dozen girls to educate, I would send them all to Camden Point for their preparatory work. J. E. DAVIS.

Stanberry, Mo.

❁ ❁

Kansas Letter.

Our district conventions are the best we have had in years; the attendance and interest are all one could reasonably expect.

Evangelistic work is rather quiet just now, owing to the time of year. Donaldson and McCray have been at Burr Oak. This is a small church, with a limited field, but some courageous souls. W. P. Clark is pastor.

It is imperative that the Kansas churches keep the fact in mind that June 30 will close our missionary year. All money for Kansas missions should be in by that time. Those churches and departments that are in arrears should begin at once to raise the money and send it in. Brethren, we must depend upon your co-operation. Shall we be disappointed? We have done an excellent year's work—the best in our history, I believe; now we must look to the churches for their support of this work. Write me a letter saying you will not neglect us.

Our state convention comes September 18 to 21. Let all who are contemplating going to the national convention in San Francisco, write me or D. Y. Donaldson, so arrangements can be made for the train equipment.

W. S. LOWE.

Comments by Readers

Of J. H. GARRISON'S
Latest Book

THE HOLY SPIRIT

W. F. Richardson,
PASTOR, FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH,
Kansas City, Mo.
—SAYS:—

"I hope that this work will find a large circulation among our people for it cannot fail to illumine the understanding upon a theme too often buried in mystery, and to quicken the germs of the spiritual life which are too frequently destroyed by the blight of formalism and legalism."

B. B. Tyler,
PASTOR, BROADWAY CHRISTIAN CHURCH,
Denver, Col.
—SAYS:—

"Bro. Garrison, in this work, treats in his usual felicitious style, the personality, the mission, both to the world and to the church, and modes of activity, of the Holy Spirit.

"The volume is devotional in spirit, didactic in style, logical in form, biblical in its positions."

Samuel B. Moore,
PASTOR, HAMMETT PLACE CHURCH,
St. Louis, Mo.
—SAYS:—

"The book grows in interest with each succeeding chapter; that on the 'Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit,' and the chapter on 'Spiritual Life,' are especially helpful. The volume is a valuable addition to Christian literature, in that it opens up a marvelous view of the spiritual benefits and enjoyments possible to every one who is in a position to receive the Holy Spirit."

The Great Demand for this new book is evidence that it is a timely one. The indications are that a very few weeks will exhaust the first edition.

Contains 211 pages.
Printed on Best Heavy Book Paper.
Wide margins. Large, clear type.
Substantially bound in cloth.
Gilt title, side and back.

A Popular Book at a Popular Price.
Only One Dollar, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis.

❁ ❁

A Reliable Heart Cure.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

James Small in Tennessee.

I closed a meeting as Clarksville, Tenn., lately, for Bro. Robt. L. Cave and congregation, which, for influence at least of a permanent kind, deserves more than a passing notice. There were seventy-three additions during the three weeks Brother Hackleman and I were there, about fifty by conversion. Our house, which holds 500 people, was not large enough to accommodate all who wanted to hear and the Methodist brethren very kindly offered us the use of theirs, which we accepted the second week of our meeting. The M. E. church, south, which easily held 800 people, was always crowded with eager listeners from the world and from all the churches in town.

It was rather a unique experience to preach a series of doctrinal sermons in this church and do it so as not to give offense. Every sermon preached was, apparently, well received but the one preached on "The baptism on which all can unite." This sermon was preached to a large audience which included three Methodist preachers and the presiding elder of the district. The meetings in the Methodist church were pervaded by a spirit of prayer, reverence and earnestness which was truly delightful; yet we felt that, while we gained in crowds, we lost in additions; and the result was that while we were still offered the use of the church, we felt it better to return to our own house, which we did the third week of the meeting. The causes for this rather abnormal state of things were several. I mention three:

Bro. Robert Lord Cave, the minister in charge, has the confidence of everybody in town. While he has preached the truth he has preached it in great kindness, and had already won a great many to the honorable consideration of our plea for Christian union. He has his congregation well in hand. They look to him as their leader. I have noticed that the first year of a man's ministry he is usually well supported by the congregation, the second year is a critical one; if he remains the second year the people will begin to find out his weaknesses, if he has any; the third year is still more critical. If he has made friends they will stand by him and if he has made enemies, he will know them, too. But let him stay three years and prove himself a wise and a good man and he can likely stay there as long as he pleases. Brother Cave has served nearly four years, and is master of the situation, and is deeper in the hearts and confidence of the people than ever. He is respected by all the preachers in town for the influence he is wielding and for his scholarly attainments and unselfish spirit.

The meetings in all the other churches had failed to move anybody or anything. There were not a dozen additions all told in the different churches, and it seemed that all were eager and prayerful that our meeting should accomplish such spiritual resulti as were desired, and which their meetings did not and could not accomplish. So from the first the preachers and members of the other churches attended nightly and seemed truly interested and edified. The sermon on "The basis and beauty of Christian union" was received with commendable unanimity and was talked of all over the city. The presentation of the theme was along the line of the sin of division and the one remedy, and the remedy was a complete return in letter and spirit to the New Testament teaching on essential doctrine and ordinances.

The morning meetings which were held from 10 o'clock to 11 o'clock were made intensely spiritual and profitable. In these meetings the members from other religious bodies were in the majority. They declared that their minds were disabused forever of the idea that we had a shallow spiritual experience. Our people in Clarksville are certainly on a higher spiritual plane in the estimation of all good people there. I am persuaded that many communities are tired and burdened with denominationalism and if the people could see a way out, which the leaders would endorse, the crowds would stampede the churches to answer the prayer of the Savior they trust and the Lord they adore.

It behooves every preacher and evangelist of the brotherhood to so preach that people will be won and cheered to Christian union and not maddened or repelled. The presiding elder will, I understand, give the "other side"(?) to the baptismal question next Sunday. I shall not hear the sermon, but Brother Cave may, and I will leave the elder to the kindness but keen logic of this man of God.

During our stay in Clarksville, Mrs. T. D. Garvin was a visitor at the home of W. F. Coulter, her brother, where my wife and I were royally entertained during the meeting. Our sister is the widow of the late T. D. Garvin, who was so loved and honored for his ability and Christian living and who was lamented in death. Bro. W. F. Coulter is an elder in the church and a wise counsellor in all its affairs.

Elder Gordon, who teaches a department in the Presbyterian college there, but who preaches the old gospel for two churches of Disciples, helped us greatly by his presence and fellowship during the entire meeting. Everybody was pleased with Brother Hackleman. In his own sweet and Christian manner he won his way in all hearts and helped greatly to strengthen the evangelist's power and make the meetings spiritual.

I go to Murfreesboro, Tenn., Bowling Green, Ky., and Milan, Tenn., before going to the coast in August. My next meetings after returning will be for Bro. R. M. Giddens at Mayslick, Ky., and Bro. Mark Collis, Lexington, Ky.

James Small.

❁ ❁

The New Church at Grand Rapids, Wis.

During the latter part of last year, Bro. B. G. Eggert and family removed from Flanigan, Ill., to Grand Rapids, Wis. They were disappointed in not finding a church of Christ at that place, and therefore decided to worship with brethren of other churches for at least a time. Their church home was not entirely satisfactory, and they decided to see what could be done in the matter of organizing a church of Christians only. Brother Eggert therefore wrote our state corresponding secretary, H. F. Barstow, of Ladysmith, Wis., asking that he visit them and look the ground over. Brother Barstow did so, and, after making several visits to Grand Rapids, called the matter to the attention of the state board of the Wisconsin Christian missionary association, who took the matter under advisement, and decided that a church of Christ could be built up there. The result was, that the state board employed Brothers C. H. De Voe and H. K. Shields, evangelists, of Rochester, Ind., and on April 2 of this year they began a meeting in the G. A. R. hall at Grand Rapids. They encountered immediate opposition. Brother De Voe spent nearly three weeks in conducting a campaign of education, preaching the primitive gospel, and telling the people who and what the Disciples are. The people became interested, and the audiences were large. The result at the close of a seven weeks' campaign was a church of Christ organized with forty-five charter members, twenty-four of whom were by primary obedience. A Sunday-school of sixty-five scholars has also been organized. On Sunday, May 21, the writer attended services there, including the meeting held in the afternoon, at which time the new church was regularly organized, elders, deacons and church clerk and treasurer being appointed by the congregation. The work starts out under the most favorable conditions. Brother De Voe will remain there a short time until a regular minister can be secured.

Grand Rapids is a flourishing manufacturing city of about 10,000 inhabitants, and it is hoped that the church just located there will be the center from which will radiate much influence for good. The planting of this church is largely due to the consecrated efforts of Brother Eggert and his family. It is also an example of what good can be done when a competent man goes among the people and preaches the gospel in a scriptural way. The work of Brothers De Voe and Shields has been highly satisfactory to the state board.

It is a great pleasure to say that the church at Grand Rapids has extended an invitation to the brethren of the state to hold our annual conventson with them next September and it has been accepted.

John C. Thurman,
President Wis. Christian Missionary Assn.
Green Bay, Wis.

BUSINESS EDUCATION
—135— SCHOLARSHIPS FREE

Clip this notice from the Christian-Evangelist. St. Louis, and present or send it to

DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

ST. LOUIS, 10th & Olive; KANSAS CITY, PADUCAH, LITTLE ROCK, WACO, or OKLAHOMA CITY,

and you will receive booklet containing almost 100 mis-spelled words explaining that we give away, ABSOLUTELY FREE 135 scholarships, Personal or Home Study, to those finding most mis-spelled words in booklet. Most instructive contest ever conducted. Booklet contains letters from bankers and business men giving reasons why you should attend one of D. P. B. C. Those who fail to get free scholarship will as explained in booklet get 10 cents for each mis-spelled word found. Let us tell you all about our great educational contest and our

GREAT SUMMER DISCOUNT.

❁ ❁

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
Christian Workers' New Testament
With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter
Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices: - - - 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - - St. Louis, Mo.

Eighth District, Kansas.

The annual convention met in Ransom, May 23 to 25, and was well attended. Outside of the district there were present Miss Alma E. Moore and W. S. Lowe, of Topeka. Mr. W. C. Payne, of the Bible chair of the State university; F. M. McHale, of Hoisington, and H. H. Ambrose, of Great Bend, who did much to make the convention a success. Besides these, addresses were given by A. Neese, Scott City; Chas. Shellenberger, Ransom; O. H. Truman, LaCrosse, and C. N. Ridenour, Dodge City.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: For president, D. A. Shellenberger, Ransom; vice-president, John Bull, Cimarron; secretary and treasurer, H. S. Rector, Scott City. Delegates to state convention, D. A. Shellenberger, H. S. Rector. For C. W. B. M., Mrs. Florence Manker, Scott City. Junior Endeavor, Miss Pearl Fish, LaCrosse. Bible school, Leroy Martin, Dodge City. Christian Endeavor, Victor L. Goodrich, Garden City. C. W. B. M, delegates to state convention, Mrs. B. E. Parker, Larned; Florence Manker, Scott City.

It was decided to hold the convention next year at LaCrosse, about June 1.

The church at Ransom is to be commended for their loyalty and liberality to the cause, and their hospitality to the convention.

* *

Dedication at Higginsville.

Sunday, May 7, was a great day for the church at this place. The result of earnest, consecrated labor for over a year reached its consummation in the shape of a beautiful brick structure costing, with the furniture and fixtures, something over $15,000.

The church, people and pastor alike, rejoice together over the signal victory achieved in the hearty co-operation of all the forces of the church.

Too much praise cannot be given to the pastor and his noble, consecrated wife, for their zeal, courage, fidelity and labor, and the congregation deserves great praise for their hearty co-operation with them in this noble work.

F. M. Rains, of Cincinnati, preached the dedicatory sermon.

The debt of $6,000 on the house was all subscribed and at the conclusion of the night service, it was solemnly dedicated to the service of God.

The day was all that the people could ask, and visitors came from the country and neighboring towns, that overran the seating capacity of the large and commodious structure.

The building is a brick structure 74x55, having three large windows of beautiful design.

The auditorium proper will seat 380 and the Sunday-school room 126. Besides this there is a rest room for invalids and mothers with small children, and two Sunday-school class rooms.

The church certainly has a bright future before it, and it is to be hoped that the unselfish spirit which has built such a house will continue, and use it to the glory of God and the uplift of our race. C. B. LOTSPIECH.

MINIATURE
BOOKS OF THE GOSPEL
Matthew, Mark, Luke, John,
In Separate Books.
1 1-2 by 2 Inches.
Very Plain Readable Type.
Gilt Edged and Morocco Bound.
Price 50 cents each postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

Broken Hearts and Blazing Stars.

(Continued from page 760.)

side of a heart-broken man in a narrow chamber, by a poor pallet, and lay his healing hand upon the sores, and tenderly wrap the bandage round the wounds—that is the greatest thing that God has done. We descend from the height of "He healeth the broken in heart," when we say, "He telleth the number of the stars." We are more than they, and his work to us is the crown of all his work.

The last thing that our texts in their juxtaposition suggest is—

IV. The sure trust which, by reason of the lower, we should repose in the higher work of God.

"Why sayest thou, O Israel, my way is passed over from my God?" I say to myself, and we are all tempted to say it often, "What am I in my little corner here, amidst so many millions of men and women, that God should bow down his ear to listen to me, to care for me?" We should deal with ourselves and with such doubts and fears as he dealt with Abraham the patriarch, when he bade him go out beneath the crowded heavens that stretched above his tent, and count, if he could, the number of the stars. God knows each of those and he knows each of us. He knows them intimately, giving them names which express at once his ownership and his understanding of them. And he comes to us with equal accuracy of knowledge of our individual cases, and equal readiness to help and to bless us, according to the greater depth of our necessities and the greater height of our possibilities. If it be true that the same hand through which "the most ancient heavens" are "fresh and strong" is the hand that is stretched out to uphold and to heal us, why should we fear, why should we be sad, why should we ever be solitary, why should we doubt that all is for our good? If it be true that the same eye which resolves the nebulæ, and knows each star by itself, is the eye that looks down upon my narrow orbit and sees me often weltering amidst clouds of sin and sorrow, and will rescue me from them all, why should I ever descend to doubt that I shall be kept unto the end and crowned and blest at last? My deliverer is the God that made the heavens. "Lift up your eyes and look upon these things." Behold who hath filled the spaces of the skies with the bright witnesses of his power and knowledge? The same dear father stoops down to us, and stoops not so far when he comes to help and to save and to comfort and to sanctify the weakest, the humblest, the most sinful among us, as when he stretched forth his hand and shaped the mightiest of the orbs that flash and glory in the heavens.

But there is a more wonderful thought still. Do you remember who it was that laid his hand upon the first half of my text, and in a little place of worship in a humble Galilean town said, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because he hath anointed me to heal the broken-hearted"? Jesus Christ claimed the one-half of this text. That necessarily implies that the other half belongs to him, too, and that through him the worlds were made. It is our brother "who calleth the stars by name, and telleth their number." He holds them in his right hand, and that is the hand that was nailed to the cross for us, and that holds us up, if we will grasp it, amidst all the sorrows and storms and darkness of this weary world, and lifts us out of the horrible pit of our sins.

We manufacture
CHURCH and SCHOOL
Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.
E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

If you purchase a
PIANO OR ORGAN
with the name
ESTEY
upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.
THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

For Over 60 Years
Mrs. Winslow's
Soothing Syrup
has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.
An Old and Well-tried Remedy

The Christ in Modern English Literature

By GEO. H. COMBS.

Purple Silk Cloth Binding; Title in White; 257 Pages.

$1.00, Postpaid.

This book, written in the best of literary style, traces in a careful and interesting way the influence of Christ upon the thought and consequent productions of makers of literature since his time.

One can not read it without being more thoroughly convinced than ever that the influence of Christ's life is the power that produces civilization and advancement in the world. The book is one of the most attractive ever issued by us.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—Good home convenient to College, Eureka, Ill. Address, 620 Hillyer, St., Pekin, Ill.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished ed and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

Beaumont, Tex., June 11.—Twenty-five added to-day at the church and eight men at the Y. M. C. A. meeting, Dr. Scoville speaking, De Loss Smith singing. Thirty-two the first week, 57 in eight days. Rejoice with us. —J. B. HOLMES, minister.

ALABAMA.

Birmingham.—The writer closed a most interesting meeting May 28 at Bessemer, Ala., where Brother Taylor ministers; 29 were added to their membership. Mrs. Spiegel and Mrs. Crook assisted in the music. I began a meeting with Matthew Small at Sumter, S. C., June 4.—O. P. SPIEGEL.

CALIFORNIA.

Ukiah, June 1.—Two baptisms since last report.—OTHA WILKISON.

CHINA.

Shanghai, May 8.—Six baptisms yesterday. Endeavor society reorganized with 45 members. —W. P. BENTLEY.

COLORADO.

Denver.—Central Christian church: It so often proves to be a mistake to resume a former pastorate that it seemed well to wait a while before reporting results. At the recent annual meeting, May 10, reports showed 249 additions in 20 months, 144 in the past 12 months. Of the 249, 77 were baptized and 70 dismissed or deceased. Weekly subscriptions have increased from $33 to $80. Expenses the past year $6,242.97; for missions from all sources, $823.97. We have had eight additions by letter and six by confession of faith in the past two weeks. This is a fine advance on the work of previous years. The board, congregation and pastor are working together in the utmost harmony. The future is bright. The second pastorate seems to be successful in this instance. Dr. Tyler is doing a great work at South Broadway. Brother Pickett is making steady progress in north Denver. I have just heard that they have decided over there to go forward this summer with their main auditorium. Berkeley is doing well under the leadership of Brother Payne and his bride. "We" are going forward in Denver. Brother Tyler is one of the most prominent and best beloved ministers in the city. We will be ready to welcome the delegates to the national convention at San Francisco, in August.—BAYARD CRAIG.

Trinidad.—One confession Sunday, June 4. —DAVID C. PETERS.

Denver, June 5.—Three persons received the right hand of fellowship in the South Broadway church yesterday, one recently baptized and two by statement. The Central church Sunday-school observed children's day. The contribution amounted to $250; $100 of this will go to foreign missions, the remainder to work in Colorado. The average attendance of this school is 225.—B. B. TYLER.

GEORGIA.

Augusta, June 5.—The First church, Howard T. Cree, minister, reports seven confessions last Sunday, making twenty-four additions to this congregation within the past few weeks. These additions have made a ten per cent increase in the resident membership.

ILLINOIS.

Armington, June 5.—Yesterday was a great day with the church here. There were 155 at Bible-school; there were 55 young men and women in the pastor's class. The offering for foreign missions was $35. We begin a meeting November 1, with J. E. Powell and wife, of Wabash, Ind., as evangelists.—L. E. Chase, pastor.

Urbana, June 10.—I closed a three weeks' meeting June 8 at New Straitsville, O., with 11 baptized into Christ. This is a town of about 3,000 people—1,000 Catholics besides a large foreign element.—J. A. LYTLE.

INDIANA.

Reddington, May 30.—Last Lord's day the Christian church at this place was packed to hear Sister Goodacre preach. Many sat outside in their buggies who could not get in. This is the third time Sister Goodacre has been here and we have had two additions.—J. GOODACRE.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Bartlesville.—Brother Omer and the writer are in a meeting with 21 additions to date. We were completely rained out the first two weeks, but the determined efforts of the faithful few are showing their fruits.—L. D. SPRAGUE, singer.

IOWA.

Coon Rapids, June 2.—Two baptisms.—M. C. HUTCHINSON, Panora, Ia.

Atlantic, June 4.—We had fine services here to-day. There were two additions, one by statement and one by confession.—W. B. CREWDSON.

Creston.—I closed my ministry in Creston May 28 and began in Allerton June 4. The last week in Creston there were 16 additions, 13 baptisms, under the preaching of Bro. J. L. Thompson, of Peru, Ind., who has been called as my successor. He continued the meeting over Sunday with several more accessions.—R. H. INGRAM, Allerton, Ia.

Ft. Madison, June 5.—One more was added to the church since last report, making nine added at our regular services since the middle of March. We observed children's day. The Sunday-school collection for foreign missions was $15 and more will be added. The church here is beginning to arouse from a comatose state and attract attention. We are looking for great things in the future.—B. F. BAKER, pastor.

JAPAN.

Tokyo, May 18.—Six of our earnest young men in the Yotsuga mission have decided to give their lives to preaching the gospel. Additions are frequent.—W. D. CUNNINGHAM.

KANSAS.

Burr Oak, June 6.—D. Y. Donaldson and C. S. McCray closed a short meeting with us last Sunday night. Results, three by confession and baptism—adults.—G. B. CLARK, pastor.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore.—Bro. Herbert Yeuell, of Uniontown, Pa., has just closed a meeting of two weeks at the Christian temple, resulting in 34 additions. Bro. H. G. Spencer, of Lexington, Ky., has accepted the pastorate of Calhoun street church and will begin work there July 1. —PETER AINSLIE.

MISSOURI.

Kansas City, June 1.—At Ivanhoe Park church last Sunday we had three confessions and one by statement from the Methodists. This makes 10 by confession and baptism and eight by letter or statement, 18 in all since the writer came to this field, March 1.—LEWIS P. KOPP.

Alexandria, May 30.—Our congregation is moving in the right direction and increasing in number. Brother Knight's sermons stir the people. A month ago at the regular service two persons confessed Christ and last Lord's day three others confessed him at the morning service. In the afternoon at 3:30 a large gathering witnessed the baptism of four persons in the Mississippi river.—S. D. SEYMOUR.

Seneca, May 30.—Joseph Gaylor and F. M. O'Neal are in a meeting with 15 additions to date.—A. R. MOORE.

Bogard, June 6.—One confession and baptism at Norborne May 28.—C. C. TAYLOR.

St. Louis, June 5.—One addition at one of my appointments yesterday. Collection for foreign missions $10.—W. H. KERN.

Lamar, June 5.—One confession yesterday at regular service.—S. W. CRUTCHER.

Gallatin, June 5.—Two additions by letter last night—husband and wife. Our work is prospering and our Sunday-school is rapidly enlarging.—C. W. COMSTOCK.

Princeton, June 10.—Evangelist J. A. Bennett was with us in a three weeks' meeting; 15 were added to the saved during the campaign. Brother Bennett's work with the church was very good.—S. A. ENNEFER.

Marceline, June 10.—Since last report we have had additions as follows: Laredo, 33; Sumner, 13; Lingo, 36. We effected an organization at Laredo and Lingo which will enable each to have preaching one Sunday in the month.—A. MUNYON, state evangelist.

NEBRASKA.

Cook.—We have started a meeting and expect to continue for a few weeks.—EDWARD CLUTTER, evangelist; FRANK MCVAY, singer.

Overton.—The work moves on nicely here. The ladies' aid has recently been improving the church. They have put $90 into beautifying the church interior, such as furniture, papering, etc. We have met all the missionary calls this year and expect to continue to do so. We gave $10 to foreign missions, $7.00 to N. B. A., $13 to home missions, and $12 children's day to foreign mission work. We have good audiences and interest in all the services. The district convention meets with us June 13-15.—O. L. ADAMS, minister.

OHIO.

Cleveland, June 6.—There were 19 additions to the church on Dunham avenue in the past three weeks, 15 by confession and baptism. —M. J. GRABLE.

Dayton, June 6.—The West Side church had another accession June 4. The people are greatly encouraged.—HENRY F. KELTCH.

Ravenna, June 5.—There have been two additions to the church by letter since last report.—M. E. CHATLEY, pastor.

Akron, May 27.—Wabash avenue, or Third church, has enjoyed excellent progress during the first year's pastorate of A. F. Stahl. The year before he came the church went back, $500 being added to the indebtedness and a contentious spirit was spreading among the members. But order has come out of chaos and 56 persons were added to the membership, $900 have been paid on the debt, missionary offerings were increased and $2,300 were raised for all purposes. The minister enters the second year at an increase in salary.—N. H. WALKER.

Beallsville, June 9.—The meeting at this place, begun Saturday evening, June 3, is progressing very nicely. Large, enthusiastic audiences with a deep interest manifested. Additions up to date, 17: by confession, 12; by letter, 5. Children's day was observed; a good collection was taken. Bro. Ellsworth Thornberry was the leader of song.—FERD F. SCHULTZ, evangelist.

OKLAHOMA.

Chandler, June 5.—Seven additions since last week's report; 31 since I began my pastorate here April 1. Largest Bible-school yesterday in the history of the church.—D. E. DINGER, pastor.

Current Literature

Any book reviewed in these columns (except "net" books) will be sent postpaid by the Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, on receipt of the published price. For "net" books, add ten per cent for postage.

In Magazine Land.

The June Review of Reviews, besides the usual admirably presented survey of the "progress of the world" contains a number of special articles of current interest, such as "The Larger Problem before Admiral Togo," "Count Cassini," "The Career of Joseph Jefferson," "Morocco and the French Intervention," "Philadelphia's Civic Outlook" and "The Atlantic Fisheries Question." One to which we may make further reference is "The Church Union Movement in Canada."

Country Life in America for June is largely devoted to the subject of how to spend a vacation. There is as a leader a sympathetic article on the black bass and the way of catching him, with some striking photographs of this same fish's leaps. Other articles give advice on vacations afloat, with a camera, on handling a canoe, building a log cabin, etc. It is an exhilarating number and is well illustrated.

New and interesting side-lights on the civil war are to be found in the June Century: "What a Boy Saw of the Civil War," by the Rev. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's, New York City, with glimpses of Robert E. Lee; a curious and surprising article on "Boys in the Union Army," by George Langdon Kilmer; "A Pupil's Recollections of 'Stonewall' Jackson," and "Recollections of Jubal Early," "by one who followed him." These articles, with several stories, including "Miss Sallie and the Enemy," a war-story by Gouverneur Morris, and "In the Virginia Room," by Arlo Bates (the scene laid in one of the Rooms of the Confederate Museum at Richmond), make up a number of special interest in the memorial day season.

A striking article in the June number of The Missionary Review of the World is that entitled "Money to the Rear." In these days of strenuous appeals for large gifts it is interesting to note what an ex-treasurer of one of the mission boards has to say about it. The article is well worth reading. A series of articles on "Missionary Call" presents different views of what it is and how it is recognized. Miss Bell M. Brain takes up the subject from a biblical standpoint; a missionary secretary describes an experiment in missionary calls, and D. L. Pierson gives the results of an inductive study of the calls of a large number of prominent missionaries. These articles are an interesting and important contribution to a much discussed subject.

The summer issues of The Pilgrim are to be given over almost wholly to entertainment. In the June number Director Reed, of the Lewis and Clark Exposition, tells what the visitor to Portland this summer may see, and analyzes the purpose and scope of the show. A delightful fishing article by Kirkland B. Alexander is entitled "Six Foster Brothers of the Brook Trout." An article of interest is by Stella Reid Crothers and is entitled "The Grand Dames of America." Edwin L. Sabin writes of "The Tent Cities of the West," and George B. Paul tells of "The Peons of Old Mexico." Ada L. A. Murcutt's article on the "Satsuma Ware" of Japan will be read with interest by all lovers of this famous porcelain. There are stories by Anna B. A. Brown, Gerald Austen, Lynn B. Follett, and Martha D. Taylor. In addition are many shorter articles of helpfulness.

The June Arena will appeal to all persons interested in clean government and social and economic advance. In it, Rudolph Blankenburg continues his series of papers dealing with corruption in Pennsylvania, the present discussion being concerned chiefly with the unparalleled reign of graft and roguery in Philadelphia. "Frederick Opper: A Cartoonist of Democracy," is another interesting feature, being an illustrated article dealing with the life and work of one of the best known and most effective cartoonists of the day. A fine full-page portrait of Mr. Opper accompanies this sketch. The article on B. F. Mills is what one might expect from a writer in sympathy with "cultured" religion, but few who can see both sides will be persuaded that Mr. Mills has one-tenth the power and influence he had when he was "orthodox." Among the contributors of general character that are entitled to special consideration are the following: "In Prison and in Exile: The Experience of a Russian Student," a vivid portrayal edited by William Lee Howard, M. D; "Beauty and Light," a most charming plea for a sane and wholesome drama, by the well-known novelist and journalist, Kenyon West; "The Commerce of Latin America: A Magnificent Field Neglected by the United States," a thoughtful and illuminating paper by Professor Frederic M. Noa, accompanied by charts and comparative tables; and "Rise, Mighty Anglo-Saxons!" a stirring moral trumpet call to the conscience of America, clothed in blank verse and written by Katrina Trask. In addition to these there are other papers, together with the usual editorial and book reviews, the whole going to make up one of the most interesting and attractive numbers of "The Arena" that has appeared under the new management.

* *

Michigan Summer Resorts.

Among the lakes and rivers of the East Coast of Lake Michigan is the ideal country for a summer outing. Fishing, boating, bathing, sailing, golf, and above all, an ideal climate. Pure air and pure spring water. Health and recreation. Booklets descriptive of these resorts mailed on application to H. Fe MOELLER, G. P. A., Pere Marquette Railroad, Union Station, Detroit, Mich.

HELPFUL COMMENTARIES
ON THE
NEW TESTAMENT

CONCISE PLAIN
EASILY UNDERSTOOD

VALUABLE AID TO ALL BIBLE READERS

MATTHEW AND MARK
By J. W. McGarvey.
LUKE
By J. S. Lamar.
JOHN
By B. W. Johnson.
ROMANS
By Moses E. Lard.
HEBREWS
By Robt. Mulligan.

Splendid books. Good, substantial cloth binding.
$1.50 per volume, postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

Normal Bible Studies

For Teachers, Classes Institutes and Assemblies

The
Normal Instructor
By W. W. DOWLING

In Seven Parts as Follows:
I.—The Book
II.—The Christ III.—The Church
IV.—The Land V.—The Institutions
VI.—The History VII.—The People

Each Part Bound Separately In Strong Manila Covers : :

PRICE:
15c. per Copy. $1.50 per Dozen

Christian Publishing Co.
St. Louis, Missouri

Praises to the Prince

A Choice Collection of
SACRED SONGS
for Sunday-Schools, Young People's Societies, Evangelistic Services, and all other branches of Church Work and Worship.

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music. Handsome Appearance. Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market. : : :

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid . .	$ .30
Boards,	" " . .	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " . .	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" "	15.00

Bound with Cap and Rivet if desired.

PUBLISHED BY
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Trut

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Sunday-School.

June 25, 1905.

SECOND QUARTERLY REVIEW.

Golden Text.—But these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name.—John 20:31.

The period covered by the events of the past quarter covers only a few weeks at the end of our Lord's life. The events of the first two lessons, the discourse on the Good Shepherd and the raising of Lazarus, occurred during the Perean ministry which followed the final departure from Galilee. The third, the supper at Bethany, was the last event before the final entry into Jerusalem. The fourth, the entry of Jesus into Jerusalem, marks the beginning of the week of triumph and suffering. Lessons five to ten have to do with discourses and events immediately connected with the death and resurrection of Jesus. And the last two lessons, from the book of Revelation, record in the most vivid form the conviction that the risen Lord is indeed alive both now and forever and that through him all of his followers shall eventually become partakers in the glory of an everlasting kingdom.

The gospel of John is farther than any of the other gospels from being a biography of Jesus. The purpose of the author, as he himself says, is not to give an orderly account of events but to produce conviction that Jesus is the Christ and such a conviction as would bring divine life into the soul of the believer. He writes therefore rather as a preacher than as an historian. This fact is to be remembered in accounting for the differences between John and the Synoptics. He is constructing an argument, not a biography.

Accordingly, almost every incident or episode which John records is chosen and used with reference to its value in establishing the Lordship of Christ and showing how life comes only through union with him. Trace through the lessons of the quarter noting how this is so.

John, more constantly than any of the other gospels, exalts the person of Jesus and makes it central in his thought as to the way of salvation. In Matthew, Mark, and Luke, Jesus is presented as a teacher, setting forth certain principles by which men ought to live, and illustrating them in his own life, but, except in rare cases, saying little about himself and claiming little for himself. John shows Jesus as insisting upon his own place and function, and requiring that men should come to him for salvation.

The special intimacy which John enjoyed with his Master, as one of the chosen three and as "the disciple whom Jesus loved," the evident natural keenness of his spiritual insight, and the long years of accumulating experience which elapsed before the composition of his gospel, give it an exceptional value for the purpose for which John declared that he wrote it.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both
in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

June 21, 1905.

SELF-CARE AND EXAMINATION.

"Take heed to thyself and to thy teaching. Continue in these things; for in doing this thou shalt save both thyself and them that hear thee." 1 Tim. 4:15.

Duty of Self-Knowledge. This lesson summons us to one of the most difficult and important tasks ever performed—the duty of self-examination. There is a good deal of truth in the lines of Pope:

"Know then, thyself; presume not God to scan;
The proper study of mankind is man."

No man can adjust himself properly either to God or to his fellow-men who does not look carefully into his own heart and understand the motives which lie behind all his actions. If one does not know his weaknesses he is not likely to remedy them. On the other hand, if one does not know his capacities he is not likely to address himself to the more difficult tasks in life. It is especially important that those who are to teach others should know themselves and take heed to themselves.

As to Religious Worship. It is of vital importance that everyone performing any religious act should look honestly into his own heart and see whether this act be sincere or merely formal. This is specially enjoined as relates to participation in the Lord's supper (1 Cor. 11:28, 29); but the same duty exists in reference to singing and praying (1 Cor. 14:15). The same principle applies to hearing also (Mark 4:23, 24).

As to the Faith. It is a wise admonition to the apostle, "Try your own selves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves" (2 Cor. 13:5) This requires a knowledge of what "the faith" is. The New Testament is your standard in this examination. "The Faith" is faith in Jesus Christ, based on all the great facts relating to him, and involving acceptance of all the truths which he taught and obedience to all his commands. Unless we ourselves are in the faith, how can we lead others in that way?

As to Our Teaching. It will be noted that the text above admonishes Timothy not only to take heed to himself, but to his teaching. This is in harmony with the exhortation of the same apostle to the Ephesian elders: "Take heed unto thyselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit has made you bishops to feed the church of the Lord which he purchased with his own blood" (Acts 20:28). The teaching, of course, should be in harmony with the mind of Christ as that mind is expressed by himself and his apostles. It should be earnest, coming out of the experience of the teacher, and it should be adapted to the needs of the people taught. It should be remembered that we teach by our lives in our daily conduct, as well as by our words.

Reciprocity. If it is the duty of the teacher to examine himself, to take heed to his doctrine and to admonishing faithfully and feeding the flock of God, it follows that it is the duty of those who are thus taught, to receive the admonition and instruction of those who are appointed as our teachers, and to be "doers of the word, and not hearers only" (James 1:22-25).

Prayer. O God, our Father, as Thou hast been pleased to call us out of darkness into light, help us, we beseech Thee, to open our hearts to the light of Thy glory which shines in the face of Jesus Christ, to the end that we may know ourselves in the light of His life and character, and knowing our weaknesses, may seek wisdom and strength and grace from Thee, to the perfecting of our characters and the enrichment of our lives, to the glory of Thy name, in Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Financial Opportunity

"Fortune knocks but once at every man's door" is a familiar quotation. Ten years ago I started in business on $50.00 capital. To-day I am incorporated under a special act of Legislature for $150,000, and some of my friends tell me my business ought to be capitalized for a million. I am a successful business man. My ten years' record shows that. If you want to make money, join me in my enterprise. A small amount of stock in my company is at your disposal. Write for my book, "Ten Years." It tells the story of my success. You can be successful too. Address The Mac Levy Company, Dept. 86, 63 Clark St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

AULT & WIBORG
COMPANY

Manufacturers of Printing Inks.

CINCINNATI, NEW YORK.
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.

This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

Church Supplies

Church Register and Record

With special rulings, headings and an alphabetical register. Printed on good paper and substantially bound. Size, 9x14 inches; cloth sides with leather back and corners.
160 pages, - $2.00 300 pages, - $3.50

Concise Church Record

A cheap and convenient book in which to record names of members, date of admission, how admitted, and remarks. Space for 960 names. Printed on good paper and strongly bound. Price, - - $1.00

Contribution Record

For use in connection with the envelope system. Designed expressly for keeping systematic account of weekly contributions. The most convenient record published.
Half leather, quarto, 40 pages, - - $1.00
Half leather, quarto, 80 pages, - - 1.50

Collection Envelopes

Made of good, strong manila paper. Neatly printed; 2 1-2x4 1-2 inches; satisfactory in every particular.
Per thousand by express, not prepaid, $1.00
Per thousand by mail, - - - 1.50

Church Letters

Bound in book form with stub for memoandum. The neatest and most convenient published.
No. 1, Fifty Letter Blanks, - - $0.50
No. 2, One Hundred Letter Blanks, 1.00

Baptismal Pants

We handle only the best grade. They are made in regulation sizes, based on the size of the foot. If an exceptional size is needed it can be made to order. In ordering send size of shoe worn. Prices quoted on application.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

❀ ❀

WITH IMPURE DRINKING WATER

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Destroys the germs of typhoid and other fevers. Makes a refreshing and cooling summer drink.

EVERYBODY IS LAUGHING HEARTILY
—AT—
REUBEN
—AND—
HIS EXPERIENCES AT COLLEGE AND ABROAD.
Send One Dollar for "Reuben: His Book" to
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

June 25, 1905.

OUR NATIONAL HERITAGE.— Isa. 55:1-18.

Introductory Note.

As this topic is intended for a home missionary lesson for our societies in all the Protestant churches, it has been thought best to insert here the program prepared for the Endeavorers of the Christian church by the young people's department of the American Christian Missionary Society. Let thorough preparation be made and let this be a high day in all the societies.

Program. Our National Heriatge.

Song.

Prayer.

Scripture Lesson, to be read by leader: Isa. 55:1-18.

The Lord's Prayer (all uniting).

Hymn—"O God, Beneath Thy Guiding Hand."

Responsive Reading—Psalm 33:1-22.

Prayer.

Five Minute Address on "Our Great Country."

Responsive Reading by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

Leader: "Save America to save the world" is no vain cry, and it comes with a special forcefulness to Christian young men of the present generation.

Audience: You owe it to America, you owe it to the world, you owe it to your God, to do the most you can by your influence, your money, your sympathy, your labors, to make this a people whose God is the Lord. On this account the home missionary idea is an intensely patriotic idea.

Leader: He who is not interested in home missions, when he knows all that they stand for, is not a true patriot, and is not paying the debt of gratitude which he owes to his native land. A man who loves his mother would provide for her support if she were in need.

Audience: A man who loves his country will not begrudge the dollars or the hours that she demands of him, and I, for one, know of no way so good for the young people of the Christian church to discharge this debt of gratitude as to support and maintain and enlarge such a noble home missionary enterprise as that of the American Christian Missionary Society.

Leader: If any meeting should stir the blood of the young man of to-day, if any appeal should cause him to glow with patriotic enthusiasm, if any call should lead him to cry out, "Here am I, send me!" it is the call of his country and the call of God combined in one, for that is the voice of home missions.

Prayer.

Five Minute Address on "The New Crusade." (This will be furnished free. Address: Sarah Bird Dorman, Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Cincinnati, O.)

Hymn—"Hear Your Country's Call." No. 520 in the Praise Hymnal.

Responsive Reading.

Leader: Last year under the auspices of the American Christian Missionary Society, 353 missionaries were sustained, toiling in the name of Christ for the redemption of America.

Audience: These missionaries organized 165 churches, and received into the churches 16,861 persons, of whom 8,578 were by confession and baptism.

Leader: Through our missionaries the gospel was proclaimed to Germans, Mexicans, Scandinavians and Porto Ricans.

Audience: Porto Rico was made the special home mission field of our Endeavorers.

Leader: E. M. Pardee and wife began work on the island Nov. 1, 1903, having been chosen as successors to W. M. Taylor and wife.

Audience: During Brother Pardee's first ten months 47 persons were added to the church—these results with the aid of our native helpers.

Leader: A new mission was opened in Toa Baja, where an excellent work is being done for the Master.

Audience: Total amount contributed by our young people for this island mission in 1904, $1,842.56, more than double the amount of the previous year.

Five Minute Address on "Our Opportunity and Our Obligation Wherever Floats the Stars and Stripes."

Personal Question—How much thorough study, and how much of myself have I given to the work of my own church, in my own land? How much has our society pledged for Porto Rico, or how much shall we pledge?

Offering (to help pay pledge).

Hymn—"My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Mizpah.

DAILY READINGS.

M.	The glorious gospel.	2 Cor. 5:17-21.
T.	A goodly land.	Deut. 6:10-13.
W.	A godly ancestry.	Heb. 11:32 40.
T.	Free institutions.	Ex. 21:2 6.
F.	Righteous laws.	Deut. 5:12-21.
S.	The stranger among us.	Lev. 19:33-37.
S.	Topic—Our national heritage.	Isa. 55:1-18.

❁ ❁

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

BLODGETT.

Joseph H. Blodgett died at his home in Lodi, Cal., of cancer of the liver. He was a pioneer in California, having crossed the plains with an ox team in 1859. After a short time he returned east and married Eliza E. Chambers. They then came to California and here he lived till his death. He was the father of six children, one of whom is dead. The others are Mrs. C. C. Garner, of Acampo, Dr. J. M. Blodgett, of Lodi, Dr. T. D. Blodgett, of Tulane, W. S. Blodgett, assistant postmaster of Lodi, and W. O. Blodgett, county clerk of Shasta county. Brother Blodgett was known all over California as but few men were known. He has attended every state convention of the Christian church since his return to California. The Christian preachers all over the state knew him and loved him. He was a man of the most indomitable faith I ever met. He suffered for more than three months, but was always cheerful and hopeful, always inquiring about the church. He served as elder in the churches for 39 years. He was a poor man in this world's goods, but rich in faith and in his love of Christ and the church. His funeral was held in the Christian church in Lodi, and was the most largely attended funeral ever held in the town. Everybody loved him, everybody feels the loss who knew him. The little church in Lodi has lost one of its most worthy numbers and the preachers in this state have lost one of their best friends. He could quote more of the scriptures than any man I ever met. Even in his last hours when his mind wandered he would repeat scraps of the Word of God. He was born in Switzerland county, Ind., and died at the age of 68, leaving to his children and the church the legacy of an untarnished name. THOS. H. MURRAY.

FORBES.

Sophia Forbes, whose maiden name was Zimmerman, was born in Pennsylvania, but was reared in Ohio. In company with her husband, Thomas Forbes, she located in Appleton City, Mo., in 1871, where she resided till some years after the death of her husband in the year 1881. Thomas Forbes and wife and Retta, their daughter, were charter members of the Christian church of Appleton City, Mo., which was organized in the year 1875. She became a Christian at the tender age of 12, and remained an active worker for over 72 years. What a record of which to be proud! Sister Forbes helped to organize several different congregations. She departed this life in the triumphs of the Christian's faith at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Retta English, at Villisca, Ia., April 26, 1905, and was interred in the beautiful cemetery at Appleton City, Mo. Two children survive, Geo. Forbes and Mrs. Retta English. "Well done, good and faithful servant."

SCOTT.

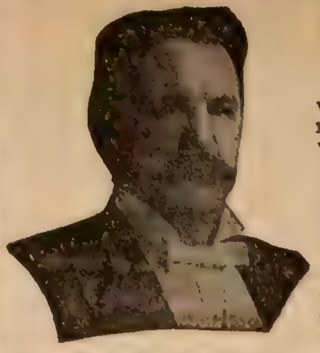
Mrs. Jemima E. Scott was born in Fayette county, Ind., Feb. 29, 1839, and died at her home in Alexandria, Ind., April 16, 1905, at the age of 66 years, past. She was the daughter of Adam and Samantha Banks, who were among the early pioneers of the Christian church. She was married to Daniel M. Scott, July 6, 1859, and to them was born one son, who died at an early age. Her husband preceded her in death nearly ten years. She came into the Christian church early in the '60's, and was baptized by Elder B. M. Blount while living at Independence, Ind. She and her husband came to Alexandria in about the year 1865 and she united with the church there and was ever after one of its most faithful supporters. During the 40 years of her membership with the church there it passed through some very trying days, and at times the membership became almost discouraged. Yet she never faltered or lost faith. It is to her zeal and constant devotion that the church there owes much of its success. She was a Martha in good works, ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy, and provide for the wants of the suffering. No call for help from her went unheeded. She was a ready, cheerful and liberal giver to all church needs. In her will she not only provided for near relatives and friends, but also to the cause of her Master that she loved so well. She also gave liberally to the Foreign Missionary Society, to the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, to Church Extension, to the Board of Ministerial Relief, to Bethany assembly, etc. The church in Alexandria, which is now undergoing extensive repairs, was greatly helped by her liberality, and when completed it will be among the best in the city, and will have in it a beautiful memorial window to her memory—of faith, hope and love. Though dead, yet she still speaks God's love to men. The writer assisted in the funeral services conducted at the old home on Tuesday afternoon, April 18, and the sermon was preached by her old friend and minister, B. M. Blount, of Irvington, Ind. A. L. Orcutt, president of the Board of Ministerial Relief, was present and led in the opening prayer. Many of her home church members and friends honored her with their presence and tears. Truly we may say of her and her well spent life, of faith in Christ, "She has done what she could." Peaceful be her sweet rest, and may there be many stars in her crown.

Anderson, Ind. T. M. WILES.

❁ ❁

A Fine Kidney Cure.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn., (the Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder troubles will write him, he will, without charge, direct them to the perfect home cure he used.



I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

People's Forum.

Hypnotic Evangelists.

And so the St. Louis "preachers' meeting discussed hypnotic evangelists and concluded that it was a cheap substitute for the Holy Spirit." As to the Holy Spirit and his work, we shall wait for Brother Garrison's new book, in the hope that it will tell us just how the Holy Spirit operates apart from his Word, how he dwells in us other than the Father and the Son, and how we are to know it. I had supposed for four years that the St. Louis preachers were straight on the hypnotism question since at the Editor's request I lectured them one Monday for forty-five minutes on that subject. Is it a case of change of preachers, or, "the sow that was washed returned to her wallowing in the mire"? Now, brethren, I want to stir up your darkened minds by way of remembrance. It was "stated as a fact that some of our evangelists had studied hypnotism with a view of increasing their success." How do you know this to be a fact? I wonder if either of the brethren in the discussion ever studied and experimented with hypnotism? If not, they are incapable of discussing such a theme; if they had, they would not have reached such conclusions. I think from personal knowledge I know every evangelist of any reputation among us who has given the subject any extended study, and not one of them for the purpose named. I studied and practiced it for years before I ever preached a sermon, and since have dipped deep into it for therapeutic purposes only. Moreover, the evangelists who have studied it extensively are the ones who use "the power" less. Brother Durban was right about Roberts in Wales. I stated in substance a month ago in a sermon that Roberts' power was psychologic and of the hypnotic kind. Whatever and however the Holy Spirit does apart from his Word I do not know, but he is not the author of confusion as in some of the churches. But I do know something of the human mind and the wonderful phenomena it is capable of producing under a powerful positive suggestion. The only danger line as I see it is in the preacher's having a zeal but not according to knowledge, and ascribing the work to the Holy Spirit in a direct way instead of through and by the truth.

Hypnotism is a misnomer; the word hypnos means sleep, and I call upon the St. Louis preachers to answer if they ever converted a sleeping auditor. Hypnotism is nothing in the world but suggestion. No student who values his reputation will deny it. Suggestion is the presentation of such thoughts or ideas to the mind as will result in a mental, moral, or physical change. Now, brethren, what is preaching the gospel but suggestion? "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he" is an old and wise proverb, and very true. The gospel is God's power only when believed. Why do some of our best preachers fail to make converts? They are wise, scholarly and full of the Holy Spirit. Because they don't get the people to receive the good seed of the kingdom. No man can succeed in converting sinners with one single element missing that the hypnotist requires, namely, on the part of the subject, attention, passivity, concentration and expectation; on the part of the preacher, positive suggestion with repeated affirmation. Now, my brethren, it all depends upon what you suggest and the susceptibility of your subject. If you have an ignorant though honest seeker, and you suggest elations, lights, sounds, visions and the jerks, you are likely to witness what same people are pleased to call a "Holy Ghost conversion." But if you begin with the intellect and present the great divine facts of the gospel, and push with all your energy the claims of Christ, you will witness a New Testament conversion. Brethren, the converts generally tell after "six months" whether they have been psychologized or Christianized. A preacher who never heard me in his life said I hypnotized the 835 converts in Joplin. Well, they are still hypnotized after 18 months, and have paid off a $9,000 church debt, increased the pastor's salary $800, become a living link in two of our missionary societies, and fill the church at every service. Brethren, if you know all about hypnotism, do a little of that kind and don't "conclude that it is a cheap substitute for" anything. I start for Wichita, Kan., to-morrow to do some old Jerusalem hypnotizing. Come over and get "the power." W. E. HARLOW.

Springfield, Mo.

❁ ❁

"Christian Science in Christian Churches."

Following the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST editorial of June 1, under the above caption, appeared in the Chicago Record-Herald the despatch from which the subjoined extract is taken:

"Dr. Charles G. Pease has resigned as a member of the First church of Christ, Scientist, and also from the mother church in Boston. He renounces the belief as 'a fabric of deceit, falsehood and dishonesty,' and as a 'grave danger to the community.' In a book of 130 pages he descants upon abuses he alleges exist in the practice of so-called healing and brings up battery after battery against the ramparts of the system established by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy.

" 'Christian Science is nothing more nor less than self-hypnotism,' says Dr. Pease in his book. 'Its whole secret lies in the repitition of certain formulæ until the subject has brought himself into a state in which he can be affected by other minds.

" 'In Christian Science there is just enough scriptural truth to float the deceptive hypocritical, hypnotic, human philosophy of teaching which is a poisonous narcotic to the spiritual perceptive power of the mind. Self-complacency and self-love pass for Christianity, and dishonesty, falsehood, deception, trespass and oppression in the individual pass as virtue.'

"Dr. Pease declares that by Christian Science the conscience is blunted, and that he had reason to believe that with this new thought leavening the world there is more perjury in the courts than ever before. He says he does not believe that Mrs. Eddy had a full realization of her dangerous teaching, yet that she must have had some idea when she introduced in her book a chapter on hypnotism to nullify the baneful influence of her methods.

"In writing of the First church of Christ of New York the Doctor says: 'Are all people in this church who are wearing handsome, extravagant clothing and jewels wealthy? Not by any means. Honest debts have gone unpaid that the requirements of the church might be met, and handsome dressing is one of the requirements. The people individually have it impressed upon them to dress handsomely. The ushers have had instructions to seat those handsomely dressed in the center aisles and those not so handsomely dressed in the side aisles, thus placing a premium on handsome dressing.' "

Unquestionably perhaps, there is that in the "healing" line held to by Christian Scientists that should be restored to Christ's church. When this is done and due prominence is given to physical and mental, as well as spiritual, healing, will it not go a long way toward staying the inroad which this cult is making upon the ranks of all the orthodox churches? Not only would others thus be kept from leaving to follow after this delusion, but many would be brought back to the fold of Christ's church. In no real sense can "Christian Science" be classed as a church of the incarnate Son of God.

Chicago, Illinois. W. P. KEELER.

❁ ❁

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

GEO. KILGEN & SON

BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE

Pipe Organs

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

Family Circle

The Garden of the Heart.

By Annie S. Lawrence.

Dear Christian, if there's growing
In the garden of your heart,
Thistles, thorns and night-shade,
Let something better start.

If you're living in the darkness
While those ugly plants abound,
Come out in God's bright sunshine
Where happiness is found.

Life is too short for brooding
O'er trials, pain and woe,
Dig up those prickling nettles,
Let something better grow.

Just fertilize your heart-soil
By firmly fixing there
God's promises so precious,
They can purify the air.

On the hill-tops of his word
Is a tonic atmosphere,
Where malaria of worry
Fades away—and all is clear.

Then you'll find your garden healthy,
And where thorns were wont to grow,
You can plant the sweetest roses
And their fragrant perfume know.

Springfield, Mo.

❀ ❀

Forty Years After.

By Frank Matthew Darst.

It was Memorial Day, and for more than three hours the soldiers—grizzled veterans and beardless militiamen—accompanied by the usual brass bands, had been marching through the streets of Chicago. The parade attracted but little attention in the down town district, and the writer, whose earliest recollections of Memorial Day are associated with the crashing music of brazen-throated instruments, gaily-decorated streets and cheering thousands, felt a sensation close akin to pain creep into his heart as he noted this heartless indifference and lack of appreciation on the part of his fellow-Americans. He sincerely wished that he could multiply his own voice by ten thousand and cause the topmost windows of the highest skyscrapers to rattle with the reverberations of his applause.

Along the sidewalks were little groups who had congregated to witness the parade, and a few windows and balconies were filled with interested spectators, but even these, with few exceptions, were either very old people or young children. The present generation, the generation now enjoying the fruits of the great struggle and splendid victory of their fathers, as a rule did not so much as pause to pay passing homage to the marching veterans. The troops of the regular army and the state militia fared no better. The writer is not an ardent admirer of Rudyard Kipling's poetry, but on this occasion he was forced to admit the truth and appropriateness of the Englishman's criticism when he points out the ingratitude of a nation in the treatment of its soldiers. It is only too true that with the majority it is never "Mr. Tommy Atkins till the band begins to play."

The march was drawing to an end when one pleasing incident made the day brighter for the old veterans—one incident there was in keeping with this day and its sacred memories. The head of the long column had turned into a quiet residence street and here they were received royally. The scene presented was most impressive, even to those whose hearts were not in sympathy with it. To those assembled—the enthusiastic young patriots as well as their elders—this occasion seemed to pass beyond mere enthusiasm, however exalted, and to rest in the profoundest and most sacred depths of their being.

This street was gaily decorated in all the bravery of fluttering ensigns and bunting. The music of passing bands now seemed more martial and soul-stirring than when down town. The tramp of marching troops was firmer, more soldierlike, while the smiles of the onlooking women were beautifully sweet with true womanly sympathy.

When the young troops marched by in their fresh uniforms, with well drilled companies and battalions, the applause was thunderous and the enthusiasm intense. Then came the veterans of our civil war. At the first a wild tempest of cheering greeted them, but as the thin, wavering line tottered past, the huzzas grew tremulous and scattered. A strange silence was over all. Sobs were choking those who had gathered to cheer.

What were they? A wavering line of old men, faded and broken with age, yet each veteran there sustained and inspired by the consciousness of his true worth and by the knowledge that he owned the love and respect of all thinking men and true Americans. Only a few hundred old men, riding or tramping through the dust of the street. Over them floated what was a bright new flag when they responded to President Lincoln's call for volunteers. But this pageant, impressive as it was, was the mere image; the real fact was the spirit and the sentiment it expressed and represented—the spirit of a stern and Spartan people, freely giving of their treasure and calmly sending forth their loved ones to face danger and death on Southern battlefields, in order that their country might remain united, in order that an oppressed and alien race might be freed from bondage. The spirit of the hardy north was there, the north whose sons did not stop to count the cost when their country was in need of their services.

These heroes of forty years before were marching in honor and loving memory of that vast majority of their once powerful organization now at rest "on fame's eternal camping ground," and it needed not the eye of a prophet to see that these survivors must soon start upon the last march, the ending of which is "the bivouae of the dead."

One could look upon the bent forms and see in the careworn faces of these veterans the young men who had faced death a hundred times and had looked immortality in the eye. There were men in that parade who, had they lived and fought in the days of ancient Rome, would have been worshiped as demigods; yet they did not consider themselves heroic. They performed as best they could what they considered their simple duty. These old men had faced foemen worthy of their steel, and had felt the pangs of defeat as well as the pride and exultation of victory; and they were as sublime in the hour of disaster and gloom as when glory kissed their upturned faces, and a proud and grateful people placed upon their modest brows the laurel crown of victory.

"I don't call that a very likely purrade, but then they hain't enough of the old fellers left these days to raise much fuss." The speaker was a little, thin, weazened old fellow, and his remarks were addressed to a gentleman fully as old, but corpulent as the other was attenuated. A rain had come up very suddenly, and these two, with the writer, had sought shelter in a near-by stairway. The speaker carried a board decorated with badges and other G. A. R. devices. The stock in trade of the other one was suspended from his stooping shoulders—it consisted of shoe laces.

The gentleman of the badges used his nose as well as his mouth as an organ of speech, and the peculiar twang produced by this combination pronounced him a "genuine downeaster." It seemed natural, then, that he should speak of his "folks" as living in New Hampshire.

The other one seemed to have a cordial dislike for the letter "r" and religiously dropped it whenever possible. His words came slowly, with a half grotesque, half musical, and wholly interesting, drawl. About this one there was an atmosphere of another section—a suggestion of old-time negro mammies, and the changing bloom of the cotton field when the sunshine of early summer is warm and each passing breeze is freighted with the fragrance of the magnolia; when the dainty humming bird makes love to the wanton honeysuckle and the wonderfully sweet and wildly plaintive song of tne southern negro floats across the lowlands of "Dixie."

"Yes, it's a mighty pore purrade," the peddler added, "and it's the first one I've missed since they begun having them. Why? Oh—ah—well, you see, my clothes ain't so scrumptious as they might be, and again, I'm getting too old for so much foolishness."

Forty years before, the Puritan and the other one had seen service in the great war. Each was now telling his chance acquaintance of the hour (for it appeared that they had never before met) of the part he had taken and the position he had held in that great event.

The Puritan had fought with the army of the west and had marched with Sherman to the sea. "Us honest fellers," he

SILVER AND GOLD

Popular Songs and Standard Hymns

FOR

The Sunday-School : Christian Endeavor Society : Missionary Meeting Evangelistic Service : Other Religious Gatherings :: :: :: :: ::

A splendid book, compiled by W. E. M. Hackleman, and containing some of the best work of such writers as Excell, Towner, Kirkpatrick, Gabriel, McIntosh, Fillmore, Palmer, Bilhorn, Odgen, Hackleman, etc., etc. 176 pages.

Editions and Price List:

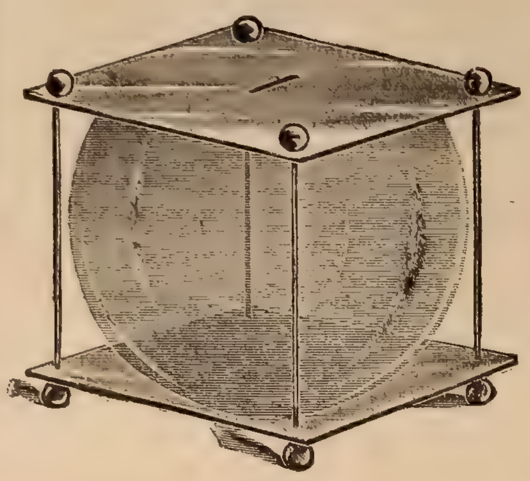
	Per copy Postpaid.	Per dozen Not prepaid.	Per hundred Not prepaid
Limp Cloth,	$0.25	$2.00	$15.00
Boards,	.25	2.50	20.00
Cloth	.30	3.00	25.00

Christian Publishing Company

St. Louis, Mo.

OUR BIRTHDAY BANKS.

THE BEST BANK.



Aluminum Plates, Nickeled Balls and Glass Globe.

$1.00. Prepaid - - $1.35

A Class Bank

Missionary Bank

Money Collector

OUR LOCK BANK.

☞ With a key.

No. 1, 25c. Prepaid - 35c.

No. 2, 35c. " - 50c.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. - - - 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

hastened to add, “got as much blame and abuse from yew folkses as them bummers that was allus stealing and burning and sich like. Fer my part, I felt sorry for them pore wimmin and brats. The old gineral was right in what he said about war.” Thus the Puritan ended a stirring account of that world-famed march.

The other one had been a corporal in Stonewall Jackson's foot cavalry. Unfortunately for the dashing corporal and Confederate cause, the other one (who frankly acknowledged that he “wuz borned tired”), lagged too far behind his command one day—“a powahful hot day it wuz, suh”—and “wuz cotch up and tuck a prisonah of wah by them blamed Yankees.” This sad accident occurred during the first year of the war, and the tired soldier languished in a northern prison for the greater part of three years.

“An', suh, I ain't wahm yit from the freezin' I enduahed in yo' prison. Why, suh, I git so blamed mad when I think of the mos' extreme col' of my quatahs, that I actually cuss. Yes, suh, 'pon my honah, I actually cuss; I most pintedly do.”

The corporal was exchanged, however, before the cessation of hostilities, and was with the remnant of his old command during the last dark days around Richmond and Petersburg, and “had the high an' mos' distinguished honah of being connected with General Lee, when that great man, havin' woah hisself out whippin' yo ahmy, jes natchurally had to surrender in ordah to give his men some rest.”

On and on they talked, and as they talked the listener fancied that he too was taking a man's part in those stirring times, and with this fancy there came to him some fleeting pictures.

The two were speaking of the departure of their respective regiments for the front at the beginning of the war. The Puritan dwelt upon the excitement up in Beaver Crick township, when his company started for Washington. The writer could see the prim streets of the New England village crowded with people of the countryside. There was little shouting, little jesting, and a dearth of tears. Like the Japanese of modern times, those who remained behind were Spartanlike in their composure, only instead of the weird, fanatical “Banzai,” it was a hearty, reverent “God bless and keep you.” A gray-haired patriarch offered up a prayer to the Lord of hosts and God of battle, asking for these, his children, the same protection and care accorded to the chosen people of old. The train moved out of the little station; the crowd dispersed, going home to work, to pray and (ah, how hard it must have been!) to wait. The picture faded, and as it passed from view a maiden was heard sobbing softly. Young hearts are the same yesterday, to-day and until time shall be no more.

The other one waxed enthusiastic and seemed to grow forty years younger when he described the “big meetin' and barbecue” on the banks of the old Chatahoochie river, when the “Okifinokie Tigers” started on their march to Atlanta, where they were to take the train for Virginia. “Why, suh, every man, woman an' child, and mos' of the niggahs, wuz thah to see the boys off. Talk about your eatin's, 'pon my honah as a gentleman, suh, thah wuz enough grub thah to feed Gineral Lee's whole ahmy for a month.”

Again there came a picture:

> All the South is warm with kisses
>   From the fragrant lips of spring;
> To the flowers in the greenwood
>   Sweet the wild birds sing.

There was nothing of the Puritan, nothing of gloom, in this picture; all were gay, and the laughter of the rose-cheeked girls rivaled in sweetness the startled twitterings of the song birds. Music there was, too: “For Dixie's land I take my stand, to live and die for Dixie.” “The girl I left behind me” may have had an aching heart, but she was too proud to show it.

“The tigers!” How grand they were in their gorgeous trappings of gold braid and shimmering lace! “Hurrah, boys!” shouted the village wit, “leave them iron guns and steel swords at home. Popguns are good enough to make them Yankees run.”

Once again the picture faded, as the silken folds of the Stars and Bars disappeared over the red hills of old Georgia.

This crowd, too, dispersed, going home to boast for a time, to prophesy for a season, and then to take up unaccustomed toil and (alas, so many of them!) to weep through the coming years, to weep for their sons, sweethearts, husbands and loved ones who found their narrow homes “ 'mid the green fields of old Virginia.”

The Puritan told of his return to the old home after the war was over. It was the oft-told story of the homecoming of a victorious army and of the welcome extended the veterans by a proud and grateful people. “But,” he added, “we were not all there, and I guess it was more than likely that some of the wimmen folks, and the men folks, too, couldn't jine in the singin' and hollerin' on account of the chokin' in their throats.”

The other one did not dwell upon his homecoming. “When Uncle Robert told us as how we'd better quit fightin' an' go home an' put out a crap, mos' of us had to hoof it, an' it tuck me nigh onto a month to walk from ol' Virginny to the Chatahoochie river. It's a powahful long ways when you tries to walk it on slim rations, an' ouahs was mos' turrible slim, suh, 'pon my honah, they wuz. I didn't put out no crap aftah I did git thah, fo' when if you put into their hands Sunday-School Songs No. 3. This new song book interests the children. That's the highest compliment to a Sunday-School song book. We mail a copy for 10 cents. FILLMORE MUSIC HOUSE, 528 Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio, or 41-43 Bible House, New York.

The Children Will Sing

THE BEST

Sunday-School Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary. The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people. The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

I finally landed, I found that them Sherman bummahs had burnt the ol' house, an' that she an' the young-un wus livin' in an ol' toah-down niggah shack—leastwise, the young-un did live thah, but he ups and died, pore little fellah, befoah I got home; an' she, well she wuz allus a weakly like woman, an' 'twan't long till she followed the young-un. Somehow, suh, I jes' couldn't be satisfied to stay thah any mo', so I stahted out, an' hain't been back since."

The rain had ceased falling and the strident cries of rival peddlers recalled the veterans to mundane affairs. A cordial hand-shake, the understanding that they would see more of each other in the future, and the old "boys" were off. Two voices rang out, one of them harsh, with a peculiar twang, "Here's your badges, buttons and ribbon! Come along, gentlemen, and show your colors and your grit and buy a souvenir of this auspicious occasion!"

The voice of the other one was all but lost in the noise of the street, but now and then it floated back from the strenuous medley, "Shoe-strings, gentlemen—a suah sign of a gentleman is the neatness and complex hahmony of his pedal extremities. Only five cents."

The writer found himself unconsciously raising his hand in a salute to these men of "forty years after."

Forty years after! How old and feeble they were, these survivors of a great nation's greatest war! Old and feeble, yet their dim eyes must face the cruel facts and figures of life. Their last days must be spent in toil and privation. Yet the end cannot be far off, for—

"Art is long, but time is fleeting,
    And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still like muffled drums are beating
    Funeral marches to the grave."

"'Annie Laurie" is a great-grandmother now, while "the girl I left behind me" is sleeping under the flowers "way down South in Dixie." The lusty singers are silent now. They are waiting for the silvery wail of the bugle—taps.

The writer saw the light of day south of the Mason-Dixon line. The traditions of the south are sacred to him. He loves with a deathless love his section and people. He reveres with a reverence akin to worship the memory of the south's great leaders and soldiers, yet as a citizen of the greater America, he salutes you old soldiers who honored the blue and glorified the gray, for the world never saw your equals—and it may be, never shall.

God be with you when "fast falls the eventide," and may the sweet, sad notes of "taps" be blended with the reveille of an endless day and eternal peace.—The Interior.

❁ ❁

No Coal Needed.

In a suburb of New York City, says Harper's Weekly, a priest of one of the churches announced that a collection would be taken up to defray the cost of coal for heating the church. Nearly every one in the parish contributed except one Muldoon. A day or so thereafter, the priest, happening to meet Muldoon, said,

"Dennis, why didn't you give something towards the coal bill?"

Whereupon Dennis gave his reverence a sly wink.

"Come, come, father!" he said. "The idea of ye thrying to make us believe the money is wanted to buy coal for the church, whin I, as well as your riverence, knows that it's heated by steam!"

Communion
Sets

Quadruple Silver Plate

This Communion Ware is manufactured by one of the largest and most reliable establishments in the United States. We will be pleased to give prices. Write us, stating how many of each piece will be wanted. Address,

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville
Railroad
FROM Cincinnati and Louisville
TO KNOXVILLE

Two Trains Daily
from each city

Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars

For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance
When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.
LIVING PRAISE
By CHAS. H. GABRIEL and W. W. DOWLING
Is that kind of a Song Book.
Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.
Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

SUMMER EXCURSIONS
-VIA-
BIG FOUR
From St. Louis

$ 7.65	INDIANAPOLIS AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 20, 21, 22, 23
$ 18.50	NIAGARA FALLS AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 18, 19, 20
$ 19.85	TORONTO, ONT. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 19, 20, 22, 23
$24.35	Asbury Park, N.J. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 29, 30, July 1, 2
$ 9.25	HAMILTON, O. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 30, July 1
$ 21.25	BALTIMORE, MD. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 2 3, 4
$ 19.25	Chautauqua, N.Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 7, 28
$ 18.50	BUFFALO, N. Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 8, 9, 10
$15 00	PITTSBURG, PA. AND RETURN	Tickets on sale August 18 and 19
$22.00	PHILADELPHIA AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale Sept. 15, 16, 17.

For particulars call at City Ticket Office,
BROADWAY AND CHESTNUT
or Address C. L. HILLEARY, A. G. P. A.
St. Louis, Mo.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

THE FOURTH DAY (CONTINUED).

When dinner was over, the Woodney family felt much better acquainted with the little musician. He was so modest and shy, so afraid of causing trouble, and so pleased when little attentions were paid him—and he was so small for his age, so delicate and spiritual, with his great golden brown eyes, his brown curls cut close to the dreamy head, but sending up their little spiral threads of silk, his almost transparent cheeks, his slim white fingers. Since he had been assured that his musical progress should not be interrupted, he was happy; and whenever Arthur Lowell was happy he was ecstatic. All his emotions were too strong for his frail body. Blind Mr. Woodney could only feel the influence and character of the lad, but he drew in his knowledge from the timid words and as it seemed the very motions of the wanderer, and from these faint impressions knew him; just as we may, in the dark, catch the scent of sweet violets through their heavy foliage, and, seeing them not, yet know that somewhere down in the green gloom, some little buds have fallen in love—that is to say, have bloomed. Old Mrs. Woodney took a deep interest in the boy, but it was that kind of interest which seeks to improve its object. She believed he was worthy of their charity; but she thought that his music was a great stumbling block to his progress. All his heart was in his art; but she had seen her son Benjamin throw his heart into half a dozen professions, none of which proved successful. It is not enough, she believed, for one's heart to be in his business; business cries not so much for heart as for brains. And from Arthur's own account, all the musical people with whom he had lived had been too poor to keep him. What did he expect, then, but to remain poor himself? The old lady felt it her duty to influence the child as much as possible toward a practical view of life. She had battled for years to bring her son to that view, and when he married a lady as impractical as himself, her task had been redoubled. Mace was her standby, her hope. When Luther, Mace's brother, was born, the grandmother centered her ambitious plans upon him. But Luther was like his father and mother. Although he was now twenty, it was still necessary for him to work under the guidance of others that his best ability might be displayed. If thrown upon his own resources, the issue would have been as doubtful as flinging a boy into deep water for the first time, to learn if he could swim out. With Mace it was not so. She was independent, sturdy in her beliefs, firm in her decisions, ready to act; but she had inherited enough of her father's mildness and her mother's placid disposition to prevent her practical nature from developing sharp, uncomfortable angles.

When the family left the table, Arthur offered to clean up the dishes, saying he had often done so for others. They were pleased with his willingness to help, and when work was done, they proposed to fit up his room in the barn. A, D, and Mr. Tumbleton had not come back from dinner to work upon the porch, so old Mrs. Woodney was left to guard the house when they should come back. The others repaired to the barn, at the end of the naked ground which was now called the front yard. It was unfortunate that there was no fence between the barn and the parlor door, but Mr. Woodney had Mace hang a long rope across, from the Enderthrope to the Day fence.

The rope sagged in the middle, but it marked off the barn lot from the front yard. "At any rate," said Mr. Woodney, "people can tell where one ends and the other begins. And I should think it looked odd and novel," he added, seeing, in his imagination, the rigging of a noble ship. He pictured to himself the bare ground as the deck of the vessel cleared for action. The fancy pleased him, and he cried to the musician, "Arthur, what does it look like, to you?"

The boy looked at the rope critically, and answered, "It looks like a clothes-line to me, sir."

"In fact," returned Mr. Woodney, a little crestfallen, for he had expected more from the musician, "Arthur, it is a clothes-line. Let us go to the barn."

When they reached the barn Mace explained, talking all the time for her father's benefit, "Down below, it is all dark unless the door is open; and there is nothing but troughs and the bare ground, and one manger. There is a hen in the trough, maybe laying an egg—a Tumbleton chicken, I suppose. Don't let's go near, and maybe we will get some rent for her lodgings."

"But it would be Mr. Tumbleton's egg," her father objected.

"The hen is trespassing on our property," returned Mace. "We must climb this ladder. You go up, Arthur; and papa, be careful, for the sixth round is missing. Mamma, let me carry your book"—for Mrs. Woodney had all the time been perusing her tale. "What is it?" asked her mother looking up. "Oh! We are in the barn. Must I go up this ladder? It is very steep." They climbed up, Mace coming last. The loft was full of hay. Mrs. Woodney cried out with a happy note, "I have been here before!" She climbed over to the spot where she had read "Ramona" on the invasion of company from G. C. D. Woodney's.

"How very warm it is!" murmured Mr. Woodney. The August sun, as if conscious that September was coming in a day or two, seemed to be intent upon making a last impression before giving up his summer tyranny. "The roof comes down low, all around," said Mace, "and if you touch it with your hand, you'll wonder that it doesn't catch afire. It actually burns my hand. Now we'll get to work." They began to plan, and presently each was thoroughly engrossed. The hay had to be cleared away from before the little square window, and the floor swept. Then a path had to be cleaned from the bare place to the head of the ladder, so hay would not be tracked over the musician's room every time he went to it. By means of a rope they got a big wooden box up through the floor—opening, pulling, pushing, shouting, and dripping with perspiration at every pore. "That is fine!" cried Mrs. Woodney, getting up when the box was landed. "How busy and interesting all this is!" Then she carried her book downstairs and perched on a log in the shade of the barn.

The box was rolled over to the clearing and placed beside the window. It was for a table. Mace went to the house and brought clean newspapers which they tacked all over the box, except, of course, over the open side. The violin was installed within the box. Nails were driven into the wall for wall-hooks. Arthur hung his hat upon one of the nails to see how it would look there. The hay had been banked on two sides, the wall containing the window was in front, the passage to the ladder, behind.

Individual Communion Cups
Why permit a custom at the communion table which you would not tolerate in your own home? Individual Communion Cups are sanitary. Let us send you a list of nearly 3,000 churches where they are in use. Send for Free Book.
We offer a Trial Outfit free to any church.
Sanitary Communion Outfit Co. [illegible] St. Rochester, N.Y.

"How snug!" cried Mr. Woodney, when they explained all. "What a pity the window is built so it can't be opened. I feel," he added, mopping his dripping face, "like knocking it out. If all is ready, we will go below, for nobody could stay in the room."

"Oh, no," cried Arthur, greatly pleased with his roomy apartment, "nobody at all could stay here! My shirt is just plastered to me."

Mace did not say anything, but held her arms straight out from her body because in that attitude the stream seemed to run with a slower current. "We will go down," she said, "but I just hate to rub my arms against me. Maybe our egg is ready for us."

"Go first, Mace," said Mr. Woodney. "But that is Mr. Tumbleton's egg, my dear, and must be given to him. Why, Arthur! Did you stumble?"

"My eyes are full of water," Arthur explained, "and I never could keep them open under water."

"I am glad of one thing," called Mace from below, "I am glad, since that is Mr. Tumbleton's egg, that the old thing is sitting. Get out of here!" she added to the hen, which was trying to peck her. The hen flew from the barn screaming, and scarcely touching the ground with her toes.

"Why, Benjamin!" cried his wife on beholding him. "You are literally soaked and dripping. You'll catch cold, I'm sure. Hurry to the house and change every garment immediately. You, too, Mace, you would have ruined that dress if it hadn't already been ruined! And Arthur, I'm sure this will be bad for you. Go sit somewhere in the sun and dry."

"Mrs. Woodney," said Arthur as they hurried to the house, "you ought to see my room. Oh, it is splendid! It is so large—and the roof makes such a funny little turn over it! I could even have two stories to it if I nailed a few planks to the posts and rafters."

"That would be very nice," said the other drily. "Then if you had a rubber coat and rubber boots to wade out, you could keep your clothes in the manger. Benjamin, I know you will be sick from this."

"I will change my clothes with the ut-

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

most dispatch," said Mr. Woodney hastily. At the door they did not wait to hear old Mrs. Woodney's cries of alarm. The Tumbletons had not returned. Mr. Woodney took possession of the middle room, where his wife helped him remove his wet garments. Mace carried her other dress to the front kitchen. Arthur spread his greatcoat upon the clothesline; and seated himself in the sun, on a chair. He was in full view of old Mrs. Woodney, who guarded the front door awaiting the Tumbletons. The front porch was about half built, but the roof had not been put on. The flooring was finished except just before the door. Here was an empty space, so that in coming to the parlor door you had to step upon the porch, walk three steps and descend into the black hole, then mount upon the doorstep. The parlor door had to stay open so Mr. Tumbleton could saw his planks across the sill, and scatter his shavings, which resembled white apple-peelings, over the floor. "Yes, take up the carpet," he had advised, "for when I get to work, I make the fur fly, and never stop to see where it will light."

Suddenly Arthur who, from his position, could see a good deal of the front yard, called to the old lady in a hoarse whisper, "Company is coming!"

Old Mrs. Woodney, not hearing, continued, "And why you-all went to work in the heat of noon is what I can't understand, old as I am!"

Arthur again repeated his warning, and the other catching it, darted into the parlor, calling, "Company is coming!" Instantly strange sounds issued from the house. Arthur could hear frantic footsteps, knockings, thumpings, overturnings, and various other tokens of unreadiness. A young girl came around the house, and, catching sight of Arthur, started slightly. She was a beautiful girl dressed in exquisite taste, as fresh and delicate as a flower—the one blooming thing in all that grassless, treeless yard. Old Mrs. Woodney, now returning to the porch, exclaimed, "Why, Jennie! It is you! Come in!" Arthur had never heard of Mr. G. C. D. Woodney, but the first glance was sufficient to tell him that Jennie Woodney was accustomed to a home of wealth and luxury. He was ashamed to be seen on his chair drying himself in the sun. He rose hastily, his blue shirt showing dark stains, both vertical and circular, where the perspiration had been most active. The old lady continued: "Jennie, your cousin Benjamin and Mace have been out bathing, but they will soon be ready to receive you."

"I haven't time to stop," said Jennie hastily, as a violent explosion was heard from the middle room. She was upon the front porch and looked about uneasily, as if undecided whether to leap into the hole before the door, or flee the way she had come. There was another explosion, sharp, startling; then another. "Do not be alarmed," said the old lady with composure. "Benjamin has dropped his popping matches, but as he steps on them, your cousin Geraldine will extinguish them for him."

"I came to invite all of you to dinner, to-morrow," said Jennie Woodney, recovering from her alarm. "We dine at six, and mother says she wants all of you to be sure and come."

Having delivered her message, the girl was almost painfully anxious to get away, so old Mrs. Woodney did not renew her efforts to detain her. When she was out of sight, Mace appeared in her clean dress, and Mr. Woodney, drily clad, opened his door. All were now ready for the company, but the company had fled. "But I am not disappointed," said Mrs. Woodney. "Company has never yet chagrined me by going away; and we will be very glad to go to the dinner."

"Yes, indeed," cried Mace, her eyes brightening with the prospect of a dinner at her rich cousin's. Arthur felt a little lonesome-ache in his breast, but not for the world would he have let it appear.

"Yonder comes a man," old Mrs. Woodney announced suddenly; "after all, you didn't get ready for nothing!"

"Sure enough," said Mrs. Geraldine Woodney, "we are in respectable condition to meet Mr. Tumbleton! Good-afternoon, Mr. Tumbleton; you are ready to go on with our porch?"

"I have came for my tools," said Mr. Tumbleton, gathering them into his toolbox.

"Your tools!" cried Mr. Woodney. "Surely you will not leave us with that yawning chasm in our porch floor?"

"Now, it's this way," said Mr. Tumbleton, lifting the tool-chest to his shoulder. "I'll tell you. Me and A, and D, has to go out in the country to help build a barn for Mr. Mancey, and we'll likely be gone a couple of weeks. But just as soon as we come back we'll finish your porch for you."

"But we engaged you to build our front porch as soon as possible," Mr. Woodney expostulated, while Mace's eyes flashed angrily. "How can we get along with that floor unfinished? Not to speak of the company that is continually coming, the very family cannot pursue their avocations without being in danger of their lives."

"Well, I'll tell you," said Mr. Tumbleton, walking away with his tools. "Put some planks over that place for a bridge, like. Now, it's this way; that barn job will pay us handsome, and this porch won't make us much money, done or undone. We air pore folks and you wouldn't want to keep the bread from entering our mouths, not if I know yore character, Mr. Woodney. What I respects," he added with dignity, "is character. You have yours and I've got mine, and it's our business to keep 'em. Now, just stretch some planks over that there hole, and it'll serve till we can come and see what we can do for you." Mr. Tumbleton departed.

(To be continued.)

LOW RATE EXCURSIONS
VIA B. & O. S. W.
SEASON 1905.

HOME SEEKERS' TICKETS to points in the West, Southwest and Southeast. On sale 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.

ONE-WAY COLONISTS' TICKETS to Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other points in Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia; Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City and other points. On sale daily Sept. 15 to Oct. 31st.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.

National Educational Association. Tickets will be sold June 29, 30, July 1 and 2. Return limit July 10th, with privilege of extension to August 31st.

DENVER, COLO.

National Epworth League Convention. Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3rd, also on July 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit July 14th, with privilege of extension to August 8th.

National Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aug 15th. One fare plus $1.00 for round trip. Dates of sale and other particulars will be announced later.

National Encampment, G. A. R. Tickets will be sold August 29 to September 3rd, also September 4th for such trains as reach Western Gateways on same day. Return limit Sept. 12th, with privilege of extension to October 7th.

BALTIMORE, MD.

United Society of Christian Endeavor. Tickets will be sold July 2, 3, 4. Return limit July 12th, with privilege of extension to Aug. 31st.

For detailed information, rates, time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc., consult your nearest Ticket Agent or address—

F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent,
St. Louis, Mo.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Every Large City in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory is Located on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.

This is a reason why you should travel and ship your freight via "The Katy" to Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Waco, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Shawnee, South McAlester and Muskogee.

THE MK AND T MISSOURI, KANSAS & TEXAS RAILWAY.

Particulars about rates, time of trains, business chances in the Southwest or any other information you want will be cheerfully furnished on request.

GEORGE MORTON, General Passenger and Ticket Agent
W. B. GROSECLOSE, General Freight Agent
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. Garrison, - - - - President
W. W. Dowling, - - - Vice-President
W. D. Cree, - - - Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. Crow, - - Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. Hoffmann, - - General Superintendent

Business Notes.

We have just received a pretty "Cradle Roll" reception card, and will guarantee its good effects in your school; 25 cents per dozen.

Think of our Bible-school maps at $1.00 up to $10 00, then try to excuse yourself for not having the school equipped with them.

The installment plan is one of the methods of helping our preaching brethren. Pay one-fifth down, one-fifth per month until clear.

Think of books like Wagner's "Simple Life" at 35 cents postpaid. Yet that is just what we are doing, but only while the stock lasts.

The run on "The Holy Spirit" is not more than we anticipated, for preparation was made for it; hence all orders can be filled promptly at $1.00.

The Glass Birthday Globes are selling right along at 35 cents, 50 cents and $1.35, prepaid. Do you still pass the "hat" and vote for "Jefferson"?

The Attendance and Offering Cards, on which spaces are punched for punctuality and amount, are in good demand at one cent each. Try them.

We are offering the Lesson Commentary to those not using it at 75 cents for a while, as the present stock will end the issue for this year. Try it.

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

Our friends must not forget that personal cheques cost us 15 cents for collection, while a draft or money order will only cost you from 3 to 10 cents. Ought you to ask us to be the loser?

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

What is more to the point for the graduate than "What is Your Life?" by W. J. Russell, in fine cloth, full of good, wholesome truth, at $1.00, prepaid?

Our handy "Scholar's Bible" is just the thing for some of the children who feel as if they were starting out this week for themselves and whose mother wants "started" right. Price 75 cents to $2.25.

The "one dime" album is a great means of raising funds by the children. Spacing for ten dimes on the cards; also names of the donors, all of which is then sealed and handed in by the pupil. Five cents each.

We are anxious to complete this 10,000. You see we need just 2,883 to round it up. Will you not send us one or more new names at once and make at least two souls happy? Do not fail to let us hear from you.

We have in stock now such books as "The Letters of a Self-Made Man to His Son," "The Virginians," "Gordon Keith," formerly selling at $1.50. We sell them at 60 cents, postpaid. Think of that!

The Gospel of Matthew by Peloubet, at 50 cents (former price $1 25), is bringing us many orders, as it should, and the supply will soon be exhausted unless we can make similar arrangements for another lot.

The Miniature New Testament is the clearest type known to us. The book can easily be carried in the vest pocket, but the print can be read "afar." The book is very handsome; so that 50 cents is cheap for morocco.

The contribution baskets we are sending out are giving general satisfaction, that was as we intended—nothing better at the price being our motto. If you wish one at 30 cents, 80 cents or $1.50, command us and they will go promptly to you, not prepaid.

More Y. P. S. C. E. supplies have gone out this spring than in years, manifesting quite an activity for a "craze" that some brethren thought, twenty years ago, would "soon die out." Model constitutions, topic cards, pledge cards and all are moving as if the young people meant business for the Master and betterment for themselves. Write us for samples and prices.

Christian-Evangelist Special Excursion.

American Christian Missionary Convention—San Francisco, California, August 17-23, 1905.

Will Pass Through Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Southern California, Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota.

The Great Excursion of 6,250 Miles from St. Louis—Return Trip Will Be on Different Railroads.

The route traveled will have the following advantages over all others:

First.—It takes in more important places and inspiring scenery than any other route which can be taken. On this route will be seen the city of Denver, Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, Pike's Peak, the grand mountain scenery through Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, over the new San Pedro railroad to Los Angeles, the Orange Groves of Southern California, Pacific Coast line ride to San Francisco, Mt. Shasta, Portland, the Lewis and Clark exposition, the great forests of Washington, the delightful country of Northern Idaho, a ride of sixty miles up Hell Gate River, Helena (Montana), the great Mountains of the Northwest by way of the National Park and a thousand other attractions which cannot be enumerated here.

Second—Stops will be made as follows: Denver four hours, Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak eighteen hours, Glenwood Springs four hours, Salt Lake City twelve hours, Los Angeles two days, San Francisco five days, Portland two days, and so on. All important places will have due consideration.

Third.—The itinerary has been so arranged that we will pass the important scenery in the daytime.

Fourth.—This trip includes the Central, the Southern and Northern routes, and avoids the sandy deserts of Northern Nevada. You have the mountains of Colorado and Salt Lake, the Orange Groves and Los Angeles of Southern California, and the Portland Exposition, the Northern States and the National Park. These advantages have never been offered before.

Fifth.—This excursion will not only go to the Pacific Coast and return, but will pass up the Coast—the whole Pacific Coast—for more than 1,200 miles, through the three States of California, Oregon and Washington, and will take in all the great cities of the Pacific Coast—Los Angeles, with its delightful Orange Groves; San Francisco, the great Metropolis of the Pacific; Portland, with its great fisheries and Lewis and Clark Exposition, and Seattle, with its wonderful shipping and northwestern trade.

Sixth.—We escape much of the heat and sandy deserts of other Routes.

The Christian-Evangelist Special will have these and many other advantages over all other excursions.

RAILROAD FARE.

Kansas City to San Francisco and Return—Direct	$50.00
By Way of Portland	56.00
St. Louis to San Francisco and return—Direct	57.00
By Way of Portland	63.50
Chicago to San Francisco and return—Direct	62.50
By Way of Portland	68.50

For Particulars, do not fail to address:

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST SPECIAL
2712 Pine Street, - - - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 25. June 22, 1905. $1.50 A Year

The Old Baptist Meeting-House Where Walter Scott Preached the Primitive Gospel.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist.

J. H. GARRISON, Editor
PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor
F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER, } Staff Correspondents.
W. DURBAN,

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year
For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 787

Editorial:

Divine Classification of Men—I......... 789
On Giving the Gospel Support............ 789
Notes and Comments............... 790
Editor's Easy Chair......................... 791

Contributed Articles:

The Church's Joyful Experience. William Elliot Griffis, LL. D........ 792
The Head Center of Superstition. William Durban............................ 793
As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 794
Was Jesus a Divine Healer? L. A. Chapman 795
Letters From a Retired Minister......... 796
"What Hath God Wrought!" S. K. Hallam..................................... 797
The Old Baptist Meeting-House, New Lisbon, O. C. C. Redgrave.......... 797
Our Budget...................................... 798
How the Work Grows...................... 801
News From Many Fields.................. 802
Evangelistic.................................... 806
Marriages, Obituaries...................... 807
Midweek Prayer-Meeting................. 808
Christian Endeavor......................... 808
Sunday-School................................ 809
People's Forum.............................. 810
Family Circle................................. 811
With the Children........................... 814

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO,
DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS,
TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL,
MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,
AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO,
NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Michigan Summer Resorts

The land of summer pleasures.
The cost is small for a stay of a week
or a month at any of the resorts in the

Famous Michigan Fruit Belt

There is splendid fishing.
The bathing is unsurpassed.
Sailing or canoeing is a pleasure.
Golf and Tennis grounds everywhere.
The hotels are justly famed for first-class entertainment.
In fact—but the many attractions are best set forth in the booklets issued
by the

Pere Marquette Railroad

A request addressed to

H. F. MOELLER, G. P. A.,
Union Station, Detroit, Mich.

Will bring you this literature free.

A POSTAL CARD addressed to us will bring to you promptly our catalogue of Christian Endeavor Requisites. To make the work of your society of the most helpful character you need the practical aids which we are prepared to furnish at very little cost. The catalogue is yours if you ask for it. DO IT NOW. CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

THE
CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST
"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."
Vol. XLII. June 22, 1905 No. 25

Current Events.

New Speed Records.

The speed mania is not confined to owners of automobiles. One of the things which Josh Billings "observed" many years ago was that "when a man has once rid fast he never wants to ride slow any more." On the contrary, he wants to ride faster. And the new eighteen-hour train between New York and Chicago on the Pennsylvania will give him an opportunity to do so. On its first run, this new flier lost half an hour with a hot box and still arrived on time. At one part of the run the train is said to have covered three miles in eighty-five seconds, which is at the rate of one hundred and twenty-seven miles an hour. The Lake Shore sent a special from Toledo to Chicago in record-breaking time on the same day in preparation for a new train on a faster schedule. This is fast traveling. It is too fast for any but exceptional runs, and too fast for safety even then, so long as our railroad tracks are open at crossings as they are. Besides, the American people have not yet learned that degree of caution which is requisite to make very rapid transit reasonably safe.

❖

Japanese Imitativeness.

It is reported that all Japanese servants employed on the American warships which are now engaged in the annual maneuvers, were sent ashore before the war game began, and it is further stated that the employment of Japanese cooks and valets on our war vessels may be prohibited by general order. It has recently come to the ears of the department that Japanese young men who were serving in naval capacities a few years ago, as servants of American naval officers, are now figuring as commanders of Japanese cruisers and battleships. There is a growing conviction that the Japanese government has been systematically sending bright young cadets to this country to get employment as servants in the navy, that they might have opportunity of observing our methods. A Jap can see more with his eyes half shut than most people can with both optics wide open, and the little brown Asiatic, who may be serving as a waiter and apparently concentrating his whole attention on the work of his hands, is capable of using his eyes and ears to very good advantage, while his face gives no sign of it. If the Japs have profited in this present war by anything acquired in this way, they are welcome. But the department doubts the wisdom of giving any group of shrewd foreigners such an inside view of our national defenses as the Japs will be sure to get if they are employed on our war vessels.

❖

Criminals and Immigration.

That the immigration question is a many-sided one, is a truism. Within the past few weeks, China has been raising objections to our iron-bound rules regarding the coming of her sons to our country, and there is much to be said for her contention. But the necessity for closely guarding our shores against really undesirable aliens, is seen in the repeated effort to bring into this country a lot of criminals from Austria-Hungary. It appears that one Marcus Brown, an agent of the United States government, has been fined for investigating this matter. He is said to have discovered that one hundred and eighty out of two hundred and eighty criminals set free in the European countries, had reached our shores. That such a wholesale importation of the "scum of Europe" should not, if possible, be permitted, none will gainsay. Another aspect of the question demanding consideration, is, what is the Christian church going to do with the undesirable class of immigrant, when he does arrive?

❖

Track Gambling.

In his address to the Missouri Society of New York Gov. Folk declared that "The Missouri General Assembly just closed presents the unique example to the nation of a Legislature free from the evil of the railroad pass, and in which corruption had no part. No one was sandbagged, and every interest was treated fairly. A number of reform bills were passed, some of which would be worth a campaign to secure. This remarkable revolution in legislative affairs is the result of the Missouri idea." One of those reform bills to which the Governor referred was that which prohibited turf-gambling. It went into effect on Saturday—the very day on which the Senator by whose vote it became law died. Of course the opponents of the bill will say this is a punishment for punishing them. There is another opportunity now to see whether the people of Missouri will back up their idea, for there is talk of ignoring the bill, the full text of which is:

> "Any person who keeps any room, shed, tenement, booth or building or any part thereof, within this state, and who occupies the same with any book, instrument or device, for the purpose of registering or recording bets or wagers or selling pools upon the result of any trial or contest of skill, speed or power of endurance of man or beast, which is to be made or to take place within or without this state; or any person who records or registers a bet or wager or sells pools upon the result of any trial or contest of skill or power of endurance of man or beast, which is to be made or take place within or without this state; or being the owner, lessee, occupant in charge of any room, tenement, shed, tent, booth or building, or any part thereof, within this state, knowingly permits the same to be used or occupied for the purpose of recording such bets or wagers or selling pools, as hereinabove set forth, or becomes the custodian or depository for hire or privilege of any money for any purpose contrary to the provisions of this section, shall, on conviction, be adjudged guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of not less than two nor more than five years, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than five hundred ($500) dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

❖

College Athletics.

Perhaps one may expect a more rational and dispassionate discussion of football and other college games now than in the height of the season. Two or three things which have recently been published suggest the topic. The first is an article in McClure's Magazine for June in which the author makes pointed and particular charges of professionalism against some of last season's star football players at Harvard, Yale, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania. For a long time such charges have been more or less in the air, but they have not hitherto been published with names, dates and circumstances. In most of the cases mentioned it appears that neither the institution nor the athletic association as such has actually paid men for playing, but by a variety of transparent devices the same end was reached and the men not only became professionals, but were being trained in deception. Various replies to this article have been published. Most of them say, "Tut, tut!" or words to that effect. Some also say, "Pooh!" But this scarcely seems an adequate argument in answer to specific allegations. Those who are entirely on the outside of all such matters have small idea of the number of subterfuges that are in use to compensate a player without actually paying him out of the treasury. Places are secured for him by which he can "earn" a handy sum by a purely nominal amount of work. Interested alumni, whose devotion to their college consists chiefly in an ardent desire to see her have winning teams, pay their money freely. Free board and free room rent are furnished by one device or another. In general, the college authorities do what they can to keep college athletics free from professionalism, and the auditing of athletic association finances prevents paying players in cash out of the treasury, but the enthusiastic graduate is hard to manage and his well-meant but pernicious activity is at the bottom of a great deal of this trouble in keeping college games on a strictly amateur basis. It will take some investigation and some statements quite as specific as those of the accusing article in McClure's, to convince the public that there is not something radically crooked in the conduct of athletics even in the best of the big schools.

◆

Is Amateur Athletics Possible?

The small colleges are in general no better, except as their resources are more limited. In fact, the temptation comes to the authorities of the small colleges more forciby than to those of the large universities. They want more students. They appreciate (and often over-appreciate) the advertising value of winning teams. The fact that the student body is small makes it improbable that the material for a winning team will be found among the students who come to study. For both of these reasons they feel the temptation to offer "inducements" to promising athletes. Last week a case in connection with a small college in the Mississippi Valley came into prominence. A member of the graduating class brought suit, on the day after commencement, against one of the professors, who for years has been chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, for a sum of money which he said was due to him as salary for playing foot-ball. The case was compromised and the boy got his money, but not until the papers had gotten hold of a letter written by the professor in which he offered all expenses, including railroad fare, if the boy would come to the college and play foot-ball.

The situation suggests a query as to whether amateur intercollegiate athletics is possible. It is yet to be proven that it is possible to keep it on a purely amateur basis when the importance of the events is so exaggerated in the public mind and the desire to win is so keen. If there is no way to get the whole matter of athletics taken less seriously, perhaps it will be better to make it frankly professional. In professional base-ball there are clubs representing the different cities, and local pride gets attached to the "home team," although everybody knows that the members of the team are gathered from all parts of the country as a purely business proposition. Why should not the colleges in the same way employ athletes—charging the loss, if there is any, to the advertising account? College spirit would soon adjust itself to the change and there would be a great saving in honesty. If not this, then it will be necessary to take steps to make athletics thoroughly amateur and any measures which may be required for this will be justifiable. The thing which cannot be tolerated is athletics which professes to be amateur and in reality is professional.

◆

The Effect of Hard Games.

Another word on the athletic problem comes from President E. J. James of the University of Illinois, who has published the results of some investigations which he has been making. The gist of them is that the average foot-ball, base-ball or tennis expert suffers more than he profits by his arduous training and is apt to drop off with heart disease in middle life. While the opinion of a physician would perhaps be more weighty than that of a college president on a point of this sort, it is worth hearing what is presented as the result of investigating the vital records of many generations of athletes. President James further declares that the popular assertion that "the successful athlete brings into his after life a courage and reserve strength which makes him eminently successful," is a fallacy. The popular saying has a pleasing and plausible sound, but the facts fail to support it.

There are some things to be said on the other side of the athletic question. At present these criticisms upon the present athletic regime are suggested by some current happenings. They are not a statement of the whole case.

◆

Washington Chosen.

Washington, D. C., has been agreed upon as the place of meeting for the Russian and Japanese peace commissioners. The choice of our capital for this purpose indicates that, in spite of the overwhelming popular sentiment in favor of Japan, our government has not only maintained a position of perfect technical neutrality, which was not difficult under the circumstances, but has also managed to keep the good will of both sides by a perfectly judicial attitude. Nearly every capital in Europe was suggested by one of the interested parties and rejected by the other. President Roosevelt suggested The Hague, but Japan objected to this as being too near to Russian influence, perhaps because the Hague tribunal grew out of the Czar's suggestion. At any rate, Washington seems the logical place, and if the envoys can have the privilege of adjourning to some of the nearby seaside resorts when Washington gets too hot, the arrangement will be perfect. The President's part in this matter has been performed so easily and effectively that the various European powers are beginning to wonder why they did not think to do it. But it was in reality not such a simple matter to get the two belligerents even to the point where they would talk about talking about peace. Neither wished to weaken its standing in subsequent negotiations by appearing to take the initiative in making peace. The Russian foreign office, in response to the President's message, sent word that "as for an eventful meeting of Russian and Japanese plenipotentiaries charged with ascertaining how far it would be possible for the two powers to elaborate conditions of peace, the imperial government would have no objection in principle to such an attempt if the Japanese government expressed a desire therefor," and Japan suspected from this last phrase, that Russia was trying to put her in the position of making overtures for peace. But these difficulties have been passed, and the commissioners will meet. The present plan, it will be noted, does not call for a meeting of plenipotentiaries to make peace, but only for a conference to determine whether or not it is possible at present for the two powers to reach an agreement as to terms of peace. And by all of this the President's popularity goes up a few more points. The hardest task of his two administrations, will be to escape nomination for a third.

◆

That Boundary Line.

The triumph of international arbitration is about to be commemorated. The Alaskan boundary question is to the front once more, but not in the form of conflicting claims. A Canadian surveying party has started out to mark the boundary line, and the chief of the United States survey and his assistant accompany the Canadian party. It is intended to drill aluminum bronze monuments into solid rock on the mountain peaks that mark the line of demarcation. Monuments on a larger scale will be fixed in cement foundations in valleys and at river crossings. The value of soft words and hard arguments will now be commemorated in enduring metal.

◆

There is a great deal of wisdom in the remark of a speaker who, in referring to the attitude of many ministers to the matter of evangelism, said that preachers have of late been too much concerned with the treatment of an idea, forgetting the palpitating need of the men and women before them.

Divine Classification of Men—I.

It is the tendency of science to classify all objects, whether animate or inanimate, on the basis of essential likenesses. Modern botany, for instance, has torn up by the roots the old classification and made a new one. The same is more or less true of almost every department of knowledge. Instead of basing its classifications on superficial resemblances, science has gone down deeper to the essential characteristics, and classified accordingly.

Now, Christianity has done the same thing. It has made a new classification of men. Looked upon from the divine side men are not regarded from their racial differences, as Caucasians, Mongolians, Ethiopians, Malays or Americans; nor from their national distinctions, as Hebrews, Greeks, Romans, Germans, English, French, etc.; nor from their color, as white, black, red, or yellow; nor from their positions or callings, as kings, emperors, presidents, governors, generals, admirals, statesmen; nor from their politics, as monarchists, aristocrats, republicans or democrats; nor yet from their social, intellectual or financial standing. All these are classifications which men recognize and which count for much from the human point of view. But as God looks at men, he sees but two classes, and the distinction between them is vital and fundamental. In the language of Jesus, they are those who are "born from above," and those who have not been so born. In the language of Paul, they are distinguished as "the natural man and the spiritual man." They are otherwise variously characterized throughout the Bible.

Concerning this classification, Henry Drummond says: "The difference, then, between the spiritual man and the natural man is not a difference of development but of generation. It is a distinction of quality, not quantity. A man cannot rise by any natural development from 'morality touched by emotion' to 'morality touched by life.' Were we to construct a scientific classification, science would compel us to arrange all natural men, moral or immoral, educated or vulgar, as one family. One might be high in the family group, another low; yet practically they are marked by the same set of characteristics—they eat, sleep, think, work, live, die. But the spiritual man is removed from this family so utterly by the possession of an additional characteristic that a biologist, fully informed of the whole circumstances, would not hesitate a moment to classify him elsewhere. And if he really entered into these circumstances it would not be in another family but in another kingdom."

The distinction between the natural man and the spiritual man is thus stated by Paul: "Now, the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; and he cannot know them, because they are spiritually judged. But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, and he himself is judged of no man." Unfortunately, the antithesis is not brought out by the English rendering of the Greek terms. We have got to get back to the New Testament analysis of man, as consisting of a body (soma), soul (psyche), and spirit (pneuma). This is the New Testament development of the nature of man which is foreshadowed in the Old Testament, but which comes to clearer expression in the New Testament. In his work, entitled, "Man Preparing for Other Worlds," W. T. Moore states his position on this subject as follows: "The view maintained is that physical man was first 'formed' out of the dust of the earth, or out of existing matter, and the psychical man followed immediately, or after an interval of time which cannot be definitely determined, and that finally pneumatical man was 'created,' thus completing the trinity—body, soul and spirit—and endowing man with a gift from above, by which he had conferred upon him the image of God."—p. 6.

It is not easy to distinguish, always, between the meaning of the words soul and spirit, or between their Greek equivalents, and it may be said that they are sometimes used interchangeably. Nevertheless, it is clear, in the light of the whole of New Testament teaching on this subject, that this trichotomy, or threefold nature of man, is recognized, and that the soul stands midway between the body and the spirit. The natural man of Paul is the soulish or psychical man—the man who is not only without spiritual vision and insight, but who is under the dominion of the sensuous or material. The spiritual man, on the contrary, is one whose being has been brought under the dominion of the spiritual. He has been "born from above," and is able therefore to "see the kingdom of God," and to apprehend its spiritual realities.

"The mental side of the psychic man comes to view in this text; the intellectual rather than the ethical, not to the exclusion, however, of the latter, for between the moral and the mental there is a mutual relation and interaction. In this homo animalis the higher principle of life, the human spirit illumined and quickened intellectually and morally, does not dominate, has no activity, is dormant. He is one 'not having the Spirit' (James). Such a one does not receive, indeed cannot admit into—that which it has not—a prepared spirit anything that is of the spirit of God. He is psychic, not pneumatic; how can he entertain truths that are purely pneumatical?"*

We have here, then, what might be called the law of spiritual discernment. Only those who have spiritual sight, can see spiritual things. Nor is this a law peculiar to religion. It is a universal law that like apprehends like. The musical man alone can appreciate music at its best; the man with poetry in his soul can alone appreciate poetry, and only those having artistic taste or instincts, can understand or appreciate art; only those who love can understand God, for God is love. When Jesus said, "Except one be born from above he cannot see the kingdom of God," he uttered a fundamental and universal truth. The statement of Paul must be understood in the light of the saying of Jesus. What capacity or aptness has a man of the world, whose soul is steeped with that which is sensual and earthly, to appreciate the moral sublimity and spiritual beauty of "the things of the Spirit"? The kingdom of God, with all its spiritual principles and truths, is distasteful to him, and he has no capacity to understand it. He is Paul's "natural man." When he is brought to penitence and to a living faith in Christ, and is cleansed from his old sins, and is spiritually renewed and quickened, then he has a taste for spiritual things and capacity to receive them. He has become Paul's "spiritual man."

Other aspects of this subject will be treated in a subsequent article.

* * *

On Giving the Gospel Support.

"The question is often asked: What is the matter with the church? What is the matter with our missionary societies? What is the matter with our preachers? What is the matter with our Christianity? Our answer is that they are not enthusiastically and adequately supported. Give the gospel the support which it deserves and demands, and the word of the Lord will in every community run swiftly and be glorified. Increase the volume of life and devotion in all the channels of our manifold activities, and many a good cause now stranded will be carried into the desired haven." Dr. Charles E. Jefferson hits the nail on the head, though there are those who profess to follow very closely the Christ who may not agree with the preacher. And yet, even those who may object to "organized methods" of work must admit that their own ways of spreading the kingdom have something of a paralysis in them that is in no sense up to the standard of the imperative "Go, disciple all nations." Splendid isolation, as a system, is an utter failure, and in very many instances co-operation cannot be called a real success.

Dr. Jefferson's suggestion that the volume of life and devotion must be increased is the one solution of a problem that is before too many of our churches. Church support depends more upon the service of devotion than the service of money, though it is the money question which is most in the public ear. We have calls for money, incessant calls. Local work cannot be carried on without the preacher having the wherewithal to feed and clothe his children In the whirlwind pace at which we travel these days there are few men who, like the great apostle, can labor with their hands for the meat that perisheth and at the same time feed the flock of Christ with the bread of life. To-day, if at any time, the true laborer is worthy of his hire, and in the broader field of Christian activity money is a necessity. Our various missionary organizations need more of it. One "Day" after another has passed and the collections have been taken. On the whole we have made an advance. But who will say that the small amount the church extension board is asking for to complete a half-million endowment fund is at all adequate to the demands of the situation? We commend a recent remark of Mr. Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court of the United States. "If" he said, "we are so rich and strong that no man dares to lay hands on us, then let us meet our responsibilities like men, and use our riches and our strength to spread the church of Christ all over the world."

---

* Bible Commentary, in loco.

That is an exhortation to the point. But it will not be heeded to the extent needed until the sense of service opens the eyes of the blind. Many a man is rich, yet bankrupt! Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, speaking recently of the allurements of wealth, said:

"I remember with a sadness that has continued to this hour, the last interview I had with an old friend many years ago, whose millions ran up into the high figures, and whose life—and a long life at that—had been spent in the steady pursuit of dollars. With tears coursing downl his palid cheeks, he said to me: 'And what have I now to show for it all?' The horror of it was unspeakable. He was not a bad man. He was not addicted to vices of any kind. He was no thief—and his money, it is said, was all of it honest money. But his soul was empty—a clean soul, perhaps, but nothing in it. In his soul was no music, but the echo of the days that were gone. He had few friends with whom he could confer or commune, and he couldn't commune with himself—there was desperately little to commune with. His estate was worth a great deal, but he himself was worth very little. While outwardly a multi-millionaire, inwardly he was insolvent."

This man had no burden of duty to God and his work, and it is because there are thousands like him, whose souls may be clean, whose names may be in the church book, but who are not alive to a personal responsibility for service, that the church crawls onward. The weight of the church's welfare is not on the hearts of her people. Too many of her members think that God and the preachers, with a few good sisters and an elder or two, will do the work needed. We have not made up our minds whether those people who merely want anthems and sermons, even if they contribute something to the offertory, or those who want free baths and soup, add the more strength to a church. God does not stretch the line of our duty beyond the measure of our strength, but in his cause every man is wanted to bear some share of the responsibility. When every man feels that he is part of the machinery of Christ's church and has the love of God in his heart, the questions mentioned by Dr. Jefferson will never more be asked.

Notes and Comments.

"Too much dry goods for the women and too much wet goods for the men," is the way a southern judge paragraphs a cause of the divorce evil.

◆

All who have read after that genial author and public benefactor, Jacob A. Riis, will deeply sympathize with him in the death of his wife, whom he adored second only to his Maker. To say that she was the worthy wife of Mr. Riis is to pass a high eulogy upon her.

◆

Even Mr. John Morley, who has been charged—unjustly we may say—with wanting to write God with a little g, is compelled to say that at the bottom of political philosophy is social philosophy, and behind them both lies something more profound than either.

◆

We regret to learn that there has been a missionary uprising in Tibet and that four French missionaries have been murdered. We are glad to believe that this does not affect Dr. Rijnhart. We had a letter from her of recent date and she had left her station for rest in a lower altitude.

◆

"His only baggage is a well-worn Bible and a faded umbrella." This is a newspaper statement about an evangelist of the German Baptist church, who had walked a considerable distance to a convention, and preached en route. Of course he is regarded as eccentric, but it is a kind of eccentricity that we can tolerate. Food and raiment could be had by the way, but the book—the one book, as Sir Walter Scott called it—must be with the seeker after souls always, and with the thermometer at 96 in the shade, some of us see no eccentricity in that preacher's umbrella.

◆

The value of the personal element, even in the case of a child! A little girl who was converted during the Torrey revival at Cardiff, Wales, went to a revival meeting recently, and spoke to a man about becoming a Christian. He said, "I don't want to become a Christian." She said, "I want you to become a Christian, and I'm going to pray for you every day until you become one." He laughed, and said, "But you don't know my name." "Well," she said, "I am going to ask God to save the man with the corduroy trousers and the peaked hat." A few days afterwards the little girl received a card, which read as follows: "Dear Missy: God has saved the soul of the man with the corduroy trousers and the peaked hat."

◆

It was the misfortune of the Editor of this paper to be absent from the city during all the time of meeting of our Baptist brethren in their national anniversaries. We are gratified, however, to learn from reports of these meetings in our Baptist exchanges, that they were highly satisfactory, and that a very important step in the direction of the unity of northern and southern Baptists was taken. It was the formation of a new organization, not to take the place of either of the existing missionary organizations, but to consist of Baptists regardless of the former sectional division, that will hold its conventions after next year triennially. This is a splendid triumph of the union idea, and shows that, after all, our Baptist brethren do believe in union, if it does not ask too much.

◆

A little while ago it was in Kansas. Now a Roman Catholic in Kentucky has undertaken to obtain an injunction against the board of education in his town to prevent the reading of the English version of the Bible, the saying of prayers and the singing of religious songs in the public schools to which he sent his children. The decision of the court was against him, and it has been affirmed by the Court of Appeals, on the ground that his religious freedom under the constitution was not interfered with, since his children "were not required to attend these exercises nor to participate in them." Concerning the reading of the Bible, the court made this special decision:

> "The Bible is not of itself a sectarian book, and when used merely for reading in common schools, without note or comment by teachers, is not sectarian instruction, nor does the use of the Bible make the school house a house of religious worship."

◆

Our Congregational brethren are congratulating themselves on having safely passed through the discussion over Mr. Rockefeller's gift without any disruption. The Congregationalist and Christian World, referring to this matter, says:

> Sometimes differences emerge among Congregationalists concerning matters of conduct or administration which seem to indicate variance as to principles of Christian living. If Congregationalists were really opposed to one another as to essentials of conduct they would soon fall apart in organizations. But thus far it has been found, as soon as all parties could confer together dispassionately, that they were united in principles, and were disagreeing only as to the application of these principles. This already is being made plain in the discussion of the gift of Mr. Rockefeller to institutions under the care of the American board.

It would be a poor sort of union, indeed, that could not stand in the face of differences of opinion about a matter of practical administration, such as relates to the gift of Mr. Rockefeller. But we are glad indeed that our brethren of the Congregational order now regard that as a closed incident, and are going forward unitedly with their great missionary work.

◆

F. M. Wiley, of Indianapolis, referring to the revolution in Philadelphia, writes:

> You seem to overlook a fine example of the efficacy of prayer (when coupled with such strenuous "work" as boycotts, threats of hanging, etc.). In Philadelphia the church people, thousands of them, prayed for Mayor Weaver. The newspapers jeered and the boodlers made merry. But behold! The "grafters" are knocked out. And the mayor is transformed from a tool of "the gang" into a champion of civic righteousness. What the people prayed for is accomplished, anyway.

Brother Wiley does well to call our attention to this matter. We have not forgotten the prayers of the good people of Philadelphia for their mayor, but in our rejoicing over the victory which has crowned the efforts of the mayor, and the people who stood with him, we have not given sufficient emphasis to the fact that the prayers of Christian people preceded and perhaps made possible the change which has been wrought. The example ought to encourage Christian people in praying for those in civil authority. But, as in Philadelphia, so it must be in all cases, prayers must be accompanied by corresponding action in order to accomplish the desired result.

◆ ◆

Questions and Answers.

What is the word for baptize in the Latin Vulgate, Luther's German? Is the original anglicised in all the earlier English and Anglo-Saxon versions? L. E. MURRAY.
Indianapolis, Ind.

The word used in the Latin Vulgate is baptizo, while in that of the early fathers it is tingo. Luther's German is taufen, whose meaning is to dip. The Anglo-Saxon of the eighth century has two words, dyppan, and fullian, meaning to dip or clean. The English of the 1380 (Wyclif's) version uses wash, christen, baptize, while Tindal's translation of 1526 has baptize, but the Welsh, Irish and Gallic have bedyddio, baisdim, baisdeam.

Editor's Easy Chair.

A Methodist minister, reporting his church at conference, said it was "looking up." As it was known to be a hard charge, the bishop asked him to explain. The explanation was, "It is on its back"! The Editor of the Easy Chair is on his back to-day resting in a hammock under the friendly shade of the trees at Rose Hill. Not because he is sick, but simply because he is beginning his vacation at home and trying to be good as the doctor advises. It is not a bad position, this lying on one's back in a hammock under the shade of the trees on a glorious June day. One sees things, on his back, that he never sees otherwise. How high the blue sky arches above him, and the white clouds float like phantom ships on a phantom sea. These dear old trees out here at Rose Hill—the oaks, the elm, and the wild cherry—have often sheltered us from the heat in the summers gone by. They stood here when this place was part of a primeval forest and wild beasts, perhaps, have found shelter beneath them. But they are now doing duty for civilization. They are a favorite habitation for the birds which build their nests in their branches, and from which they sing their morning song. We thank the Lord for the trees. It is rest for body and brain to look up through their green branches to the blue sky which sheds its benediction upon us.

◆

Why is it that Nature is so restful to the tired brain and so soothing to the weary spirit of man? The trees, the grass, the birds, the green fields, the bending heavens, the floating clouds, all seem to breathe a spirit of peace and of restfulness. When we are wearied with the works of man, even of the most splendid monuments of his art and enterprise, we have but to turn away from them to find repose and peace in the work of Nature. Is it not because the Author of man is also the Author of Nature, and he has adapted the outer world to the inner? It was a poet who discovered that Nature "speaks a varied language." If we go to her in our sorrow she seems to fall in with our mood, and to speak the language of sympathy. If we go to her in times of gladness, when our heart is overflowing with happiness, then all the trees of the field seem to clap their hands with joy. If we go to her, wearied with the burdens and responsibilities of life, she seems to sing a lullaby to our wearied spirits, and woo us to rest. By all her myriad voices she seems to say to such a one, "Come to my bosom, weary child, throwing your cares and anxieties to the winds, and I will give you rest!"

There is something in this being out-of-doors that forces one to think of the relation between the Creator and his creation. These visible forms of life and beauty all existed in the thought of the Creator before they were brought into being. That graceful elm, from one of whose branches the oriole swings her nest, is but an embodied thought of God. And so is the oriole, whose variegated plumage and whose musical notes were in the mind of the Creator before they had any objective being. What infinite variety in the forms of these trees, and in their leaves! When one reflects that every object in Nature, from the mountain range or the ocean to the rose and the violet, existed in thought before it was created, he is led to exclaim with the psalmist,

> "O Jehovah, how manifold are Thy works!
> In wisdom hast Thou made them all:
> The earth is full of Thy riches!"

The 104th psalm, from which the above is a quotation, is perhaps the finest thing in human literature, in its appreciation of the works of God in Nature. The author seems to unite the eye of a scientific observer with the heart of a true poet. It will live and be admired as long as men love Nature and ponder on the greatness and grandeur of her varied phenomena.

◆

Speaking of these trees at Rose Hill, our plan is to change them for a while, dear as they are, for the pines of Michigan. There is a sultriness in the atmosphere, and a dizzy height in the temperature which are not conducive to comfortable rest or enjoyable work. Before these lines, therefore, shall appear in print, we hope to be listening to the music of the waves beating on the shore of old Lake Michigan, while we are fanned by the cool breezes which sweep over her watery plain. At the very time we had planned to start to the Missouri state convention, we are now planning to leave for the north. There may be something humiliating to one's sense of self-importance in the fact that his services can be dispensed with without appreciable loss in any great enterprise, but there are times when it is very comforting to feel assured that one may drop aside from active participation with his brethren in the work of the kingdom, without disturbing its successful ongoing. As in the heat of battle a wounded soldier is carried to the rear for rest and treatment, while his comrades close up ranks and move steadily forward, so it is and must ever be with the soldiers of the Cross. But even a soldier whose spent strength compels him to retire for a while from the firing line, may pray for the success of his comrades who are bearing the heat and burden of the day.

The Church's Joyful Experience

By William Elliot Griffis, LL.D.

Author of "The Mikado's Empire," Etc.

General William Tecumseh Sherman delared that it was far more inspiring to be in the battle front than at the rear of an army. Among deserters and shirks, there were only fears and news of defeat. At the van, the cheer and glow of action filled the soldier with hope of victory.

In a word, men feel and act according to their experience, which is the mother of our emotions and the director of our will. What Sherman proved in the nineteenth century, Paul, the file-leader of faith and progress, had already said in three words, "Experience worketh hope."

For "we are saved by hope." This is the real solvent, when rightly applied, of the great problems that confront us to-day. Take counsel of the shirks, cowards, and faultfinders at the rear, and the world appears to be going to the dogs or the devil. Stand among men and women of faith, in the battle van, with the great Captain of our salvation, and instantly it becomes a fresh morning. We are sure to win.

Sneaks, deserters and unbelievers tell us that Christianity makes no advance. It takes a million dollars to make one convert. Theology is no science at all. The oriental and occidental will never understand each other. War is to remain the procedure of nations. Poverty, race hatreds, economic wars and social tornadoes are to recur as regularly as the sunrise. After the war the Japanese heads will be too big for their hats and a "yellow" flood is to desolate the earth. To the one, the "sweet Galilean vision" "dies at the opening day." The other sees daily fulfillment.

Never, in all the world's history, more than at this moment, did experience make hope. Standing with the Nazarene, as he bids a handful of plain men go into all the world and make disciples of all nations, we look down the glorious procession of the centuries, to see his triumphs and his principles dominating the world by sure and steady progression. To-day, the leading races of the globe confess him, in name, at least, Master; while at least fifty per cent of all the moral forces in Japan, the most hopeful of Asiatic nations, are Christian. We, who began work with the Japanese thirty-five years ago, know this. Japan keeps step with the Anglo-Saxon nations.

Already there is a science of missions. It is seen that no nation ever became Christian without missionaries. Conversely, it is missionary effort that in every case has made Christian commonwealths. With God, what was, is; what is, will be. "The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." Let him who will not study early Christian and medieval enterprises look at what one hundred years have taught us Christians of America. For brevity, let us Americanize our subject.

It is not a matter of opinion, but a matter of fact, that men of our race, breed, and time, even the average man, can under God accomplish as much as the average apostle did. Suppose the whole story, not only of what Paul, Peter, James and John, but also of the other eight primitive missionaries, accomplished, were open to us. Would it show results any more wonderful than what those co-workers with God, Scudder, Judson, Williams, Nevius, Brown, Verbeck, McCartee, and hundreds of others, famous and obscure, have accomplished? I, for one, believe not; and this, for the reason that God is just as living to-day, his promises are as sure, his grace and help as powerful, as in ages ago. Nisi Dominus frustra.

Look at the leaven which one woman, Phoebe Brown, "took and hid in three measures of meal"—her son, Samuel, establishing the first Protestant Christian school in China, precedent if not parent of all others that are slowly but surely conquering China for Christ; intellectual father of the first woman's college ever chartered as such, and which, at Elmira, N. Y., is to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary this June, 1905; and who in Japan put the New Testament into the speech of that nation, which, in those special forms so attractive to Christendom, is substantially the creation of American missionaries and teachers. The Mikado of Japan subscribes not only a thousand yen to erect a memorial to Commodore Perry, but also ten thousand yen ($5,000) for the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in Manchuria. He has already decorated three American missionaries for good done to his people. Banzai!

To those who have eyes to see, experimental proofs show missions to be a science. This divine enterprise is more than ecclesiastical propagation. Send out priests, who employ as chief allies in the work of discipling the nations, only or chiefly the material and visible emblems of the corporation, pictures, icons, images, crosses, etc., and you gain one new set of adherents among many sets who do but little towards changing a civilization. But put the Word of God into the people's speech and make religion individual as well as communal, then you have new life, a new nation, a new civilization. This, the science of missions teaches as surely as chemistry foretells reaction. That great book on "Christian Missions and Social Progress" is to the student of nations what "Fresenius' Manual of Qualitative and Quantitative Analysis" is in the laboratory.

For example, here is a burning question—what was the supreme, vital element, out of the many, that has made the new Japan? Was it Bushido, the native genius, or the new spirit brought by the Christian missionaries of 1859, or already and previously working from the Holy Scriptures, which the secret students and the martyrs, like Takano and Yokoi, infused into the new civilization? In my opinion, there are not two sides to this question. The new spirit within the wheels of new Japan is the Holy Spirit. The imported leaven is the Bible. The Christ power, which filtered in before foreigners arrived, in pre-Perry days, and which has been openly preached less than forty-five years, perhaps we should say less than twenty-three years, has wrought Japan's moral transformation.

Yet let me not be misunderstood. The Christianity that is making and will make Japan, and will transform China, is greater than any sect, or church corporation, or name. It is the breath of the Spirit that bloweth where it listeth. No Christ in American or European garments will ever win Asia. It is the living Son of the Father, with the white hair of eternity and the eyes of eternal youth, that shall yet allure all, from the throne to the hut. Not dressed in English, or Yankee, or German, or Russian vestments, but in the golden girdle and the seamless robe, he is drawing the choicest Japanese spirits to him.

The church has a joyful experience of what is its chief aim—the matter of conversion, that is, in the new mind of man, in the transformation of nations, and of their resources, men, money, education, literature, art, music and all the refining influences of life. Experience is Christianity's chest of jewels, and her history is her precious robe of recognition. She begins with language, most wonderful of all human powers. She creates alphabets, makes grammars and dictionaries, constructs literatures, breathes the breath of life into what was of the earth, earthy, and makes a new informing spirit. She trains that wonderful instrument, the human voice, and in place of a jargon of sounds calls forth sweet harmony. Her hymn books used by tens of thousands in once pagan lands are singing unto the Lord a new song. A Christian literature is emerging, not only among all the lettered nations hitherto called rightly, or wrongly, "half civilized," but among those who once had neither alphabets nor books.

It is a scientific truth, and not mere sentiment, that the missionary spirit converts money to God's use. Wholly apart from the gifts outflowing from Christian countries are the many hundreds of thousands of dollars given annually for Christian schools, and hospitals and churches, by men who do not accept the dogmas of the church, but who see the fruits of Christianity. Of native Christians supporting their own churches and shaming us by the relative liberality of their gifts, there are thousands.

Missionary science is far ahead of popular notions and certain stupid mistakes which men of pride and office still foolishly cherish and commit. Alas for the intellectual owls and bats, whose judgments are formed only by gossiping tourists, newspapers, and phenomena, and forget the leaven working mightily!

It is the church's joyful experience that, in the reconstruction of theology, the Holy Spirit will abide with her and lead us into the way of all truth. In the adjustment of faith to ever-widening knowledge, and of creed to science so-called, and even spelled with a capital S, our generation is being kept in the holy hope and path. Throughout all the ages, amid the constant flux of opinions, in the coming and going of new religions, theories, hopes, fears, and philosophies that outgrow their own names, the path of holiness is the same as it has been from Abraham's day on. To see this clearly breeds healthy optimism. All the problems that vex and also develop us are included in the one question—how to get the Gospel of God into the hearts of men. Yet just here experience worketh hope. To be able to do, means first the belief that you can. So Jesus taught in both doctrine and life.

In a word, it is the church's joyful experience that sufficient unto the present, ample for the future, is the truth of the fatherhood of God. Rightly apprehended in Christ Jesus, it will show us, as individuals, what to believe and do. It will help us in civic and social tasks and burdens. It will assure us of the ultimate reconciliation of Oriental and Occidental man, and of the fusion of all civilizations into that one which is to be the kingdom of heaven on the earth.

Come, Lord Jesus!

Ithaca, N. Y.

The Head Center of Superstition

By William Durban

Once more I find myself in the land which is "the favorite of the sun," the epitome of history, the home of romance, and the fountain of art. Who can see Italy without experiencing day after day a series of emotions difficult to express? I write this article in the "queen of the hill cities" of central Italy, situated in the heart of the Apennines. Not only is Siena superbly beautiful in its position, but it is fascinating in its associations and enchanting in its aspect. In its center and on the highest point soars that cathedral which is considered by artistic connoisseurs to be a veritable dream in marble. This "Duomo" is the most perfect sample in the world of thirteenth century ecclesiastical architecture. One marvelous fact about it is that though so venerable among churches it looks, both within and without, as if it had been finished only to-day. It is built in alternating layers of black and white marble and so is sometimes called the "tiger-striped cathedral." And it is full of separate objects of especially exquisite designs, so that hour after hour the visitor may linger over the amazing details executed by the mighty sculptors of the middle ages. To Rome we go for antiquity, to Siena and Florence for medievalism and the early period of the renaissance.

The Ages of Blood and Fire.

There is just one unique characteristic of the teeming beauties in architecture, sculpture and painting of these Italian cities. It is the overwhelming presence of religion as the cardinal motive of these medieval creators. They lived in an age of terrific militarism. For hundreds of years these streets of Siena, as of scores of other Italian cities were the scenes of incessant faction fights and of intermittent slaughter. Every considerable city was the center of a separate small republic, and these republics were ever at war with each other or else engaged in civil strife. Beautiful Siena was the most turbulent of all these petty democracies. No clever leader knew at what sudden crisis he might become a victim of his opponents and be beheaded. To read the history of Siena is like wading through a chamber of horrors inundated with blood. And yet all through these dreadful epochs the Sienese were building up superb edifices which are to-day among the wonders of the world, and her chief magistrates and nobles were patronizing some of the greatest artists that have lived. The curious factor in the historic case is that the vast majority of the works which those artists produced are ecstatically religious. To look at Siena to-day, to study its churches and art galleries, one would almost think that it had been a heaven on earth. What accounts for this paradox?

The Faith That Blights.

The glorious old cities of Italy constitute, for all nations willing to be taught, an impressive object lesson. Siena, a great and powerful city in the middle ages, and a populous and wealthy one to-day, was at one and the same time excessively religious and frightfully licentious. Its cathedral was built as an honor to the Virgin Mary and was consecrated to the Assumption. It was the birthplace and home of that wonderful heroine of devotion and self-sacrifice, St. Catherine. But it has loaded the record of her beautiful life with details of unparalleled absurdity. The Sienese believed not only that the Savior in a vision married St. Catherine, but that he took her heart out of her body and placed his own within it. The dreams and ecstasies of Catherine were accepted as facts actually transacted. I have been visiting a remarkable town, San Gimignano, 30 miles from Siena, another of these grand old hill cities of Tuscany. Now, San Gimignano is called "the city of the fair towers" (la citta delle belle torri) because it contains 13 extraordinary towers which spring up from the palaces of the old nobles who were always at feud with each other within the city. There were formerly 50 of these towers in the city. The 13 that remain testify to the murderous "vendetta" spirit of the "good old times"! Now, the patron saint of this curious town was Santa Fina, a girl of 15. I have been looking at the paintings in the Capella di Santa Fina —her chapel in the old cathedral of San Gimignano. The pictures are lovely, but their subjects are prodigious! This saint was only a girl of 15 when she died of agonizing disease. Her nurse caught the malady but after Santa Fina was dead her hand moved and touched that of the nurse and cured her instantly. And the board on which she had slept partly burst into miraculous flowers. These are samples of the faith of papal Italy to-day.

Militarism or Sacerdotalism.

In Italy we see everywhere the priest and the soldier. The two chief curses are still resting on the land. Vast armaments are loading the nation with taxation and swarms of popish priests sustain the degrading superstition which once blighted all Europe. But nevertheless, when, after Garibaldi's successful revolution 50 years ago, Italy became united and free, the government repressed the convents and sent adrift nearly all the monks and nuns, and a new era of hope dawned. Rome, however, never sleeps, and quietly but determinedly she is struggling for absolute ascendency. She has practically lost the manhood of the nation; but she has kept a firm grip on the womanhood. This last fact is too little noticed by superficial observers. It is ominous enough. Let it be remembered that the men have not become Protestants simply because they have in the mass become indifferent to popery. What Italy needs to-day is a great evangelical mission. I believe the great missionary societies are mistaken in neglecting this wonderful field.

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

Recently I have had two Bibles given to me which have some historic interest. A friend writes: "I send you a book. It was called in the catalogue, 'The Campbellite Bible'; and being written by your Pope, it may have somewhat the character of an inspired book. I had never seen or heard of it before, and thought it would interest you." Opening the package I found a well preserved copy of "The Sacred Writings of the Apostles and Evangelists of Jesus Christ, commonly styled the New Testament, translated from the original Greek, by Doctors George Campbell, James MacKnight and Philip Doddridge, with prefaces, various emendations, and an appendix by A. Campbell," third edition, with the declaration: "Printed and published by Alexander Campbell, Bethany, Brooke Co., Va., 1832."

Of course I was familiar with the volume, a copy of it having been on my shelves for many years and used with some degree of diligence. Mr. Campbell's prefaces are of special value. His arguments for new translations; his comments on passages that are obscure because of the changes in language, and on sectarian translators, and on the advancement of learning; his luminous setting forth of the purpose of the different books and his hints to readers; his instructions as to the Acts of apostles and comments on the epistles, lend great interest to the volume. Then the appendix prepared by him is very useful to the reader. Here are tables with proper names found in the New Testament, rightly accented and etymologically explained; geographical index and chronology; tables of time, measures, precious stones, coins, sects and offices, words and phrases of difficult meaning, spurious readings, prophetic symbols; then critical notes of rare excellence and apostolic words and phrases which have been subjects of controversy, defined from their current acception in the Christian Scriptures. All these helps are admirable for the ordinary reader, and show a breadth of learning and an insight into the meaning of the Scriptures that were peculiar to Mr. Campbell. This, however, is the extent of his original work on this version and in no sense could it be called "The Campbellite Bible."

The translators are well known Presbyterians. Dr. George Campbell, of Aberdeen, Scotland, principal of Marischal College, opponent of David Hume, author of the Philosophy of Rhetoric, "to which there is nothing superior; perhaps nothing equal, in our own, or any other language," noted as a man of great piety, profound and varied learning, and eminent critical sagacity, translated the gospels. James MacKnight, for thirty years a minister in Edinburgh, author of many works, made the translation of the epistles. Philip Doddridge, the celebrated writer of "The Rise and Progress," and the "Family Expositor," taught by his mother the Old and New Testaments before he could read by the Dutch tiles in the chimney corner, a man and a preacher peculiarly qualified for so exalted a service, was their co-laborer. It would be difficult at any period of the church to bring together three men of such intellectual and spiritual fitness for this task and the result of their labors is fascinating and instructive reading for any student and lover of the holy oracles.

A. Campbell's sense of the publisher's responsibility is well expressed in the closing words of his preface: "If the mere publication of a version of the inspired writings requires, as we think it does, the publisher to have no sectarian object in view, we are happy in being able to appeal to our whole course of public addresses, and to all that we have written on religious subjects, to show that we have no such object in view. We have disclaimed, and do again disclaim, all affection or partiality for any human system, creed, or formulary under heaven. Believing that all sects have gone out of the apostolic way, and that every sect must go out of the way, for Christianity is in its nature hostile to each and to every sect, we will not, we cannot, we dare not do anything to the erection of a new one, or assisting any now in existence in its human appendages. As to any predilection or preference to any one now existing, we have none, farther than they hold the traditions of the apostles. As far as they hold fast these, we hold with them; and when they desert these, we desert them. Besides, we have no aversion to, or umbrage against, any one more than another. We oppose them most who most oppose and depart from the simplicity that is in Christ. I do must solemnly declare that, as far as respects my feelings, partialities, reputation, and worldly interest as a man, I would become a Presbyterian, a Methodist, a Quaker, a Universalist, a Socinian, or anything else, before the sun would set to-day, if the apostolic writings would, in my judgment, authorize me in so doing; and that I would not give one turn to the meaning of an adverb, preposition, or interjection, to aid any sectarian cause in the world."

Some passages as they read in this translation are given here. Matthew 28:19, 20: "Jesus came near and said to them, All authority is given to me in heaven and upon the earth; go, convert all nations, immersing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all the things which I have commanded you: and behold! I am with you always, even to the conclusion of this state." John 3:3-5: "Jesus answering, said to him, Most assuredly, I say to you, unless a man be born again he cannot discern the kingdom of God. Nicodemus replied, How can a grown man be born? Jesus answered, Most assuredly, I say to you, unless a man be born of water and Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God." Acts 2:38: "Brethren, what shall we do? And Peter said to them, Reform and be each of you immersed in the name of Jesus Christ, in order to the remission of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

My second Bible is a present from one of Uncle Sam's servants and is entitled "The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth Extracted textually from the gospels, in Greek, Latin, French and English by Thomas Jefferson," and bears the imprint of the Government Printing Office. It is gotten up in beautiful style, red leather tooled in gold, and one wonders why several thousands of the people's money was expended in its publication, and what business Congress had with it anyway. It is a curiosity, and that is all. Jefferson in his correspondence makes frequent mention of this book. Texts were cut out by him from printed Greek, Latin, French and English Testaments and pasted in a blank book in 1816. His idea was to compile a book "which would be valuable for the use of the Indians." "I, too," he writes from Monticello, Jan. 9, 1816, "have made a wee little book which I call the Philosophy of Jesus; it is a paradigma of his doctrines, made by cutting the texts out of the book, and arranging them on the pages of a blank book in a certain order of time or subject. A more beautiful or precious morsel of ethics I have never seen; it is a document in proof that I am a real Christian, that is to say, a disciple of the doctrines of Jesus." He writes to John Adams: "We must reduce our volume to the simple evangelists, select even from them the very words only of Jesus, paring off the amphibologisms into which they have been led, by forgetting often, or not understanding, what had fallen from him, by giving their own misconceptions as his dicta, and expressing unintelligibly for others what they had not understood themselves. There will be found remaining the most sublime and benevolent code of morals which has ever been offered to man. I have performed this operation for my own use, by cutting verse by verse out of the printed book, and arranging the matter which is evidently his and which is as easily distinguished as diamonds in a dung hill. The result is an octavo of forty-six pages." He cuts out the miracles of Jesus and the accounts of his resurrection. "Jefferson's Bible" has the appearance of a child's scrap book.

Was Jesus a Divine Healer?

By L. A. Chapman.

The idea seems to prevail among some good people that Jesus was a divine healer, and that the miracles generally of the New Testament have ceased on account of a decline of faith in the church.

I believe this idea, which seems to be rampant in certain quarters, is utterly fallacious and destructive of the highest interests of the kingdom of Christ, wherever it gains the ascendency over men's minds. Let me remark, first, that Jesus came to this world not to be a divine healer of our physical maladies, but that his sublime mission and purpose in this world was to establish his kingdom in the hearts of men and women. True, as he marched to his goal, like a king in progress to his throne, his sympathy was aroused for suffering humanity, and he stopped to perform his works of mercy in the outer circles of human life. Jesus did not come to heal the paralytic, but to forgive his sins and establish in his heart the reign of heaven. His mission was to the inner life of man. His miracles were the tolling of the bell to bring the people within reach of the subtler influence of his teachings and example. He came not to heal men of leprosy, but of that of which leprosy was only a type—the greatest and deepest of all diseases—the fearful malady of sin.

Let me remark, second, that the miracles of Jesus were wrought by divine power, and not by manipulating any of the laws of nature. The human mind may discover many things by reasoning from cause to effect, but the fact of divine power is alike beyond any scheme of manipulation and the analysis of the scientific mind. The causal relation between the command of Jesus and the resurrection of Lazarus is utterly beyond the ken of the human mind. Both Christian Science and faith cure would make the miracles of Jesus simply a forgotten art—something which may be restored to the church upon the proper exercise of faith or the deductions of a certain kind of science.

It seems that both Christian Science and faith cure doctors have singled out a particular form of Christ's miracles, and affirm that there is no reason why these things should not be done on the earth to-day. I refer to the healing of physical disease. But Jesus did more than heal the sick. By that same divine power he unstopped the deaf ear and gave sight to the blind and raised the dead. Moreover, the winds and the waves obeyed his voice, and demons came out of individuals at his call. Now, all of these different forms of work have been performed under the same category of divine power.

If the power of divine healing is to be restored to the church to-day through more faith, why not the power to give sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, and life to the dead? Why single out the power of healing and affirm that this may be restored to the church? Why not say that after awhile these divine healers and Christian Science folk will be raising the dead? Did it require any more divine power upon the part of Jesus to raise Lazarus from his tomb than it did to cure the paralytic? Certainly not. Then why do these so-called divine healers stop short of the raising of the dead, and giving sight to those born blind? There is only one answer, and that is that here there is no chance for jugglery. It is "either put up or shut up" in a case like this, and so they usually try to avoid such quarters.

God still has the power to heal disease, and I know of no evangelical body of people who have ever denied this. We all believe that God hears and answers prayer to-day as well as formerly. Have we not been instructed by the apostles to pray for the sick with the assurance that God hears and answers such prayer? Who has ever denied this? As a people, we may say, "Lord, increase our faith," but we have always believed that the Lord heard our prayers and that the sick were healed. "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of," but saying this is one thing and affirming the doctrines of the divine healers is quite another thing. Jesus we know, and Paul we know; but who are these people, that they should claim to be the special favorites of heaven, and to have discovered the secrets of the wonderful power of God?

Let me remark, thirdly, that the miracles of the New Testament had a purpose, and when that purpose was fulfilled there was no longer any necessity for them. A miracle is an extraordinary (supernatural) event, the product of God's immediate presence and activity, and a sign to men of a moral and spiritual significance. The nature of the Biblical miracles is to make obvious, by some extraordinary occurrence, the presence and the power of the supernatural in the natural, of God in the world, for the purpose of furthering his plans of justice and grace. These works were the credentials of the Legate of heaven to a sin-cursed and dying world.

Some one has said that everything begins in miracle, but is afterwards perpetuated by the laws of its own being. Is it any wonder then that Christianity was initiated into this world by the use of miracles?

But I must close this article with a single quotation from W. N. Clarke's "Outlines of Christian Theology":

"It is held by many that the cessation of the miraculous gifts of the Spirit was due to spiritual decline in the church, and that they would return

(Continued on page 805.)

* * *

A WORKING BRAIN

Can be Made Successful on Right Food.

A busy man in one of America's largest watch factories tells how by change of food he gained a clear brain and steady nerves and averted a mental and physical breakdown. He says:

"I was accustomed all my life to the ordinary diet of the average table. I thought that meat, potatoes, and other vegetables and fruit were necessary, and that tea, coffee and pastry in moderate quantities were not injurious.

"But I found, in course of time, that my dietary was affecting my health seriously. For four years I continued to run down. In time my nerves became seriously affected, they seemed constantly keyed up to the highest tension, and I became subject to the most violent bilious attacks which used to leave me in a weak and nervous condition for several days. The climax seemed to have been reached a few years ago, when I found myself about as near a physical wreck as a man could well be, and live. Physicians, tonics and other medicines, visits to the country, etc., etc., were of no avail.

"In sheer desperation I concluded, a few months ago, to see what effect a diet of Grape-Nuts food would have. I had often heard of it, but had little hope it would help me. I at once cut out all the heavy dishes with the tea and coffee that I had always used and began to eat Grape-Nuts with cream and a pinch of salt. Afterwards, I added fruit, with occasionally an egg beaten up in milk, and entire wheat bread. This has been practically my diet for more than two months.

"I found that with the new diet I gained complete relief almost immediately from all the distress that used to follow every meal, my bilious condition was speedily regulated and cured, my nerves have grown healthy and steady,—in short my run down constitution has been reconstructed and built up. As to the effect upon my mental powers, I have only to point to the fact that I have recently been placed in a responsible position in our establishment where complete concentration of mind is required to deal with complicated records and reports, and that I have been able to keep my accounts absolutely correct, which my numerous predecessors uniformly failed to do.

"I think these things speak volumes in favor of Grape-Nuts food as a nerve and brain builder. I ascribe all my improvement, mental and physical, the fact that I am possessed of steadier nerves, a clearer brain, a fine appetite, and have gained healthily in weight, to the cutting out of heavy food and the systematic use of Grape-Nuts food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Letters From a Retired Minister

Dr. Prentice is in receipt of a very brief letter from his nephew, in which he announces his approaching marriage to a young woman of his congregation. The young man writes among other things that she is "good and sensible."

Los Angeles, June 15, 19—.

My Dear Nephew:—Last week my doctor delivered his ultimatum in regard to my writing any more letters for the present. Yesterday when he came I had just opened your note, and when I told him its contents he softened a bit and said I might answer it. So you are to be married and so soon as October at that! Candidly, I shall have to confess that you haven't surprised me a bit. I've been expecting some such news for at least a month. When a young fellow as careful and methodical as you usually are, forgets to seal an envelope now and then, and goes so far as to leave out a page of his letter, something is surely up. That's what you've done recently. And I don't remember just how many times you have reminded me that you are getting wretchedly tired of boarding. So, as I said before, I'm not surprised, but I am pleased. I congratulate you both most heartily. While I haven't the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with this niece-to-be of mine, I like what you say about her—"good and sensible." That's all right! That's fine! A preacher's wife needn't be beautiful, or able to speak in public, or especially accomplished (of course it is a fine thing if she is), but she ought to be, by all means, "good and sensible."

My memory plays truant just here. My mind goes back to the years when I was in my first pastorate in the Sunny South. I recall the day I told one of our elders—a dear old man he was, too—that I was thinking seriously of getting married. I had, I should add, kept the secret pretty well, and it seems he was at sea as to the young woman in the case. We were driving along the turnpike one perfect day in June, when I mentioned the matter to him. The old man looked at me soberly and said ever so earnestly: "It'll either make you or break you." Then I told him who my bride-to-be was, a girl reared near by him, the daughter of a beloved neighbor, a girl loved by all who knew her for her sweet, womanly ways. Tears came into his eyes and he said simply, "She'll make you." She did, Will! Whatever success has characterized my ministry is due to her. I look on her gracious face as it smiles down on me from the wall and for the hundredth time I thank the Great Giver of all good gifts for Mary. But to return to your letter, I note that you say this particular young woman happens to be a member of your flock at Belleview. If I mistake not you intimate that perhaps this is unfortunate. Why so? Has that old saw about the preacher who marries from his congregation seeking a new pastorate, been worrying you? Is that the rub? There is very little if anything in it. It depends on the preacher and, of course, on the kind of a wife he selects. I don't think you need worry at all. I repeat it, I like what you say about this girl's being "good and sensible." It's a good thing to fall in love head first. Some fellows, you know, fall in heart first—a pretty doll face does the whole business. Then there are others who fall in pocketbook first. I think you've fallen the right way.

There is a lot of nonsense gotten off about the preacher's wife and the position she fills. To hear some people talk one would think that a minister's wife must of necessity be a sort of paragon of leadership in every department of the church work. Now, the truth is, any young woman who is "good and sensible," who does the best she can to keep her husband going and growing and the babies minded will be acceptable to most congregations. When Dr. Evans was called to the First church, Boston, he preached for them, and after the sermon said something like this: "I accept this call on one condition, and that, that you expect no more of Mrs. Evans than you do from any other wife and mother in this congregation." Well, Evans went there, and when some years ago he resigned to accept a call to San Francisco the hardest thing that church had to do was to give up little Alice Evans (I knew her as a school girl), sweetly domestic, yet ever ready to befriend and bless. Yes, Will, I am very glad that you are going to be married. I feel sure that your ministry will be richer and more effective thereby. I want you to get Dr. Cuyler's "Recollections of a Long Life." It is filled with good things and what he has to say on page 290 and 291 about the preacher's wife will be specially interesting to you just now. Dr. Cuyler himself was graciously blessed in this very particular and when in his twenty-fifth anniversary sermon as pastor of Lafayette avenue church, Brooklyn, he made tender allusion to his wife, for the first and only time his audience burst into applause. No wonder! May such a union be yours.

I do not know when I shall write you again. Perhaps never! But I want you to write to me as you have the inclination and opportunity. You and that "good and sensible" girl will have a large place in my life these waning years. Perhaps I had just as well tell you that I have bequeathed you the remnant of my library of some 1,500 good, solid volumes, together with some pictures and souvenirs. My heart goes out to you both in love and fervent wishes for your ministry.

My charge to you is that of Paul to Timothy in the second Epistle 4:1-5:

"Now unto him who is able to guard you from stumbling. And to set you before the presence of his glory without blemish and exceeding joy. To the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and power, before all time, and now and forevermore. Amen."

Affectionately your uncle,
William Prentice.

P. S. I will send you Cuyler's book.
W. P.

* *

FEED YOUNG GIRLS

Must Have Right Food While Growing.

Great care should be taken at the critical period when the young girl is just merging into womanhood that the diet shall contain all that is upbuilding, and nothing harmful.

At that age the structure is being formed and if formed of a healthy, sturdy character, health and happiness will follow; on the other hand unhealthy cells may be built in and a sick condition slowly supervene which, if not checked, may ripen into a chronic disease and cause life long suffering.

A young lady says:

"Coffee began to have such an effect on my stomach a few years ago, that I was compelled to quit using it. It brought on headaches, pains in my muscles and nervousness.

"I tried to use tea in its stead, but found its effects even worse than those I suffered from coffee. Then for a long time I drank milk alone at my meals, but it never helped me physically, and at last it palled on me. A friend came to the rescue with the suggestion that I try Postum Coffee.

"I did so, only to find at first, that I didn't fancy it. But I had heard of so many persons who had been benefited by its use that I persevered, and when I had it brewed right found it grateful in flavor and soothing and strengthening to my stomach. I can find no words to express my feeling of what I owe to Postum Food Coffee!

"In every respect it has worked a wonderful improvement—the headaches, nervousness, the pains in my side and back, all the distressing symptoms yielded to the magic power of Postum. My brain seems also to share in the betterment of my physical condition; it seems keener, more alert and brighter. I am, in short, in better health now than I ever was before, and I am sure I owe it to the use of your Postum Food Coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

"What Hath God Wrought!"

A BIT OF HISTORY

By S. K. HALLAM

The Missouri state convention met, in 1876, with the church in Canton. During the sittings of that convention the writer offered a resolution that a committee be appointed to consider the matter of a church extension fund and report at the next convention. The resolution was carried unanimously without discussion, and the president, T. P. Haley, appointed J. H. Hardin, John B. Corwine and S. K. Hallam as the committee.

The next session of the convention was held in Columbia, when the committee reported endorsing the church extension idea, emphasizing its importance and recommending that the matter be referred to our national convention for its consideration and action. To what extent, if at all, this resolution and report influenced the final action of the American Christian Missionary Society, in establishing the Board of Church Extension, is not known. But it is worth remembering that seven years before the organization of the board, that for which it stands had received public recognition in two of our Missouri conventions. While Cincinnati, Ohio, is the place of its birth in organized form, yet our extension board has but come home to the place of the birth of the idea, in making its headquarters in the grand old commonwealth of Missouri.

But as we look over the twenty-nine years since that resolution was offered, at the marvelous growth, the potency for good into which it has developed, the language of Baalam, as he saw the glory of the people whom he had been called upon to curse, "What hath God wrought!" springs unbidden to our minds. The old prophet who desired to curse, yet was compelled to bless, looked again and exclaimed, "How good are thy tents, O Jacob, thy tabernacles, O Israel!" The prosperity of a nation is in its homes. When the pioneers of civilization go out to the conquest of some new region, the "prairie schooner" must give place to the "dug-out," or "shack." The home cannot remain on wheels and be permanent. Then may follow the cottage, the village, the city—civilization. In pioneer work in the evolution of the church, there may be of necessity, a place for the wheel-age—the migratory period—from the home of some saint—to halls, school houses—but before permanent success comes the church must take root. Better a "shack" or tent on some well located lot, than the finest hall or the best equipped gospel car that indicates nothing of permanency.

Looking back over forty years of personal experience, what lost opportunities, for the lack of the church extension idea in tangible form! All eyes are now turned to the Pacific coast, the scene of the writer's earliest ministry. In 1864, there was and had been for several years a congregation of Disciples in Sacramento City. Sometimes it met in a hall, sometimes in the home of Brother Garrett, the faithful elder, sometimes in the senate chamber. Our strongest men, Pendegast, McCorkle, Martin, Burnett, preached there from time to time, but with little permanent success. What was the difficulty? Other churches with the help of their board in the east, established church homes. We were wanderers. A quarter of a century of splendid effort lost!

In April, 1868, the writer organized the first church of the Disciples in San Jose, occupying the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. After a season of success it was kindly intimated that, the Y. M. C. A. being undenominational, we must look elsewhere for a place of meeting. Then began a period of migration. Some of the members migrated to other localities in the new state, and the church migrated from hall to hall. With no possibility of permanence, no mission board, the writer was compelled to give up the effort that began with such bright prospects of success. Could our extension board have stepped in with help toward a lot and a modest house, we might to-day have been the dominant factor in the religious forces of that beautiful valley.

Robert Graham, the peer of any man on the Pacific coast in scholarship and pulpit ability, and without a peer in his knowledge of the word of God, spent a year preaching to a handful of people in one of the best halls in San Francisco. But it was just a hall. It is doubtful if he ever preached to a hundred people at any one service. Wasted energy! No! God lets no energy in his service ever go to waste—and the churches about the bay that are to entertain our national convention in August, are at best partly the fruits of his consecrated labors. But what streams of influence might have been set in motion could we have had a pulpit like that occupied by T. Starr King—the Beecher of the Pacific coast. Lost opportunities!

But lost opportunities are thicker to-day than ever before Opportunities are everywhere. Those that we fail to use are lost. A quarter of a century hence, our children will wonder at our shortsightedness. They may call it by a stronger name. Opportunities! San Francisco is a better mission field than it was fifty years ago. All the cities of the coast await our coming. The east has not been touched. The south is an open door. The great west with its new civilization is ready to receive our plea. "For the lack of a nail, the kingdom was lost." For the lack of your pennies and mine, if pennies measure our ability, your dollars and mine, or hundreds, or thousands, if God has so blessed us, the reign of the Christ shall be restrained another generation. A half million dollars by the close of the current year! How it will help in the conquest of the world for our King! What are you going to do about it?

Do this now. Write Brother Muckley that you will make the offering yourself, and that you will see to it that your church has the opportunity to make an offering worthy of the cause we profess to love. Then remember the first Lord's day in September.

Denton, Texas.

* * *

The Old Baptist Meeting-House, New Lisbon, Ohio.

By C. C. Redgrave.

One of the most interesting landmarks of the nineteenth century reformation is the old Baptist meeting-house at Lisbon, O., now used as a private dwelling. It was in this building that the Mahoning association of Baptist churches met in August, 1827, and among other items of business, appointed Walter Scott, "the very Chevalier Bayard of the reformation," as evangelist to labor among the churches within its bounds. Here also was convened the first of the "annual meetings," so popular after the dissolution of the Mahoning, Stillwater and other associations in the Western Reserve.

Our deepest interest in this building, however, centers in the fact that it was the scene of the "first practical and successful exhibition of the gospel as preached in primitive times." This was on the 18th of November, 1827. "Every seat in the meeting-house was filled at an early hour, and every foot of standing room was occupied, and the doorway blocked up by an eager throng."

At the conclusion of Scott's sermon on Peter's confession (Matt. 16:16) and while he was urging his hearers to an immediate obedience to the inspired injunction: "Repent and be immersed every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, in order to the remission of sins," Mr. Amend, a pious Presbyterian, entered the church. This earnest student of the word had, by private and independent study, reached the conclusion that remission of sins was by obedience to Christ through immersion. He had often prayed that he might hear the gospel in these same words—as Peter preached it. And when Scott cried, "The scriptures no longer shall be a sealed book. God means what he says. Is there any man present who will take God at his word and be baptized for remission of sins?" Mr. Amend pressed his way through the throng to the preacher, publicly

(Continued on page 805.)

Our Budget

—Iowa's jubilee convention and a special Drake celebration will have right-of-way, beginning to-day, June 22.

—We call special attention to an article in our Family Circle department entitled "What a Pastor Sees of Christian Science." Here is something from the life.

—Next week a "San Francisco Convention" number! But that number will not exhaust the glories of the Pacific coast. There will be more to follow. Then July 6 our annual education number. Let the colleges report at once.

—We conclude, for the present at any rate, the series of "Letters from a Retired Minister." That they have given eminent satisfaction is evident by the inquiries that have been made as to their authorship. Now that this series is completed we have pleasure in giving full honor to Edgar D. Jones, a minister who has by no means retired, but is the respected, beloved, and still youthful pastor of the Franklin Circle church, Cleveland, Ohio.

—L. G. Ament has left Detroit, for Texas, Sweetwater.

—Barton G. Riggs, of Salem, Ore., is suffering from continued ill health.

—A new church has recently been organized at View, Wash., by A. D. Skaggs.

—A fund has been started for the erection of a parsonage at Saratoga, Cal.

—We hear of frequent additions at Los Gatos under the ministries of Brother Jope.

—W. A. Hill, of Hill City, Kan., will enter Drake university at the next session.

—D. F. Harris has resigned at Arcadia and will take up the work at Montpelier, Ind.

—H. H. Hubbell, of Leon, Iowa, after three years there, will engage in work in the northwest.

—Harry Minnick, of Lubec, Maine, is in Ohio considering a call to that part of the field.

—We hear good reports of the work T. S. Handsaker and wife are doing on the Pacific coast.

—I. H. Teel, who recently left Canon City, Col., for Eureka, Cal., has just closed a successful two weeks' meeting at Hydesville, that state.

—H. W. Schwan has gone to locate with the Highland Park church, Chattanooga, Tenn.

—C. E. Pile has resigned after five years of ministration for the First church at Parsons, Kansas.

—The pulpit at Blandsvillle, Ill., is being supplied for a while by A. L. Ferguson, of Macomb.

—Waitsburg, Wash., will build a new church this summer if men for the work can be obtained.

—D. R. Bebout is to give the chief address at the dedication of the Carnegie library at Effingham, Ill.

—The new church at Eldorado, Ia., will be dedicated early in July. As remodeled, it will cost nearly $7,000.

—A new parsonage has just been erected at Davenport, Wash., where work is prospering under O. J. Gist.

—P. E. Hawkins has taken charge of the work at Kensington and Agra, Kan., for half time at each place.

—Theo. E. Fritz has just been appointed to the chair of vocal music of the State normal school of Oklahoma.

—J. B. Smith, who has been pastor of the church at Bethany, Va., since last September, has decided to relinquish the work about July 1. He has not determined whether he will leave the state.

—We regret to state that Carey E. Morgan has undergone another operation and his condition is very serious.

—R. A. Smith takes up at once work in North Carolina, where there is need of other promising young men.

—S. J. Homan is open for an engagement, having resigned the superintendency of mission work in Cedar Rapids, Ia.

—H. W. Laye has been called to the First church, Evansville, Ind., which has been pastorless for a couple of months.

—Oliver M. Olds, of Hillsboro, Ore., has accepted a call to Wishart, Mo. His post office address will be Bolivar.

—L. L. Carpenter will dedicate the new church at Pendleton, Ind., June 25. Carl VanWinkle, Irvington, labors there.

—The northern California brethren will hold their state convention at San Francisco immediately before the national convention.

—W. A. Ward's pulpit at New Albany, Ind., is to be filled by Frank T. Porter, who has been state evangelist of Michigan.

—It is somewhat suggestive when we find a correspondent reporting that he is "glad to find the brethren still living in peace."

—The Bismarck aveuue church, Indianapolis, has called V. L. Parker of Traverse City, Mich., and he is now on the field.

—The church at Summitville, Ind., where Chas. E. Underwood is pastor, raised more than its apportionment for children's day.

—Our churches in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia take their offering for missions in these provinces the first Lord's day in July.

—The seventh district Sunday-school and missionary convention of Kentucky, is meeting with the First church, Covington, this week.

—Our congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Herbert Hanna on the birth of Gordon Errett Hanna, May 1, at Laoag, Philippines.

—Dean Hulbert of the Chicago university divinity school, has just been delivering a series of lectures to the Bible college of Drake university.

—It is expected that a new house of worship will be erected at Colorado City, Col., in the near future. R. W. Moore is the minister there.

—O. E Hamilton, of St. Louis, Mo. and J. P. Garmong, singing evangelist, of Des Moines, Ia., dedicated the new church at Elbert, Col., June 11.

—One of the finest churches in Indiana will soon be dedicated at Connersville, and it is contemplated to hold a meeting following the dedication.

—F. J. M. Appleton, of Pictou, Nova Scotia, who tendered his resignation last December, to take effect July 1, has decided to accept a call to Lubec, Me.

—Prof. I. B. Grubbs, whose health we are glad to know is improving, has been given a year's leave of absence from the Bible college, Lexington, Ky.

—There lives at Glen Easton, W. Va., Samuel Hanan, who was baptized by Thos. Campbell. We regret to hear this old Disciple has been quite ill.

—Brother Farris, editor of the Christian Courier, has just had the rather novel experience of marrying a couple of mutes. Of course, he had to have an interpreter.

—The church at Rushville, Ind., becomes a living link in the Foreign Society and will support its own missionary on the foreign field. W. W. Sniff is the pastor.

—J. L. Haddock, who has been serving as general evangelist under the Louisiana state board of missions, will in the future devote his time to general evangelistic work.

—W. L. Shearer and wife of the North Side church, Chicago, will summer in Colorado. A prolonged rest is demanded by the condition of Brother Shearer's health.

—The estimated cost of the new building at Huntington, Ind., is $25,000, and the contract for its construction is about to be let. It is to have a seating capacity of 1,500.

—J. M. Streator, president of the West Virginia ministerial association, has resigned his work at West Liberty where he has for some years ministered successfully, and will remove to Texas.

—J. E. Powell, who has lately been in the evangelistic field, assisted by his wife, and who was formerly pastor at Wabash, Ind., has, according to an exchange, embarked in business at Bloomington, Ill.

—We note that Pres. Henry Churchill King of Oberlin College is to take part in the same summer school of theology at Berkeley in which Prof. H. L. Calhoun of Kentucky university is to give a course of lectures.

—Bro. J. C. Mason has issued a call for help to support Bro. J. M. Martinez, who is an educated, capable man, and has proved himself consecrated in the work amongst the Spanish speaking people of Texas.

—Work on the new church at Bethany, Ill., is proceeding satisfactorily. The hope is to dedicate the first Sunday in August. Forty-four have been added to the membership there since S. E. Hines took charge a year ago.

—The brethren at Palestine, Texas, have decided to erect, at an early date, a new house of worship. The matter has been discussed for several years, but under L. D. Anderson, the energetic pastor, the day of action has arrived.

—We have a card from C. R. L. Vawter saying that the statement that he had resigned at South Meridian street, Indianapolis, is a mistake. We published the news of the resignation on what we regarded as equally good authority.

—F. M. Rains will dedicate the splendid new church building at Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 6. J. H. McNeill, the pastor, and the whole church are to be congratulated upon the construction of a new building so soon after the destructive fire.

—Miss Mary Robertson, Topeka, Kansas, has been chosen as a teacher and mission worker of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions in Monterey, Mexico. Topeka has furnished the work in Mexico with two most capable workers, Miss Irelan and Miss Robertson.

—S. G. Inman, of Ft. Worth, Tex., who has been sent by the C. W. B. M. to Monterey, Mexico, to care for the pastoral and evangelistic work of the mission, took up his charge on the tenth of this month. Jasper T. Moses has been placed in charge of the educational work of the mission.

—Through G. L. Reeves we learn that John S. Sweeney, of Paris, Ky., has just delivered a series of nine sermons to the Tabernacle congregation at Columbus, Ind. Their theme was the distinctive features of the church of Christ, and the report is that they were convincing, and delivered in Brother Sweeney's happy vein.

—J. A. Holton has been unanimously elected president of the evangelical ministers' association of Hattiesburg, Miss. There are a dozen or more churches in this prosperous city, and this is the first organization of the kind. Such an action on the part of the ministers at this special time shows great deference to the plea set forth by our newly organized church, and no little respect for its recently chosen minister. With the completion of our proposed building the cause in Hattiesburg will be on the highway to permanent establishment and rapid growth.

—The first annual camp meeting is being held at Pine Grove on Upper Touchet, Wash., and will be addressed by J. B. Daisley, evangelist, and others.

—We regret that the deleting of several words in a paragraph in our evangelistic column last week under Richland, Mo., gave a wrong impression, two ministers being confused. The paragraph is correct as it appears this week.

—Miss Carmi Hostetter that was has married a Presbyterian and severed her active connection with our Foreign Christian Missionary Society, but she proposes to keep on doing as much good as she can in Japan.

—In our last issue we stated that Missouri gave to foreign missions $16,651.08 from June 1, 1904 to June 1, 1905. The corresponding period in the previous year the receipts were $14,225.15, so that there is a gain, although not a great one.

—A card from D. W. Connor, of Savannah, says his church has voted to pay his way and expenses to the state convention—a thing that church has never done before. We trust that many other churches will have acted in the same sensible way.

—P. C. Macfarlane, of Alameda, Cal., has announced a series of sermons in story on the "Life of the Church in the Second Century." This is an intensely interesting period of church history and we are sure that Brother Macfarlane will make his story-sermons tell.

—Next year, if the number of our ministers who have been selected to preach baccalaureate sermons compares in any degree with the number who have been selected this year, we will have to start a special column in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, mentioning the preachers by initials only and allowing our readers to guess "who's who."

—H. O. Breeden had just returned to his work at the Central church, Des Moines, when he was summoned to the paternal home where he arrived in time to be with his mother, while she passed to the great beyond. Some account of Sister Breeden will be found in our obituary columns. The readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST will extend sincere sympathy to our brother in this trial.

—We learn from one of our exchanges that the Rev. F. E. Dark, pastor of the Congregational church at Roland, near Hamburg, N. Y., and many of his people are soon to be immersed by one of the Buffalo pastors. We give the report for what it is worth, and trust that it may be true. We might suggest that so interesting an item of news might well have been telegraphed to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

—The brethren at Coffeyville, Kan., have decided to raise their building and finish a basement where the Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor and social meetings will be held. This will be a great improvement. Ellis Purlee, the pastor, has just completed a residence for himself. He has held this charge for four years, and since Jan. 1st., 1905, thirty-four have been added to the membership.

—John Ray Ewers received the divinity degree from the University of Chicago at the June convocation. Brother Ewers is pastor of the Irving Park church, Chicago. His congregation has had a very prosperous year under his guidance. About forty have been received into the church; $700 has been paid on the church debt; a $400 vocalion has been installed; the property put in fine repair, and $325 given to missions. Two were baptized at the prayer service Wednesday evening. Two others of the fifteen receiving the B. D. degree are Disciples. A. W. Fortune is a Hiram graduate and assistant pastor of the Metropolitan church, Chicago, while H. F. Burns is now acting as office editor of the Christian Century and supplying at the North Side church, Chicago.

—Owing to protracted sickness in his family H. C. Patterson, evangelist, of 40 N. Ritter avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., has been kept at home for almost three months. The sick are now convalescent and he is ready to resume work as an evangelist. He begins his fall campaign in Kentucky. He could hold one meeting before July 21. He has visited the model church, Portsmouth, Ohio, and preached and lectured to thousands.

—Miss Mary Kingsbury, for twenty-three years a missionary of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions in Bilaspur, India, is now in the home land. She has visited friends in Hiram, O., and spent some time at the mission rooms in Indianapolis, as the guest of Mrs. N. E. Atkinson. She will visit Chicago and Minneapolis and then go to Butte, Montana, to spend the summer with her sisters. She will attend the national convention in San Francisco.

—Geo. A. Webb and J. F. Ghormley, who have been holding a meeting at Hillsboro, Ore., recently took a meal with an old lady 118 years of age. She crossed the plains in 1852, when she was 64 years of age, now has her third eyesight, and during the last six months a new tooth has made its appearance. Now, then, who of the "old guard" will hesitate to go to the national convention? Let the brethren out there tell us where are the fountains of eternal youth.

—The young preachers who go to the eastern universities after completing their courses at our own schools, are evidently not losing interest in the things in which our people are most concerned. Two recent graduates of Butler college took the B. D. degree at Yale this year. The subjects of their graduating theses at Yale were: "The Church as an Evangelistic Agency," and "Union Tendencies in American Protestantism." These men are James Walter Carpenter, who has accepted the pastorate at Uniontown, Pa., and Raymond A. Smith, who will be professor of Biblical literature in Atlantic Christian college Wilson, North Carolina.

—It is the desire of the faculty of the Missouri Bible college to be as helpful as possible to all lines of Christian activity in the brotherhood of the state. During the school session, of course, the class work in Columbia claims most of the time of the instructors, but through the summer months Dean Lhamon, Professor Sharpe and Doctor Moore will be glad to spend such time as they can where their presence may be desired and they suggest that institutes lasting from two to three days be arranged for at various points, and efforts be made to induce preachers and church workers to attend. In this way the influence of the Bible college may be extended and many of our brethren throughout the state come into touch with men who are experts in Biblical teaching.

—W. B. Taylor's resignation of the pastorate at Ionia, Mich., was a surprise to the congregation there. As we have already announced, Brother Taylor has been elected vice-president of Bethany college, and he gives up his present work about Sept. 1. He has accomplished much where he now is, having added something like 175 to the church membership in the three years that he has been at Ionia. The congregation has agreed to release him and moved a vote of confidence and an expression of love and esteem on the part of the church membership. Prior to his work at Ionia Brother Taylor was successful in establishing churches at Belding, Saranac and Battle Creek. All of these are well housed, with church property valued at $30,000, and represent an addition to our cause of 350 members.

—Our National Benevolent Association has just received notice of being made one of the legatees of Sister Mary C. Melvin, lately deceased, formerly of Augusta, Ill. It is hoped the good example of this faithful woman will be more generally followed by people of means, and that the Lord's poor will receive "a child's part" from testators who are also Disciples of Christ. Secretaey Geo. L. Snively, St. Louis, has had years of probate experience and will draw wills free of charge for all contemplating bequests to the association.

—David H. Shields, pastor of the Christian church and mayor of the city of Salina, Kan., has just received a call to remain with the church for two years. The custom has been to extend the call for a year at a time, but on this occasion the proposition covers two years. This is the tenth call since Mr. Shields came to Salina fresh from college. The church has been very prosperous under his ministry. Four hundred and nine new members have been received into the fellowship. The capacity of the church has been doubled and he has acquired and held the confidence of his people, according to the Evening Journal of Salina, to a degree that is seldom seen. "They know so well his worth, his integrity and his supreme purpose to do good for all men, that whatever mistakes he makes are lovingly forgiven at once. At the same time it is conceded, by all the members of the church who are acquainted with the facts, that his judgment with reference to the general business and policies of the church is rarely, if ever, wrong."

—C. G. Stout, of Des Moines, one of the evagelists of the I. C. C., organized a church of 43 members at Jewell Junction, Ia., June 11, as the result of a nine weeks' meeting. Jewell Junction is a live town at the crossing of two important lines of the C. & N. W. R. R. and is the seat of a Lutheran college representing several states. We had a few people there, most of them long out of the harness, and there was a Methodist Protestant church which had found it difficult to get a preacher and had tried to unite with the Congregationalists. Meeting with little encouragement, they gladly gave Brother Stout the use of their house and their co-operation for a meeting. He preached six weeks before making any move toward organizing. The new congregation includes nine Disciples, out of active work from four to forty years, three Baptists, eighteen from the world and the rest members of the former M. P. church—all but about half a dozen—who bring with them by unanimous vote their church property, as good as any in the town, and it is hoped that they will all soon be with us. They have a good board of officers, an aid society, Sunday school, Christian Endeavor and means to support a pastor full time, and easily stand second in numbers and strength among the six churches in the place.

POND'S EXTRACT

THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR

Quick Relief

is given to cuts, burns, sprains and bruises by prompt use of Pond's Extract. Cooling, soothing, healing.

Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of seventy samples of Witch Hazel—so often offered as "just as good"—fifty two were found to contain wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both. To avoid danger of poisoning insist on having

THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR

POND'S EXTRACT

Promised Contributors to Church Extension.

The effort of the board of church extension to secure a list of at least 2,000 churches that have promised to take the annual offering is meeting with quick response. As stated in these columns two weeks ago the object of the board is to get a list of at least 2,000 churches promised to take the offering, and report this list of promises at the national convention, since no September offering can be reported. The preachers who have not responded should hasten to do so at once, and thus assist the board in making a creditable report at San Francisco in August.

Here is the list by states of promised contributors up to Wednesday, June 14. There should be a healthy rivalry among the states in rolling up the largest number:

Alabama............	2	Manitoba	1
Arkansas............	2	Montana	...
Arizona	...	Nebraska	8
California...........	8	New Jersey..........	...
Colorado............	5	New Mexico	...
Connecticut	1	New York	3
Dist. Columbia....	1	North Carolina.....	...
Florida	1	North Dakota	...
Georgia	6	Ohio	23
Idaho	...	Oklahoma...........	1
Indian Territory...	2	Oregon	..
Illinois	32	Pennsylvania........	2
Indiana...............	15	South Carolina.....	...
Iowa	10	South Dakota	...
Kansas	15	Tennessee	...
Kentucky	7	Texas.................	...
Louisiana	3	Utah	...
Maine	...	Virginia..............	...
Maryland	1	Vermont..............	...
Massachusetts.......	...	Washington.........	...
Michigan	1	West Virginia......	...
Minnesota	2	Wisconsin...........	...
Mississippi	1	Wyoming............	...
Missouri..............	...

Letters enclosing mailing cards were not sent to the following states in time for their responses to begin to reach us: Missouri, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

G. W. MUCKLEY, Cor. Sec'y.
600 Water Works Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

* * *

Ministerial Exchange.

Charles E. McVay, of Benkelman, Neb., is open for engagements as song leader and soloist after July 4.

There is an opening for a hotel keeper who is a member of the Christian church, at Lewisville, Minn. For further information address W. J. Pettis at that place.

The church at Girard, Ill., desires an evangelist to hold them a meeting in September or October, the latter month being preferred. Address J. Windbigler, stating terms and giving references.

E. E. Violett, Shelbyville, Tenn., desires a first-class song leader to assist him in a meeting beginning August 27, and continuing several weeks.

H. E. Carpenter would like to preach for churches within one hundred miles of Canton, Mo. Salary $500 a year. He may be addressed care Box 115, Sheldon, Mo.

James W. Zachary, Lexington, Ky., desires to locate as minister of some strong church. He can be secured to hold revival meetings in Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah, and California. Address, Box 303, Lexington, Ky.

Chas. M. Fillmore, of Cincinnati, commends Miss Ida Mae Hanna as singing evangelist. She expects to attend the convention in San Francisco and would like engagements for meetings in the west before and after the convention. She may be addressed at 837 Kenyon avenue, Cincinnati, O.

The church at Appleton City, Mo., desires a preacher to fill the vacancy made by Edward Owers who commences work with the Farmington, Mo., congregation July 2. The pastor's time has been divided between Appleton City and Osceola. Address F. H. Miller, Appleton City.

Wm. G. McColley has just begun his third year with the church at Pontiac, Ill. During the past two years the Sunday-school and church membership has doubled, and a $15,000 building has been erected which will be dedicated August 27. Brother McColley would be glad to hold a meeting or supply pulpit during July and part of August.

A church in a town of about 2,000 inhabitants, with good schools, electric lights and water works, in western Montana, desires a pastor. Salary $800 a year. Address H. L. Carter, care CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, giving references.

"I would like to get into touch with a brother who is able to buy out a job printing office and run a county paper in a city of 10,000 inhabitants—splendid climate and good school advantages." Address S. M. Bernard, Boulder, Colorado.

The people at Urbana, Ill., want a preacher for half time. Near-by churches may employ the remaining time.

Ernest J. Bradley, minister of the First Christian church at Smithville, Texas, will be open for meetings during July and August. Churches desiring his service should write him at Smithville.

* * *

School for Evangelists and Pastors.

The Bethany assembly school for preachers this year will take on the form of regular class and round table exercises, while the Bible lectures will still be continued. Some of the most successful pastors and evangelists have been secured.

The school will open on Monday, July 31, and in connection with the state ministerial association, will continue until August 8. Some of the teachers in this school have been engaged to teach in a similar school at the Chautauqua assembly, New York, July 8-19.

L. L. CARPENTER, president.
Wabash, Ind.

* * *

Yale's Bible Work.

The summer classes designed to aid all persons engaged in a serious study of the Bible and in active Christian work will begin at Yale university July 6 and continue until Aug. 17. The courses are so arranged that they may be completed in three weeks. The work is nonsectarian. Professors Kent, Porter and Stevens are the lecturers and their subjects—The Hebrew Prophets, Introduction to Biblical Literature and History, The Teaching of Jesus, The Epistles of Paul and the Christian Doctrine of Salvatton. Particulars will be fully furnished, upon application, by Prof. E. H. Sneath, 135 Elm St., New Haven, Conn.

* * *

The Foreign Society's Gain.

Good news comes from the office of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society. The total receipts for the first 15 days of June amounted to $22,483.12, a gain over the corresponding 15 days, 1904, of $5,075.19. The Sunday-schools contributed $16,381.26, a gain over the corresponding 15 days of last year of $3,299.24. There was also a gain of 135 contributing schools.

The total receipts for foreign missions for eight and one-half months, that is, from Oct. 1 to June 15, amount to $156,676.76, or a total gain for eight months and a half of $37,051.52. A gain now of only $1,629.80 between this and Sept. 30 insures the quarter of a million dollars. It must be remembered, however, that last year there was a number of large gifts for the India Bible college during the last months of the missionary year. It will be necessary for the friends to do their best to overcome these large contributions of last year and make the necessary gain to reach the required amount. We are encouraged, however, to believe that all will join heartily in making good the quarter of a million dollars.

* * *

Further Offerings of Children's Day.

Washington, D. C.—Our Sunday-school raised $305 50 on children's day, which is the largest in the history of the school. Over 1,000 in attendance; 669 in the Sunday-school.—James E. Nichol, Supt.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Our offering exceeded $1,000. Apportionment $700.—Jas. M. Irvine, Supt. First Sunday-school.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Central Sunday-school apportionment $35. Send $115.—Virginia Kelly, Supt.

Winchester, Ky.—Our Sunday-school yesterday reached its apportionment, $100, and, I think, went some beyond it.—Cecil J. Armstrong.

Youngstown, O.—Our apportionment was $125. Collection this morning over $170.—V. C. Thompson, Central Sunday-school.

* * *

Changes.

Oliver M. Olds, Hillsboro, Ore., to Bolivar, Mo.

C. H. Mattox, Clarion, Ia., to Albany, Mo.

A. B. Jones, Liberty, Mo., to Macatawa Park, Mich.

T. P. Haley, Kansas City, Mo., to Macatawa Park, Mich.

O. M. Pennock, Des Moines, Ia., to Weiser, Idaho, Box 22.

Reuben W. Blunt, Lucerne, to Newtown, Mo.

D. F. Harris, Arcadia, to Montpelier, Ind.

F. E. Mantle, W. Farmington, to Garrettsville, Ohio.

W. E. Reavis, Pueblo, Col., to Bevier, Mo., R. F. D. 1.

S. G. Inman, Ft. Worth, Tex., to Monterey, Mexico.

O. E. Pickett, Ann Arbor, to Shepherd, Mich.

H. S. Earl, Irvington, Ind, to Macatawa, Mich.

Jesse B. Givens, Mt. Home, Ark., to Epling, Va.

* * *

Wanted in Texas.

One person in each county to gather statistics of the Christian churches in that county, on blanks furnished for the purpose. Would like volunteers for this work. If you are willing to do this, write me to-day, stating about the number of congregations in the county, and a supply of blanks will be sent you. This is a very important work and one that we have neglected too long as a people.

CLEMENT FEW,
Statistician for the churches of Christ in Tex.
Paris, Tex.

The College of the Bible

Lexington, Ky.

Thorough historical and exegetical courses in the whole Bible, together with the usual classical and scientific courses in Kentucky University.

Scholarships to supplement the resources of indigent students who prove themselves worthy of help.

Both Men and Women Received.
Rates of Tuition and Boarding Inexpensive.
Next Session Begins September 11.
For other information address,
J. W. McGARVEY, Pres.

How the Work Grows

A Call for Help from a Gateway to the Tropics

The Disciples of Christ have become a great brotherhood. From a mere handful to nearly a million and a half; from one small strip of territory we have spread east, west, north and south; we have crossed the seas, planted our missions in the dark places of the earth; we have invested the islands of the seas. In nearly every part of the civilized and uncivilized world, each week sounds out from our churches the gospel of Christ, and the plea for the New Testament order. In our own country there are but few large cities where we have not a foothold. There ought to be none at all. But even in these places where we are weak, or have no churches at all, a few faithful ones are lifting up their hearts to God in prayer for help, and pleading with us to come and assist them in planting churches that are simply Christian. One of the really distressing things is our inability as individuals, or as missionary societies, which simply act as disbursing agents for churches and individuals, to answer all of the calls for help, and to enter all of the doors that are open to us. The writer of these lines fully appreciates the situation that to-day confronts us. The calls come thick and fast. Ripe fields are everywhere awaiting the harvesters. Truly the "harvest is great, but the laborers are few." Our missionary societies cannot do all for lack of funds that ought to be done for any one of our great neglected cities. Their gifts must be widely scattered. They must spread over the whole of our great country. Our Board of Church Extension should have a million dollars at its disposal, and our home board should have an income of a million a year. Then the work could at least partially be done. The very fact that our boards are crippled for lack of funds, makes it necessary at times to appeal to the brotherhood for help at some specific point. It is either make this appeal, receive help from churches and individuals over and above what the boards can do, or miss a great opportunity to plant our cause permanently in some city of great strategic importance. Several instances will come readily to the readers' mind—Washington, D. C., and Jacksonville, Fla., for instance. It is the writer's judgment that such appeals be made only when all other resources have been exhausted, and when the importance of the field justifies it. As pastor of the church in Mobile the writer hoped to avoid the necessity of calling on the brotherhood at large for help. We labored and sacrificed, exhausted every resourse, but, with it all, and the generous help given by our mission boards, we find that we must, in order to finish our house of worship, ask the brethren and churches more fortunately situated to come to our rescue.

THE "BUGGY SHED," WHERE THE BRETHREN HAVE WORSHIPED.

Now as to the city itself, Mobile has 60,000 people. The census does not say so, but the Mobile Register, one of the most conservative papers of the south, puts it at that. The city is growing very rapidly. The prospective opening of the Panama Canal has brought an influx of people from the northern and western states. Money, as well as people, is pouring in. Conservative people predict a population of 100,000 within the next 10 years. Mobile Bay affords one of the prettiest and safest shipping harbors in the world and Uncle Sam is spending vast sums of money in deepening the ship channel out to the gulf. Mobile has five railroads, 14 steamship lines, good electric system, the purest water of any city of the world, many strong banks, good schools, well paved and sewered streets, in fact is a modern city in every respect and is pushing ahead in improvements, keeping pace with the increasing population. The first effort to plant a Christian church in Mobile was about 30 years ago when J. H. Allen, of St. Louis, was a resident of Mobile. He had T. B. Larrimore, of Florence, Ala., come and hold a meeting. Brother Allen and a pressman on the Register were the only members living in the city. The meeting did not result in the organization of a church, and soon after Brother Allen moved away. No other effort was made until about eight or ten years ago. W. H. Mevers, a Mobile boy, went to Texas to find his fortune. He found that fortune in Jesus Christ, as proclaimed by one of our preachers. He became a member of the church, was delighted with our teaching, and determined to make an effort to plant a church in Mobile. To this end he went to Kentucky university. Completing his course in the Bible college he set out for Mobile, secured a large tent, planted it in Washington Square and began preaching the simple gospel he had learned so well and loved so much. Many came to hear him. He baptized his father and mother. Possibly 60 persons, many of whom had formerly been members of the church, banded themselves together. Brother Mevers could not stay, for lack of support. The little body of believers met first in one place, then in another, and finally, after a struggle of nearly two years, all meetings were discontinued. Seemingly the second effort had failed. But the seed had been planted and the harvest was destined to appear after a while. Soon after the congregation ceased to meet, possibly 18 months, J. W. Henry of the Equitable Life Insurance Society came to Mobile. He at once set about gathering the members together. But some had moved away, some had grown indifferent, and only a few could be persuaded to take up the work. Brother Henry secured S. R. Hawkins, the state evangelist of Alabama, for a meeting. This was held in the Y. M. C. A. Bldg., and at its close a reorganization was effected. After the meeting the congregation, generally 12 to 15 in number, met in the lower room of the Y. M. C. A. each Sunday for prayer and communion. Many times there was "much water" in this room, but no one to baptize. The brothers and sisters would put their feet on boxes to keep them out of the water. After a year of this a few conceived the idea of inducing the Extension Board to purchase a lot. B. L. Smith stopped off on his way home from the Florida convention. He met with the members in Brother Henry's home. On his return to Cincinnati he indorsed the application for a loan to purchase a lot. The loan was granted and a corner lot on Government street, the southwest corner of Government and Dearborn streets, was bought for $4,000. Government street is the residence street of Mobile; it is wide, has asphalt pavements now and is very beautiful. Our location is ideal. Last fall we could have sold this lot for $7,000 cash. A few days ago one of the best judges of real estate in Mobile told me our lot was worth $10,000. The Jews have paid $18,000 for a lot one block below ours. On the lot a plain pine chapel was created. It was cheaply constructed as a temporary place of worship. In this chapel the few members met from Lord's day to Lord's day, with Bible lesson, prayer and communion. They had no preacher, and little hopes of one, but they were faithful. They took all of the missionary offerings. I am told that the membership averaged $25 per year each for the support of the gospel. And yet they had no preacher for themselves. But the Lord rewards the faithful. First the Board of Extension gave them a roof under which to worship. Next the home board gave them a preacher. The writer came to Mobile and preached first in the CLAUDE E. HILL, THE PASTOR.

(Continued on page 803.)

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

The Kentucky University Reunion and Commencement Exercises.

The closing exercises at Kentucky university this year, were more memorable than usual. In connection with the annual commencement exercises, there was held the reunion of old students and alumni in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the removal of Kentucky university from Harrodsburg to Lexington, and its union with Transylvania university.

The reunion was all that had been anticipated. Fully five hundred "old boys" assembled again on the campus or in old Morrison chapel to renew friendships, indulge in reminiscences, and to enjoy again the commencement exercises at old Kentucky university. Among these old students were men from all vocations of life, and many of them came from high places in their different professions.

Reunion features were made prominent in the open session programs of the three literary societies which had been organized as early as 1865, the Philothean, the Periclean and the Cecropian. The first of these to be given was the Philothean, which came on Monday evening, June 5. On this program, in addition to the three students of to-day, were R. E. Moss, '01; Howard Cramblett, '94; and R. M. Giddens, '72.

On the Periclean program on Tuesday evening, the "old boys" were: Judge J. H. Stover, '65, of Milwaukee, Wis.; R. E. Moss, '01; Hon. Charles J. Bronston, '65; M. L. Lockhart, '65, and first president of Periclea; and Gov. Benton McMillan, '65, of Tennessee.

On the Cecropian program on Wednesday evening, the old students were: Enoch Grehan, Joseph Severance, William Clarke and Gov. McMillan, of Tennessee. The old students who appeared on these different programs gave stirring addresses, indulged in reminiscences or told jokes of by-gone days, all of which made the open sessions a very enjoyable feature of the closing exercises.

On Tuesday, June 6, the commencement exercises of the College of the Bible were held. There were twelve graduates. In the classical course were: A. C. Finley, Kentucky; T. J. Golightly, Illinois; J. T. McKissick, Texas; J. C. Ogden, Kentucky, and W. D. Willoughby, Indiana. In the English course were: E. B. Bourland, Kentucky; A. F. Hensey, Ohio; L. E. Lakin, Missouri; R. L. Mobley, Tennessee; M. J. Ross, Virginia; N. L. Sims, Indiana, and R. L. Simpson, Kentucky. W. D. Willoughby gave the salutatory, S. T. Willis, A. M., of New York City, delivered the principal address, and A. F. Hensey delivered the valedictory.

The anniversary exercises proper were held on Wednesday. Prof. A. R. Milligan gave the "Story of the Institution." Hon. Z. F. Smith gave "Personal Reminiscences." Dr. E. L. Powell discoursed on "The Present Status of the University," and Rev. Hugh McClellan told of "The Outlook." These exercises were largely attended and after the speaking was over, the women of the Christian churches of Fayette county gave an open air dinner to all who were present. True Kentucky abundance, true Kentucky hospitality and true Kentucky enjoyment of the good things of life, characterized the dinner. Class day exercises were held Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday morning, June 8, the commencement exercises of the College of Liberal Arts were held. Thirteen received degrees. A. P. Finley, Kentucky, and A. J. Hargett, Kentucky, received the master's degree. The A. B.'s were: D. D. Cline, Kentucky; Miss Carrie Etta Goff, Kentucky; H. M. Hall, Indiana; M. L. Hurst, Texas; L. E. Lakin, Missouri; J. T. Lawson, Mississippi; Miss Marie Ingram Phillips, Kentucky; J. E. Reid, Kentucky; J. B. Scearce, Kentucky; J. T. Vance, Jr., Kentucky, and W. D. Willoughby, Indiana.

The salutatory was delivered by L. E. Lakin and the valedictory by M. L. Hurst. Prof. H. L. Wheeler of Chicago university delivered the address to the students. It was considered to be one of the most masterly addresses of the week. Pres. A. E. Alderman of the University of Virginia was to have delivered the address to the graduates, but the serious illness of his wife prevented his doing so. President Jenkins was fortunate in getting Professor Willett to take Dr. Alderman's place.

The alumni dinner on Thursday afternoon closed the exercises of the week. At this dinner, President Jeakins was toastmaster and presided in his usual graceful and happy manner. Gov. McMillan, of Tennessee; Judge J. T. Hazelrigg, of Frankfort; Judge Lyman J. Chalkley, dean of the new Kentucky university law college, and others, responded to toasts.

The baccalureate sermon, delivered Sunday afternoon, June 5, was pronounced by all who heard it, one of the choicest pieces of pulpit oratory ever heard in Lexington. Geo. V. Combs, of Kansas City, Missouri, delivered this sermon.

The year at Kentucky university, which has just closed in the manner described above, has been most successful. The attendance has been twenty-five per cent above last year. The work done has been of a high order. Financial prospects are bright.

W. T. Donaldson, the financial agent for the College of the Bible, reports $93,000 of the proposed $100,000 additional endowment to the College of the Bible raised, and thinks the remainder will be raised this month. Through the goodness and generosity of Mrs. Garth, the wife of the late Claude L. Garth, about $110,000 of the Garth estate, all of which, after her death, will go to the Garth educational fund for the education of worthy young ministerial students, will be turned over to this fund at once. This amount, with the $20,000 given to this fund before the death of Mr. Garth, will enable many young preachers to complete their education, whereas in the past they might have been compelled to leave college on account of lack of money.

At the conclusion of the reunion and commencement week, President and Mrs. Jenkins left for Europe, where they will spend the summer. This trip comes as a fitting close to a year of good work by President Jenkins.

Lexington, Ky. E. B. B.

◆ ◆

A Yankee in the Old Dominion.

After last writing I visited Bristol, Va. This city is in two states, but you can't see where Virginia stops and Tennessee begins. I spoke there April 27 on home missions. Bro. W. P. Crouch and some of his flock from the Tennessee side were over. Wm. Burleigh returned from Altoona, Pa., and again took up the work at Bristol, Va., the following Lord's day. I was entertained in the beautiful home of J. B. Lyon. He has two brothers preaching in Kansas, all of them were educated at Milligan college. The German Baptist brethren will hold their national yearly meeting at Bristol this year.

Next night I spoke at Blacksburg. On account of the serious illness of his wife Bro. E. B. Kemm, minister there, was not able to be present. The congregation is young. The Virginia polytechnic institute there has a fine plant, and about 600 boys in attendance. About 100 attend the Christian church each Lord's day. Dr. Ehart was mine host.

Saturday found me in Lynchburg. Bro. F. F. Bullard kindly entertained me and showed me around. Lynchburg is a city on the hills. The church has completed the Sunday-school room and has a good lot on which to complete the building. The main Sunday-school room was filled on Sunday morning, with some in the annex. One of our brethren has a fine business college near by. In the afternoon I had the privilege of addressing the Virginia Christian college. Bro. Josephus Hopwood gave me a cordial welcome. They have enrolled about 180 this, the second, year, and he is planning for better things in the future. I believe it will be a great benefit to the young, and to the cause of Christ. Last year hundreds were gathered into the kingdom through the efforts of students. The great meeting in which A. C. Knibb was the leading spirit is an evidence of its good influence in Lynchburg already. About 500 professed faith in Christ within the limits of Lynchburg, and a congregation of three hundred worship in the new building erected on Park avenue. I spoke there at night to a house full of people, and this church, which had not begun one year ago, on the first Lord's day in May took an offering for home missions.

Monday night I was at Scottsville. Here Dr. Barclay, once missionary to Jerusalem, lived and worshiped. The Lord's table in front of the pulpit is stationary, patterned something like the table of shewbread, a plan, I believe, of the Doctor's. I received an offering for home missions. Prof. Z. P. Richardson preached for them last summer. They had no preaching during the winter. I met Brother Richardson at Lynchburg, and found him most cordial. Scottsville has five churches; like other small towns in Virginia each church has its Sunday for preaching, and no other church is expected to have preaching on that day. About the same people make up the congregations at each service, and I told the people if it were not for the preachers I believed they would all be one church in reality. This condition is a strong appeal for Christian union.

A very pleasant part of my experience was the calm and kindly spirit in which brethren would talk of conditions and experiences of war times. I spoke at Mizpah in Goochland county Tuesday night. Here Brother Mills told me how the northern soldiers took the riding horse that belonged to his father. Afterward another commander to whom his mother told the story said, "We have a nice riding horse that has gone lame. We will leave it for you." It was the riding horse for many years.

At Forest Grove J. M. Jennings and Brother Parrish delightfully entertained me. The latter has been prominent in politics, but good natured with his opponents, and the former in the midst of a tobacco country has cleaned his own mouth of "the weed." I found a sentiment growing in the minds of some Christians in Virginia that a Christian could be in better business than raising it. I dropped some remarks to encourage the dissatisfaction. It is said the Standard Oil Co. makes more profits out of the wastes than from the refined oil, so many toilet and other articles are manufactured therefrom. I asked the people just to give us the wastes for home missions. Think of $600,000,000 wasted every year in America for tobacco, and the character of so many young men degraded by the deadly cigarette.

A large congregation assembled at Holly Grove, the church that gave us our Bro. W. S. Hoye. Dr. J. M. Anderson, a leading spirit here, had been very ill and was not able to attend. Brother Loyal preaches, although not fully recovered from a fever. Bro. A. N. Perkins, a former teacher, met me on the way and kindly took me to his home. He jokingly called me a Yankee, to which charge I pleaded guilty, although in my home in Ohio we thought the Yankees lived only in New England. South of Mason and Dixon's line all persons north of it are called Yankees and across the Atlantic the name is applied to all Americans.

At Salem church I was kindly entertained at the home of Brother Meredith, and Saturday went to Macedonia in Orange county. Here I had my home with Bro. Lit Jackson, who drove me in the evening to Unionville where I spoke to a house full of people at night, the last service of my itinerary of seven weeks in the Old Dominion. H. K. Martin kindly entertained me.

At Macedonia an offering of over $30 was taken for home missions. They expect to reach their apportionment of $40. This church is famous for its generosity. They like to tell a good story on our good Bro. F. D. Power. When he was beginning his career in Washington, he sent Mrs. Power home for a visit while he should go out and replenish his purse in a meeting. He preached less than a week at Macedonia, and at the close of the meeting the treasurer handed him a sum of money. Whon he reached his room he counted it and found it $80. Next morning he asked the treasurer if he had not made a mistake, telling him he had never had so much money before, and the meeting was not worth it. But he was assured that there was no mistake, and was not long sending the good news and a good portion of the money to Sister Power.

Twenty-two of the churches I visited did not take the offering for home missions last year. We hope to hear a good report from them this year. Already I hear Danville has reached her apportionment. Chatham more than doubled what she gave last year. J. A. Hopkins.

Waynesboro, Pa.

Virginia News.

H. D. Coffey, under the auspices of the V. C. M. S., recently organized a church at Piney Grove, near the city of Roanoke, with 56 members. This was an entirely new work. Brother Coffey will return to the above place soon to complete the work. He expects several accessions at the time of this visit.

D. S. Henkel, for the V. C. M. S., recently held a ten days' meeting at Mt. Jackson, where J. D. Hamaker ministers. Our people had accomplished nothing at this point for a long time. There were 18 confessions. The meeting was stopped unavoidably. Brother Henkel is showing himself a very successful winner of souls. He dedicated a house at Harrisonburg June 11.

Herbert Yeuell is to begin a great meeting in Portsmouth June 18. This will be the first meeting held by our people in this city of 25,000 inhabitants. We have strong hopes of establishing a good church by this meeting. Brother Yeuell is one of our most successful men.

W. H. Book dedicated a new church at Radford, Va., May 21. This church was built and paid for without a preacher. They had to borrow some funds to complete the house, but having borrowed, they returned the loan before having a preacher. Brother Book held a meeting and dedicated the house free of debt before the preacher arrives.

R. H. Jones, who ministers at Blackstone, Corinth, and Mizpah, recently held a meeting at Spray, N. C., in which there were 40 accessions. Brother Jones is now in the throes of building a house at Blackstone. This is a beautiful little town of some 25,000 people, where we have never had a house. The writer spent three days at Blackstone recently assisting the pastor to secure funds for the building. Sufficient funds were secured to guarantee the erection of a creditable house of worship. Work will be started at once.

D. M. Austin, who is now laboring at Old Well, Horse Pasture, Pleasant Grove, and Mayo, is giving entire satisfaction and preaching to large and constantly increasing congregations.

Thirtieth street, Newport News, under the leadership of Milo Atkinson recently paid the last of an old debt. The church now enjoys the distinction of being the only church in Newport News without a debt.

R. E. Lee Abbott, of Spencer, Va., has located at Barboursville, Ky.

Churches in Virginia desiring meetings can secure a first-class preacher, evangelist, and singer, by writing P. A. Parsons, Plainfield, N. J. Brother Parsons is thoroughly competent. No church will make a mistake in calling him.

R. E. Elmore holds a meeting at Pulaski in June. We are expecting splendid results.

O. L. Huffman, who has conducted a successful school at New Castle, has accepted work with several churches in Craig county for the summer. We hope soon to have Brother Huffman giving all his time to the ministry.

H. C. Combs, Fin. Sec'y, V. C. M. S.

How the Work Grows.

(Continued from page 801.)

chapel on the morning of the first Lord's day in June, 1903. About 15 were present, as near as I can remember. We started the Bible school that day with 11 members. I shall always remember that first Sunday in Mobile. I had been used to a large congregation, not overflow meetings, remember, nor anything of that kind. In my ministry we have never had to "turn hundreds away," but the congregations have always been respectably large and attentive. But here I was in a city of 50,000 or 60,000, in a quaint little chapel, preaching to 15 people, most of whom had not heard a sermon for a long time from any of our preachers. Several of those present wept during the service. They wept for joy. It was not the sermon especially, but just the thought that they had a preacher. I did my weeptng after I returned home. How could I endure this isolation, this feeling of being all alone? There was but one other Christian preacher within 160 miles of me. Think of that and Mobile not over 700 miles from St. Louis. At night there were a few more present. The next Sunday we had perhaps 20, and nearly every service has shown an increase.

There were additions the first Sunday, and but few Sundays have passed in the two years but that our membership has been increased. The Bible-school grew. We soon crowded the chapel. Winter came on. During the summer we nearly roasted in the chapel. We thought to make it better when cold weather came. Now, the winters are not cold in Mobile, as it rarely goes below 14 above zero. But at times it is very chill and raw. These times frequently came on Sunday and then we were frozen out. The chapel was open, the wind came through and made it impossible to heat it. People made fun of our house of worship. Some aristocratic brethren from the north would not attend because it "looked so odd." The chapel was called a barn, a buggy-shed, a wood-house, and sundry other names. But we stayed in it, not especially because we wanted to, but because we had to. It was all we had. Last spring, in April, 1904, we thought the time ripe to begin raising money for a church home in keeping with our plea, people, and location. Some said, "Mr. Hill, you can't raise $1,000." In a month I had the $1,000. Then they said, "You certainly can't raise over $2,000." In two months I had that in cash and subscriptions. After that predictions ceased and the money raising went on. By November 1 we had $4,000 in cash and subscriptions. Then, that good angel for weak churches came again to our aid with $2,000 additional loan. That made us $6,000. Then we had plans drawn. By January 15 they were accepted and February 1 the contract was let. It calls for a two-story, brick veneer building, with Sunday-school room seating 300, and auditorium and gallery seating 500. The brick are white pressed. It is neat and plain, and substantially built. It has open baptistry, tile floor robing rooms, pastor's study, and large library and ladies' parlor. The contract price is $10,000, and the building committee furnishes the art glass. The cost will be about $12,000 complete, including seating. The building is now in the course of erection. The first payment has been made to the contractors and the second will soon fall due. If we can meet this payment promptly, our hardest place will have been passed. We have money due for later payments which will make them easier. Since the contract has been let we have secured about $2,000 additional in cash and subscriptions.

Bear in mind that all our resources are exhausted. We have no rich people in the church. Nearly all are poor and not many own their own homes. But all have given liberally, richly. Having done our best, we now ask our brethern and sisters to help us. Some have already given liberally to this cause. J. H. Allen, of St. Louis, A. R. Teachout, of Cleveland, A. G. Rhodes, of Atlanta, Ga., each gave $100. John T. Vawter, of Vawter Park, Ind., gave us $100 last spring, and two weeks ago he sent us a subscription of $500 more. He is a frequent visitor of Mobile, knows what the church is doing, and the needs and possibilities of the field. R. A. Long and J. C. Hill, both of Kansas City, gave $50 each. Many others have given in smaller sums. We do not ask that our work be made easy, we simply ask that it be made possible for us to do the work that ought to be done in this city. We are practically unknown in all of southern Alabama, southern Mississippi and western Florida. A strong church in "Old Mobile" will help to evangelize all this great territory. We have grown from about a dozen members to 140 in a little over 20 months, and that in the face of great difficulties. If we can finish our house, very soon the Mobile church will be self-supporting and returning the money which has been put here. We need $4,000 and we ask all who are interested in planting the cause in this historic old southern city to help us. Send an offering, small or large, to the undersigned, or to Robt. R. Tisdall, treasurer, Engineers Office, Custom House, Mobile, Ala.

Claude E. Hill.

26 Hernden Ave., Mobile, Ala.

ONE HUNDRED

[illegible] Lawton Simplex Printer. [illegible]

LAWTON & CO., 30 Vesey Street, New York / 59 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

WITH IMPURE DRINKING WATER

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Destroys the germs of typhoid and other fevers. Makes a refreshing and cooling summer drink.

Illinois Notes.

At Keensburg we have one of the oldest churches in the state. The New Lights started work in the community about the time the state was admitted and as early as 1825 they had grown into the principles advocated by B. W. Stone and Walter Scott. This is one of the old preaching places of Elijah Goodwin. The church has been a kind of recruiting station for these 80 years. It has sent out several times its number into other communities, many of whom are faithful leaders in the King's army. H. H. Wagner is the energetic, faithful young minister of the church of 300 members with a good Sunday-school and C. W. B. M. auxiliary.

Ellery is a small church near the west side of Edwards county. It has about 130 members and a Sunday-school of 100. W. S. Mesnard, of Mason, preaches regularly part of the time, and home forces do the rest.

Edwards county was settled in an early day by people from England. They yielded freely to the teaching of the church of Christ, whose membership is larger in the county than any other religious people. The county has scarcely ever had a saloon in it. The jail is nearly always empty. Circuit court is held twice a year and each session lasts about two days. This shows a little of what Christianity can do for humanity where we can get enough of it.

Albion is the county seat of Edwards county and has a splendid church. This is the old family home of the Flowers. Geo. E. Flower preached many years in Paducah, Ky., before his gentle spirit went home. His father, Albert Flower, cousin to the writer of "Nearer, my God, to thee," is living now in New York city. C. C. Garrigues, late of Philadelphia, Pa., is the much loved and efficient minister. Many have been added to the church since his coming and an elegant parsonage has been built.

Bone Gap has an active and faithful little church. It was never large and I believe was never weak. Its close fellowship with its regular and constant service is amply rewarded by him who knows how to bless his faithful people.

West Salem is a town largely of our people. The church is strong and maintains preaching all the time. G. W. Ford is the present minister and is doing a fine work. I found a number of old Eureka students in West Salem and as a rule found them loyal to the church and workers in it. This is the home of Bro. G. W. Tate, one of our good ministers who preaches all the time in adjacent churches.

I had opportunity to see but little of the Shiloah church, situated in the country near West Salem. Dr. W. E. Buxton is the leading spirit and is thoroughly devoted to the church and its work. No night ride is too long for him to take provided it will enable him to be at church on the Lord's day. Notwithstanding his large practice I am told that he scarcely ever misses church either morning or evening.

The largest congregation in the southern section, numbering about 700 members, is at Mt. Carmel. Lee Tinsley is the able and greatly loved minister. He has been with them about four years. S. M. Martin aided him in a great meeting recently. The church has a good membership in all the usual departments of service and has made large increase in all offerings to our large enterprises, all of which are regularly observed except education day, and that doubtless will be counted in hereafter.

Allendale is another good church of Wabash county. It is much stronger than it knows and is interested somewhat in Christian education as well as other good things. I am more and more impressed with the wonderful latent power in the churches that is waiting to be turned loose to move round the world with the old gospel, when it shall get ready really to act in earnest about the matter.

One of the old substantial churches is the one in Lawrenceville. Our talented brother, Z. H. Stine, is the minister. It is easily the leading church of the city. A meeting with home forces resulted in a large ingathering last winter. Lawyers, doctors, editors, merchants and farmers, both active and retired, are found in its membership. Brother Stine gives considerable time to short meetings with weak congregations and helps them to get proper preaching, a thing that ought to be more frequently done. The trouble is to get the preachers when the place is made ready. Unless we enlarge the powers of our colleges to train more men, the day of suffering and spiritual famine is near at hand for many weak congregations.

At Robinson the church is quiet. It has a fair number of excellent people, but feels depressed because of deaths and removals. Blessed is the church that can prepare people either to die in the Lord, or go out as so many missionaries to aid the weak. There is a good church left, and by wisdom and liberality the cause will again be strong in Robinson. There is one very injurious mistake which many churches are making. When a church is without a preacher, and consequently is paying out no money for the Lord's work, instead of the Lord's treasury filling up, ready to secure an evangelist or pastor, his treasury stays empty and the Lord's money goes into the pockets of the people. Every Christian ought to use his best judgment as to how much he can devote, regularly, to the Lord's work. That ought to be conscientiously laid aside for him whether there is preaching at the time or not. In this way it is only a question of time when any church can go on with its active work. I mention another mistake while I am at it, that is, when a church has no minister it does not observe the days for offerings for our great public enterprises, thus depriving itself of the blessing of liberal giving and the larger fellowship and enthusiasm which these offerings bring.

The cause at Palestine is prospering under the leadership of Bro. W. A. Curtis. This church and the East Union near by, for which Brother Curtis also preaches, has the honor of having put O. J. Page, now of Marion, into the ministry, and also J. S. Clements, who through the blessing of the Lord has brought into the kingdom of God about 10,000 souls. When a church steadily moves forward in the service of God, he honors it and in his own good way shows it his good pleasure.

The church at Newton misses much the genial face and wise counsel of Hale Johnson, the great temperance leader, whose untimely death we all mourn. But the church is still strong and our minister, C. W. Freeman, is carrying the work to larger usefulness than for years past.

The church at Toledo has recently completed a splendid new house and will soon be ready for a large and aggressive work.

Eureka. J. G. WAGGONER.

❖ ❖

Cotner Commencement.

The fifteenth annual commencement of this institution took place June 1-7, during which 12 interesting programs were given in exhibition of the various organizations and interests related to the college of arts. The commencement exercises of the medical college occurred about three weeks earlier. In many respects it may be truthfully said that the occasion was of the most hopeful and enjoyable of any in the history of the institution. The attendance of the board of trustees was large and its deliberations full of good cheer and harmony. The services on baccalaureate day were of unusual interest. Bro. A. McLean was present, and besides giving the baccalaureate sermon, addressed the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. at their joint meeting in the afternoon, and a great meeting of the mission classes in the evening.

HELPFUL COMMENTARIES
ON THE
NEW TESTAMENT

CONCISE PLAIN
EASILY UNDERSTOOD

VALUABLE AID TO ALL BIBLE READERS

MATTHEW AND MARK
By J. W. McGarvey.
LUKE
By J. S. Lamar.
JOHN
By B. W. Johnson.
ROMANS
By Moses E. Lard.
HEBREWS
By Robt. Mulligan.

Splendid books. Good, substantial cloth binding.
$1.50 per volume, postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

At the close of the morning service the five young men receiving the degree of A. B., viz., Hugh Lomax, Stephen Epler, F. Grant Hamm, Howard Johnson, and Manson Miller, were ordained to the ministry, to which they have consecrated their lives. It is saying little that Brother McLean's presence was a benediction to all present. His wise and eloquent words came as an endowment of courage to all hearts. In all, 17 received diplomas and certificates of graduation on commencement day. Space fails to mention the excellent class programs, society exhibitions, and musical festivals of the week. Perhaps chief among them may be mentioned the rendition of the Oratorio of the Messiah under the direction of Mrs. Sutton, head of the department of music. It was highly appreciated. Many from the city attended and enjoyed the feast of song.

The commencement oration, by R. W. Aberly, of Minneapolis, was superb. The fact that he was one of our own boys (class of '93) added to the interest and inspiration aroused by his splendid address. It was frequently said at the close, "the best address of the kind ever given at a Cotner commencement day."

By dint of economy and able management the year closed out of debt. There were 276 enrolled, 190 of whom were of the college of arts and its related departments.

It was a cheering omen that a few days before commencement the familiar voice of Hon. W. J. Bryan called over the 'phone to know if Cotner "would accept a small gift of $650" which it was in his heart to make as a basis of a scholarship fund, the proceeds of which are to be used for the aid of needy students. I need not tell the answer. The unsolicited gift was the more welcome because as a neighbor and of another church affiliation, it is a marked expression of his good will and of his confidence in the future of Cotner university.

W. P. A.

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

Indian Territory Letter.

By special arrangement, the writer spent the third Lord's day in May with the Tabernacle church in Columbus, Indiana, as already reported in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST.

With an expenditure of about $2,000 we have in the past seventeen months held 36 revivals, added to the Indian Territory membership over 700, organized 19 churches, located preachers with more than thirty churches and accomplished many other helpful results.

During the past six weeks a number of splendid meetings have been held as follows: F. H. Groom, at Weleetka, 39 added; Frank Van Vorhis, Okmulgee, 78 added; J. C. Read, Marietta, church organized and a brick building purchased for cash at a bargain; S. R. Hawkins, at Pryor Creek, 44 added—26 by baptism; Randolph Cook, Afton, 18 added.

George Beeler sends in a cheering report from Minnekah. The writer has promised a meeting to Minnekah in July. Brother Parker, who ministers at Graham, Texas, is to hold a meeting soon at Davis in return for one held by the writer for the Texas board of missions.

Chickasha and Grove (the latter a mission) have completed churches during the year. Kiowa has just let a contract for a building. Okmulgee is expected to dedicate a splendid house of worship before many months. The writer has agreed to dedicate a new building at Lindsay, the fourth Lord's day in June, and at Roff and Haskell during July. L. B. Grogan, of Lindsay, E. S. Allhands, of Roff, and William Thompson, of Haskell, are three of God's self-sacrificing servants. It is to their faith, patience, good sense and self-sacrifice that these three new and growing towns have been so early and effectually entered. Stillwell is also soon to have a house of worship.

Wren J. Grinstead is now in a meeting at Marlow. A. J. Williams, of Missouri, has accepted a call to Vinita, and is already on the ground, and in a meeting. J. S. Hawkins, son of John T. Hawkins, has begun regular work at Pryor Creek. We could use three or four sound, sensible, self-sacrificing young preachers—who can preach and hustle. We cannot pay more than $50 per month. The next convention, last week in August, will be held at Weleetka.

S. R. HAWKINS, Cor. Sec.

❖ ❖

"The Holy Spirit."

MY DEAR BROTHER GARRISON:—I am thankful that you have given to our brotherhood your volume on the Holy Spirit. It is a most wholesome and helpful contribution to the discussion of the subject that is now claiming so large a place in religious thought. The times are favorable to a review of our position as a religious body on the question of the personality and work of the Holy Spirit. Your treatment is so simple and scriptural, so free from mere metaphysics, as to greatly clarify the atmosphere about the question. While making no pretense to thorough discussion of any phase of the subject, your little volume gives concisely and clearly so much of what we need to know that one wishes that many other authors had learned the same secret ere they began writing. I hope that this work will find a large circulation among our people, for it cannot fail to illumine the understanding upon a theme too often buried in mystery, and to quicken the germs of the spiritual life which are too frequently destroyed by the blight of formalism and legalism. W. F. RICHARDSON.

Kansas City, Mo.

❖

The Christ in Modern English Literature. By George H. Combs. St. Louis: The Christian Publishing Co.

The New Feeling for Christ, The Literature of Silence; The Voices of Revolt; Il Penseroso; Poets of Paganism; Redemptive Ideals; The Plaint of the Pessimist; Echoes of the Orient; The Vision; Faith's Chorus; and the Outlook, are the titles of the chapters. The book is particularly rich in quotation of poets and others who have expressed themselves on the great issues of the theme. The book shows the wide reading of the author and a mastery of the literature of the subject uplifting to the mind and heart as one follows him page after page. I have read the book with much profit and delight. It will help all who read it. The author's faith in the Christ is reassuring and strength-giving. Most heartily therefore do I commend this good book to Christian readers. It will enlarge their view of the Christ as the Son of God and the divine Savior of men.—Christian Companion.

❖ ❖

The Old Baptist Meeting-House.

(Continued from page 797.)

confessed his faith in the Christ, and was that day, in the presence of a "great multitude," immersed in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. Others had theorized concerning this original gospel; the creeds of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Roman Catholic, and the Greek churches had stated it in cold type. In the McCalla debate, in 1823, Alexander Campbell had declared it in so many words, without apprehending its practical significance. But the theory was for the first time fully realized and practically exhibited by Walter Scott in 1827. "This event," says Scott's biographer, "forms an era in the religious history of the times. . . And Mr. Amend was beyond all question the first person in modern times who received the ordinance of baptism in perfect accordance with apostolic teaching and usage."

Mr. Scott loved to speak of Mr. Amend as the "oldest man in the kingdom." The last time this "knightly pioneer herald of the 'Restoration'" and his first convert met, was in Cincinnati, Ohio, in the year 1850. Mr. Amend was an elder in the church and faithful to the last. He died in August, 1873, having passed the seventy-sixth milestone of his earthly pilgrimage.

❖ ❖

Was Jesus a Divine Healer?

(Continued from page 805.)

if faith were revived, and become the general and permanent endowment of the Christian people. To many the idea of miraculous endowments is attractive and they think that the church would be spiritually richer for possessing them. But the best progress leads away from them toward a life so full of high spiritual quality and power that miracles are not felt to be needed. Paul himself, standing in the midst of these gifts, regarded them as temporary, and as distinctly inferior to the abiding graces of faith, hope and love. We are safe in judging that he was right. Gifts in the realm of character far excel all powers that appeal to the senses. The greater works that Christ's friends may perform (John 14:12) are spiritual."

Mechanicsburg, Ill.

THE BEST
Sunday-School Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary, The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people.

The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Sunday-School

CLASS BOOKS,
ENVELOPES
RECORDS,
BLACK BOARDS,
MAPS, CARDS
AND OTHER

Up-To-Date Supplies

Order what you need from
Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo

The Best Book Ever Written
on the subject, is
The Verdict of Thousands
who have read
Moral and Spiritual Aspects of Baptism
By N. J. AYLSWORTH
Cloth, 471 pages, $1.50
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

[Telegram.]

Beaumont, Tex, June 18.—Dedicated South Side mission church, and thirty more added to day. Two buildings dedicated here, and 110 added in thirteen days—Charles Reign Scoville and De Loss Smith, evangelists.—J. B. Holmes, pastor.

CALIFORNIA.

Santa Ana, June 12.—Thirty added in our meeting here, 20 by confession and baptism. Began May 28, will close in two or three days. Leander Lane is the excellent minister here, and he is supported by a fine church. I begin my work as a supply at Pasadena next Sunday.—Sumner T. Martin, evangelist.

COLORADO.

Denver, June 12.—Two persons were baptized in the South Broadway church yesterday.—B. B. Tyler.

ILLINOIS.

Hillsboro, June 9.—Twenty-four Sunday night, 30 to date. We hope for a good meeting. This is a new point.—Lawrence and Edward Wright, general evangelists.

Carbondale.—Two confessions June 4; one confession June 11.—A. M. Growden.

Rossville, June 12.—Twelve confessions here on the last two Lord's days.—H. H. Peters.

INDIANA.

Flora, June 12.—Two confessions last night. Recently organized a mission study class with twelve members. Our first year's work here has been pleasant. All missionary apportionments have been met, a church debt paid, home interests well cared for and men and women added to the Lord. We begin our second year with high hopes.—A. B. Houze.

Lebanon, June 12.—Evangelist Amos K. Clarke, wife and daughter, of Indianapolis, have just closed a successful revival at Dover. There were 51 added to the church, 33 baptisms, 8 from the denominations, and the remainder from other sources. Many of them were past the prime of life and several entire families came forward. The church has been greatly strengthened at this place. There were good audiences and sometimes many were turned away because they could not obtain room inside the building.—J. A. McClain, Henry F. McDaniel, John Rauth, elders.

Arcadia, June 9.—The work is prosperous. Four added since last report. I go to Montpelier.—D. F. Harris.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Weleetka, June 14.—Since last report 42 have been added to the churches with which we have been at work. One baptism and one by letter at Okemah. Forty accessions to the Ada church during our meeting there with B. J. Waugh. We trust the church there will now be enabled to locate a resident pastor. Hope to begin a meeting at Wetumka soon.—A. M. Harral.

IOWA.

Woodbine, June 12.—The work here is progressing. Children's day offering was $20. Recently 100 new song books were purchased for the church. Two mission points have been established near town. Have had four additions and three weddings lately. Excavation for the new church building has begun.—B. Franklin Hall.

Arlington, June 14.—The church here closed a meeting after continuing three and one half weeks with five additions: three by confession and baptism and two by statement, one of these from the United Brethren. The pastor did the preaching. Mrs. J. H. Davis, of Oskaloosa, was our leader of song. The church has received a great spiritual impulse. They call me for another year.—J. C. Hanna.

KANSAS.

North Topeka, June 12.—A husband and wife from the United Brethren church took membership with us yesterday. Three others were added since last report, all by statement or letter.—F. H. Bentley, pastor.

Chetopa, June 8.—The MacFarlane and Shaffer meetings closed last Lord's day with seven accessions: three baptisms, two by letter and two reclaimed. The weather was very bad and there was organized opposition. Since I took this pastorate, November 8, 1904, we have had 12 accessions, which now places our total membership at about 80. Our Bible-school average is about 120.—John Wesley, minister.

Eureka, June 12.—At our regular services Sunday there were three confessions and one from the Methodists. Five were baptized this (Monday) afternoon, two of the number being old men, brothers, aged 75 and 83 years respectively. Is there a parallel case on record where brothers have lived out of Christ until they reached these ages and then came together and confessed their Savior? We are having additions at every service. We have the largest audiences in the city and have had 18 additions the past month.—G. F. Bradford.

KENTUCKY.

Henderson.—Some time ago the writer accepted a call to the Christian church here. We are all rejoicing now that the call was given and accepted, as there has already been a great transformation in the church. For some reason our cause seems to have made no progress in this city for years. We are now on the move. Since I came we have held a meeting with home forces, the writer preaching, which continued 18 days with 28 accessions. Attendance is larger than it has been for years. Sunday-school is growing and all the societies are getting to work nobly. Many outsiders are attending and wanderers are coming back to the fold. Recently the ministers of Evansville and Princeton, Ind., and Henderson, united in a picnic. There seemed to be no family feeling, no sense of oneness in evidence at all. Let us accept the friendly overtures of the sects, work with them all we can, but never cease to advocate plainly true unity, oneness of the scriptural kind.—Wm. A. Ward.

MISSOURI.

Butler.—The Butler work is moving along quietly, all departments doing substantial work. We have received 87 members in the last 14 months. We have organized a class of 40 for special lessons in the New Testament church. —H. Jas. Crockett.

Richland.—W. D. Moore, of the South street church, Springfield, just closed a short meeting with this church. He was with us a little over two weeks, and it rained a great deal during the time, yet we had a very instructive and a deeply spiritual meeting; 9 accessions—3 confessions, 2 from the Baptists, 4 otherwise. I had the privilege of occupying his pulpit while he was holding the meeting. He has a fine congregation of people of over 700, and is now in his eighth year with them. His people expect to build a modern house of worship in the near future.—J. R. Blunt.

Mountain Grove, June 5.—We closed a meeting at Crisp, 25 sermons with 45 additions. We left them organized with a good corps of officers. They will organize a Bible-school and have regular prayer-meetings. This was a hard field. I was sent here by the Dade county missionary board. We had the anti element, indifferent members, sectarianism, etc., to meet, but the gospel proved to be the all-sufficient power. Brother Hood, of Arcola, conducted the music. The house was filled before preaching to hear the singing. He ought to be in the field all the time. The additions were as follows: 35 by statement and reclaimed, nine by confession and one from the Baptists. This is my second meeting for the county missionary board, and there were 99 additions in the two meetings. We expect to hold a meeting for them in July.—E. W. Yocum.

Wishart.—I commenced labors with this church three months ago; I found a church building and 10 members, the church depleted on account of removals. I have preached half of the time. The church has reorganized and there are 24 members to date, and one other to be baptized next Lord's day. We have good interest and good congregations. I have neither been dead nor sleeping since last report. I have preached the gospel over 4,000 miles of territory at my own charges, setting things in order, strengthening the weak, organizing churches, etc. Our meetings at Ozark school house are increasing in interest.—Oliver M. Olds, evangelist.

Bogard, June 13.—One addition by statement at Hale Sunday.—C. C. Taylor.

Gallatin, June 12.—We had three additions by letter and statement yesterday morning, a mother and her two daughters. The house was overflowing last night to witness the children's day exercises. In ten months our Sunday-school has increased from an average attendance of 54 to 80. Work is moving along favorably.—C. W. Comstock.

NEW MEXICO.

Folsom, June 11.—The first week closed with 11 added, 7 by confession, all heads of families but one. We confidently expect a large ingathering. Our second meeting with the good church and minister at Liberal, Kan., was fruitful of lasting results. They are prosperous and happy.—D. D. Boyle.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Rocky Mount.—The Martin family meeting has established a church in this growing city. The people have long needed the great plea of the church of Christ, but unfortunately have never heard it until now. The work should go on with great force and rapidity as the seed has been sown in the minds of the people by the evangelist, and it should be but a short time until a prosperous church came forth.—E. H.

OHIO.

Marion.—The Central Christian church here began her eventful career with only 37 souls Nov. 15, 1902. Jan. 1, 1904, she had 82 and one year later 122 and now 142 members. She gave to missions the first year, foreign: $15; home, $10; church extension, $4.75. Second year: foreign, $51.12; home, $25; church extension, $33; state, $11.50. This year thus far: foreign, $30.30; home, $30. A total of $211.67 for two and one-half years and a "mission" point. Income for first year, $932.97. Second year, $1,943.33; Jan. 1 to June 1 this year, $1,470. Church property valued at $3,500 and building a new church. We are a mission church only in the sense that we are intensely missionary to the point that we give. July 2, we will raise $5,000 for the new church. B. L. Smith will be with us.—O. D. Maple, pastor.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Washington, June 5.—Closed a meeting with the second church here last night. Eleven were added—three by baptism, eight otherwise. Oscar W. Riley is pastor. Begin at Lone Pine June 10.—F. A. Bright, evangelist.

MARRIAGES.

FLYNT—FLYNT.—At Plattsbhrg, Mo., June 10, 1905, by J. W. Perkins, Robert B. Flynt, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Dollie Flynt, of Plattsburg, Mo.

BYRUM—GARRISON.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Dunkerly, 4745 Hammett Place, St. Louis, Mo., Monday evening, June 5, William T. W. Byrum, of East St. Louis, and Miss Jennie Beatrice Garrison, of St. Louis, Samuel B. Moore, pastor of Hammett Place church, officiating.

❁

OBITUARIES.

Notices of deaths (not more than four lines) inserted free. Obituary memoirs, one cent per word. Send the money with the copy.

PAYNE.

Virginia Yaeger was born in Wapello county, Ia., Dec. 15, 1858, and died April 17, 1905, at Bladensburg, Ia. She was married to Henry Payne in 1883. She united with the Christian church at Bladensburg in 1889 and lived a faithful Christian life in all its relationships as daughter, sister, wife, mother and friend. She was interested in every good work of the church and had already made her contribution for the orphans' home before her death. She leaves her husband and two children, Dora and Harry, her aged father and mother, two brothers and one sister to mourn their loss. May the dear Lord bind up the broken hearts and incline them to faithful service of the Master whom she loved and followed. The funeral services were held in the Christian church in Bladensburg, conducted by the writer. E. A. Hastings.

Floris, Ia.

PAGE.

Mrs. Eva L. Page, who impressed all who knew her as an almost perfect example of simple, childlike faith, of absolute unselfishness and of complete devotion to the service of the Master, the work of the church and ministry to humanity, saying with a smile that she was "ready to meet the Savior face to face," departed, March 27, from her home in Des Moines, Ia., to the better home, to which none, perhaps, could read a clearer title than she. For more than ten years Mrs. Page was perhaps the most useful worker in the Central church and about half that time the pastor's most efficient assistant. She was most remarkable for devotion and efficiency as superintendent of the large primary department of the Sunday-school. Her last message was to them—"Tell them how I loved them"—and the little ones in a body were sincere mourners at her funeral. Every one who knew her feels an irreparable sense of loss and keenest sympathy with the bereaved husband, mother, sister and brothers. Her remains rest beside a sister at Logan, Ia., the family home. S. C. Slayton.

PLUM.

Died, at her home in Shelby, Ia., May 9, 1905, at 7 A. M., Mrs. Etta Plum, age 59 years, six months, 27 days. Sister Plum, whose maiden name was Whitman, was born Oct. 12, 1845, in Bedford county, Penn. At the age of nine years she removed with her parents to Johnson county, Ia., and in 1875 she was married to Martin Plum. Soon after they removed to Red Oak, Ia., and in 1887 to Shelby, Ia., where she lived till her death. To Mr. and Mrs. Plum four children were born, Orvil, Hattie, Vernon and Pearl. The three former and two brothers and two sisters remain to mourn her death. Sister Plum was an earnest, devout Christian, a member of the church of Christ, and died as she had lived, with a strong faith in her Master and Lord. The writer was called to conduct the funeral service and join her friends in the last tribute of love for one of God's noble handmaidens.

W. B. Crewdson.

WHITSETT.

John Wesley Whitsett, son of Charles Wesley Whitsett and Elizabeth (Mock) Whitsett, was born near the present site of Connersville, July 7, 1820, and died March 18, 1905. When about 20 years of age he went to Kentucky seeking advanced educational opportunities. May 12, 1844, in Cynthiana, Ky., for the first time he heard a sermon from one of our preachers. At its conclusion he made the good confession, and was immersed the following day by Brother Holten, in the Licking river. March 19, 1851, J. W. Whitsett was married to Mary Alexander, at her father's home, near Paris, Ky. Three years later Mr. and Mrs. Whitsett (with their infant son Charles) removed to Lebanon, Ind., where they resided for over 30 years, and where five children were born. Mr. Whitsett retired from business with failing health early in the '80's, and, with wife and unmarried children, removed to Logansport and afterward to St. Louis, and still later to Indianapolis. The frail health of Mr. Whitsett during the years when Logansport, St. Louis or Indianapolis was the permanent home, required that 18 or 20 winters should be spent in the sunny south land. But, wherever they located for a few weeks or months in search of health for either, Mr. and Mrs. Whitsett immediately found a church home, and helped in the local church work as zealously as in the church of their permanent home when there. Their home—temporary or permanent—was always "the preacher's home." Their hospitality was always of the most genial and inclusive kind. No church function ever sought an open door at their home in vain. No orphaned child, needing parental care for a few weeks, months, or years, was ever turned from their door. Old-time friends in poverty or sickness were cared for by them as though they were brothers or sisters. Mary (Alexander) Whitsett, daughter of John Alexander and Margaret Alexander, was of Scotch-Irish-English ancestry, and was born on a farm near Paris, in Nicholas county, Ky., March 29, 1827. In the same community, Jan. 15, 1841, under the preaching of Jno. Rogers, she made the good confession and was immersed by Matthew R. Brown. March 19, 1851, at her father's home farm, in the same place, she was united to John Wesley Whitsett, by John Rogers. She preceded him only a few months to her reward, dying Oct. 23, 1904.

T. W. Grafton.

Comments by Readers

Of J. H. GARRISON'S Latest Book

THE HOLY SPIRIT

W. F. Richardson,
Pastor, First Christian Church,
Kansas City, Mo.
—SAYS:—

"I hope that this work will find a large circulation among our people for it cannot fail to illumine the understanding upon a theme too often buried in mystery, and to quicken the germs of the spiritual life which are too frequently destroyed by the blight of formalism and legalism."

B. B. Tyler,
Pastor, Broadway Christian Church,
Denver, Col.
—SAYS:—

"Bro. Garrison, in this work, treats in his usual felicitious style, the personality, the mission, both to the world and to the church, and modes of activity, of the Holy Spirit.

"The volume is devotional in spirit, didactic in style, logical in form, biblical in its positions."

Samuel B. Moore,
Pastor, Hammett Place Church,
St. Louis, Mo.
—SAYS:—

"The book grows in interest with each succeeding chapter; that on the 'Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit,' and the chapter on 'Spiritual Life,' are especially helpful. The volume is a valuable addition to Christian literature, in that it opens up a marvelous view of the spiritual benefits and enjoyments possible to every one who is in a position to receive the Holy Spirit."

The Great Demand for this new book is evidence that it is a timely one. The indications are that a very few weeks will exhaust the first edition.

Contains 211 pages.
Printed on Best Heavy Book Paper.
Wide margins. Large, clear type.
Substantially bound in cloth.
Gilt title, side and back.

A Popular Book at a Popular Price. Only One Dollar, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis.

B B
BUTLER COLLEGE
INDIANAPOLIS

A HIGH-GRADE
CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
FOR
YOUNG MEN and WOMEN

First-class equipment, splendid library facilities, wide variety of elective courses.
The faculty is composed of men trained in the best universities of America and Europe.
Special advantages and inducements for ministerial students. Summer school for teachers. Schools of Music and Art.

For Catalogue Address,

W. E. GARRISON
President of BUTLER COLLEGE
·INDIANAPOLIS, IND·
B B

REUBEN:
HIS BOOK

297 Pages of Humor and Philosophy In attractive and substantial cloth binding

BY

Morton H. Pemberton

"Reub reminds one a little bit of the late lamented Ben King, who was indeed a lovely soul; but Reub's is rather a broader kind of laugh-making product. . . . .

"His book is already heading the list of 'best sellers' and deserves to go. 'It is good.'"
—St. Louis Republic.

A new book but one that is springing rapidly into popularity, because of its telling wit and humor and its freedom from coarseness.

Everybody Will Enjoy It
All Will Be Benefited By It

PRICE $1.00, POSTPAID.

Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

The Approved

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

Effervescent relief for Headaches

SICK STOMACHS, INDIGESTION

Acts pleasantly, quickly, with such general beneficent effects that it has retained the favor of Physicians and the Public for more than 60 years.

At Druggists. 50c and $1. or by mail from THE TARRANT CO., 44 Hudson Street, N. Y.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

June 28, 1905.

IMPROVING THE TIME.

"Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time." Col. 4:5.

Concern for the Unsaved. The phrase, "them that are without," means those who are without the church—the unconverted. The apostle is concerned for the welfare of these, and he would have the church at Colosse be concerned for them also. He would have them "walk in wisdom towards them that are without," that is, to so demean themselves that their conduct would be a recommendation of Christianity to those on the outside. How important that admonition is to-day! The world perhaps is influenced far more by what it sees in the lives of church members than by what it hears from the pulpit or reads in the Bible, as to its view of Christianity (Read Matt. 5:16).

Value of Time. Some one has said that time is the most valuable thing we have, and yet it is the only thing with which men are prodigal. How short it is, compared with eternity! How brief, when we consider the work that remains to be done! Jesus realized this truth and frequently gave expression to it: "We must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work" (John 9:4). The best use we can make of time is self-preparation and the preparation of others for eternity. A man once dreamed that he died and went to the gate of heaven, and was there met by the Master, who asked him if he came alone. With sadness he confessed he had. The Master gave him a glimpse of the glory of heaven, and then turned his glance toward the earth with all its sin and sorrow and death, and asked him whether he would prefer to enter heaven alone or go back to the earth and seek to win others from sin and its awful consequences to heaven and happiness. He asked permission to return, and when he awoke he took the lesson to heart, and henceforth was zealous in seeking to win souls.

"Buying up the Opportunity." This is a suggested rendering of the phrase, "redeeming the time." It is a metaphor taken from mercantile life. Some one has paraphrased it: "Eagerly purchasing, as it were, each golden opportunity for helping forward the cause of Christ." How little many of us value the opportunities which come to us for saving others! And yet these opportunities are just what we are exhorted to "buy up" at any cost. They are the very things which make life worth living. Visiting the sick and the afflicted; speaking words of kindness to those in trouble; the word of warning to those in danger; ministering to the needs of the poor; using our various associations in life for conveying to our associates a knowledge of Christ; conducting a prayer-meeting; teaching a class in Sunday-school; working in a mission school—what glorious opportunities are these for planting the seeds of truth in the hearts of others!

Unused Opportunities. Perhaps the bitterest of all the ingredients that shall enter into the cup of anguish which the unsaved may have to drink in the world to come, will be the remembrance of wasted opportunities. Will not many a careless and indifferent Christian also feel the pangs of remorse, as he looks back on his earth-life in the light of eternity, and sees how little he appreciated the opportunities for doing good which were all around him? May God save us from this remorse, by enabling us to be faithful while it is called to-day.

Prayer. We thank Thee, most gracious Father, that Thou hast called us into Thy church and kingdom by the love of Christ manifested in the gospel. We thank Thee for the time and the opportunities Thou art affording us in this life for our own spiritual development and for winning others from the power of sin to the power of God. Help us, we beseech Thee, to be more faithful in buying up every possible opportunity for serving Thy cause and saving our fellow men. May we so use this present short life that we shall have no bitter regrets in the life to come, over neglected duty and wasted opportunities. In Christ's name. Amen.

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

July 2, 1905.

THE MAKING OF A CHRISTIAN: HIS DESTINY.—1 John 2: 15-17; 3: 1-3.

For the Leader.

"Making" is a term that suggests wonderful things to the human mind. It has couched in it skill. Personality is postulated by this term. "Will" can not be divorced from the process of making. Either in the act directly, or in the causes back of what we see working, the will of a person must preside if anything like making is going on.

The laborer who makes things is in greater honor than his fellows who simply do common things for those who make things. He is called a skilled laborer. This much is true in material things. What can be said of the making that has to do with mental and spiritual things? Is he not a more skilled laborer who works in soul stuff and brings out the lines and curves and form of the image of the Invisible?

So, then, is the work of making Christians the greatest, the highest, the most skillful work, the work of greatest honor among men and angels. They that win souls shall shine as the stars forever. Both from the view-point of those who make it their business to bring men to God, and from the view-point of those who are saved by his grace, is the making of a Christian the greatest work. Let us get much out of this topic to-night.

For the Members.

1. What is the destiny of anything? That is a big question. Men may never agree as to all the details of the answer. But, some way, we are sure that it means the great beyond. It means that which shall take the place of things as they are in this world of sense, of sorrow, of the temporal. One thing may appear to fit a man for life here, but it may break down in the test of fitting him for the life hereafter. Let us have a care as to the theories of life we adopt. Many of them are made only for this side.

2. A summer house is a very admirable thing for the summer. In fact, it may be preferred to a more abiding structure. So there is a fascination in some fallacies, and a plausibility in some errors, that has a considerable influence over men. But the secret of this hasty judgment is in the partial examination that has been made. The summer house has been tested only in the warm, the sunshine, the soft wind. It needs another test: The frost of winter, the cold blast from the north, the low temperature that sends the coal up and the mercury down. These tests will show that the summer house was built for summer.

3. So some Christians are made only for this world. Their ideals seem good only when considered as plans for a short life on this side. Will they stand the cold blasts that blow up from the valley of the chilly waters? Has he been made for a life to come as well as for one that is already here? He has lived for the enjoyment of pleasures of short duration, and his conduct has not brought him to grief in the few, fleeting years he has wrought. But what the test of time bear heavily upon him? Can he go forward forever by this or by that ideal, and bring no blight upon his soul? A Christian should be made not only in view of the present, but in view of the future. His destiny—what he will be at last and forever—must not be forgotten.

4. How is it to-night, my brother, my sister? Are you building for your destiny? Yes, to be sure you are. But what is that destiny to be? That is the serious question. It should be remembered that by destiny is not meant fate. It is not something that is beyond your control. All the present is within the hands of him who wills to do this or that. God will see to it that every one who wills to do has both the opportunity and the ability to do. No one need rejected be. No one need fail. The prize is set before all. Every one who runs as one who has put his trust in the Lord will win. He can not fail. What will be the end of this work of God upon and within us no one can tell. It is better than tongue can tell. Let us, then, make good and true all our work on the soul.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Do I live as one who was wrought not only for time, but for eternity?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	Our grand calling.	Gen. 12: 1-3.
T.	Chosen by God.	Deut. 7: 6-13.
W.	A great future.	Ezek. 11: 17-20.
T.	God wills it.	Rom. 8: 28 30.
F.	Will fulfill it.	Rom. 9: 14 26.
S.	Through Christ.	Eph. 1: 3-12.
S.	Topic—The making of a Christian: his destiny. 1 John 2: 15-17: 3: 1-3. (Consecration meeting.)

BOWLDEN BELLS
CHURCH AND SCHOOL
FREE CATALOGUE
AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY CO. NORTHVILLE, MICH.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance

When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.

LIVING PRAISE

By CHAS. H. GABRIEL and W. W. DOWLING

Is that kind of a Song Book.

Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

FOR SALE—Good home convenient to College, Eureka, Ill. Address, 620 Hillyer, St., Pekin, Ill.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished ed and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

Sunday-School.

July 2, 1905.

SENNACHERIB'S INVASION.—
2 Chron. 32: 9-23.

Memory verse, 21.

Golden Text.—With us is the Lord our God to help us, and to fight our battles.—2 Chron. 32:8.

With the beginning of the third quarter the lessons return to the Old Testament and take up the history of Israel where they left it six months ago.

The incident narrated in this lesson occurred, according to one excellent chronology (it is impossible to be absolutely sure of the dates), in the year 701 B. C. About 235 years had elapsed since the division of the kingdom under Solomon's successor. During these two centuries and more, the northern kingdom, spoken of as Israel (the ten tribes), had suffered from a series of bad kings, had grown comparatively rich and had absorbed heathen ideas and practices. The series of great prophets, Elijah, Elisha, Amos, and Hosea, whose work covered an almost continuous period of about 150 years, denounced but could not cure the degeneracy. Amos and Hosea, the first of the writing propheths, give lurid descriptions of the social, religious and political corruption of their times.

Meanwhile the Assyrian empire was developing into the great world power of the east. It conquered and absorbed the surrounding small nations, and finally, after a period of more or less complete suzerainty, it destroyed the Syrian kingdom of Damascus (732 B. C.) and the northern kingdom of Israel with its capital at Samaria (721 B. C.). The conquest was complete, as the Assyrians knew how to make it. It involved not only a change in the government, but the deportation of large numbers of the people and the importation of mixed people from the east to take their places. By this policy of forcible amalgamation the "lost" ten tribes were absorbed into the general population of the empire.

The southern kingdom, Judah, was smaller and, at least during the early period, less degenerate than Israel. It had the good fortune to have two or three able reforming kings, and the possession of the sanctuary at Jerusalem had its effect in maintaining the worship of Jehovah. Toward the end of the period, however, increasing prosperity brought luxury, greed and oppression, which Isaiah denounces "Woe unto them that join house to house and lay field to field." The fall of Damascus and Samaria left Judah the only nation between Assyria and her great rival, Egypt. Judah was speedily reduced to the position of a vassal state paying tribute to Assyria. The period of Isaiah's activity, beginning "in the year that King Uzziah died" (737 B. C.) and continuing about forty years through the reign of Ahaz and Hezekiah, was for the most part coincident with this period of Judah's subserviency to Assyria.

The burning question of national policy at this time was the question whether Judah should continue to purchase peace by tribute to Assyria or should break with Assyria, relying on aid from Egypt. Isaiah was uncompromisingly on the side of tribute and peace and against the self styled patriots who wanted to restore the kingdom to her position as a great independent power. His reasons were two: first, it cannot be done because it is vain to expect effective help from Egypt; second, it ought not to be done, because the true fulfillment of Israel's mission is independent of political greatness. He saw in the problem of Israel's destiny not a political but a religious problem. Political success now would only conceal the greater truth.

Imagine now that thirty years have elapsed since the Assyrians destroyed Damascus and twenty years since the northern kingdom of Israel was wiped out. During these years Hezekiah has been king of Judah at Jerusalem, a king who served Jehovah, destroyed the places of idolatrous worship, patronized literature and built public works, and lent ear to those who counseled for revolt; and the great Sargon has been king of Assyria, a mighty warrior against whom even the rashest of his vassals hesitated to revolt. When Sargon's son Sennacherib came to the throne (705 B. C.) there was a general stir among the vassal states. Hezekiah "rebelled against the king of Assyria and served him not" (2 Kings 18:7) and Sennacherib bestirred himself to reduce the rebels, as well as to carry the war against Egypt.

Sennacherib's campaign of 701 against Jerusalem was part of a great expedition extending as far as Egypt. While Isaiah had been against the revolt, he was equally against surrendering Jerusalem when Sennacherib appeared. His interpetation of the events was that Jehovah was using the Assyrians as an instrument to punish his people for their sins, but he could not believe that the punishment would be allowed to extend to the capture and desecration of Zion. This was Isaiah's philosophy of history as applied to the case of Sennacherib. Its ten chief points were the two points of the general prophetic message: first, God will punish sin in his people, and he will do it by using the world forces; second, in punishing he will not utterly destroy, and even he who is being punished can still trust in God.

"The Original"
Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk and the Civil War Veteran are old friends. The Eagle Brand is still the standard. It is sold by all first-class grocers. Avoid unknown brands.

MINIATURE
BOOKS OF THE GOSPEL
Matthew, Mark, Luke, John.
In Separate Books.
1 1-2 by 2 Inches.
Very Plain Readable Type.
Gilt Edged and Morocco Bound.
Price 50 cents each postpaid.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

Our endowment plan returns a man's accumulated earnings to him just at a time in his life when he most needs money—when his energies are waning. It is a good, wholesome, practical plan, and easy on the policy-holder. Read "The How and the Why"—free booklet.
PENN MUTUAL LIFE,
921-3-5 Chestnut St.

The People's New Testament With Notes
: : By B. W. JOHNSON : :
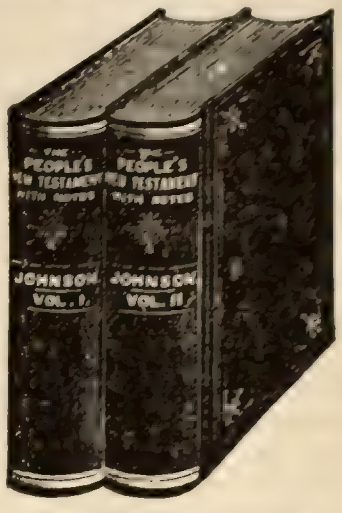
A complete commentary of the New Testament in two volumes. Contains the Common and Revised Versions, with references, explanatory notes and colored maps. It makes clear every difficult passage and enables the earnest student and the family circle to understand every portion of the New Testament.
The most Satisfactory Work of its kind ever published.



PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
PEOPLE'S NEW TESTAMENT WITH NOTES
JOHNSON VOL. I
JOHNSON VOL. II

Vol. I., The Four Gospels and Acts of Apostles.
Vol. II., The Epistles and Revelation.
Cloth, per vol., $2 00 | Sheep, per vol., $2 75
Half morocco, per vol., $3 00
The volumes can be had separately.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

YOUNG FOLKS
The Leading Paper for Christian Young People.
W. W. DOWLING, Editor.
Our Young Folks, A Large Sixteen Page, Illustrated Weekly, contains the Scripture Text with full Analytical, Illustrative and Practical Notes on the Midweek Prayer-Meeting Topics
which have been in use in hundreds of the Leading Churches for the last seven years. The Best Prayer-Meetings are in those Churches where these Uniform Topics are followed and Our Young Folks used.
In addition to these Topics, the Journal contains full Expositions of the Sunday-school Lessons, the Y. P. S. C. E. Topics, and much other useful matter along all lines of Christian Work. No Minister, Teacher, Senior Pupil, Christian Endeavorer or other Christian Worker can afford to be without this Weekly.
☞ TERMS: Single copy, 75 cents per year; in clubs of five, 65 cents; in clubs of ten and upwards, 50 cents each per year.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., ST. LOUIS.

Good Music is of Supreme Importance
When we say good we mean both in sentiment and melody.
LIVING PRAISE
By Chas. H. Gabriel and W. W. Dowling
Is that kind of a Song Book.
Drop us a postal card request and we will tell you all about this superb collection of 267 pieces of sacred music. Three styles of binding.
Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo

Individual Communion Service
Made of several materials and in many designs including self-collecting tray.
Send for full particulars and catalogue No. 27. Give the number of communicants.
GEO. H. SPRINGER, Manager, 256-258 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

People's Forum.

"The Bondage of Formalism" Again.

In the "People's Forum" under date of May 25, A. E. Dubber says, "We are not tying down the Almighty; the Almighty is doing that. This he does by dispensing grace only upon the conditions which he himself has established." The Editor replies, "We are not to look upon these conditions as limitations of God's grace, but as helps to us in coming to him." Can these two statements be reconciled?

Salvation is not eschatological but spiritual. It is not deliverance from the hell of sin, but it is transformation into the image of God. The result is spiritual transformation. The agency, the means, the process, must also be spiritual. There is nothing mechanical or arbitrary about it. The only power that can make like God is God himself. The only power by which persons are transformed is personal power—personal influence. This power exists in God as love and was manifested in Jesus Christ as grace. That is, by the gracious activity of Christ God's love was made manifest, and by the Spirit this love is shed abroad in the hearts of men. Paul says, "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself"—making it like himself. This power, this love, this grace of God, exists alike for all men. It is unlimited from the divine side. It is conditioned only on the human side. That is, the gracious and saving influence of God may be limited by our own spiritual capacities, by our acquired characters, or by our social environment; but never by God himself. God is not partial. He loves all alike and the gracious influence of that love goes out for all alike.

But God and men are alike spiritual beings. And whatever either does for the other must be done in harmony with the laws of personal influence. However gracious God's activity towards men may be, he cannot make them like himself unless they freely give themselves to his influence. Hence, it is clear that there is but one condition of salvation, and that is that we put ourselves under the influence of God. It is the gracious influence of God alone that saves. But just because I am a personal being, and just because this transformation is spiritual, it cannot take place without my personal act in putting myself under the influence of God. Now, what are commonly called the conditions of salvation are just these free and personal acts by which I put myself under the influence of God. Faith is not a condition of salvation because God has so ordained it, but he has so ordained it because without confidence in God we will not put ourselves under his influence. Faith is necessary to personal influence without which personal transformation is impossible, and this is why it is commanded. Again, a sinner, so long as he loves his sin, will not put himself under the influence of the Holy One. Therefore, God commands all men everywhere to repent. Once more, but even if I have confidence in the character of a man and that character is not a rebuke to me, that man cannot influence me for good until I by my own free act open myself to his influence. Our fellowship must not only be wholehearted but it must, on both sides, be absolutely free. Personal influence cannot be forced. The Father can stand at his door and long for the return of his prodigal son, but it would only make the son worse to drag him home and compel him to live under his influence. Now, the free act by which the sinner crosses the threshold of the Father's house and puts himself under the Father's saving influence, is baptism. Man by some act of his own must place himself under the influence of God before God can transform him, and the act that Christ commanded was a burial out of the old life and a resurrection into the new. God incarnated himself in Christ; Christ incarnated himself in his church by his spirit. Baptism then puts us under the influence of God in his people, just as crossing the threshold of his father's house put the prodigal under the influence of his father. And living under the Father's influence and giving his powers to his work, he will be transformed into his image, and not otherwise.

But baptism does not tie God so that he cannot save without it. He saves by his spiritual influence, and he saves all who put themselves under that influence. Regularly we put ourselves under the influence of God by being baptized into Christ. This is the act ordained by Christ for that very purpose. And in the apostolic age all put themselves under the influence of God in his people in this way. But remember, it is the influence of God that saves and not the baptism. If the church obscures the simplicity of the way of salvation, and a man, in obedience to Christ, to the best of his knowledge, give himself to God, though in an irregular way, think you that God will not receive and transform him? God has tied his salvation to himself but not to baptism. Man cannot tie himself to God, a personal God, without faith in him; he will not tie himself to a holy God without repentance, and he must tie himself to God by a free act of his own. That act ought to be baptism, but who dares say that God has tied himself to this particular form of free act by which man can possibly give himself to God? It is our business to preach God's grace, but not to tie it down. Men have already done enough of that. It is enough that the meaning and simplicity of this divinely ordained act should be obscured by the traditions of men; and we will only make a bad matter worse by saying that God's grace is tied down thereby, and that none can have access into this grace except those who have entered in the regular way. Let us rejoice that the grace of salvation is preached, if it is not always presented in the regular way. Phil. 1:15-18.

E. A. ORR.

Mankato, Minn.

* *

A LOVELY COMPLEXION

New York Lady Proves that Every Woman May Have it by Using Cuticura Soap.

Mrs. R. Reichenberg, wife of the well-known jeweler of 146 Fulton St., New York, says: "I had a friend who was justly proud of her complexion. When asked what gave her such a brilliant and lovely complexion she replied, 'A healthy woman can be sure of a fine skin if she will do as I do, use plenty of Cuticura Soap and water.' She insisted that I follow her example, which I did with speedy conviction. I find that Cuticura Soap keeps the skin soft, white and clear, and prevents redness and roughness."

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE

Two Trains Daily from each city

Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars

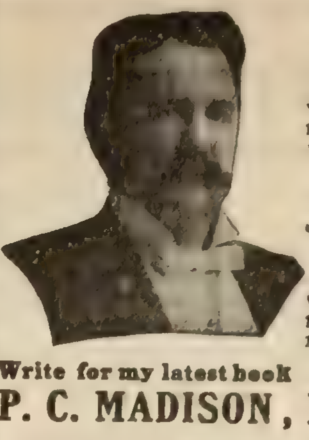
For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

SUMMER EXCURSIONS
-VIA-
BIG FOUR
From St. Louis

$ 7.65	INDIANAPOLIS AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 20, 21, 22, 23
$ 19.85	TORONTO, ONT. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 19, 20, 22, 23
$24.35	Asburv Park, N.J. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 29, 30, July 1, 2
$ 9.25	HAMILTON, O. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale June 30, July 1
$ 21.25	BALTIMORE, MD. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 2 3, 4
$ 19.25	Chautauqua, N.Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 7, 28
$ 18.50	BUFFALO, N. Y. AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale July 8, 9, 10
$15.00	PITTSBURG, PA. AND RETURN	Tickets on sale August 18 and 19
$22.00	PHILADELPHIA AND RETURN	Tickets on Sale Sept. 15, 16, 17.

For particulars call at City Ticket Office,
BROADWAY AND CHESTNUT
or Address C. L. HILLEARY, A. G. P. A.
St. Louis, Mo.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.



I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do—Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Family Circle

Concerning Grandmothers.

By Mabel Nelson Thurston.

There recently appeared in a magazine devoted to the multitudinous works and incomprehensible ways of the weaker sex, the portrait of a society woman of more or less prominence. The portrait wore, after the fashion of its kind, traces of an evening gown, a pearl collar and a jeweled tiara. All this was, of course, the veriest commonplace, pearl necklaces and jeweled tiaras being as plentiful in such chronicles as blueberries in August berry pastures. The shock came in the accompanying article. "Mrs. A. B. C.," the text ran, "is the most prominent figure in Elysian society. Years have no terrors for women like Mrs. A. B. C. Any one to look at her—as may be seen from the accompanying portrait—would take her for a girl of twenty-five. In reality she is a grandmother"—

That was where the magazine slipped from our startled fingers. A grandmother! Why, grandmothers wore caps and spectacles and shining black silk aprons (except where they were concocting delicious mysteries in the kitchen) and white things around their throats—soft, fluffy things that somehow always made one think of the shining clouds in a June sky. And they wore their hair in silvery puffs under white caps, or smooth, with a lovely pinky parting going through the middle. And they have fascinating brooches with pictures or braided hair inside, but never, never, pearl collars!

Yet, of course—one draws a long breath as this reasonable thought comes to one—a question so important as the matter of grandmothers cannot be decided by dress alone. The figure of Madame Tucker would confute that. Madame Tucker was supposed to be Alice Campbell's grandmother—supposed to be, we say, for although not for world would any of us have hurt Alice's feelings by betrayal of the terrible and exciting discovery, we were sure that she was not a real grandmother. We had ascertained this by a course of patient and skillful questioning. Madame Tucker never cooked anything in her life. She never mended Alice's frocks or took care of sick people or worked in a garden. She didn't do anything but have the horses ordered for drives, or read queer books or make lace caps. It was perfectly unmistakable to everybody, except poor Alice herself, that Madame Tucker really was not a grandmother at all.

For after all, there was the real test—not the clothes (we were all ravished by Madame Tucker's wonderful satins and camel's-hair shawl), but the things one did. The content of the word grandmother, so to speak, was caraway cookies and southernwood and bundles of flannel for poor people and stories and a something beyond all these which was like a bright, sunny Sunday afternoon—something that made one feel quiet and happy and "shining" inside. These were the things that made it more desirable to be a grandmother than to be anything else in the world, except perhaps the princess in fairy stories.

In the old legends, the tales of the world's childhood, was it not always the grandmother who was the wonder-worker, the one with whom all wisdom rested? And how should it be otherwise? Who else could make delicious, puffy molasses cookies, plump and soft as a cushion. such as one never sees when once the portals of the Golden Age have closed behind him! Who else could make such pies, shaped like wonderful cocked hats, such delectable custards and juicy Indian puddings?

In the life of Miss Susan Anthony it is recorded that the Anthony children always started for school early enough to stop at their grandmother's for fresh cheese curds and "coffee" made of hot water poured over browned crusts of "rye and Indian" and sweetened with maple sugar. Nor did they confine themselves to a single visit a day. Just as punctual was their after-school call, when they feasted upon the cold remains of a boiled dinner set aside for them on a pewter platter. Once their mother remonstrated with them for bothering their grandmother when they could have the same things at home. Susan's response was instant and so emphatic that it effectually closed the question.

"Why, grandmother's potato peelings are better than your boiled dinners."

It was the unerring instinct of childhood. Happy grandmother, who could so largely occupy her kingdom; happy Miss Anthony with so great a heritage! It is possible that the leader of Elysian society does at times lay aside the tiara, but could one picture her setting aside cold boiled dinner for her grandchildren? The imagination staggers at the thought.

Of course, cooking is the first talent of the real grandmotherf but there are others, only less comforting. Who else, for instance, could mend the jagged tears that an unkind fortune so frequently bestowed upon perfectly blameless and innocent victims—not only mend them so that they were a little better than new, but understand so perfectly that one was a victim of misfortune and not of original sin? Who else always knew by instinct when one had exhausted all one's resources in the long Sunday sermon, and never failed to slip into the small, eager hand two peppermint lozenges, which if sucked slowly, exactly lasted through the time of torture?

Who else knew so much about babies and sick people and poor people, and had such wonderful closets full of herbs and jellies and curious compounds whose pungent odor one hastened to sniff at every opportunity. And the garret, too, where grandmother kept her "pieces," and one went trudging up after her to help select the things needed for Molly Brown's rheumatism or Jane Brewster's new baby—what realms of romance they were, and how glorious to dream there a whole morning with grandmother "stepping about" no farther off than the floor below! She never forgot and left one there to a startled awakening to pressing and ominous silence and the possibilites of dark corners, as others had sometimes done. Ah, no—she was grandmother; and when did a grandmother ever fail a child?

But the world moves, and grandmothers, it seems, are moving with it. We have heard of the passing of kitchens and garrets and parlors and best rooms. and now grandmothers, too, are passing. They play golf and go to clubs and wear tiaras and look "not a day over twenty-five." A woman who went to a milliner's the other day, and glancing distastefully at the feather-decked monstrosities displayed in the showcases, asked to be shown a simple bonnet for an old lady, was deftly corrected by the stylish young woman who waited upon her, "But, madame, there are no old ladies these days."

Well, of course it is a very wonderful thing to be able to stare down age—to carry fifty years so confidently that one can look a camera in the face and defy it to show more than twenty-five of them; to play golf rather than care for one's neighbors—if indeed one has neighbors—and write papers upon the nutritive value of foods instead of making cocked-hat pies. Yet there will always be some of us to whom life is a richer and more beautiful heritage because in sweet country places where old-fashioned ways still linger, there are women who wear the gracious beauty of old age, all unconscious how beautiful it is; whose hearts are wise with the wisdom of years, and hands are skilled in simple ministries; women who never have guessed that life holds a better fortune than that of being "grandmother."—The Congregationalist.

❀ ❀

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write to her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.

UNEQUALLED

FOR USE IN

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

NEW SONGS OF THE GOSPEL No. 2.

$8 00 the Hundred.

Contains nearly all the great gospel songs now in use in America and England, including "Tell Mother I'll Be There," "As the Day Breaks," "Never Known To Fail," etc Send for returnable sample. . . . We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co. 1018-1020 Arch St., Phila.
156 Fifth Av., N. Y.

What a Pastor Sees of Christian Science.

"Why don't you put into print your own experience with this thing?" was the question addressed to me recently by a Bible-class teacher who had been asked certain questions about Mrs. Eddy's cult the Sunday before. "We laymen see its beautiful edifices and hear its marvelous claims, but we know little or nothing as to its real history. Tell us what you have learned from actual contact with it, and it will help us." Perhaps so. But I have long since come to the conclusion that people who will not believe their own eyes and ears and nerves will not believe another's words. Nevertheless, a real experience with nothing extenuated and nothing set down in malice may help keep some young person from falling into the pit.

When the fad first began to attract attention, as in duty bound I set out to learn what this strange thing might be. I procured Mrs. Eddy's pretentious books upon "Science and Health, or the Key to the Scriptures," and having been a student of philosophy for years, it did not take me long to discover that Mrs. Eddy had made the same blunder which every tyro in philosophy makes by assuming the non-existence of matter. This was her "great discovery"! She was too ignorant ever to have heard of Berkeley, and to have read Turgot's History of Philosophy, in which her hypothesis is ridiculed a hundred years ago as "the first guess of every beginner" was beyond her powers. It was the same old "suicidal system," in which, if you grant the premises, you destroy the conclusion. So, after a little laugh, I dropped it, thinking people were too sensible, too well educated, to be humbugged by it. But I was mistaken, as it proved.

I began to hear that this and that one had been infected with it, and an ubiquitous reporter asked me on the street one day why I did not "go for it" from the pulpit. I told him that "the people who accepted it were, so far as I knew them, good Christians, even if their creed was pagan; and I did not wish to root up the wheat with the tares." The next day a good parishioner, a widow, met me and said, "So you called me a pagan to a reporter yesterday?" "Quite the contrary," was my answer. "I said your creed was pagan, but you were not." "I am what my creed is," she hotly retorted. "I doubt it," said I. "Now let us look at the matter squarely. Does God love?" "Most assuredly," was the response, "that is the fundamental article of our creed." "Very good," I said, "that is Christian. Now let us take one step more. Is God a person?" "By no means," came the instant rejoinder. "Well, that is paganism," I said. "Will you as a next step kindly tell me how anything without personality loves?" That finished the conversation. She "had not got so far as that." And she never got much farther, because soon after that, having started a blister upon one heel by a long walk on a hot day, she repeated the walk the next day to prove that her heel itself was all her imagination. Naturally, she then had proud flesh in the sore. The third day, to make the evidence conclusive, she repeated her tramp, and she died of blood poisoning a week or two later. I buried her with Christian rites, for, despite her suicidal folly, her heart was right toward God.

About the same time I was called upon to bury a prominent business man who had been stricken suddenly, who died before he had time to arrange his affairs or even to tell his family in what condition they would be found. His widow, a "confirmed invalid for many years," whom he had carried to and from her lounge whenever she wished to be moved, was laid upon the sofa to listen to the services which I conducted. I remember that I said to myself at the time that the healthiest looking woman in the room was that same "confirmed invalid." Well, the investigation of his affairs after the funeral showed him hopelessly and irretrievably bankrupt. There was absolutely no one to whom the widow might turn for assistance. It was a case of either "fish or cut bait." Thereupon she was carried to the train. She was brought before a "healer," and, of course, came back inside of three weeks "well"! She is now, next to Mrs. Eddy, perhaps the most famous expounder of the new cult in the states. Had her husband left a fortune, she would probably be in bed yet. A great many people find they can walk when there is nobody ready to carry them.

A young couple whom I had married came to me some three years later in great distress. Their only baby, a beautiful boy, had died. They were followers of Mrs. Eddy, and declined to talk about the case; but with tears implored me to officiate at the simple funeral. Of course, I assented. But I confess I was surprised upon going to their apartments to find nobody in the room where the little white casket lay. The mistress of the manse, walking beside me, went to the bier and looked upon the lovely baby features. She turned to me with a start. "Father, it was a case of diphtheria, wasn't it?" "Certainly," I replied, "but you may stay. The family will not risk themselves in this room, but they are willing to expose us and our children." We called two weeks later to offer condolence, and found the room recarpeted, repainted and repapered. The child had died without any physician's care, but after it was lost, while they would not acknowledge that it had died of an

Man Preparing for Other Worlds

By
WM. T. MOORE,
M. A., LL. D.

Or the Spiritual Man's Conflict and Final Victory : :
A Story of Man in the Light of the Bible, Science and Experience : : : :

Cloth,
500 Pages,
$2.00

VERDICTS OF THOSE WHO HAVE READ THIS GREAT BOOK

His best book . . . It is the book of the gospel—the gospel for the man in the street.—Dr. Jas. Hastings, Editor of Dictionary of the Bible.

All who read the book will be benefited thereby. It breathes a sweet, pure spirit and will certainly do much good.—D. R. Dungan.

It is a book for the age, by one who is alive to the needs of the age and the great problems that confront the leaders of the church.—J. J. Morgan.

It is the ripest thought and matured conviction of a veteran whose ministry as a preacher and writer among the churches of Christ has been conspicuous. It bears the unmistakable marks of wide reading, earnest thinking and catholic sympathies.—Christian Standard.

It has been quite a help to me. It abounds in good suggestions and new applications.—Wm. Ross Lloyd.

It is a book of wide compass, depicting the spiritual history of man from his origin to his final destiny.—J. W. McGarvey.

It is the greatest book ever published by our brotherhood. At every reading it has had fresh charm for me. . . Send for it now! Now!! Not by and by, and you will thank me for ten years to come.—Jas. Small.

Dr. Moore is the most picturesque figure of this present religious reformation, one of its profoundest theologians and most charming writers. Of all his numerous and valuable contributions to church literature this is his masterpiece.—Geo. L. Snively.

Published by
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Church Supplies

Church Register and Record
With special rulings, headings and an alphabetical register. Printed on good paper and substantially bound. Size, 9x14 inches; cloth sides with leather back and corners.
160 pages, - $2.00 300 pages, - - $3.50

Concise Church Record
A cheap and convenient book in which to record names of members, date of admission, how admitted, and remarks. Space for 960 names. Printed on good paper and strongly bound. Price, - - $1.00

Contribution Record
For use in connection with the envelope system. Designed expressly for keeping systematic account of weekly contributions. The most convenient record published.
Half leather, quarto, 40 pages, - - $1.00
Half leather, quarto, 80 pages, - - 1.50

Collection Envelopes
Made of good, strong manila paper. Neatly printed; 2 1-2x4 1-2 inches; satisfactory in every particular.
Per thousand by express, not prepaid, $1.00
Per thousand by mail, - - - 1.50

Church Letters
Bound in book form with stub for memorandum. The neatest and most convenient published.
No. 1, Fifty Letter Blanks, - - $0.50
No. 2, One Hundred Letter Blanks, 1.00

Baptismal Pants
We handle only the best grade. They are made in regulation sizes, based on the size of the foot. If an exceptional size is needed it can be made to order. In ordering send size of shoe worn. Prices quoted on application.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

NOTICE!
The Woolley Sanatorium, the only institution in the United States where the Opium, Cocaine and Whisky habits can be cured without exposure, and with so much ease for the patient. Only 30 days' time required. Describe your case and I will write you an opinion as to what I can accomplish for you. Ask your family physician to investigate. Dr. B. M. Woolley, 106 N. Pryor Street, Atlanta, Ga.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
25 CTS. 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

infectious disease, they would not occupy the rooms again until they had been completely renovated.

The family most prominently identified with the movement in my field is now almost extinct. Except the parents, not one reached middle age. Five or six members of the household died in swift succession, one by a lingering and excruciating disease which racked and tortured her in every limb. But to the end she would never admit that she had ever felt a pain. Her sister, who had led her into this delusion, was soon after taken to an asylum for the insane. Her mind had given way under the strain. Yet "nothing was the matter," as the few survivors still insist.

One of my neighbors recently went to attend Mrs. Eddy's "jubilee." He and his wife were full of joy. They had discovered the secret of immortal youth. They and the party with them had bought a diamond tiara for their "mother." The poor fellow left the diamond crown East, but he brought his wife back—in a coffin. When any one asks me, "What do you think of Christian Science?" I answer, "Just what any man must think of it who has been burying its adult dupes and its infant victims for twenty-five years."

Just now there is a tendency upon the part of the people managing the affairs of the society, for it is a close corporation, and while everything is done in the name of the "discoverer," observant persons realize that there exists a secret cabinet which controls the policy of the whole order—there is a tendency to make of it a sort of high-muck-a-muck club, an exclusive affair to which only the "illuminati" with plenty of cash and jewels shall be welcomed. The houses of worship are built with a view to social requirements, with spacious vestibules, commodious cloak-rooms and elegant parlors. The cost of these things is kept a profound secret. The "church" never passes the hat and never makes a report. It is given out that money flows like water. But personally, I happen to know from the bank that there is a bonded debt of $125,000 upon one of these $200 000 marble structures just approaching completion. The attendants in this "Church of Christ Scientist," flatter themselves that they form an exclusive and learned coterie, whose social standing is attested by the number of carriages at the door. They do not realize, and probably never will realize, that every time an educated man reads "Church of Christ Scientist" he has a little laugh over the pretentious and sham learning of its founder, who doesn't know a noun from an adjective when she sees it, not even when chisled in marble.

Well, like the other mushroom growths, it will have its day and cease to be. Its first generation is now rapidly dying off, and the second appear far more intent upon its society features than interested in its therapeutic virtues; and as it from the first denied the reality of sin or the need of a Saviour, it never ranked as a religious organization. Its only perpetuity lies along the line of snobbery. This is now becoming almost as ridiculous as its "metaphysics," and when it does finally disappear it will die amid the inextinguishable laughter of the world.—H. D. Jenkins, D. D., Chicago, in New York Observer.

❀ ❀

The Revival of Old Masters in Music.

The tendency exhibited among thinking artists in America to offer works of the old masters upon their programs represents also perhaps the most conspicuous feature of the present musical life abroad, where the dearth of contemporary musical compositors of a high order seems to warrant these revivals, which have taken place both in the field of opera and in that of purely instrumental or choral music. The general revival of earlier works is spreading all over Europe. Though a modern art, music, strange to say, is already engaging the researches of the antiquary in nearly every country on the Continent.—Joseph Sohn in the April-June Forum.

FRISCO SYSTEM

It's Easy to Keep Cool

Just get on top of a mountain. That may not seem easy, but it is at

EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK.

An electric car right to the top where you will find the finest hotel in the Southwest.

The Crescent

An ideal place for rest and recreation. Reduced rates via Frisco System every day.

For Further Information write

GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT, FRISCO SYSTEM, ST. LOUIS, MO.

$52.50 Burlington Route From St. Louis

ROUND TRIP TO

PORTLAND

On Sale Daily—Return Limit 90 Days.

For Particulars Call at

Ticket Office, Broadway & Olive or Union Station

Or write W. A. Lalor, A. G. P. A., St. Louis.

Financial Opportunity

FOR CLERGYMEN

Any clergyman can learn something to his advantage by writing for my book entitled, "Ten Years," which gives my successful history. It tells how I started my immense business upon $50.00 capital. It tells the minister how he can invest $5.00 a month or more in a legitimate, profitable enterprise, which promises to pay at least fifteen per cent. this year. I want ministers and doctors as my special representatives. Write for this book. Address The Mac Levy Company, Dept. 86, 63 Clark St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bright, Interesting, Enjoyable

A BOOK OF

Chinese Illustrations and Stories

A Chinese

Story-Teller

Written by WM. REMFRY HUNT

Missionary to China.

167 Pages in Yellow Cloth Binding.

The Young Folks Enjoy Reading It.

75 Cents Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,

St. Louis, Mo.

A TRIO

of devotional books which have aided thousands of readers.

Alone With God

The Heavenward Way

Half Hour Studies at the Cross

Written by J. H. Garrison,

Editor of The Christian-Evangelist.

They are similar in size and binding, and being all written for the purpose of comfort and spiritual strength, they constitute what may properly be called

A Devotional Library.

PRICE,

Seventy-Five Cents a Volume, or

Two Dollars for the Set of Three

Volumes, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,

2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

GEO. KILGEN & SON

BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE

Pipe Organs

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Best of References. Correspondence Solicited.

With the Children

By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

A Week With the Woodneys.

FOURTH DAY (CONTINUED.)

"After all," said Mr. Woodney, "there is a certain relief in not having the Tumbletons here, even though the porch must remain unfinished. Now we will not have to stay to guard the premises. I am anxious to set about what I feel to be my great work in this village—getting the church rebuilt. Mace, will you set out with me on my pilgrimage?"

"Where do you want to go, papa?"

"We'll take the houses as they come; Enderthorpe's, first."

"There are a thousand things for Mace to do," objected old Mrs. Woodney, "and the Enderthorpes have not called upon us."

"Mrs. Enderthorpe, I understand, is sick in bed," returned her son, "and her husband and sons—all except Bob—are in Kansas City. Besides, I am going on business, and the formalities of society must not stand in the way."

"Mace can go with you this afternoon," said Mrs. Geraldine Woodney, "but all day to-morrow she will be busy with the dress she is to wear to your cousin G. C. D. Woodney's dinner." Mace did not like to go to their next door neighbor's, because she had never apologized to Bob, and she did not want to apologize now; but she made no objection, and presently they were standing on the little platform before the door of the one-story cottage. The Enderthorpe house was no larger than her father's, but instead of the rooms standing one behind the other like sheep going to market, there was one front room and two opening into it from behind. "It must be inconvenient, papa," Mace whispered, "for Mr. and Mrs. Enderthorpe and their four sons and the orphan all to live in such a small house."

"My love," returned Mr. Woodney cheerfully, "poverty always is inconvenient."

Mace was about to continue the conversation when the door opened. She was surprised at this promptness because at her home, company, when they first arrived, usually had plenty of time to conduct a conversation on the doorstep before anyone was in a condition to admit them. In the doorway stood a girl of about Mace's age, extremely ugly and thin, with a great bone in her throat, apparently one which had become fixed in the operation of swallowing. As she walked with one crutch, Mace knew she was the orphan which the Enderthorpes had taken to raise. Her feet were so large and her frame so thin that her legs rattled loosely in the tops of her shoes. Her step was so loud that Mr. Woodney asked with some confidence, "Is this Bob?"

"No, no, father," interposed Mace, "this is a girl. Is Mrs. Enderthorpe well enough to see us?" she asked.

"Yes, come in," said the girl. She saw that Mr. Woodney was blind, and spoke almost in a whisper, as if afraid of disturbing him.

"I want to talk to her on business," said Mr. Woodney, "and I want to be quite sure she is well enough to talk to me, for I should reproach myself if my visit disturbed her."

"She lies down all the time," said the girl in such a low voice that one could easily have slept through it. "She has been an invalid for twelve years. But she is over the bad spell she had a few days ago." Mr. Woodney and Mace followed the girl into the room, where Mrs. Enderthorpe lay upon a couch, dressed in white, her head propped up in order to look out the window. She was not so homely as Bob, but she was pretty homely, Mace thought. Her hair was like her son's, and her form was tall and slender, too. But somehow, there was a look on the homely face that made you forget it was homely; perhaps her fifteen years on the couch had something to do with it. "How do you do!" she said cheerily. "This is Mr. Woodney and Mace, I know, for I have watched you from my window." She held out her hand, and Mace, taking her father's hand, placed it in hers.

"How do you feel this afternoon, Mrs. Enderthorpe?" asked Mr. Woodney, gently.

"You shouldn't ask an invalid how she feels," returned Mrs. Enderthorpe, "it gives her too great an advantage. Here is our little orphan, a very good girl. Betsy, come and shake hands with Mr. Woodney and Mace." Betsy had a large, soft, damp hand which she presented awkwardly.

"My dear," said Mr. Woodney, "I am very glad to meet you, and you must come to see us, and get a little of your happiness from my family. How old are you?"

"I'm between fourteen and seventeen," said Betsy, almost in a whisper. Ordinarily her voice was loud, and even verged toward the rasping state; but she felt that a blind man should be treated with unusual care. "My mother married seventeen years ago and died fourteen years ago, and that's all I know of her. She and my father never left nothin' but the records. He died first. So I've got the time bounded that way, and I say, not older than seventeen, nor less than fourteen, though as to feelings there ain't no records to tally with them."

"Now, Betsy," interposed Mrs. Enderthorpe gently.

Betsy took her seat apart, and crossed and uncrossed her feet. She appeared a very nervous girl, and highly charged with conversation, which she felt it her duty to keep bottled up.

"My poor dear," said Mr. Woodney, "your disadvantage in knowing so little of your parentage must be made up to you by us who are more fortunate. My daughter, Mace, is also between fourteen and seventeen, and you two must become friends. I have come this time, Mrs. Enderthorpe, on business. We must get that church rebuilt, and I want your co-operation, and that of your family."

The invalid's face brightened. "How I wish it could be done!" she exclaimed. "Indeed, we will do all we can, and I am sure we could contribute a hundred dollars toward it."

Mr. Woodney's face shone. "Bless your heart!" he exclaimed. "That's the first word of encouragement I've heard since I proposed the undertaking. It's my idea to go right at it and get up the building before severe winter. We must have a place of worship. Day after to-morrow will be Sunday, and how strange it will seem to stay at home!"

"My boys need the church," said Mrs. Enderthorpe, "and my husband; and while I couldn't go to it, the sound of the church-bell would be like hearing the hymns. Before the church burnt down, I used to have the window up whenever it wasn't too cold, and I could hear the preacher's voice in all the high places, though I couldn't get the words; it was like a voice from home. Do go ahead with your noble plan, Mr. Woodney. The village needs a church above everything. Poor Betsy is just at the age to receive its blessed influence."

"And I will help, too!" cried Betsy, unable to keep silent any longer. "I'm going to pick blackberries to-morrow, and all I make is my own, and I'll give half of it for the church. And I've saved up a little wages, what Mrs. Enderthorpe has give me, and I'll let you have a dollar of it. I ain't never been to church but a very few times. I never lived nowhere, you might say. When I can first remember, I was just on the street, and I dodged from pillar to post till Mr. Enderthorpe found me, and if churches is what makes him and Mrs. Enderthorpe to be what they are, then I say, a church for me, and the quicker the better!"

"Betsy!" said Mrs. Enderthorpe gently.

"Yes, mo'm" said Betsy, sinking back in her chair and crossing her feet, but keeping an eye open for a chance to rush again into the conversation and take possession of it.

"I am all aglow with hope and enthusiasm!" cried Mr. Woodney, rising impulsively. "Come, Mace, let us hurry about the Lord's business. We will let you know how we get along, Mrs. Enderthorpe, and in the meantime, God bless you and your home. And you have watched us from your window?"

"That is one of my recreations," said the other smiling.

"How little we realize," said Mr. Woodney, "as we go about our daily life, that good spirits are watching us!"

"I am afraid," said Mace, with a blush, "that sometimes good spirits see us throw hens over their fences!" Then Mace explained her mistake, and Mrs. Enderthorpe laughed, and Betsy, who had some experience with chickens, got the conversational bit in her mouth and ran away with the whole party. Mr. Woodney, eager to prosecute his good work, went to the next house, where the Winterfields lived. They were met at the door by Mr. Winterfield, who introduced himself in a genial manner and pressed them to come in. He has often heard of them, he said, and was

BUSINESS
EDUCATION
—135— SCHOLARSHIPS FREE

Clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, St. Louis, and present or send it to

DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

ST. LOUIS, 10th & Olive; KANSAS CITY, PADUCAH, LITTLE ROCK, WACO, or OKLAHOMA CITY,

and you will receive booklet containing almost 100 mis-spelled words explaining that we give away, ABSOLUTELY FREE 135 scholarships, Personal or Home Study, to those finding most mis-spelled words in booklet. Most instructive contest ever conducted. Booklet contains letters from bankers and business men giving reasons why you should attend one of D. P. B. C. Those who fail to get free scholarship will as explained in booklet get 10 cents for each mis-spelled word found. Let us tell you all about our great educational contest and our gratified beyond measure at the visit; the only cloud on his happiness was that his wife and daughters were not at home. Mr. Winterfield, as Mace had expected from her short acquaintance with his daughter Marcia, was a cultured gentleman, who had seen a good deal of the world—meaning by this phrase not cornfields and potato-patches so much as city pavements, parlors with electric lights, and opera houses. When Mr. Woodney came abruptly to the cause of his visit, the temperature seemed to fall in the house, though the sun still shone in the street.

GREAT SUMMER DISCOUNT.

"Rebuild the church?" said Mr. Winterfield. "Ah, yes. And will it be a Baptist church, or a Methodist, or Episcopal—or what?"

"No, a union church," said Mr. Woodney; "a church where all can assemble in the same worship. A church which will not belong to any one denomination."

"But who will belong to the union?"

"Everybody. All who accept Christ as the Son of God, and who wish to honor him, and who have a hope of future happiness with him in heaven."

"Ah, yes," said Mr. Winterfield. "Now, the preacher, or preachers, that you get, what will they be? Will they be Presbyterians, or Congregationalists or—what?"

"Our preachers will simply preach the Word, and the love of God," said Mr. Woodney earnestly. "They will not for our purpose be of any denomination. When they are in our union church, they will be union preachers, and we'll have no other kind."

"Yes," said Mr. Winterfield, nodding his head. "Now this church; when we refer to it, what shall we call it? I don't mean, as you would say, 'the Union Church,' I mean if somebody joins it—what church will they be joining? What will they be? Will they simply be unionists, or Baptists, or Methodists, or what?"

"If any one should, happily wish to take his stand for Christ," said Mr. Woodney, "he would be received into our village church as a soldier of the Cross, and there would be no need to call him by any particular name; he would belong to our union church."

"Just so, Mr. Woodney, just so. And when such an individual moved away and took his letter with him, what church would it entitle him to enter as a member? Would a letter from your union church entitle him to a seat in a Methodist church, or a Unitarian church, or a Seventh Day Advents' church—or what?"

"While he lived here, he would simply be in our village church; when he left he could enter any church he pleased."

"I cannot understand," said Mr. Winterfield, gravely shaking his head. "All this is very simple to you who have planned it all out, but you cannot think how complex it seems to me! Suppose I want to be immersed; suppose I want to be sprinkled; suppose I ask to be dipped three times. Suppose I want an organ; suppose I object to one. But what puzzles me most is something like this: If I hold to close communion, or communion once a month, or once a week, how can I reconcile such views with those who are antagonistic.? It seems to me there would be a continual wrangling in your church; and a church is no place for wrangling. I don't know what to think."

"After all, Mr. Winterfield," said Mr. Woodney, "the question resolves itself to this: Is it better to have a house of God in the village, or is it not? Can nine families worship God under the same roof, or, do they prefer to have no house of worship, because they disagree in their opinions of the way to worship? Will the village be better or worse for the prayers, the hymns and the exhortations that will ascend from a union church where no denomination will have a day of its own?"

"It is a very difficult question," said Mr. Winterfield. "I understand Mr. G. C. D. Woodney is your cousin. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'm not sure the church idea is a wise one, but I promise to give half as much toward it as Mr. G. C. D. Woodney gives. He's about twice as well off as I am, and I'm sure that's reasonable."

As they left the house, Mace discovered Marcia peeping from behind the curtain of a second-story window. She whispered this intelligence to her father. "But, my child," remonstrated her father, "your bright eyes must be mistaken. Mr. Winterfield said his family is not at home.

"Perhaps their home is in Chicago or New York," remarked Mace sarcastically, "but they are certainly in the house. Now where shall we go, papa?"

"Mace," said her father wearily, "let's go home and rest up a few days from church-building."

* *

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route.

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run in less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF

SACRED SONGS

FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS, YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES, EVANGELISTIC SERVICES, AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF CHURCH WORK AND WORSHIP, ENTITLED :

Praises to the Prince

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music.
Handsome Appearance.
Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market.

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid	$ .30
Boards,	" " "	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " "	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" " " "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" " " "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" " " "	15.00

PUBLISHED BY

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

A Modern Plea for Ancient Truth

By J. H. GARRISON

An epitome of the plea for a restoration of primitive Christianity in doctrine and in life.

94 Pages—Bound in Pretty Oxford Gray.

Price, 35 Cents, Postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis

Toledo, St. Louis & Western R.R. Co.

"CLOVER LEAF ROUTE."

The Short Line St. Louis to Lake Erie and the North-eastern Summer Resorts.

ASK ABOUT OUR NET-SHAPED TOUR.

Lake { HURON
ERIE
CHAUTAUQUA

City Office 104 N. 4th Street, St. Louis,
R. J. McKay, D. P. A.

WILL OPERATE
Through Sleeping Cars
From ST. LOUIS To
Northern Michigan Summer Resorts
This Season as Usual
C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Publishing Company

2712 Pine St.

J. H. GARRISON, - - - - President
W. W. DOWLING, - - - Vice-President
W. D. CREE, - - - Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. CROW, - - Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. HOFFMANN, - - General Superintendent

Christian-Evangelist Special Excursion.

American Christian Missionary Convention—San Francisco, California, August 17-23, 1905.

Will Pass Through Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Southern California, Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota.

The Great Excursion of 6,250 Miles from St. Louis—Return Trip Will Be on Different Railroads.

The route traveled will have the following advantages over all others:

First.—It takes in more important places and inspiring scenery than any other route which can be taken. On this route will be seen the city of Denver, Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, Pike's Peak, the grand mountain scenery through Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, over the new San Pedro railroad to Los Angeles, the Orange Groves of Southern California, Pacific Coast line ride to San Francisco, Mt. Shasta, Portland, the Lewis and Clark exposition, the great forests of Washington, the delightful country of Northern Idaho, a ride of sixty miles up Hell Gate River, Helena (Montana), the great Mountains of the Northwest by way of the National Park and a thousand other attractions which cannot be enumerated here.

Second—Stops will be made as follows: Denver four hours, Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak eighteen hours, Glenwood Springs four hours, Salt Lake City twelve hours, Los Angeles two days, San Francisco five days, Portland two days, and so on. All important places will have due consideration.

Third.—The itinerary has been so arranged that we will pass the important scenery in the daytime.

Fourth.—This trip includes the Central, the Southern and Northern routes, and avoids the sandy deserts of Northern Nevada. You have the mountains of Colorado and Salt Lake, the Orange Groves and Los Angeles of Southern California, and the Portland Exposition, the Northern States and the National Park. These advantages have never been offered before.

Fifth.—This excursion will not only go to the Pacific Coast and return, but will pass up the Coast—the whole Pacific Coast—for more than 1,200 miles, through the three States of California, Oregon and Washington, and will take in all the great cities of the Pacific Coast—Los Angeles, with its delightful Orange Groves; San Francisco, the great Metropolis of the Pacific; Portland, with its great fisheries and Lewis and Clark Exposition, and Seattle, with its wonderful shipping and northwestern trade.

Sixth.—We escape much of the heat and sandy deserts of other Routes.

The Christian-Evangelist Special will have these and many other advantages over all other excursions.

RAILROAD FARE.

Kansas City to San Francisco and Return—Direct		$50.00
	By Way of Portland	56.00
St. Louis to San Francisco and return—Direct		57.50
	By Way of Portland	63.50
Chicago to San Francisco and return—Direct		62.50
	By Way of Portland	68.50

For Particulars, do not fail to address:

CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST SPECIAL
2712 Pine Street, - - - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

Business Notes.

Our friends must not forget that personal cheques cost us 15 cents for collection, while a draft or money order will only cost you from 3 to 10 cents. Ought you to ask us to be the loser?

The demand for Cradle Roll supplies indicates that our primary departments are taking hold of this good feature, and are coming to the right place for circulars and prices. See our 128 page catalogue.

Our handy "Scholar's Bible" is just the thing for some of the children who feel as if they were starting out this week for themselves and whose mother wants "started" right. Price 75 cents to $2.25.

The "one dime" album is a great means of raising funds by the children. Spacing for ten dimes on the cards; also names of the donors, all of which is then sealed and handed in by the pupil. Five cents each.

We have in stock now such books as "The Letters of a Self-Made Man to His Son," "The Virginians," "Gordon Keith," formerly selling at $1.50. We sell them at 60 cents, postpaid. Think of that!

Have you used the buttons with scenes in the Life of Christ or scripture texts, at 15 cents per dozen? Try them in your school and watch for the results in increased activity.

The Gospel of Matthew by Peloubet, at 50 cents (former price $1.25), is bringing us many orders, as it should, and the supply will soon be exhausted unless we can make similar arrangements for another lot.

The Miniature New Testament is the clearest type known to us. The book can easily be carried in the vest pocket, but the print can be read "afar." The book is very handsome; so that 50 cents is cheap for morocco.

The contribution baskets we are sending out are giving general satisfaction, that was as we intended—nothing better at the price being our motto. If you wish one at 30 cents, 80 cents or $1.50, command us and they will go promptly to you, not prepaid.

"Gloria in Excelsis" is one of the books that takes time to prepare, so that the many inquirers must wait patiently that we may send it out complete and in first class style. But send in your inquiries and orders and you shall have prompt service when we are ready for business.

"Whether Common or Not," at the special offer of 75 cents, is now in the hands of some delighted people, for it is full of fine points amid all its humor and quaint way of putting things. The price may be withdrawn at any time, as we only make the offer in order to show you what the book is.

"The Christian Worker's" Bibles and Testaments are going out so rapidly that we were forced to make another and larger order this week. The Bibles range in pirce from $2.60 to $5.25, while the New Testaments are from 75 cents to $1.25. We have plenty of circulars now and will be glad to send you one.

More than 2,000 song books have gone out this week. "Living Praise," "Popular Hymns," No. 2; "Silver and Gold," "The Gospel Call," No. 1 and No. 2, or combined, have not lost their hold on the people, not at all; for our presses are kept busy, while "Praises to the Prince" is now way behind on the orders. But we will be out of the woods by the end of this week.

That trio of devotional books is going into the hands of many graduates this spring. But parents are surely mistaken in thinking their boys do not enjoy such helps as well as the girls. "Alone With God," or "Heavenward Way," or "Half Hour Studies," will also be appreciated by the one whose exterior does not manifest his craving for the holier and sweeter things in an "hour with God." The trio at $2.00, postpaid.

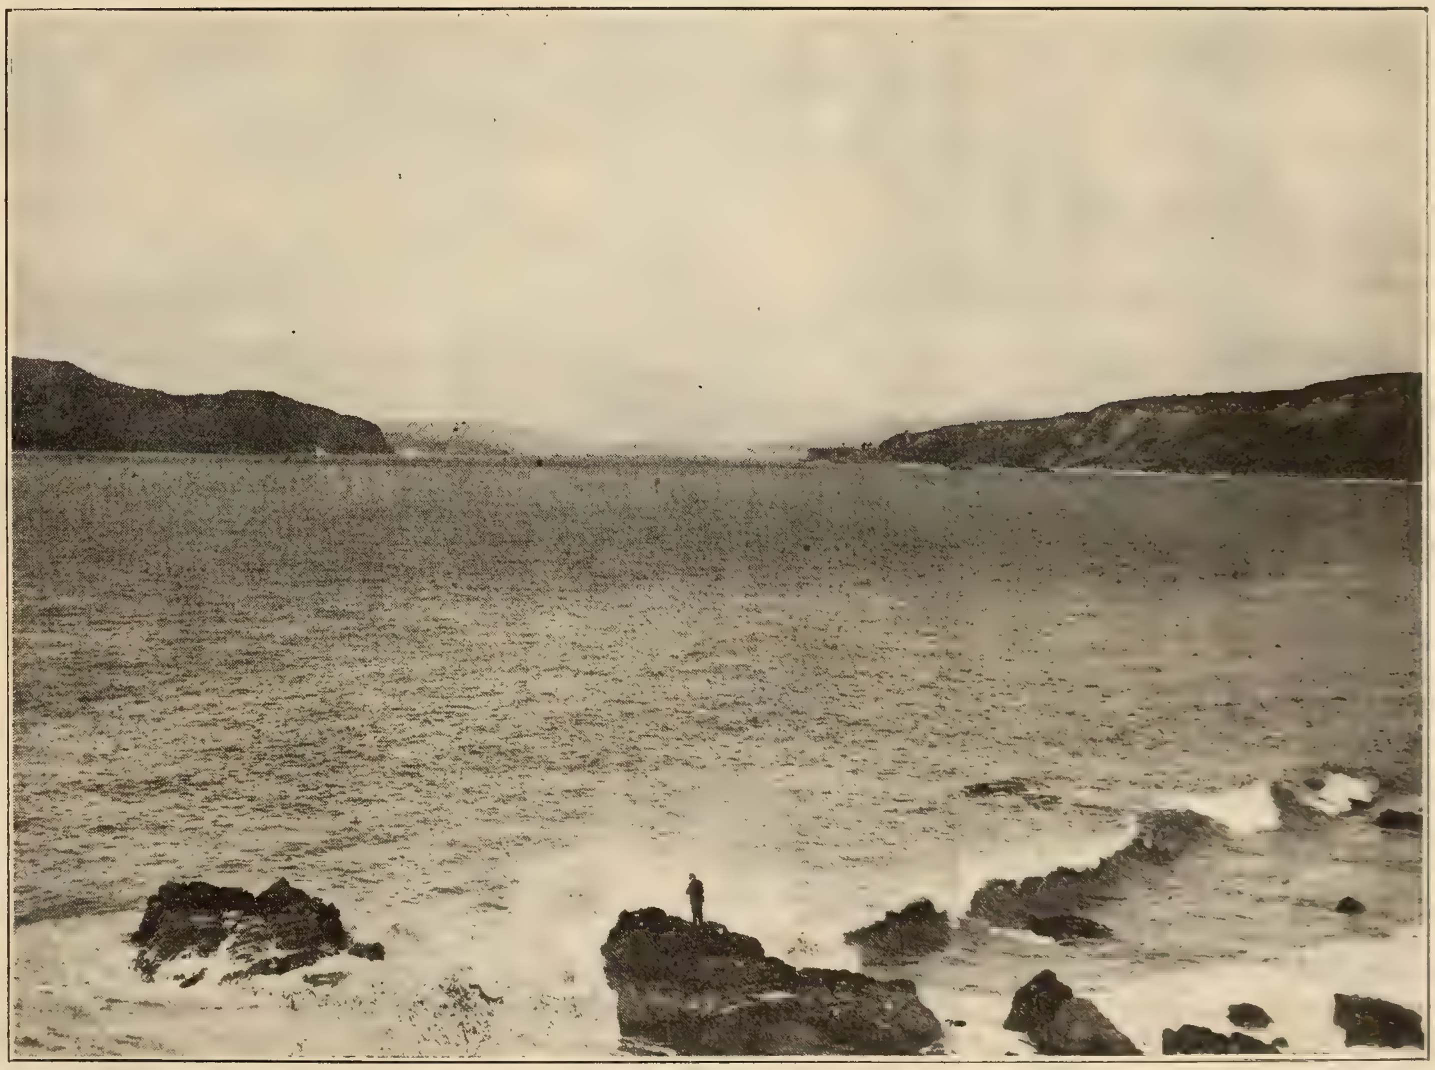
Some time ago we asked for 10 000 new subscribers to the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Of these you have sent us to date 7,117, for which we heartily thank you. We have been so busy in our subscription department that we have hardly had time to express our thanks for your good work in behalf of the paper.

We are anxious to complete this 10,000. You see we need just 2,883 to round it up. Will you not send us one or more new names at once and make at least two souls happy? Do not fail to let us hear from you.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

Vol. XLII. No. 26. June 29, 1905. $1.50 A Year



THE GOLDEN GATE, San Francisco.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Christian-Evangelist

J. H. GARRISON, Editor

PAUL MOORE, Assistant Editor

F. D. POWER,
B. B. TYLER,
W. DURBAN, } Staff Correspondents.

Subscription Price, $1.50 a Year

For foreign countries add $1.04 for postage.

Remittances should be made by money order, draft or registered letter; not by local cheque, unless 15 cents is added to cover cost of collection.

In Ordering Change of Post Office give both old and new address.

Matter for Publication should be addressed to the Christian-Evangelist. Subscriptions and remittances should be addressed to the Christian Publishing Company, 2712 Pine Street.

Unused Manuscripts will be returned only if accompanied by stamps.

News Items, evangelistic and otherwise, are solicited and should be sent on a postal card, if possible.

Entered at St. Louis P. O. as Second Class Matter

What We Stand For.

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth which makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speeds
The prayer: "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth 'gainst superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the New Earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing,
And the song of victory.

J. H. Garrison.

CONTENTS.

Current Events 819
Editorial:
- Divine Classification of Men—II........ 821
- When Shall We Hold Our Nationa Conventions?........ 821
- On to San Francisco........ 822
- Editor's Easy Chair........ 823

Contributed Articles:
- As Seen From the Dome. F. D. Power 824
- Admiral Togo and Church Extension. G. B. Van Arsdall........ 825
- Concerning Faith Cures. R. Moffett... 825
- The Romance of the Convention City. 826
- Portland and the West. Bruce Wolverton........ 827
- California's Welcome. J. Durham...... 828
- Our Representation To-day........ 829
- The Way to the Convention........ 830
- Convention Program........ 832
- A Report of the Missouri State Convention........ 833

Our Budget........ 834
News From Many Fields........ 838
Evangelistic........ 842
Christian Endeavor........ 844
Sunday-School........ 844
Midweek Prayer-Meeting........ 845
Family Circle........ 846
With the Children........ 849

"FOLLOW THE FLAG."

WABASH

THE WABASH LINE

Operates Through Sleeping Cars Between

ST. LOUIS

AND KANSAS CITY, OMAHA, DES MOINES, CHICAGO, DETROIT, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, NEW YORK AND BOSTON,

AND BETWEEN

CHICAGO

AND DETROIT, TOLEDO, PITTSBURG, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS, MONTREAL, NEW YORK AND BOSTON.

DINING CAR SERVICE THE BEST
AND ALL EQUIPMENT MODERN.

C. S. CRANE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Christian Church Convention

California

The Christian Church will hold its International Convention at San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 24

Santa Fe

The Santa Fe is the best way there

It's the shortest line to Southern California and a direct route to San Francisco—the time is fast—the weather is cool in summer—the track is oil-sprinkled and practically dustless—the mountain scenery is magnificent—one management all the way insures satisfactory service, start to finish—and Harvey serves the meals, the best in the West.

Tickets on Sale August 6 to 14, good to return in 90 days, from Middle-West states—on sale a day earlier in the East.

Round-trip Ticket rate via direct routes, $62.50 from Chicago, $57.50 from St. Louis, $50 from Kansas City, with stop-overs in Colorado and West.

Regular Service

The Santa Fe runs four trains to California. The California Limited is fastest and most luxurious—equipped with compartment, observation and drawing-room Pullmans, buffet-smoker and dining car. The California Fast Mail is almost as swift; the other two are called the Los Angeles and San Francisco Expresses; all three carry standard and tourist Pullmans and chair cars.

Special Excursion

Christian Church Special (equipped with standard and tourist Pullmans) leaves Dearborn Station, Chicago, via the Santa Fe, 10 p. m., Monday, August 7, leaves Kansas City 11 a. m., August 8, and arrives Los Angeles 6:00 p. m., August 12, stopping several hours at Albuquerque, N. M., Redlands, Cal., and Riverside, Cal.; also one day at Grand Canyon of Arizona. Personally conducted by a representative of the Santa Fe. Mr. G. W. Muckley, Corresponding Secretary, Board of Church Extension, American Christian Missionary Society, Mr. R. H. Waggener, National Superintendent, Christian Church Y. P. S. C. E., and Mr. Chas. A. Young, of the "Christian Century," will be in charge.

Grand Canyon Side Ride will cost $6.50 extra for railroad ticket, $1 extra for Pullman, and reasonable amount for accommodations at El Tovar hotel. The most wonderful scenic spectacle in the whole world, worth going thousands of miles to see. No extra charge for Redlands and Riverside side-rides through California orange groves.

Not room here to give full particulars. Won't you write to me for all the facts?

A. Andrews, G. A., 209 No. Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST

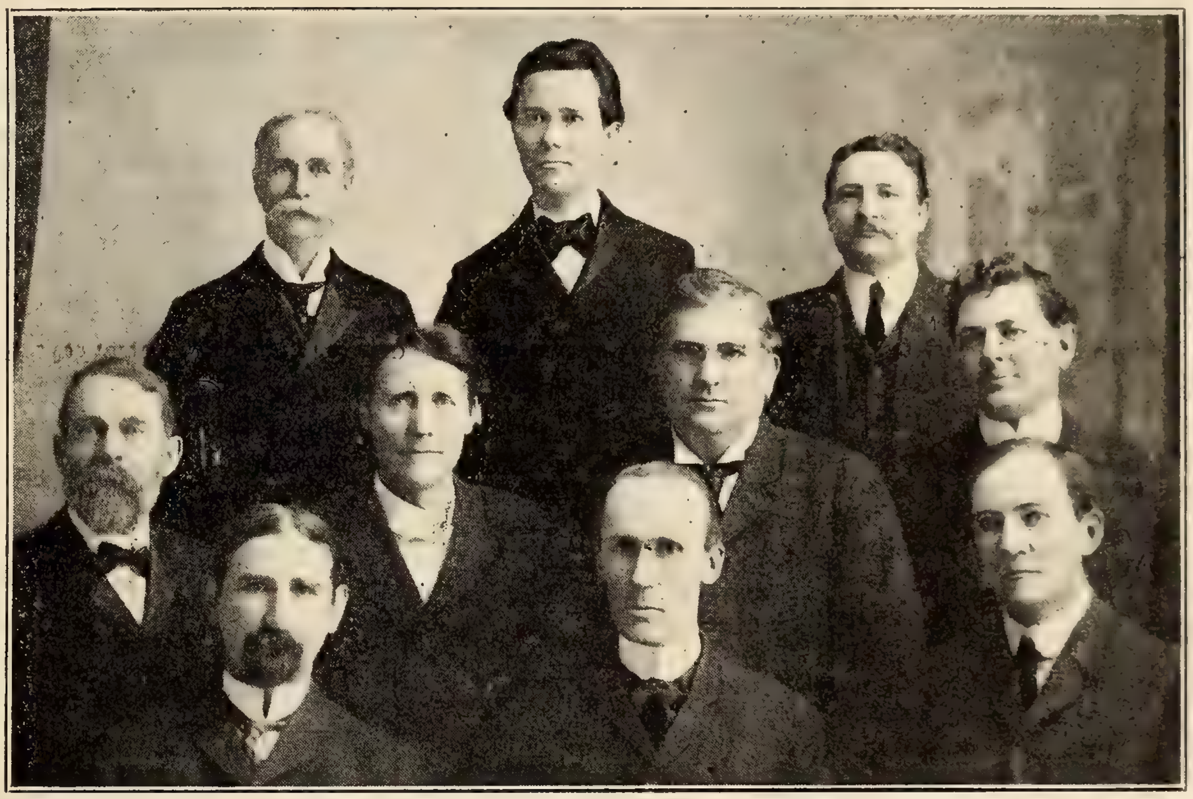
"IN FAITH, UNITY; IN OPINION AND METHODS, LIBERTY; IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY."

Vol. XLII. June 29, 1905 No. 26

Current Events.

Russia. The city of Lodz, in Russian Poland, was the scene of terrific riots and massacres extending over parts of three days last week. Several thousand workmen who are on a strike in the city, furnished fuel to the flame of riot. In the disorders which occurred on Wednesday, growing out of the strike, a good deal of property was destroyed and about fifty persons were killed. The troops, which are never far away in a Polish city, were called into action to restore order. It was in an attempt to avenge the death of the workmen who were killed by the troops in this first encounter that the second and far more serious outbreak occurred, the result of which was the killing and wounding of several hundred persons. The total number of casualties is given in some reports as high as two thousand.

MEMBERS OF THE CALIFORNIA CONVENTION COMMITTEE.



J. M. READ, F. S. FORD, GEO. C. HUBBARD,
A. M. ELSTON, E. W. DARST, W. M. WHITE, Chairman, P. C. MacFARLANE, HIRAM VAN KIRK, T. A. BOYER, Vice-Chairman, IRA J. SORRICK, Treasurer.

Other Members not in this photo are: L. E. SCOTT, Secretary, A. C. McKEEVER, R. L. RIGDON, H. D. McANENEY, J. P. DARGITZ, W. B. BERRY.

The Czar's speech promising to call a representative assembly and his subsequent letter to the Minister of the Interior on the same subject, aroused hopes of an effective reconstruction of the Russian government. It seems that the hope was premature. An official interpretation of the Czar's speech has been issued by the ministry of the interior, correcting the impression that there was to be a "convocation of representatives of the people on the basis of the existing constitutions of the countries of western Europe, whereas it was clearly shown by the Emperor's words that the conditions of such a convocation were to be based on an order of things responding to Russian autocratic principles." In that connection a general prohibition is issued against printing this speech except in its original form without abbreviation, addition or private interpretation.

It seems fairly assured that the Russian and Japanese representatives will meet in Washington about the middle of August to discuss terms of peace. Both governments are proceeding warily in their negotiations and are wasting a good deal of time for fear of appearing to be in a hurry. There are no present indications that an armistice will be declared pending these negotiations. The Japanese forces are closing in on Vladivostok. With their customary carefulness about keeping news of the campaign from the public, and thus from the enemy, they are concealing their movements, and it is possible that, before the time of the peace conference, another strong argument in favor of a quick and favorable peace may be added to the arguments of Port Arthur, Mukden and the Straits of Korea.

❁

France and Germany. A week ago it seemed that a peaceful settlement of the Morocco difficulty was almost positively assured, but within the past few days the war cloud has again been gathering. The new French premier, M. Rouvier, who went into office on a platform of conciliation as opposed to the uncompromising attitude of M. Delcasse, has shown himself unexpectedly firm in his refusal to accept the view of the matter which Germany urges. France claims paramount interests in Morocco and is unwilling to participate on equal terms in a conference of the powers in regard to affairs in Morocco. The Sultan of Morocco, realizing the need of better internal administration and also a better ordering of foreign relations, has issued to the powers, including the United States, an invitation to participate in a conference with a view to a satisfactory re-adjustment. The German government has been somewhat urgent in promoting this conference, and the suspicions of France are fully aroused. It is reported that war talk is rife in Paris—but then, Paris indulges in extravagant war talk on very slight provocation, and certainly there is as yet no reason to apprehend an outbreak of hostilities. The seriousness of the situation grows largely out of the fact that it is one of those complicated international differences which, although the subject-matter of the dispute is not of first rate importance, involves all of the powers directly or indirectly. It appears rather probable at present that the proposed conference will be held, as each of the powers is reported to have replied to the invitation by saying that it would accept if the others would. The reply of our state department indicates that, though our interests in the case are purely commercial and in no sense political, as those of the European powers are, we will take part in the conference so far as the matters to be brought under discussion concern us.

❁

A Senator Under Fire. United States Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, celebrated his seventieth birthday last week in the court-room, where he was called upon to face evidence that he had used his position as a member of the United States Senate to assist in the perpetration of land frauds. Judge Tanner, his former law partner, in co operation with whom the fraudulent transactions were carried on, was on the witness stand and testified with disconcerting frankness. He testified to Senator Mitchell's anxiety when he discovered how certain operations, and his own part in them, had been entered in the books of the firm, and quoted him as saying that if the books fell into the hands of the government they would both indict and convict him. It may be as well to postpone comment until the case is concluded, but meanwhile one cannot but feel the pathos, as well as the shame, of such a case. The Senator evidently went into the business with his eyes open, fully understanding that he was engaging in a criminal business, and taking his chances of getting caught. One cannot have much sympathy with a man who abuses the opportunities of public office in that way, but to be convicted at seventy after having enjoyed high civil honors is a bitter fate, the more bitter because the victim has only himself to blame for it, and one may find room for a degree of pity for the offender, even while one has only condemnation for the offense.

◆

The Equitable Investigation.

The Equitable scandal is not to end with the sale of Mr. Hyde's stock to the Ryan syndicate and the placing of this stock in the hands of three eminent and reliable trustees. There are some old scores which may have to be settled. The New York Superintendent of Insurance, Mr. Francis Hendricks, after an extended investigation, has published a report which is of the same tenor as the Frick report, which the directors of the society voted down by a combination of the Hyde and Alexander interests. The chief difference is that the superintendent's report is more sweeping and that it can not be set aside by the vote of the parties accused. Mr. Hendricks finds that the internal management of the society's affairs has been honeycombed by graft in various forms. The salary roll has been padded. The accounts show that salaries at the rate of from $10,000 to $25,000 a year have been paid to men who have been dead for years, and in other cases that names have remained on the pay-roll long after the parties had severed their connection with the company. Alexander and Hyde, as president and vice-president, have been drawing salaries of $100,000 each. During the past four years the salaries of the general officers have been almost doubled. The Hyde syndicates come in for a severe arraignment. This was a series of manipulations by which the resources of the society were used to support stock market operations in which the society took all the risk and the private individuals, Hyde and his associates, took all the profits. Alexander and Hyde have both resigned their positions in the society. Alexander has returned to the society $25,000, the profit which he received on one of these deals, and has called upon Hyde to restore a still larger sum, which Hyde refuses to do. August Belmont has joined the dozen or more directors who have resigned. District Attorney Jerome and Attorney-General Mayer are investigating the case and further developments may be expected.

◆

The Bowen and Loomis Case.

Secretary Taft's report of his investigation of the case of F. B. Loomis, assistant secretary of state, and Herbert W. Bowen, United States minister to Venezuela, throws the blame upon Bowen, and the President, in a letter reviewing the facts in the case, has ordered Bowen dismissed from the service. This is distinctly a disappointment. In the stormy times which came shortly after he went to Venezuela in 1901, Mr. Bowen showed himself a man of unusual capacity and effectiveness, and won the admiration of the country. He seemed to be a Roosevelt sort of man. The charge against him is that he has repeatedly and publicly made charges reflecting upon the honesty of his predecessor, Loomis, who is now assistant secretary of state, which charges were without foundation, that he has both repeated and originated gossip to the injury of Loomis, and that he used dishonest methods in trying to secure evidence against him. Since the President's letter was published, Mr. Bowen has given out a statement in which he declares that his dismissal and the exoneration of Loomis are a "national disgrace." He says that when he went to Venezuela, as successor to Loomis, in 1901, he found the air full of rumors to the effect that Loomis had been using his official position for his private financial benefit, and that he sent to the secretary of state documents showing the ground for these rumors, in regard to which documents Secretary Hay wrote: "I have been greatly surprised and pained in reading the documents you sent me." In short, Bowen reiterates his charge that Loomis is dishonest. It is not in the least probable that Secretary Taft, who conducted this investigation, and President Roosevelt, who approved the finding, are doing an injustice to Mr. Bowen. They are both his friends and would have every reason to give him a fair chance. At the same time, the dismissal of Bowen does not entirely clear Loomis, and since certain very specific charges have been made—which show that, as Secretary Taft says in his report, Mr. Loomis was at least not discreet—we would all like to know just how these charges are to be explained away.

An Inopportune Wreck.

We were speaking last week of the new achievements in the matter of railroad speed, and especially of the two new eighteen-hour trains between New York and Chicago on the Pennsylvania and the Lake Shore. On the fourth trip of the Lake Shore flier, the train struck an open switch at Mentor, O., and nineteen people were killed in the resulting wreck. The evidence points to the belief that the wreck was the result of tampering with the switch by some mischievous or criminally careless person, and that the speed of the train had nothing to do with it. And when a thing of that sort occurs, it makes little difference to the parties most intimately concerned whether the train is going forty or sixty miles an hour. Any speed that is fast enough to be worth while is fast enough to be exceedingly dangerous when the train gets off the track. So the immediate moral of the incident, to deal perfectly fairly with it, has to do rather with the large topic of care in operation of railroads than with the smaller question of the danger of excessive speed. And yet it is true, in a general way, that, in the hands of people who are not sufficiently trained to carefulness, a high rate of speed adds a considerable percentage of danger, and it may be doubted whether the American people as a whole have developed the virtue of carefulness sufficiently to justify them in risking these higher speeds. This is not a matter of criticism upon the railroad men, but a matter of national character. And as to railroad speeds, it is easy for us to expect too much. It would be foolish for anyone to attempt to put bounds to the possible speed of travel in the future, but the history of railroading suggests that any great increase in speed in the future is more likely to come from some radically new device than from an improvement of the present system. Stevenson's original locomotive, on its famous trial trip from Liverpool to Manchester, reached a speed of thirty miles an hour, and, with all the wonderful developments since then, that is still a fair average for the ordinary train.

◆

The reports that come from our societies are indeed encouraging, and we have every faith that when we assemble in San Francisco we will have the finest reports presented to us that have ever greeted us. There is an all round advance. It is a great pleasure for us to state that the aggregate gifts to the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, for instance, from Oct. 1, 1904, to June 15, 1905, amount to $156,676.76, or the splendid gain of $37,051.52. This is a 31 per cent gain, and the most gratifying financial figures our Foreign Society has ever been able to announce. The watch-word for this year has been $250,000.00. We now need to gain only $1,619.80.

Divine Classification of Men.—II.

In the previous article on this subject we stated, by implication, that each man had in him the capacity for becoming a spiritual man. Whether he be a natural or spiritual man depends upon whether he allows the higher or the lower nature in him to dominate. The spiritual, or the pneumatical man, does not obliterate or dispense with the natural or psychical, but he keeps him in subjection and does not allow him to give the tone and quality to the life and character. The possibility of the transformation of the psychic man into the pneumatic man grows out of the fact that man has a religious nature, or as Sabatier has expressed it, "Man is incurably religious." It is this capacity for religion that makes it possible for man to respond to the facts of the gospel with faith, to turn away from his old life of sin with penitence, and to surrender to Christ, who offers to supply his spiritual needs, a sense of which has been awakened in him by the gospel. This process is illustrated by the Parable of the Sower in which different kinds of human hearts are represented as bringing forth different spiritual results; it is the process that leads men on from the carnal or psychic man to the spiritual or pneumatic man.

The view held by some that the spiritual man of Paul is the miraculously endowed, or the supernaturally inspired man, and that the natural man is the man without supernatural inspiration, does great injustice to Paul's teaching in relation to the threefold nature of man. It ignores the distinction which he is seeking to make between the psychical man in whom the higher nature has not gained the ascendency and the spiritual or pneumatical man whose higher nature has been touched with the Spirit of God, and in whom a new life has come with new vision, and new spiritual capacities. It places the emphasis on the distinction between the inspired and uninspired, whereas Paul puts it on the distinction between the psychical and the pneumatical man. This view would limit Paul's pneumatical men to the apostles, a position which is not tenable. The truth that Paul has stated is a more universal one. It has its application, of course, to the apostles who received special inspiration in order to receive special revelations of God's truth to be conveyed to others; but it is by no means to be limited to them. We may not limit the spiritual power to apprehend and receive spiritual truth to any age or to any class of persons except those who have been "born anew" and who have received the gift and guidance of the Holy Spirit.

What are "the things of the Spirit" which "the natural man cannot receive because they are spiritually discerned"? We should say they are those things "which eye saw not, and ear heard not, and which entered not into the heart of man, whatever things God prepared for them that love him"; but which were revealed by God through the Spirit to the apostles, who, "combining spiritual things with spiritual words," or, as the margin reads, "interpreting spiritual things to spiritual men," spoke the same unto us. They include "the things that are freely given us of God," such as the joy of sonship and of communion with God, the happiness that comes from filial trust in God, the satisfaction which the soul finds in prayer, the power of love, and of the fruits of the Spirit which are at a discount with the carnal mind and which are keenly relished by the spiritually minded. "The things of the Spirit" are of supremest value because they stand related to man's higher nature, and his eternal interests, and yet "the natural man," who is yet under the dominion of the senses, and of the material, has no relish for and no proper appreciation of these spiritual truths.

Some of the lessons to be drawn from this teaching of Paul are obvious, among which we may mention the following:

1. Spiritual discernment, or insight into spiritual things, waits on spiritual-mindedness. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." The best way to understand the mysteries of the kingdom of God is to become loyal citizens of that kingdom.

2. What matters it that men of renown in science, in literature, in art, or in scholarship, sometimes utter sentiments prejudicial to Christ and to his kingdom? What else should we expect from those who have not been "born from above" and who are trying to solve spiritual problems with unspiritual faculties and powers? The humblest disciple of Jesus who has come to a knowledge of God in Christ, through love and self-surrender, has a far greater capacity for understanding and receiving spiritual things than the ablest scholar or Bible critic without such qualification. He has what the scholar or critic does not always have, the "anointing" of the Holy Spirit of which John speaks, "which ye received of him."

3. Men are to be rated, at last, by the great Judge, not by their physical strength, nor by their intellectual attainments, but by their spiritual stature. The very least in the kingdom of God is greater than the very greatest outside of that spiritual dominion.

These things are written that we may place a higher estimate upon our spiritual sonship, with all the dignity and high privileges thereunto belonging, and that we may desire, as our highest ambition, to enter into the higher knowledge and more blessed enjoyment of that spiritual feast which God has prepared for them that love him, not alone in the hereafter, but even in this present life.

When Shall We Hold Our National Conventions?

One of the questions which is certain to be raised before the San Francisco convention will be the date of holding our national conventions. Shall we go back to October, the time fixed by the constitution unless otherwise changed by the convention or the board, or shall we agree on a new date? If the latter course be deemed wise, what time offers the most advantages and the fewest disadvantages? With the view of crystallizing public sentiment among us, the Christian-Evangelist submits a few reflections on the subject and calls for a brief expression of sentiment on the question.

In the first place we believe there is a widespread sentiment in favor of a change from the present constitutional time. It was fixed at a primitive period in our history, and was probably very well adapted to the conditions which then existed. But many new conditions exist to-day which would seem to require a change. The following objections have been urged against October as the month for these conventions:

1. It is the time of year when our colleges are just opening, or have just opened, and it is difficult for our college men to be liberally represented in these conventions, as they should be both for the sake of the colleges and the conventions.

2. Business men will tell you that it is perhaps the very busiest month in all the year with them and that they find it exceedingly difficult, just at the beginning of the fall business, to be absent from their stores, shops and markets. We are making special efforts now to enlist a larger number of our business men in these conventions. One of the greatest obstacles would be removed by bringing the convention to a season of the year when the demands of their business would be less strenuous.

3. Many of the preachers take vacations, as they ought to do, and do not enter upon their autumn work until the first or middle of September. They feel that it is doing injustice to their work to be called away for a week or ten days including a Lord's day to attend the national convention.

We need not specify other classes, for nearly every kind of busniess or profession finds October an inconvenient month for a religious convention. These are the objections urged against that month, and they are not without weight.

What other date will avoid these and other objections to the present constitutional time? August, the month selected for the next convention for local reasons, has this objection to it, not to mention others, that it divides the vacation season and is likely, on that account, to divide the attendance. It seems to us that the time selected ought to be just before the vacation period, or just at its close. The latter part of June, after the close of the schools, or early in September, at the close of the vacation period, are the two dates between which the choice lies. September would make less violent change from the present order than June, and has some other things to recommend it. It would be followed by the active period of the year when plans and motives are fresh in mind, instead of being succeeded by the vacation period, as it would be if held in June. On the other hand if the convention were held in the latter part of June, it would be preceded immediately by a period of greater activity than if it were held in September. June would interfere less with vacations, too, than September, which many people include in their vacation period.

These, then, seem to us to be controlling considerations in the case. The time should be fixed so as to accommodate the largest number of those who ought to be represented in the convention. It should avoid collision, as far as possible, with the stress of business, and the vacation season. It ought, therefore, to be removed from October, and to be fixed either at the beginning or close of the vacation period; that is to say, late in June or say the first week in September.

It will be impossible of course to fix a time that will suit every one. What we should aim to do is to select a date that will accommodate the largest number. We should be glad to have expressions of opinion from those interested on this question with the view of aiding the convention at San Francisco in coming to a wise conclusion. To secure as great brevity as possible, let the answers be directed to the following questions:

1. Would it be wise to change the date of holding our national conventions?
2. If so, what date, in your judgment, would best serve the interest of the convention?

* *

For the Foreign Society to secure its quarter of a million it will be necessary for some considerable gifts still to be made. This is but the money side of the gain. Our home churches and our workers in the foreign field have all felt the impetus of the new interest. As that interest increases it must inspire not only to more diligent work but to greater inflow to the treasury of the Lord for the world's evangelization.

On to San Francisco!

We trust that every reader of the Christian-Evangelist who can do so will go to our International Convention, which is to be held at San Francisco August 18-24. Reasons why they should go when it is possible for them to do so will appear to everyone. We might urge the purely personal factor of an enjoyable time. Many of the brethren on this side of the Rockies have no idea of the grandeur, beauty, and scope of the far west. A visit to the Pacific coast can be made a delightful holiday that shall be as instructive as it may be healthful. Grand mountain scenery, the delights of the orange grove country, and the pleasure of watching the rolling Pacific as we skirt for miles along its beach will but lead us to one of the most go-ahead and most cosmopolitan cities on this continent. We need not dwell on the wonders of the northwest: to gaze on Mt. Shasta, to sail up the wonderful Columbia River, to take in the sights of the Portland Exposition — these and many other attractions may be made part of the convention goer's program. But there is more than the personal and selfish side to be considered. While the trip through the glorious Rocky Mountains to the attractions of the Mormon capital, and all the sights and scenes of the Pacific coast and the northwest territory may offer a delightful vacation, we ought to consider primarily the good we may do by visiting our brethren in San Francisco under the special conditions that will make August, 1905, the greatest month the brotherhood on the Pacific coast has ever known. Wherever our conventions are held, there comes strength to our cause. San Francisco is the great emporium of the west, destined to become one of the greatest cities in our whole country. The importance of strengthening our cause there is apparent. From every quarter of the western slope our brethren will gather to the city of the Golden Gate with one great thought in their minds and one great motive in their hearts. The Pacific slope for the cause of New Testament Christianity will be their tocsin. Shall we of the east not go over the mountains in our thousands to bring them cheer and a Godspeed? It will cost us little; it will do us good physically; it will open our eyes to the great possibilities of our country and we will receive a spiritual uplift, while the enthusiasm that we will help to generate will mark an epoch in our work on the coast. Let every man and woman go who possibly can, and begin to make preparations at once!

THE "NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST" HALL.
Our San Francisco Convention Headquarters.

*

The Missouri State Convention, of which we give a first report in another part of this issue, was in some features one of the best conventions that has ever been held, though we must say it did not grapple with some questions as we believe it ought to have done. It becomes more and more apparent to us that the business side of our conventions ought to be developed and the set-oration side curtailed. The most interesting sessions of the convention were the conferences. These were eminently helpful, throwing side lights on phases of work from every quarter and from all classes of workers. The committee reports may easily become stereotyped and accomplish little of the good they are intended to bring about. A fact of value was the election of a business man as president. The most important matters brought before the State Mission session were the questions as to whether there could not be a closer alliance between its evangelistic work and that of the Bible School Board, and whether there cannot be a readjustment of the days for our missionary offerings.

Editor's Easy Chair.

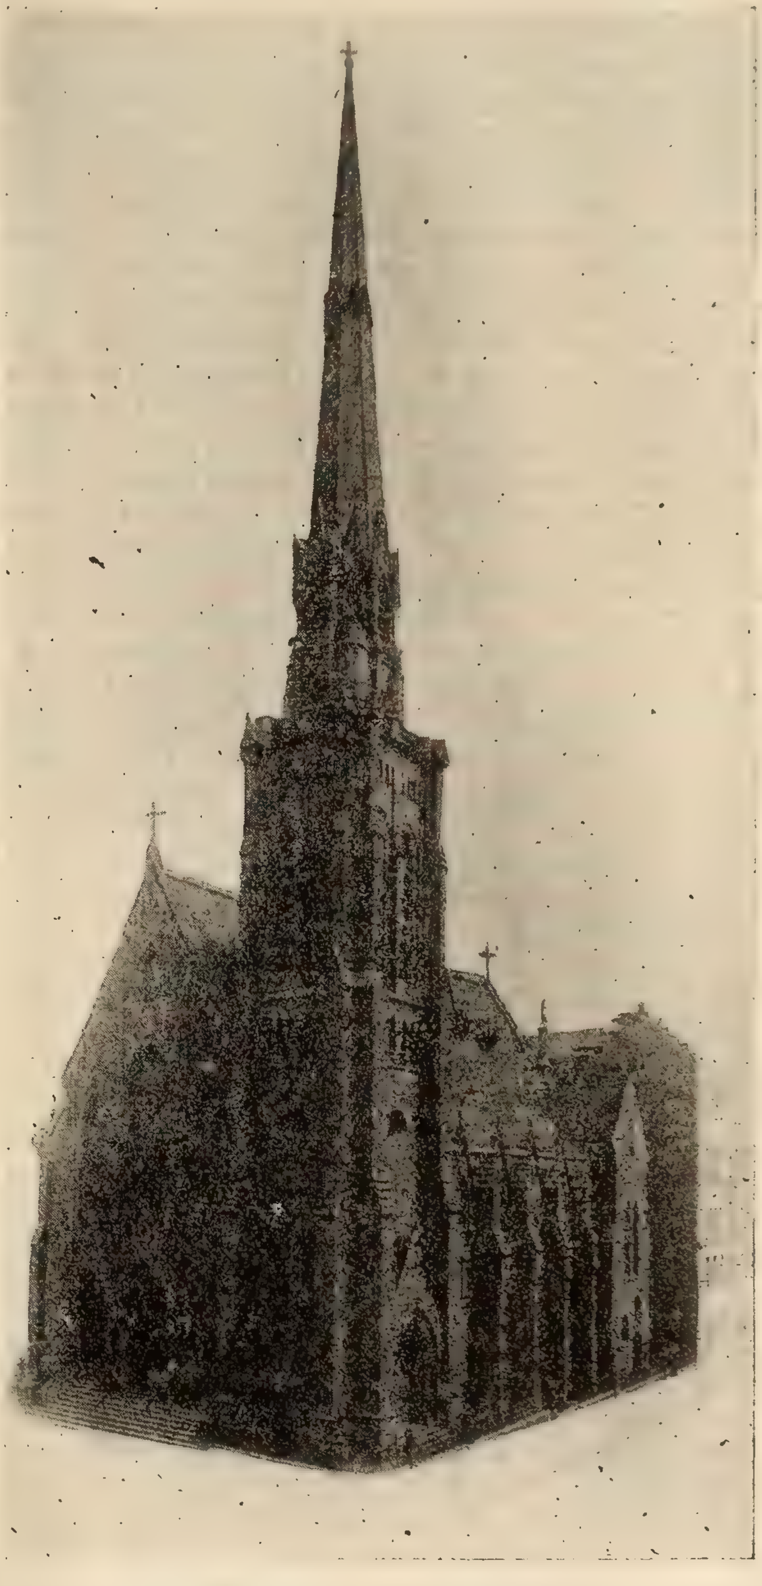
Boom! Boom! Boom! It is not the roar of cannon, but the thunder of the waves that fills our ears. It is an high day on lake Michigan. A strong gale is sweeping down from the north, driving in the long, white-crested billows which are beating on the shore, and sending up their deep diapason. The landlubbers who are crossing the lake to-day for the first time will not only see a strange sight as they gaze out over what seems a shoreless, watery plain, across which are galloping the white-maned coursers of the deep, in wild fury, but they will experience strange sensations. These sensations will not be wholly of the sublime, but some of them quite the reverse. Those who experience these unwonted feelings will retire from the gaze of the unsympathetic to indulge in private meditation! Falling into a reverential mood they will present a heave-offering to Neptune. After that they will feel better, and may mingle with the crowd again. If they have no relapse they are likely, after landing, to tell their friends how "me and the Captain" stuck to the deck whence all but they had fled! Roll on and roar on, thou imperial lake, whose shores are strewn with thy wreckage; but know, too, that there is a Hand that holds thee in leash, saying to thy proud waves, "Thus far shalt thou come, and no farther!"

◆

Who owns the lake? The question was passed on here recently by one of the small, bright boys whose parents are resorting here. Returning from the lake where he had been to take his constitutional he told his mother, with some indignation, that another boy had said to him that a man owned the lake and that he (the boy) would not be allowed to bathe in it any more. "What did you say to him?" his mother asked. "I told him," said the young philosopher, "that I guessed the lake belonged to God, and that anybody could bathe in it that wanted to!" The boy was right. In the highest and truest sense the lake belongs to God, and therefore cannot be monopolized by any man or by any group of men. The boy's logic, too, was entirely sound. Because it belonged to God anybody could bathe in it that wanted to. God's things are for all. The air is his, and all may breathe it. The sun is his and all may share in its warmth and light. The seas are his, and all who can may sail over them or profit by them. The land, too, used to belong to God, but it has nearly all been "taken up"! But there now! We are not going to be drawn by this boy's logic into any new theories of land ownership. But we do believe that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof," and that he wishes all to share in it.

◆

As the Easy Chair had "exclusively" pre-announced, the Editor has exchanged the shade of the oaks and elms at "Rose Hill," St. Louis, for the bracing breezes of lake Michigan. We have made a temporary halting place at Macatawa Park, and for the present are occupying the old quarters —"Edgewood on-the-lake." These paragraphs are written in the old semi octagonal study overlooking the lake, where so many of our "Macatawa Musings" have been written. It is one of the fairest spots of earth to us, and having enjoyed it for many years, we are willing to pass it on to some one else who, we hope, may get as much benefit and enjoyment from it as we have. We have already met a number of familiar faces here, many of which are familiar also to many of our readers. T. P. Haley and A. B. Jones are here, and take to the water like two grizzly old salts. They are about the most persistent fishermen here. We have met also the Hallacks, the Rogers, the Hollands, the Cadys, and the Muckleys, of Kansas City. The Earls and a part of the Bennett family are here. Bruce Brown, of Mansfield, Ohio, is here also. The cottages are filling up gradually, the ravages on the lake front are being repaired, the hotels are opening, and by the Fourth of July the season at Macatawa Park will be in full swing.



THE HISTORIC FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.
A Meeting Place for the Evening Sessions of our San Francisco Convention.

◆

We have just returned from a day's visit to Pentwater, eighty miles above here, on lake Michigan, where we are having erected a cottage in the pines, into which we expect to move within two or three weeks. It is a duplicate of Macatawa Park, and retains its primitiveness. Hence its charm. Not that we expect to live there, a hermit life. We were not "cut out" for a hermit. We love company, but for the purposes of a summer rest we like select company. An association of congenial spirits is essential to an ideal resting-place. We have made provision for such at Pentwater. "None other need apply." This is no real estate speculation. At the bottom it is an effort a few of us are making to establish a summer resort for Christian people who wish to rest, and while recuperating the body would like Christian association and Christian worship, undisturbed on the Lord's day by excursions of pleasure-seekers who fill the day with tumult and confusion. There is room among the Pentwater Pines for a number of people who would like that sort of a resting place, with good fishing, boating and bathing thrown in, but no room for the contrary kind.

◆

We are giving our readers, this week, a little foretaste of the San Francisco convention. We wish them to be thinking about that convention and getting ready to go. It is the opportunity of a lifetime to see the fairest and sublimest things in the west in the way of natural scenery and enterprising cities, and to meet some of the choicest people on the coast. They will be at San Francisco. That trip on the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special, across the plains and over the mountains and up the California coast, will be worth telling your children and grandchildren about. Said a preacher from the east to us a few days ago, "That CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special must be a long train, for everybody out our way is going to take it." Well, there is room for all, and we hope it will be something more than a picnic excursion. Let us make it a joyous, religious procession, bent on being good and doing good on the way, and having a distinctly Christian errand to attend to when we get there. If that's your idea, come thou with us and we will do each other good.

◆

The Missouri Convention has backed up the Ohio State Convention by recommending that the question of the unifying of the offering for State Missions and the offering for Home Missions be brought for consideration before the San Francisco convention

As Seen From the Dome

By F. D. Power

Last week I had a run down into one of the many Switzerlands of America known as southwest Virginia. Crossing the border of the Old Dominion into Mercer county, West Virginia. I found myself in that picturesque mountain region near Bluefield which has a world-wide fame now as the Pochahontas coal fields. The Concord normal school, located at Athens, W. Va., had a commencement, and I had an address for the graduates. This is one of the state's half dozen normals, with an attendance of three hundred young people. If there is anything I esteem as a privilege above others it is the opportunity to speak to young men and women at such a time. Athens is beautiful for situation, nearly three thousand feet above the sea, and it has something of the spirit of the original Grecian center of art and learning. Its educational institution has done a great service, and under the direction of President A. S. Thorn is prospering and ever widening its influence for good. No class of schools seem to meet the American demand more efficiently than these normals. No one could begin to measure their usefulness in preparing the youth that seek their advantages for life's great work. No state seems more forward in the work of education than this mountain commonwealth, as recent visits to its university and three of its normals have convinced me. Then our own Bethany is doing its work in West Virginia.

This southwest Virginia region is Dr. Chester Bullard's country, the home of the "Bullardites." His early home was near Christiansburg and he operated in all this fair mountain country, preaching and baptizing and planting churches, before he knew anything of the work of the great leader who was preaching the same simple gospel in the far northwest corner of the same state. Landon Duncan first preached these things, the spiritual father of Bullard, and afterward, besides Dr. Bullard, came Cowgill, and Abell, Shelburn and Baber and Snow. C. S. Lucas began his work in this favored section and in one year here baptized six hundred persons, receiving six dollars for his services. Book is one of the choice volumes which this country has issued and Abbott is another high ecclesiastic it has given to the world. Athens is in the Bluestone district where J. C. Reynolds is rendering such efficient service as evangelist. He has organized five new churches during his two years' work and has four houses of worship in process of construction. One of these is a very pretty little sanctuary at Athens. The evangelist draws his own plans and superintends the work. He has a most important field at the seat of this normal institution. Above all things we should be well represented at such seats of learning. They are great missionary centers.

What is needed most in this part of the vineyard are strong, self-sacrificing, devoted young men to preach the gospel and care for the country churches. Our evangelist tells me he could use a half dozen in Mercer and McDowell counties. Why should there be such a dearth of young men entering the ministry? Some one put this question to me recently in the presence of a number of good Christian women. I said: "Ask the mothers." Why should there be so few of our young preachers willing to go to the rural districts? I may answer: Ask the teachers in our Bible colleges. Why should not our young ministers be trained to seek such fields when they go forth from our schools? Why might it not work well to insist that no young preacher shall be admitted to a city charge until he has had an apprenticeship of three or more years in the country? When a youngster I rode forty miles on horseback over just such roads as these of southwest Virginia to one of my appointments, and I did this for months; and I have many times on Sunday morning ridden horseback thirty miles and preached at the eleven o'clock service. Hardship? Oh, no, it was the best possible preparation for the sermon. Hopwood and his Virginia Christian college ought to send fifty young men every year into the rural districts of Virginia and West Virginia proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ to the people. Read The Plea and the Pioneers in Virginia, by F. A. Hodge, which is just from the press. It is a very simple and faithful story of some valiant men and their work in building primitive Christianity in Virginia. We would wish it might have been fuller, but as far as it goes it is excellent reading and will meet with a hearty welcome among Virginia Disciples. Those are great names in Zion: Abell and Ainslie, Bagby and Bullard, Shelburn and Walthall, Parish and Goss, Coleman and Curtis, Henley and Pendleton, and the rest. They belong to our Eleventh of Hebrews.

On my way I passed through my old field of service, Charlottesville, and near by, North Garden, where the President has his summer home. That was a mission point, where I preached a little for the mountain folk. I never had a church even for a few months without opening a mission. Here I did some work in 1874. "Plain Dealing" is a few miles away. Mr. Roosevelt has a little cottage and fifteen acres. The house is a story and a half, two rooms below and three above, and probably cost a thousand dollars. Here Mrs. Rooosevelt will go when tired of dress parade. Here they can turn the children out, and breathe the purest air and drink the best of water from the spring and eat the fresh vegetables and fruits and eggs, and lead the simple life. It is the same country which was the home of one of the greatest of his predecessors. Indeed in a little circle of the countryside Jefferson and Madison and Monroe all lived and not far away Zachary Taylor saw the light. So he is in a congenial atmosphere for a Chief Magistrate. Mrs. Roosevelt selected this refuge and resting place with rare good judgment and "Plain Dealing" is not a bad name for the country seat of so illustrious a plaindealer. Now if the newspaper men would only have the decency to let him alone, and give him that privacy which every American gentleman has a right to enjoy, the whole nation will express its approval.

In obedience to a call from friends in Old Gilboa church I turned aside at Charlottesville to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sarah E. Hawkins. She was a sister of Mrs. Dr. P. B. Pendleton, and at the ripe age of seventy-three had entered into rest A Christian woman of the most beautiful character, and useful life, I had known her since the beginning of my ministry, and it was a sad privilege to minister to her children and to the church in this bereavement. I was struck with the large number of colored people who gathered with the rest of her many friends at Gilboa to pay tribute to her memory. Such saints are the eternal heritage of the church of Christ.

Our Beaver Creek pastor, W. S. Hoye, was recently called to Virginia to render similar service for his brother, H. H. Hoye, who died in Richmond, June 9. He was an old confederate soldier with many of the scars of battle on him, having one leg amputated three times. Still, he was an active man, an official of the state, a brave, generous, and faithful Christian. To him Brother Hoye owed his education for the ministry and the tie between the brothers was ever a very tender one.

Our Virginia brethren are in the throes of an assembly. J. J. Haley and J. W. McGarvey are the chief lecturers, and Lynchburg is the place. With Professor Willett at Richmond and President McGarvey at Lynchburg the balance is maintained. Along the Potomac all is quiet. Bagby is off for a week's rest at Tappahannock, Va. Winters, his assistant, has resigned. Murray Taylor has been absent in Kentucky lecturing. Claude Jones is in a successful meeting at Vienna, Va., Stuart is "sawing wood and saying nothing," and Smith is busy with Kimmel Hall. We have not organized a church for three weeks. Dawson, the evangelist, has been here. He preaches well, but he wants $550 for ten days' work. Some think $55 a day is too much, even if the preacher has ten children to support, as Dawson has, as the average dominie cares for his hopefuls at a much more moderate figure.

Admiral Togo and Church Extension

By G. B. Van Arsdall

When Admiral Togo assumed command of the Japanese navy in the present war with Russia he sent this parting message to his family, "Tell them that I am well and happy and that they must not distract my mind by sending letters from home while I am away." This does not mean that this "terrible" Jap is a callous soul, devoid of emotion or affection. On the contrary he is passionately devoted to his family. At the same time his family dismissed all their household servants and have since done the drudgery of housekeeping themselves. This was not because of poverty, but "Bushido" or the so-called "Soul of Japan," teaches that while loved ones are enduring uncommon stress or hardship, luxury and ease are unbecoming to those who remain at home. In exemplification of this doctrine the emperor himself last winter is said to have denied himself fire during much of the time that his devoted troops were facing the icy blasts of Manchuria. If the heathen Japanese, the incarnate spirit of skill in the art of war, does this out of that strange oriental philosophy of chivalrous devotion to duty, what shall we expect of the children of the King whose armies unfurl the banner of peace and whose victories are the conquests of love?

Are the dear ones of the Japanese family more deserving of sacrifice upon the part of their loved ones than the spiritual kinsmen of the household of faith? Who are our nearest kinsmen? It was the Man of Galilee who said, "Whosoever shall do the will of my Father who is in heaven, he is my brother and sister and mother." This is the true kinship that shall never be dissolved. Who are the men and women who are enduring uncommon severity and hardship for the kingdom of Christ? Are they not the innumerable little companies of faithful Disciples who in the face of mountains of difficulties are struggling to establish the cause that we, their spiritual brethren and sisters, hold dearer and more important than the most signal material conquests of the most valiant armies that ever unsheathed the sword in battle? No martial music to inspire is theirs. In most instances not even the voice of a human leader is heard in their assemblies. In imagination they may hear the anthems of the heavenly chorus and by faith they follow the voice of their spiritual Captain. Day by day they endure the unceasing grind of life, from Lord's day to Lord's day they meet in homes and halls where all physical comfort and convenience are denied them; out of meagre earnings they lay aside as the Lord has prospered them in the hope of ultimately having a place, their own, where they can worship God. And all the while the siren voice of denominationalism is calling them to release from sacrifice and hardship. These are the true heroes of the cross. Brethren, are ease and luxury becoming to us, their brothers and sisters, who stay at home? Are we having fellowship with Christ in his suffering unless we do some of the drudgery of life and deny ourselves for these who are facing the icy blasts of hardship? These are questions that each one will answer on the first Lord's day in September.

Concerning Faith Cures

By R. Moffett

Was faith cure a part of the life and teaching of the Master? Was it intended to live on after him, so that if we believe now, we can be healed? There are those who think so. But is it true that Christ's miracles of healing depended on the faith of the patient? Among the multitudes that were healed were "lunatics," the "dumb man," the "deaf and dumb man," a man with "dropsy," the "impotent man," the "demoniac," and many more, to say nothing of men dead and buried, who gave no signs of having faith. And why not include raising the widow's son and Lazarus in "the life and teachings of the Master"?

If "faith cure," "divine healing," and the like, as practiced by good people and Mormons, are not the same as "miracle healing," I have greatly mistaken language. "Christian Science," which is neither Christian nor science, does not come in this class. The followers of Mrs. Eddy do not believe in the divinity of Christ. They do not believe in the existence of sin or disease. They cannot be members of the church of Christ, because they cannot be built on the foundation of which his church is erected. "Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers." The only thing in "Christian Science" that has any value is as old as the time of the first sick man who was treated by an intelligent nurse. All the rest is philosophical humbug. It is easy for all these promises to get and hold the attention of sick people. Drowning men grasp at straws.

Miracle working was not the mission of Jesus Christ. It was simply incidental to a fundamental purpose. He came "to seek and to save the lost," "to save his people from their sins." His was "the blood of the new covenant, shed for many for the remission of sins." He suffered and rose from the dead that repentance and remission of sins might be possible. No man could accomplish this great mission. Therefore Jesus wrought his miracles to confirm his claim to be "the Christ, the son of the living God." An extraordinary fact or proposition must have an extraordinary confirmation. This is the chief place for the miracle. John tells us the record was made to establish this fundamental fact. Nowhere in the record is there an intimation that Christ's mission was that of a miracle worker, except to make clear this fundamental fact, and make it unanswerable by his resurrection from the dead.

Besides this, divine healing does not seem to have made many of the subjects much better. He healed ten lepers and one returned to glorify God. He healed "great multitudes," but how many were at the ordeal of the cross? How many were present on the day of Pentecost? The fact is the salvation of the body is little better than the salvation of the purse to make the soul better.

No, the word of God is the power of God to make men and women whole, and fit them for every good work. Everything else is a delusion and a snare. If the Lord has a special work for you, he will see that you are prepared in every way to do it. No Christian doubts Christ's power to work miracles to-day, but the miracle depends wholly on his power and will, nor will he wait for human faith or prayer. His miracles had a great purpose already accomplished. There will be no more until he sees there has arisen a necessity. Till then we must be content with the usual workings of divine Providence and these are sometimes distinctly marked by the divine hand.

Cleveland, Ohio.

* *

Two Kings.

Thomas Curtis Clark.

A king of peerless fame was he;
His minions coursed o'er land and sea,
To fill the need;
But he whom men called great and brave,
To pride and passion was a slave
In thought and deed.

A peasant, poor, unknown to fame,
Wrought daily at his bench; but shame
With men he found;
But, strong of soul, he gave no heed,
Still toiling for his children's need,
A king uncrowned.

The Romance of the Convention City

At the Fisherman's Wharf—Like a glimpse of Naples. Belles of Chinatown. Year 'Round Flower Market, a feature of San Francisco.

San Francisco and its surrounding country has shared in every episode of interest on the Pacific coast.

In the days of good Queen Bess Spanish treasure ships and English buccaneers played at the game of hide-and-seek along her shores. Sir Francis Drake touched at a little outlet forty miles north of the present harbor and left his name at Drake bay.

While Washington and Jefferson were laying the foundations of the American institutions on the Atlantic coast the padres were planting their crosses along the Pacific. They came in from the south and have left an unbroken chain of missions from San Diego to Santa Rosa. These adobe structures of medieval Spanish architecture, still held by the Franciscan monks, are objects of great interest to the traveller. They bear witness to the altruism of a day long gone by, but show that the beginnings, of California's history were not made in the mad rush for gold in the 40's but in the beautiful story of Junipero Serra and his associates—missionaries of the highest ideals whom the world will rank among its benefactors.

Next came the Mexican racheros, whose sleepy life, and whose hospitality have been so well pictured in Richard Henry Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast." In those days Yerba Buena (now San Francisco) became a trading post for horns and hides and ship supplies.

Then came the Mexican war period. Into this life of ease and luxury came Fremont, Stockton and Kearney. The American frontiersmen pitted themselves against the Spanish population. The bear flag was raised at Santa Rosa and a new territory was conquered for the United States.

Scarce was peace made with Mexico until Captain Sutter's workmen found gold nuggets while digging for a mill-race in the Sacramento valley. The news spread like wild-fire and the adventurous of all climes and nations rushed thitherward. The "prairie schooner" brought train after train over the desert, while ships loaded to the water line went around the Horn. San Francisco as the port of entry, shared in the excitement. It had its tale of magnificent fortunes made and lost in a season, vigilance committees and transformations into the most cosmopolitan city of the world. Here came Horace Greeley to lecture and saw his own advice—"Go west, young man, and grow up with the country"—in action. Here came Horace Bushnell and helped to lay the foundations of the University of California. Here came Bayard Taylor, who sings the song of gold in his "El Dorado." Here was brought up Bret Harte whose inimitable stories are a fair picture of life in a mining camp.

Mining is still an important industry in California and the yield is scarcely less than of the greatest year of the fifties; but the present may be called the agricultural period. With the influx of population came the problem of food. The vast territories of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys were put out in wheat, and as great fortunes were made in farming as were found in the mines.

Bidwell, Glenn and others form a list of names important in California affairs. Then came the days of Stanford, Huntington and the Southern Pacific. With them the bonanza kings of Nevada—Flood, Mackay, Fair, etc.

It seemed that California was becoming the rich man's land; but there came now the greatest boon to western civilization—the poor man's hope—irrigation. Large holdings were broken, desert tracts have been put out to small fruits, and California has already become the orchard of the world. Its supplies of oranges, lemons, peaches, apricots, almonds, walnuts, grapes, raisins, prunes, etc., have reached every market and the whole race is healthier and happier.

The next era is to be one of manufacturing. The want of coal and iron has kept this branch of industry in the background. But the discovery of petroleum in large quantities, and the harnessing of the unlimited water power, and transmission by electricity to great distances, make possible this needed complement to Pacific coast life. A home market for home products will free from dependence on the railroads and add new independence to life.

Also the new Pacific presents its added charms, the Isthmian canal. The colonies, Hawaii and the Philippines awaken China, Titanic Japan and Alaska, and bid the emigrant to pass out of this open door to the orient to fame and fortunes beyond.

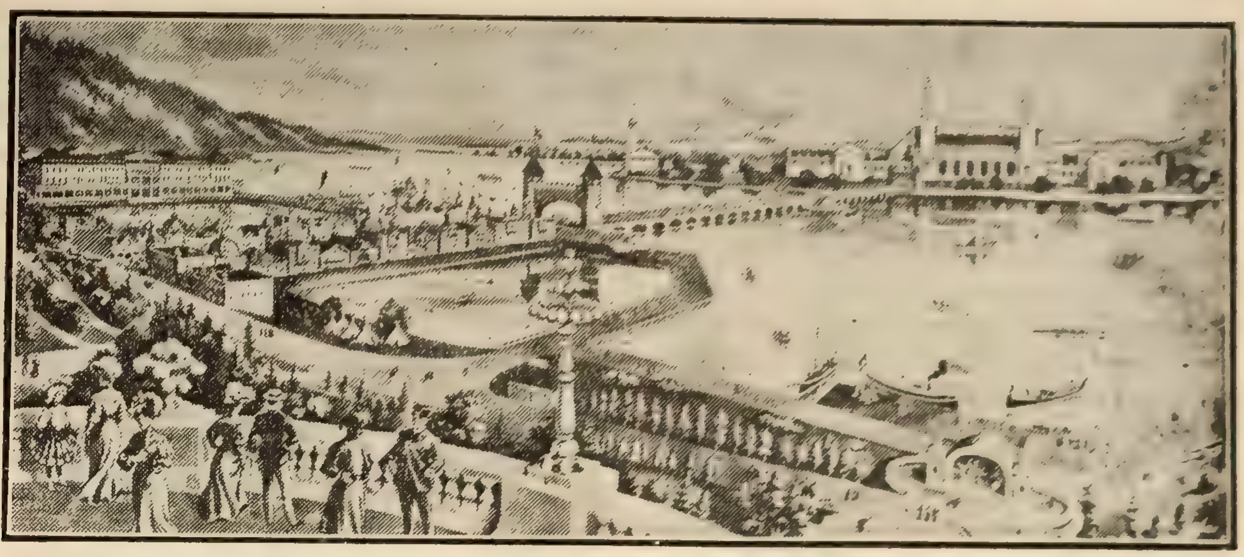
Thus California has never been wanting its sensation, its romance. Each period has brought new problems, new interests. San Francisco has ever been the center of these transformations and will remain the metropolis of the Pacific coast.

This romance of history has ever been made more interesting by the charms of Nature showered lavishly on every side. The gold has found its counterpart in the sunset, the plain is everywhere broken by the presence of mountains in the landscape; fruits ever have their prophecies in the flowers, while the zephyrs of the west bound coast cool the heat of summer, and mitigate the cold of winter. Life is everywhere at its easiest and best in California. It must have its poets and painters, its prophets and reformers. The past has not been wanting these, but conditions point here to a possible flowering of civilization not to be surpassed in the western world.

Suburban communities have grown up about the city, chief among which are Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, San Rafael, Belvedere, Sausalito, San Mateo, Menlo Park, Palo Alto, Burlingame, and Redwood. Electric and steam railways and ferries bring these places in close communication with the city. There are in the city over one hundred and eighty miles of electric railways, seventy-seven miles of cable road, eleven miles of steam dummy system and ten miles of horse railway.

Portland and the West—Lewis & Clark Exposition

By Bruce Wolverton



Lake Front, "Track" Bridge of Nations, Esplanade, Government Building, Etc.

It is generally known that the Lewis and Clark exposition will be open until October 15 in this city of roses. The occasion is the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the famous Lewis and Clark expedition. This was a most notable event. It opened the way of the United States to the Pacific ocean, that future arena of the world's greatest commerce. The extent of the territorial acquisition is small in comparison with this more important feature—trans-Pacific commerce and Christian awakening. Indeed, "a great door and effectual" was opened for America, the greatness of which will be more and more appreciated as—

> From out his hand
> The centuries fall like grains of sand.

There will be one thing unique in this exposition. On June 1 the exhibit was complete, saving minor additions from fruits in season. Practically everything was ready June 1. Portland and Oregon are ready to receive and to entertain. By Oregon is meant all the original territory of 250,000 square miles. Governor Mead, of Washington, declared June 1 a holiday. Idaho will do her prettiest among her older sisters. She will show herself truly the "gem of the mountains." Nature has been planning a grand display. The great Columbia river has agreed to furnish no flood this season. The great mountain peaks are all dressed in purest white, contrasting with long ranges of living green. Fields are teeming and orchards are promising rich loads of luscious fruit.

Oriental Exhibits.

Portland "on the Willamette" is moving in many ways. First, many of the old and unsightly structures, erstwhile the envy of former visitors, but now out-dated, have been moved to the rubbish heap or the flames, and scores upon scores of substantial buildings have been filling their places. Then, miles upon miles of cement pavements have taken the place of wooden walks.

Electricity is Portland's magic wand. Hundreds of factories, great and small, and yet almost a smokeless city. Water power, the cheapest on earth, up the Willamette, up and down the Columbia, in the Coast range, in the Cascades, and all easy of access and ready for the magic touch, makes this the center of a manufacturing district second not even to Pittsburg. Time will tell and Portland is coming up to her opportunity.

Again, Portland during the last year has been scouring and scrubbing in the political and civic realm. The mayor tried (?) awhile, and gave out. Too many grafts. He "fell down," as it were, to the grafters. For a time it was "compounding with crime," on the silly plea that, "the city needs the revenue," and "we can't enforce the law anyhow," in the case of gamblers and saloon-keepers. Better fine them "once a month."

But another arose who knew not "George." His name was Wood, sheriff of the county. He, strangely enough in this day, Folk-like, thought an oath was to be kept. For about 10 months now he has been "cleaning house" in Portland. The result is, many gamblers and others of like ilk have "folded their tents like the Arabs" and hunted a more healthy climate. The result is, the atmosphere is purer, righteousness is in the ascending scale —not wholly dominant. There is another election this month and the friends of good government are not sure of the result. Still, the trend is for better things.

Spiritually, the union meeting led by Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and his coworkers in April was indeed an uplift. The problem of co-operation without compromise was a prominent feature and a success. From the critic's side there was little that was objectionable. Viewed as looking toward Christian union, it was hopeful. As touching the principles for which we have for 75 years been pleading, namely, the exaltation of the Christ, confession of him and submitting to his will, this was inspiring. Surely there is a tide in the affairs of his kingdom which taken at the flood will sweep all together. Surely, at such a time as this in the great plea of the Disciples, we need be looking for the "flood," and ought with all wisdom and patience be ready to improve the crucial opportunity.

Lake View Terrace.

All our churches here received additions as the result of these and other meetings. At the First church, the accessions since January 1 have been about 70, or more than during all of last year. Surely this is encouraging. While on this subject I may say that since many who will visit the national convention this summer will return by Portland and over the northern roads, we are hoping that the great exhibit which the great west will make, will determine many of the Christians to come and abide. Why not undertake in a larger way the "colony" plan used so successfully by other people? Why not the children of the kingdom use a little more of this wisdom in which even Mormons put us to shame? If Paul were back here in the west, I opine, he would be opening most of his epistles with "To the brethren scattered abroad." But enough—a hint to the wise, etc.

Lastly, Portland, the rose city; Oregon, the sunset land; Washington, young commercial giant; Idaho, gem of the mountains—all these in this great exposition after 100 years of struggle, of growth, of expansion and development, bid the world a welcome. I may be partial to the west, for which I would offer no excuse, but I may be permitted to say that I know of no part of the United States where the opportunities for development, material, social, educational and spiritual, are so "big with promise" as on the sunset side of the Rockies. We need men for the pulpit still, but more, we need them likewise to fill the pew. We need to place the touch of Christian enterprise upon every branch of commerce. "Come and see." Better still, abide a wee.

California's Welcome.

By J. DURHAM

We are expecting that when the clans gather by the Golden Gate, the gate will move upon its hinges. It is the kind of gate we never lock and, better still, as you approach it opens with a halo of rosy morn or golden eve.

We were amused to read that some of our good brethren beyond the Rockies were much troubled at the great mistake the brethren had made in placing our great international convention in California at the back door of the republic. Why not come to California? She is an empire within herself. Yes. "Come and see an emerald set with diamond snows of the Sierras and the surf of the sea." This is the greatest state in the galaxy. Why, one of our back counties—San Joaquin—carried off more prizes at the St. Louis exposition than any other county in the nation. It seems as if we have too many smiles of nature; if she would shut off our sunshine, give us a tornado or zero weather occasionally we would the more appreciate our great commonwealth. "She has the golden fruits of tree and mine and every resource, within her own domain, that has made this nation great." We now invite the great Christian brotherhood to this great empire of wealth, intelligence, trade and enterprise. We are at the front door, yes, we front the greatest ocean, the greatest empires, our great island possessions, those greatest ocean currents that give us our salubrious climate, that arena of the great war of the Orient, the field of the greatest missions, whence go through our "front door" more Bibles than any other American seaport; in short we face scenes and interests that are shaping the destinies of this world. Shut up your back doors and come to our front doors, walk among our rosy bowers, rest under our palms, eat some olives, berries, pluck some golden oranges, luscious apricots, figs. Come, bare your brows, let the great Pacific fan your feverish cheeks, inflate your lungs with ozone, bathe in our placid waves till you feel that you have been born anew. And some one said, "The worst of all, you are going to San Francisco during the 'dog days of August.'" Why, bless your life, we have all forgotten your eastern melody of "dog days." True "Canis Major" makes his regular trail through our starlit canopy and his bright Sirius twinkles in a blaze of delight at us, but he never brings a shiver, a chill or a fever, but goes on to alarm some Indianian or Missourian. Come out to San Francisco, the keeper of the gate of gold; tarry with us a few nights, put on your overcoat or shawl and you shall have the key and when the morning dawns you will look out on the great ocean, bare your head and "praise God from whom all blessings flow."

This year is to be a record breaker, it seems, in the way of national conventions in California. It is on the program that nine great bodies are to meet with us. The people of the east know something of California hospitality as well as her convention weather. California does not need to make any special preparation for these visiting delegates. This state is always ready, swept, decorated, fragrant with roses, callas, pinks and geraniums! Her doors are open and the "bars down."

She aims always to have the "best foot foremost," with not very much of the "worst foot" to keep back. She always has her house cleaned and her parlor ready for company. From the mountain summits to the ocean sands she opens her hands for greetings. In fact, she can prosper with one hand at work and one at play, for she has no short summer to keep both hands busy putting up winter stores. True, nothing hibernates in California. Even our bear has to leave the state or climb a mountain to "suck his paw," for he can stay at home during our "almanac winter" and fatten on berries and wild honey.

We look for many who will conclude to stay over with us or come back when their "ship comes in," or they can dispose of their "ice ponds" at their old eastern home and can give up their subterranean storm parlors to

(Continued on page 829.)

❁ ❁

FOOD IN SERMONS.

Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working and eminently successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to bear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet.

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfast, usually consisting of oatmeal, milk and eggs, seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning.

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts food, I finally concluded to give it a fair trial. I quit the use of oatmeal and eggs, and made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts, cream, toast and Postum. The result was surprising in improved health and total absence of the distress that had, for so long a time, followed the morning meal. My digestion became once more satisfactory, the headaches ceased, and the old feeling of energy returned. Since that time, four years ago, I have always had Grape-Nuts food on my breakfast table.

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet. I am convinced that Grape-Nuts food produced this result and helped me to a sturdy condition of mental and physical strength.

"I have known of several persons who were formerly troubled as I was, and who have been helped as I have been, by the use of Grape-Nuts food, on my recommendation, among whom may be mentioned the Rev.——now a missionary to China." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in each pkg.

Our Representation To-Day

In order to give any adequate idea of the state of the cause upon the Pacific coast, it is necessary to make a division of the subject. The so-called coast country is one thousand four hundred and thirty miles in length, and from two hundred to three hundred miles in width and represents a great variety of landscape and climate, and hence cannot be characterized in a few terms which may suit a small section.

The writer knows little of the work of Oregon and Washington, and hence will confine himself to California. This again is to be divided into northern and southern California.

In northern California there are twelve thousand members, ninety churches and one hundred and fifteen ministers. The churches as a rule are not so strong as in the Mississippi valley, but are still at the stage in which they are making the battle for standing and recognition among the religious forces of the coast.

In the early days these churches were founded by migration from Kentucky and Missouri mainly. They were established in the country with Woodland and Santa Rosa as mother churches and reached their climax about twenty years ago. To-day the drift is toward the cities, and Fresno, West Side, San Francisco, Watsonville and Sacramento are coming into leadership. This transition has left the task of church building and city missions to the present day, at which problems the California brethren are working very earnestly.

The earlier ministry, while composed of many able men, was not stable. Preachers came from the east who did not understand or could not adapt themselves to the conditions on the coast. Many of tarnished reputation settled down on unsuspecting churches. The result was ceaseless change and turmoil. All this is changed now. The best churches have pastors who have stayed many years, as Calvin at Santa Rosa, and Ford at First church, San Francisco, and others. This complete identification of our ministers with the interests of the state has brought a stability and solidity to the work which augurs success for the future. To this tendency the education of ministers by Berkeley Bible seminary has made an important contribution.

Our churches stand in friendly relations to their religious neighbors and are counted in all union and co-operative work. The leadership of W. M. White in the state Sunday-school association and of Hiram Van Kirk in the religious education has been marked in this direction.

The state missionary work has doubled and trebled itself in as many years. The heroic services of A. C. McKeever, J. P. Dargitz, W. F. Reagor and D. A. Russell are largely responsible for this.

Education has always had a high place in the esteem of the Californian brethren. A. M. Elston, H. D. McAneney, J. H. McCollough and W. H. Martin are among its staunchest supporters.

The state convention is an orderly body made up of duly elected delegates from the churches in proportion to membership. A. M. McCoy has presided for many years and has made himself felt in the conduct of its business on principles of the strictest legality and justice.

The Pacific Christian has ever been a stout advocate of the faith, and under the able editorship of W. B. Berry is to-day at its greatest period of usefulness.

On the whole the cause is steadily on the up-grade. Peace and harmony prevail. The brethren are not content with past victories, but are looking with hope to the future. They expect much from the coming convention. They will follow with a season of simultaneous evangelism and go on aggressively to take hold of the numerous opportunities which are at their doors in planting the cause of Christ at this gateway to the orient.

The work in southern California is not so well known to the writer. But as a whole the churches are stronger there than in the north. Great accessions have lately come in and their churches partake more of the character of the ordinary eastern congregation. Many well-to-do business men, as C. C. Chapman, A. K. Crawford and B. F. Coulter, are making their means felt in establishing the cause. Among the ministers, A. C. Smither leads as for sixteen years pastor of the First church, Los Angeles. But he is easily seconded in the work of F. M. Dowling at Pasadena, and W. E. Crabtree at San Diego. Among the newer additions to our ministerial force are W. C. Conley, Geo. Ringo and R. P. Shepherd. Grant K. Lewis leads enthusiastically the missionary forces. The monthly ministers' meeting, to which all the pastors come and who share in the equalization of expenses, is a most important factor in the progress of the cause. The state meeting at Long Beach is a Chautauqua for the whole territory, to which almost the entire membership resorts, and where they hear the best speakers of our brotherhood.

Thus California is another name for opportunity for the plea of the Disciples of Christ. The cause has been laid solidly and well by the efforts and sacrifices of the past. Emigrants are coming at the rate of two hundred a day. Our churches have not as yet been able to keep up with the increase of population. "Say not ye, There are yet four months and then cometh harvest?" but "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

❁ ❁

California's Welcome.

(Continued from page 828.)

some successor who is not afraid of cyclones and sky batteries.

The writer has been in active work in California longer than any one else now living, and the fact is, we need a large immigration of good people and they need California for their health and heavenly enjoyment of earth life. Yet "all's not gold that glitters" even in California. The state will keep her contract as best she can with all her comers, for gifts are many and bestowed with a liberal hand, her graces fade not and her glory is always a rainbow of promise. Finally, place a change of warm clothing in your trunk and come to the California convention.

❁ ❁

A WIDOW'S LUCK.
Quit the Thing That Was Slowly Killing Her.

A woman tells how coffee kept her from insuring her life:

"I suffered for many years chiefly from trouble with my heart, with severe nervous headaches and neuralgia; but although incapacitated at times for my house work, I did not realize the gravity of my condition till I was rejected for life insurance, because, the examining physician said, my heart was so bad he could not pass me. This distressed me very much, as I was a widow and had a child dependent upon me. It was to protect her future that I wanted to insure my life.

"Fortunately for me, I happened to read an advertisement containing a testimonial from a man who had been affected in the same way that I was with heart trouble, and who was cured by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee. I grasped at the hope this held out, and made the change at once.

"My health began to improve immediately. The headaches and neuralgia disappeared, I gained in flesh, and my appetite came back to me at once. Greatest of all, my heart was strengthened from the beginning, and soon all the distressing symptoms passed away. No more waking up in the night with my heart trying to fly out of my mouth! Then I again made application for life insurance, and had no trouble in passing the medical examination.

"It was seven years ago that I began to use Postum Food Coffee, and I am using it still, and shall continue to do so, as I find in it a guarantee of good health." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Read the big little book, "The Road to Wellville" in each pkg.

The Way to the Convention

ROUTES.

Six great transcontinental lines cross the Rocky mountains. Any one of these can be used, but for the accommodation of delegates three official trains have been organized. These stop for certain rallies and outings on the way out, and will carry the bulk of the attendance.

THE CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST SPECIAL.

This train has been organized by G. A. Hoffmann, T. A. Abbott and others. It will carry J. H. Garrison and associates. It will leave St. Louis Wednesday, August 9, at 9:00 p. m., over the Burlington; and Kansas City Thursday, August 10, at 7:50 a. m. It goes on to Denver, where a part of a day is spent in seeing the city, and to Colorado Springs, where a day is given to the Garden of the Gods, Manitou Springs and Cheyenne canyon and Pike's Peak. The train then passes on via the Colorado Midland through the most rugged section of the Rocky mountains, and stops at Glenwood Springs in the afternoon. It then goes on by night to Salt Lake, where the Lord's day is spent with the church, T. W. Pinkerton, pastor. Here the Mormon capital can be seen in the time given, after which the party takes the new Salt Lake and San Pedro road to southern California. This gives the shortest and quickest trip over the Nevada desert, leads to the Orange Belt—San Bernardino, Redlands and Riverside, where a day is spent before reaching Los Angeles. Here an extra day can be spent at Long Beach and Catalina Island, or at Mt. Lowe and Pasadena. On Tuesday evening the brethren of southern California will give a reception to the delegates, after which the party will go north over the Coast Line, stopping at Santa Barbara, Pacific Grove, Del Monte, Santa Cruz, Big Trees and San Jose. After the convention, the delegates can return via Portland or any route chosen.

This trip has many advantages. It combines a central and southern route, thus going by Los Angeles, yet avoids any protracted stay in the desert. It groups the greatest possible number of objects of interest on the outgoing trip, and can easily be made a part of the quickest and cheapest round trip. Brother Hoffmann has planned especially for those who can give only three or four weeks to the trip. He will return by the Northern Pacific and Burlington, through the Black Hills country, and invites all who can to come with him.

THE SANTA FE SPECIAL.

This train is organized by G. W. Muckley, R. H. Waggener and C. A. Young. It will leave Chicago over the Santa Fe, Monday, August 7, 10 p. m., and Kansas City, 11 a. m., August 8. It will stop one day at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and arrive at Los Angeles in time for the great missionary rally at Long Beach, Sunday, August 13. This party will have four days in southern California, and come north over the Coast Line as described above.

THE NORTHWESTERN AND UNION PACIFIC SPECIAL.

This train has been organized by B. L. Smith, A. McLean, F. M. Rains and Mrs. Helen C. Moses.

Official train No. 2 will leave Cincinnati August 11, 8:30 a. m., over the Big Four; leave Chicago that evening 10:00 p. m. over the Northwestern; leave Omaha 4:00 p. m. the next day over the Union Pacific, arriving at Denver, Sunday, August 13, stopover of one day for missionary rally. The train will then come on at leisure over the Denver and Rio Grande, with various stopovers in the Rockies, to Salt Lake, and thence over the Southern Pacific to San Francisco, araiving 7:00 a. m. August 18. The tickets also call for Los Angeles, and after the convention the delegates can go south by the Coast Line and return by the San Joaquin valley without extra charge, and thus return via Portland if they choose.

OTHER PARTIES.

These routes practically embrace the opportunities for the outgoing trip for any considerable number of our people. Other parties will start from different sections of the country and join the official trains at the great centers.

Los Angeles Century Plant.

The Denton party, led by H. A. Denton, of Maryville, Mo., will go a day ahead over the Santa Fe, thus avoidingthe crowd.

S. H. Bartlett, of Ohio, will conduct a special party to the Yellowstone National Park, leaving Chicago July 27

The Kentucky special led by G. A. Miller, E. Elliott, and R. H. Crossfield, will go through St. Louis over the Missouri Pacific and join the Secretaries' train at Denver.

Christian-Evangelist Special Tourist Sleeper.

The Central Illinois special, led by F. M. Rogers, will do the same, going over the Wabash.

The Council Bluffs and Omaha delegation, led by W. B. Clemmer and S. D. Dutcher, will join the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST special at Oxford, Nebraska. A. W. Kokendoffer's party will join at Kansas City.

The Texas brethren come over the Santa Fe and join the main party at Los Angeles.

The Colorado brethren, led by S. W. Bernard, will join the brethren at the Denver rally.

It is thus evident that almost every desire as to itinerary is met by the official trains or these smaller parties. Arrange to come in one or the other of these groups. It will add greatly to the fellowship of the convention.

MISSIONARY RALLIES.

Long Beach, Sunday, August 13.
Denver, Sunday, August 13.
Salt Lake, Sunday, August 13.

A similar meeting will most likely be held at Portland after the convention. Arrange your trip so as to attend these rallies.

RETURN TRIP.

The return trip can be taken on any line chosen at pleasure. We suggest the following:

1. Via El Paso and New Orleans over the Southern Pacific.
2. Via Grand Canyon over the Santa Fe.
3. Via Lake Tahoe, Utah and Colorado.
4. Via Portland, Oregon Short Line to Salt Lake and Colorado.
5. Via Portland, Northern Pacific to Yellowstone, Black Hills, etc.
6 Via Portland and Northern Pacific to Minneapolis and St. Paul.
7. Via Portland, Washington and the Canadian Pacific.

These northern routes are commended for comfort and scenery.

RATES AND DIRECTIONS.

Round trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles via any direct route: From Chicago, $62; from St. Louis, $57.50; from Kansas City, $50 Return via Portland $6 00 extra. Tickets good for 90 days, and can be extended to November 30 Stopovers at all points west of Denver and El Paso. By-trips at one fare and a third to all holders of excursion tickets. Dates of sale, August 6-14 inclusive.

From all points east one fare plus one dollar for the round trip to entrance of transcontinental system—Chicago, St. Louis, etc. Go by any direct line, return by any direct line. Los Angeles and San Francisco are points of destination. An ocean voyage can be taken from San Francisco to Portland, or vice versa, if so specified when ticket is purchased. But steamer runs only every five days. Buy your tickets of your home agent. You must determine entire route at time of purchase.

Sleeper for one way: Tourist, $6.00; Standard Pullman, $14, from Chicago and St. Louis. If special train is delayed by stopovers, $1.50 and $2.50 a day will be charged extra. Meals can be obtained on European plan on dining cars, or at lunch counters or hotels. Take a basket for lunches. Let it consist of crackers, fruits and cooling drinks.

Take with you—
A note-book.
A camera.
The addresses of your California friends.
Your winter underclothing. Your spring wraps.

(You will not find in San Francisco the sweltering weather of the eastern city in summer

You need not fear the heat on the way out. Inquire carefully and cross the deserts in the night time.

Study the literature of the western country before you start. You can get great quantities at any Southern Pacific or Santa Fe office.

Come together. HIRAM VAN KIRK,
Chairman of Transportation Committee.

Sightseeing in San Francisco

By Miss Pattee

When thinking of visiting a strange city, the first sensation is one of elation at the prospect of new scenes and experiences; this is usually followed by a feeling of depression caused by a realization of the difficulties that are apt to be encountered unless one can learn something of the places of interest in that particular city and how to reach them.

San Francisco is particularly well equipped in this respect to render assistance to the visitor, there being a number of free information bureaus, chief of which is at the headquarters of the California Promotion Committee at No. 25 New Montgomery St., where reliable information is freely and cheerfully given at all times.

The hills of San Francisco are a source of great interest to the eastern visitor, and the facility with which the street cars go over them, carrying one to every point of interest, is a source of wonderment. The only occasion on which it is necessary to take a carriage being the drive around the Presidio reservation, so that one may see the splendid fortifications and get a most impressive view of the Golden Gate and the magnificent sweep of water from the ocean ten or twelve miles down the bay, and a good general knowledge of the location of all the towns and cities around the bay and the beautiful Berkeley hills; and beyond, grand old Tamalpais, up whose steep sides one sees winding the track of the crookedest railway in the world.

Mount Shasta.

The electric cars take one to the beach for a fare of five cents; and the impressiveness of the mighty Pacific when seen for the first time, usually brings tears to the eyes of lovers of nature's grandeur.

The Cliff House, which is built on the cliffs above the beach, extends out over the water and is arranged with balconies enclosed by glass, where one can sit and watch the seals basking on the widely celebrated Seal Rocks only a couple of hundred yards distant. The Cliff House, as well as Sutro's Baths nearby, was built by the late Adolph Sutro, a former mayor of San Francisco, whose name will live for many years because of its intimate connection with the history of the development of the city. The bath house is one of the finest and most extensive in the world.

From the beach, another five cent fare would carry one back to his hotel; but it is not well to practice economy to this extent. Leaving the cars at Huntington Falls station, enter beautiful Golden Gate Park. This is the third largest park in the world and has been richly endowed by the men who became millionaires in California. A walk around the driveway to the observatory at the top of Strawberry Hill will give one a beautiful panoramic view—the park with its beautiful lakes, masses of flowers, magnificent stretches of velvety lawn and trees and shrubs of every variety. Beyond the park, the ocean, and in front, the City of a Hundred Hills, its arms extending out on either side to the ocean. Descending the hill and crossing a bridge which spans Stow Lake, the visitor sees on his left a boat house, here a boat may be obtained and a row of a mile on the waters of the lake, which extends around the entire base of Strawberry Hill, is an enjoyable experience. The black and white swans on the lake, seem not to mind the intrusion.

By this time the visitor is feeling a little fatigued, so on descending the hill from the lake, he welcomes the sight of the picturesque Japanese tea garden, and gladly accepts a seat in the little wisteria covered tea house and a cup of tea and a plate of dainty Japanese rice wafers served in quaint Japanese fashion by a pretty little Japanese maiden in native costume. The tea is refreshing if not very filling, and it is interesting to sit for a time and study the queer little dwarfed trees and Japanese landscape gardening and the gold and silver fish swimming lazily about in the pond.

Leaving the tea garden, a few steps brings us to the music stand, an imposing structure in Italian renaissance style of architecture, and just beyond, the museum. Here the lover of antiques fights for more time, and ere he has progressed through the Indian room richly endowed with a collection of baskets of all sizes, shapes and designs, has quite decided that an entire day is not too much to devote to the museum alone.

In the park conservatory, the lover of flowers will find a choice collection of rare orchids and other rare plants.

Just outside the park is the chutes; here is a good place to spend a jolly day if one wants to become a child again, and usually welcomes the excuse given by the presence of a youngster, to enter and enjoy its many attractions, not the least of which is a fine zoo.

Coming from the park or chutes, it is well to take a car down California St., and, passing the homes of the men whose names are most intimately connected with the history of California, i. e., Huntington, Stanford, Flood, Crocker, Fair and others, drop down into Chinatown. I say "drop down," and if any of my readers should ever come over those hills in the cars, they will understand the expression. But here I must leave you, for Chinatown's another story; and if you ever visit it with a competent guide, you will realize that even "another story" has not been adequate.

❀ ❀

Where the San Francisco Convention Will Meet.

We give in this issue illustrations of the two buildings in which our San Francisco convention will be held. These buildings adjoin, as can be seen in each of our illustrations. The hall of the Native Sons of the Golden West, known as the N. S. G. W. hall, is located on Mason street, between Geary and Post, in the very heart of the city, and only one block distant from St. Francis hotel. Here will be found committee rooms, parlors, rest rooms, the headquarters of our missionary and publishing interests, etc. Directly adjoining the N. S. G. W. hall is the historic First Congregational church giving seating accommodation to 1,600 people. Here the evening session will be held, and should the audiences overflow one hall, as no doubt will be the case, the hall adjoining can be utilized, while, should both buildings be filled, the Y. M. C. A. hall, two blocks distant, has been reserved.

❀ ❀

The Speakers of the Foreign Society at the Convention.

E. W. Allen is pastor of the Jefferson street church at Ft. Wayne, Indiana. He is a graduate of Hriam college, and Chicago university. He has been in Ft. Wayne for six or eight years. He has done good work in that charge. The church to which he ministers supports Miss Stella Franklin in India.

W. S. Goode is pastor of the Central church at Youngstown, Ohio. He is the son of G. M. Goode of Normal, Ill. He belongs to a preaching family. He has done a fine work in Youngstown. The church supports its own missionary on the foreign field.

H. L. Calhoun is a professor in the College of the Bible at Lexington, Ky. He is a graduate of the university, and a graduate of Harvard. He has been teaching in the College of the Bible one year. At the same time he is preaching for the church in Nicholasville.

F. M. Dowling was formerly one of the professors in Bethany college. He has preached for the churches in Mt. Healthy, in Pomona, and in Pasadena. Wherever he has labored he has done good work. The churches have flourished under his ministry.

The conference conducted by F. M. Rains will be one of the most interesting features of the convention. No speaker will be allowed more than three minutes. Each man will tell something about his own method of preparing for the March offering.

Convention Program--San Francisco, Aug. 18-24

[The C. W. B. M. meetings are on Friday and Saturday; the Foreign Society's on Monday; the Home Society's on Tuesday and Wednesday morning, and the affiliated interests Wednesday afternoon and evening. Their programs are printed separately.]

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19.

10:00 General Board Meeting of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

2:00 General Board Meeting of the American Christian Missionary Society.
President, F. W. Allen, Missouri.
Secretary, P. J. Rice, Indiana.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

7:30 Y. P. S. C. E. Session, R. H. Waggener, Leader.
Report of Superintendent of Christian Endeavor, by R. H. Waggener.
Address.

LORD'S DAY MORNING, AUGUST 20.

11:00 Preaching in all offered pulpits.

LORD'S DAY AFTERNOON.

3:00 Union Communion Service.

LORD'S DAY NIGHT.

7:30 Preaching in all offered pulpits.

Christian Woman's Board of Missions.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 18.

2:00 Devotional Service, Mrs. Hartley, California.
2:15 President's Address, Mrs. A. M. Atkinson.
2:30 Announcement of Committees.
2:40 Reports of Secretary and Treasurer.
3:00 Report of Committee on Literature.
Music.
3:20 Report of Superintendent of Young People's Work, Miss Mattie Pounds, Indiana.
3:30 Address, Jas. G. Warren, California.
4:00 Address, Mrs. Julia C. Gerould, Ohio.

FRIDAY NIGHT.

7:45 Devotional Service, Mrs. E. W. Darst, California.
8:00 Address, Miss Calla Harrison, California.
Music.
8:30 Address, Mrs. Gerould, Ohio.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19.

9:30 Devotional, Mrs. A. M. Harrison, Kentucky.
9:45 Report of Committee on Evangelization in the United States.
9:55 Report of Committee on Young People's Work.
10:05 Report of Committee on India.
Music.
10:25 Report of Committee on Educational Work in the United States.
10:35 Address, Mrs. Ella Humbert, Oregon.
Music.
11:10 Presentation of and Addresses by Missionaries from India, Mexico and the United States.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

2:00 Devotional, Mrs. Grant K. Lewis, California.
2:15 Report of Committee on Island Work.
2:25 Report of Committee on Mexico.
2:35 Report of Nominating Committee.
Music.
2:55 Roll Call of States.
3:40 Report of Committee on Watchword and Aim.
3:45 Address, Mrs. A. C. Smither, California.

Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 21.

9:00 Devotional Exercises.
9:30 Appointment of Committees.
9:45 Reports of Progress.
10:30 Address, "The Purpose of God as Revealed in the New Testament," E. W. Allen, Ft. Wayne, Ind.
11:00 Introduction of Missionaries.
12:00 Adjournment.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

2:30 Devotional Exercises.
2:40 Business.
3:25 Conference on "Preparation for the March Offering," conducted by F. M. Rains.
4:00 Address, "The Need of More Abundant Giving," W. S. Goode, Youngstown, Ohio.
4:30 Announcements and Adjournment.

MONDAY NIGHT.

7.30 Devotional Services.
7:50 Address, "Missions, the Supreme Apologetic," H. L. Calhoun, Lexington, Kentucky.
8:20 Address, "A United Church and an Evangelized World," F. M. Dowling, Pasadena, Cal.

American Christian Missionary Society.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 22.

Leader of Song, E. T. Nesbit, Fresno, Cal.
9:00 Devotional. "Bible Study on the Holy Spirit," J. H. Garrison.
9:30 Reports of Boards.
(a) Church Extension, G. W. Muckley, Kansas City, Mo.
9:50 (b) Acting Board A. C. M. S., Benj. L. Smith, Cor. Sec., Cincinnati, Ohio.
10:10 Address, "The Second Chapter of Church History," R. H. Crossfield, Owensboro, Ky.
10:40 Introduction of Home Missionaries.
11:20 Report of Statistical Secretary, G. A. Hoffmann, St. Louis, Mo.
11:30 Report of Committee on Union with Free Baptists.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Leader of Song, Geo. A. Webb, Woodlawn, Oregon.
2:00 Devotional. "Bible Study on the Holy Spirit," J. H. Garrison.
2:30 Hour of Evangelism, Report, W. J. Wright, Sup't Evangelism.
Address, "Ideals in Evangelism," J. M. Rudy, Sedalia, Mo.
3.30 Reports of Committees.
4:15 Five-minute speeches on Home Missions at call of Chairman.

TUESDAY NIGHT.

7:30 Hour of Praise, S. H. Bartlett, Leader.
8.00 "The Transformation of Wealth," R. P. Shepherd, Pomona, Cal.
8:30 President's Address, "Man's Gift Maketh Room for Him," E. L. Powell.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 23.

Leader of Song, W. E. M. Hackleman, Indianapolis, Ind.
9:00 Devotional. "Bible Study on the Holy Spirit," J. H. Garrison.
9:30 Address, "If All Christians Were Christians," Geo. L. Bush, McKinney, Texas.
10:00 Hour of Ministerial Belief, Beport by A. L. Orcutt, Indianapolis, Ind.
Address, "What the Lord Hath Ordained," I. J. Spencer, Lexington, Kentucky.
11:00 Reports of Committees.
11:20 Address, "America is Taking Our Plea; Our Plea is Taking America," by Cephas Shelburne, Huntington, Ind.
12:00 Final Adjournment.

Our Affiliated Interests.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Convention Hall, E. L. Powell presiding.
1:45 Opening Exercises.
Music. DeLoss Smith, Leader of Song Service.
Devotional. W. K. Berry, Editor Pacific Christian.
2:00 American Christian Education Society, Harry G. Hill, Gen. Sec., Indianapolis.
Addresses and Reports.
2:40 The National Benevolent Association, Geo L. Snively, Gen. Sec., 903 Aubert Ave., St. Louis.
Report, Mrs. J. K. Hansbrough, Cor. Sec.
3:00 The National Bible-school Association, W. H. McClain, Pres., 1623 Washington Ave., St. Louis.
Address, W. A. Moore, "The National Bible-school Association and Its Work."
President's Report.
4:00 Business Men's Association of the Christian Church, W. Daviess Pittman, Gen. Sec., Carleton Bldg., St. Louis.
President's Report, J. H. Allen.
Treasurer's Report, Sydney H. Thomson.

Informal dinner for members and invited guests from 5:00 to 7:00. Place announced at this service.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

First Congregational Church, E. L. Powell, Presiding.
7:45 Music. Under Direction of Local Committee.
8:00 Devotional. A. R. Teachout, Cleveland, Ohio.
8:10 The National Benevolent Association, Address, J. H. Mohorter.
8:50 Business Men's Association of the Christian Church, Address, W. Daviess Pittman.
9:40 Miscellany and Farewells.

SOFT WHITE HANDS
In One Night by the Use of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry, and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, and purest and sweetest of emollients. Wear old gloves or bandage lightly in old, soft cotton or linen. For preserving, purifying and beautifying the hands, for removing redness, roughness and irritations, for rashes and eczemas, with shapeless nails, this treatment works wonders, frequently curing in a single night.

A Report of the Missouri State Convention

The Missouri state convention, which for the second time was constituted of the C. W. B. M., the Christian Endeavor, the state mission board and the Bible-school board, met in Marshall, June 16-21. In point of outside delegates enrolled, and the local attendance, it was the best state convention we have ever held. Over 410 delegates from various points in the states were present.

C. W. B. M. Period.

The first of the combined sessions was devoted to the work of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, this being their twenty-sixth annual convention. W. J. Burner, who has been selected to go to Argentina and Dr. Ada McNeill, who returns to India in October, were the first speakers on the program, and their addresses were listened to with the greatest interest by a large audience. "Medicine plus the Missionary" was the title of the Indian missionary's address. Saturday morning the real work of the convention opened when Mrs. M. M. Goode gave an excellent presidential address; Mrs. Bessie Bennett following with one on "Our Mountain Missions," throwing much light on a subject of deep interest. "Were I Auxiliary President" was a suggestive address by Mrs. May B. Ross, of Warrensburg. There followed reports of the district managers and field workers. They showed a general increase in each department of the work. "Onward and Upward" was the soul-inspiring subject of a most excellent address from Mrs. E. J. Lampton. The pledges for the coming year amounted to $1,200.

The Saturday afternoon meeting was made interesting by impressive devotional exercises by Miss Nannie Hopper, of St. Louis, and a splendid half hour's missionary exercise by the children of Marshall. "Through Eye-gate and Ear-gate to the City of Child-soul," was a forceful address by Mrs. C. O. McFarland, of King City, showing us how to present lessons to the children by means of object lessons and the use of the black-board. "India's Little Ones" was so laid upon the hearts of the audience as to leave lessons never to be forgotten. Dr. McNeill has ministered to 10,000 patients a year, and many have been turned away because her one pair of hands could not accomplish more. A fitting close to the C. W. B. M. session was an address on "Consecration" by the newly elected state president, Mrs. H. A. Denton, in which she urged Missouri's women to deeper consecration and a determination to go in and possess the land.

The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. G. Bantz, showed 193 auxiliaries with 4,263 members, 1,724 subscribers for the Missionary Tidings, $9,038 sent to the national treasury, and $1,748 to the state treasury, making a total of $10,786. The special work for the new year will be the support of Mrs. Cora Alderman and children in Mexico; Miss Mattie Burgess and Miss Caroline Pope in India, and $600 to western work. Miss Pope sails for India in October and will be associated with Miss Martha Smith in Bilaspur. The first year she will be supported by the Missouri state board, and its friends; after that, by the Missouri C. W. B. M.

The banner given to the auxiliary being on the honor roll and sending the largest sum per capita to the national treasury was captured by the auxiliary of Maryville. Forty-five auxiliaries were entitled to a place on the honor roll.

The officers chosen for the new year were: President, Mrs. H. A. Denton, Maryville; vice-president, Mrs. W. J. Lhamon, Columbia; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. G. Bantz, St. Louis; recording secretary, Mrs. S. J. White, Trenton; treasurer, Mrs. J. P. Pinkerton, Plattsburg; superintendent of junior work, Miss Martha Stout, Kansas City; advisory board, Mrs. J. H. Garrison, Mrs W. D Harrison, Mrs. W. F. Richardson, and Mrs. E. J. Lampton. Mrs. Bantz has served as corresponding secretary for six years and enters upon a new year with the love and confidence of the entire sisterhood of Missouri. Mrs Denton has previously served for four years as recording secretary.

The growth of the work the past year and the convention which just closed were considered the best in the history of the work.

Christian Endeavor Session.

As might be expected, the Christian Endeavor session was a very enthusiastic one, and it went off according to program. J. C. Todd, of Monroe City, and J. E. Davis, of Stanberry, gave two very fine addresses, while four admirable papers were presented in a ten minute symposium on the pledge, the subjects being: "My Willing Service," by Frances Pearl Haley; "Prayer and Bible Study," by Inez Terry, "Supporting My Own Church," which had first been assigned to Sophia Settle, but owing to her absence the paper prepared was read by Miss Vergie Campbell, of Kansas City; "My Duty to Every Prayer-Meeting," by Mrs. H. H. Hodgdon, St. Louis, who was unable to be present in person, and her paper on this subject was read by Miss Todd, of Marshall. Alice Orcutt, of Maryville, gave, a very clear-cut presentation of the "Increase Campaign." Several Christian Endeavor rallies were held in the course of the convention.

The report of H. A. Denton, the superintendent, showed that there was a total memship of 17,945 in 485 societies, 1,212 baptisms had been recorded, and $13,619, was the total amount raised. Brother Denton stated that a great deal of time, correspondence, and considerable expense had been bestowed upon the inauguration of the campaign for increase, and the betterment of societies. The banner offered for the greatest increase in membership in the past four months was won by the Marshall society. Next year it will be given to the society that makes the largest increase during the year.

⁂

On Lord's day the pulpits of the city were filled by Christian ministers as follows: J. H. Hardin, S. J. White, J. B. Jones, E. B. Widger, W. F. Turner, D. R. Dungan, D. W. Moore, J. R. Perkins, C. H. Winders, Geo. L. Peters, L. S. Cupp, and H. J. Crockett. In the afternoon a praise and devotional meeting was held, followed by the communion service. F. W. Allen presided, and Dr. J. M. Philputt of the Union avenue church, St. Louis, delivered a very uplifting address. The silent hour service followed the communion and in the evening a Christian Endeavor rally was held.

State Missions.

The state mission period began on Monday morning, the president's address being followed by the announcement of committees. Pres. J. B. Jones had a big theme but it cannot be said that he even cursorily covered it. His subject was "The Dearth of the Ministry." "It is conceded," he said, "in all the theological schools of the east, that ministerial students are on the decrease." Asking what was the cause and the remedies he said that one of the alleged causes was poverty. He quoted several reasons given by Dr. Harper, the first of which might come under the head already mentioned. Another was the unrest of the times and the uncertainty of religious views. Dr. Harper also believes that the decline of family worship is largely responsible for the decline in ministerial students, and President Jones believed that this was the central reason. His constructive thoughts were that we must divest the ministry of the idea of beggarhood, and that the conviction that will make the preacher is that the world is lost, and the preaching of Christ is its only salvation. President Jones was rather inclined to connect the condition of things with higher critical studies, yet he advised everyone to read Harnack's "What is Christianity?"

The report of the corresponding secretary, T. A. Abbott, was adopted. It called attention to the list ot those who had fallen in the work and then showed what an expansion there had been in the work in the past twenty years, the figures showing a gain of 900 congregations and 103,000 members. The report warned against a fatal contentment, however, and pointed out that many of these congregations are without shepherds; that over one half of the adult population of Missouri must be included among the non-church members, and that more than half of these are non-church goers. The board had, during the past year, assisted in the organization of a number of county boards on the plan of the central board in St. Louis and Kansas City which are to have meetings at least once a quarter. The report called for greater unity in the work; the placing of state missions on a par with the other great missions of the church; stated that the incorporation of the state board had been secured, and that R. A. Long had offered $5,000 provided $15,000 more should be raised to make a permanent fund. The summary for state work shows 347 places visited, 2,305 sermons and 1,434 other services, with 16 churches organized and 15 Bible-schools organized, 1,443 additions, $17,216 collected for salaries, and a total amount collected of $61,415.

J. J. Morgan, the treasurer, reported all bills paid and $60.80 cents in hand. In the permanent fund there was $2,410, with $7,860 (including the $5,000 promised by Brother Long conditionally) in pledges. In the Students' Aid Fund there was a balance, including loans, of $770.

The subject of the permanent fund was introduced by W. F. Richardson and after an address by S. H. Bartlett, the state secretary of Ohio, pledges were called for but the response was rather slow. Brother Richardson started the promised contributions with a pledge of $100, Brother Abbott following with a pledge for the same amount, which was subsequently assumed by the new President, F. E. Udell. C. M. Chilton, St. Joe, made a pledge for his church of $100 if ten other churches would stand for the same amount.

In the end, with a collection at the close, over $2,329 was pledged, which with the $7,860 already pledged prior to the convention, leaves just under $10,000 still to be raised to complete the desired $20,000 fund and to insure Brother Long's gift.

Brother Bartlett made a strong address and one well seasoned with humor. He emphasized the fact that, as a religious brotherhood, we have a monopoly and that we ought to work it in the state of Missouri for all it is worth. He went on to illustrate how, when we establish a church for missions, we really establish three churches—one for Missouri, one for America, and one for the world. He believed both in the unification of the home work

(Continued on page 841.)

Our Budget

Panoramic view of San Francisco from the top of the St. Francis Hotel; note the new Fai
Bay Section where, at the Union Iron W —Ho, for San Francisco!

—A great convention, Aug. 18-24!

—Let the brotherhood this side of the Rockies rally to the support of the Pacific coast disciples.

—This number of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST tells you something about the convention and the city where it is to be held. Other articles on the Pacific coast and the convention will appear in subsequent issues.

—How will you go? That depends. We will tell you of the main routes this week. Without disparaging other routes we believe that chosen for the "CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special" will show you the greatest variety of the finest scenery, and will give you the greatest comfort. It takes in nearly all the scenic points and avoids the heat going, while you have a wide choice for return. In subsequent issues we will picture our special route for you. If you want particulars address at once "CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special," 2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

—In view of this California convention issue we have to defer a part of the report of the Missouri convention. The Bible-school session was the best part of the convention. We will tell you about it next week.

—Our next issue will be the educational number.

—Miss Luttie E. Pattee, who contributes an article on San Francisco, is a professional guide, whom many convention goers may wish to employ. She may be found with the California Promotion Committee, 25 New Montgomery street.

—M. J. Nicoson was elected to take the place of W. A. Moore, resigned, as Missouri Bible-school secretary and treasurer, but Bro. Nicoson has not yet given his decision.

—This is likely to be the last year of T. A. Abbott's work as state secretary of Missouri, as it is understood that he will complete the permanent fund and retire.

—The church at Albany, Mo., has called C. H. Mattox.

—J. S. Meyers will shortly enter upon a lecture tour in Texas.

—H. M. Longdon has taken charge of our church at Athens, Ga.

—G. C. Johnson, late of Nebraska, has taken the work at Wray, Col.

—H. W. Laye takes up the work at Evansville, Ind., the first week in July.

—Missouri will soon number W. T. Clarkson, of Lawrence, Kan., among its ministerial force.

—Grant E. Pike has accepted the pastorate of the Shady avenue Christian church, Allegheny.

—Standing room was at a premium at the children's day exercises of Mt. Olivet Sunday-school near Clarence, Ill., and the colleciion was over $15.

—J. F. Quisenberry has had a unanimous call to remain for the fourth year at Corsicana, Texas.

—We regret to learn that Bro. E. Richard Edwards, of Bedford, Ind., has just lost his mother.

—Oliver M. Olds, who has accepted a call to Wishart, Mo., will have his post office address at Bolivar.

—P. A. Cave, after four years' successful ministry at the Third church, Richmond, Va., has resigned.

—C. R. Woolford will locate with the church at Roseville, Ill. He has just graduated from Hiram.

—The children's day exercises at Seymour, Mo., drew a crowd far too large for the accommodations of the building.

—A. A. Hibner has taken charge of the work at Hennessey, Okla., and finds the church in good condition.

—Harvey Hazel has resigned the pastorate of the First church, San Jose, Cal., in order to enter upon the general evangelistic field.

—On another page we publish a unique and readable article from G. B. Van Arsdall, entitled "Admiral Togo and Church Extension."

—B. S. Ferrall's Sunday-school at Buffalo, N. Y., made a fine collection on children's day. The pastor's class gave $75 and his wife's class $43.

—The church at Braymer, Mo., where C. E. Hunt ministers, is planning for larger things. They have taken good offerings for the different missionary interests.

—Minneapolis, which entertained our own international convention three years ago, is now seeking to capture the world's Christian Endeavor convention for 1907.

—The church at Whitesboro, Tex., where H. A. Northcutt has just held a meeting, will at once begin to erect a house of worship. Eugene Holmes is the beloved pastor.

—We are sorry to learn that Sister Buxton, wife of the president of Dexter Christian college, was compelled to go to Colorado as a possible last chance of saving her life. Brother Buxton accompanied her as far as Kansas City, and then returned to fulfill his engagement at the Missouri state convention. Very many friends will sympathize with our brother in this sore trial.

—Geo. W. Wise has resigned the pastorate of the First church, Rochester, Minn., and will begin work at Monroe, La., July 1.

—Harold E. Monser has resigned from the church at Kewannee, Ill., and will return to the evangelistic field about August 1.

—The list of churches promising to take the September offering for church extension is daily increasing. Nothing can be done with assurance of success unless the preachers promise aid.

—Rolla G. Sears, who has been in the university of Wisconsin for three years, is now at Chicago university where he is taking special work in Hebrew and New Testament Greek. In September he will teach these subjects at Christian university.

—The fourth Illinois Christian missionary district convention is this week in session at Flanagan. The chief speaker is Chas. A. Young, of Chicago, he having three addresses assigned to him.

—R. W. Wallace has been granted a two months' vacation by the church at Valdosta, Ga., which has just dedicated its $15,000 building. Brother Wallace has been having throat trouble, and will take a rest during July and August.

—W. A. Boggess, who has accepted a call to Lampasas, Tex., will leave for his new field of labor July 1. There have been about 50 additions to the church to which he has been ministering at Webb City, Mo., during the past year.

—The citizens of San Antonio, Tex., have decided to present a chapel to the army post of Fort Sam Houston. The probabilities are that a $50,000 structure will be erected. Thomas J. Dickson, a member of the Christian church, is the chaplain at this post.

—E. B. Barnes reports that the brethren at Jellico, Tenn., where Brother Barnes and Brother Saunders have just held a three weeks' meeting resulting in 43 additions, are trying to find a suitable man for the work, and will begin the erection of a house of worship this fall.

—Herbert Yeuell reports a great tent meeting at Portsmouth, Va., conducted by H. C.

Panoramic view of San Francisco, looking eastward from Ashbury Heights; note the Presidio Reservation to the extreme left, Angel Isl houses that are fast crowding the San Francisco Pe

e summit of Nob Hill to the left of center of picture; note also hills in the Bay, the hills of Oakland and Berkeley beyond, and the South ructed the Oregon, Charleston, Olympia, and other of the Nation's greatest warships.

Combs of the Virginia Christian missionary society. The tent will accommodate 1,800. One thousand were in attendance at the first service. A church will probably be established.

—The Boyle Heights Sunday-school, of Los Angeles, observed children's day June 18. The offering amounted to $32. Many of the children earned the money which they gave. Ten children are in the one dollar league. W. L. Martin is the pastor.

—C. A. Calloway, of Milton, Ind., asks who was the oldest Disciple, and says that Sister Rebecca Asher Lowry, of that place, was baptized in the latter part of July, 1834, by Dr. Ryland T. Brown. Has anyone living been a member of the church for a longer period?

—E. Richard Edwards has begun his fourth year with the church at Bedford, Ind. During his pastorate there have been 437 additions. The attendance is inspiring, the weekly offering has been doubled, the amount for missions steadily increases, and every department of the church is growing.

—A. C. Gray will begin on July 2, his ninth year as pastor of the Mount Healthy, O., church. All departments are flourishing. Children's day offering amounted to $101.13. In addition to this, the Sunday-school gave its usual $25 to the C. W. B. M. for the support of an orphan in India.

—The brethren at Tabor, Iowa, are happy in knowing that a debt of $500 on their building has just been more than provided for. The church was built 13 years ago, and has never been free from incumbrance. In a few weeks the mortgage will be burned. Bro. E. V. McCormick is the happy pastor.

—W. A. Moore left the Missouri state convention before its conclusion for his work at Tacoma, Wash., where he will be glad to meet with eastern friends who may take in that town on their visit to the California convention. Brother Moore will occupy for the summer months the home of W. F. Cowden.

—We very much regret to record the death of Miss Jane Adam, one of our workers in Deoghur, India, of which we have received intelligence just as we go to press. Miss Adam was about 80 years of age, and has worked for nearly 17 years at the station where her death took place on May 24. Further particulars will be published.

—E. W. Bowers will locate his family at Des Moines for educational purposes and give his time to evangelistic work, in which he has had considerable experience. His address until September will be Jefferson, Ia., and he will be glad to correspond with churches desiring meetings. Brother Bowers has excellent credentials.

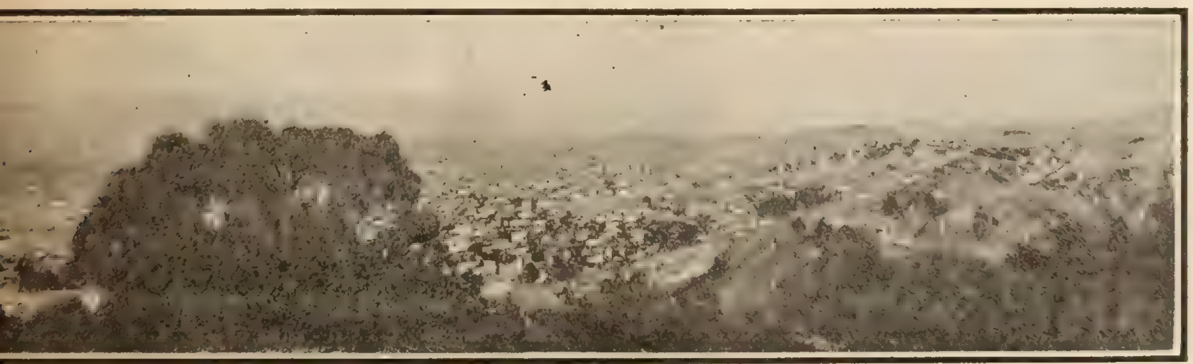
—The Lakewood church at Cleveland, O., has called R. E. Stevens and he will begin work July 1. F. D. Draper has made a splendid showing there in his two years' pastorate, as also in the Highland avenue mission which he developed. The state board will try to retain his services for Highland avenue, under its direction and with its help.

—At the seventh district of Kansas convention, Geo. E. Lyons, of Lyons, was elected president; W. T. McLain, Wichita, vice-president; A. N. Nettleton, Hutchison, secretary; Mrs. Allie K. Haymaker, Wichita, manager C. W. B. M.; A. J. Duff, Newton, superintendent Bible school; W. A. Morrison, McPherson, superintendent of Christian Endeavor, and Miss Essie R. Gray, Lyons, superintendent Junior Christian Endeavor.

—We received an invitation to be present at the dedication of the new church on West 25th and Magnolia avenue at Los Angeles. The ceremony was timed for Lord's day last, with services morning, afternoon and evening. We regret very much that duty to our California brethren in getting out a special number of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, calling attention to the San Francisco convention, prevented our presence on the happy occasion.

—Hugh T. Morrison, who has accepted a call to New Zealand, has left Lawton, O. T., where he has been at work and has been visiting his oldest son at Centerville, Ia. He goes thence to visit another son, who is pastor of the First church at Springfield, Ill. After stopping at Chicago for a few days he will sail from San Francisco, July 20. Probably the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST readers will hear from Brother Morrison in the course of his travels to the far distant field.

—The church at Burgin, Ky., takes the departure of Geo. H. Farley and wife to their new field of labor at Muskogee, I. T., very hard. Bro. E. W. Reeves, one of the deacons, writes us that in the streets and homes of Burgin, among people of every faith, the highest love and esteem is expressed for Brother and Sister Farley's indefatigable work and fine Christian characters. Taking a disorganized and debt-burdened church, Brother Farley has left it well officered and clear of incumbrance.



rmy Post, beyond; the long line of hills across the Bay, and the closely built blocks of ay to sea.

—S. D. Dutcher, who is minister of the First church at Omaha, Neb., received a happy surprise, on entering his second year's work, by the church granting him a handsome increase of salary. Nearly $15,000 were raised last year, and there was a net gain of about one hundred in the membership. The First church is planning for large things in the future. Brother Dutcher greatly appreciates the hearty support he has received from its membership and the official board.

—J. P. Lichtenberger reports that for the first time in several years our church at 41 W. 109th street, New York, is to be open all summer. Brother Lichtenberger expects to preach every Sunday morning, and visiting brethren will receive a very cordial welcome, and will encourage our people in the metropolitan city by their presence. Those desiring accommodation in New York may correspond with Brother Lichtenberger at 2372 7th avenue, or at the church, and he will be glad to serve them in any way he can.

—W. C. Hull who for the past five years has been pastor of the North church of Christ at Tonawanda, N. Y., has tendered his resignation. Brother Hull's action is due to a desire to seek a higher and drier climate for the benefit of his wife's health. Besides, he desires to spend a year in special study, a part of which time he will be at the school of theological pedagogy at Hartford, Conn., and part of the time at the University of Chicago. Mrs. Hull and the children will spend the summer in the Berkshire hills. The resignation will take effect Oct. 1.

—Dr. J. M. Philputt on Lord's day preached his last sermon prior to his summer holiday in Maine. There have been over 100 additions to the Union avenue church since the union of the Mt. Cabanne and Central congregations a year ago, and it has been decided to go on with the erection of the handsome auditorium next year. When this is completed our brotherhood will have one of the finest church edifices in the city of St. Louis, where we have long needed a representative building. We are glad to report, too, that the excavations have been made for the new building of the Hamilton avenue church, where, under Brother Mayhall, there is prospect for fine work in a growing part of the city. The building will probably cost about $25,000, and over $15,000 have, we believe, already been subscribed.

A Wonderful Tonic

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Cooling, refreshing and invigorating. Dispels tha dragged out feeling during spring and summer.

—I have just finished reading J. H. Garrison's latest book entitled "The Holy Spirit," and closed with the wish that every Christian might enjoy the same privilege. There is a freshness in the author's treatment of his great subject that is fine. While some of the positions taken may seem to be at variance with old constitutional ideas, the reader will be impressed that the author is circumscribed only by the word of the Lord and that he is safe and sane in his view of a great and vital subject. The book grows in interest with each succeeding chapter; that on the "Symbols and Metaphors of the Holy Spirit," and the chapter on "Spiritual Life" are especially helpful. The volume is a valuable addition to Christian literature, in that it opens up a marvelous view of the spiritual benefits and enjoyment possible to every one who is in a position to receive the Holy Spirit.

St. Louis, Mo. Samuel B. Moore.

* * *

News of the Home Offering.

The May offering for home missions continues to come in, showing a splendid increase each week over the corresponding week of last year. Another annuity gift of $100 was received recently, sent by a sister in Maryland.

Many orders are being sent in for the patriotic exercise prepared for use in our churches on July 2. Would that all our churches might combine the thought of patriotism and home missions and make a special preparation for a splendid service on that date. Send for supplies, free of cost. Address Benj. L. Smith, Cor. Sec., Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

* * *

Colorado's Welcome to the National Convention Delegates.

Colorado Springs awaits with joyful impatience the coming of the westward bound pilgrims from the east going to San Francisco. Nearly all the excursions are scheduled to stop a day in this beautiful "city of sunshine." There are many attractions here.

We are planning to have delightful evenings with our guests at the church. We expect to have one great service for each excursion party.

We shall be glad to send descriptive pamphlets; lists of hotels, restaurants and rooming-houses; guide books and illustrated booklets concerning the Garden of the Gods, Pike's Peak, the Gold Fields and all the wonders of this mountain country, to any one who will drop us a card. Nothing shall be too good for you, brethren, while you are in Colorado.

Crayton S. Brooks.

* * *

Wanted: Another Preacher in England.

The writer having resigned the pastorate at Southampton in order to take up the work at Hornsey, London, in connection with the secretaryship of the Christian association, two positions just laid down by Bro. E. M. Todd upon his departure for America, a preacher is desired about the middle of August for the pulpit at Southampton. The church property is the best in our brotherhood in this country, valued at about $35,000, the church seating 1,100 and having good Sunday-school accommodation in addition. The debt is $3,000, but there is $1,000 in hand and an effort is being made to raise the balance before the close of the present pastorate. The salary is $1,000 per annum (not enough for a man to live on with much of a family), but might be increased in time for the right man. Five years ago the church had a grant of $500 per annum but this was gradually decreased until last November the church agreed to undertake full self-support. The membership is about two hundred. Southampton is an important seaport town of 105,000 and the possibilities for Christian work are almost unlimited. These facts are given for the guidance of applicants. They may constitute the brighter side of the picture, but the darker side is nothing more than one finds in most churches. Application may be made to me and it would facilitate matters if full particulars are given, including testimonials, etc. If any one who is coming over this summer could make it a point to come this way, so that an opportunity might be given of meeting him, he would have a distinct advantage. Doubtless Bro. E. M. Todd, care Dr. H. L. Willett, the University of Chicago, would be willing to answer any special inquiries.

Yours fraternally,

Leslie W. Morgan.

Elm Villa, Roberts Road, Southampton, England.

[Apropos of the above Brother Morgan, having been summoned home on account of the illness of his father, may be addressed for a period of ten days at Bloomfield, Iowa, care D. A. Wickizer, from June 27. Or he would be glad to arrange an interview with intending applicants at New York, Chicago, Des Moines or Bloomfield.—Editor.]

A GREETING FROM THE WEST.

To say that we are rejoicing over the prospect of having the privilege of welcoming hundreds of our eastern brethren to our convention next August is expressing our feelings very feebly.

We are looking forward to the arrival of the advance guards with all the enthusiastic interest that characterizes the child's interest in the home coming of loving parents after a long absence, and when the companies of the great army of the Lord begin to arrive I scarcely know what we will do.

We are planning night and day for your pleasure while you are in our golden state. No matter from what point you enter, you are to be met with wide-open arms. Southern California is planning great things for all those who come that way. Those who wish to visit the Portland Fair first will find all Washington and Oregon anxiously waiting to extend their hearty welcome, too, to all our trans-Rocky Mountain brethren.

You are coming with a blessing for us and we want you to know in advance that we appreciate your thoughtful interest in us, though we are far away, out here on the border land of this great country of ours.

We want you to come in great numbers. It will do you good to see and know more of this wonderful country of ours, and it will do us immeasurable good to have fellowship with you, even though it be for only a few short days.

Once more permit me to express to every contemplative delegate a hearty greeting from the west.

W. M. White,
Ch. Com. of Arrangements.

San Francisco, June 19, 1905.

* * *

Ministerial Exchange.

G. W. Terrell reports that there is a first-class opening for a bank at Clinton, Mo.

If any church desiring to hold a meeting in August will address C. H. Altheide, singing evangelist, Bloomfield, Ia., he will recommend an evangelist who has been very successful. He can furnish a large tent if desired.

For Sale.—A high grade, professional, stereopticon and moving picture machine, with films for a part of the famous Passion Play. Address, W. H. Willyard, Keokuk, Ia.

* * *

The Gathering of the Clans for "San Francisco 1905."

The churches of greater San Francisco had a foretaste on Monday night, June 12, of what the great convention will be like; and yet there were only 300 instead of ten thousand present to rejoice in the good fellowship of open hearts and earnest faces. The occasion was the pre-convention banquet held under the auspices of the General Committee of arrangements. While from time to time since last fall inklings of what the general committee has been doing in the way of preparation for the convention of next August have reached the churches, there had been no mass meeting at which progress could be laid before the brethren. To do this, invitations were duly issued and it was thought possibly one hundred and fifty banqueters would sit down with the general committee. To the surprise of all there were over three hundred, and every one of them just brimming over with enthusiasm and joy over the prospect of a great gathering of the hosts of our mighty brotherhood.

Seven-thirty was the hour for beginning the meal; but at that hour the management of the restaurant was so overwhelmed with numbers that it was some time before additional tables could be prepared and all comers duly seated.

General Chairman White presided and introduced the chairmen of sub-committees, who were enthusiastically greeted as they presented reports of work done and plans made.

The committee on pulpit supply, E. W. Darst, reported one hundred evangelists ready to hold meetings after the convention, and twenty California churches so far enlisted. An effort is being made to enlist Oregon and Washington and southern California in this simultaneous movement.

The committee on badges, of which H. D. McAneney, now in southern California, is the chairman, reported a unique design on white silk ribbon, consisting of a view of Golden Gate with the sun sinking beneath the waves, a halo of California poppies and a California bear. Ten thousand of these have been ordered.

The program committee, Geo. C. Hubbard, chairman, is preparing the handsomest souvenir program ever issued for one of our conventions. It is to be over one hundred pages in size, and will be a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

The music committee, of which Dr. R. L. Rigdon is chairman, has a chorus of four hundred voices at work upon a sacred cantata, "The Ten Virgins," which will be given on the night preceding the opening of the convention, and which may be relied upon to do more than almost anything else to stir the great city of San Francisco on the convention subject.

General Chairman White is busily engaged in pushing all plans for the entertainment of the convention, and his sub-committees are working like a well trained army to execute his wishes.

June 24, the last Lord's day in June, was set apart as convention rally day for all churches on the Pacific coast. The preachers made the convention the subject of their sermons on this day, and put forth every effort to secure the largest possible attendance. This convention is to be held on the Pacific coast that our brethren there may have a chance to attend a national convention, and while they expect from five to eight thousand delegates from east of the Rocky mountains, it is their fond ambition to meet them at San Francisco with a like number from the great Pacific slope.

◆ ◆

The Campaign for Two Thousand Contributors.

This is the result, by states, thus far, of the number of churches that have promised to take the annual offering for Church Extension. It will be noticed that Illinois leads in the number of churches that have promised to take the offering, with Ohio as a close second, and Indiana third. Let a worthy rivalry go on between our leading states. The number of promises in our smaller states will take rank according to the whole number of churches in the states. Send in cards rapidly.

Alabama	3	Manitoba	1
Arkansas	2	Montana	1
Arizona	...	Nebraska	14
California	16	New Jersey	1
Colorado	6	New Mexico	...
Connecticut	1	New York	10
Dist. Columbia	1	North Carolina	1
Florida	1	North Dakota	1
Georgia	6	Ohio	39
Idaho	1	Oklahoma	3
Indian Territory	2	Oregon	5
Illinois	41	Pennsylvania	6
Indiana	31	South Carolina	1
Iowa	12	South Dakota	2
Kansas	21	Tennessee	4
Kentucky	16	Texas	9
Louisiana	4	Utah	...
Maine	...	Virginia	4
Maryland	1	Vermont	...
Massachusetts	1	Washington	6
Michigan	1	West Virginia	5
Minnesota	7	Wisconsin	1
Mississippi	1	Wyoming	...
Missouri	28

G. W. MUCKLEY, Cor. Sec'y.
600 Water Works Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

◆ ◆

A Union Movement.

The assembly organized by Eureka college at Keuka Park, N. Y., promises to contribute largely to Christian union. Representative ministers of the leading denominations are to present what their respective denominations have done, are doing and hope to do for the restoration of organized Christianity to the primitive pattern just as given by Christ and his apostles. The course of lectures or discourses is to be begun by a distinguished Lutheran minister, and followed by other strong men who will speak for the Presbyterian, the Congregational, the Methodist Episcopal, the Methodist Protestant, the Baptist, the Quaker, the Christian and the Free Baptist denomination, and to close with, an advocate of the federation of all the denominations. It will do members of all the denominations good to hear what their neighbors have to say for themselves. In the old Webster's spelling book, which may possibly be remembered by a few of the readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, it was said: "We often hate our neighbors because we do not know them, and we do not come to know them because we hate them." It is not uncommon for Christian people to be in error respecting Christians who do not walk with them in their own special denomination. There is a strong tendency among the members of the different denominations to misunderstand, misrepresent, and really dislike each other, and to defend their own errors, weaknesses and defects. It will surely do them all good to attempt at least to prove their entire agreement with the gospel. If they find difficulty in making the proof it may help them to cure defects and approach perfection.

An honest expression of views, and comparison of doctrines with the gospel of Christ, will certainly benefit both speakers and hearers. Those connected with the Free Baptist body of Disciples ought to be especially benefited. It is hoped that a large number of both bodies will attend the assembly, and become acquainted. Acquaintance is not likely to change their views of the gospel, because they now hold the same views, but many of them will be surprised to find this to be a fact. Intercourse and personal acquaintance will do more than anything else to correct mistakes, sweep aside prejudice, reveal unity in sentiment and promote fellowship between our people. All we need to make us feel that we are one in belief, one in spirit, and one in Christian purpose, is to mingle together long enough to learn what kind of stuff we are respectively made of, what kind of a spirit is in us, what our ideas are about Christ, his work and our work. It will be a blessed outing for our respective members to spend a week or ten days on the shore of Lake Keuka together and learn what togetherness for that period of time under such refresh ing circumstances will do for them.

The assembly opens on Lord's day, August 6, and continues until August 16. Those who expect to attend should notify Mr. Frank Place, at Keuka Park, N. Y., that they may be sure to have rooms reserved for them. Assurances have already been given of such a large attendance as will make the occasion one of peculiar interest. GEO. H. BALL.

◆ ◆

The New City Evangelist of St. Louis.

At the request of the Hamilton Avenue church's official board, I take pleasure in making a report of our meeting which closed Sunday night with nine additions—one by primary obedience and eight by letter and statement.

I also take this opportunity to speak a word for Bro. S. R. Maxwell, our city evangelist, whom I learned to love sincerely. In all my life I never met a man for whom I had a profounder regard. As a preacher he is a power—a student, a careful observer, of extensive travel and an experience which has ripened into a splendid character. Coming to us from the Methodist church, he has the enthusiasm of a Wesley combined with the logic of a Campbell. I have never heard "Our Plea" presented so admirably. Some of our evangelists use the Plea as a club, but Brother Maxwell uses it as a lamp, and in spite of the intense heat, we had people from all churches who came and listened, and to-day are searching the scriptures. The sowing has been bountiful and I look for a great harvest. F. A. MAYHALL.

◆ ◆

Southern California and Arizona.

Sumner T. Martin has just concluded a strenuous and successful evangelistic campaign among our churches. Meetings were held at Riverside, Monrovia, Downey, First church Los Angeles, Redlands, Fullerton, and Pasadena. The number of Disciples multiplied greatly and the churches were edified and strengthened by the messages and life of this faithful evangelist. In this work he was ably assisted by Singer J. Walter Wilson. Brother Martin has taken the pastorate at Pasadena whilst the beloved Dowling recuperates. Loren Howe recently held a meeting at San Jacinto with splendid results. He is now in the same valley, at Heuret, where his work has resulted in a new church organization. These two points have agreed to co-operate this next year in the support of a minister. We are glad to chronicle that after a year's eminently successful business career Brother Howe is pressed back into the ministry by that Pauline conscience "woe is me" and has taken up the work at Corona.

Several changes are in process of making among our ministers. J. P. Ralstin has resigned at Ocean Park, C. R. Moore at Santa Paula, and J. C. Hall at Oxnard. Grant K. Lewis has entered upon his work as superintendent of missions and E. H. Kellar, recently of Missouri, supplies his pulpit at Long Beach until fall.

INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION CUPS
Send for [illegible]
nearly [illegible]
Sanitary Communion Outfit Co.
15th Street, Rochester, N. Y.

The state convention at Long Beach will be held from August 3 to 13. The convention work will be done chiefly by our own splendid preachers. H. L. Calhoun of the college of the Bible at Lexington has been engaged to deliver several addresses. Sunday, August 13, will be a great rally day for Disciples in the southwest. Some of the special trains bearing delegates to San Francisco are scheduled to arrive and participate in the meetings. Let all eyes and faces be turned to the Long Beach convention and may it prove a foretaste of the great international gathering at San Francisco.

GRANT K. LEWIS.

◆ ◆

A Word to Our Subscribers.

Some weeks ago we sent a notice to all our delinquent subscribers to remind you that we would greatly appreciate the amount due this office for the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. Many of you have responded to our necessities. Some of you have doubtless laid the note aside for a more convenient season. Brethren, please do not forget we are doing every thing we can to give you the best paper in the world. We try to present to you the grandest plea this side of heaven. It costs nearly $500 a week to get out the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST and we depend on your subscription to pay our hard-working, faithful employees, material, postage, etc. You will not disappoint us, will you? Kindly reply with your subscription and help us. We need your subscription at once. With the kindest regards to all readers of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST we are

Very Truly Yours
G. A. HOFFMAN, Supt.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

Miscellaneous wants and notices will be inserted in this department at the rate of two cents a word, each insertion, all words, large or small, to be counted, and two initials stand for one word. Please accompany notice with corresponding remittance, to save bookkeeping.

LEWIS & CLARK FAIR ROOMS—Camping grounds overlooking Exposition. Address, Accommodation Park Co., 540 Jackson St., Portland.

WANTED: Partner to take half interest in well established General Merchandise business. Also, party to put in stock of hardware or take an interest with parties owning lumber yard and old hardware and furniture. Harness maker. Write, Bank of Paoli, Paoli, Indian Ty.

SUMMER COTTAGE FOR SALE OR RENT:—I will sell or rent my cottage and study, known as Edgewood-On-the-Lake, at Macatawa Park, Michigan, furnished and ready for use. It has an ideal location, commanding a fine view of Lake Michigan in front, and of the woods in the rear. Address, J. H. Garrison, 5828 Bartmer Ave., St. Louis.

HELPFUL COMMENTARIES
ON THE
NEW TESTAMENT

CONCISE PLAIN
EASILY UNDERSTOOD

VALUABLE AID TO ALL BIBLE READERS

MATTHEW AND MARK
By J. W. McGarvey.
LUKE
By J. S. Lamar.
JOHN
By B. W. Johnson.
ROMANS
By Moses E. Lard.
HEBREWS
By Robt. Milligan.

Splendid books. Good, substantial cloth binding.
$1.50 per volume, postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
St. Louis, Mo.

NEWS FROM MANY FIELDS

The Michigan Convention.

Our greatest state convention has closed at Kalamazoo. We have been looking forward to this convention for a year, expecting great things, and we were not disappointed. On account of the new auditorium of the Kalamazoo church not being ready for use, the splendid Y. M. C. A. building was secured, which proved an ideal place for a convention. The Kalamazoo church received and deserved the praise of the whole state for the splendid manner in which they entertained the convention.

There were about 180 delegates. Every speaker on the program gave evidence of careful preparation. It was a feast of good things from beginning to end. W. J. Wright, G. W. Muckley, Mrs. Anna Atwater, Dr. Rosa Lee Oxer, Allan B. Philputt and E. W. Allen brought us heart-stirring messages concerning the larger work. Men and women from within our own state gave us messages that were no less interesting and helpful. Professor Coler's Bible studies were very helpful. Michigan is fortunate to have one within her borders who stands so high in this important line of work. Michigan missions were given a prominent place on the program and received an impetus that will be felt in the year to come. The address of J. H. Coultard on "Michigan as a Mission Field" and the address by W. A. Bellamy on "Money for Michigan Missions" were worthy of special mention.

Here are some items gleaned from the report of the corresponding secretary: During the year sixty-eight evangelistic meetings were held, the majority of them under the direction of the corresponding secretary, and they resulted in 1,074 additions to the churches. There was a total of 1,418 additions to the churches of the state during the year, 817 of these by baptism. There are 111 church organizations in the state, and about 9,000 members. Four new churches were organized during the year. There have been twenty-five preachers located during the year, and we now have ten more than last year. We have fifty-one preachers giving full time to the ministry, and fourteen giving part time. They preach for eighty-eight congregations and receive an average of $490 salary. There has been $1,499.38 received from all sources for state work, and $388.68 for district work, a total of $1,887.76 for missions within the state.

There were seventeen churches that paid their apportionment in full. They are as follows: Ann Arbor, Paw Paw, Silver Creek, Hills Corners, Lacota, Durand, St. Johns, Barryton, Ballards, Shepherd, Chopin, Wright, Kalamazoo, Fremont, Petersburg, Benton Harbor and Traverse City.

There are ninety-three church buildings and fourteen parsonages in the state. Value of church property $302,650. Total money raised for missions, $13,414. Total money raised for all purposes, $116,304. Last year the entire brotherhood gave an average of $6 25 per member for all purposes. Last year Michigan Disciples gave an average of $12.92 for all purposes. Who says that it does not pay to make Michigan Disciples! There has been just about one addition to the church for every dollar invested by the state board. Point to any other field in the world if you can that has made as good a record. This proves again that Michigan is the ripest mission field in the world. The next convention will be held with the Fifth avenue church, Grand Rapids. Officers were elected as follows: President, Prof. G. P. Coler, Ann Arbor; vice-president, C. J. Tannar, Detroit; 2nd vice-president, S. A. Moran, Ann Arbor; recording secretary, Dr. G. A. Munch, Detroit; treasurer, Jess H. Smith, Detroit. C. M. Keene was retained by the board as corresponding secretary. We are looking forward to the best year in our history. C. M. Keene.

Paw Paw, Michigan.

❖ ❖

Southern Pennsylvania.

In response to letters sent out, the congregation at Waynesboro has received for the purpose of purchasing a lot for a house of worship, the following sums: E. C. Trubey, $1; Wm. Ragland, $1; J. T. Watson, $2; W. J. Morrison, $5; Peter Ainslie, $1; Church, Somerset, Pa., by M. J. Pitts, $16; Theobald Klee, $5; Mrs. Isabel Hopkins and family, $5. With this help and contributions of our members, and business men and others of our town, and through the generosity of Wm. Newcomb and other members of the Beaver Creek church, and members of the Hagerstown church, and others, we were enabled to purchase a meeting house and lot splendidly located for $3,400. With some needed repairs made, we will have a debt of $600 to $800. We are planning for a revival in the fall. Brethren, pray for us.

No doubt thousands of Disciples will visit Baltimore during the Christian Endeavor convention, July 5-10. One of the attractive parks in reach of the convention city is Pen-Mar on the mountain summit on the state line of Pennsylvania and Maryland. The Western Maryland railroad (Wabash system) runs daily excursions at $1 round trip. An electric line will carry you to Waynesboro for 10 cents. Come after the convention and see us and our church, spend a few days in our beautiful mountains and worship with our people on the Lord's day.

Tickets to Baltimore can be extended until August 31. What a splendid opportunity for many Disciples to visit Bethany Beach, the eastern assembly of the Disciples of Christ. It is only about 100 miles from Baltimore. Ten-day tickets can be secured on the Penna railroad or Queen Anne's railroad to Rehoboth, Del., for about $3 the round trip. Arriving at Rehoboth inquire for the boat for Bethany Beach. A delightful ride down Rehoboth bay for 14 miles will bring you to Ocean View, the landing for Bethany Beach. Write to W. A. Dinker, Ocean View, Del., or F. D. Power, Washington, D. C., for information about Bethany Beach and the program for the season, or write Dr. H. J. Penrod, Ocean View, Del., for a copy of the Bethany Herald.

Waynesboro, Pa. J. A. Hopkins.

❖ ❖

The Shreveport Meeting.

We closed a five weeks' meeting at Shreveport, La., on June 11, with fifty-seven additions in all. There were nineteen by original confession and baptism, twelve from the Baptists, seven from the Methodists, three from the Cumberland Presbyterians and seventeen by statement.

We raised $1,204 with which to build a large tabernacle on the new lot secured on Hope and Snow streets. They have an old church, too small and badly located, and will, after they have held a three years' gospel campaign in the big tabernacle, erect a nice pressed brick building on the lot where the tabernacle is to be erected. The basket collection in the tent meeting averaged about six dollars a day, and practically paid for the meeting.

Shreveport is an old town of about 35,000 inhabitants, and contains possibly as much wealth, conservatism and refinement as any other city in the south of its size.

Seven years ago from the day we closed the meeting, Claude L. Jones opened up the work in Shreveport with no organization, no property and but a very few members. He has been their pastor ever since, and most likely will be for the remainder of his natural life. They make his calls for five years at a time, instead of one.

He now has about 225 members and has, with the meeting we have just closed, launched a campaign that will carry his church to the front in Shreveport. He is not only loved and honored by his own people, but is a general favorite throughout the city. He has been a pastor more consecutive years than any other preacher in the city, and his marriage fees have become quite an item in his exchequer.

My wife, as usual in our meetings, conducted the music, and be it said to the credit of Shreveport, in all our big tent meetings we have never had such superb music She had a large orchestra and choir combined, and held her musical constituency undiminished to the end. Shreveport has base ball and the open theater "every day and Sunday too" and is a great whiskey town, and is a hard place to have additions—this being the largest meeting ever held in the history of our people in the city. We have had sixty additions since our return from our home missionary tours in the north.

We have accepted the work as corresponding secretary and state evangelist of Louisiana, with headquarters at Alexandria, Louisiana. I will, however, hold a short meeting, already promised, before I take the Louisiana work, at Clarendon, Ark. When the Clarendon meeting is over I will be found all the time in Louisiana. I need about three Missouri or Kentucky preachers who can work for $800 a year. John A. Stevens.

Alexandria, La.

❖ ❖

Nebraska.

The commencement at Cotner was a success.

Now for the great convention at Bethany Park, August 1-6, 1905. The sound of the hammer and saw will soon be heard in the park, and the mammoth tabernacle will be going up. The sound of activity in this regard will be nearly equaled by like vigorous measures on the new dining hall. It will be a merry sound, and when the hosts gather on the green under the tall trees, there will be general approval and appreciation. Think of being able to eat your dinner and hear the flies buzzing to get in instead of their lazy efforts to get out after having eaten the best of everything set before you for your consumption. It will be worth coming a hundred, yes, two hundred, miles to see. Think of being able to sit and enjoy a convention speech even if the rain is pattering on the shingles overhead. No umbrellas inside needed. You have no good idea how large this structure is to be. We were astonished ourselves when we came to see the stakes set for the corners.

The committee on arrangements this year is contemplating a change in transportation matters. If the interurban fails to get its cars running by convention time, it is proposed to haul from the state farm, which is the same distance from the camp grounds, and will be a much more delightful place to meet the hacks, besides being about ten minutes nearer to the city. The railroad rates will be the same as heretofore, one fare plus 50 cents for the round trip. Baggage will be taken from the depots and delivered at the grounds for a modest charge. Bedding can be bound up in bundles and checked as baggage.

The book stands will be under the supervision of H. C. Holmes, as last year, and will offer golden opportunities for those needing them to get books at pretty nearly wholesale prices.

The dining hall will be run by the N.C.M.S. this year, the profits therefrom being applied on the cost of the dining hall. We desire to communicate with a number of young people who will be willing to wait on tables for their board during the convention. This may give some an opportunity to attend that might otherwise be hindered. It will not interfere very much, if at all, with attendance on the sessions of the convention. Write me if you would like to do this, stating how long you will stay.

This is to be a record breaking convention, both in point of attendance and excellence of program. Large 10x20 tents will have to be ordered in advance if wanted. We cannot well have them in stock. Write immediately what you want. Better order your gasoline stove also.

It is possible, though not promised, that J. H. Garrison of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST will be present. No one is much better known in the brotherhood. Information circulars will be sent out before it is too late.

W. A. BALDWIN.

Lincoln, Neb.

❁ ❁

Drake University Commencement.

Perhaps the university never enjoyed a more successful commencement than that closing its 24th year. The various entertainments were of the highest order. The attendance of friends and alumni was unusually large. Perhaps no such crowds ever besieged the doors of the auditorium on commencement day. The baccalaureate address by Chas. S. Medbury, of the University church, was considered a gem, being one of the strongest sermons ever delivered in University place.

The commencement day address by Dr. W. B. McClintock of Chicago university on the subject, "Living in the Spirit of Art," was considered one of the finest addresses ever delivered in Drake university on a like occasion. Dr. McClintock certainly distinguished himself as a man of breadth and originality of thought. His address should be published in order that a larger audience than would be possible at any college commencement might have the benefit of his wisdom.

Two hundred and twelve diplomas and degrees were granted by Drake university this year, about 180 on commencement day. The others were granted to the graduates of the dental college the first of May. Next year the university will celebrate its 25th anniversary. Committees have been appointed by the trustees, alumni, and university council to prepare for this noteworthy event. Secretary Leslie M. Shaw, an alumnus of the college, has been invited to deliver the commencement day address. Inasmuch as nearly 12,000 different students have been in attendance at Drake university during the first 25 years of its history it is believed that the celebration of this event will draw hundreds of friends and former students to the campus next June.

❁ ❁

A Reliable Heart Cure.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

Eureka's Semi-centennial Commencement.

No notes of Illinois interests would be complete without liberal mention of Eureka college. In it was trained a very large proportion of our leading ministers not only of the state but scattered in every state from New York to California, except Utah and Nevada, from Texas to Canada and in six foreign nations. Her many students in other work are probably still more widely scattered and are happy to hear from the institution they love. The past session was a little longer than for several years, and is marked for good order and good work.

Fifty years of college life is now history. It was fitting to crown the half century with a great commencement season. It began Sunday, June 11, with a masterly baccalaureate sermon by C. A. Young, of Chicago "The Messiahship of Jesus" was his theme. No greater subject could have been chosen, and the way he impressed loyalty to him and to his teaching was full of refreshing and blessing.

Sunday evening was occupied by the students of the Bible department. Those taking part were F. W. Sutton, Roy L. Moore, C. C. Sinclair, Clark Marsh and F. P. Smith. The exercises showed a fine training and a high state of culture for the greatest of all work.

Tuesday evening occurred the intersociety contest. This is always full of interest. There is a generous rivalry among the literary societies of the college which stirs each to do his best. The contestants were: Misses Charity Rowell, Lucie Ford, Lena Roath, Edith Gideon and Katharine Garvin; gentlemen, F. W. Sutton, L. C. McNeamer, Chauncey Ball, H. L. Dyar and R. Burt Doan. The contest included music, vocal and instrumental, essay, recitation, oration and debate. The Periclesean society won the most points.

Wednesday was a double day. All day, at one place wrestled the trustees with the financial problems and ways of enlarging the usefulness of the college. Trustees from abroad were: C. R. Vandervort, J. H. Gilliland, S. S. Jones, R. F. Thrapp, John Lemmon, L. H. Coleman and W. J. Ford. The year has been very satisfactory. About $11,000 worth of material improvements were made and nearly paid for. If the board had about $5,000 more for improvements it would be a great investment. It was a disappointment that the field secretary had not been able to find the 30 men to give $100, according to the Coleman proposition. It is hoped he still will find them. Resolutions were adopted in memorial of S. A. Hoyt, of Forrest, a former trustee and helper. The trustees were never more gratified at the condition of the college, but are determined to enlarge its influence and urge the earnest co-operation and prayers of all our people in Illinois.

The reunions of the various literary societies were peculiarly interesting on account of the very large number of old members present.

The concert of the school of music, under the direction of Miss Ruby Dale and Miss Smith, was a great delight to all lovers of good music. Those taking part were: Misses Ella Sargent, Mary Gilliland, Anna Ewing, Cora Coriell, Lois Hieronymus, Beulah Hootman, Ollie Sargent, Erestine Tiedeman, Amy Davenport, Cora Norton and Nora Radford. The exercises showed fine training and musical ability. The college glee club added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The class day exercises in the afternoon were well up to the high expectation which had been created by one of the best classes ever sent out by the college. H. L. Dyar, class president, did himself honor as leader. Special subjects were discussed as follows: "From rough to smooth," C. H. Marsh; "Proverbs," H. H. Peters; "Shearings," C. C. Sinclair; "Products," Clyde Lyon, in an oration and R. B. Doan in a poem; "Vision," Lucretia Elliott; "Bequests," F. W. Sutton. All the exercises of every day and evening were greatly enriched by excellent music furnished by the chorus, and about four glee clubs, duets and solos. Professor Radford and Mrs. S. J. Crawford had written two beautiful songs each, appropriate for the occasion.

BUSINESS EDUCATION
—135— SCHOLARSHIPS FREE
Clip this notice from the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. St. Louis, and present or send it to
DRAUGHON'S
PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
ST. LOUIS, 10th & Olive; KANSAS CITY, PADUCAH, LITTLE ROCK, WACO, or OKLAHOMA CITY, and you will receive booklet containing almost 100 mis-spelled words explaining that we give away, ABSOLUTELY FREE 135 scholarships, Personal or Home Study, to those finding most mis-spelled words in booklet. Most instructive contest ever conducted. Booklet contains letters from bankers and business men giving reasons why you should attend one of D. P. B. C. Those who fail to get free scholarship will as explained in booklet get 10 cents for each mis-spelled word found. Let us tell you all about our great educational contest and our GREAT SUMMER DISCOUNT.

Wednesday evening about 175 alumni and friends sat down in the large dining hall of Lida's Wood to a bountiful dinner. Miss Anna E. Davidson, president of the association, called the sociability to a halt and introduced the witty S. S. Lappin as toastmaster for the evening. This most delightful service was enriched by toasts from Prof. C. R. Vandervort, Clark Marsh, L. O. Lehman, Prof. J. D. Deihl and A. P. Cobb.

The banquet being ended the company repaired to the tabernacle where a paper full of interest and instruction was read by Mrs. Emma C. Ewing on "The Women of Eureka college." R. E. Conklin read an excellent poem on true culture. The audience was greatly disappointed not to be permitted to hear one of the most able of the alumni, J. H. Garrison, whom sickness prevented from being present. But it is hard to catch a Eureka crowd napping for want of a speech. So W. H. Cannon, of the class of '84, on short notice, gave one of the best addresses of commencement week.

Thursday opened with the business hour of the alumni association. F. W. Burnham, Decatur, is the next president.

The Illinois Christian educational association had a most interesting and profitable hour. The president, Mrs. S. J. Crawford, gave a short, condensed address on the history, purpose and departments of the association. J. R. Golden spoke briefly of "The association as a means of cultivating an interest among the Disciples," Mrs. A. T. Ross on "Co-operation," Mrs. R. E. Conklin, "Our present duties," and L. H. Coleman on "The association as a means for providing for current expenses." Its present membership of 2,000, with some life members, and the fact that in seven years it has raised more than $15,000

CANCER CURED
WITH SOOTHING, BALMY OILS.
Cancer, Tumor, Catarrh, Piles, Fistula, Ulcers Eczema and all Skin and Female Diseases. Write for Illustrated Book. Sent free. Address
DR. BYE, Cor. 9th & Broadway, Kansas City, Mo

afforded a hopeful basis for still greater usefulness. The writer spoke briefly of the importance of enlarging the association as rapidly as possible and the possibility for 50,000 people in Illinois devoting one dollar a year to Christian education. A friend of L. H. Coleman will be one of ten or twenty to give the college $100, when 500 new members are added.

One of the most touching and heart to heart sessions was the "In Memoriam," as follows: "The Early Teachers," by E. W. Dickinson, class of '60; "Abingdon Friends," by J. H. Smart, class of '68; O. A. Burgess and wife, by Miss Elmira J. Dickinson; "Our Donors," by J. G. Waggoner, class of '72; "Uncle Fred" and "Aunt Betsy," by Finis Idleman, class of '00; Classes of '60 to '78, by Prof. B. J. Radford; Classes of '79 to '92, by Silas Jones; Classes '93 to '05, by H. H. Jenner.

The afternoon session on "Relation of the College" was one of the best of the season. "Relation to the ministry" was ably discussed by S. E. Fisher. He recalled the character, efficiency and loyalty of Eureka men to the Christ, to the plea for primitive Christianity and to the Book. "Teaching," by T. M. Burgess, "Relation to the trustees," by R. F. Thrapp. "Relation to college presidents," of which the college has now five at the head of splendid institutions, by A. W. Taylor. He also spoke on the college relations to missions and reported a healthful spirit in that direction with missionary classes in the college and 23 missionaries on the foreign field. "Relation to journalism" was considered by C. A. Young, mentioning H. O. Breeden, of the largest church paper among us, G. L. Brokaw, editor so long of the Iowa Christian, W. D. Deweese, editor of the Illinois News, B. W. Johnson, whose chief education was obtained in Eureka college, and last but not least J. H. Garrison, who, since the days of Isaac Errett, easily leads the journalism among the Disciples.

Commencement exercises proper were held on Thursday evening. J. H. Gilliland led in prayer. The graduating address was delivered by Prof. Edgar O. Lovett, teacher in Princeton college, N. J., and a graduate of Bethany college. It was fully up to the high standard already established in Eureka college. President Hieronymus in a happy manner delivered the diplomas to the graduating class of 17. The first named is a graduate of music and the others are graduates in the regular classical course and the nine last named enter the ministry. Miss Cora Ceriell, Miss Lucretia Garfield Elliott, Miss Ella Campbell Ewing, Frank R. McDonald, Wm. H. Davenport, Chauncey P. Ball, Herbert L. Dyar, Chas. L. Skelton, Irving S. Chenoweth, Clyde L. Lyon, Clark H. Marsh, Harry H. Peters, Roy L. Moore, Rutherford B. Doan, Colin C. Sinclair, Frank W. Sutton and Franklin P. Smith. Two of the class expect to enter the foreign field as missionaries. There are some very bright and competent preachers in the class.

Friday was a great day. The program was divided to give place to a real basket-dinner under the great forest trees of the beautiful campus.

Dr. N. B. Crawford, president of the board of trustees, delivered the address of welcome to the large company of visitors and patrons in attendance. Frank Thompson, principal of the Galesburg public schools, gave an address on "The Public School and the College." Dean David Kinley, of Champaign, gave an address on "The Place of the College and the University." Pres. Thomas McClelland of Wheaton college spoke on "The Sisterhood of Colleges in Illinois." Hon. J. V. Graff, U. S. congressman, from Peoria, talked of "The Small College and our National Life." He was a former partner of Judge C. J. Carlock, of our class of '91, who was sent by the U. S. government to the Philippine Islands to aid in their reconstruction. He was appointed as one of the supreme judges, but died of cholera in the execution of his office. His wife was present at the exercises.

Professor Lovett brought us the greetings of the colleges of the east. Pres. C. C. Rowlison of Hiram talked of the work of our colleges. H. L. Willett gave an address, in his own happy way, on "Influences of the Smaller Colleges as Compared with the University." C. C. Morrison, of Springfield, spoke eloquently of Democracy and culture. Prof. B. J. Bradford read the original jubilee poem.

The president had a file of letters from people who could not be present. Some brief and kindly words were spoken about our missionaries in the far away and some greetings from them.

There was present a great variety of talent and profession, but not a word by any that did not burn with faith in God, in Christ and in the Book of books.

A half century has gone. Another lies before us. May it be as true, as loyal, as useful as the past, and as much larger in its scope and power as the friends of the cause we love shall be willing to make it.

There are scarcely any changes in our splendid faculty. All departments will be ready for still better work in September. Present appearances are that a very large company will avail themselves of these splendid opportunities. Mrs. A. T. Ross again resumes the place of matron at Lida's Wood, which insures good care and attention to all young ladies.

Eureka, Ill. J. G. Waggoner.

* *

Washington State Convention.

The Washington state convention was held this year June 13-15 at Pullman, a beautiful little city far down in the southeast corner of the state.

The convention opened with a C. W. B. M. program, the devotional service being led by Mrs. L. F. Jinnett. In chosen words Mrs. Byron Hunter made the address of welcome, which found a response in the good address of Mrs. Frank B. Huffman, of Palouse.

"The President's Review of the Year," by Mrs. Minnie Grinstead Himes, followed. She being absent on account of sickness, her review was read by Mrs. Nettie D. Hilton.

The convention then enjoyed the pleasure of listening to the reports of our secretary, treasurer and organizer, Mrs. Eva S. Gilmore, and also the Junior superintendent's report by Mrs. Nettie D. Hilton.

The address by Mrs. Cora Green, on the C. W. B. M. motto, "To Him Who Hath Redeemed Us—Our Minds, Our Means, Ourselves," met with words of commendation on every hand. A symposium on the work of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society led by C. H. Hilton, of Ellensburg, developed great interest. Brother Hilton is proving himself a master teacher in the training of children.

In the evening the C. W. B. M. gave way to Bro. J. V. Coombs, who had so successfully taken Bro. Z. T. Sweeney's place as master of dedicatory ceremonies on the previous Lord's day. Brother Coombs' address was on "The Transforming Power of the Gospel." The speaker was at his best; necessarily then his sermon would be a great one.

The Wednesday morning session was given to the appointment of committees and reports from the state officers and evangelists. At 11:15 a. m. Dr. J. M. Allen, of Spokane, addressed the convention on the subject, "Love." The subject was suited to the man; his countenance glowed with his theme and every one felt that before him stood the embodiment of love; love in the concrete; love incarnate.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the program called for an address by W. S. Crockett, of Olympia, on Church Extension. In his absence Dean Sanderson of Eugene divinity school addressed the convention on "Christian Education." He spoke of the exalted privilege of being co-workers with God; he pictured the needs of the great northwest. He prophesied that within a few years this great field would need 500 more Christian ministers; he spoke of the uncertainty of meeting this demand by transporting them from the east and emphasized the fact that they should be our young manhood already on the ground, lacking only the training that Eugene Bible-school could give them. He appealed to Christian parents to encourage their children to enter this school and asked the wealthy farmers of that splendid Palouse country to remember Eugene in their wills.

Make Ice Cream in ten minutes
With
Jell-O
Ice Cream Powder
Everything but the ice and milk in the package. Does not have to be cooked, sweetened or flavored. One package makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream you ever ate. Costs very little. Quality the highest. Pure and wholesome. Received Highest Award, GOLD MEDAL, at the St. Louis Exposition, 1904. If your grocer can't supply you send 25c. for 2 packages. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Send for new illustrated Recipe Book issued April 15th, 1905. Address, The Genesee Pure Food Co , Le Roy, N Y.

A conference on Bible work followed. O. J. Gist, of Davenport, read a splendid paper on "The Ruts and Fads of Bible-school Work." The general discussion was led by C. H. Hilton, of Ellensburg.

By agreement the evening belonged to the C. W. B. M. The song and praise service was led by Mrs. Nettie Benton Manning. The program called for an address by Mrs. James M. Simpson, of Spokane, on "Woman's Work for Woman." In her absence the ladies prevailed on C. H. Hilton to make the address, and they did well. Brother Hilton spoke on "Woman's Work for the World." His speech was considered one of the best at the convention.

On Thursday morning at the business session the committee on plan of work recommended the election of state officers to look after the immediate interests of the Washington Christian convention and the appointment of committees on the east side and west, to effect separate organizations, thereby dissolving Washington Christian convention as it now is into two separate missionary organizations. The recommendation was adopted unanimously. The need of such action will be apparent when it is known that there were but two representatives from the west side and that the writer traveled to and from the convention 1,048 miles.

At 11:15 M. L. Rose, of North Yakima, made an address on "Benevolences." An appreciation of this address was shown by a unanimous vote of the convention that it be published in the Pacific Christian.

The afternoon was devoted to a conference on Y. P. S. C. E. work. An address was given by O. W. McGaughey, of Everett, on "What More can the Church do for Christian Endeavor?" The discussion was led by W. H. Harris, of Ritzville. This proved to be a very interesting and helpful session.

The evening program called for two addresses. In the absence of J. W. Allen, of Spokane, who was to have spoken on Foreign Missions, G. K. Berry of the Pacific Christian spoke on "Greater Things than Miracles." This was followed by E. S. Muckley, of Portland, Oregon, on Home Missions. Both of these addresses were admirable, and a fitting climax to the convention.

O. W. McGaughey.

Missouri State Convention Report.

(Continued from page 833.)

and in the Missouri idea of a permanent fund which had proven a great blessing as managed in Ohio.

In the reports of committees that on ways and means called for a decided advance in the forthcoming year's work. It lamented the fact that the work of the board had not, in the past, been supported as it ought to have been. It emphasized the obligation and requested churches employing pastors for whole time to donate their services for protracted meetings in unevangelized communities or mission congregations; approved the plan for the organization of counties; recommended the continuance and enlargement of the plan of work by which evangelists under the state board are loaned to counties until they can provide support; hailed the proposition of R. A. Long as a harbinger of larger things in that it would provide in great part for the operating expenses of the society so that other money secured would go directly to the preaching of the gospel; commended the recommendation of the Ohio state convention, which is to be submitted at the San Francisco general convention, to consolidate the annual offerings of the general home missionary and state societies' work, one day for this offering being chosen in the late fall, perhaps in November, and recommended that the convention join with the Ohio convention in bringing this matter to the attention of our hosts in San Francisco.

G. A. Hoffmann presented the report of the committee on state missions which showed that six local missions were being supported—one each in St. Louis, St. Joseph, Jefferson City and Dexter, and two in Kansas City. Seven state evangelists, including the state secretary, were in the field more or less of the year and four of them all the year. The number of baptisms reported was 746, which, with 697 other additions, makes a total of 1,443, while 16 churches were organized. The committee recommended that the mission work be continued and expanded as means permit, and as it deemed wise, and that the Bible-school board and the state mission board adjust their district evangelists so as to cover the whole state as far as practicable, and in locating or calling district evangelists that the board should take cognizance of and court the co-operation of the several districts in the state in the direction of support of the evangelists thus called into the field. Further, that these evangelists should become known as state evangelists and that each several one should be the only evangelist in the particular district.

The committee on Christian Endeavor suggested that the superintendent make the increase and betterment campaign the special work of the coming year; called for liberal support, and recommended that $100 be appropriated for Christian Endeavor to be used for the expenses of the department, with the condition that any surplus over and above that sum raised by the societies should be turned over to the state board. It further recommended that classes for the study of the Bible and missions be organized in all Christian Endeavor societies.

The following officers were elected for the year on the recommendation of the nominating committee: President, F. E. Udell; vice-president, W. F. Turner; recording secretary, W. S. St. Clair; assistant recording secretary, W. F. Hamann; state secretary of Christian Endeavor, H. A. Denton; corresponding secretary, T. A. Abbott; railroad secretary, H. F. Davis.

Hannibal was chosen as the place for the next convention, June 15-20, 1906, as the date.

⁂

In the absence of J. H. Garrison, who was prevented from being at the convention by the condition of his health, W. F. Turner read the report of the committee on the state of the cause. This called attention to the responsibility of the church of Christ in Missouri, mentioning several things that were encouraging, such as successful meetings, the number of new church buildings, the prosperity of the educational institutions, the growth in the missionary spirit and in liberality, and the deepening of the spiritual life; but over against these encouraging features of the work the committee mentioned the following weaknesses: (1) Too much self-complacency, or the failure to realize how much remains yet to be done before we have the right to indulge in any feeling of self-satisfaction. We are not keeping up with the brotherhood in other states, which we far outnumber, in the amounts we contribute either to foreign missions, home missions or state missions, and we are behind many other states in the amount we have invested in educational work; (2) there is too large a number of our churches unenlisted in our various benevolences; (3) too few of our ministers, and far too few of our business men, attend our conventions and otherwise manifest the heartiest interest in the progress of our religious enterprises; (4) too many of our membership are reading none of our religious journals and hence fail to keep in touch with the spirit and work of the brotherhood; (5) our preachers move too frequently from one field to another, sometimes on account of the restlessness of the preacher; (6) there is far too little interest and enthusiasm on the part of the ceurches in our state co-operation, which is permitted to lag in its work, and to make repeated calls on the churches for contributions to meet its legitimate expenses; (7) we are losing too many members each year, and are failing to spiritually develop too many others, by insufficient care for those churches that are unable to provide themselves with regular preaching. The committee called for a heart-searching examination and prayer, and asked that these problems receive the consideration of the convention.

The committee on resolutions expressed gratitude to all at Marshall for courtesies shown; to R. A. Long for his generous offer; to R. F. Lozier, of Carrollton, for his kindly service in incorporating the Missouri state board and the Missouri ministerial education society without care or cost to either society; to the members of the state board and the men in the field for their faithful services, and pledged loyal support in the plans for the coming year. The final resolution recorded the appreciation of the stand taken by Gov. Folk in enforcing the laws against gambling and the saloons, and pledged him the unqualified support of ministers and the convention, calling upon good men of all creeds and parties to stand together against the defiant and unscrupulous forces of iniquity.

It was agreed that the student aid fund and pledges for the same in the hands of the state board treasurer should be paid to the treasurer of the Missouri educational society, the vote of the convention making this a legal transfer.

W. F. Richardson explained that the question of the unification of the state missionary and state Bible-school boards had been discussed and a committee consisting of the president and one other of each board, was appointed to learn the sentiment of the churches, and to see that a plan should be brought into the next convention for action upon this matter. The importance of this subject was recognized; but not much discussion upon it took place. Brother Richardson also introduced the subject, and G. L. Snively, speaking for himself personally, favored the recommendation on the unification of the home missionary offerings. He did not believe the church extension offering would suffer in view of the way Brother Richardson, chairman of the board, had expressed himself. Brother Bartlett said he believed it would not affect this offering. In Ohio the feeling was that a committee should be appointed by the national convention and report at the next convention. G. A. Hoffmann said that it was wise to go slowly, but to bring about the change if possible. He pointed out that less than 200 churches in Missouri took the home offering, while only 150 helped the state work, yet there are more than 1,700 congregations in the state.

There was not as much speechmaking at the state mission convention as usual. Geo. L. Snively made a brief but touching appeal on behalf of the Benevolent Association, Mrs. Hansbrough not being able to be present. J. Elsea Holley, of Springfield, had been selected to give the address for the association but Brother Holley was taken sick while on his feet and had to postpone his talk, and then when he was able to proceeed, had to curtail it. The echo meeting led by J. H. Hardin, was participated in by several of the workers in the field. H. G. Bennett, of Jefferson City, told how he had recently been visiting in the country round about his pastorate. He thought that our brethren and the Baptists at Russellville, where we have become very weak, might be united. He said that there were some churches where the brethren seemed to be more interested in the organ question than in preventing the young people from going to the devil. He emphasized the fact that Catholicism, by means of immigration, is effecting our cause in some portions of the state. Dr. Buxton spoke of southeast Missouri where, though the territory covers about one-third of the state, there are but three or four resident ministers; the field was a good one and needed a ministry manufactory. Dexter College, he said, had great prospects of doing a good work and would not compete with any other college. Joseph Gaylor, who has labored for seven years in southwest Missouri, told us that anti-ism has perished there. Here, too, the opportunities are great. Only four years ago Webster county was entered. It had but one church that had preaching once a month and others had not had sermons for years. Now there are two good houses and nine congregations that have preaching for quarter-time and two for half-time. Two years ago we entered Seneca, and have just dedicated a good brick building, and this work cost the board $65. Several young men have gone from this field to prepare for the ministry.

In the absence of H. C. Hill and W. J. Wright, who was detained by reason of the sickness of his daughter, Geo. Ranshaw, representing the home mission society, gave us two fine speeches.

W. D. Pittman made a pointed and practical speech from the standpoint of the business man, emphasizing his belief that the need of the churches is to get down to earth and organize, or re-organize, to do the work the church was intended to do. Unless, he said, the church of to-day does this it will never interest the men of the world.

The sessions of this part of the convention were brought to a close by a very admirable sermon by M. A. Hart of Fulton. We hope to give a report of this in an early isssue of the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. In our next issue we will continue the report of the convention.

Financial Opportunity

Any reader of this publication can communicate with a prominent business man who writes of his connection with an enterprise that promises to be a very profitable investment. He says the business was started on $50.00 capital and to-day the equipment alone is worth over $50,000. The stock in this concern is not offered for public subscription, but a few shares can be had if immediate action is taken. If any reader of this publication wants to become a stockholder in this great enterprise, which promises to pay big dividends this year, write to M. L., Box 59, Brooklyn, N. Y., and say that you are a reader of this publication.

Evangelistic

We invite ministers and others to send reports of meetings, additions and other news of the churches for publication in this department. It is especially requested that additions be reported as "by confession and baptism" or "by letter."

ALABAMA.

Mobile.—Nine additions here since last report—three by baptism. We have had 45 additions at regular services during the year. Our work is doing splendidly.—Claude E. Hill.

ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, June 19.—Closed last night a two weeks' meeting with home forces. Had 38 additions, of which 15 were baptisms. We had seven baptisms just prior to this meeting. This meeting had one unusual feature. The first week four pastors preached for me, viz., two Methodist pastors, one Baptist, and one Presbyterian. It marked the beginning of a new era of religious feeling here.—J. N. Jessup.

Eureka Springs, June 18 —Have just closed a short but good meeting, with seven additions, good audiences and interest. Brother Smith is pastor and the work is on the upgrade. Thousands of visitors come here, enjoying the health-giving climate and waters. The field is one of splendid opportunities. Our people who come here should not fail to attend the church and meet some of the splendid people there.—Randolph Cook, evangelist.

COLORADO.

Colorado Springs, June 15.—Our offerings, our audiences and all our meetings have been quite encouraging. About 170 have been added to the church since I came last November. The interdenominational Bible-school forces of Colorado recently met in convention in this city. Marion Lawrence, of Cleveland, Ohio, was a most interesting visitor. The state Endeavor convention is in session at this writing at Pueblo. A mighty host is there. The spirit of union is strong in this state. I leave to-morrow night for Austin, Texas, to give two addresses at the great Endeavor convention. Last year it was my privilege to be with them at Dallas and speak on "The Christian in Politics." B. B. Tyler installed the newly elected officers of the Colorado Bible-school forces. He also made one of the principal speeches at the C. E. convention at Pueblo. He is doing a great work at South Broadway, Denver. Bro. Wm. Bayard Craig of the Central, Denver, has been recently much quoted and misquoted on his remarks regarding the power of faith in healing the body. All those who know Brother Craig are sure that he is as sound as a new American dollar.—Crayton S. Brooks.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—Present at ministers' meeting: E. B. Bagby, F. D. Power, J. B. Stuart, Walter F. Smith, W. T. Laprade, and the writer. Additions reported: 15th St. (J. E. Stuart), one by confession and baptism; 9th St. (E. B. Bagby), one by letter; 34th St. (Claude C. Jones), one baptism and one by letter. Total four—two by confession and baptism and two by letter. E. B. Bagby organized a church with 15 members at Tuxedo. J. E. Stuart started a Sunday-school at Capitol Heights. Four churches reported children's day collections as follows: Ninth St., $310; Vermont Ave., $105; 34th St., $23.75; 15th St., $14. The amounts of the others are not yet known.—Claude C. Jones, Sec'y.

GEORGIA.

Valdosta, June 19.—Since our last report there have been eleven additions to this congregation, five by confession and baptism, one from the Baptist church, one from the Methodist church, and four by letter from other of our own churches. Three of these additions came during a short meeting recently held by Howard T. Cree, of Augusta.—R. W. Wallace.

INDIANA.

Covington, June 19.—One added by statement yesterday at "West Liberty."—P. W. Walthall, minister.

Francesville.—Am glad to report one baptism here last Lord's day; will observe children's day next Lord's day.—J. G. Shaw.

Evansville, June 23.—One addition to Bethany Sunday night at regular service.—Allen T. Shaw, pastor.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago Heights, June 19.—We had two added to the work yesterday—one from the "church of God," and the husband by primary obedience.—Harry E. Tucker.

Forrest, June 12.—Myself and wife closed a meeting of 17 nights here June 11, with 30 additions. Notwithstanding that there was splendid interest and a full house, previous arrangements compelled us to close at that time. Everything prophesied a still greater number could the meetings have continued. We organized an Endeavor society of about 50 members. The church at Forrest is much encouraged.—Rochester Irwin.

Lindenwood, June 23.—In a short meeting of two weeks recently held by Geo. A. Campbell, of Chicago, there were 25 confessions, and four came the following Sunday night. The whole community was stirred by the proclamation of the gospel, and many more will come into the church as a result of the meeting. The singing of Mrs. Osborne Lucas did much to win the attendance and the hearts of the people.—Oscar T. Morgan, pastor.

IOWA.

Fairfield, June 19.—Two added by letter yesterday, making ten in all besides the pastor and family since we came; mostly by letter, one from the Baptists. All lines of work in good shape. We observed children's day. We expect to make this year the best in the history of the church for missions, educational interests, and benevolences.—H. C. Littleton.

Atlantic, June 19.—Two confessions yesterday and a splendid children's day.—W. B. Crewdson.

Cherokee, June 18.—Two confessed Christ at prayer-meeting, both Congregationalists. One united by letter at baptismal services. Took offering for state missions and home missions. Children's day a success. Raised our apportionment.—S. R. Reynolds.

KANSAS.

Wichita, June 17.—W. E. Harlow closed a three weeks' meeting at the Central church last evening. There were fifty-three additions. During the early part of the meeting Le Roy St. John, of Terre Haute, Ind., as singing evangelist, rendered us good service; later the song service was conducted by Clyde Harlow, a son of the evangelist.—C. T. Stevens, pastor.

Marion, June 16.—We had five accessions at our regular services last Sunday. Will remain here another year with increased salary. Church has also offered us a month's vacation. —W. M. Berkeley, minister.

Caldwell, June 19.—By request of the railroad men of this city I preached a special sermon last night for them. Had one confession. Work is moving along well. Our state singing evangelist, Chas. S. McCray, moved into our midst last week.—Lee H. Barnum.

KENTUCKY.

Louisville.—Our work is moving on finely in the Parkland church. Good offerings for missions. Church out of debt. Fifty additions in less than five months' regular work; nine additions last Sunday—eight by baptism.—G. W. Nutter.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Everett, June 20.—On June 4, we had four confessions, and June 18, three baptisms. —A. T. June.

MINNESOTA.

Lewisville, June 18.—Four confessions in a short meeting. J. C. Harris, minister at Madelia, did most of the preaching. Mrs. Bessie Ziesinger, of Plainview, led the singing. She came to us recently from the Congregationalists. —Claris Yeuell.

MISSISSIPPI.

McComb, June 23.—Closed at Temple, Texas, with 102 additions. Rain broke us up seven times in the thirty days of meeting. Have been here six days and it has rained five. Pastor W. W. Phares is sick and away.—Allen Wilson.

MISSOURI.

Webb City, June 19.—There were three additions to the Webb City church at the Sunday morning service.—W. A. Boggess.

Salisbury, June 22.—Last Sunday at Wellsville I had three additions—two by confession. On June 4, I had 14 confessions at the same place.—W. D. McCulley.

NEW YORK.

Cato.—Arthur Braden, pastor of the church at Deerfield, Ohio, has assisted us in a meeting for the past 16 days. Although the weather was extremely unfavorable the services were very well attended. A deep interest was aroused and the community was spiritually stirred. The meetings resulted in 18 additions, all but three being adults and the majority men.—S. B. Braden, minister.

OHIO.

Beallsville, June 16.—The meeting at this place closed this evening with 10 more additions; making 27 in 14 days' work; 20 by confession, seven by statement.—Ferd F. Schultz, evangelist.

OREGON.

Salem, June 20.—One hundred and twenty-one confessions to date in S. M. Martin's meeting. We continue a few days longer. The church is elated over the success of the meeting, which is the greatest ever held in Salem. I have an open date for September.—Charles E. McVay, singing evangelist.

TENNESSEE.

Jackson, June 12.—One by baptism yesterday and four last Lord's day and one reclaimed, making 16 additions in the past three weeks. All departments moving nicely.—E. S. Baker.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Sumter.—General Evangelist O. P. Spiegel is in a meeting here with Matthew Small. Spiegel and Hackleman will begin a meeting at Aberdeen, Miss., June 25.

OKLAHOMA.

Ponca City, June 12.—Four added to our membership—two by confession and baptism and two by letter. When I came here and took the pastorate of this church the attendance was very small; now our house is well filled at both services on Lord's day. The interest among the members and friends of the church seems to be growing. The Lord has some splendid men and women in this church, but many things have conspired in the past to retard the growth of the church. Our prospects for the future are brightening. We ought to have a strong church here and we are working to that end.—R. H. Love.

Chandler, June 12.—Seven more additions

o report this week; 36 since I began here. We have a noble congregation of Disciples here.—J. E. Dinger, minister.

TEXAS.

Whitesboro, June 19—We have closed a very successful meeting. H. A. Northcutt was the evangelist, and under his preaching the entire town and community was profoundly stirred. There were 67 accessions: 14 from the denominations, six restored, 11 by statement and 36 confessions.—E. H. Holmes, minister.

Paris, June 17.—We are in a meeting with home forces at the First church, Bro. J. T. Ogle, our minister, doing the preaching. Seven added the first week. Continue indefinitely.—Clement Few.

Houston, June 19.—We closed a two weeks' meeting at the Second church a short time ago with 17 additions. Last night there was one more addition.—D. F. Sellards.

Ft. Worth, June 17.—Have just closed a mission meeting in southeast part of the city. We had a tent, and P. M. Kendall and wife led the song service. No church of the Disciples in that part of the city. After four weeks we have a Sunday-school of 118. Baptized 21; had 31 by restoration and letter. We bought a fine corner lot 100x100 feet, built a temporary tabernacle and hope to build a church soon. I did all the preaching except a few sermons by Brother Kendall.—R. R. Hamlin.

❁ ❁

Dedication at Reading, Pa.

Six years ago H. G. Weaver went to Reading to plant a Christian church. It was his first charge. He searched diligently, advertised in the city papers and found two champions of the plea of primitive Christianity. Undaunted at this, he secured a place of meeting and began work. The growth has been slow but steady. Reading is a conservative city of 100,000 population. To-day we have a church of 125 members. A few years ago they purchased a large and well arranged building from the Baptists. It served well the purposes of the new and growing work, but it was in a somewhat dilapidated condition, especially in the appearance of the auditorium. A year ago they started to make some improvements in the interior. One thing suggested another and the whole auditorium was refitted. Three thousand dollars were expended in frescoing, carpeting with a beautiful velvet carpet, putting in stained windows, modern circular oak pews, rebuilding the splendid pipe organ, rearranging the pulpit and organ loft and in the purchase of handsome pulpit furniture.

The writer spent Lord's dav, June 11, with them, conducting the dedication service and preaching morning and evening. But $225 was needed to complete the payment of the entire cost, which it was a pleasure to raise.

It was a day of rejoicing for pastor and people. They have done heroically and deserve great credit for their enterprise. With this new equipment, and this faithful band of self-sacrificing people we predict a bright future for this church. It was a great pleasure to be with them on this day of rejoicing and have fellowship in the work.

New York. J. P. Lichtenberger.

❁ ❁

Now is the Time to Visit Hot Springs, Arkansas, via the Iron Mountain Route

The season at the great National Health and Pleasure Resort is in full blast. Climate unsurpassed. Hot Springs Special leaves St. Louis daily at 8:20 p. m., making the run is less than twelve hours. Three other fast trains daily. Handsome descriptive literature can be obtained free by calling on, or addressing our City Ticket Agent, S. E. cor 6th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.

Changes.

J. C. Reynolds, Bluefield, to Athens, W. Va.
R. A. Smith, Wilson, to Box 462, Rocky Mount, N. C.
F. J. Longdon, Jr., De Land, Fla., to Athens, Ga.
Geo. B. Evans, Fairview, W. Va., to Big Run, Penn.
M. Gorsuch, Medina, Ohio, to R. F. D. 1, Sharon Center, Ohio.
H. B. Self, Lexington, to Waddy, Ky.
E. H. Kellar, Carrollton, Mo., to 248 East 4th St., Long Beach, Cal.
F. McNulty, Des Moines, Ia., to Fortuna, Cal.
H. J. Reynolds, Anna, to Camp Point, Ill.
F. G. Tyrrell, Fruitvale, Cal., to Boulder, Col.
T. J. Golightly, Lexington, to Lebanon, Ky.
Guy Hoover, 4830 St. Lawrence Ave., to 146 South Divinity Hall, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.
J. Morgan Harris, Des Moines, Ia., to Weatherford, Okla.
C. F. Ward, Des Moines, to Chariton, Ia.
F. W. Sutton, Eureka, to Long Point, Ill.
Geo. B. Matthews, Perkins, to Guthrie, O. T.
C. R. Woolford, Hiram, O., to Roseville, Ill.

❁ ❁

The Harvard Summer School.

There is held annually at the Harvard divinity school, at Cambridge, Massachusetts, a summer school of theology. It opens this year on July 5 and closes on July 21. The general subject for work this year is "The Bible." The instruction is given by the members of the Harvard divinity school faculty and certain lecturers from outside.

The topic this year is very closely allied with the plea of our people, who have always stood for the closest biblical study; and perhaps no better summer school could be chosen by any. Detailed information can be secured by writing to Robert S. Morrison, secretary Harvard divinity school, and if further word of assurance is desired concerning our opinion of the work at this institution, we should be very glad to give it in personal communication.

Burris A. Jenkins.
Hall L. Calhoun.

The Children Will Sing

if you put into their hands Sunday-School Songs* No. 3. This new song book interests the children. That's the highest compliment to a Sunday-School song book. We mail a copy for 10 cents. FILLMORE MUSIC HOUSE, 528 Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio, or 41-43 Bible House, New York.

AULT & WIBORG
COMPANY
Manufacturers of Printing Inks.
CINCINNATI, NEW YORK,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS.
This Paper Printed with Ault & Wiborg Ink

YOUNG FOLKS

The Leading Paper for Christian Young People.

W. W. DOWLING, Editor.

Our Young Folks, A Large Sixteen Page, Illustrated Weekly, contains the Scripture Text with full Analytical, Illustrative and Practical Notes on the

Midweek Prayer-Meeting Topics

which have been in use in hundreds of the Leading Churches for the last seven years. The Best Prayer-Meetings are in those Churches where these Uniform Topics are followed and Our Young Folks used.

In addition to these Topics, the Journal contains full Expositions of the Sunday-school Lessons, the Y. P. S. C. E. Topics, and much other useful matter along all lines of Christian Work. No Minister, Teacher, Senior Pupil, Christian Endeavorer or other Christian Worker can afford to be without this Weekly.

☞ TERMS: Single copy, 75 cents per year; in clubs of five, 65 cents; in clubs of ten and upwards, 50 cents each per year.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., ST. LOUIS.

Burlington Route

OFFICIAL ROUTE
—TO—
CALIFORNIA

"CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST" Special
LEAVING ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY
—AUGUST 9th, 1905—

FOR PARTICULARS AND RESERVATIONS WRITE
G. A. HOFFMANN, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis,
—OR—
J. G. DELAPLAINE, Broadway & Olive, St. Louis.

Sunday-School.

July 9, 1905.

HEZEKIAH'S PRAYER.— Isaiah 38:1-8.

The passage for this lesson is almost identical with 2 Kings 20:1-10. This is not altogether accounted for by the fact that the incident has to do with a private conversation between Hezekiah and Isaiah, of which Isaiah would be the natural recorder so that other accounts would necessarily copy his. In modern literature one does not thus appropriate whole sections of another's narrative, word for word, even when the other is the original authority on the subject. Besides, this is only part of a much longer section in which 2 Kings and Isaiah are verbally identical, with only an occasional insertion of an extra phrase in one or the other. 2 Kings 18:13 to 20:11, is, with the exception of a few verses, identical with Isaiah 36:1 to 38:8; and again 2 Kings 20:1-11 is identical with Isaiah 38:1 8. These passages have to do with Hezekiah's dealing with Sennacherib and with his sickness and recovery. 2 Chronicles is much less closely parallel to Isaiah than is 2 Kings in its treatment of this matter, but it refers to Isaiah as the authority in matters pertaining to Hezekiah (2 Chron. 32:32).

The use of the same language in these two accounts must have some significance. Think about it, and frame some idea of what it may indicate as regards the method of composition of these books, their dependence on sources, their unity or lack of it, and the then current ideas of literary proprietorship which would permit a writer to borrow pages from another writer without credit.

The incident of Hezekiah's sickness and recovery, of which the lesson verses treat, is not in itself a very important one. The date of his death is set at 696 B. C. If this sickness occurred fifteen years before (2 Kings 38:5) that would put it in 711 B. C. That would put it ten years before Sennacherib's invasion. Isaiah had already been prophesying since the year that King Uzziah died (Isaiah 6:1), or about twenty-five years at this time.

Isaiah's relation to the king and the court was very intimate. Politics and religion were closely connected and Isaiah considered both his sphere. In particular, he urged peace and the payment of tribute to Assyria rather than revolt, and this for a religious reason, as stated in the comment on last week's lesson. Hezekiah did not follow Isaiah's teaching in this matter, but revolted against Assyria. Nevertheless, he is described, both in Kings and in Chronicles, as a good king who obeyed Jehovah. Isaiah devotes much space to the events of Hezekiah's reign, but he expresses no opinion as to the king's character, except such as is implied in the denunciation of his policy regarding Assyria. Possibly Hezekiah's sickness and the threat of death were in punishment of, or warning against, that spirit which prompted him to this revolt. At any rate, the recovery is made the occasion of an assertion (Isaiah 38:6) that Jerusalem would be protected from the enemy.

Of more value, for our present use, than the story of Hezekiah's sickness and recovery and the miracle which is reported to have been wrought in confirmation of the promise, is the beautiful song of thanksgiving which follows (Isaiah 38:10-20).

Christian Endeavor.

By H. A. Denton.

July 9, 1905.

THE INDWELLING CHRIST.— Col. 2:6-10; 3:8-16.

For the Leader.

We have a lesson to-night that will bring to us a message much needed in these times of commercial ideas and ideals; in these times when a proud and self sufficient spirit possesses us: "The Indwelling of Jesus." This is meant to convey the sincere acceptance and daily walk in him that should characterize us. We are told that the same spirit that was in Jesus—the same mind that was in him—should be in us. This for several reasons. But the main reason for this is the fact that in no other way can we attain to the life and happiness set before us in him. A different mind will bring different results. This we do not want. We want the same results as reached in the life of Jesus. Let us not trust to any formality, but let us know that the mind that was in Christ must be in us. Let us look into this mind.

For the Members.

1. What was this mind that was in Jesus? Relative to position, honor, power, ease, and all the things that follow the sacrifice he made, it was the reverse of the mind that is prevalent to-day. He did not look upon power as a thing to grasp, that is, to hold with a tight grip for fear it might be lost. If it was for the good of the many who were lost that he be emptied of that power for their sakes, so let it be. He could pray, "Thy will, not mine, be done."

2. Relative to things to be possessed, it is a mind that is willing to become poor to enrich others. How rare is this grace to-day! And not to declare this day worse than the past, but to compare it with the day that is to be. To give all one has; to become poor; to take upon one want and humiliation; to do this that others might enjoy the true riches—this was the mind that was in Jesus. It should dwell in us richly. We should have a mind that desires the good of others.

3. Relative to humiliation, the mind in Christ was such as esteemed it a privilege to be despised, if only that humiliation would result in the exaltation of others. He not only had this mind, but he taught it as a principle of life and human experience, that if any man should be exalted he must first humble himself. And this a humiliation that is not yet in sight of the exaltion. It is the giving up on our part when we cannot see that it is to lead to promotion. The soul that can thus endure will be exalted.

4. Relative to sin, the mind of Christ was that it was not normal to the human life. That sin was a mistake. That sin was hurtful. That the soul smitten by sin could only be healed by him who is the great physician. The momentary pleasure of sin did not deceive the Master. He knew the deception in this. He knew that the pleasures of sin must be tested not by the effect of time being, but by the effect of time to come. His mind, then, was to denounce sin, put it out of his own heart and life. This he did as no one else before him did. The center of his strength to do this was in his mind, his determination, his will. So let the same will, determination, mind, be in us.

Quiet Hour Thought.

Am I ashamed of the mind of the Master?

DAILY READINGS.

M.	"Hid with Christ."	Col. 3:1-4.
T.	By obedience.	John 15:9-16.
W.	One with him.	John 17:22-26.
T.	His temples.	1 Cor. 6:15-20.
F.	Dead to the law.	Gal. 2:19-21.
S.	Abiding in him.	1 John 2:6,24-28.
S.	Topic—The indwelling Christ.	Col. 2:6 10; 3:8-16.

THE BEST
Sunday-School
Periodicals

WILLIAM W. DOWLING, Editor.
METTA A. DOWLING, Associate.

ANNUAL.

Christian Lesson Commentary. The most complete and satisfactory commentary on the lessons for the entire year published by any people. The only commentary on the lessons for 1905 published in the Christian brotherhood.

QUARTERLY.

1. The Beginner's Quarterly, containing a series of lessons for the very little people, arranged along Kindergarten lines.
2. The Primary Quarterly, containing a preparation of the International Lessons for the Primary Department.
3. The Youth's Quarterly, designed for the Intermediate and younger Junior Classes.
4. The Scholar's Quarterly, prepared for the older Juniors and younger Seniors and members of the Home Department.
5. The Bible Student, designed for Advanced Students, Teachers, Superintendents and Ministers.
6. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, printed in eight colors. Each leaf, 26 by 37 inches, contains a picture illustrating one lesson. Thirteen leaves in a set.
7. Christian Picture Lesson Cards. A reduced fac-simile of the large Bible Lesson Picture Roll. Put up in sets, containing one card for each Sunday in quarter.

MONTHLY.

Christian Bible Lesson Leaves.

These Lessons Leaves are especially for the use of Sunday-schools that may not be able to fully supply themselves with Lesson Books or Quarterlies.

WEEKLY.

1. The Little Ones, for the Little Folks, with Beautiful Colored Pictures in every number.
2. The Young Evangelist, for the pupils of the Intermediate Department, with bright Pictures, Lessons and Entertaining Stories.
3. The Round Table, for Boys and Girls who are a little too old for The Young Evangelist, and who have a taste for bright, entertaining stories and practical information.
4. Our Young Folks, a large 16-page Illustrated Weekly, nearly four times as large as the ordinary Sunday-school paper, for Sunday-school Teachers, Advanced Pupils, Christian Endeavorers, and in fact for all Working Members of the Christian Church, with a well-sustained department also for the Home Circle, adapted to the wants of the whole family.

Further information, prices and samples upon request. Drop us a postal card. Do it now.

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

❀ ❀

A Fine Kidney Cure.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, East Hampton, Conn., (the Clothier) says if any sufferer from Kidney and Bladder troubles will write him, he will, without charge, direct them to the perfect home cure he used.

A POSTAL CARD addressed to us will bring to you promptly our catalogue of Christian Endeavor Requisites. To make the work of your society of the most helpful character you need the practical aids which we are prepared to furnish at very little cost. The catalogue is yours if you ask for it. DO IT NOW. CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Midweek Prayer-Meeting.

By W. F. Richardson.

July 5, 1905.

NATIONAL PROSPERITY.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." Proverbs 14:34.

Our National Anniversary. It is fitting that the Fourth of July should be made an occasion for prayer and thanksgiving in all our churches. Were there less of picnicking and more of prayer, less of fireworks and more of patriotism, it were better for our country. For our republic is a child of divine Providence, and gratitude demands that we recognize the source from whence we have derived our existence and receive our blessings.

Our Heritage. As the Lord said to Moses concerning Israel, so did he unto our fathers. He brought them out of the land of spiritual bondage into "a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey" (Ex. 3:7, 8; Num. 13:23-27). The noblest continent on the earth is ours, whose resources we have just begun to utilize. And the Lord planted in this rich soil the noblest seed of the human race. Men and women who had left home and a native land for a dwelling in the wilderness, that they might be free to worship God.

> "What sought they thus afar?
> Bright jewels of the mine?
> The wealth of seas? the spoils of war?
> No, 'twas a faith's pure shrine."

Providence has here developed the noblest political institutions that any nation has ever enjoyed. The world looks to the United States for inspiration and example, as it slowly rises out of monarchy into free self-government. "He hath not dealt so with any nation" (Ps. 147:20).

Our Prosperity. We have never known a famine since the first days of the suffering pilgrims. Their want has given place to our abundance, and for more than two centuries the American people have revelled in the enjoyment of the fruits of the earth and the increase of the herd and flock. Psalm 9:13 is a faithful picture of our annual harvest season. Our wealth has increased with every generation, until we have become by far the richest nation in the world. The laborer is surrounded by comforts which were unknown to the king a century ago. Truly can every American citizen say with the psalmist of old, "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage" (Ps. 16:6).

Our Peril. The human heart is prone to forget the things that are most essential to remember. Liberty is in danger of becoming license in this "Land of the Free." Drunken with prosperity, our nation seems to many anxious hearts to be reeling towards its doom. However optimistic we may be, we cannot ignore the danger that confronts us. Such scriptures as Deut. 6:10-13 and 8:11-20 need to be studied in the light of our own history. "Lest we forget" needs to be echoed in all our hearts. Wanton and selfish luxury, inordinate greed, political ambition, social frivolity and vice—all these are so many attacks upon the life of our republic. Reformation or destruction seems to be our only alternative.

Our Hope. There is a civic revival now manifestly moving among the American people, and in this lies our hope for our country. Corruption which has long been unrebuked is now in hiding, and in many places where vice was wantonly flaunting itself in the face of society, it is now seeking to avoid the public eye. Men are coming to realize that only righteousness can truly exalt a nation (Prov. 14:34). Religion and morality are no longer sneered at in high places, but the necessity for righteous principle to prevail in order to the public welfare, is becoming an accepted maxim of government (Prov. 11:11 and 29:2). Let us pray for God to give us men who shall embody this truth in their lives, and make it a reality in their service of the public. Then shall our national prosperity continue to the generations that follow us.

* *

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 183, Notre Dame, Ind.

The Bethany Books

Christian Endeavor Reading Course

—SUBJECTS—

(1) The Plea and History of the Disciples of Christ
(2) The English Bible : (3) Christian Missions
Three Cloth-Bound Books on each Subject.

This course of study if followed as outlined by the authors will give the student a thorough and most helpful knowledge of the people who are pleading for simple, primitive Christianity, and of the Bible which they exalt as the Book of books. Note the titles and authors below:

Concerning the Disciples.—B. B. Tyler.
Bible Doctrine for Young Disciples.—F. D. Power.
Life and Teachings of Jesus.—H. L. Willett.
A Hand-book of Missions.—A. McLean.
Sketches of Our Pioneers.—F. D. Power.
A Guide to Bible Study.—J. W. McGarvey.
Prophets of Israel.—H. L Willett.
Heroes of Modern Missions.—W. J. Lhamon.
Missionary Fields and Forces.—W. J. Lhamon.

PRICES:

Any one book prepaid, 35 cents : Three books, $1.00
The entire course of nine books, $3.00

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 PINE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Normal Instructor

By W. W. Dowling.

A Thorough and Systematic Study of the Bible, its Lands, People, etc.

IN SEVEN PARTS

Bound separately in strong Manila Covers. Specially arranged for Teachers, Normal Classes, Institutes and Assemblies.

The Very Best Work of the Kind

15 Cents per Copy. $1.50 per dozen.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Praises to the Prince

A Choice Collection of

SACRED SONGS

for Sunday-Schools, Young People's Societies, Evangelistic Services, and all other branches of Church Work and Worship.

224 Pages. Responsive Readings. New Music. Handsome Appearance. Truly the Newest and Best Song Book on the Market. : : :

STYLES AND PRICES:

Cloth,	Per copy, postpaid . .	$ .30
Boards,	" " . .	.25
Limp Cloth,	" " . .	.25
Cloth,	Per dozen, not prepaid	3.00
Boards,	" "	2.50
Limp Cloth,	" "	2.00
Cloth,	Per hundred, not prepaid	25.00
Boards,	" "	20.00
Limp Cloth,	" "	15.00

Bound with Cap and Rivet if desired.

PUBLISHED BY

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

MINIATURE

BOOKS OF THE GOSPEL

Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, In Separate Books.

1 1-2 by 2 Inches.

Very Plain Readable Type.

Gilt Edged and Morocco Bound.
Price 50 cents each postpaid.

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
St. Louis, Mo.

We manufacture
CHURCH and SCHOOL
Furniture, Assembly and Opera Chairs, Office and Library Furniture.
I. E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

Family Circle

War and the Wage-Earner.

By Carroll D. Wright, LL. D., Formerly United States Commissioner of Labor.

The wage-earners of our country have taken but little interest in international arbitration, yet their concern in the subject, as a means of establishing better relations between the different nations, is one of real vital importance, and could they and their fellows in all nations be aroused to its importance, the hopes of the friends of international arbitration would be stimulated in great measure.

There are in the United States, in accordance with the best classifications that can be made, over eighteen and a half million wage-earners, including men, women and children. This number of people constitutes a body as large as the whole population of Spain, and by themselves would make a nation having almost half the population of France, and more than one-half that of Italy. This body is large enough to make a nation with whom any government would seek treaty relations, or against whom war would be declared under the ordinary methods. It is so large a body that it is vitally interested in the education of the public mind when rational attempts are made to avoid conflict, and must in time appreciate international arbitration as a great school for it to imitate. And yet I have found no allusion in any of the platforms or declarations of trades-unions and labor organizations relative to this great subject.

I do not believe they comprehend the moral element of arbitration; and yet this moral element is in the air and it appeals to all sane men as strongly now as in the times of Isaiah, who, 750 years before Christ, becoming alarmed at what he thought an impending national calamity, called important citizens of Jerusalem to him, pointed out their particular sins of omission and commission, the wrongs that had been done, and prophesied the results of their actions, and when he had made a strong arraignment he said, "Come, now and let us reason together." The great prophet knew that by reasoning together people would come to see more clearly than by any other method the real dangers which confronted them.

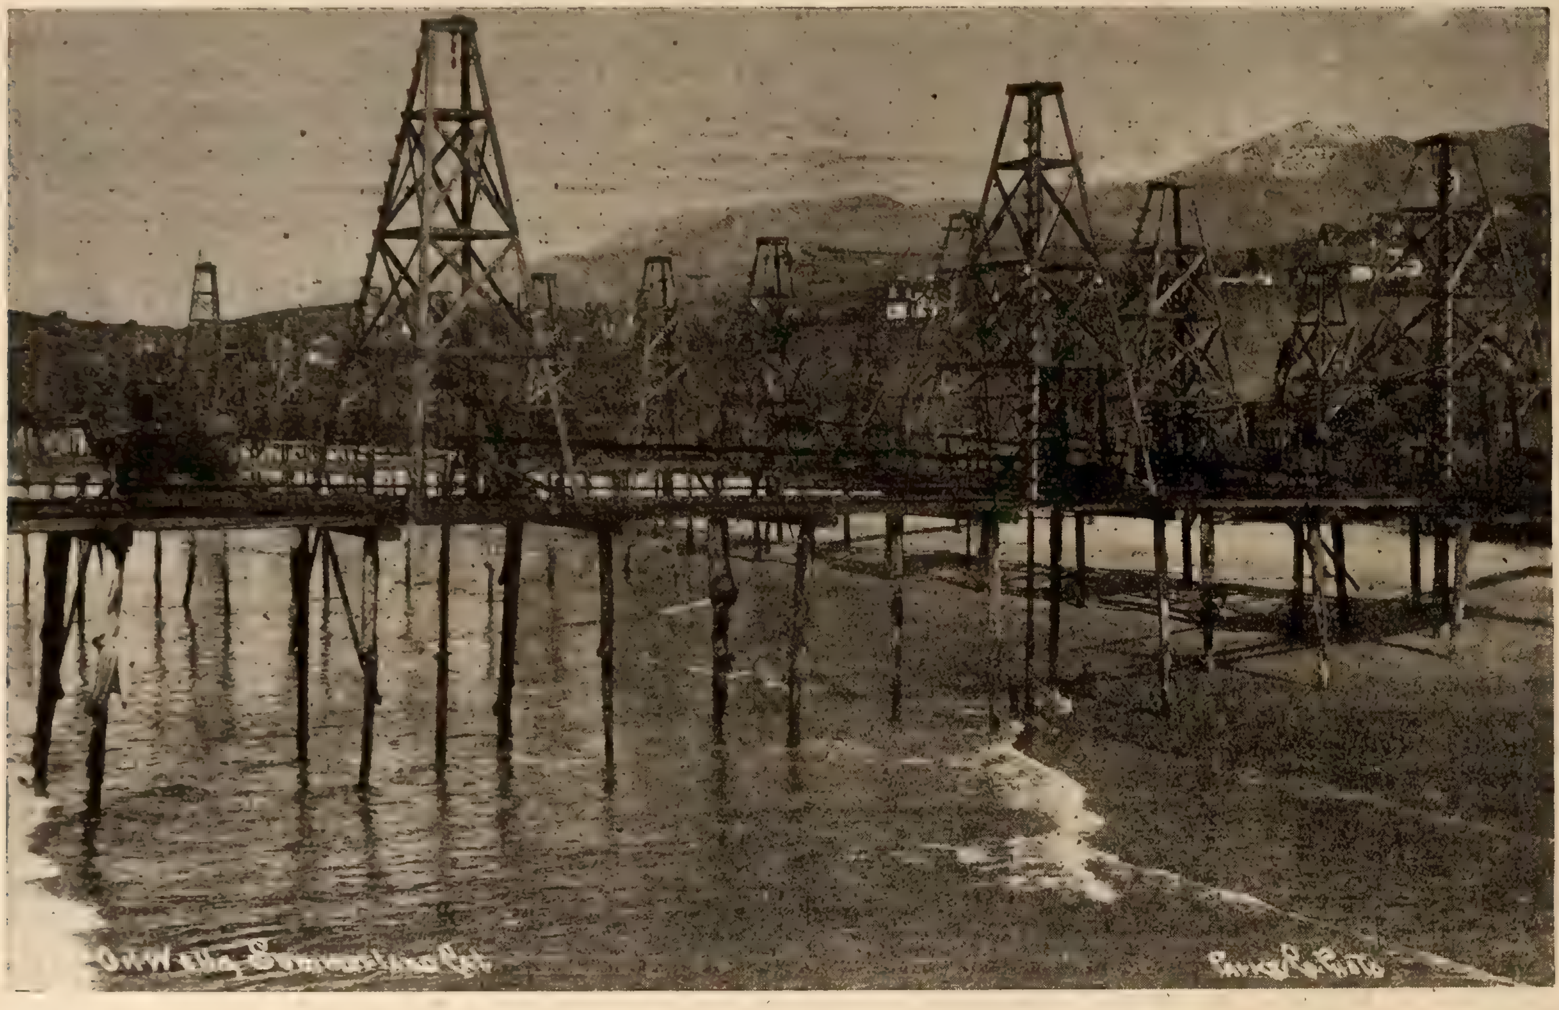
Here is the keynote of all arbitration of whatever character and whatever the problems that are sought to be solved by it. A careful study of industrial arbitration leads one to the conclusion that it is not the full solution of what we know as labor difficulties. The same careful consideration also induces one to believe that international arbitration will not solve all international troubles, yet everywhere whenever undertaken, whenever resorted to, it becomes the exponent of the public conscience, the exponent of the great moral forces which make for the very best civilization.

Before much headway can be made in international arbitration, sociological difference must be more thoroughly equalized. The doctrines of protection and free trade are sociological questions as much as economic. Wage earners see this perhaps more clearly than politicians. They see when conditions are equalized, these great trade doctrines become more easily comprehended, but until such conditions are more thoroughly equalized, it will be difficult to bring the world to the basis of the highest morality in its commercial relations.

All differences excite passion of some kind. It is the same in the theological, in the educational and in every other sphere of life. As young college men express it, there is a desire to lick somebody or get licked. If this desire becomes crystallized then there is a declaration of war, and when war comes the moral instincts are dulled and the wage-earners are the chief sufferers. International arbitration seeks to avoid this state of affairs, that the great parties to the contest may go on their way in peace and the pursuit of prosperous economic production and useful living.

Production is often stimulated, temporarily, by war, usually is, in fact, but it is a feverish condition, and the after effects are such as to bring about depression, general demoralization, loss of work and hence loss of wages. The wage-earner therefore is thoroughly interested in the progress of the idea of settling international disputes by arbitration. What he needs more than anything else is the fair prospect of steady employment at remunerative wages. Wars, conflicts of any kind, disturb this prospect and make his labor intermittent. Better lower wages and constant employment than higher wages with periods of idleness. When wars occur the whole spirit of reform, of reasonable adjustment, of manly conduct, is suspended, and though the feverish conditions of markets may bring, as already intimated, temporary employment at high rates, there is sure to follow a period of depression and long convalescence necessary for retrievement.

Arbitration partakes of the very highest element of religion and assumes broader and grander lines than the mere adjustment of labor troubles as they occur between employer and employe. The growth of religious spirit in the settlement and adjustment of international affairs, is an evidence that the public conscience is receiving some stimulation from some source which leads it on to a reasonable consideration of questions involving international rights, duties and obligations. This is the religious spirit; it is the spirit which comes from very old teaching; it is the Pauline method of adjusting difficulties in the church, it is now become the universal method of settling difficulties between employers and employes; and now the spirit is going up higher into the work of nations themselves. This means a new patriotism; that patriotism which is born of a pure religious spirit; it means devotion to a higher principle; it means the patriotism of personal sacrifice, and it is a higher type of patriotism than that exemplified on the battlefield.



CALIFORNIA OIL WELLS.

I wish the wage-earners, as a whole, might comprehend this new phase of the religious spirit, and when they can see their economic interests in it, I believe they will understand and comprehend it.

I said that, so far as I could find, there were no allusions or declarations relative to international arbitration to be found in the platforms of trades-unions, but the American Federation of Labor has taken a stand which it is interesting to note. Mr. Samuel Gompers, the able president of that great body, which comprehends one-ninth of the wage-earners of the whole country, recently has given utterances relative to international peace, and his words are worth quoting here. He said:

"True to the highest and best conception of human life the trades-union movement, from its first inception, has been opposed to war. It recognizes that though others may fall, the brunt of war is borne by the working people; not only upon the battlefield itself, but the burdens thereafter which war entails. We cannot be indifferent to, restrain our feelings or horror at, nor withhold our sympathies from, the slaughtered thousands of human beings even in the far east, regardless of the country toward which our predilections lie. We welcomed the establishment of the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague. We recognize that in the last analysis, and in order to prevent any reaction that may lead to greater and more repeated wars and bloodshed, the success for international conception of the sacredness of human life. In the broad domain of human activity there is no force so potent and which will be so powerful to establish and maintain international peace and human brotherhood as the fraternization of the workers of the world in the international labor movement."

Mr. Gompers expresses himself so strongly in this matter that it may be considered as the utterance of the whole body of wage-workers in this country.

When it is understood that many of our great labor organizations are international in their character, and that when there are congresses of labor representatives from all parts of the world brought together to consider the interests of the wage-earners in the broadest sense of fraternization, we must conclude that their influence finally in establishing international arbitration as a principle, is of the greatest importance, not only to them as workers, but to the whole world at large.

❁ ❁

Portland As a Summer Resort.

By Robertus Love.

If I were living in the east this year and had friends who contemplated attending the Portland fair, I should give them one little piece of advice: For men—take a vest along; don't expect to be comfortable all day and evening in a two-piece suit. For women—carry a wrap, and don't wear net-work waists.

Now this advice is not at all impertinent; it is a simple piece of fatherly admonition. If you imagine that the Portland climate is a hot one you are sadly mistaken. The only thing that makes an easterner homesick when in Portland is the summer weather. He sometimes longs for the sweltering heat of New York, or St. Louis, or New Orleans—such as he has been accustomed to all his life in summer time—just to remind him of home. He wants to take off his coat and vest, remove his collar, open the neckband of his shirt, and sit out where he can sweat like a stoker in a gas plant furnace, and feel at home. When in Portland these June days he finds the weather so cool that he usually wears a light topcoat if he goes out early in the morning or stays out late at night; he sleeps under double blankets every night during the summer, and never gets any real sweltering even in the middle of the day—unless he chooses to go down into the stoke-hole of some ocean vessel lying in Portland's splendid harbor.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Of course this makes the native and lifelong resident of a hot climate very homesick. A man I met the other day had just received a letter from his folks, who were living in an upstairs flat in the fashionable West End of St. Louis. They wrote that the weather was so stifling that they found it necessary to remove to a downstairs flat.

For more than two weeks the Portland temperature, at the warmest part of the day, had not exceeded 84 degrees and most of the time it had been from 15 to 30 degrees below that figure. The St. Louis man wrote for his folks to come out to Portland, the peerless summer resort.

People to the eastward, who are looking around for some watering place where they can cool off, or a mountain resort where enlivening breezes are the rule, should consider Portland's claims this season. Portland is both a watering place and a mountain resort, with a big exposition thrown in for good count. It is only a hundred miles from the Pacific ocean, by boat on the Columbia or by rail along the banks of that mighty and picturesque stream. Several seashore resorts near to the mouth of the Columbia, where surf-bathing as fine as any in the world may be had, draw many citizens and tourists from Portland. It is a ride of but four or five hours from this city to the ocean, passing en route some of the most wonderful scenery to be found on the map. When you get to the Pacific you are but a few miles from the site of old Fort Clatsop, where Lewis and Clark spent the memorable winter of 1805-6, and you pass through Astoria, the oldest town on the North Pacific coast, founded by John Jacob Astor, the New York fur trader, whose descendants still own more or less of the real estate in New York city. Washington Irving wrote one of his most interesting books about Astoria and the Astor fur trading expeditions.

But if it is summer resorting, rather than ancient history, that you seek, the seaside places along the Oregon and Washington beaches will satisfy your soul. One of the favorite coast resorts for Portland people is Seaside, where there are many cosey little cottages. The rental of these cottages, completely furnished, is surprisingly low—much lower than the rates charged for similar accommodations at Long Branch, Asbury Park, Atlantic City and other Atlantic coast resorts. Many families from afar have taken advantage of this opportunity and have rented cottages at Seaside for the exposition season; they run up to Portland every now and then; see the exposition and participate in its social functions, then go back to the shore and resume their ocean dips. Long Beach, on the Washington shore, is another nearby resort which is highly popular. Here also are cottages for rent. Summer hotels abound at both these seashore resorts, with the usual round of "hops" and other diversions.

If you purchase a
PIANO OR ORGAN
with the name
ESTEY
upon it, you will have the VERY BEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT that money can buy. Prices and terms most reasonable. Catalogs free to any address.
THE ESTEY CO.,
1116 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.
Mention this paper.

The Christ in Modern English Literature
By GEO. H. COMBS.
Purple Silk Cloth Binding; Title in White; 257 Pages.
$1.00, Postpaid.
This book, written in the best of literary style, traces in a careful and interesting way the influence of Christ upon the thought and consequent productions of makers of literature since his time.
One can not read it without being more thoroughly convinced than ever that the influence of Christ's life is the power that produces civilization and advancement in the world. The book is one of the most attractive ever issued by us.
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

For Over 60 Years
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of Mothers for their CHILDREN while TEETHING, with perfect success. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all pain, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind. 25 Cents a Bottle.
An Old and Well-tried Remedy

But it is not necessary for the tourist to go to the seashore to cool off at any time during the summer, Portland being cool enough for all practical purposes. There is no really hot month here. Ever since the exposition opened the days and evenings have been delightfully cool. People who go out to the Fair to spend the evening always carry light wraps. Whether they sit on the slope of Lakeview terrace, listening to the music by the Innes band, or stroll through the Trail, taking in a show here and there, they find no places where it is too hot to be comfortable. In some respects the Trail is said to be a "warm" place, but the adjective applies only to the amusement attractions.

For July and August the average temperatures are but little higher than that of June, which covering a period of thirty-three years, shows 62 degrees. Just now Portland is a perfect bower of roses. It has been estimated that at the present moment no less than ten millions of roses are blooming in this city. Roses are so cheap here, on account of their abundance, that anybody may have an armful merely for the asking. People carry away bouquets of roses, presented by the generous householders, which would cost $5 anywhere east of the Cascade mountain range. Roses that bring $3 a dozen in New York are given away here by the bushel.

Many families are camping out in tents on the glorious hills surrounding Portland. But it is not necessary for a family to camp out; that is simply a free choice for those who like camp life. Portland is full of hotels and boarding houses, lodging houses and private residences, most of which are on the outlook for guests at very reasonable rates. Although the fair attendance has exceeded expectations during the first two weeks of the exposition period, averaging more than 10,000 daily admissions, the city is by no means full of people, and there are rooms to spare. A remarkable feature of this exposition, as it appears to one who has been the round of big fairs, is the fact that within a stone's throw of the main entrance there are tiptop square meals to be had, cleanly and neatly served, for 25 cents, while for 15 cents a regular dinner without the finishing trimmings may be had. All of which goes to show that Portland is not a bad place for a person of rigid economy to spend the summer in; while for the tourist who cares to stop at a high-class hotel there are several hostelries where the exclusiveness and comfort of a private bath may be enjoyed at rates not exceeding those charged to-day for the same class of accommodations in St. Louis, Chicago or New York.

* *

Snowballing Among Roses.

Although California is the land of flowers to which snowballing, except in the mountains, generally is forbidden, exceptions to the rule may be compelled. Such an exception during the past winter, or rainy season, was witnessed in San Jose. One of the stage-drivers to and from Mount Hamilton brought from there a barrel carefully packed with snow, and presented it to the pupils of the Grant school in the Garden City. Then the fun began. Most of the children had not seen snow before except on the distant mountain summits. They wanted to snowball; but they didn't know how, and they approached the subject tentatively. And—here is the crowning absurdity of the situation—some of their teachers didn't know how to teach them.

Although they were adults, never before had they come in contact with snow. Some of the little chaps, after cautious investigation, declared that the strange white stuff burned their fingers, it was so hot; and others, who had read or been told about it, feared that their hands would be frozen by the first contact with it. The experimental stage was soon past, however, and then the fun was fast and furious. It was such ecstasy as eastern children know, with the zest of novelty added to it. For a brief time school traditions and the proprieties maintained between teachers and pupils were thrown to the winds, and there were none so high or so low that a snowball might not batter him when least expected.

The white missiles whizzed through bushes laden with roses or clipped the stately calla lilies from their stems as a knife might have done. It was a touch of winter introduced into a garden of bloom and beauty; and, ah, but the boys, big and little, enjoyed it! For all of which some sort of reverence might be done to the Mount Hamilton stage-driver—he has not forgotten that he once was a boy.—Sunset Magazine.

* *

THE VERY LATEST AND BEST
Christian Workers' New Testament
With marked passages so connected by references as to make a complete study of any particular theme a very easy matter
Leather Binding. Divinity Circuit.
Prices: - - - 75 cents to $1.25.
Write us for particulars
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., ▪ ▪ ▪ St. Louis, Mo.

Michigan Summer Resorts.

Among the lakes and rivers of the East Coast of Lake Michigan is the ideal country for a summer outing. Fishing, boating, bathing, sailing, golf, and above all, an ideal climate. Pure air and pure spring water. Health and recreation. Booklets descriptive of these resorts mailed on application to H. Fe MOELLER, G. P. A., Pere Marquette Railroad, Union Station, Detroit, Mich.

Sunday-School
CLASS BOOKS,
ENVELOPES
RECORDS,
BLACK BOARDS,
MAPS, CARDS
AND OTHER
Up-To-Date Supplies
Order what you need from
Christian Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo

The College of the Bible
Lexington, Ky.

Thorough historical and exegetical courses in the whole Bible, together with the usual classical and scientific courses in Kentucky University.

Scholarships to supplement the resources of indigent students who prove themselves worthy of help.

Both Men and Women Received.
Rates of Tuition and Boarding Inexpensive.
Next Session Begins September 11.
For other information address,
J. W. McGARVEY, Pres.

The American Way
KEY AND TYPE ON ONE STEEL BAR
Saves 50 per cent incost.
American Typewriter
A simple rigid construction which saves twelve hundred parts and $50. Maximum efficiency with minimum exertion. This feature is the exclusive patent of the new American standard $50. typewriter. Universal keyboard, ball-bearing carriage, printing from ribbon with interchangeable steel type, unlimited speed.
"The American Way" and Easy Payment Plan mailed on Request
If you want your correspondence on an up-to-date business-like basis at small cost we also have a practical typewriter for $10.
Write for details and either catalogue
American Typewriter Company
260½ Broadway, New York.

PROFESSOR MORAN'S
Course of Instruction in
SHORTHAND
The American Pitman System
Used by over Nine-tenths of Stenographers in America.
Comprised in the following books:
The Reporting Style of Shorthand, 329 pages, 12mo, cloth - - $1.50
Key to the Reporting Style of Shorthand. Cloth - - - - - 2.00
The Shorthand Primer. 32 pages - .25
The Sign Book, 47 pages, limp cloth .25
Shorthand Dictionary. Cloth - - 1.00
One Hundred Valuable Suggestions, Cloth - - - - - - 1.00
Student's Shorthand Manual. Cloth 1.00
Christian Publishing Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Toledo, St. Louis & Western R.R.Co.
"CLOVER LEAF ROUTE."
The Short Line St. Louis to Lake Erie and the North-eastern Summer Resorts.
ASK ABOUT OUR NET-SHAPED TOUR.
Lake { HURON ERIE CHAUTAUQUA
City Office 104 N. 4th Street, St. Louis.
R. J. McKay, D. P. A.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

With the Children

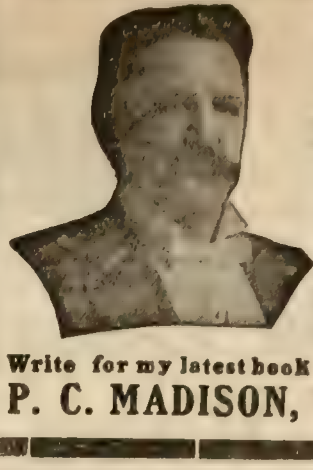
By J. Breckenridge Ellis.

Advance Society.

Bertha Beeslev, Moselle, Mo.: "After talking it over with mamma, we have decided to take Charlie for a week, and if he is satisfied, we may extend his visit indefinitely. It makes little difference when he comes to us, after his visit to you. We live on a large farm, and if Charlie loves animals, he may have his choice of colts, calves, pigs, dogs, cats and chickens. I wish he had been here to enjoy our strawberries." (By the time this letter is printed, Charlie will have begun his vacation. I hope to tell you about his trip next month.) A Friend, Courtenay, N. D.: "I send 50 cents for orphan Charlie, and $1.50 for our missionary, Drusie. I think it is a grand work the Advance Society is doing. I am glad so many take an interest and send money for the support of the missionary and orphan. I really think you yourself are—" (I couldn't think of printing that compliment, and yet I want you all to know it's there.) Mrs. Margaret Knight, Pittsburg, Kan.: "Post office order for two dollars; one for Charlie, one for Drusie." Ella Harness, Exline, Ia.: "I joined the Av. S. quite a while ago and kept the rules, but did not send in my report. I have commenced again. I had not been home for over a year, till Christmas, when I read up all our pages in the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST. I am glad the Av. S. took an orphan; I wish it would take a little girl, too. I send a half dollar, and so does Everette. He is a little boy 11 years old. His father and mother are dead, and my mother is dead, so we both have a home with Mr. Bunker. We have three white and three gray cats and anybody that wants one can have it." (Old gold is now the style in cats, since Felix set the fashion. A yellow cat used to be considered common, but the old fashions are all coming in. It's quite the thing to have old crazy-legged kitchen furniture in your parlor, and old gold cats sitting upon your piazza.) Nellie Buchanan, Mayview, Mo.: "I have been reading the letters more than a year and have decided to join. I have kept the rules three months. I don't think the editor ought to put advertisements on our page. I think we might have one whole page. You must not think I am a critic, for I am only wishing for what might be! I think it nice to have a little orphan to take care of. "Mrs. M. E. Bradfield, Fly, O.: "I send $2; please decide between the orphan Charlie and the brave little missionary, Drusie Malott. If it is not too far, Charlie can come and stay with me a month. I have raised three orphans; one cripple like Charlie. We live right by the river, and he can go fishing every day. We are 350 miles above Cincinnati. We have no church near. I wish some preacher would come our way and hold us a good meeting; I know a lot of good could be done. If any preacher will come, he can stop at my address, and will be treated kindly; we will do all we can to get a church started. I would give a lot, and do all I could for a church, and help to support the preacher; that is all I can offer" (I am sorry that the railroad fare would be too much for the Av. S. to pay, else Charlie might enjoy the fishing, and the kind home by the river. Where are those preachers who are anxious to preach, eager to do good, but find no churches at their command? Let them fly to Fly!)

Jean Lemmon, Warrensburg, Mo.: "I heard about the orphan, and I want to help, too. I send a twenty-five-cent piece. I am a little girl eight years old." Mary Louise Roscoe, Hopkinsville, Ky.: "Mamma takes the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST, and for a long time I have been much interested in 'With the Children.' I am going to begin keeping the rules. I think your story 'Pete' was fine." Ednah Shriver, Nebo, Ill.: "When I went down to the World's Fair, last summer, I stayed eleven days, and when I came back, I had forgotten my Advance Society notebook; but it was taken care of and has been sent to me. I liked 'The Green Witch' fine. My birthday is August 20." Mrs. Belle F. Romweber, Akron, O.: "I send two dollars for our dear young missionary Drusie. Every Christian heart must rejoice to hear of such unwavering faith. I thank God that I have been permitted to send a little for this glorious cause." Mrs. W. A. Mason, Nevada, Mo.: "I will tell about why I missed keeping one of the Advance Society quarters, last year. Up to October 10, I had kept the rules ten weeks; then my husband, daughter and myself started to the great World's Fair and convention. We were in that awful Warrensburg wreck. We were taken to Warrensburg, and all that kind and loving hands could do, was done for us. The people we met there will always have a warm spot in our hearts. After remaining there four days, we were able to return home, and after three months, all had about recovered from their injuries. After a week had elapsed, I recommenced the Advance Society rules." (This merely shows how well-grounded and durable our Advance Society rules are, when they could pass through such a fearful wreck and come out unharmed. Since then, Mrs Mason has regularly sent her reports.) Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Trone, Bafield, Col.: "We send one dollar for the Advance Society missionary, Drusie, and twenty cents for orphan Charlie." Ethel R. Pritchard, Manton, Cal.: "I inclose my sister's report and mine, and twenty-five cents for Charlie. We live among the hills. We had an earthquake last year and it shook us up a good deal, but it didn't break up the Advance Society." (I don't know whether to give the blue ribbon to the earthquake or to Mrs. Mason's railroad wreck.)

Burleigh Cash, Hood River, Ore.: "Last year I was in the eighth grade; I passed the examinations and got done with 'common' school. Twenty-nine passed out of thirty-three—the largest class that ever graduated in Hood River." (Is swimming one of the branches?) "I am sending you one of the programs. I took part in the 'Courtship of Miles Standish.' We thought 'The Green Witch' so fine. Our class colors were crimson and cream; flower, carnation; class motto, 'We have climbed the foothills—the mountains are in view.'" Etta Christian, St. Catherine, Mo.: "After keeping the Advance Society rules twelve weeks, I would like to join. I am staying with my cousin, Josie Lineberry. I have been reading 'With the Children' all winter. Josie and I keep the rules together. We like the work very much." (By the way, as this letter is dated "Jan. 10, 1903," the visit is possibly over ere this.) Drusie R. Malott, South Chih-li Mission, Tientsin, North China: "It may interest the Advance Society to know that we in China keep time differently from them. There



I CAN CURE YOUR EYES

Mrs. Martha Lefevour, West Chicago, Ill., writes: "I wish it was within my power to express my gratitude to you for removing cataracts from both my eyes without an operation and for returning my vision thereby in less than 3 months' treatment." At your own home the

Madison Absorption Method

will do the same for you if your eyes are affected with any trouble whatever. If you see spots or strings, beware of delay, for delay means blindness. Cross eyes straightened without the knife, by a new method, which never fails.

Write for my latest book on the eye which will be sent FREE. A postal will do-Write to-day

P. C. MADISON, M. D., Suite 280, 80 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

SUMMER EXCURSIONS
-VIA-
BIG FOUR
From St. Louis

$24.35	Asburv Park, N.J. AND RETURN Tickets on Sale June 29, 30, July 1, 2
$ 9.25	HAMILTON, O. AND RETURN Tickets on Sale June 30, July 1
$ 21.25	BALTIMORE, MD. AND RETURN Tickets on Sale July 2 3, 4
$ 19.25	Chautauqua, N.Y. AND RETURN Tickets on Sale July 7, 28
$ 18.50	BUFFALO, N. Y. AND RETURN Tickets on Sale July 8, 9, 10
$15.00	PITTSBURG, PA. AND RETURN Tickets on sale August 18 and 19
$22.00	PHILADELPHIA AND RETURN Tickets on Sale Sept. 15, 16, 17.

For particulars call at City Ticket Office,
BROADWAY AND CHESTNUT
or Address C. L. HILLEARY, A. G. P. A.
St. Louis, Mo.

WILL OPERATE

Through Sleeping Cars

From ST. LOUIS To

Northern Michigan Summer Resorts

This Season as Usual

C. C. McCARTY, Div. Pass. Agt.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

are twelve moons in the Chinese year. New Year's day was February 14. For about ten days all work is laid aside and the people give themselves up to 'pleasure,' which in most cases, means eating, smoking and gambling. Even the post offices and grocery stores close for about a week. The sixteenth day of the first moon is a great day in China; it fell on February 19. It is the only day in the year when respectable Chinese women can go freely about the city. All day at Tai Ming an immense crowd stood on the wall, looking down into our mission ('compound'). From the wall one gets a splendid bird's-eye view of the city. I wonder how so many thousands can crowd into such small space. Some say there are 100,000 here. On the West Side, a great crowd had gathered to watch a play. The people climbed the wall and gathered about us so thickly that we could hardly get back to our compound. Of course there is no Christmas for the Chinese, because they do not know of the Christ-child. We had a very blessed Christmas in our compound. As it was Sunday, we had two precious Christmas services for the missionaries; then on Monday we gathered at our director's home and had a pleasant evening with the children, repeating Scripture verses and Christmas selections, and singing hymns. The story of the Savior's birth was repeated from the gospels. It was an ideal Christmas—the first consistent one I ever spent; quiet, full of peace and joy, with none of the noise and thoughtlessness and overfeasting of America." (I have been sending Drusie five dollars a month, as the Advance Society would send it in; but I'm afraid we'll have to skip a month, unless somebody remembers to send something. And Charlie writes that he has broken his crutch! And his railroad expenses are soon to be paid!) New Honor List: W. S. Whitacre, Mt. Vernon, Ill. (5th quarter); Mrs. F. A. Potts, Chattanooga, Tenn. (16th); Mary Rice, Harrisonville, Mo. (5th); Ednah L. A. Shriver, Nebo, Ill. (6th?); Flossie Davis, Des Moines, Ia. (3d); Harry Buckley, Lawrenceburg, Ky.; No Name, Rich Hill, Mo. (8th); Manie Bayless, Mulkeytown, Ill. (9th); Dorothy M. Brown, Medaryville, Ind. (3d).

Here is a note from Manie Bayless that will sadden our Advance Society members: "Although I head my letter 'Du Quoin, Ill.,' my address is still Mulkeytown. I am staying here now to be treated, and we hope so much that the doctor can cure me. I guess I will have to give up the Advance Society rules for a while. I missed my reading yesterday, the first time for over two years. I feel so bad a good part of the time, and there is so much to see from my windows (my home is in the country), I can't get my mind on reading. Then the doctoring takes a good deal of time. I hate to give up the work, but I think maybe it is best for awhile. I suppose you received my other (the 8 h report) with the dollar for Drusie." (After all, it is harder to fight against continuous disease than to pass through wrecks and earthquakes. Next week we shall see what the Woodneys are up to.)

Plattsburg, Mo.

A Complete Line of
BAPTISMAL SUITS
Guaranteed Best Quality.
Write to us for Prices.
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

FRISCO SYSTEM

It's Easy to Keep Cool

Just get on top of a mountain. That may not seem easy, but it is at
EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK.
An electric car right to the top where you will find the finest hotel in the Southwest.
The Crescent
An ideal place for rest and recreation. Reduced rates via Frisco System every day.

For Further Information write
GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT, FRISCO SYSTEM, ST. LOUIS, M

"THE ONLY WAY."
ST. LOUIS to CHICAGO.
4—PERFECT TRAINS—4
MORNING, NOON, NIGHT AND MIDNIGHT,
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
The equipment of these trains is matchless in every detail. Free Chair Cars; Pullman Standard Sleepers; Cafe Dining Cars; Parlor Cars with Observation Platforms.
CHICAGO & ALTON RY.
Write for time-tables, rates, etc., to
D. BOWES, Asst. Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

ROUND-TRIP EXCURSION RATES
FROM ST. LOUIS
VIA B. & O. S-W.
(Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern R. R.)

Asbury Park (Via New York if desired) Going, June 29 and 30, July 1 and 2. Return Limit, July 10 (Privilege of extension to Aug. 31.)	$24.35
Asheville, N. C. Going, Every Day. Return Limit, Oct. 31	20.50
Baltimore Going, July 2, 3 and 4. Return Limit, July 15 (Privilege of extension to Aug. 31.)	21.25
Bristol, Tenn. Going, Every Day. Return Limit, Oct. 31	19.60
Chautauqua Lake, N. Y. Going, July 7; Return Limit, Aug. 8 Going, July 28; Return Limit, Aug. 29	19.25
Chautauqua Lake, N. Y. Going, Every Day. Return Limit, Oct. 31	28.30
Deer Park, Md. Going, Every Day. Return Limit, Oct. 31	27.15
Hamilton, Ohio Going, June 30, July 1 Return Limit, July 5	9.25
French Lick Springs, Ind. (West Baden) Going, Every Day. 10 day limit	8.80
Going, Every Day. 3 months' limit	11.60
Louisville, Ky. Going, June 13 and 14. Return Limit, June 17 (Privilege of extension to July 10.)	6.50
Louisville, Ky. Going, July 30 and 31. Return Limit, Aug. 10	8.25
Pittsburg Going, Every Day. Return Limit, Oct. 21	22.95
Pittsburg Going, Aug. 18 and 19. Return Limit, Aug. 28	15.00
Philadelphia Going, Sept. 15, 16 and 17. Return Limit Sept. 25 (Privilege of extension to Oct. 5.)	22.00
Saylor Springs, Ill. Going, Every Day. Return Limit, 3 months	6.25

For additional information, sleeping car reservations, descriptive literature, etc., call at Ticket Office, Olive and Sixth Streets, or address,
F. D. GILDERSLEEVE, A. G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

THE NEW
SHORT LINE
Louisville & Nashville Railroad
FROM
Cincinnati and Louisville
TO
KNOXVILLE
Two Trains Daily from each city
Through Coaches, Buffet Parlor Cars and Pullman Sleeping Cars
For Folders, Maps or other information address
C. L. STONE, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
Louisville, Ky.

GEO. KILGEN & SON
BUILDERS OF HIGH GRADE
Pipe Organs
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Best of References. Correspondence Solicited

Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine St.

J. H. GARRISON, - - - - - President
W. W. DOWLING, - - - - Vice-President
W. D. CREE, - - - - Sec'y and Adv. Manager
R. P. CROW, - - Treas. and Bus. Manager
G. A. HOFFMANN, - - General Superintendent

Business Notes.

The calls for "The Holy Spirit," by J. H. Garrison, are continuing right along, but we are so supplied that all are filled promptly. Price, $1.

Wagner's "Simple Life" at 35 cents is in good demand, while the "Letters of a Self-made Man to His Son" are indeed bargains at 60 cents, postpaid.

Our friends must not forget that personal cheques cost us 15 cents for collection, while a draft or money order will only cost you from 3 to 10 cents. Ought you to ask us to be the loser?

All ministers in good standing are privileged to take advantage of our "installment plan" offer, by which you buy any of our books, paying one-fourth or one-fifth down, the other payments in order. Write us.

We have had to make another shipment of "The Christian Worker's Bible and Christian Worker's Testament," but will be well stocked before these notes are read, and we can fill your order or give you any information.

But there are many who prefer the "Old Version," so that we have also received from the Oxford University Press more than $400 worth of the Oxford edition of the Bible, and we have it in all styles and at every price.

Another fortunate stroke for our schools and smaller churches is the "Dime Album," by which the Juniors are raising offerings for the many good purposes they have in hand. These are sold at 5 cents each, postpaid.

We must order another edition of "The Gospel of Matthew," by that prince of commentators, Peloubet, and are going to sell them at 50 cents each, postpaid, though the book was put out to sell at $1.25; another bargain for you.

The Bagster Bibles are in the market to stay. The "Red Letter" Bibles and Testaments are in good demand, hence our stocking up on all such books, making it possible for our friends to get anything in the Bible line right at "headquarters," and "right" in price.

We have just received from Thomas Nelson & Sons over $500 worth of the "American Standard Revised" Bibles and Testaments, such is the demand for this most up-to-date translation of the word of God. We can now fill any orders sent us without any delay. Prices, from 35 cents to $18.

For older folks: "If I Were King" and "The Resurrection," also "Soldiers of Fortune" and "The Virginians," also "Gordon Keith" and "In the Palace of the King," also "The Right of Way" and "Captain Ravenshaw." All of the above are $1.50 books, selling at 60 cents, postpaid. Our stock is complete.

The Glass Birthday Globes are having a great sale, the schools, classes and individuals using them with pleasure and interest. The No. 1 sells at 35 cents, the No. 2 at 50 cents, the No. 3 at $1.35, all postpaid. No. 3 is one of the handsomest globes on the market and any of them will increase the birthday offerings of your school, or the class offerings.

The force in the book-room does not aim to be partial, giving some ministers the 25 per cent off, charging others full price; but we do not know all our "brethren of the cloth," so if you will just deduct the 25 per cent, then add 10 per cent of the list price of any of our own publications, save "net" books, we are sure to give you the discount. This applies to all ministers.

Our Cradle Roll stock is complete; so that we can furnish any and all our schools with everything needed for this happy phase of interest. "Gloria in Excelsis," in silk cloth is just from the bindery. It is the best church hymnal on the market and sells at $1 postpaid; $9.50 per dozen, $75 per 100, not prepaid. It has 600 pages and ought to last a lifetime. Write us for further information or "sample copy."

The boys and girls will soon be off for the summer, and will want some good reading to take along. We have "The Young Buglers," "By Pike and Dike," "The Young Midshipman" and "Through the Fray," also "The Bravest of the Brave," and such like books reduced from 75 to 35 cents. If the girls wish something special, we have "Six to Sixteen" and "Six Little Princes," and "Book of Golden Deeds," also "Wild Kitty" and "Our Bessie" and "Four Little Mischiefs" and "Esther," reduced from 75 to 35 cents.

There are thousands of brethren and sisters who have read and enjoyed the CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST for years. These good men and women would not do without the paper for many times its price. You have received many times the value you have paid. Now, would it not be a nice thing for you to place this good paper into some other homes? Send us at least one new subscriber as an appreciation of your good will. If you can, kindly commend the paper to others, and through your efforts we may receive a score of new subscribers.

Do not fail to read Brother Van Kirk's article on the trip to California. The CHRISTIAN-EVANGELIST Special will be the great train to carry a great company of the best people in America. Among the ministers will be, S. D. Dutcher, W. B. Clemmer, J. H. Garrison, G. A. Hoffmann, T. A. Abbott, A. W. Kokendoffer, F. M. Hooton and many others equally prominent as workers in the Master's cause. There will be young men and young ladies and any one will find congenial company and happy associations. This will be the greatest trip across the continent ever taken. Do not fail to write us at once and if you go with us, we will do you good.

EVERYBODY IS LAUGHING HEARTILY
—AT—
REUBEN
—AND
HIS EXPERIENCES AT COLLEGE AND ABROAD.
Send One Dollar for "Reuben: His Book" to
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING CO., - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

Living Praise

By Chas. H. Gabriel
and W. W. Dowling

Sacred Songs Suitable for All Occasions

267 Sacred Songs; a very large proportion of them new. The best collection of high class music ever produced among our people.

Three Styles of Binding.

PRICES:
$15.00, $20.00, $25.00 per hundred

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
2712 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo

Church Supplies

Church Register and Record
With special rulings, headings and an alphabetical register. Printed on good paper and substantially bound. Size, 9x14 inches; cloth sides with leather back and corners.
160 pages, - $2.00 300 pages, - $3.50

Concise Church Record
A cheap and convenient book in which to record names of members, date of admission, how admitted, and remarks. Space for 960 names. Printed on good paper and strongly bound. Price, - - $1.00

Contribution Record
For use in connection with the envelope system. Designed expressly for keeping systematic account of weekly contributions. The most convenient record published.
Half leather, quarto, 40 pages, - - $1.00
Half leather, quarto, 80 pages, - - 1.50

Collection Envelopes
Made of good, strong manila paper. Neatly printed; 2 1-2x4 1-2 inches; satisfactory in every particular.
Per thousand by express, not prepaid, $1.00
Per thousand by mail, - - - 1.50

Church Letters
Bound in book form with stub for memorandum. The neatest and most convenient published.
No. 1, Fifty Letter Blanks, - - $0.50
No. 2, One Hundred Letter Blanks, 1.00

Baptismal Pants
We handle only the best grade. They are made in regulation sizes, based on the size of the foot. If an exceptional size is needed it can be made to order. In ordering send size of shoe worn. Prices quoted on application.

Christian Publishing Co., St. Louis

The Best Book Ever Written
on the subject, is
The Verdict of Thousands
who have read
Moral and Spiritual Aspects of Baptism
By N. J. AYLSWORTH
Cloth, 471 pages, $1.50
Christian Publishing Company
2712 Pine Street St. Louis, Mo.

BARRELS OF AIR BURNED AS FUEL

New, Remarkable Stove—Ohioan's Great Invention—Consumes 395 Barrels of Air to One Gallon of common Kerosene oil making oil-gas—the New Fuel that looks and burns like gas?

Wood, coal and oil all cost money. ONLY FREE FUEL IS AIR! Unlimited supply—no trust in control. Air belongs to rich and poor alike. We can't burn air alone but see here! Our wonderful stove burns air and gas—very little gas—principally air. Takes its fuel almost entirely from the atmosphere.

A miniature gas works—penny fuel for every family—save ½ to ⅓ on cost—save dirt and drudgery—no more coal or wood to carry—ashes unknown—absolute safety.

SEE HOW SIMPLE? TURN A KNOB—TOUCH A MATCH—FIRE IS ON.
TURN AGAIN—FIRE IS OFF? THAT'S ALL.

Astonishing but true—time-tested—proven facts—circulars give startling details—overwhelming evidence.

NO SUCH STOVE SOLD IN STORES—UNLIKE ANYTHING YOU'VE SEEN OR HEARD OF.

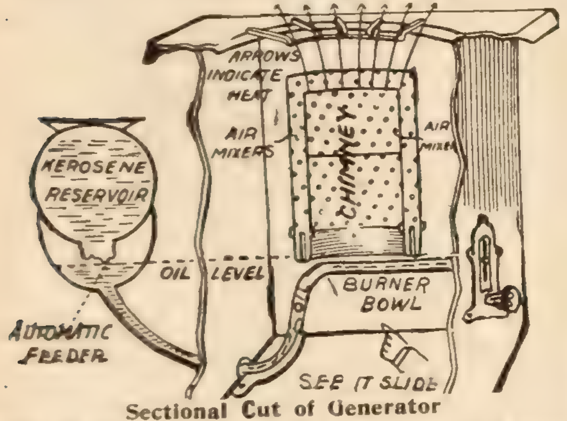
A genius of Cincinnati has invented a new, scientific oil-gas generator that is proving a blessing to women folks, enabling them to cook with gas—relieving them of drudgery. Makes cooking and housework a delight and at the same time often saves one-third to one-half in cost of fuel.

How often have many of our lady readers remarked that they would give anything to get rid of the drudgery of using the dirty coal and wood stoves—also the smoky oil wick stoves and their gasoline stoves, which are so dangerous and liable to cause explosions or fire at any time.

Well, that day has arrived and a fine substitute has been discovered and every family can now have gas fuel for cooking, baking and heating and not have their kitchens a hot, fiery furnace in summer, and be carrying coal and ashes—ruining their looks and health.

Thousands a Week.

Upon calling at the factory we found that this invention has caused a remarkable excitement all over the U. S.—that the factory is already rushed with thousands of orders and evidently the Company's representatives and agents are making big profits as they offer splendid inducements.



Sectional Cut of Generator

As will be noticed from the engraving, this OIL-GAS GENERATOR is entirely different from any other stove—although its construction is very simple—may be easily and safely operated and is built on the latest scientific principles, having no valves, which is a marked improvement, as all valves are liable to leak, carbonize, clog up or overflow.

By simply moving a knob the oil is automatically fed to a small, steel burner bowl or retort where it is instantly changed into gas, which is drawn upwards between two red hot perforated steel chimneys, thoroughly mixed with air and consumed, giving a bright blue flame—hottest gas fire, similar in color and heating power to natural gas.

This invention has been fully protected in the U. S. Patent Office and is known as the HARRISON VALVELESS, WICKLESS, AUTOMATIC OIL-GAS GENERATOR—the only one yet discovered that consumes the carbon and by-products of the oil.

The extremely small amount of Kerosene Oil that is needed to produce so large a volume of gas make it one of the most economical fuels on earth and the reason for the great success of this Generator is based on the well known fact of the enormous expansiveness of oil-gas when mixed with oxygen or common air.

Oil-gas is proving so cheap that 15c to 30c a week should furnish fuel-gas for cooking for a small family.

Kerosene oil, from which oil-gas is made, may be purchased in every grocery—is cheap and a gallon of it will furnish a hot, blue flame gas fire in the burner for about 18 hours and as a stove is only used 3 or 4 hours a day in most families for cooking, the expense of operating would be but little.

In addition to its cheapness is added the comfort, cleanliness—absence of soot, coal, dirt, ashes, etc.

What pleasure to just turn on the oil—light the gas—a hot fire ready to cook. When through, turn it off. Just think; a little kerosene oil—one match—light—a beautiful blue gas flame—hottest fire—always ready—quick meals—a gas stove in your home.

It generates the gas only as needed—Is not complicated, but simple—easily operated and another feature is its PERFECT SAFETY.

NOT DANGEROUS LIKE GASOLINE

And liable to explode and cause fire at any moment. This stove is so safe that you could drop a match in the oil tank and it would go out.

This Oil-Gas Stove does any kind of cooking that a coal or gas range will do—invaluable for the kitchen, laundry—summer cottage—washing—ironing—camping, etc. Splendid for canning fruit—with a portable oven placed over the burner splendid baking can be done.

Another Important Feature

Is the invention of a small Radiator Attachment which placed over the burner makes a desirable heating stove during the fall and winter so that the old cook stove may be done away with entirely.

While at the factory in Cincinnati the writer was shown thousands of letters from customers who were using this wonderful oil-gas stove, showing that it is not an experiment but a positive success and giving splendid satisfaction and as a few extracts may be interesting to our readers we reproduce them:

L. S. Norris, of Vt., writes: "The Harrison Oil-Gas Generators are wonderful savers of fuel—at least fifty per cent. or seventy-five per cent. over wood and coal."

Mr. H. Howe, of N. Y., writes: "I find the Harrison is the first and only perfect oil-gas stove I have ever seen—so simple anyone can safely use it. It is what I have wanted for years. Certainly, a blessing to human kind."

Mr. E. D. Arnold, of Nebr., writes: "That he saved $4.25 a month for fuel by using The Harrison Oil-Gas Stove. That his gas range cost him $5.50 per month and the Harrison only $1.25 per month."

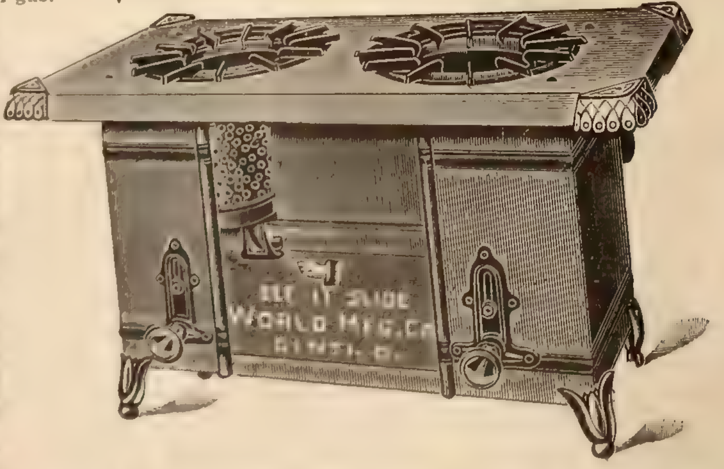
J. A. Shafer, of Pa., writes: "The Harrison Oil Gas Stove makes an intense heat from a small quantity of oil—entirely free from smoke or smell—great improvement over any other oil stove Has a perfect arrangement for combustion—can scarcely be distinguished from a natural gas fire."

Mr. H. B. Thompson of Ohio, writes: "I congratulate you on such a grand invention to aid the poor in this time of high fuel. The mechanism is so simple—easily operated—no danger. The color of the gas flame is a beautiful dark blue, and so hot seems almost double as powerful as gasoline."

Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, writes: "Am delighted—Oil-Gas Stoves so much nicer and cheaper than others—no wood, coal, ashes, smoke, no pipe, no wick, cannot explode."

Hon. Ira Eble. J. P., of Wis., writes: "Well pleased with the Harrison—far ahead of gasoline. No smoke or dirt—no trouble. Is perfectly safe—no danger of explosion like gasoline."

Chas. L. Bendeke, of N. Y., writes: "It is a pleasure to be the owner of your wonderful Oil-Gas Stove—no coal yard, plumbing—ashes or dust. One match lights the stove and in 10 minutes breakfast is ready. No danger from an explosion—no smoke—no dirt—simply turn it off and expense ceases. For cheapness it has no equal"



Agents are doing fine—Making big money.

WONDERFUL QUICK SELLER.

Geo. Robertson, of Me., writes: "Am delighted with Oil-Gas, so are my friends—took 12 orders in 3 days."

A. B. Slimp, of Texas, writes: "I want the agency—In a day and a half took over a dozen orders."

Edward Wilson, of Mo., writes: "The Harrison very satisfactory—Sold 5 stoves first day I had mine."

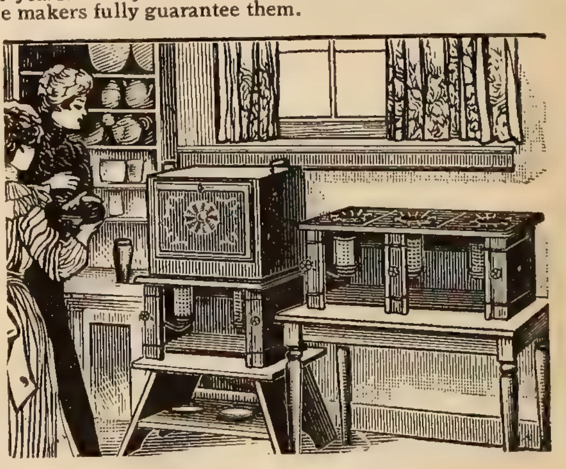
J. H. Halman, of Tenn., writes: "Already have 70 orders."

This is certainly a good chance for our readers to make money this summer.

Hundreds of other prominent people highly endorse and recommend oil-gas fuel and there certainly seems to be no doubt that it is a wonderful improvement over other stoves.

The writer personally saw these Oil-Gas Stoves in operation—in fact uses one in his own home—is delighted with its working and after a thorough investigation can say to our readers that this Harrison Oil-Gas Stove made by the Cincinnati firm is the only perfect burner of its kind.

It is made in three sizes 1, 2 or 3 generators to a stove. They are made of steel thr ughout—thoroughly tested before shipping—sent out complete—ready for use as soon as received—nicely finished with nickel trimmings and as there seems to be nothing about it to wear out, they should last for years. They seem to satisfy and delight every user and the makers fully guarantee them.



HOW TO GET ONE.

All our lady readers who want to enjoy the pleasures of a gas stove—the cheapest, cleanest and safest fuel—save one-third to one-half on fuel bills and do their cooking, baking, ironing and canning fruit at small expense should have one of these remarkable stoves.

Space prevents a more detailed description, but these oil-gas stoves will bear out the most exacting demand for durability and satisfactory properties.

If you will write to the only makers, The World Mfg. Co., 5959 World Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio, and ask for their illustrated pamphlet describing this invention and also letters from hundreds of delighted users you will receive much valuable information.

The price of these stoves is remarkably low, only $3.00 up. And it is indeed, difficult to imagine where that amount of money could be invested in anything else that would bring such saving in fuel bills, so much good health and satisfaction to our wives.

DON'T FAIL TO WRITE TO-DAY

For full information regarding this splendid invention.

The World Mfg. Co., is composed of prominent business men of Cincinnati, are perfectly responsible and reliable, capital $100,000.00 and will do just as they agree. The stoves are just as represented and fully warranted, and delivered promptly to any address.

Don't fail to write for catalogue.

$40.00 Weekly and Expenses.

The firm offers splendid inducements to agents and an energetic man or woman having spare time can get a good position paying big wages by writing them at once and mentioning this paper.

A wonderful wave of excitement has swept over the country, for where shown, these Oil-Gas Stoves have caused great excitement. Oil-Gas fuel is so economical and delightful that the sales of these stoves last month were enormous and the factory is rushed with thousands of orders.

Many of our readers have spare time, or are out of employment and others are not making a great deal of money, and we advise them to write to the firm and secure an agency for this invention. Exhibit this stove before 8 or 10 people and you excite their curiosity and should be able to sell 5 or 8 and make $10.00 to $15.00 a day. Why should people live in penury or suffer hardships for the want of plenty of money when an opportunity of this sort is open?

THE CHRISTIAN EVANGELIST
Vol. 42
1905: Jan-Jun

DATE	ISSUED TO

DEMCO